Roman Rule (63 BC—AD 135). Throughout the first century BC, Rome steadily increased its power over the Mediterranean world. In 63 BC the Roman general Pompey made Judea a vassal of Rome, and Jewish independence was gone. When Hyrcanus II, the last Hasmonean ruler, died in 40 BC, an Idumean named Herod was well-positioned to take control of Judea. He was supported in Rome by Octavian and Mark Antony and strengthened by his marriage to a Hasmonean princess, Mariamne, the granddaughter of Hyrcanus II. So Herod the Great became king (37–4 BC) and reestablished a separate high priesthood. By the turn of the first century AD, the Pax Romana was fully established, with Judea in its grip under the rule of Herod's successors (see genealogy, "The Herod Family," p. 1579).

JEWISH LITERATURE In the 400 years between the last of the OT books and the beginning of NT history, Jewish thinking underwent radical changes under the extended influences of Persian rule, Greek language and philosophy, and renewed nationalism.

Though none of the writings of this period were accepted as Scripture, they are valuable for understanding Jewish history and culture. The works of the Apocrypha (Epistle of Jeremiah, Tobit, Baruch, Ecclesiasticus [Sirach], Judith, 1–2 Esdras, 1–2 Maccabees, Wisdom of Solomon, and additions to Esther and Daniel) were included with most manuscripts of the Greek OT. Other Jewish books, called the pseudepigrapha, were also written (e.g., 1–2 Enoch, Jubilees, Testaments of the Twelve Patriarchs, Letter of Aristeas, Psalms of Solomon). Most of the religious literature of the period, including the books of the Apocrypha and pseudepigrapha, were written in Greek, but some Jewish separatists living at Qumran continued writing in Hebrew. Their writings, discovered in 1948, are commonly referred to as the Dead Sea Scrolls and include OT texts, commentaries on them, and liturgical and philosophical texts.

TESTAMENT

INTRODUCTION TO THE NEW TESTAMENT

The New Testament both fulfills (Matt 5:17-20) and completes (Rom 10:4) the Old Testament. What the prophets looked forward to and longed to see (1 Pet 1:10-12a), and what the angels intensely watched (1 Pet 1:12b), came in the person of Jesus, Israel's Messiah, God's Son, the God-man. The coming of the "unique One, who is himself God" (John 1:18) is the central point not only of human history but of eternity itself. The NT tells the story of his coming and its effects in the inaugural group of believers, the early church.

In the pages of the NT we encounter a holy God as he exhibits his justice and love, both judging sin, and forgiving and overcoming sin. We also encounter sinful mankind as some people repent and others resist God's offer of salvation. Every reader is asked to identify with the people whose stories are told and come to a decision regarding his or her own relationship with this holy God. In the Gospels, theology becomes drama as we see the story of salvation acted out in living events. In the letters, theology is presented as the writers address problems in the early church and give divinely inspired solutions.

The NT is the word of God, written under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit (2 Tim 3:16; 2 Pet 1:20-21) by people who were giving God's words to mankind. As such, it is the most important book ever written and the only possible guide for the Christian life. Believers must make its teaching the center of their life and conduct, and every nonbeliever must be given the opportunity to hear its truths.

SETTING AND BACKGROUND

The events of the NT take place in the central regions of the Roman empire, from the land of Palestine west to Rome. During the period 167-142 BC, Judea won its freedom from the Hellenistic Seleucids of Syria due to the rebellion instigated by Mattathias and his sons. Then Rome conquered the lands west of the Euphrates under Pompey. Beginning in 63 BC, Palestine was under Roman authority, and continued to be for the entire period of the NT.

Palestine was composed of three districts: Judea to the south, Samaria in the center, and Galilee to the north. From the time of the return from exile under Ezra and Nehemiah, Samaria had been the enemy of the other two. Those tensions were very real in the time of Jesus' ministry and early in the book of Acts.

The land of Judea had somewhat sparse vegetation, but Galilee was a rich agricultural land. As a result, Galilee was bought up by wealthy landowners who divided up their estates into tenant farms, with half the crops belonging to the owners and half to the farmers. Many of Jesus' parables reflect this reality. Moreover, Galilee had many Gentile cities and many Gentiles living in it, so it was not as conservative as Judea in the south and was looked down on by southern Jews. Most of the Pharisees came from Judea.

The Jordan River flowed from the Sea of Galilee (a lake 13 miles long by 7 miles wide [21 by 11 kilometers]) in the north down to the Dead Sea in the south and formed the eastern boundary of Palestine. On to the east and to the north lay Gentile lands, including the Decapolis, a group of ten Gentile towns east of the Jordan River and near the lake. Jesus deliberately ministered there on several occasions.

After Pentecost, the Good News moved out into the Gentile lands, beginning with Antioch, the capital of Syria. The church in Antioch became Paul's sponsoring church; from there he and Barnabas took their first missionary journey to the island of Cyprus west of Syria and to the province of Galatia (the western part of modern Turkey). It was a rugged, mountainous area, and we have little idea of the rigors of these travels. Then, on the next two missionary journeys, Paul traversed the rest of Asia Minor and went over to Greece. In Acts 18:18-23, Paul covered 1500 miles from the end of his second missionary journey to the beginning of his third.

Toward the end of his third missionary journey, Paul again traveled a great distance from Corinth, through Macedonia, and finally to Jerusalem. After being arrested in Jerusalem and held as a prisoner in Caesarea, Paul was taken to Rome, where a growing church was located. Paul's desire was to spend the rest of his life in the western part of the Roman empire (from Rome to Spain; see Rom 15:20-29), but God had other plans. When Paul was released, he went back to Greece and the province of Asia. Later, the province of Asia was the focus of the book of Revelation, written by the apostle John.

THE STORY OF THE NEW TESTAMENT

Like the OT, the NT begins by identifying the "beginning" (John 1:1). A new, spiritual creation begins with the appearance of the incarnate God, Jesus the Messiah. Matthew and Luke begin with Jesus' virgin birth and childhood, showing the way a sovereign God intervened in human history to bring his Son into an evil world. Born around 6 BC, Jesus began his ministry about AD 28 (the fifteenth year of Tiberius, Luke 3:1; the forty-sixth year of rebuilding the Temple, John 2:20). His ministry lasted until he was crucified in AD 30 or 33. During these years, Jesus confronted and challenged four main groups—the disciples (who believed but struggled), the crowds (who were enamored but would not commit), the religious leaders (who rejected him and plotted to take his life), and the demons (who knew exactly who he was but were overpowered and bound by him). Jesus encountered each group with the reality that the Kingdom had come through him and all must repent and believe in him; in the cosmic war with the unclean spirits, he had absolute power and gave his authority over them to his disciples (Mark 3:15).

At the third of three Passovers (John 2:13; 6:4; 11:55), Jesus was arrested, brought up on false charges, and crucified. But he was not just an innocent victim—he died at the God-appointed time (John 7:30; 8:20; 12:23), and he went to the cross voluntarily and in full control. He knew that he was the suffering servant of Isaiah 53, whose death was a vicarious atonement: He was dying as a substitute for us (Mark 10:45; 14:24). His death and resurrection show him to be the glorified Messiah (John 3:17; 8:28; 12:32; 19:19-21). On the third day after his death, God raised him from the dead as the first of a great harvest of those who have died (1 Cor 15:20), guaranteeing the reality of resurrection and eternal life. He appeared many times over a forty-day period (Acts 1:3) both in Jerusalem and Galilee, proving to the disciples that he was alive, bringing to himself his brothers who formerly were unbelievers (1 Cor 15:7), and launching the church in its mission to all the world (Matt 28:19; Acts 1:8).

At first, the church did not understand the command to go to the nations, even after Pentecost, and so the Spirit led them step by step out of Jerusalem (Acts 8:1-3), into Samaria (Acts 8:4-25) and to the ends of the earth (the rest of Acts). He did so by leading Peter to Cornelius (Acts 10) and then by confronting Paul (an implacable enemy of Christianity until Jesus confronted him personally on the way to Damascus, Acts 9) and calling Paul to be the apostle to the Gentiles. Antioch of Syria, the third-largest city in the Roman world, became the hub of the mission, and all three of Paul's missionary journeys proceeded from there. Paul's pattern remained constant throughout his ministry (as noted in Rom 1:16): He would begin proclaiming the Good News in Jewish synagogues. All of his sermons to the Jews centered on Jesus' fulfillment of OT expectations and ended with Jesus' death and resurrection as the basis of salvation and a call for repentance. When the Jews rejected Paul (often violently), he would go to the Gentiles and proclaim Jesus as the fulfillment of their pagan hopes. The book of Acts proclaims the power of the Holy Spirit in bringing Jews and Gentiles to belief in Jesus and helping believers recapitulate the life and ministry of Jesus in their own lives and ministries.

When Paul was arrested, imprisoned, and sent to Rome, a new phase of persecution of Christians and proclamation of the Good News ensued. Paul's two years in prison (AD 60-62) saw a great deal of evangelistic fervor (cp. Phil 1:12-14, which might have been written during this time). Yet at the same time Jewish opposition increased. Jewish opponents denounced Christians to the Roman authorities, arguing that the new movement was not a Jewish sect and should be declared an illegal foreign religion. This strategy was successful, leading to increased Roman persecution—as seen in the terrible slaughter under Nero, when Paul and Peter were executed (AD 64-65). Yet throughout this time of rejection and death, the church responded with spiritual power and "rejoicing that God had counted them worthy to suffer disgrace for the name of Jesus" (Acts 5:41). Their numbers continued to grow throughout the first century.

At the same time, however, certain heresies began to develop. Some Jewish Christian teachers demanded that all Gentiles who wanted to be Christians needed to first become Jewish. Paul indicted them as false teachers because they replaced the cross with Judaism (Gal 1:6-8; 2 Cor 11:13-15; Phil 3:18-19). There were also those who combined Judaism with Hellenism (Greek religion; see Colossians, 1-2 Timothy). Finally, there was a brand of proto-Gnosticism that stressed salvation through gnosis, or knowledge, and allowed immorality (see 1 John, Rev 2). These kinds of heresies continued in the following centuries and prompted the early church to develop both a canon and a set of doctrines that defined true orthodoxy.

THE CANON OF THE NT

The term canon means "measuring rod" or "norm" and was originally used to identify the set of standard doctrines for the church. From the 300s AD, it has referred to those books of the OT and NT that are considered authentic Scripture. There is no evidence of a movement toward an official canon before the middle of the 100s AD, but there were three preliminary stages during the first century. First, the words of Jesus were treated as canonical from the beginning, as seen in Paul's use of Luke 10:7 alongside Deut 25:4 (1 Tim 5:18). Second, early Christian creeds and hymns (containing official summaries of orthodox truth) were used in the same way as OT passages to anchor important arguments (e.g., Rom 1:3-4; Col 1:15-20; Heb 1:3-4). Third, Paul's epistles were collected and recognized early (2 Pet 3:15-16). These steps did not constitute an official collection, but they were recognized as authoritative materials.

The church fathers of the 100s AD (Clement, Ignatius, Polycarp, the Didache) similarly recognized the authority of the writings now constituting the NT, but they did not call them Scripture.

In the 200s and 300s AD, a set of criteria for accepting works as genuine slowly emerged. An accepted book had to have been (1) written by an apostle or someone connected with an apostle (e.g., Mark in connection with Peter, Luke in connection with Paul); (2) accepted by a majority of the churches; and (3) understood as containing orthodox doctrine. The churches eventually came to a consensus, and the NT canon was formalized: In AD 367, Athanasius of Alexandria gave the first official list of the twenty-seven books that are accepted today. Of the official church councils, the council in Laodicea (AD 363) accepted all but Revelation, while councils in Hippo (AD 393) and Carthage (AD 397) accepted all twenty-seven.

Even though the process of officially recognizing the canon of the NT took over 300 years, all the books of the NT were quoted, alluded to, and accepted by a wide number of churches very early. The early church recognized those books that God had inspired through the apostles and their associates; the inspiration of those books was indicated by their apostolic authorship and their agreement with "the faith that God has entrusted once for all time to his holy people" (Jude 1:3). For more on the development of the NT canon, see "Introduction to the Time After the Apostles," p. 2201.

INTERPRETING THE NT

Many Christians take a subjective, individualistic stance toward the meaning of Scripture; we tend to think that, as long as my heart is touched, I have found the meaning. We also tend to think that if we read and memorize Scripture, its meaning will automatically become clear. It is not so.

All true interpretation seeks the meaning that the author intended to convey. For the Bible, the focus on the author's intent is even more important, for there is both the human author who penned the words and the divine Author who inspired the text. In order to perceive the true intent of the human author and the divine Author of Scripture, we must carefully study the context, culture, and background behind each book. The following instructions will help guide our study:

1. Consider the passage as part of a larger whole

Words and sentences have no meaning (only possible meanings) apart from the context in which they are embedded. No author ever writes sentences by themselves; they are always part of a developing message, and each part is chosen for what it adds to the whole communication. The student must study how the words fit together and which meaning the words have in a particular context (because each word might have many possible meanings). Consider the whole section and then the paragraph, asking what the words as well as the sentences add to the whole. How does the author develop the argument, and what does the author want the readers to do with it?

2. Consider the cultural background of the text

The NT was produced within the Jewish and Greco-Roman cultures of the first century. Those ways of life have been gone for nearly 2,000 years, and we have no access to them without serious study. Fortunately, the scholars who produced the study materials in the NLT Study Bible are experts in these areas, and they explain the cultural background behind each book and passage. For example, Jesus' parables (in the Gospels) and John's apocalyptic writing (in the book of Revelation) come alive with such background studies. So, too, it is important to know who the Pharisees were (see "The Pharisees" at Matt 3:7, p. 1581) and what a "talent" was (see Matt 25:15 and note) when trying to understand individual passages.

3. Identify the genre or type of literature for each passage

Recognizing the genre of each passage helps us to know how it was intended to be understood.

- The Gospels and Acts are theological narrative. We must study the point of view and flow from story to story, noting the theological message of each as well as the larger plot development of the whole.
- The Gospels also contain parables. We must recognize the background behind each parable (e.g., the commercial or agricultural metaphors at play) and distinguish those parts that carry theological meaning from those that are simply part of the story line (i.e., we must avoid allegorizing every element of the parables). Above all, we must ask what Jesus meant by the parable in its context, not what we can read into it.

- The letters of Paul and others are straightforward didactic letters, but we still need to see the cultural background behind each individual letter as well as the rhetorical flow of passages like Romans 7 or Hebrews 6.
- Many books contain apocalyptic sections (e.g., Mark 13; 2 Thes 2; 2 Pet 2; Revelation). The difficult symbols in these sections take their meaning from a common core of symbols inherited from the OT and intertestamental Jewish literature. While there will always be debates regarding the meaning of apocalyptic sections for today, the basic contours of meaning can be established with reference to the commonly understood symbolism. The study materials on these passages will help the reader to understand what is going on (see also Revelation Introduction, "Apocalyptic Writing," p. 2163).

There are many levels to understanding the text of Scripture. The deeper we go into the meaning of the biblical texts, the more treasures are waiting.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

The NT has several primary themes, but all flow from the OT concept of a holy God who is characterized by justice and love. Sin was brought into this world by Adam, so every person is controlled by sin and naturally rejects God's offer of salvation.

The overarching story of Scripture asks the question, how can a loving God be just and at the same time bring a people to himself as his chosen children? Both the OT and the NT answer this question. God is absolutely sovereign and Lord of all he created, yet he created this world in order to have fellowship with those made in his image.

1. The OT and the NT

The relationship between the testaments is one of promise and fulfillment. Both the OT and the NT describe a gracious, merciful God who draws his people to himself. At the same time, he is a God of justice and judgment who must punish sin. The purpose of the law was to point out sin and to prepare for Christ (see Romans, Galatians). Thus Jesus fulfilled the law by summing it up in himself and in his teaching (Matt 5:17-20).

Most of the arguments in the NT letters are directly grounded in the OT. There are about three hundred quotations and thousands of allusions to the OT; Revelation has 400-600 allusions by itself. Since the OT is inspired Scripture (2 Tim 3:16), the writers wanted to build their arguments on it.

2. Jesus: Messiah, Lord of All, and Son of God

The central figure of the NT is Jesus Christ. Born of the virgin Mary (cp. Isa 7:14), he was the expected Messiah who inaugurated God's Kingdom. With him the last days have begun but are yet to be consummated. He did not come as the conquering king that people expected but as the suffering servant (Isa 52:13-53:12) who suffered and died. He came in order to die on the cross for us (Phil 2:6-8). He was not only human but was "the unique One, who is himself God" (John 1:18; cp. John 1:1; 8:58; 10:30) and took on human flesh (John 1:14). In his life he defeated the powers of evil and exercised authority over the natural forces he had created. In his death and resurrection he satisfied God's judgment against sin and conquered death for all who believe. As the glorified Lord he will come again to end human history, vindicate his holy people, and destroy evil once and for all (1 Thes 4:13-5:10; Rev 19).

3. Sin and Salvation

Jesus came to give himself on the cross as the sacrifice for sin in our place. Sin is an invading army that enters our realm, establishes a bridgehead in our life, defeats us, and then enslaves us (see Rom 5:12-7:8). There is only one answer: the salvation that God has made possible in Jesus Christ. His death atones for sin (i.e., satisfies the penalty it requires), provides the ransom payment that frees us from slavery to sin, and results in God's declaring all who believe in Jesus to be innocent and right with him (see Rom 3:24-25). Through faith in Jesus' work of atonement and resurrection, we are "born again" (John 3:3), adopted as God's children (Rom 8:14-17), and given the promise of eternal life (John 3:16).

4. Christian Responsibility

When God declares us righteous through Christ, he begins the process by which we are transformed and enabled to live rightly before him. This is called sanctification, the growth of the believer in holiness (separation from the world and for God). Good deeds do not save us (Eph 2:8-9), but good deeds are the necessary result of salvation and prove that one has indeed been saved (Eph 2:10; Jas 2:14-26). Jesus demands absolute surrender to himself and will not accept a halfhearted commitment (Mark 8:34-38; Luke 9:57-62). We have not truly heard God's word until we obey it (Jas 1:19-27).

5. Christian Community

Jesus established not so much a movement called Christianity or an institution called "the church," but a community of people who together make up the church. Believers are commanded to gather regularly, form communities, and share the Christian life together (Heb 10:24-25). Nearly all of the commands in the NT are in the plural, meaning they are to be obeyed by a community and not only by individuals. We must help one another follow the Lord and keep his word.

6. Final Judgment and the End of Evil

The NT is absolutely clear: This world will end and a new world will begin. Jesus will return, end this created order tainted by sin (Rom 8:18-22; 2 Pet 3:7, 10), and destroy evil once and for all. At that event all people, both believers and nonbelievers, both saved and unsaved, will stand before God and give account of their lives (Heb 13:17; Jas 3:1). Every person, both believers and nonbelievers, will be "judged by their works" (2 Cor 5:10; Rev 14:13; 18:6; 20:13; 22:12) by a just God who gives to all people as they deserve. God's people who trust in him will receive the crown of life, while God's enemies who rebel against him will receive eternal torment. (Those who claim that eternal punishment is unjust do not understand the wickedness of sin or the holiness of God, who abhors sin.) When God brings final justice, his people will rejoice at the destruction of evil and the coming of the eternal, holy kingdom of God (Rev 19:6-8).

INTRODUCTION TO THE FOUR GOSPELS

How could an obscure Galilean peasant and carpenter with no academic training and no social status, one who died the most ignominious death imaginable, establish a movement that would conquer the Roman world and become a worldwide religious force? Moreover, how do we affirm the historical trustworthiness of such incredible stories about a man who controlled nature's forces, healed the sick, cast out demons, raised the dead, and was raised himself after being crucified?

The Gospels tell us the story of Jesus—his virgin birth and childhood; his inauguration to ministry; his impact on the people of Judea, Samaria, Galilee, and Phoenicia during his messianic ministry; and his death and resurrection. It is the most important story that history will ever tell, for it chronicles the life of the extraordinary Son of God who has come into this world.

SETTING

The setting for the Gospels includes both Jewish and Greco-Roman cultures (see also "The Historical Background of the Intertestamental Period," p. 1552). Jesus lived and died in the Jewish world of the first century, and Jesus and his disciples ministered primarily to the Jewish people. But Jesus was raised in Galilee and conducted his ministry mainly in "Galilee where so many Gentiles live" (Matt 4:15), so he also reached out to Gentiles, and his resurrection inaugurated the mission to Gentiles (Matt 28:19).

During the time of Jesus, Jewish territories were ruled by the descendants of Herod the Great and by Roman governors like Pontius Pilate who resided at Caesarea but came to Jerusalem for festivals. Jewish civic affairs were handled by the Sanhedrin, the Jewish high council that consisted mainly of Sadducees and Pharisees (see "The Pharisees" at Matt 3:7, p. 1581; "The Sadducees" at Matt 16:1-12, p. 1610).

THE FOUR GOSPELS

Each of the four Gospels presents Jesus' life in a different way with different themes, showing different nuances of Jesus the man and of the various groups who encountered him.

- Matthew's Gospel is the Jewish Gospel. It shows how Jesus fulfilled the Torah and provided the final understanding of it. It represents Jesus as the descendant of David who fulfills the OT promises for the Messiah, the King of Israel. In Matthew, Jesus gives the principles for living as citizens of God's Kingdom (e.g., Matt 5-7). Jesus leads the disciples to overcome their failures and find understanding in spite of their "little faith."

- Mark centers on Jesus as Messiah and Son of God. Mark reports the disciples' difficulties: They misunderstand and fail as they try to follow Jesus. Mark shows the nature of true discipleship through characters who appear briefly, like the woman from Phoenicia, the father of the demon-possessed boy, and blind Bartimaeus.
- Luke has more on the subject of social concern than any other Gospel. Luke also highlights the importance of prayer, the Spirit, and worship. He shows how, through Jesus, God has worked out his salvation in human history and become Lord of all.
- In John, Jesus is the living revealer of God who encounters all people with the "light of the world" and the "bread of life" and with the need to believe. Jesus is "the unique One, who is himself God" and has entered this world and brought the glory of God's presence into the world and among his own people.

Each Gospel is meant to be studied on its own. Each has unique perspectives and theological messages that supplement the others and challenge readers in important ways. God chose to inspire four different writers because each perspective is important for the church.

SUMMARY

All four Gospels tell the story of Jesus' life, death, and resurrection. Two of the Gospels (Mark and John) contain prologues that describe Jesus as the Messiah, the Son of God, the "Word" or living voice of God, and God incarnate. The other two Gospels (Matthew and Luke) begin with accounts of Jesus' genealogy, birth, and childhood. Matthew relates how God supernaturally overcame Herod's evil attempt to thwart the divine plan of Jesus' coming into the world. Luke relates the births of the prophet John the Baptist and Jesus, the greater prophet.

Only John tells of the early months of Jesus' ministry, how he drew his first disciples from the group following John the Baptist and then traveled frequently from Galilee to Jerusalem for festivals (John 1-7). Matthew, Mark, and Luke—the "synoptic" Gospels that have the "same look"—focus on Jesus' ministry in Galilee.

None of the Gospel writers take a chronological approach to Jesus' life. Instead, the Gospels are more topical, organized to provide a theological portrait of Jesus' actions, teachings, and impact.

From the start Jesus combined miracles with teaching, so that the crowds were astounded with his words and deeds (Mark 1:21-28). He controlled every aspect of his creation: He could stop the forces of nature, heal the sick, raise the dead, and cast out demons (Mark 3:27), and he gave the same authority to his disciples (Mark 3:14-15). He chose twelve disciples, included them in his ministry, and frequently sent them out on missions (Luke 9-10). The crowds were enamored with Jesus and flocked after him, but they were unwilling to commit themselves to him. In the end, they called for his death (Mark 15:8-15). The Jewish leaders, by contrast, utterly opposed him and plotted to kill him almost from the beginning (Mark 3:6).

The turning point in Jesus' ministry was at Caesarea Philippi, when Peter called him Messiah but refused to accept that it meant suffering and death (Mark 8:27-33). Shortly afterward Jesus was transfigured, his preexistent glory radiating through his humanity (Mark 9:1-8). Then Jesus "resolutely set out for Jerusalem" to fulfill his mission (Luke 9:51). His journey to his God-ordained destiny saw him gradually retreat from public ministry and focus on his disciples (Luke 9:51-19:27). He knew that he was destined to die as the substitute for our sins in order to ransom us from judgment (Mark 10:45).

Jesus arrived at Jerusalem one week before Passover, was anointed for burial, and then entered the city on a donkey. In doing this, he announced that he did not come as a conqueror but as the humble Messiah, the King who brings peace (John 12). Throughout the week leading up to Passover, when the people purified themselves for the festival, Jesus prepared the nation for judgment by cleansing the Temple, cursing the fig tree, and teaching on the Mount of Olives about the coming judgment. He also debated the Jewish leaders and showed himself to be the true interpreter of the law. He then concluded the preparation of his disciples at the Last Supper. There he prophesied his betrayal by Judas, his desertion by all of them, and the giving of his body and blood for the forgiveness of humanity. He had four "trials" that night—a meeting with Annas (John 18:13), then with the Sanhedrin, a trial before Pilate, and a meeting with Herod (Luke 23:7-12). Though Pilate knew that Jesus was innocent, he relented to the demands of the Jewish leaders and turned him over to be crucified.

Jesus was crucified at 9:00 a.m. It turned absolutely dark at noon, and he died at 3:00 p.m. He was given a royal burial in an unused tomb that Friday before dusk and was in the tomb until Sunday morning (three days and nights in Jewish reckoning). Jesus was then vindicated and exalted by rising as Messiah and Lord. He showed himself to his followers for forty days in three venues: in Jerusalem (Luke, John); in Galilee (Matthew, John); and finally at his ascension on the Mount of Olives (Luke, Acts). During this time Jesus also met his brothers who had never believed in him, and they became followers (see 1 Cor 15:7; James Introduction, p. 2110; Jude Introduction, p. 2156). Jesus also strengthened and commissioned his disciples to carry on his work (Matt 28:18-20; John 21:1-25).

AUTHORSHIP

The Gospels are anonymous; they do not explicitly name their authors. Thus it is common for critical scholars to assume the title of each Gospel does not reflect the author. Yet the Church Fathers were nearly unanimous in asserting the reliability of each Gospel's authorship. For example, Papias wrote early in the 100s AD that Matthew wrote in the Aramaic dialect, and affirmation of authorship by Matthew was widespread (e.g., Irenaeus, Clement of Alexandria, Eusebius, Origen). For more about authorship, see the introduction to each Gospel.

COMPOSITION AND SOURCES

Mark was most likely the first Gospel written. The synoptic Gospels—Matthew, Mark, and Luke—are related literarily. Many passages have nearly the same wording (e.g., Matt 19:13-15 // Mark 10:13-16 // Luke 18:15-17) or order of events (Matt 12:46-13:58 // Mark 3:31-6:6 // Luke 8:19-56). From the time of Augustine it was thought that the order of composition was Matthew, Mark, Luke. But in the last 200 years the majority of scholars have come to the conclusion that Mark was first and that Matthew and Luke used Mark as a source. Matthew tended to abbreviate Mark while adding his own emphases.

There are also 250 verses of Jesus' sayings that are shared by Matthew and Luke but not found in Mark, so most scholars believe that they both used a common source, perhaps oral, referred to as Q (from German Quelle, meaning "source").

John is separate from the others. Over 85% of his material is unique, and he follows a very different organization. John has long been thought of as the "spiritual Gospel," but scholars have been realizing that John actually has more on the historical and chronological aspects of Jesus' life than the others (although his organization is still not strictly chronological). He is the one who tells us that Jesus' ministry included three Passovers and several trips to Jerusalem. Some scholars think John was written by a group of John's disciples, but the book has a literary unity that belies that thesis, and there is nothing in it that could not have been written by the apostle John himself.

HISTORICAL RELIABILITY

There has been significant debate regarding the historicity of the Gospels. In the twentieth century, Rudolf Bultmann and his disciples (along with the more recent Jesus Seminar) argued that very little trustworthy material was to be found in the four canonical Gospels, that the sayings and stories about Jesus had been composed for the preaching needs of the early church. However, the 1970s and 1980s saw a reappraisal. More and more scholars began to assert that history and theology were not antithetical but complementary in the Gospels. A renewed "quest for the historical Jesus" began in the mid-1980s. Looking at the Jewish background, scholars like J. P. Meier, N. T. Wright, Craig Blomberg, and Darrell Bock have shown that the deeds and words of the Gospels can be affirmed as serious objects of historical study. Historical narrative can be differentiated from fictional narrative, and the Gospels are seen as combining narrative and historical interests. The historical narrative in the Gospels claims to portray real, eyewitness material (Luke 1:1-4; John 19:35, 21:24; 1 Cor 15:6; 2 Pet 1:16-18). These claims should be taken seriously.

INTERPRETATION

The word "Gospel" (Greek euangelion) means "Good News." In its verb form, it means "to proclaim Good News," so the Gospels are in a sense sermons about Jesus. They do not just tell the facts about Jesus' life; they interpret his life. Each Gospel has as much theology as it does history. Therefore, the task of the reader is to catch the theological message as much as the historical story.

1. Study the context in which the passage is embedded

Each Gospel has its own structure, and sometimes stories or sayings are found in different contexts. The authors of the Gospels were not providing a day-by-day description of Jesus' ministry, but rather a topical or thematic presentation. Each Gospel's order has a theological purpose. For instance, Mark 4:35–5:43 collects four different types of miracles—controlling nature, casting out demons, healing the sick, raising the dead—into a single episode to emphasize the authority of Jesus. In light of this type of arrangement, it is important to study how the larger sections of the Gospels are organized and then how individual episodes are related to that arrangement. For example, Matt 8–9 has a careful outline: It consists of three blocks of three miracles each (8:1–17; 8:23–9:8; 9:18–34) divided by sections about discipleship (8:18–22; 9:9–13, 14–17).

2. Study the grammar and words of the passage

The words an author chooses are the key to the meaning of the sentence, and it is necessary to determine how they are being used. For instance, does the Greek word often translated "to save" mean, in a given context, to give a person spiritual salvation, or does it mean more generally to rescue that person from some danger? Does the Greek word translated "shameless persistence" in Luke 11:8 have that meaning in that context, or does it mean "avoiding shame"? Either meaning is possible, but it changes the meaning of the passage.

3. Study the cultural background behind the passage

Both the historical narrative and the parables assume cultural situations in the first-century Jewish world. Understanding that world helps greatly in understanding the Gospels. For instance, the man who wanted to go bury his father (Luke 9:59) could have meant it as an idiom for helping his father until he died, thus asking for an indefinite postponement, but it more likely refers to the sacred responsibility of a son's burial duties (Gen 25:9; 35:29). The background behind the parable of the shrewd manager (Luke 16:1–8) could be commercial, reflecting a loan of money, or a tenant farm situation where the farmers owed the owner half the crops. Understanding the background helps in determining what is happening in such situations.

4. Study the editorial differences in the texts

Each Gospel author tells the story of Jesus in a way that fits his theological purpose. There were far more events in Jesus' ministry and far more of his sayings than the Gospel writers could include, so they chose those details that fit their purpose. We can study the authors' editorial decisions by comparing the same story in, say, Mark and Matthew. For instance, in the story of walking on water in Mark 6:45–52, Mark ends at the point where the disciples failed to recognize Jesus, so Mark's account centers on their hardened hearts. Matthew tells the rest of the story, relating how Jesus allowed Peter to try walking on the water; he failed, but in the process they came to understand that Jesus really is "the Son of God" (Matt 14:33). Matthew and Mark tell the same story but highlight different messages from it.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

The Gospels teach about God the Father and Jesus Christ as his Son. Jesus has a unique relationship with his Father and ours—Jesus' every prayer except the one from the cross (Mark 15:34) begins with "Father." The coming of Jesus makes new intimacy with God available to those who put their trust in Jesus.

Jesus is the expected Messiah, the promised King of Israel. But he did not come to fulfill the Jewish expectations of a divine warrior who would defeat the Romans. He is the suffering servant who came to die for the sins of mankind. At the same time he is the Son of Man (the glorified figure of Dan 7:13–14 who will have dominion over all) and the "unique One, who is himself God" (John 1:1, 14, 18; 10:30).

Jesus brought God's Kingdom,

God's reign, into this world. Jesus has achieved a new age of salvation through his atoning death on the cross, along with a new certainty about the afterlife through his resurrection. Through him the last days have begun, and those who trust in him have become God's people, citizens of his Kingdom. They have been given a new direction for living "righteous" lives through Jesus' teaching, and they have new authority as Jesus has constituted the church and given it the "keys of the kingdom" (Matt 16:18–19).

The disciples are the nucleus of the church, and they represent the church in their struggles to understand, in their failures, and in their triumphs due to the presence of Jesus. In contrast are the crowds and religious leaders. The crowds sought Jesus without being willing to commit. The leaders rejected Jesus at every turn and implacably opposed all that he stands for. Finally, the demons alone knew exactly who Jesus is and yet they are engaged in cosmic war against him. Above all this, Jesus is sovereign and reigns supreme. He went to the cross because it was his God-appointed destiny, and he knew he would be the substitute for our sin (Mark 10:45; 14:24).

Although Jesus has inaugurated the Kingdom age, the final consummation is still to come. God is the final Judge who will come with a final harvest to reward the righteous and doom the wicked to eternal suffering (Matt 13:40–43, 49–50; 24:29–31). Jesus will come again with his holy angels to bring about a final accounting with God.

THE CHRONOLOGY OF THE LIFE OF JESUS

Jesus' life is recorded in the four Gospels, which include quite a few details that help us to set Jesus' life chronologically into the flow of history. Nevertheless, some of the key dates in Jesus' life are uncertain. Three central issues are the date of his birth, the beginning of his ministry, and the date of his crucifixion and resurrection.

JESUS' BIRTH The Reign of Herod the Great. When Jesus was born, Herod the Great was king of the Jews (Matt 2:1; Luke 1:5); Herod reigned from 37 to 4 BC and died in mid-March 4 BC. Jesus was a small child at the time, probably having been born at least several months before Herod died.

The Census Recorded in Luke. Jesus was born during a census of the Roman world commanded by Augustus Caesar, according to Luke (Luke 2:1-5). Roman historians, however, make no mention of a census around 4 BC. Yet we know that the Romans took their censuses throughout the empire, and we have documentation that censuses were taken in Egypt every fourteen years from AD 33/34 to AD 257/258. Furthermore, recent evidence has revealed that censuses were taken in Egypt in 11/10 BC, 4/3 BC, AD 4/5, and AD 11/12. It is reasonable to suppose that the census of Egypt in 4/3 BC also included Judea, or that a similar one was carried out there, in harmony with Luke 2:1.

Another difficulty is that Luke locates the census in the time when Quirinius served as governor of Syria. Josephus noted that Quirinius became governor after AD 6, and subsequently took a census (Antiquities 18.1.1; 20.5.2). Some scholars have argued, though, that according to ancient inscriptions, Quirinius also served in Syria as a special legate of Emperor Augustus before 6 BC. That could be the period to which Luke 2:2 refers. Another possibility is that Luke 2:2 could be translated as, "the previous census, before Quirinius was governor of Syria"; in this case, Luke would simply be noting Quirinius's term as governor and the census he conducted as a reference point to highlight the difficult time when Jews were first subjected to a Roman census and taxation, losing the last semblance of self-rule (see "The Historical Background of the Intertestamental Period," pp. 1552–1554).

Jesus was therefore born around 6~4 BC,¹ within about two years of the death of Herod.

John the Baptist. The beginning of Jesus' ministry can be dated after the beginning of John the Baptist's ministry. According to Luke 3:1-2, John the Baptist began preaching and baptizing in the fifteenth year of Tiberius Caesar (AD 14–37), so John's ministry began about AD 27. Although the length of time from the beginning of John's ministry to the baptism of Jesus is not stated in the NT, Jesus' ministry seems to have begun shortly after John's, perhaps in AD 28.

JESUS' MINISTRY

The Temple. When Jesus visited Jerusalem at Passover early in his ministry (John 2:13–3:21), he was told that the Temple had been under construction for forty-six years (John 2:20). Herod's work on the rebuilding of the Temple began in the eighteenth year of his reign (Josephus, Antiquities 15.11.1), which was 20/19 BC. So that occasion of Jesus' visit to the Temple occurred about AD 28.

Jesus' Age at the Beginning of His Ministry. According to Luke, Jesus began his ministry when he was "about thirty years old" (Luke 3:23). This description is approximate, giving a rough indication of time (cp. John 8:57). Luke, as a responsible historian, placed the public ministry of Jesus in relation both to world history (Luke 3:1-2) and to the national repentance movement spearheaded by John the Baptist. If Jesus' ministry began around AD 28, he was 32~34 years old.

The Length of Jesus' Ministry. Although the synoptic Gospels only mention one Passover festival during Jesus' ministry (Matt 26:17; Mark 14:1; Luke 22:1), the Gospel of John records three (John 2:13; 6:4; 11:55). Thus, different scholars have proposed that Jesus' ministry was as short as one year and as long as four. Most scholars see Jesus' ministry as lasting at least three years.

JESUS' DEATH The Day of Jesus' Death. All four Gospels report that Jesus was crucified on a Friday, the day before the beginning of the Sabbath (Matt 27:62; Mark 15:42; Luke 23:54; John 19:31, 42). They all agree that Jesus was raised on Sunday, the third day according to Jewish reckoning.

Jesus' last supper with his disciples occurred in conjunction with the Passover celebration. According to the synoptic Gospels, the Last Supper was the Passover meal (Matt 26:17-35; Mark 14:12-25; Luke 22:7-38). In these three accounts the arrest, trial, and crucifixion of Jesus take place on the day following the Passover meal. John's account seems to suggest that the Last Supper took place one day before Passover, but a careful reading of John's description indicates that he is in harmony with the other Gospel writers (see note on John 19:14).

The Year of Jesus' Death. In the Jewish calendar, the Friday on which Jesus died was 14 Nisan, the first day of the Festival of Unleavened Bread (see charts, "Israel's Annual Calendar," p. 145, and "Israel's Festivals," p. 235). Therefore, Jesus' death occurred in a year in which 14 Nisan fell on a Friday. He must have died after AD 29 (even by the shortest calculation his ministry was at least a year) and before AD 36, the year that Caiaphas ended his high priesthood and Pontius Pilate ceased governing Judea. The two years that meet these criteria are AD 30 and 33. If his ministry was no longer than two or three years, he died in AD 30 at about 35 years old. If his ministry was longer, he died in AD 33 at about 38 years old.

CONCLUSION The record of Jesus' life can be set into known historical facts without much difficulty, and the available evidence gives us confidence to believe that Jesus' life is historical and that the record of his life in the four Gospels is accurate. Yet there are many gaps in our historical knowledge of Jesus' life. As the apostle John later said about Jesus' ministry, "Jesus also did many other things. If they were all written down, I suppose the whole world could not contain the books that would be written" (John 21:25).

THE NLT HARMONY OF THE FOUR GOSPELS

Ever since the time of Christ, many attempts have been made to harmonize the four Gospels, either into a single narrative or into a synopsis showing the relationships among the Gospel passages. Tatian's Diatesseron (about AD 170) is the earliest example of a single narrative made from the Gospels. Later, Eusebius of Caesarea (early 300s AD) developed a well-known synopsis and tables of cross-references for use in comparing the four Gospels. Many other similar works have since been done.

The NLT Harmony of the Four Gospels is a synopsis. Its primary purpose is to help readers understand the relationship among the Gospel passages, not to establish a strict chronology of Jesus' life. The authors of the Gospels themselves were more concerned with Jesus' message and the meaning of his life, death, and resurrection than with the details of historical chronology. By comparing and contrasting similar accounts in the different Gospels, readers can understand the message that each Gospel writer was emphasizing and their differences in perspective concerning the events of Jesus' life and his teachings (see "Introduction to the Four Gospels: Interpretation," p. 1562).

In addition to this synopsis, the NLT Study Bible includes parallel passage notations in the NLT text of the four Gospels. Those parallel notations are somewhat different from this synopsis, because they serve a different purpose. Whereas this synopsis provides an overview and includes every passage in the Gospels, the parallel passage notations provide much finer detail in comparing the different Gospel accounts. The reader is encouraged to use this synopsis for general overview and comparison, and then to use the parallel passage notations to compare the Gospel parallels more closely.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO Matthew

Matthew demonstrates that Jesus of Nazareth is the long-awaited Messiah, the king of Israel, who fulfills the Old Testament promises yet turns the expectation of his contemporaries on its head. The Gospel of Matthew shows how both Jewish and non-Jewish people fit together in God's unfolding Kingdom. It challenges the reader to live with total commitment to Jesus Christ as king.

SETTING

Matthew wrote his Gospel when the early Christian community was at a crossroads. Would it remain a sect of Judaism or separate itself from Judaism and become a separate faith? Matthew's Gospel derives from a Christian community near Jerusalem, surrounded by Jews who had not left their Jewish faith. This community, unlike the Christians of Paul's churches, had to answer socially to the stipulations of Jewish law on a daily basis.

The Christians reading Matthew's Gospel were challenged to live as Jewish Christians among Jews who were fully committed to the Torah.

The letter from James similarly evokes a Christianity that is still firmly attached to the synagogue (Jas 2:1-13). It uses categories so typical of Judaism that one is unsure if it is Christianity or Judaism (Jas 1:26-27; 2:14-26) as it presents its own vision of Christianity in terms of wisdom and obedience (Jas 3:13-18; 4:1-12). Here is a Jewish Christianity that remains as firm in its commitment to the Jewish community as to its glorious Lord (cp. Acts 15).

Matthew's Gospel tells how the life of Jesus affected Jewish Christians who were struggling with ritual, legal, social, and political concerns. For those early Chris-◀ Key Places in the Gospel of Matthew. Jesus was born in BETHLEHEM (1:18-25), grew up in NAZARETH (2:19-23), began his ministry in GALILEE (4:12-17), and died in JERUSALEM (26:36-27:66). At the time of Jesus' birth, Herod the Great ruled as king of GALILEE, SAMARIA, JUDEA, IDUMEA, PEREA, the part of DECAPOLIS encompassing HIPPIUS and GADARA, and the regions NE of the SEA OF GALILEE (borders shown). Upon Herod's death in 4 BC, his kingdom was divided among his sons: Antipas became tetrarch of GALILEE and PEREA; Archelaus became ethnarch of Judea (see 2:22); and Philip became tetrarch of the regions NE of the Sea of Galilee. When Archelaus died in AD 6, Judea began to be ruled by Roman governors (prefects), including Pontius Pilate (AD 26-36), until the kingship of Herod Agrippa I (AD 37-44), who acquired all the territory that his grandfather Herod the Great had held.

tians, Matthew answered the pressing question, "How are we to follow Jesus in our day, surrounded as we are by Judaism, while seeking to declare the Good News of the Kingdom to all?"

SUMMARY

Matthew's story follows Jesus from before his birth until after his death and resurrection. Jesus experiences a series of potential dangers as a child (2:1-23). As an adult, he embarks on a very short career, proclaiming God's righteousness (5:1-7:29) and performing astounding miracles (8:1-9:34); he broadens his reach by sending out twelve apostles (9:35-11:1). Most of Jesus' experience, however, is utter rejection at the hands of Galilean and Judean Jews (chs 11-17). He confronts the Jewish leaders in the Temple during his last week (chs 21-22), announces a final series of woes against authority figures who lead people astray (ch 23), and predicts that God will judge and destroy Jerusalem (chs 24-25). Jesus is arrested, tried, and executed by crucifixion (chs 26-27) for opposing the Jewish leaders and challenging the status quo. Then he is vindicated by his resurrection and gives the great commission to his disciples, to make disciples of all the nations (ch 28).

Matthew shapes his Gospel according to two structural principles. First, following an introduction (chs 1-4), Matthew alternates teaching material with narrative material. Thus, we have discourse and teaching in chs 5-7, 10, 13, 18, 23-25; and we have narrative in chs 8-9, 11-12, 14-17, 19-22, 26-28. Second, Matthew records Jesus' confrontation of Israel with God's message about the arrival of his Kingdom in the last days (4:12-11:1; see 4:17), followed by the responses this message evoked from various people (11:2-20:34). Matthew then tells of Jesus Christ's death and resurrection (21:1-28:20) for the salvation of humankind.

AUTHORSHIP

Matthew therefore composed the oracles in the Hebrew language [or, "in a Hebrew style"] and each interpreted them as he was able.

PAPIAS OF HIERAPOLIS, Eusebius, Church History 3.39.15-16

Matthew was a tax collector whom Jesus befriended and called to a life of justice and obedience (9:9). Matthew invited many friends to spend an evening with Jesus (9:10-13), and Matthew is named among the twelve apostles (10:2-4; see also Mark 3:16-19; Luke 6:14-16; Acts 1:13). Early church tradition reports that after he composed the first Gospel, Matthew

An important statement was made in the early AD 100s by Papias, Bishop of Hierapolis (see above). Papias's statement is traditionally understood to mean that the apostle Matthew wrote a Gospel in Hebrew or Aramaic, and that this Gospel was later translated into Greek, perhaps by someone who also knew the Gospel of Mark. Recent studies suggest that Papias was referring to Matthew's Jewish style, not to his language (Hebrew or Aramaic), because Matthew's Gospel does not appear to be "translation Greek" (i.e., the type of Greek that is often found in materials translated from other languages).

In the 1800s, scholars became convinced that Matthew had used Mark's Gospel as a source. These scholars argued that since an apostle would not have used another Gospel (and one written by a non-apostle at that!) to record Jesus' life, Matthew was not the author of the Gospel bearing his name. Early tradition connects the Gospel of Mark with the apostle Peter, a fact that makes Matthew's dependence on Mark more understandable. There is no conflict with one apostle (Matthew) using the accounts of another apostle (Peter) as a convenient source from which to shape his own report.

The Gospel according to Matthew is among the most influential books ever written. . . . It is wonderfully complete, linking Jesus with his Jewish origins and Old Testament background, pointing forward to the growth of the Gentile Christian mission, and embodying . . . the teaching, actions, parables, miracles, death, and resurrection of the central figure.

OCCASION OF WRITING

Unlike the letters of Paul or the Revelation of John, the settings of the Gospels must be inferred from comments and emphases within the books themselves (see 24:15; 27:46; 28:15), since direct evidence is unavailable. Matthew appears to have been written at a time when Christians and Jews were fiercely debating such issues as how to obey the law (5:17-48; 15:1-20), who the Messiah is (1:1-2:23), who the true people of God are (Israel or the church; 21:33-46), who the rightful leaders of God's people are (4:18-22; 10:2-4; 21:43; 23:1-36; 28:16-20), and how Gentiles are related to the church and to Israel (2:1-12; 3:7-10; 4:12-16; 8:5-13; 15:21-28; 28:16-20).

There is serious debate as to whether Matthew's Gospel sprang from a community that was still within Judaism or one that was already outside Judaism. In other words, had Matthew's Christian community separated from Judaism, or was it still within Judaism's umbrella? Or, was Matthew written for a general audience rather than a specific community? Early Christianity was diverse; some Christian leaders, such as James, maintained a long-term relationship with the Jewish communities. In discussing this question, scholars examine the following passages: 2:1-12; 4:12-16; 8:5-13; 10:5-6; 15:21-28; 17:24-27; 19:28; 21:43; 22:7; 23:1-39.

DATE AND LOCATION

Matthew was probably written sometime between AD 65 and 80. Those who argue that Matthew used Mark's Gospel as a source usually date Matthew after AD 70; those who claim it is independent tend to date it earlier. Some have suggested that Matthew's Gospel was written in the AD 50s. Many today think that Matthew was first written at Antioch in Syria, which is more probable than any other proposed setting.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

Matthew argues the case that Jesus fulfills the ancient faith of Israel and the OT hope: In him the Messiah and the day of the Lord have come.

A few do follow Jesus. In following the instruction of Jesus, these disciples would evangelize the whole world and build a community (the church) that would include both Jews and Gentiles. In general, however, Israel refuses to follow its Messiah, and Jesus utters disastrous warnings that they will experience the judgment of God (chs 23–25) unless they repent.

Matthew's Gospel is distinctive in its presentation of Jesus as Messiah and Teacher, its emphasis on the Kingdom of Heaven, its strong call to discipleship, its constant pattern of OT fulfillment, its incisive criticism of the Jewish religious leaders, and its universal outlook that includes Gentiles in the Kingdom.

The Messiah (Christ). Matthew emphasizes Jesus as the Messiah (Christ) (1:1, 16–18; 11:2–3; 16:16, 20; 23:10). He focuses on Jesus as the fulfillment of OT expectations, though not in the manner his Jewish contemporaries expected. For Matthew, Jesus is clearly the Son of God, born of the Virgin Mary in order to bring salvation to his people (1:21). In short, Jesus is "Immanuel, God with us" (1:23; 28:20).

The Kingdom of Heaven. The expression "Kingdom of Heaven," used thirty times by Matthew, is a roundabout way for Jews to say "Kingdom of God." Matthew uses this term to evoke (1) the invisible but present rule of God on earth through the saving work of Jesus the Messiah; (2) the fulfillment of OT promises (4:17; 11:11–15); (3) the saving activity of God, often through quiet and humble means (11:25; 13:24–30, 36–43); (4) the power and strength of God's activity (11:2–6, 12–13; 12:28); (5) the coming of the Kingdom within a "generation" (10:23; 16:28; 24:34); (6) the final, climactic judgment of God (25:31–46); and (7) the final, perfect fellowship of all God's holy people with the Father (8:11–12; 13:43; 22:1–14; 26:29). The Kingdom of Heaven shows God's perfect reign through Jesus the Messiah among his people, beginning with the church and consummated in the eternal Kingdom of glory and fellowship.

Discipleship. Matthew's Gospel stresses Jesus' call to men and women to be baptized, to follow him as disciples, to obey his teachings (28:20), and to enjoy fellowship with him. Jesus summarizes the requirements of discipleship in his Sermon on the Mount (5:1–7:29), and this theme recurs throughout Matthew (e.g., 10:1–42; 16:24–26). Matthew shows the disciples overcoming their failures through Christ's help (see 14:28–33; 16:5–12).

Fulfillment of the OT. More than any other Gospel, Matthew stresses the deep correspondence between OT expectations and promises and their fulfillment in Jesus. In the style of a Jewish commentary, Matthew links OT texts to events in the life of Jesus that fulfill those texts and frequently draws out analogies between the OT and the NT. Matthew's procedure is anchored in the belief that what God has done once in Israel, he is doing again, finally and fully, in Jesus the Messiah.

Universal Outlook. In a book so strongly Jewish in orientation, it is surprising to find such an emphasis on the inclusion of Gentiles in the Messiah's saving work. More than any other, this Gospel emphasizes that the Good News is for all, including Gentiles. This stance put Matthew at odds with the Jewish community of his time on two fundamental questions: Who are the people of God? What future is there for the nation of Israel? The birth narratives show that God saves Gentiles, and throughout the book Gentiles are portrayed positively. Since God is sovereign, his Messiah is King of all creation. Though God has worked especially in and through the nation of Israel (see 10:5-6; 15:24), the inauguration of the Kingdom of Heaven shares God's good favor with the nations as well (see 28:18-20).

1:1–2:23 This account demonstrates that Jesus' lineage and birth (ch 1), as well as the geography of his early years (ch 2), fulfilled OT expectations, and that attempts to thwart God's will do not succeed (2:1-15; see also 27:62-66).

1:1 The phrase a record of the ancestors introduces 1:1-17. A similar phrase is used in Genesis to introduce each section of that book (see Genesis Introduction, "Summary," p. 15). • Jesus the Messiah, a descendant of David and of Abraham (literally Jesus the Messiah, Son of David and son of Abraham): These names are repeated in reverse order in the genealogy, an example of a literary form known as chiasm (arrangement of elements in mirror-image). Being identified as a descendant of David introduces Jesus as Messiah (see 12:23; 22:42-45), while the connection to Abraham emphasizes God's covenant with Israel and the extension of that covenant to include all nations (see Gen 12:3; Matt 28:16-20).

1:3 Ram: Greek Aram, a variant spelling of Ram; also in 1:4. See 1 Chr 2:9-10.

1:5 Rahab was the Gentile prostitute who risked her life to harbor Joshua's two spies in Jericho (Josh 2:1-21). Her inclusion in the ancestry of the Messiah emphasizes the grace of God. Elsewhere she is commended for her faith in the God of Israel and for righteous deeds (Heb 11:31; Jas 2:25).

1:7 Asa (Greek Asaph, a variant spelling of Asa; also in 1:8. See 1 Chr 3:10): Probably the OT king (1 Kgs 15:9-24; 1 Chr 3:10) and not the psalmist (Asaph; 1 Chr 6:39; 25:1-2; Pss 50, 73-83). Matthew's focus is on the ancestral line from David to the Messiah.

1:8 Jehoram: Greek Joram, a variant spelling of Jehoram. See 1 Kgs 22:50 and note on 1 Chr 3:11. • father of (or ancestor of); also in 1:11): The term includes several generations here (2 Chr 21:1–26:1), as it does in the case of Josiah (1:11) and Shealtiel (1:12). The genealogy omits Ahaziah, Joash, and Amaziah (2 Kgs 8:24; 1 Chr 3:11; 2 Chr 22:1, 11; 24:27), perhaps because of their association with Ahab and Jezebel.

1:10 Amon: Greek Amos, a variant spelling of Amon. See 1 Chr 3:14.

1:11-12 father: Josiah was the grandfather of Jehoiahin (Greek Jechoniah, a variant spelling of Jehoiahin); see 2 Kgs 23:34; 24:6; note on 1 Chr 3:16.

1:12-16 Although the OT is clearly the source for 1:1-11, Matthew is probably also dependent upon royal archives and oral traditions for 1:12-16.

1:12 Shealtiel: See 1 Chr 3:17-19; Ezra 3:2.

1:16 This genealogy is traced through Joseph, who stands in David's line (see also notes on Luke 3:23-38).

OT Patterns Fulfilled (1:18–2:23)

The Birth of Jesus the Messiah

Matt 1:18-25; cp. Luke 2:1-7

¹⁸This is how Jesus the Messiah was born. His mother, Mary, was engaged to be married to Joseph. But before the marriage took place, while she was still a virgin, she became pregnant through the power of the Holy Spirit. ¹⁹Joseph, to whom she was engaged, was a righteous man and did not want to disgrace her publicly, so he decided to break the engagement quietly.

²⁰As he considered this, an angel of the Lord appeared to him in a dream. "Joseph, son of David," the angel said, "do not be afraid to take Mary as your wife. For the child within her was conceived by the Holy Spirit. ²¹And she will have a son, and you are to name him Jesus, for he will save his people from their sins."

Genealogy of Jesus (1:1-17)

Gen 12:1-3
Luke 3:23-38

Both Matthew and Luke provide genealogies of Jesus (1:1-17; Luke 3:23-38). The two genealogies differ from David to Joseph, Jesus' legal father. Matthew follows the line of David's son Solomon, while Luke follows the line of Nathan, another of David's sons. One possible explanation is that Matthew records Joseph's genealogy while Luke records Mary's (see note on Luke 3:23).

Genealogies were kept quite accurately in Judaism, as Josephus confirms (Josephus, Life 1). Genealogies were important in the OT and in Judaism because land rights were apportioned to families in Israel and because certain offices, such as priest and king, were inherited from father to son. Genealogies sometimes ran a record from the past to the present to illustrate religious themes, family descent, or political ties, as well as simple chronology (1 Chr 1-9). Most such lists were representative rather than a complete list of every individual.

The purpose of Matthew's genealogy, unlike Luke's (Luke 3:23-38), is to show Jesus' heritage as running from Abraham through David. Jesus' genealogy confirms him as a legitimate heir to the throne of David. While Jesus' genealogy in Matthew goes back to Abraham, the father of the Jewish race, the genealogy in Luke goes all the way back to Adam. This is consistent with Luke's emphasis on Jesus as the Savior for all people everywhere.

The unusual mention of women with stained reputations (Tamar, Rahab, Ruth, and Bathsheba), several of them Gentiles, is noteworthy in Matthew's genealogy. Their mention here emphasizes God's gracious acts of redeeming even those deemed unworthy by others.

Jesus' genealogy does not prove that Jesus is the Messiah, but it does make him a possible candidate. His identity as the Messiah becomes evident in other ways (11:2-6). God had providentially guided the course of history to its climax in Jesus Christ. Jesus is presented as the anticipated Messiah of the OT, the Savior of his people, and the King descended from David assuming his throne (see 2 Sam 7:16). He is heir to Abraham and ultimately fulfills God's promises to Abraham (Gen 12:1-3).

1:17 Matthew states that each period has fourteen generations, but the first and third periods list only thirteen. A legitimate Jewish and OT approach would count David in both the first and second groupings and include Jesus in the third grouping. This further reinforces that Matthew is probably stressing the gematria (letters representing numbers): The letters in the Hebrew word dawid ("David") also add up to fourteen. Matthew is highlighting Jesus' credentials as the Messiah (1:1).

1:18 Jesus the Messiah (literally Jesus the Christ): Using Messiah in the translation accurately communicates that it is a title rather than a personal name ("Jesus Christ"). • engaged to be married: In Judaism, engagement (or betrothal) meant a permanent relationship (Mal 2:14) that could be broken only by legal process; thus, Mary was considered Joseph's wife and he her husband (see 1:20; Deut 22:23-24), even though they had not had sexual relations. Mary's status as a virgin at the time of Jesus' conception through the power of the Holy Spirit helps authenticate Jesus' divinity.

1:19 As a righteous man—that is, as one who obeyed the law (see Luke 1:6)—Joseph could not take Mary as his wife since she was a suspected adulteress. He could exonerate himself by publicly exposing Mary to trial and having her put to death (Deut 22:23-27; Num 5:11-31), or pay a fine and break the engagement (literally divorce her; see also Mishnah Sotah

1:20 The angel of the Lord declared to Joseph in a dream (see 2:12-13, 19, 22) that Mary had been neither seduced nor violated; instead, the baby was conceived by the Holy Spirit (Luke 1:34-35), who often has a creative and life-generating role (Gen 1:2; Ezek 37:1-14; John 3:5-8).

1:21 Jesus is the Greek form of the Hebrew name Yeshua, which means "The Lord saves." The name appropriately describes his role: he will save his people from their sins. • His people may refer either to Israel as a nation (2:6) or to the Messiah's people, the church, which is comprised of both Jews and Gentiles (4:15-16; 16:18; 28:18-20).

²²All of this occurred to fulfill the Lord's message through his prophet:

²³"Look! The virgin will conceive a child! She will give birth to a son, and they will call him Immanuel, which means 'God is with us.'"

²⁴When Joseph woke up, he did as the angel of the Lord commanded and took Mary as his wife. ²⁵But he did not have sexual relations with her until her son was born. And Joseph named him Jesus.

Visitors from the East

2 Jesus was born in Bethlehem in Judea, during the reign of King Herod. About that time some wise men from eastern lands arrived in Jerusalem, asking, ²"Where is the newborn king of the Jews? We saw his star as it rose, and we have come to worship him."

³King Herod was deeply disturbed when he heard this, as was everyone in Jerusalem. ⁴He called a meeting of the leading priests and teachers of religious law and asked, "Where is the ⁴Messiah supposed to be born?"

⁵"In Bethlehem in Judea," they said, "for this is what the prophet wrote:

Herod the Great was the Roman-appointed king of Judea (37–4 BC) at the time of Jesus' birth (2:1; Luke 1:5). He was a strong military leader, a brilliant politician, and a cruel tyrant. Born into an Idumean (Edomite) family with links to the Romans, he rose to power by gaining Roman favor and retained it by cruelly suppressing his opponents. Herod was known for his large building projects, especially his magnificent reconstruction of the Jewish Temple in Jerusalem, begun 20–19 BC (Josephus, Antiquities 15.8.1). Herod earned the title "the Great" because of his reputation as a great builder. He was the one who built Caesarea and made it the Roman headquarters in Palestine.

Herod the Great was also known for his family troubles and his brutal treatment of those who opposed him or whom he considered threats. He murdered two of his wives and three of his own sons when he suspected them of plotting against him. Caesar Augustus once said that he would rather be Herod's swine than his son (a play on words in Greek since the two words sound alike—hus, huios). When Jesus was born toward the end of Herod's reign and Herod heard him referred to as a future "king," Herod attempted to have him killed also. Unable to locate the boy, Herod then ordered the massacre of all the boys less than two years old in the Bethlehem area (see 2:1-20)—an act typical of his ruthlessness and paranoia.

Though Herod gained the title "king of the Jews," the Jewish people never accepted him as a legitimate king because he was not from the line of David and because he was an Edomite (a descendant of Esau) rather than a Jew. His greatest accomplishment was the rebuilding and beautification of the Jerusalem Temple, making it one of the most magnificent buildings in the ancient world.

1:22-23 Look! . . . Immanuel: Isa 7:14; 8:8, 10 (Greek version). Jesus' birth from a virgin fulfills Isa 7:14. The Hebrew term 'almah (virgin or young maiden) was translated parthenos ("virgin") in the Greek OT that Matthew quotes. Matthew understands the 'almah of Isaiah as foreshadowing the Virgin Mary.

1:25 Until probably implies that Joseph had sexual relations with Mary after the birth of Jesus. • And Joseph named him Jesus, thus showing his acceptance of the child as his own.

2:1-2 Attentiveness to the star indicates that the wise men were astrologers; their awareness of the OT (perhaps Num 24:17) suggests that they were from Babylonia, where Jews were numerous. The men were Gentiles, which anticipates Gentile acceptance into the Kingdom of God (8:11-12; 15:21-28; 28:16-20). Throughout the entire Gospel, unlikely Gentiles worship the Jewish Messiah, while the Jewish leaders (Herod, high priests, teachers of religious law, Pharisees) oppose him.

2:1 Bethlehem (see note on 2:6) was David's hometown (1 Sam 16:1-13; John 7:42). • King Herod, or Herod the Great, had a meteoric career; he rose from being governor of Galilee to being king of Galilee, Judea, and Samaria (37–4 BC). His career was marked by unflinching loyalty to Rome, magnificent building enterprises (including a substantial renovation of the Temple in Jerusalem), family hostility, suspicion, and ruthless murder of his own family members (Josephus, Antiquities 15.7.1-5) and of innocent children (2:16-18). • wise men:

Or royal astrologers; Greek reads magi; also in 2:7, 16.

2:2 star as it rose: Or star in the east.

• Matthew regularly describes Jesus as receiving worship (2:2, 8, 11; 8:2, 9:18; 14:33; 15:25; 20:20; 28:9, 17), thus identifying Jesus as God.

2:3 Herod was deeply disturbed because he feared this child would rival him as king of the Jews.

2:4 The leading priests had political and religious clout and ministered predominantly in the Temple (see 21:23). Herod gathered the teachers of religious law because they were trained to know OT prophecies and were often influential Pharisees.

⁷Then Herod called for a private meeting with the wise men, and he learned from them the time when the star first appeared.
⁸Then he told them, “Go to Bethlehem and search carefully for the child. And when you find him, come back and tell me so that I can go and worship him, too!”

⁹After this interview the wise men went their way. And the star they had seen in the east guided them to Bethlehem. It went ahead of them and stopped over the place where the child was. ¹⁰When they saw the star, they were filled with joy! ¹¹They entered the house and saw the child with his mother, Mary, and they bowed down and worshiped him. Then they opened their treasure chests and gave him gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh.

¹²When it was time to leave, they returned to their own country by another route, for God had warned them in a dream not to return to Herod.

The Escape to Egypt

¹³After the wise men were gone, an angel of the Lord appeared to Joseph in a dream.
“Get up! Flee to Egypt with the child and his mother,” the angel said. “Stay there until I tell you to return, because Herod is going to search for the child to kill him.”

¹⁴That night Joseph left for Egypt with the child and Mary, his mother, ¹⁵and they stayed there until Herod’s death. This fulfilled what the Lord had spoken through the prophet: “I called my Son out of Egypt.”

¹⁶Herod was furious when he realized that the wise men had outwitted him. He sent soldiers to kill all the boys in and around Bethlehem who were two years old and under, based on the wise men’s report of the star’s first appearance. ¹⁷Herod’s brutal action fulfilled what God had spoken through the prophet Jeremiah:

¹⁸“A cry was heard in Ramah—weeping and great mourning.
Rachel weeps for her children, refusing to be comforted, for they are dead.”

The Return to Nazareth

¹⁹When Herod died, an angel of the Lord appeared in a dream to Joseph in Egypt.

had a privileged status as the birthplace of King David. The religious leaders knew from the prophets (1:22) that the Messiah would be born there. • the ruling cities: Literally the rulers. • King David had been a shepherd in his youth, and as king he became the shepherd of Israel (2 Sam 5:2). Micah 5:2-4 foresees the Messiah as a shepherd (cp. Ps 23:1).

2:8-10 The star was placed by God to guide the wise men to the Messiah (see Num 24:17); the details are unknown.

2:11 The wise men offered extravagant gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh to the King (see Ps 72:10-17; Isa 60:1-22).

The tradition that there were three wise men originated from the number of gifts, but the text does not specify how many wise men there were.

2:13-15 Flee to Egypt . . . until I tell you to return: This fulfills Hos 11:1 (see note on 4:1-11; see also Gen 15:13-16; 46:1-5; Exod 15:1-21).

2:15 I called my Son out of Egypt: See Hos 11:1, which refers to the Exodus.

2:16 kill all the boys: Herod was notorious for his viciousness—he killed his own son to protect his throne, which led to the saying, “It is safer to be Herod’s swine [Greek hus] than his son [Greek huios],” because Herod kept kosher. • two years old and under: Herod calculated the probable age of the child from the wise men’s report.

2:18 The quotation is from Jer 31:15.

• Ramah, a village near Bethlehem, is the place of Rachel’s burial (Gen 35:18-20; Jer 31:15-17).

2:19 After Herod the Great died in 4 bc, Caesar split up his kingdom. Herod’s son Archelaus (2:22) was appointed over Judea, Samaria, and Idumea, while Antipas (14:1-12; Luke 13:31-32) was appointed over Galilee and Perea.

²¹So Joseph got up and returned to the land of Israel with Jesus and his mother. ²²But when he learned that the new ruler of Judea was Herod's son Archelaus, he was afraid to go there. Then, after being warned in a dream, he left for the region of Galilee. ²³So the family went and lived in a town called Nazareth. This fulfilled what the prophets had said: "He will be called a Nazarene."

2. INTRODUCTION—PREPARATION FOR JESUS' MINISTRY (3:1–4:11)

Matt 3:4–6 // Mark 1:4–6
Matt 3:7–10 // Luke 3:7–9
Matt 3:11–12 // Mark 1:7–8 // Luke 3:15–18 // John 1:24–28

3In those days John the Baptist came to the Judean wilderness and began preaching. His message was, ²"Repent of your sins and turn to God, for the Kingdom of 'Heaven is near.'" ³The prophet Isaiah was speaking about John when he said,

"He is a voice shouting in the wilderness,

'Prepare the way for the 'LORD's coming! Clear the road for him!'" ⁷But when he saw many Pharisees and Sadducees coming to watch him baptize, he denounced them. "You brood of snakes!" he exclaimed. "Who warned you to flee the coming wrath? ⁸Prove by the way you live that you have repented of your sins and turned to God. ⁹Don't just say to each other, 'We're safe, for we are descendants of Abraham.' That means nothing, for I tell you, God can create children of Abraham from these very stones. ¹⁰Even now the ax of God's judgment is poised, ready to sever the roots of the trees. Yes, every tree that does not produce good fruit will be chopped down and thrown into the fire.

⁴John's clothes were woven from coarse camel hair, and he wore a leather belt around his waist. For food he ate locusts and wild honey. ⁵People from Jerusalem and from all of Judea and all over the Jordan Valley went out to see and hear John. ⁶And when they confessed their sins, he baptized them in the Jordan River.

¹¹"I baptize with water those who repent of their sins and turn to God. But someone is coming soon who is greater than I am—so much greater that I'm not worthy even to be his slave and carry his sandals. He will

2:20–21 Jesus' return to Israel fulfills Hos 11:1 (see 2:13–15).

2:22 Archelaus, like his father, governed brutally, immorally, and tyrannically. • Joseph fulfilled prophecy in moving to Galilee to avoid Archelaus's jurisdiction (cp. 4:12–16).

2:23 "He will be called a Nazarene": Matthew associates the name Nazareth with words in the prophets (see Isa 11:1, where the Messiah is called a "Branch," [Hebrew netser]; and Judg 13:5, where Samson is called a "Nazirite").

3:1 John the Baptist announced Jesus' coming (see Mark 1:1–11; Luke 3:1–22; John 1:6–8, 19–34) and prepared people to receive him (3:3). John attracted large crowds (3:5) and a group of disciples (9:14). This group continued for a short time as a movement, even as the Christian church emerged (see Acts 18:24–28). • John's locale in the Judean wilderness had symbolic significance: The wilderness was associated with the giving of the law (see Exod 19:1) and with God's final redemption of Israel at the end of history (see Isa 40:3).

3:2 is near (or has come, or is coming soon): The prophetic call to return to God in repentance (cp. Isa 1:16–20) involves total reorientation from pride and sin to humble obedience to God (see Jer 3:11–22). John's message included specific practical application (Luke 3:11–14).

3:3 Isaiah had spoken of a messenger preparing a highway in the wilderness for Israel's God to return to the land (Isa 40:1–11). John's ministry prepared the way for Jesus' arrival (see 11:10; cp. John 12:41). • The quotation is from Isa 40:3 (Greek version).

3:4 John's clothes and food correspond to those of his prophetic predecessor, Elijah (2 Kgs 1:8; Mal 4:5; Sirach 48:10–11).

3:5–6 John's ministry became so popular that many people from Jerusalem and Judea came to hear him. • they confessed their sins: Those who responded to John's preaching and turned away from sin were prepared to receive Jesus' ministry (Luke 7:27, 29). • he baptized them: John's practice of baptism may have originated with the OT idea of purification (see Isa 1:16; 4:4; Ezek 36:25).

3:7 The Pharisees' name derives from the Hebrew term perushim, meaning either separated ones or exact interpreters. • The Sadducees, a priestly class, probably derive their name from Zadok the priest (2 Sam 15:24–29; Ezek 44:10–16). • coming to watch him baptize: Or coming to be baptized.

3:8 Prove . . . that you have . . . turned to God (literally make fruit that accords with repentance): John calls for action and true ethical change; mere lip service will not do (see Luke 3:10–14; cp. Matt 5:19–20, 46; 7:21; 23:3).

3:9 We're safe: Some had wrongly assumed that, since they were descendants of Abraham, they were exempt from judgment. • A prominent theme in Matthew is how God will create new children of Abraham by bringing the Gentiles into God's people and removing from his people Jews who reject the Messiah (see 8:11–12; 21:43; 22:1–14; 28:16–20; Rom 4:9–25; Gal 3:6–14, 29).

3:11 with water: Or in water. • who is greater than I am: Despite his popularity and growing following, John had a clear sense of his role as subordinate to the Messiah. • I'm not worthy even to be his slave: In Jewish culture, to remove and carry someone's sandals, even those of a rabbi, was too lowly a task even for the rabbi's disciple. It was a job reserved for slaves. • with the Holy Spirit and with fire (or in the Holy Spirit and in fire): This happened at Pentecost (see Joel 2:28–29; Acts 2); the ministry of Jesus, empowered by the Holy Spirit (see 12:28; Luke 4:14), may also be included. Fire may refer to purification (Zech 13:9) or judgment (Mal 4:1; see Isa 1:25; 4:4).

tried to talk him out of it. “I am the one who needs to be baptized by you,” he said, “so why are you coming to me?”

¹⁵But Jesus said, “It should be done, for we must carry out all that God requires.” So John agreed to baptize him.

¹⁶After his baptism, as Jesus came up out of the water, the heavens were opened and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove and settling on him. ¹⁷And a voice from heaven said, “This is my dearly loved Son, who brings me great joy.”

The Pharisees (3:7)

The Pharisees were one of three major Jewish sects, along with the Sadducees and the Essenes. The Pharisees were a non-political lay movement within Judaism. They arose from the hasidim (pious ones), who opposed the syncretizing (combining together) of Greek culture and religion with Judaism in the 100s BC. They attempted, by rigorous examination of the details of the OT law, to make the law accessible and practical to people seeking to be obedient Jews. They taught strict adherence to the law, not only the written law of Moses (torah), but also the oral traditions which they claimed Moses had passed down to them. Their goal was to defend the written law against any possible infringement. They were God-fearing and law-abiding people. They were famous for passing their interpretations from generation to generation by word of mouth, establishing an oral tradition concerning legal matters. They made the law applicable by extracting from it specific guidelines for many possible situations. They argued that if the law were obeyed by all, the nation would be purged of sin and God would establish his Kingdom over all the nations. This gave their concern for obedience a goal in the future. Although the Pharisees were small in number, their influence on Israel was widespread (e.g., 15:12-14; see Josephus, War 2.8.14; Antiquities 13.10.5). The primary influence of the Pharisees was in the local synagogue communities, while the Sadducees were more influential in the Temple worship in Jerusalem and in the Sanhedrin, the Jewish high council. The traditions of the Pharisees developed into the rabbinic writings known as the Mishnah and the Talmud.

Unlike the Sadducees (see “The Sadducees” at 16:1-12, p. 1610), the Pharisees had a strong belief in the resurrection of the dead (see Acts 23:8). After the destruction of Jerusalem in AD 70, the Pharisees provided leadership and direction for the people of Israel.

Jesus often came into conflict with the Pharisees, accusing them of hypocrisy and of elevating human rules over God’s righteous standards. Jesus opposed the Pharisees because they were leading people away from God’s plan for redemption. In Matthew, the Pharisees oppose the work of God from the outset (3:7), mostly because of their meticulous observance of the law (23:23-26) and Jesus’ shocking disregard of their traditions (15:1-20). They were the theological shepherds of Israel (12:38; cp. 9:36), but Jesus castigates them as hypocrites for their perversions of doctrine and practice (see ch 23).

Mal 3:2-3). It is a “Spirit-and-fire baptism”; the Messiah puts into effect what John could only prepare—thoroughgoing judgment and purification.

3:12 Farmers would use a winnowing fork to toss harvested grain into the air, allowing the useless husks (chaff) to blow away. The Messiah’s ministry divides all humanity into two groups: (1) the wheat, that is, those who respond, forming the new people of God; and (2) the chaff, the unrepentant (see 3:8).

3:14 As John had already confessed (3:11-12), he was lesser than the Messiah, so he felt unfit to baptize him.

3:15 for we must carry out all that God requires: Or for we must fulfill all righteousness. This statement refers to accomplishing what the OT demanded or foreshadowed (e.g., Jer 31:31-34). “Righteousness” in Matthew refers to behavior that conforms to God’s will (see 5:20; 6:1, 33; 21:32).

3:16 opened: Some manuscripts read opened to him. • The Spirit of God descending like a dove was anointing Jesus, through whom salvation would come. This event was like a king’s being anointed with oil at his coronation. The Holy Spirit empowered Jesus to accomplish God’s salvation and defeat Satan (see 12:18, 28). This same Spirit empowers Jesus’ followers (10:20; Acts 1:8).

3:17 my dearly loved Son (see Ps 2:7): The title “Son of God” reveals and clarifies Jesus’ nature and role (see 4:3, 6; 14:33; 16:16; 17:5; 26:63; 27:54; 28:19). In his unique relationship to the Father, Jesus accomplishes salvation as the trusting and obedient Son. • who brings me great joy: God the Father confirmed his Son’s ministry with language from Isaiah (Isa 42:1) and so prepared Israel for his ministry.

The Temptation of Jesus: Satan Tests the Messiah

Matt 4:1-11 // Mark 1:12-13 // Luke 4:1-13

4 Then Jesus was led by the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted there by the ¹devil. ²For forty days and forty nights he fasted and became very hungry.

³During that time the devil came and said to him, "If you are the Son of God, tell these stones to become loaves of bread."

⁴But Jesus told him, "No! The Scriptures say,

'People do not live by bread alone, but by every word that comes from the mouth of God.'

⁵Then the devil took him to the holy city, Jerusalem, to the highest point of the Temple, ⁶and said, "If you are the Son of God, jump off! For the Scriptures say,

'He will order his angels to protect you. And they will hold you up with their hands so you won't even hurt your foot on a stone.'"

⁷Jesus responded, "The Scriptures also say, 'You must not test the LORD your God.'"

⁸Next the devil took him to the peak of a very high mountain and showed him all the kingdoms of the world and their glory.

⁹"I will give it all to you," he said, "if you will kneel down and worship me."

¹⁰"Get out of here, ⁸Satan," Jesus told him. "For the Scriptures say,

'You must worship the LORD your God and serve only him.'"

¹¹Then the devil went away, and ^hangels came and took care of Jesus.

4:1–11 Parallels between Adam and Jesus are obvious in this account of Jesus' temptation. Jesus is the second Adam (see Rom 5:12–19) and the second Israel (2:15). In contrast to the ancient Israelites, he fulfilled Israel's history by successfully wandering through the desert without sinning. He proved himself the obedient Son of God by defeating Satan in spiritual combat. And because he underwent temptation himself as a human, Jesus is able to sympathize with the temptations we face (see Heb 2:14–18; 4:15) and help us overcome them as he did (1 Cor 10:13).

4:1 Jesus was led by the Spirit: The temptation was providentially arranged by God as a test of the Messiah's character (see Deut 8:2). • to be tempted there by the devil: This test of character, initiated by God (who tempts no one; see Jas 1:13–14), was accomplished through the devil's own desire to lure Jesus into sin.

4:2 forty days and forty nights (see Exod 24:18; 34:28; 1 Kgs 19:8): Israel was tested in the wilderness for forty years (Exod 16:35; Deut 1:3).

4:3–4 Jesus refused to use his supernatural power to obtain the food that he trusted God to provide. Unlike the people of Israel, who sorely tested God through complaint and unbelief (see Exod 16), Jesus refused to question God's faithfulness. Instead, he trusted God to provide for his true need, the sustenance of every word that comes from the mouth of God.

4:3 the devil: Literally the tempter.

4:4 Jesus was quoting Deut 8:3.

4:5–7 Jesus refused to test God by presuming upon God's protection.

4:6 Now the devil quotes Ps 91:11–12.

4:7 The Scriptures also say: Countering the devil's appeal to Scripture, Jesus invoked a deeper scriptural principle of honoring God, which the devil ignored. See Deut 6:16.

4:8–10 Satan, called the ruler of this world (John 12:31), offered to hand over all the kingdoms of the world and their glory to Jesus to keep him from accomplishing the will of his Father. • Glory refers to political power and dominion (e.g., 6:29). Satan's strategy was to get Jesus to abuse his sonship, thus diverting him from the path of suffering and obedience that climaxed at the cross. • You must . . . only him: Deut 6:13.

4:11 Then the devil went away: Jesus' rebuff of Satan here foreshadows his victory over demons (12:28), Satan's defeat through the Cross (Col 2:14–15), and the final victory at the end of history (Rom 16:20; Rev 12:7–17; 20:2–3, 10). • Angels, who had already been involved in the Messiah's arrival and protection (1:20, 24; 2:13, 19), now came and took care of Jesus after his temptation, in fulfillment of the OT (4:6; see Ps 91:11–12).

4:12–11:1 Having been announced by John and the Father (3:13–17), and having obediently endured the testing in the wilderness (4:1–11), the Messiah was prepared for his ministry. He first confronted the Galilean Israelites with the message of the Kingdom.

4:12 John had been arrested by Herod Antipas (see 14:1–12). Antipas was tetrarch of Galilee and Perea, where John was probably working at the time. • When Jesus heard . . . he left Judea and returned to Galilee: As in Joseph's flight to Nazareth (2:22–23), an escape from danger can also be God's providential direction (4:14–16). Jesus withdrew to avoid martyrdom before finishing his work of revealing the Kingdom.

4:13 Capernaum was in Galilee, a district viewed negatively by the religious establishment in Judea and Jerusalem (see John 1:46; 7:41–42, 52). Many Judeans considered Galileans to be uncultured, with a lazy command of the language (cp. 26:73), a factor sometimes thought to affect the accuracy of their teachings. Galilee also had a proportionately larger Gentile population than Judea did.

4:14–16 through the prophet Isaiah: See Isa 9:1–2 (Greek version).

Kingdom of Heaven is near."

The First Disciples

Matt 4:18-22 // Mark 1:16-20

18 One day as Jesus was walking along the shore of the Sea of Galilee, he saw two brothers—Simon, also called Peter, and Andrew—throwing a net into the water, for they fished for a living. 19 Jesus called out to them, "Come, follow me, and I will show you how to fish for people!" 20 And they left their nets at once and followed him.

21 A little farther up the shore he saw two other brothers, James and John, sitting in a boat with their father, Zebedee, repairing their nets. And he called them to come, too.
22 They immediately followed him, leaving the boat and their father behind.

Crowds Follow Jesus

23 Jesus traveled throughout the region of Galilee, teaching in the synagogues and announcing the Good News about the Kingdom. And he healed every kind of disease and illness. 24 News about him spread as far as Syria, and people soon began bringing to him all who were sick. And whatever their sickness or disease, or if they were demon possessed or epileptic or paralyzed—he healed them all. 25 Large crowds followed him wherever he went—people from Galilee, the Ten Towns, Jerusalem, from all over Judea, and from east of the Jordan River.

After Jesus learned that John the Baptist had been put in prison (4:12), he moved to the Galilean seaside town of CAPERNAUM and made it his base of operations for much of his ministry.

main features: teaching, announcing ... the Kingdom, and healing. • The synagogues were centers for prayer, study, and exposition of Scripture and tradition. They were the social centers of many Jewish villages. The hypocrisy and hostility of the Jewish leaders was evident at the synagogues (6:2, 5; 10:17; 12:9–14; 13:54; 23:6, 34). • Announcing the Good News means presenting the message about the Kingdom of Heaven
(9:35; 24:14; 26:13; also Mark 1:1; Rom
1:16). Most often, the message evokes hostility (see 9:32–34; 10:27–28; 13:1–9, 18–23).

4:24–25 During Jesus' day, much of Palestine was in the Roman jurisdiction of Syria (a term that could refer to the entire eastern shore of the Mediterranean). Matthew mentions Syria to show how widespread the news of Jesus was.
• The word translated epileptic refers to epilepsy or demonic oppression. In 17:15, one so described "falls into fire and water," that is, the boy was unable to control himself. • The Ten Towns (Greek Decapolis) was a federation of ten cities, most of which were east of the Jordan and southeast of the Sea of Galilee (Damascus, Raphana, Hippus, Abila [or Canatha], Gadara, Scythopolis, Pella, Dion, Gerasa, and Philadelphia [Amman]). These cities were predominantly Gentile and Hellenistic in culture.

4:17 Jesus' message centered on the imminent arrival of the Kingdom of Heaven and the repentance that it necessitates (see 3:2; 10:7). • is near: Or has come, or is coming soon.

4:18–22 The call of the first disciples illustrates one of the purposes of Jesus' ministry: to call people to follow him in self-denying obedience (cp. 4:17, 23–25).

4:18 Simon, also called Peter, became the leader of the apostles (see 14:28; 15:15; 16:16) and the representative disciple (14:29–30; 16:15–19, 22–23).

4:19 Come, follow me: This involved accepting the beliefs and lifestyle of a master as one's own (16:24; Deut 5:33; 1 Kgs 19:19–21). • fish for people: The disciples would participate in the saving and judging work of the Kingdom (see 10:5–15; 13:47–51; Ezek 29:4–5; Amos 4:2).

4:20–22 leaving the boat and their father: Following Jesus as his disciples involved both commitment and cost on the part of the brothers (see 8:18–22; 10:38; 16:24; 19:21).

4:23–25 This summary marks the central theme of the section (4:23–9:38): the ministry and message of the Messiah. In ancient writings, chapter divisions were unknown; authors would instead begin and end a section with the same expression (called an inclusio; see 9:35).

Introduction

5 One day as he saw the crowds gathering, Jesus went up on the mountainside and sat down. His disciples gathered around him,² and he began to teach them.

The Beatitudes

Matt 5:3–12 // Luke 6:20–23

³ “God blesses those who are poor and realize their need for him, for the Kingdom of Heaven is theirs.

⁴ God blesses those who mourn, for they will be comforted.

⁵ God blesses those who are humble, for they will inherit the whole earth.

⁶ God blesses those who hunger and thirst for justice, for they will be satisfied.

⁷ God blesses those who are merciful, for they will be shown mercy.

⁸ God blesses those whose hearts are pure, for they will see God.

¹⁰ God blesses those who are persecuted for doing right, for the Kingdom of Heaven is theirs.

5:1–7:29 This is the first of five lengthy discourses in Matthew (see also 9:35–11:1; 13:1–53; 18:1–19:2; 23:1–26:1). The theme of the Sermon on the Mount is the Messiah's call to righteousness. Paul understood righteousness in terms of God's saving acts and of a person's standing before God. Jesus uses the term for moral behavior that conforms to God's will, as James does. Specifically, righteousness is doing the will of God as Jesus reveals it. This “revelation of righteousness” unifies the entire Sermon.

5:3 poor and realize their need for him (literally poor in spirit; cp. Luke 6:20, 24): In the OT, the poor are often depicted as especially pious because oppression by the wealthy leads them to trust in the Lord for salvation and deliverance rather than relying on the power of wealth (11:5; Ps 37:14–15; 40:17; 69:28–33; Isa 61:1; 66:2). In both Matthew's and Luke's accounts, the “poor” are indeed physically poor, but their trust in God, not their poverty, is what makes them blessed (Isa 57:15; 66:2).

5:4 Those who mourn were those who lamented the spiritual and national condition of Israel (see 23:37–39; Isa 61:2–3; Joel 1:8–13; 2:12–13, 18–19; Rom 9:1–5; 1 Cor 5:2; Jas 4:9). Personal grief, whether caused by sin or tragedy, may also be in view (Mark 16:10; Rev 18:11, 19). • will be comforted: The passive voice is used out of reverence for the holy name of God; the phrase could also be rendered God will comfort them (see also 5:6–7, 9). Comfort will accompany the fulfillment of all that God has promised (Isa 40:1–2; 61:2–3).

5:5 those who are humble: See Ps 37:11, which Jesus practically quotes here. Elsewhere, Jesus describes himself in similar terms—in contrast to other teachers (11:29) and as one who shuns pride (12:17–21; 21:5). This trait of Jesus is exemplified in his death on the cross (1 Pet 2:23; 3:9). • The whole earth could also be rendered the land, thus referring to God's promise of land to Abraham and his descendants (Gen 12:7; 17:8; see Isa 60:21). A wider sense may also be intended, such as God's reign over the entire earth (19:28; 28:18–20; Ps 115:16).

5:6 those who hunger and thirst for justice (or for righteousness): This refers either to the follower of Jesus whose driving purpose in life is to obey the Lord (cp. 3:15; 5:10, 20) or to the disciple's desire to see justice for all people (Ps 11:7; 85:10–12; Isa 11:1–4; Jer 23:5–6; 33:16). One with such a longing often prays, “May your will be done on earth” (6:10). • Christ has brought justice and righteousness (Rom 3:21–22; 5:1); the disciples will be satisfied with it (cp. Ps 42:1–2; 63:1–2).

5:7 Jesus made a cardinal virtue of being merciful, that is, showing kindness to those in distress (see 6:12, 14–15; 9:13; 12:7; 18:23–35; 23:23; 25:31–46). Those who are merciful now will find God's mercy in the final judgment.

5:8 Those whose hearts are pure (see Ps 24:3–5; 51:7; Isa 6:5) are contrasted with those who thought that they had satisfied God's will through ceremonial conformity to tradition (23:25–26). Jesus insisted on simple, true heart-righteousness (see 6:1–24; 15:1–20; 23:23–28; Deut 6:5). • They will see God and thereby attain even more than Moses did (see Exod 33:18–23; 34:5–7; see also Ps 73:1).

5:9 This beatitude probably targeted zealots—Jewish revolutionaries who advocated the overthrow of Roman domination through violent resistance. The Messiah's Kingdom would be established by other means. • those who work for peace: Jesus is not calling for pacifism per se, but rather a different kind of activism. • Peace is the absence of enmity and the presence of God's salvation (Lev 26:6; 1 Sam 16:4–5; Isa 9:5–6; Zech 8:16; Eph 2:14; Col 1:20). Jesus' disciples are to work for justice, righteousness, reconciliation, and mercy as the effects of God's salvation through Christ (5:43–47; Luke 10:5–6).

5:10–11 Jesus' first disciples were persecuted by hostile Jewish leaders who were offended by Jesus' new and authoritative revelation (see 10:17–23; 11:2–6; 12:1–8; 15:1–20; 23:34–36). Since then, doing right by associating with Jesus and obeying his teachings has often been a source of persecution (10:24–25; 2 Tim 3:12).

5:12 The great reward Jesus mentions is not something earned by suffering for doing right; it is God's blessing to those who have expressed his grace to others (see 10:41–42; 20:1–16). • The ancient prophets are closely connected with the NT apostles (see also 13:16–17; 23:29–36; Eph 2:20).

5:13–16 The disciples' good deeds will have profoundly positive effects on the world around them, to the glory of God. With this comes a warning from Jesus: Do nothing that might jeopardize that positive impact.

5:13 Salt was used for cleansing and preservation from decay (Ezek 16:4), in forming covenants (Lev 2:13;

Teaching about the Law

Matt 5:17-20; cp. Luke 16:17

¹⁷"Don't misunderstand why I have come. I did not come to abolish the law of Moses or the writings of the prophets. No, I came to accomplish their purpose. ¹⁸I tell you the truth, until heaven and earth disappear, not even the smallest detail of God's law will disappear until its purpose is achieved. ¹⁹So if you ignore the least commandment and teach others to do the same, you will be called the least in the Kingdom of Heaven. But anyone who obeys God's laws and teaches them will be called great in the Kingdom of Heaven.

²⁰"But I warn you—unless your righteousness is better than the righteousness of the teachers of religious law and the Pharisees, you will never enter the Kingdom of Heaven!

The blessings of Jesus are called Beatitudes because the Latin Vulgate translates the Greek word for blessed as beati. No single word can capture all that Jesus is communicating with this term here. He is describing the special favor of God toward his people, both physically and spiritually, and the consequences of living within that favor. Jesus calls men and women to follow him as he proclaims the message of the Kingdom to Israel (see also 11:6; 13:16; 16:17; 24:46). The Beatitudes describe the lifestyle and character of a follower of Jesus. Those who are blessed have repented in response to the proclamation of the Kingdom (4:17-22). The Beatitudes (5:3-12) are connected with Isa 61:1-3. The Spirit endows, leads to proclamation, and blesses the poor, the humble, and the righteous.

The NLT's use of "God blesses" conveys the ideas of divine origin and approval (see 25:34), fulfillment (see 11:6; 13:16; 16:17), reversal (see Luke 1-2; 6:20-26), and the condition of obedience required in order to enjoy the blessings (see Ps 1:1, 3-6; 106:3; 112:1; 119:1-2; Prov 8:32; Isa 56:2). The blessings are inaugurated with the Messiah's coming, with a confident hope that they will be enjoyed eternally and completely.

Num 18:19; see note on 2 Chr 13:5), and as flavor (Job 6:6; Mark 9:50).

• Salt that lost its flavor became useless, insipid, or dull (see Mark 9:50; Luke 14:34).

5:14 light of the world . . . city on a hilltop: The attractive quality of the disciples' lives will draw other people to live similarly and to glorify God (see Isa 2:2-5; 42:6; 49:6; 51:4; 56:6-8; 60:1-3; Phil 2:15).

5:16 praise your heavenly Father: Religious hypocrites seek praise for themselves; Jesus' disciples should seek praise for God (see 1 Pet 2:12).

5:17 Abolish would mean to eliminate and replace the law of Moses and the writings of the prophets (i.e., the whole OT) as the revelation of God's will. • Accomplish their purpose might mean to obey perfectly, to complete the teaching of, or to bring about OT prophecies (see 1:22; 2:15, 17, 23). Jesus himself is the realization of all that both the Prophets and the Law taught and expected. Now that Christ, the fulfillment, has come, the OT must be understood in light of him (Luke 24:26, 44).

5:19 The realization of the law in Christ means that obedience to all of his commands (see 28:20) is the only acceptable response for his disciples.

• Commandment refers to the OT commands (5:18) as now fulfilled in Christ's teaching (see 5:21-48). • the least in the Kingdom of Heaven: Jesus may mean that such an individual will enter the Kingdom, but only barely and with low status; alternatively, some Jewish evidence suggests that he is referring to damnation (cp. 8:12, where "those for whom the Kingdom was prepared" are eternally excluded).

5:20 unless your righteousness is better: Jesus' disciples must have the substantially new kind of righteousness that Jesus teaches and makes possible (illustrated in 5:21-47 and summed up in 5:48); it is both quantitatively and qualitatively distinct. Just as Jesus is greater than the Temple (12:6) and Jonah (12:41), so the righteousness of his followers far outstrips that of the teachers of religious law and the Pharisees (see 3:7-9).

5:21-47 You have heard. . . But I say: Jesus contrasts his own teaching to six misinterpretations of the law. Each antithesis provides an example of the surpassing righteousness of Jesus. Jesus reveals the will of God as it contrasts with traditions.

5:21 our ancestors were told: The expression refers to the traditional interpretation of the teachers of religious law and Pharisees. Though their traditions prohibited murder, they did not prohibit hatred. The surpassing righteousness of Jesus demands reconciliation (5:23-24); merely refraining from committing murder is not sufficient (5:22). • 'You must not murder. . .': Exod 20:13; Deut 5:17.

say, if you are even angry with someone, you are subject to judgment! If you call someone an idiot, you are in danger of being brought before the court. And if you curse someone, you are in danger of the fires of hell.

²³“So if you are presenting a sacrifice at the altar in the Temple and you suddenly remember that someone has something against you, ²⁴leave your sacrifice there at the altar. Go and be reconciled to that person. Then come and offer your sacrifice to God.

²⁵“When you are on the way to court with your adversary, settle your differences quickly. Otherwise, your accuser may hand you over to the judge, who will hand you over to an officer, and you will be thrown into prison. ²⁶And if that happens, you surely won’t be free again until you have paid the last penny.

Teaching about Adultery

²⁷“You have heard the commandment that says, ‘You must not commit adultery.’ ²⁸But I say, anyone who even looks at a woman with lust has already committed adultery with her in his heart. ²⁹So if your eye—even your good eye—^bcauses you to lust, gouge it out and throw it away. It is better for you to lose one part of your body than for your whole body to be thrown into hell. ³⁰And if your hand—even your stronger hand—^bcauses you to sin, cut it off and throw it away. It is better for you to lose one part of your body than for your whole body to be thrown into hell.

Teaching about Divorce

Matt 5:31-32; cp. Matt 19:9; Mark 10:11-12; Luke 16:18
³¹“You have heard the law that says, ‘A man can divorce his wife by merely giving her a written notice of divorce.’ ³²But I say that a man who divorces his wife, unless she has been unfaithful, causes her to commit adultery. And anyone who marries a divorced woman also commits adultery.

Teaching about Vows

³³“You have also heard that our ancestors were told, ‘You must not break your vows; you must carry out the vows you make to the LORD.’ ³⁴But I say, do not make any vows! Do not say, ‘By heaven!’ because heaven is God’s throne. ³⁵And do not say, ‘By the earth!’ because the earth is his footstool. And do not

• judgment . . . the court . . . hell: The second and third punishments are more severe than would have been typical in Jesus’ day, emphasizing the surpassing righteousness of Jesus and his followers (see 5:20). They did not tolerate unreconciled relationships or any devaluation of others. • If you call someone an idiot: The Greek uses an Aramaic term of contempt: If you say to your brother, “Reqa!” The Aramaic term reqa means something like “empty head,” and the clause probably means the same as if you curse someone (literally if you say, “You fool!”; see Jas 2:20). Devaluation of people is a sin that manifests itself in various ways. • hell: Greek Gehenna; see note on 5:29.

5:23-26 Jesus gives two illustrations of reconciliation in community and society.

5:23 sacrifice: Literally gift; also in 5:24.

5:26 the last penny: Greek the last kodrantes (i.e., quadrans), the smallest Roman coin (cp. Luke 12:59).

5:27-30 Jesus’ righteousness uncovers sin at a deeper level than the external; he reveals the true intent of the law.

5:27 You must not commit adultery: Exod 20:14; Deut 5:18.

5:29-30 good eye . . . gouge it out . . . stronger hand . . . cut it off: These graphic images call for radical separation from sin. But even self-mutilation, radical as it would be, cannot stop a lustful mind. Jesus is calling for the surpassing righteousness that only he can bring.

5:29 your eye—even your good eye: Literally your right eye. • hell (Greek Gehenna): Gehenna originally referred to a valley outside Jerusalem where some of the kings of Judah worshiped idols and performed human sacrifice by fire (2 Chr 28:3; 33:6; Jer 7:31; 32:35). The site was eventually destroyed by Josiah (2 Kgs 23:10). In the NT, Gehenna describes the place of punishment by God. Unless disciples have surpassing righteousness, they will not enter the Kingdom (5:20) but will be punished eternally (5:22; 23:33).

5:30 your hand—even your stronger hand: Literally your right hand.

5:31-32 Jesus challenges the misapplication of the OT provision for divorce (see Deut 24:1-4; cp. Matt 19:3-9): Following the rules does not make divorce acceptable. Jesus allows only one legitimate reason for divorce, sexual infidelity, and forbids casual divorce (see also 1 Cor 7:10-11).

5:31 A man can divorce his wife . . . notice of divorce: Deut 24:1. A notice of divorce is a document stating the legality of a divorce. Evidence suggests that such a document permitted remarriage. “The essential formula in the notice of divorce is, ‘Lo, you are free to marry any man.’ . . . The essential formula in a writ of emancipation is, ‘Lo, you are a freedwoman: lo, you belong to yourself’” (Mishnah Gittin 9:3).

5:32 The exception clause permits but does not demand divorce when one partner has been unfaithful (see also 19:9). Notably, Jesus does not demand death for the guilty party (see Deut 22:21-22). • The implication seems to be that by divorcing his wife for illegitimate reasons, the man causes her to commit adultery by wrongly putting her in a situation where she remarries and so breaks the law. • anyone who marries a divorced woman: It is not clear whether Jesus is referring to any woman who is divorced, regardless of the reason, or only to a woman who is divorced without an acceptable reason (unfaithfulness). The underlying assumption in Jewish divorce law was simple: Legitimate divorces permitted remarriage.

5:33-37 Jesus here summarizes the OT teaching on oaths (Lev 19:12; Num 30:2-4; Deut 23:21-23; Ps 50:14; Zech 8:17). The Pharisees had degrees of commitment for oaths—for example, ones that did not mention God were not as binding. Jesus shows that because God is related to all things (heaven, earth, Jerusalem, my head; see also 23:16-22), breaking any oath breaks God’s command (see Exod 20:7). The point is that one must be altogether truthful. Jesus’ righteousness elevates the disciple’s everyday yes and no to the level of binding oath. Oaths become superfluous to the honest person (Jas 5:12).

5:33 You must not break your vows . . . to the Lord: Num 30:2.

say, 'By Jerusalem!' for Jerusalem is the city of the great King. ³⁶Do not even say, 'By my head!' for you can't turn one hair white or black. ³⁷Just say a simple, 'Yes, I will,' or 'No, I won't.' Anything beyond this is from the evil one.

Matt 5:38-42; cp. Luke 6:27-31

³⁸"You have heard the law that says the punishment must match the injury: 'An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth.' ³⁹But I say, do not resist an evil person! If someone slaps you on the right cheek, offer the other cheek also. ⁴⁰If you are sued in court and your shirt is taken from you, give your coat, too. ⁴¹If a soldier demands that you carry his gear for a mile, carry it two miles. ⁴²Give to those who ask, and don't turn away from those who want to borrow.

⁴³"You have heard the law that says, 'Love your neighbor' and hate your enemy. ⁴⁴But I say, love your enemies! Pray for those who persecute you! ⁴⁵In that way, you will be acting as true children of your Father in heaven. For he gives his sunlight to both the evil and the good, and he sends rain on the just and the unjust alike. ⁴⁶If you love only those who love you, what reward is there for that? Even corrupt tax collectors do that much. ⁴⁷If you are kind only to your friends, how are you different from anyone else? Even pagans do that. ⁴⁸But you are to be ⁴perfect, even as your Father in heaven is ⁴perfect.

Teaching about Giving to the Needy

6 "Watch out! Don't do your good deeds publicly, to be admired by others, for you will lose the reward from your Father in heaven. ²When you give to someone in need, don't do as the 'hypocrites do—blowing trumpets in the synagogues and streets to call attention to their acts of charity! I tell you the truth, they have received all the reward they will ever get. ³But when you give to someone in need, don't let your left hand know what your right hand is doing. ⁴Give your gifts in private, and your Father, who sees everything, will reward you.

Teaching about Prayer

⁵"When you pray, don't be like the 'hypocrites who love to pray publicly on street corners and in the synagogues where everyone can see them. I tell you the truth, that is all the reward they will ever get. ⁶But when you pray, go away by yourself, shut the 5:38-42 The OT permitted proportionate retribution (Exod 21:24-25; Deut 19:16-21), which was to prevent punishments from far exceeding the severity of the offense. Jesus, however, does not permit personal retaliation at all among his followers. Jesus' way is not to insist on justice but to find victory through suffering and the cross (1 Pet 2:23). Some have taken this passage as a guide for all of life (including politics). Others understand it merely as the willingness to forgo one's personal rights and to forgive as God has forgiven (see 5:48; 18:23-35). Like the servant in Isa 50:4-9 and 53:7 (see also Matt 12:15-21), Jesus' followers are to apply the same virtue to honor, possessions, time, or property. Righteousness does not insist on its own way.

5:38 the law that says the punishment must match the injury: 'An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth.' Literally the law that says: 'An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.' Exod 21:24; Lev 24:20; Deut 19:21.

5:41 Forced labor was a humiliating fact of Roman occupation (see 27:32); Jesus turned it into an occasion for exuberant service to God. This saying shows Jesus' opposition to Jewish revolutionaries, who advocated violent resistance (see 5:9). • mile: Greek million (4,854 feet or 1,478 meters).

5:42 See Deut 15:7-11.

5:43-47 Love your neighbor: Lev 19:18. • hate your enemy: Jesus is opposing not the OT, but a traditional, though mistaken (cp. Exod 23:4-5), interpretation of the OT. The "hate" clause is not in the OT (but see Ps 139:21-22).

5:44 love your enemies: Some manuscripts add Bless those who curse you. Do good to those who hate you. Cp. Luke 6:27-28.

5:45 By loving all people, Jesus' followers would not become children of God; they would show by their actions that they are indeed God's true children, according to his nature and will (see Deut 10:18-19).

5:47 If you are kind only to your friends (literally, If you greet only your brothers): Jews were instructed to greet Gentiles for the sake of maintaining peaceful relations, but such greetings were not the same as those for "brothers"—i.e., fellow Jews.

5:48 This verse ties 5:20-48 together as a unit (see note on 4:23-25). • you are to be perfect: The term means maturity and wholeness in response to Jesus' proclamation of the Kingdom, and complete consecration to God (19:21; Eph 4:13; Phil 3:15; Col 1:28; 4:12; 1 Jn 4:18). Perfection has love at its core (see Luke 6:36).

6:1 This verse introduces the theme of 6:2-18, that righteousness should not be done for public recognition but as a service to God. • Good deeds are acts that conform to God's pattern for proper behavior: e.g., gift giving (6:2-4), prayer (6:5-15), and fasting (6:16-18). Jesus urges secrecy to counteract the human propensity to seek praise for oneself rather than for God (cp. 5:16).

6:2 the hypocrites: See note on 23:13. • The blowing of trumpets accompanied major rituals, including public fasts.

6:4 your Father . . . will reward you: Both now and at the final judgment at the end of history (25:31-46).

6:5 When you pray: Jews prayed regularly at 9 AM and 3 PM (see Acts 3:1) and had frequent times of public prayer. Hypocrites deliberately sought to be in public places at such times, to be seen by all. • the hypocrites: See note on 23:13.

6:6 go away by yourself: Jesus is not prohibiting corporate prayer (see 18:19-20; Luke 11:2-4), but is instructing his followers to avoid using prayer as a means of drawing attention to themselves.

door behind you, and pray to your Father in private. Then your Father, who sees everything, will reward you.

⁷"When you pray, don't babble on and on as the Gentiles do. They think their prayers are answered merely by repeating their words again and again. ⁸Don't be like them, for your Father knows exactly what you need even before you ask him! ⁹Pray like this:

Our Father in heaven,
may your name be kept holy.

¹⁰May your Kingdom come soon.

May your will be done on earth,
as it is in heaven.

¹¹Give us today the food we need,

¹²and forgive us our sins, as we have forgiven those who sin against us.

¹³And don't let us yield to temptation, but rescue us from the evil one.

¹⁴"If you forgive those who sin against you, your heavenly Father will forgive you.

¹⁵But if you refuse to forgive others, your Father will not forgive your sins.

Teaching about Fasting

¹⁶"And when you fast, don't make it obvious, as the hypocrites do, for they try to look miserable and disheveled so people will admire them for their fasting. I tell you the truth, that is the only reward they will ever get.

¹⁷But when you fast, comb your hair and wash your face. ¹⁸Then no one will notice that you are fasting, except your Father, who knows what you do in private. And your Father, who sees everything, will reward you.

Teaching about Money and Possessions

Matt 6:19-21 // Luke 12:33-34

Matt 6:22-23 // Luke 11:34-36

Matt 6:24 // Luke 16:13

¹⁹"Don't store up treasures here on earth, where moths eat them and rust destroys them, and where thieves break in and steal.

²⁰Store your treasures in heaven, where moths and rust cannot destroy, and thieves do not break in and steal. ²¹Wherever your treasure is, there the desires of your heart will also be.

²⁴"No one can serve two masters. For you will hate one and love the other; you will be devoted to one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and be enslaved to money.

Matt 6:25-34 // Luke 12:22-32

6:7-8 God cannot be coaxed by endless repetition. The Lord's Prayer (6:9-13) is a model of simplicity in contrast with pagan wordiness.

6:9-13 The Lord's Prayer is similar in form to a common Jewish prayer (the qaddish). Jesus gave this prayer to his followers as a succinct expression of their new faith.

6:9 Pray like this: In contrast to the vain repetition of pagan prayers (6:7-8), "the Lord's Prayer" is a model of simplicity. • Jews rarely addressed God as Father, but Jesus did so in every prayer but one (Mark 15:34). • may your name be kept holy: God's name is profaned by the sin of his people (Isa 29:22-24; Jer 34:15-16; Ezek 39:7; Amos 2:7).

6:10 In praying for God's Kingdom to come soon, Jesus' disciples pray for his justice, righteousness, peace, and mercy to be established. • Outside God's will, no person will be permitted into God's presence (7:21; 12:50; 21:28-32). • on earth, as it is in heaven: This probably refers to all of the first three petitions, not just the third.

6:11 Give us today the food we need (or Give us today our food for the day; or Give us today our food for tomorrow):

The disciple, after confidently asking God to provide for daily needs, can go about Kingdom ministry relieved of care (6:25-34).

6:12 as we have forgiven (see also 6:14-15; 18:21-35): Forgiving others is a reflection of a repentant, regenerate heart, which makes our own forgiveness possible. Those who have experienced God's forgiveness will forgive. Jesus implies that those who are unwilling to forgive have not perceived God's mercy, and perhaps have never truly repented.

6:13 And don't let us yield to temptation (or And keep us from being tested): Just as Jesus was tested (4:1-11), temptation will test the disciple's character. Jesus urges prayer for God's enabling to stand the test (see 26:41; Ps 141:4). • from the evil one: Or from evil. The alternate reading refers to sin in general; the NLT reading refers to Satan, the tempter (see Jas 1:13). • Some manuscripts add For yours is the kingdom and the power and the glory forever. Amen; this doxology was added later (probably based on 1 Chr 29:11-13) to tailor the prayer to the liturgy.

6:16 Prayer and fasting are frequently connected (Lev 23:27-32; Neh 9:1-2; Zech 7:3-5; 8:19; Luke 18:12). The practice had been abused before Jesus' time (Isa 58:3-12). • the hypocrites: See note on 23:13.

6:20 treasures in heaven: This was a common image for Jews of Jesus' day; doing God's commands became virtually equivalent to accumulating treasures with God. The context (6:19; Luke 12:33) suggests that Jesus primarily had acts of charity in mind.

6:22 Your eye is like a lamp: It gives light to the body and so enlightens the entire person. • Healthy means morally healthy, with simple, wholehearted devotion to God (6:24). Here it connotes generosity.

6:24 The term for money (traditionally mammon) is an Aramaic term for profits or material possessions. Since God tolerates no rivals, Jesus repeatedly warns of the danger of accumulating riches (13:22; 19:16-30; 26:14-16; 27:3-10; 28:11-15), which can be an idol (see Eph 5:5; Col 3:5). We must trust God to meet our needs (4:3-4; 6:8, 11, 25-34; 7:7-11; 10:9-14; 14:15-21; 15:32-38), and the community of disciples is to be mutually supportive (6:2-4; 10:40-42; 19:21; 23:23-24; 25:31-46; 26:6-13; 27:57-61).

6:25-34 Jesus taught an anxiety-free existence of simple trust in God for food and drink, or enough clothes to wear. Isn't life more than food, and your body more than clothing? ²⁶Look at the birds. They don't plant or harvest or store food in barns, for your heavenly Father feeds them. And aren't you far more valuable to him than they are? ²⁷Can all your worries add a single moment to your life?

²⁸"And why worry about your clothing? Look at the lilies of the field and how they grow. They don't work or make their clothing, ²⁹yet Solomon in all his glory was not dressed as beautifully as they are. ³⁰And if God cares so wonderfully for wildflowers that are here today and thrown into the fire tomorrow, he will certainly care for you. Why do you have so little faith?

³¹"So don't worry about these things, saying, 'What will we eat? What will we drink? What will we wear?' ³²These things dominate the thoughts of unbelievers, but your heavenly Father already knows all your needs. ³³Seek the Kingdom of God above all else, and live righteously, and he will give you everything you need.

³⁴"So don't worry about tomorrow, for tomorrow will bring its own worries. Today's trouble is enough for today.

Wisdom: Do Not Judge Others

Matt 7:1-5// Luke 6:37-42

7"Do not judge others, and you will not be judged. ²For you will be treated as you treat others. The standard you use in judging is the standard by which you will be judged.

³And why worry about a speck in your friend's eye when you have a log in your own? ⁴How can you think of saying to your friend, 'Let me help you get rid of that speck in your eye,' when you can't see past the log in your own eye? ⁵Hypocrite! First get rid of the log in your own eye; then you will see well enough to deal with the speck in your friend's eye.

Little Faith (6:30)

Matt 7:21-28; 8:26;
13:58; 14:31; 16:8;
17:20; 22:34-40
Jas 1:6-7

The term "little faith" and related Greek terms are used five times in Matthew (6:30; 8:26; 14:31; 16:8; 17:20) and only once elsewhere (Luke 12:28; cp. Jas 1:6-7). The term refers to a specific event rather than to ongoing and permanent failure. In Matthew, this is due either to lack of knowledge on the part of Jesus' disciples (16:8) or to acting without faith in a particular incident. If someone always lacks faith, it would be described as "unbelief" (see 13:58). As examples of "little faith," the disciples in 6:30 do not understand their value or God's providential protection; in 8:26 and 14:31 they do not understand God's protection in the midst of physical danger; in 16:8 they do not understand Jesus' saying regarding yeast; and in 17:20 they are not able to exorcise a demon. These are instances of failure to be consistent with a calling rather than of having no faith whatsoever.

The term faith reflects at least two ideas: trust (personal reliance upon the Lord) and belief (affirmation of truths). Matthew's concern with "little faith" is about lack of trust by a follower of Jesus in a specific situation, rather than a failure to have basic belief in Jesus as Lord and Savior. Jesus wants his followers not only to believe in him, but also to trust, love, and obey him (see 7:21-28; 22:34-40).

provisions. Jesus' disciples had abandoned all (4:18-22; 9:9; 10:5-14); Jesus gave them comforting reassurance that God would provide for their needs.

6:26 Jesus' logic progresses from lesser to greater: If the Father tends to birds (the lesser), and the disciple is far more valuable to him (the greater), then he will certainly tend to the disciples' needs (see also 10:29-31).

6:30 Little faith results from the failure to understand one's value to God and the extent of God's providential protection.

6:32 unbelievers (literally Gentiles): Those who fail to know God and follow his will (see also 20:19). • your heavenly Father already knows: Prayer does not inform God about needs; it expresses trust in his provision.

6:33 Here Jesus gives the positive alternative to worrying. Single-minded commitment to God and seeking his reign through Christ (see 6:19-24) must be the primary concern of Jesus' disciples. • Some manuscripts do not include of God.

7:1 Jesus calls for people to stop oppressively controlling others in the name of pastoral concern. Mercy is a dominant theme in Jesus' teaching and practice (9:9-13; 12:1-7), but not at the expense of clear opposition to sin (see 18:15-20; 23:13-33). The judgment Jesus prohibits often involves rigorous scrutiny of trivial matters (see 23:23-24). God alone has the right to judge (see Jas 4:11-12). • you will not be judged: This might refer to God's judgment at the end of history (see 5:7). God measures us by our treatment of others (see 6:12; 18:21-35).

7:2 For you will be treated as you treat others: Or For God will judge you as you judge others. • The standard you use in judging is the standard by which you will be judged: Or The measure you give will be the measure you get back.

7:3-5 Jesus exhorts his disciples to minister to others rather than condemning them. Reference to a speck (speck of dust, chip of wood) versus a log in the eye is hyperbolic imagery, intended to heighten the contrast (see 5:29; 23:23-24; Mic 6:6-8).

7:3 your friend's eye: Literally your brother's eye; also in 7:5.

7:4 your friend: Literally your brother.

Wisdom: Do Not Throw Pearls to Pigs

⁶"Don't waste what is holy on people who are unholy. Don't throw your pearls to pigs! They will trample the pearls, then turn and attack you."

Wisdom: Effective Prayer

Matt 7:7-11 // Luke 11:9-13

⁷"Keep on asking, and you will receive what you ask for. Keep on seeking, and you will find. Keep on knocking, and the door will be opened to you. ⁸For everyone who asks, receives. Everyone who seeks, finds. And to everyone who knocks, the door will be opened."

⁹"You parents—if your children ask for a loaf of bread, do you give them a stone instead? ¹⁰Or if they ask for a fish, do you give them a snake? Of course not! ¹¹So if you sinful people know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your heavenly Father give good gifts to those who ask him."

Wisdom: The Golden Rule

Matt 7:12 // Luke 6:31

¹²"Do to others whatever you would like them to do to you. This is the essence of all that is taught in the Law and the prophets."

Call to Decision: The Narrow Gate

Matt 7:13-14; cp. Luke 13:24

¹³"You can enter God's Kingdom only through the narrow gate. The highway to hell is broad, and its gate is wide for the many who choose that way. ¹⁴But the gateway to life is very narrow and the road is difficult, and only a few ever find it."

The Tree and Its Fruit

Matt 7:15-20; cp. Matt 12:33-35 // Luke 6:43-45

¹⁵"Beware of false prophets who come disguised as harmless sheep but are really vicious wolves. ¹⁶You can identify them by their fruit, that is, by the way they act. Can you pick grapes from thornbushes, or figs from thistles? ¹⁷A good tree produces good fruit, and a bad tree produces bad fruit. ¹⁸A good tree can't produce bad fruit, and a bad tree can't produce good fruit. ¹⁹So every tree that does not produce good fruit is chopped down and thrown into the fire. ²⁰Yes, just as you can identify a tree by its fruit, so you can identify people by their actions."

Matt 7:21-23; cp. Luke 13:25-27

²¹"Not everyone who calls out to me, 'Lord! Lord!' will enter the Kingdom of Heaven. Only those who actually do the will of my Father in heaven will enter. ²²On judgment day many will say to me, 'Lord! Lord! We prophesied in your name and cast out demons in your name and performed many miracles in your name.' ²³But I will reply, 7:6 Rabbis often referred to important ideas or Scripture verses as pearls. The mysteries of the Kingdom (13:11) are holy (see Exod 29:33; Lev 2:3; 22:10-16; Num 18:8-10). • Don't waste what is holy on people who are unholy: Literally Don't give the sacred to dogs. Jews often referred to Gentiles as dogs (see 15:26; see Ps 22:16, 20) or pigs because those animals were unclean (Lev 11). Some interpreters understand this statement as warning that the message of the Kingdom would not be well received by many Gentiles. Others see it as a warning about offering the message of the Kingdom to the resistant Jewish leaders (see 5:20; 10:11-14; see also Heb 10:29) or to unbelievers in general (see 18:17; see also 1 Cor 2:13-16; 2 Pet 2:21-22).

7:7-8 This passage teaches persistence in prayer, but Jesus does not teach that God will grant extravagant desires. God's people are to seek daily provision and spiritual blessing (6:10-11).

7:12 the law and the prophets: The teaching of Jesus in 5:21-7:6 is the goal and true expression of the law of Moses. Love is at the core of discipleship (see also Gal 5:13-14, 18).

7:13-27 The Sermon on the Mount closes with a call to decide about Jesus and his teaching (see 4:23; 9:35). Those who hear Jesus' message regarding the Kingdom must follow him to obtain eternal life or disown him and experience God's condemnation. There is no middle way (Deut 30:15-20; Ps 1; Prov 12:28; Jer 21:8).

7:13 Entering through the narrow gate refers to the decision to follow Jesus as the Messiah. The wide gate and broad highway refer to the decision not to follow Jesus and his teachings. • The highway to hell (literally The road that leads to destruction): The reference to hell means being thrown into the fire, not entering the Kingdom of Heaven, being banished from the presence of Jesus, and being ruined (7:19-23, 27).

7:14 Few people come to the light that is revealed in Christ (see 19:23; 20:16; 22:14; see also John 3:19; 6:66-71).

7:15-20 False prophets speak what people want to hear rather than calling people to live according to God's will. Deuteronomy 13:1-5 and 18:21-22 set standards for evaluating a prophet's truthfulness: His words must conform to God's word, and his predictions must come true. Jesus unpacks the first requirement: A prophet's actions must match his words in order to be believable; accordingly, a true prophet's actions will also match God's word. Just as the fruit indicates the nature of a tree, so one's life indicates either a regenerate or unregenerate heart. False prophets are expected at the end of the age (see 24:11, 24; Acts 20:28-35; Rev 13:11-18; 16:13; 19:20; 20:10). In order not to be deceived, Christians must be discerning (see 1 Cor 12:10; 14:29; 1 Thes 5:21; 1 Jn 4:1-3; Rev 2:20).

7:16-17 Good and bad fruit refers to moral behavior (see 3:8, 10; 12:33-37; 13:8; 21:43; Gal 5:19-23).

7:18 Spiritual rebirth is absolutely necessary if one is to produce the good fruit that Jesus demands. Good works flow from faith; good works and faith cannot be separated (see Jas 2:14-26).

7:21 The will of my Father is expressed in Jesus' teachings (see also 12:50; 21:28-32; Rom 2:13; Jas 1:22-27).

7:22 judgment day: The OT concept is the "day of the Lord," when God will come to rescue the faithful and judge the oppressors (Isa 13-14; Joel 2; Zeph 1:14-16). In Jesus' teaching, this day is when all will be judged for their response to him (see 10:15; 11:20-24; 12:36; 24:19-50; 25:13, 31-46; Acts 17:31; Rom 2:16). • Neither charismatic gifts nor public accomplishments in Jesus' name will necessarily bring God's acceptance; the decisive issue is obedience (7:21).

24 'Anyone who listens to my teaching and follows it is wise, like a person who builds a house on solid rock. 25 Though the rain comes in torrents and the floodwaters rise and the winds beat against that house, it won't collapse because it is built on bedrock. 26 But anyone who hears my teaching and doesn't obey it is foolish, like a person who builds a house on sand. 27 When the rains and floods come and the winds beat against that house, it will collapse with a mighty crash.'

Response to the Sermon

Matt 7:28-29; cp. Mark 1:21-22 // Luke 4:31-32

28 When Jesus had finished saying these things, the crowds were amazed at his teaching, 29 for he taught with real authority—quite unlike their teachers of religious law.

Narrative: Jesus' Ministry (8:1-9:34)

Jesus Heals a Man with Leprosy

Matt 8:1-4 // Mark 1:40-45 // Luke 5:12-16

8 Large crowds followed Jesus as he came down the mountainside. 2 Suddenly, a man with leprosy approached him and kneled before him. "Lord," the man said, "if you are willing, you can heal me and make me clean."

3 Jesus reached out and touched him. "I am willing," he said. "Be healed!" And instantly the leprosy disappeared. 4 Then Jesus said to him, "Don't tell anyone about this. Instead, go to the priest and let him examine you. Take along the offering required in the law of Moses for those who have been healed of leprosy. This will be a public testimony that you have been cleansed."

Matt 8:5-13 // Luke 7:1-10

5 When Jesus returned to Capernaum, a Roman officer came and pleaded with him, 6 "Lord, my young servant lies in bed, paralyzed and in terrible pain."

7 Jesus said, "I will come and heal him."

8 But the officer said, "Lord, I am not worthy to have you come into my home. Just say the word from where you are, and my servant will be healed. 9 I know this because I am under the authority of my superior officers, and I have authority over my soldiers. I only need to say, 'Go,' and they go, or 'Come,' and they come. And if I say to my slaves, 'Do this,' they do it."

7:23 I never knew you: These people were never converted, even though they did great things in God's name. They break God's laws through rejection of the Father's will as taught by Jesus. Having never known Christ, they never learned to do what he commanded.

7:24-27 The emphasis in this whole sermon (5:3-7:27) is on doing what Jesus teaches by walking in righteousness (5:20). To hear and not obey is to choose the wide gate and the broad highway that lead to destruction (Jas 1:22-25; 2:14-26). Decision is necessary in light of what has been revealed. See Lev 26; Deut 28; 30.

7:24 A wise . . . person perceives that Jesus is the fulfillment of OT promises, willingly submits to him, and walks the path that ultimately leads to blessing (5:3-12; 7:13-14). • Building a house directly on rock provides a much stronger foundation than would a dry, sandy riverbed or floodplain (7:26).

7:25-27 The storm is a metaphor for God's all-knowing judgment (see Jer 23:19; Ezek 1:4).

7:28-29 Jesus began teaching only his disciples (5:1), but crowds had followed up the mountainside as well. • Unlike the teachers of religious law, whose authority was derived from the Scriptures they quoted or from the teachings of previous scholars, Jesus taught with real—that is, direct—authority. He quoted Scripture in the Sermon, but his teaching was based on his own authority as the Messiah.

8:1-9:34 Here the Kingdom of God is manifested with supernatural power (see 4:23-25; 11:2-6). It reaches people who had been excluded from the blessing of God: Gentiles, lepers, blind people, sick women, demoniacs, tax collectors, those with a chronic hemorrhage, and the dead. Jesus shows compassion, but the religious leaders are provoked to opposition. Jesus calls his followers to faith and discipleship.

8:2 Leprosy refers to various skin diseases. Lepers were ceremonially unclean; they were excluded from society unless they became symptom-free and a priest pronounced them clean (see 8:4; Lev 14:2-32). On some occasions, leprosy was a judgment from God (Num 12:9-15; 2 Kgs 5:27; 15:5).

8:3 Be healed: Jesus' healing of lepers was tangible evidence of the Kingdom in his person and ministry (11:2-6).

8:4 The leper's healing would be a public testimony—either that the religious leaders were wrong not to trust in the Messiah (10:18) or that Jesus was not against the law of Moses (5:17). • the offering required in the law of Moses for those who have been healed of leprosy: See Lev 14:2-32.

8:5-13 Jesus once again ministered to the marginalized or ostracized. The centurion was a Gentile soldier, and ministry to him would have evoked strong resentment from both the nationalistic and the separatist wings of Jewish society.

8:5 Capernaum is located on the Sea of Galilee, about two and a half miles west of the Jordan River outlet. In Jesus' day, it was a prosperous fishing village. Standing at a crucial junction on the Great Trunk Road linking Mesopotamia and Egypt, it was an international village, and much of Jesus' Galilean ministry was based there (e.g., 4:13; 8:14-17). • a Roman officer (Greek a centurion; similarly in 8:8, 13): A centurion, one of sixty commanders in a legion, commanded 100 Roman soldiers (see also Mark 15:39; Acts 10:1; 27:1).

8:6 young servant: Or child; also in 8:13.

8:7 I will come (cp. Acts 10:9-35; Gal 2:11-14): Some have rendered this as a question: Shall I [a Jew] come [into the house of a Gentile, risking defilement] and heal him?

8:8-10 The centurion recognized Jesus' authority. From his own experience, he knew that when he gave orders, they were quickly obeyed. He perceived that God had entrusted Jesus with authority to work miracles. The centurion's ¹⁰When Jesus heard this, he was amazed. Turning to those who were following him, he said, "I tell you the truth, I haven't seen faith like this in all Israel! ¹¹And I tell you this, that many Gentiles will come from all over the world—from east and west—and sit down with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob at the feast in the Kingdom of Heaven. ¹²But many Israelites—those for whom the Kingdom was prepared—will be thrown into outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth."

¹³Then Jesus said to the Roman officer, "Go back home. Because you believed, it has happened." And the young servant was healed that same hour.

Jesus Heals Our Diseases

Matt 8:14-17 // Mark 1:29-34 // Luke 4:38-41

¹⁴When Jesus arrived at Peter's house, Peter's mother-in-law was sick in bed with a high fever. ¹⁵But when Jesus touched her hand, the fever left her. Then she got up and prepared a meal for him.

¹⁶That evening many demon-possessed people were brought to Jesus. He cast out the evil spirits with a simple command, and he healed all the sick. ¹⁷This fulfilled the word of the Lord through the prophet Isaiah, who said,

"He took our sicknesses and removed our diseases."

The Cost of Following Jesus

Matt 8:18-22 // Luke 9:57-62

¹⁸When Jesus saw the crowd around him, he instructed his disciples to cross to the other side of the lake.

¹⁹Then one of the teachers of religious law said to him, "Teacher, I will follow you wherever you go."

²⁰But Jesus replied, "Foxes have dens to live in, and birds have nests, but the Son of Man has no place even to lay his head."

²¹Another of his disciples said, "Lord, first let me return home and bury my father."

²²But Jesus told him, "Follow me now. Let the spiritually dead bury their own dead."

Jesus Calms the Storm

Matt 8:23-27 // Mark 4:35-41 // Luke 8:22-25

²³Then Jesus got into the boat and started across the lake with his disciples. ²⁴Suddenly, a fierce storm struck the lake, with waves breaking into the boat. But Jesus was sleeping. ²⁵The disciples went and woke him up, shouting, "Lord, save us! We're going to drown!"

²⁶Jesus responded, "Why are you afraid? You have so little faith!" Then he got up and rebuked the wind and waves, and suddenly there was a great calm.

²⁷The disciples were amazed. "Who is this man?" they asked. "Even the winds and waves obey him!"

Jesus Exercises Authority over Demons

Matt 8:28-34 // Mark 5:1-20 // Luke 8:26-39

²⁸When Jesus arrived on the other side of the lake, in the region of the Gadarenes, two men who were possessed by demons met him. They came out of the tombs and were faith shows that the Kingdom of God includes Gentiles (8:11).

8:11-12 The influx of Gentiles fulfills OT promises (Isa 2:2-3). God's promise to Abraham included being a blessing to many nations (Gen 18:18). Christ fulfills this promise (Gal 3:8, 16).

8:16-17 Jesus is the authoritative Lord over every disease and demon.

8:16 with a simple command: Jesus' authority extended beyond touch; his words brought healing and life.

8:17 He took our sicknesses and removed our diseases (Isa 53:4): When he took the sins of humanity, the Messiah also took our sickness. Sickness exists because sin is in the world, and one of the effects of Jesus' taking our sin on the cross is physical healing (1 Pet 2:24). Jesus' healings and exorcisms demonstrated, in fulfillment of Scripture, that he is the Messiah (see 11:2-6; 12:28; 1 Cor 11:29-30; Jas 5:13-16).

8:18-22 Jesus confronted two would-be followers with what it truly means to follow him.

8:19 The teachers of religious law had a prestigious vocation of preserving, learning, and interpreting the Scriptures for the good of society. The way to God was thought to be through them (15:13-14; 23:13).

8:20 Following Jesus is not easy; it involves more than intellectual mastery. Following Jesus entails being willing to forgo life's normal comforts. • Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself.

8:21 Another of his disciples: This statement suggests that the teacher of 8:19 was a disciple as well. Lord suggests a stronger commitment to Jesus. • bury my father: This was one of the highest religious duties in Judaism, but Jesus requires total commitment to him.

8:22 Let the spiritually dead bury their own dead (literally Let the dead bury their own dead): Jesus' opponents would have misconstrued this instruction as blatant disregard for the fifth commandment to honor one's parents (Exod 20:12), but in essence it is a restatement of the first commandment (Exod 20:1-3). It was warranted by Jesus' messianic authority and the impact of the Kingdom upon normal human life, including family ties and commitments (see 10:34-39; 12:46-50; 19:29; Zech 13:3; Luke 14:26-27).

8:23-27 The episode at sea extends the theme of what true discipleship involves. The storm challenged the disciples to entrust their very lives to Jesus for protection and deliverance. Jesus even has authority over dangerous weather and the sea (see Job 38:8-11; Ps 29:1-11; 65:1-13; 89:9; 107:23-32).

8:24 a fierce storm struck the lake: Sudden squalls are common on the Sea of Galilee, which is among mountains.

8:27 Who is this man? Salvation requires a proper answer to this question and active faith in him. Jesus' disciples had still failed to understand.

8:28-34 This episode focuses on Jesus' authority as well as on the cost of following him; those who walk by faith will, like the Messiah, also experience opposition.

²⁹They began screaming at him, "Why are you interfering with us, Son of God? Have you come here to torture us before God's appointed time?"

³⁰There happened to be a large herd of pigs feeding in the distance. ³¹So the demons begged, "If you cast us out, send us into that herd of pigs."

³²"All right, go!" Jesus commanded them. So the demons came out of the men and entered the pigs, and the whole herd plunged down the steep hillside into the lake and drowned in the water.

³³The herdsmen fled to the nearby town, telling everyone what happened to the demon-possessed men. ³⁴Then the entire town came out to meet Jesus, but they begged him to go away and leave them alone.

Jesus Heals a Paralyzed Man

Matt 9:1-8 // Mark 2:1-12 // Luke 5:17-26

9 Jesus climbed into a boat and went back across the lake to his own town. ²Some people brought to him a paralyzed man on a mat. Seeing their faith, Jesus said to the paralyzed man, "Be encouraged, my child! Your sins are forgiven."

³But some of the teachers of religious law said to themselves, "That's blasphemy! Does he think he's God?"

⁴Jesus knew what they were thinking, so he asked them, "Why do you have such evil thoughts in your hearts? ⁵Is it easier to say

The Son of Man (8:18-22)

"Son of Man" was Jesus' favorite way to refer to himself. The phrase is just as odd in Greek as in English: It translates the Hebrew phrase ben 'adam, an idiom that means "human being" or "person" (see, e.g., Ezek 2:1-8). One reason Jesus preferred this name was because it was not an inflammatory title such as "Christ" or "Messiah." The term is used in three ways in the Gospels:

(1) The background to Jesus' use of the title is Dan 7:13-14, where an exalted messianic figure "like a son of man" (that is, having human form) comes with the clouds of heaven and is given great glory and power. Jesus understood himself as that one who would return to earth in the clouds of heaven (see Mark 8:38; 13:26; 14:62). Sometimes Jesus used "Son of Man" in this sense, to refer to his role as judge, deliverer, savior, and vindicator (10:23; 13:41; 16:27; 19:28; 24:27, 30, 37, 44; 25:31; 26:64).

(2) Often Jesus used "Son of Man" to describe himself as a suffering redeemer (12:40; 17:9, 12, 22; 20:18, 28; 26:2, 24, 45). This sense is rooted in Isa 52:13-53:12.

(3) At times, Jesus apparently used "Son of Man" to refer to himself as the representative of humans (8:20; 11:19; 12:8, 32; 13:37). The book of Ezekiel uses "son of man" in a similar sense (e.g., Ezek 2:1-8).

Jesus did not use "Son of Man" to distinguish his humanity from his deity ("Son of God"). By using this title, Jesus could define himself as Messiah on his own terms. He used "Son of Man" to describe his total identity and as a veiled suggestion that those who watched and heard him should pay attention to who he is.

8:28 Gadarenes: Other manuscripts read Gerasenes; still others read Gergesenes. Cp. Mark 5:1; Luke 8:26.

• possessed by demons . . . so violent: Demon-possession was often accompanied by violence, revulsion at the presence of the Son of God (8:29), inability to speak (9:32; 12:22), blindness (12:22), seizures (17:15), and self-destructive behavior (17:15). With Jesus' exorcisms, the power of the Kingdom broke into human history (12:28).

8:29 Those controlled by Satan immediately recognized Jesus' true identity as the Son of God (see Mark 1:24) and answered the question asked by Jesus' disciples when he had calmed the storm (8:27). Elsewhere, Jesus' true nature and identity are acknowledged by the Father (3:17; 17:5), Satan (4:3, 6), humans (14:33; 16:16; 27:54), and Christ himself (11:27; 24:36; 28:19). • God's appointed time is the final, eternal damnation of all who oppose God (see Jude 1:6; Rev 20:10).

8:31 The demons were no match for Jesus' authority; they desperately begged to avoid imminent doom.

8:32 Jesus' word had sufficient authority to expel demons. • drowned: Jesus had begun to defeat the enemy (12:28; Luke 10:17-20; Rom 16:20; Col 2:15).

8:34 The tragedy of the incident is that those who witnessed the Son of God's power to give salvation feared having their world upset, so they rejected him.

9:1-17 Controversy ensued among Jesus' opponents, the teachers of religious law and Pharisees (9:1-13), and among the disciples of John the Baptist (9:14-17).

9:1 His own town was Capernaum (Mark 2:1), where he apparently relocated from Nazareth after being rejected there (4:13; Luke 4:16-31).

9:3 Does he think he's God? God alone could forgive sins (Ps 103:3; Isa 43:25; Jer 50:20). The teachers of religious law failed to comprehend Jesus' mission as God's incarnate Son (3:17; 11:25-27). As God's Messiah (1:1; 11:2-6), he was saving mankind (8:17; 26:26-28).

9:4 knew: Some manuscripts read saw.

9:5 It is easier for Jesus to pronounce 'Your sins are forgiven,' or 'Stand up and walk'? 'So I will prove to you that the Son of Man has the authority on earth to forgive sins.' Then Jesus turned to the paralyzed man and said, "Stand up, pick up your mat, and go home!"

⁷And the man jumped up and went home! ⁸Fear swept through the crowd as they saw this happen. And they praised God for giving humans such authority.

Jesus Calls Notorious Sinners

Matt 9:9-13 // Mark 2:13-17 // Luke 5:27-32

⁹As Jesus was walking along, he saw a man named Matthew sitting at his tax collector's booth. "Follow me and be my disciple," Jesus said to him. So Matthew got up and followed him.

¹⁰Later, Matthew invited Jesus and his disciples to his home as dinner guests, along with many tax collectors and other disreputable sinners. ¹¹But when the Pharisees saw this, they asked his disciples, "Why does your teacher eat with such scum?"

¹²When Jesus heard this, he said, "Healthy people don't need a doctor—sick people do."

¹³Then he added, "Now go and learn the meaning of this Scripture: 'I want you to show mercy, not offer sacrifices.' For I have come to call not those who think they are righteous, but those who know they are sinners."

Matthew (Levi) (9:9-10)

Matt 10:3
Mark 2:14-15; 3:18
Luke 5:27-29; 6:15
Acts 1:13

Matthew was a tax collector for the Romans and became one of Jesus' twelve apostles. According to early tradition, he was the author of the Gospel of Matthew.

Though he is called Matthew in all the lists of the apostles (10:3; Mark 3:18; Luke 6:15; Acts 1:13), he is referred to as Levi—his other name—in two of the accounts of his calling (Mark 2:14; Luke 5:27-29; cp. Matt 9:9-10). His father was named Alphaeus (Mark 2:14), but there is no certainty that he is the brother of James the son of Alphaeus (the two are not linked in the lists of the apostles, as the other pairs of brothers are).

Jews who collected taxes for the Romans were generally considered despicable sinners by their fellow Jews. They profited from working for the occupying forces and engaged in legalized extortion. Thus it is significant that Jesus called a tax collector to become one of his followers. When Jesus was criticized by the Pharisees for accepting Matthew's invitation to his home for dinner, and for eating with tax collectors and other disreputable sinners, Jesus used the occasion to teach the importance of compassion (9:13). He emphasized that it was precisely for such sinners—not those who considered themselves righteous—that he had come (9:9-13; Mark 2:14-17; Luke 5:27-32). Matthew responded immediately to Jesus' call, leaving everything behind to follow Jesus (Luke 5:28). The implication is that he never turned back to tax collecting or his former way of life.

Matthew's Gospel, written for his fellow Jews, gives us a Jewish perspective on the life and teachings of Jesus, and it includes topics of special interest for those from a Jewish background (see Matthew Introduction). His Gospel was the most popular Gospel in the early church—which is probably why it occurs first in the canonical sequence.

forgiveness, since that might have no verifiable effects; it is harder to enable a paralytic to walk. The miracle, visible to all, corroborates Jesus' authority to forgive sins and forces all who witness it to decide about Jesus.

9:6 So I will prove: Jesus performed the miracle to reveal his authority and identity as God's Messiah (see 11:2-6; 12:28). • Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself as the redeemer and judge (Dan 7:13-14).

9:8 The mixture of fear and praise in the crowd's response corresponds to the awesome truth they perceived about Jesus. He is indeed the Son of God who has authority on earth to forgive sins (9:6).

9:9-13 Jesus, as Lord and Messiah, tore down the barriers that prevented righteous Jews from intermingling with those who were unclean or sinful.

9:9 Matthew was also called Levi (Mark 2:14). Matthew might have had two names, or he might have been given a new name by Jesus.

9:10 The Jewish people despised Jewish tax collectors (5:46-47; 18:15-20), who cooperated with Roman oppressors and were considered betrayers of the Israelite nation. Many also considered them unclean because of their frequent contact with Gentiles and because of the idolatrous images on Roman coins. Tax-collection was a private enterprise. In each district, Rome granted the right to collect taxes to the highest bidder (cp. Luke 19:1-10). Anything collected above the bid was profit for the collectors, who, driven by greed, often used extortion.

9:11 with such scum? Literally with tax collectors and sinners?

9:13 I want you to show mercy, not offer sacrifices (Hos 6:6 [Greek version]): God's desire is applied to the question of table fellowship with sinners; Jesus' mercy in eating with sinners contrasts with the Pharisees' separation from sinners (symbolized as sacrifices). • Jesus revealed the true spiritual condition of the Pharisees, who think they are righteous; they failed to recognize that they were in fact unrighteous and in need of the Messiah's salvation. See 7:1-5; 8:11-12; 19:30; 20:16; 21:43.

A Discussion about Fasting

Matt 9:14-17 // Mark 2:18-22 // Luke 5:33-39

¹⁴One day the disciples of John the Baptist came to Jesus and asked him, "Why don't your disciples fast like we do and the Pharisees do?"

¹⁵Jesus replied, "Do wedding guests mourn while celebrating with the groom? Of course not. But someday the groom will be taken away from them, and then they will fast.

¹⁶"Besides, who would patch old clothing with new cloth? For the new patch would shrink and rip away from the old cloth, leaving an even bigger tear than before.

¹⁷"And no one puts new wine into old wineskins. For the old skins would burst from the pressure, spilling the wine and ruining the skins. New wine is stored in new wineskins so that both are preserved."

Jesus Heals in Response to Faith

Matt 9:18-26 // Mark 5:21-43 // Luke 8:40-56

¹⁸As Jesus was saying this, the leader of a synagogue came and knelt before him. "My daughter has just died," he said, "but you can bring her back to life again if you just come and lay your hand on her."

¹⁹So Jesus and his disciples got up and went with him. ²⁰Just then a woman who had suffered for twelve years with constant bleeding came up behind him. She touched the fringe of his robe, ²¹for she thought, "If I can just touch his robe, I will be healed."

²²Jesus turned around, and when he saw her he said, "Daughter, be encouraged! Your faith has made you well." And the woman was healed at that moment.

²³When Jesus arrived at the official's home, he saw the noisy crowd and heard

Eating Together (9:10-13)

Eating meals together was a religious matter among the Pharisees and other observant Jews. Righteous Jews enacted many regulations to prevent themselves from being ceremonially defiled at meals. It was not done so much to exclude others as to show commitment to the law.

Most Jews lived by the food laws most of the time. Jesus did so, too. But he regularly, purposefully, and offensively ate with those who were ritually unclean or whose commitment to the law was inferior. Sharing a meal with another indicated both covenantal and social equality (cp. 26:26-29; 2 Kgs 25:27-30). The Pharisees, believing that separation from such sinners was a necessity for righteousness, were offended by Jesus' sharing meals with such people (9:10; 11:19; 21:28-32; Luke 7:41-50; 15:1-2; 19:1-10).

Jesus' sharing meals with sinful people enacted God's grace—he extended God's love and forgiveness, welcoming open participation in a new society. This practice developed into the early Christian communion meals (Acts 2:46; 1 Cor 11:17-34). As is clear from the Last Supper, the meals Jesus shared with his followers anticipated the feast in the Kingdom of Heaven (26:29; see 8:11-12). The apostle Paul extended Jesus' practice to enable fellowship between Jews and Gentiles in the church (see Gal 2:11-21). Jesus tore down the barriers separating us from one another and from God (Eph 2:14-18) and calls us into fellowship with all his people.

9:14 fast (some manuscripts read fast often): Fasting expressed personal humility and repentance (2 Sam 12:16-23; Dan 9:3). It called attention to the national need for repentance (Lev 16:29-31; Neh 9:1) and probably sought to hasten the arrival of the Messiah through purification. The fact that Jesus and his disciples did not fast (11:18-19) subtly proclaimed that the Messiah had already arrived (see also 6:16).

9:15 wedding guests . . . groom: John the Baptist had also described the Messiah and his disciples in this way (John 3:29), drawing on OT imagery to reveal Jesus' status (see Isa 54:5-6; Matt 25:1-13). • taken away: This is Jesus' first prediction of his violent death (see 16:21; 17:12, 22-23; 20:18-19; 26:2, 26-35; Isa 53:8). • then they will fast: Jesus may be referring to the disciples' sorrow immediately after Jesus' crucifixion, or to the disciples' lifestyle after Jesus' death and resurrection (see Acts 9:9; 13:2-3; 14:23; 27:9, 33).

9:16-17 These riddle-like parables contrast the new covenant that Jesus has established (26:26-29) with the old covenant, especially in relation to such rituals as fasting. Jesus consummates, but does not abolish, the law (5:17-20; see Gal 2:21; 5:4). Yet the new covenant requires new practices.

9:18-34 Jesus is the Messiah whose power knows no boundaries. He calls people to have faith in him.

9:18 lay your hand on her: The laying-on of hands is a visible symbol of prayer for God's power to flow into someone, often resulting in new life or ministries (19:13; Num 27:18-23; Deut 34:9). • The man believed that Jesus had the power to raise the dead (cp. 1 Kgs 17:8-24; 2 Kgs 4:18-37).

9:20 The woman's constant bleeding rendered her always ceremonially unclean and made whoever she touched unclean as well (Lev 15:25-30). But instead of rendering Jesus unclean, her touching him made her clean, a stunning reversal that illustrates Jesus' power to redeem and sanctify (see 14:36; Mark 3:10). • fringe: The tassels at the bottom of a tunic (23:5; Num 15:37-41) reminded Jews to live in accord with God's law.

9:22 Your faith has made you well (literally has saved you): Physical healing demonstrated her spiritual salvation (see 8:17).

9:23 noisy crowd . . . funeral music: Sorrow over the death of a family member was publicly expressed, with the funeral music. ²⁴"Get out!" he told them. "The girl isn't dead; she's only asleep." But the crowd laughed at him. ²⁵After the crowd was put outside, however, Jesus went in and took the girl by the hand, and she stood up! ²⁶The report of this miracle swept through the entire countryside.

Matt 9:27-31; cp. Matt 20:29-34 // Mark 10:46-52 //

Matt 9:32-34 // Matt 12:22-24 // Luke 11:14-15; cp. Mark 3:22

²⁷After Jesus left the girl's home, two blind men followed along behind him, shouting, "Son of David, have mercy on us!"

²⁸They went right into the house where he was staying, and Jesus asked them, "Do you believe I can make you see?"

"Yes, Lord," they told him, "we do."

²⁹Then he touched their eyes and said, "Because of your faith, it will happen." ³⁰Then their eyes were opened, and they could see! Jesus sternly warned them, "Don't tell anyone about this." ³¹But instead, they went out and spread his fame all over the region.

³²When they left, a demon-possessed man who couldn't speak was brought to Jesus. ³³So Jesus cast out the demon, and then the man began to speak. The crowds were amazed. "Nothing like this has ever happened in Israel!" they exclaimed.

³⁴But the Pharisees said, "He can cast out demons because he is empowered by the prince of demons."

Discourse: Jesus Extends His Ministry (9:35–11:1)

The Problem: The Need for Workers

Matt 9:37-38 // Luke 10:2

³⁵Jesus traveled through all the towns and villages of that area, teaching in the synagogues and announcing the Good News about the Kingdom. And he healed every kind of disease and illness. ³⁶When he saw the crowds, he had compassion on them because they were confused and helpless, like sheep without a shepherd. ³⁷He said to his disciples, "The harvest is great, but the workers are few. ³⁸So pray to the Lord who is in charge of the harvest; ask him to send more workers into his fields."

The Solution: Jesus Chooses the Twelve Apostles

Matt 10:1-4 // Mark 3:13-19 // Luke 6:12-16

10 Jesus called his twelve disciples together and gave them authority to cast out evil spirits and to heal every kind of disease and illness. ²Here are the names of the twelve apostles:

musical accompaniment and dirges by professional mourners. "Even the poorest in Israel should hire not less than two flutes and one wailing woman" (Mishnah Ketubbot 4:4).

9:24 Though she was physically dead, from Jesus' perspective the girl was just asleep—she would soon be raised back to life (see Isa 26:19; John 11:11-14, 25; 1 Thes 4:14).

9:27 Eye diseases were common in the ancient world. Blindness was often considered to be divine punishment (see Exod 4:11; Deut 28:28; 2 Kgs 6:18; John 9:2-3). The OT predicts that the Messiah's coming would bring restoration of sight for the blind (11:4-5; Isa 29:18-19; 35:5-6). • Son of David is a messianic title particularly associated with miraculous healings (see 1:1; 12:23; 15:22; 20:30-31; 2 Sam 7:12-16).

9:28 Jesus intended his question to elicit confessions of faith from the two men.

9:32-34 The Messiah's acts invoke faith, astonishment, and derisive rejection.

9:32 Enabling the deaf to hear and the mute to speak is a sign of the Kingdom of God (11:4-5; Isa 35:5-6).

9:35–11:1 Jesus here extends his ministry (shown in 4:23–9:34) to others within Israel through his disciples (10:5-6). Jesus' instructions to his disciples (10:5-42) focus on missionary activity and its consequent opposition and hardship.

9:35 This verse connects with the section begun at 4:23. Matthew has presented Jesus to his readers as the Messiah who teaches, preaches, heals, casts out demons, and calls for a decisive response of faith.

9:36 like sheep without a shepherd: Jesus lamented the Pharisees' pastoral negligence (see 12:11-12; 18:12). Their attacks against Jesus were a clear indication of their hard-hearted rejection of God. The crowds languished due to pastoral neglect and mistreatment (10:5-6; 15:12-14; 23:4; Zech 11:16).

9:37-38 Harvest refers to the multitudes (see also 13:24-30, 36-43; Mark 4:26-29; John 4:35-38; Rev 14:15-20).

• the Lord who is in charge of the harvest: All ministries are ultimately under God's call (see 23:8-10, 13), so Jesus urges his disciples to pray for God himself to call more workers.

10:1 Jesus called his twelve disciples as workers in the harvest (9:37-38). The choice of twelve is not accidental—it recalls the twelve tribes of Israel. Jesus was appointing new leaders for the new people of God under his reign as Messiah (16:18-19; 18:18; 19:28; 21:43). • gave them authority (9:6-8; 28:18): Jesus enabled the Twelve to perform ministries that the Jewish leaders could not accomplish (9:32-34; 10:5-8). The authority to cast out evil (literally unclean) spirits (8:28) and to heal are ascribed to Jesus (4:23; 8:1–9:35) in similar terms.

10:2-4 The four lists of the apostles (see also Mark 3:16-19; Luke 6:14-16; Acts 1:13) are all different, although the differences are minimal. The order within each list varies slightly, but only the names Thaddaeus (10:3; Mark 3:18) and Judas son of James (Luke 6:16; Acts 1:13) differ. They might be two names for the same man.

10:2 The apostles are ambassadors or messengers, authorized and sent by an authority to represent and accomplish prescribed tasks (see 10:1-8, 40; 28:16-20). The term is also used for Paul (Gal 1:1). • first, Simon (also called Peter): Peter had priority in time (4:18-22; 16:17-19) and position as the representative leader of the apostles (see 19:27; 26:33; Acts 2:14).

Matt 10:5-15 // Mark 6:6b-13 // Luke 9:1-6;

⁵Jesus sent out the twelve apostles with these instructions: "Don't go to the Gentiles or the Samaritans, ⁶but only to the people ofIsrael—God's lost sheep. ⁷Go and announce to them that the Kingdom of Heaven is near.⁸Heal the sick, raise the dead, cure thosewith leprosy, and cast out ⁹demons. Give as freely as you have received!⁹"Don't take any money in your money belts—no gold, silver, or even copper coins.¹⁰Don't carry a traveler's bag with a change of clothes and sandals or even a walking stick. Don't hesitate to accept hospitality, because those who work deserve to be fed.¹¹"Whenever you enter a city or village, search for a worthy person and stay in his home until you leave town. ¹²When you enter the home, give it your blessing. ¹³If it turns out to be a worthy home, let your blessing stand; if it is not, take back the blessing. ¹⁴If any household or town refuses to welcome you or listen to your message, shake its dust from your feet as you leave.

Jesus is frequently described as one who "had compassion." This expression is used of Jesus in complex situations where (1) distress is expressed (18:23-26; 20:29-33) and Jesus remedies the distress (18:27; 20:34), (2) Jesus shows deep emotion (14:14; 15:32; 18:27; 20:34), or (3) there is a contrast with those who are not compassionate (9:34-36; 18:27-30; 20:31-34). The phrase "had compassion" refers only to Jesus, except when used in parables where it refers either to God the Father or to Jesus (18:27; Luke 10:33; 15:20).

In the OT, the term "compassion" is used for God's covenant love for Israel. God withdrew this compassion to judge Israel's obstinate unfaithfulness (Isa 13:18; 27:11; 63:15; Jer 6:2-3; 13:14). God restored his compassion when Israel repented (Deut 13:18; 30:3; 1 Kgs 8:50; Prov 28:13; Isa 55:7). The OT often describes the messianic age as a time of God's compassion (Isa 14:1; 49:10, 13; 54:8, 10; 60:10; Jer 12:15; 33:26; 42:12; Ezek 39:25; Mic 7:19; Hab 3:2; Zech 1:16; 10:6). The resurgence of this term in the Gospels reflects this, as the messianic age has dawned and God's covenant love is once again active in Israel.

10:3 Matthew (the tax collector) (see 9:9) is also called Levi (Mark 2:14).

• Thaddaeus: Other manuscripts read Lebbaeus; still others read Lebbaeus who is called Thaddaeus.

10:4 the zealot: Greek the Cananean, an Aramaic term for Jewish nationalists. Zealots were militant Jews who thought violence and war were capable of accomplishing the will of God. As a Jewish nationalist, Simon was probably zealous for the law (Acts 22:3-5; Gal 1:14; Phil 3:6). Josephus blamed the Zealot party for the great war with Rome in AD 66–70. • Iscariot might refer to someone from Kerieth in southern Judea (Josh 15:25) or from Kerieth in Perea (Jer 48:24).

10:5 Don't go to the Gentiles: Jesus' mission was limited to Jews at this stage (15:24). Through the Jews, God would reach the Gentiles (Isa 2:2-4; 42:6-7; 49:6; 60:3). • Jews regarded Samaritans as impure Jews (Luke 17:18) because of their intermarriage with Gentiles during and after the Assyrian and Babylonian exiles (2 Kgs 17:24-41). Tension was provoked in 128 BC when the Jewish leader John Hyrcanus destroyed the Samaritan temple on Mount Gerizim (Josephus, Antiquities 13.9.1).

10:6 Being lost is the result of neglect by their shepherds (9:36; 15:24).

10:7-8 By doing these things in the name and authority of Jesus, the apostles demonstrated Jesus' status as Messiah (see 11:2-6).

10:7 is near: Or has come, or is coming soon.

10:8 Give as freely as you have received! While remuneration is not improper (1 Cor 9:3-19; Gal 6:6; 1 Tim 5:17), Jesus urged the apostles to avoid accusations of greed (see Acts 8:20; 20:33).

10:9-10 Jesus' disciples were to trust in God's provision (6:11, 25-34; 7:7-11), to avoid greed that would give others the opportunity to defame the Lord's name, and to encourage the newly formed communities to provide for their leaders' needs (see 1 Cor 9:3-19).

10:12 give it your blessing: Greetings were more significant than a simple hello. Often, a greeting would convey a blessing for those who received it (cp. Ruth 2:4).

10:13 A worthy home would embrace the message about Jesus and the Kingdom (10:37-38; 22:8). • The disciples' blessing was an offer of salvation; to take back the blessing was a sign of judgment as the offer was withdrawn.

10:14 shake its dust from your feet: This prophet-like gesture (see "Prophetic Sign Acts" at Ezek 4:1-17, p. 1319) is explained by the Israelite custom of expressing displeasure with ungodliness by shaking off Gentile dust whenever crossing the border into Israel. The gesture signifies the disciples' rejection of those who oppose God's work (see Acts 18:6). Pronouncing judgment on those who reject the message is part of proclaiming the Good News about the Kingdom (see 11:20-24; 13:10-15; 23:37-39; 24:1-36).

¹⁵I tell you the truth, the wicked cities of Sodom and Gomorrah will be better off than such a town on the judgment day.

¹⁶Look, I am sending you out as sheep among wolves. So be as shrewd as snakes and harmless as doves. ¹⁷But beware! For you will be handed over to the courts and will be flogged with whips in the synagogues. ¹⁸You will stand trial before governors and kings because you are my followers. But this will be your opportunity to tell the rulers and other unbelievers about me. ¹⁹When you are arrested, don't worry about how to respond or what to say. God will give you the right words at the right time. ²⁰For it is not you who will be speaking—it will be the Spirit of your Father speaking through you.

²¹"A brother will betray his brother to death, a father will betray his own child, and children will rebel against their parents and cause them to be killed. ²²And all nations will hate you because you are my followers. But everyone who endures to the end will be saved. ²³When you are persecuted in one town, flee to the next. I tell you the truth, the Son of Man will return before you have reached all the towns of Israel.

²⁴"Students are not greater than their teacher, and slaves are not greater than their master. ²⁵Students are to be like their teacher, and slaves are to be like their master. And since I, the master of the household, have been called the prince of demons, the members of my household will be called by even worse names!

Instruction Not to Fear Opposition

Matt 10:37-38 // Luke 14:25-27

²⁶"But don't be afraid of those who threaten you. For the time is coming when everything that is covered will be revealed, and all that is secret will be made known to all. ²⁷What I tell you now in the darkness, shout abroad when daybreak comes. What I whisper in your ear, shout from the housetops for all to hear!

²⁸"Don't be afraid of those who want to kill your body; they cannot touch your soul. Fear only God, who can destroy both soul and body in hell. ²⁹What is the price of two sparrows—one copper coin? But not a single sparrow can fall to the ground without your Father knowing it. ³⁰And the very hairs on your head are all numbered. ³¹So don't be afraid; you are more valuable to God than a whole flock of sparrows.

³²"Everyone who acknowledges me publicly here on earth, I will also acknowledge before my Father in heaven. ³³But everyone who denies me here on earth, I will also deny before my Father in heaven.

10:15 God destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah for their wickedness (Gen 18:16-19:29). Now, with a more complete revelation in Jesus Christ, a town that rejected the disciples' preaching would receive a more complete judgment. • such a town: An entire village or city is culpable when a significant majority rejects the message (see Acts 13:45-47, 50-51; 14:1-7). However, individuals who respond in faith are saved (e.g., Lot; see Gen 19:1-29; 2 Pet 2:6-9).

10:16 False leaders who prey upon people's spiritual vulnerability rather than exercise appropriate pastoral care are often called wolves (Ezek 22:27; Zeph 3:3; cp. Prov 28:15). • be as shrewd as snakes and harmless as doves: The proverb calls for being astute but not deceitful.

10:18 But this will be your opportunity to tell the rulers and other unbelievers about me: Or But this will be your testimony against the rulers and other unbelievers.

10:19-20 As God gave Moses a spokesman in Aaron (Exod 4:10-17), so God would give Jesus' disciples the right words at the right time through the Spirit (John 14:26; Acts 4:8).

10:21-22 Jews regularly associated family strife with the last times (see 24:9-10). Jesus experienced such conflicts as well (12:46-50). • Everyone who endures to the end refers to those who remain faithful to Jesus, to the point of death or until his return (10:23). • will be saved: Though some have taken this phrase to mean temporal deliverance from persecution (such as release from prison), the idea here is eternal salvation for those who remain faithful.

10:22 because you are my followers: Literally on account of my name.

10:23 Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself. • will return: Scholars are divided as to whether this refers to the second coming of Christ for his church or an earlier coming in judgment—namely, the destruction of Jerusalem in AD 70 (see 16:28). • before you have reached: Jesus meant either "before you have fled through all the towns" or "before you have evangelized all the towns." The focus on persecution in the context (see 10:17-39) favors the former, suggesting that the towns were like cities of refuge (Num 35:9-32). The emphasis is on how widespread the rejection of the message will be—i.e., "not until the whole nation has run you out of town."

10:24 Students: Or Disciples.

10:25 In Jesus' day, Satan was often called prince of demons. The Greek term is Beelzeboul (other manuscripts read Beezeboul), from the name of an OT pagan deity, Baal-zebul ("lord, the prince"). The Latin version reads Beelzebub, which is a transliteration of a Hebrew phrase ("lord of flies"), which was most likely a Jewish insult of Baal-zebul (see 2 Kgs 1:2).

10:28 Jesus' disciples are to fear only God by obeying him and testifying of him; in contrast to human authorities, God's authority and judgment are unlimited. • hell (Greek Gehenna): See note on 5:29.

10:29-31 Because God cares about every sparrow, and because Jesus' disciples are much more valuable, certainly the disciples need not fear—God will providentially care for them.

10:29 one copper coin: Greek one assarion (i.e., one "as," a Roman coin equal to 1/16 of a denarius).

10:32-33 God accepts the one who acknowledges Jesus publicly in the context of trial and persecution (10:16-25). These verses pertain to a person's pattern of life (see 7:13-27) and not to a single confession or a single denial. For example, Judas acknowledged Jesus in individual instances yet was damned

36 Your enemies will be right in your own household!

37 "If you love your father or mother more than you love me, you are not worthy of being mine; or if you love your son or daughter more than me, you are not worthy of being mine. 38 If you refuse to take up your cross and follow me, you are not worthy of being mine. 39 If you cling to your life, you will lose it; but if you give up your life for me, you will find it.

Conclusion

11 When Jesus had finished giving these instructions to his twelve disciples, he went out to teach and preach in towns throughout the region.

4. THE RESPONSES TO THE MESSIAH

(11:2–20:34)
Narrative: Rejected by Leaders, Accepted by Disciples (11:2–12:50)

Matt 11:2–19 // Luke 7:18–35

2 John the Baptist, who was in prison, heard about all the things the Messiah was doing. So he sent his disciples to ask Jesus, 3 "Are you the Messiah we've been expecting, or should we keep looking for someone else?"

4 Jesus told them, "Go back to John and tell him what you have heard and seen— 5 the blind see, the lame walk, those with leprosy are cured, the deaf hear, the dead are raised to life, and the Good News is being preached to the poor." 6 And he added, "God blesses those who do not fall away because of me."

7 As John's disciples were leaving, Jesus began talking about him to the crowds. "What kind of man did you go into the wilderness to see? Was he a weak reed, swayed by every breath of wind? 8 Or were you expecting to see a man dressed in expensive clothes? No, people with expensive clothes live in palaces. 9 Were you looking for a prophet? Yes, and he is more than a prophet. 10 John is the man to whom the Scriptures refer when they say,

"Look, I am sending my messenger ahead of you, and he will prepare your way before you."

(26:23–24), whereas Peter denied Jesus (see 26:69–75) yet was saved.

10:34–39 Allegiance to Jesus has priority over allegiance to family.

10:34 Jesus did bring peace (John 14:27), but not of a social and political kind. Instead, Jesus calls humans to make a decision about him, which brings a sword—i.e., division (see 8:21–22; 12:46–50; Luke 12:51).

10:35–36 The quotation is from Mic 7:6;

10:37–39 The cross was a Roman instrument of torture and execution (27:27–55). To take up your cross and follow Jesus involves loving him above all other things and being willing to follow him regardless of the physical or social consequences.

10:41 receive a prophet as one who speaks for God: Literally receive a prophet in the name of a prophet. • The same reward as a prophet (literally A prophet's reward) means either the same reward a prophet would receive or the benefit of the prophet's ministry.

• Righteous people are those who conform their behavior to God's law as taught by both John the Baptist (21:32) and Jesus (see 3:15), and therefore are approved by God (13:43, 49; 25:37–46).

10:42 The least of my followers probably refers to the low social standing of most of Jesus' followers (cp. 5:3; 18:1–5 and 6:5; 23:5–12).

11:2–20:34 This section highlights the two primary responses to Jesus: acceptance and rejection. The first section (11:2–12:50) features the rejection of Jesus by Jewish leaders while his disciples were learning to understand and accept him.

11:2–19 This section begins with John the Baptist's doubt, but it ends by exalting his faith and ministry (11:7–19). The people's rejection of John (11:16–19) foreshadows their later rejection of Jesus.

11:2 John was arrested (4:12) by Herod Antipas because he had denounced Herod's immoral relationship with Herodias, his half-brother's wife (14:1– 12). • the things the Messiah was doing: These actions demonstrated that he is the Messiah (8:1–9:34).

11:3 Are you the Messiah we've been expecting? Literally Are you the one who is coming? See Ps 118:26.

11:5 Jesus' miracles of compassion inaugurated the Kingdom of God (12:28; see Isa 29:18–19; 35:5–6; 61:1). Jesus expected John to understand that he was fulfilling OT expectations.

11:6 who do not fall away because of me (or who are not offended by me): The works listed in 11:5 were intended to drive John and his disciples to a decision regarding Jesus. Jesus was aware, however, that certain unexpected elements of his ministry would cause some to reject him.

11:7 a weak reed, swayed by every breath of wind: An unstable person. The implied answer to Jesus' rhetorical question is no.

11:10 The quotation is from Mal 3:1.

¹¹"I tell you the truth, of all who have ever lived, none is greater than John the Baptist. Yet even the least person in the Kingdom of Heaven is greater than he is! ¹²And from the time John the Baptist began preaching until now, the Kingdom of Heaven has been forcefully advancing, and violent people are attacking it. ¹³For before John came, all the prophets and the law of Moses looked forward to this present time. ¹⁴And if you are willing to accept what I say, he is Elijah, the one the prophets said would come. ¹⁵Anyone with ears to hear should listen and understand!

¹⁶"To what can I compare this generation? It is like children playing a game in the public square. They complain to their friends,

¹⁸For John didn't spend his time eating and drinking, and you say, 'He's possessed by a demon.' ¹⁹The Son of Man, on the other hand, feasts and drinks, and you say, 'He's a glutton and a drunkard, and a friend of tax collectors and other sinners!' But wisdom is shown to be right by its results."

Judgment for the Unbelievers

²⁰Then Jesus began to denounce the towns where he had done so many of his miracles, because they hadn't repented of their sins and turned to God. ²¹"What sorrow awaits you, Korazin and Bethsaida! For if the miracles I did in you had been done in wicked Tyre and Sidon, their people would have repented of their sins long ago, clothing themselves in burlap and throwing ashes on their heads to show their remorse. ²²I tell you, Tyre and Sidon will be better off on judgment day than you.

²³"And you people of Capernaum, will you be honored in heaven? No, you will go down to the place of the dead. For if the miracles I did for you had been done in wicked Sodom, it would still be here today. ²⁴I tell you, even Sodom will be better off on judgment day than you."

Jesus' Prayer of Thanksgiving

Matt 11:25-27 // Luke 10:21-22

²⁵At that time Jesus prayed this prayer: "O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, thank you for hiding these things from those who think themselves wise and clever, and for revealing them to the childlike. ²⁶Yes, Father, it pleased you to do it this way!

²⁷"My Father has entrusted everything to me. No one truly knows the Son except the Father, and no one truly knows the Father except the Son and those to whom the Son chooses to reveal him."

²⁸Then Jesus said, "Come to me, all of you who are weary and carry heavy burdens, 11:11 John the Baptist was the greatest person ever to have lived. Yet the least of Jesus' followers are greater than John because they live in the new covenant of salvation through Christ (see 4:17).

11:12 the Kingdom of Heaven has been forcefully advancing: Or the Kingdom of Heaven has suffered from violence. These alternatives reflect either a positive or negative nuance of the Greek verb. In Luke 16:16, a different verb ("preached") makes it a clearly positive statement. • violent people are attacking it: This phrase may also have a positive or negative sense. If negative, it might refer to those who imprisoned John (see 11:2; 14:1-12), and attacking might mean either that they were trying to attack the Kingdom but were unable to thwart God's sovereign plans, or that they were attacking it by persecuting its members. In Luke 16:16 this statement has the positive sense that they were "eager to get in" and were forcefully laying claim to the kingdom through radical trust and obedience.

11:14-15 Elijah, the one the prophets said would come: See Mal 4:5. John is the fulfillment of OT expectations of Elijah's return (17:10-13).

11:16-19 John's prophetic message is represented by funeral songs—he didn't drink wine and he often fasted (11:18; see 3:4). Jesus' message is seen in wedding songs and in feasts and drinks (see 9:9-17). In both cases, this generation responds to God's messenger with indifference and rejection.

11:18-19 Here Jesus describes the specific ways in which John and Jesus offended the present generation. John, who stayed in the wilderness and ate locusts and honey (3:1, 4), was accused of being possessed by a demon; while Jesus, who ate and drank freely, was accused of being a rebellious son (see Deut 21:18-21).

11:19 Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself.

11:20-24 The miracles Jesus performed confirmed him as Messiah (11:5-6) and demanded repentance (11:20). Rejecting the Messiah would result in terrible judgment because the evidence of Jesus' identity was clear.

11:21-24 As Jesus moved through the villages of Galilee—from Korazin to Bethsaida to Capernaum—he gave the people a greater revelation of himself, with a correspondingly more severe judgment when they refused to listen. The severity is indicated by comparison with the pagan cities of Tyre (Isa 23; Ezek 26:1–28:19), Sidon (Ezek 28:20-23), and Sodom (Gen 18:22–19:29).

11:23 the place of the dead: Greek Hades, which corresponds to the Hebrew term Sheol (see note on Ps 6:5).

11:25-30 This passage focuses on the remnant who, despite the present generation's overall rejection of the Messiah, willingly embrace him and follow his teachings.

11:25 those who think themselves wise and clever: The Pharisees and teachers of religious law thought their access to God was guaranteed through their knowledge and practice of the law. Jesus' disciples were more childlike (see 21:15-16).

11:27 Jesus was revealing his intimate relationship to the Father. Everything he said and did was rooted in this Father–Son unity (see John 10:14-15; 14:6-7; 15:23-24; 16:15; 17:25-26).

11:28 The heavy burdens were likely caused by the legal requirements of the teachers of religious law and Pharisees.

A Discussion about the Sabbath

Matt 12:1-8 // Mark 2:23-28 // Luke 6:1-5

12 At about that time Jesus was walking through some grainfields on the Sabbath. His disciples were hungry, so they began breaking off some heads of grain and eating them. ²But some Pharisees saw them do it and protested, "Look, your disciples are breaking the law by harvesting grain on the Sabbath."

³Jesus said to them, "Haven't you read in the Scriptures what David did when he and his companions were hungry? ⁴He went into the house of God, and he and his companions broke the law by eating the sacred loaves of bread that only the priests are allowed to eat. ⁵And haven't you read in the law of Moses that the priests on duty in the Temple may work on the Sabbath? ⁶I tell you, there is one here who is even greater than the Temple! ⁷But you would not have condemned my innocent disciples if you knew the meaning of this Scripture: 'I want you to show mercy, not offer sacrifices.' ⁸For the Son of Man is Lord, even over the Sabbath!"

Jesus Heals on the Sabbath

Matt 12:9-14 // Mark 3:1-6 // Luke 6:6-11

⁹Then Jesus went over to their synagogue, ¹⁰where he noticed a man with a deformed hand. The Pharisees asked Jesus, "Does the law permit a person to work by healing on the Sabbath?" (They were hoping he would say yes, so they could bring charges against him.)

¹¹And he answered, "If you had a sheep that fell into a well on the Sabbath, wouldn't you work to pull it out? Of course you would."

¹²And how much more valuable is a person than a sheep! Yes, the law permits a person to do good on the Sabbath."

¹³Then he said to the man, "Hold out your hand." So the man held out his hand, and it was restored, just like the other one! ¹⁴Then the Pharisees called a meeting to plot how to kill Jesus.

Jesus, God's Chosen Servant

¹⁵But Jesus knew what they were planning. So he left that area, and many people followed him. He healed all the sick among them, ¹⁶but he warned them not to reveal who he was. ¹⁷This fulfilled the prophecy of Isaiah concerning him:

¹⁸"Look at my Servant, whom I have chosen.

He is my Beloved, who pleases me.

I will put my Spirit upon him,

(see 23:4). • rest: Spiritual refreshment in either a present or a future sense (cp. 1:21; Heb 4:8-11).

11:29-30 A yoke, which forms a harness between two animals, is a metaphor for the demands of discipleship. In contrast to the "yoke" of the religious leaders, Jesus' yoke is easy and light, not because it is less demanding (see 7:13-14), but because the power of the Messiah (by the Holy Spirit) makes it possible (see Acts 15:10; 1 Jn 5:3). Jesus was most likely contrasting his yoke to the religious demands of Israel's spiritual leaders (23:4; Acts 15:10), which included 613 OT commands and their expansion through tradition. Jesus urged those who were suffering from the burdens of the Pharisees' stipulations to come to him (11:28) in order to find the salvation their hearts desired. It is a call to salvation involving a life of obedience to Jesus' new teachings. People are invited to enter a relationship with a humble and gentle teacher.

12:1-14 Matthew places Jesus' offer of rest (11:28-30) in close connection with a discussion of the Sabbath. Jesus' rest liberates people from human traditions concerning the Sabbath (cp. Heb 4:1-11). The Pharisees rejected

Jesus because of their commitment to tradition.

12:1-8 This exchange highlights the Pharisees' lack of compassion as they imposed a burdensome yoke (11:29-30).

12:1 The Sabbath, the seventh day of the week, was to be a day of complete rest according to OT laws (Gen 2:2-3; Exod 20:8-11). The Sabbath is fulfilled in Christ (cp. Heb 4:1-11).

12:3-7 The Pharisees did not understand that the Sabbath was designed to benefit people. Their view of the Sabbath placed onerous burdens on people.

12:3-4 Ritual laws were at times rightly suspended for particular people or circumstances (1 Sam 21:1-6).

12:5-6 Priests worked on the Sabbath (Lev 24:8-9; Num 28:9-10), and this was not offensive to Pharisees. If the priests' work for the Temple on the Sabbath is allowed, then certainly Jesus can do the same because he is greater than the Temple (see 4:23; 9:35; 11:2-6, 20-30).

12:7 I want you to show mercy, not offer sacrifices: Hos 6:6. The Pharisees' view of the Sabbath was unscriptural since it broke the deeper principle of mercy.

12:8 The Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself. Jesus is superior to David, the priests, and the Temple. He reigns even over the Sabbath.

12:9-14 This second Sabbath controversy castigates the Pharisees for elevating regulations over human needs (see 12:7, 11-12).

12:9 their synagogue: A disunion was developing between Jesus and Judaism (also 4:23).

12:10 Does the law permit: Rabbinic tradition permitted healing on the Sabbath only if life was in danger. Since life was not in jeopardy, the Pharisees thought healing was not permitted.

12:11-12 Their practice of rescuing animals but neglecting fellow humans was inconsistent.

12:15-21 This summary of Jesus' ministry clarifies Jesus' nature as the Messiah, the Servant of God who will bring salvation to the nations (see Isa 42:1-4).

12:18-21 These verses quote Isa 42:1-4 (Greek version for 42:4).

12:18 This quotation parallels Jesus' baptism (3:13-17). • Justice (or judgment) can have positive or negative implications; the context here favors a positive meaning (12:20; cp. 23:23).

and he will proclaim justice to the nations.

¹⁹He will not fight or shout or raise his voice in public.

²⁰He will not crush the weakest reed or put out a flickering candle.

Finally he will cause justice to be victorious.

²¹And his name will be the hope of all the world."

The Source of Jesus' Power

Matt 12:33-35 // Luke 6:43-45; cp. Matt 7:15-20

²²Then a demon-possessed man, who was blind and couldn't speak, was brought to Jesus. He healed the man so that he could both speak and see. ²³The crowd was amazed and asked, "Could it be that Jesus is the Son of David, the Messiah?"

²⁴But when the Pharisees heard about the miracle, they said, "No wonder he can cast out ^ademons. He gets his power from ^bSatan, the prince of ^ademons."

²⁵Jesus knew their thoughts and replied, "Any kingdom divided by civil war is doomed. A town or family splintered by feuding will fall apart. ²⁶And if Satan is casting out Satan, he is divided and fighting against himself. His own kingdom will not survive. ²⁷And if I am empowered by 'Satan, what about your own exorcists? They cast out demons, too, so they will condemn you for what you have said. ²⁸But if I am casting out demons by the Spirit of God, then the Kingdom of God has arrived among you. ²⁹For who is powerful enough to enter the house of a strong man and plunder his goods? Only someone even stronger—someone who could tie him up and then plunder his house.

³⁰"Anyone who isn't with me opposes me, and anyone who isn't working with me is actually working against me.

³¹"So I tell you, every sin and blasphemy can be forgiven—except blasphemy against the Holy Spirit, which will never be forgiven.

³²Anyone who speaks against the Son of Man can be forgiven, but anyone who speaks against the Holy Spirit will never be forgiven, either in this world or in the world to come.

12:20 Instead of increasing people's spiritual burden, Jesus offers compassionate forgiveness and sustenance (see 11:28-30; 12:1-14).

12:22-45 The Messiah was rejected by the Pharisees, the teachers of religious law, and his own generation.

12:23 Amazement was a common response to Jesus' miracles (Mark 2:12; 6:51; Luke 2:47; 8:56; 24:22). • Could it be: The question expected a negative answer: Jesus did not fit their expectations for the Messiah, but his miracles did prompt the question.

12:24 Satan: Greek Beelzeboul; also in 12:27. Other manuscripts read Beezeboul; Latin version reads Beelzebub. See note on 10:25.

12:26 Jesus argued, in essence, "If I cast out demons under the influence of Satan, then Satan is dividing his camp, which obviously would be a foolish thing for Satan to do."

12:27 what about your own exorcists (literally your sons): Jesus forced them to think consistently. If demons are cast out under Satan's influence, then their disciples were equally guilty (see Acts 19:13-16).

12:28 The Pharisees were being confronted with and were rejecting the Kingdom of God itself (see Luke 17:20-21; 1 Jn 3:8). Jesus' miracles brought the power of the Kingdom into the present reality; its ultimate consummation awaits Christ's second coming.

12:29 This parable forced the Pharisees to answer a simple question: Can anyone cast out demons without first binding Satan's powers and thus opposing him (see Isa 49:24-26; 53:12)? • tie him up: Jesus overcame Satan first at his temptation (4:1-11), then throughout his ministry (see Luke 10:17-20), and ultimately on the Cross (see Col 2:14-15).

12:31 In the face of the Pharisees' accusations of Satanic influence, Jesus had just argued that he, the Messiah, cast out demons through the power of the Holy Spirit. In this context, blasphemy against the Holy Spirit can only mean attributing the ministry and exorcisms of Jesus to Satan's power.

12:32 One may stumble over Jesus' mysterious revelation of himself as Son of Man and be forgiven, but one cannot be forgiven for attributing the work of the Spirit to Satan. The present-day analogy is the outright rejection of the conviction of the Holy Spirit concerning Christ—that is, the ultimate rejection of the Good News by an unbeliever (cp. Heb 6:4-6; 1 Jn 5:16-21).

12:33-37 Jesus got to the heart of the matter: The Pharisees did not accept him or the divine origin of his ministry because they were wicked (see 7:15-27).

12:36-37 The idle word, in this context, was the accusation that Jesus had demonic inspiration. • What one says will acquit or condemn: one's words reflect the true condition of the heart.

12:38 a miraculous sign to prove: A popular expectation of the Messiah, ⁴¹"The people of Nineveh will stand up against this generation on judgment day and condemn it, for they repented of their sins at the preaching of Jonah. Now someone greater than Jonah is here—but you refuse to repent. ⁴²The queen of Sheba will also stand up against this generation on judgment day and condemn it, for she came from a distant land to hear the wisdom of Solomon. Now someone greater than Solomon is here—but you refuse to listen.

⁴⁶As Jesus was speaking to the crowd, his mother and brothers stood outside, asking to speak to him. ⁴⁷Someone told Jesus, "Your mother and your brothers are standing outside, and they want to speak to you."

⁴⁸Jesus asked, "Who is my mother? Who are my brothers?" ⁴⁹Then he pointed to his disciples and said, "Look, these are my mother and brothers. ⁵⁰Anyone who does the will of my Father in heaven is my brother and sister and mother!"

Discourse: Jesus Teaches through Parables (13:1-52)

Parable of the Farmer Scattering Seed

Matt 13:1-13 // Mark 4:1-12, 25 // Luke 8:4-10, 18

Matt 13:16-17 // Luke 10:23-24

Matt 13:18-23 // Mark 4:13-20 // Luke 8:11-15

13 Later that same day Jesus left the house and sat beside the lake. ²A large crowd soon gathered around him, so he got into a boat. Then he sat there and taught as the people stood on the shore. ³He told many stories in the form of "parables, such as this one:

"Listen! A farmer went out to plant some seeds. ⁴As he scattered them across his field, some seeds fell on a footpath, and the birds came and ate them. ⁵Other seeds fell on shallow soil with underlying rock. The seeds sprouted quickly because the soil was shallow. ⁶But the plants soon wilted under the hot sun, and since they didn't have deep roots, they died. ⁷Other seeds fell among thorns that grew up and choked out the tender plants. ⁸Still other seeds fell on fertile soil, and they produced a crop that was thirty, sixty, and even a hundred times as much as had been planted! ⁹Anyone with ears to hear should listen and understand."

probably fueled by biblical accounts about Moses (Exod 4:1-9; see also Isa 7:11, 14; 38:7-8), was that the Messiah would display spectacular miracles on command (see 16:1-4; Luke 23:8; John 2:18; 4:48; 6:30; 7:31; 9:16; 11:47; 1 Cor 1:22).

12:39-40 To demand a sign demonstrates a lack of faith. • The sign of the prophet Jonah consisted of Jonah's "resurrection" from the large fish after three days and three nights as well as his preaching (12:41; Luke 11:32); it was analogous to Jesus' burial and resurrection and his preaching. Jesus was drawing a parallel between Jonah's experience and what he himself would experience. He was not predicting an exact chronology of his death and resurrection. • Heart of the earth is a euphemism for the grave.

12:41-42 someone greater: Jesus is greater than the Temple (12:6), a prophet (Jonah), and a king (Solomon); therefore, rejection of him entails greater judgment on this "evil, adulterous generation" (12:39).

12:42 The queen of Sheba: Literally The queen of the south. See 1 Kgs 10:1-13.

12:43-45 The Messiah came in victory over demonic powers, but instead of repenting, the nation as a whole rejected the Messiah. Just as an exorcised demon will return if the house is not properly prepared against it, so judgment would come to this evil generation for rejecting the Messiah.

12:43 evil: Literally unclean. • Demons were thought to prefer the arid desert (see Rev 18:2; cp. Isa 35:21; 34:14).

12:47 Some manuscripts do not include v 47. Cp. Mark 3:32; Luke 8:20.

12:48-50 Those who are true members in Jesus' family do the will of the Father, as expressed in the commands of Jesus (see 7:21). Obedience does not earn entrance into this family, but one cannot be considered a member if he or she is not obedient to

13:1-53 In the third major discourse recorded by Matthew (see note on 5:1-7:29), Jesus here recognized the separation of his followers from others (13:14, 16) and began to reveal the secrets of the Kingdom privately to them through parables.

13:3-9 This parable (interpreted in 13:18-23) addresses the mostly negative responses of the Jewish nation to Jesus and his message. • Parables (Greek parabole) are stories that usually express an analogy between a common aspect of life and a spiritual truth. To understand a parable, it is necessary to locate the central analogy and understand it in its historical context and in the context of the Gospel text; then the central message can be understood. Speculative allegorical meanings that were not intended should not be found in every element of a parable.

¹⁰His disciples came and asked him, "Why do you use parables when you talk to the people?"

¹¹He replied, "You are permitted to understand the secrets of the Kingdom of Heaven, but others are not. ¹²To those who listen to my teaching, more understanding will be given, and they will have an abundance of knowledge. But for those who are not listening, even what little understanding they have will be taken away from them. ¹³That is why I use these parables,

For they look, but they don't really see.

They hear, but they don't really listen or understand.

¹⁴This fulfills the prophecy of Isaiah that says,

'When you hear what I say,
you will not understand.

When you see what I do,
you will not comprehend.

¹⁵For the hearts of these people are hardened, and their ears cannot hear, and they have closed their eyes—so their eyes cannot see, and their ears cannot hear, and their hearts cannot understand, and they cannot turn to me and let me heal them.'

¹⁶"But blessed are your eyes, because they see; and your ears, because they hear. ¹⁷I tell you the truth, many prophets and righteous people longed to see what you see, but they didn't see it. And they longed to hear what you hear, but they didn't hear it.

¹⁸"Now listen to the explanation of the parable about the farmer planting seeds: ¹⁹The seed that fell on the footpath represents those who hear the message about the Kingdom and don't understand it. Then the evil one comes and snatches away the seed that was planted in their hearts. ²⁰The seed on the rocky soil represents those who hear the message and immediately receive it with joy. ²¹But since they don't have deep roots, they don't last long. They fall away as soon as they have problems or are persecuted for believing God's word. ²²The seed that fell among the thorns represents those who hear God's word, but all too quickly the message is crowded out by the worries of this life and the lure of wealth, so no fruit is produced. ²³The seed that fell on good soil represents those who truly hear and understand God's word and produce a harvest of thirty, sixty, or even a hundred times as much as had been planted!"

Parable of the Wheat and Weeds

²⁴Here is another story Jesus told: "The Kingdom of Heaven is like a farmer who planted good seed in his field. ²⁵But that night as the workers slept, his enemy came and planted weeds among the wheat, then slipped away. ²⁶When the crop began to grow and produce grain, the weeds also grew.

²⁷"The farmer's workers went to him and said, 'Sir, the field where you planted that 13:10 From this point on, Jesus rarely taught the general public. Instead, he focused on teaching those who had committed themselves to him (13:1–20:34), though he would once again confront Israel (21:1–23:39).

• The people were the unbelieving opponents mentioned again in 13:11 ("others") and 13:12 ("those who are not listening").

13:11–15 Jesus' answer to the disciples' question (13:10) was essentially that the people's stubborn unbelief and rejection of Jesus had brought God's condemnation.

13:11 You are permitted to understand: God had enabled the disciples to comprehend Jesus' significance and to respond to his message of the Kingdom in faith and obedience (see 13:19, 23). • the secrets (literally the mysteries) of the Kingdom of Heaven: Namely, that salvation is available to them in Jesus as the fulfillment of OT promises.

13:13 Jesus told parables, and those who believed understood while those who had rejected Jesus found that his parables intensified their unbelief.

• they don't really see . . . listen or understand: They lacked the faith that perceives the truth (13:19, 23) and acts upon it (Mark 8:18; John 12:40; see also Jer 5:21).

13:14–15 The quotation is from Isa 6:9–10 (Greek version). Like that of Isaiah, Jesus' message has a dual effect: It judges people for unbelief and disobedience, and it creates a remnant of faithful ones who accomplish the Lord's will (21:43).

13:16–17 Jesus brought into reality what the prophets and OT saints desired to see and hear, that is, the fulfillment of OT promises (see Isa 52:15; John 8:56; 1 Pet 1:10).

13:19 don't understand it: Responding to the message of the Kingdom is directly related to discerning its significance.

13:20–21 don't have deep roots . . . don't last long: The problem is a lack of persevering faith and obedience (see 7:13–27; 10:22), particularly when persecution arises.

13:22 Jesus spoke of competing demands in life, (see also 8:18–22). The worries of this life can become so great that they divert one from the path of faithful obedience (see 6:19–34). The lure of wealth, particularly in its ability to deceive, appears often in Matthew (e.g., 4:8–10; 6:24; 13:44–45). God does not desire that his people have wealth as much as that they have faith, obey him, and willingly help those in need (e.g., 19:21; 25:31–46).

13:23 produce a harvest: Probably a general reference to faithful obedience to Jesus' commands (e.g., 5:1–7:27; 28:20).

13:24–30 This story is explained in 13:36–43.

13:25 Weeds (or tares, bearded darnel) are almost indistinguishable from wheat and so were left until growth revealed their true nature. Malevolent contamination of crops in this manner was punishable by law.

²⁹"'No,' he replied, 'you'll uproot the wheat if you do. ³⁰Let both grow together until the harvest. Then I will tell the harvesters to sort out the weeds, tie them into bundles, and burn them, and to put the wheat in the barn.'"

Parable of the Mustard Seed

Matt 13:31-32 // Mark 4:30-32 // Luke 13:18-19

³¹Here is another illustration Jesus used: "The Kingdom of Heaven is like a mustard seed planted in a field. ³²It is the smallest of all seeds, but it becomes the largest of garden plants; it grows into a tree, and birds come and make nests in its branches."

Matt 13:33 // Luke 13:20-21

³³Jesus also used this illustration: "The Kingdom of Heaven is like the yeast a woman used in making bread. Even though she put only a little yeast in three measures of flour, it permeated every part of the dough."

Parables Fulfill Prophecy

Matt 13:34-35; cp. Mark 4:33-34

³⁴Jesus always used stories and illustrations like these when speaking to the crowds. In fact, he never spoke to them without using such parables. ³⁵This fulfilled what God had spoken through the prophet:

"I will speak to you in parables.

I will explain things hidden since the creation of the world."

Parable of the Wheat and Weeds Explained

³⁶Then, leaving the crowds outside, Jesus went into the house. His disciples said, "Please explain to us the story of the weeds in the field."

Jesus and Satan (13:19)

Jesus was opposed by a personal agent of sin and evil (4:1-11). In Matthew, he is called "Satan" (meaning Adversary; 4:10; 16:23), the "devil" (4:1-11; 13:39), the "tempter" (see note on 4:3), the "prince of demons" (9:34), "Beelzeboul" (see note on 12:24), the "evil one" (6:13; 13:19), and "the enemy" (13:39). See also "Satan, the Adversary" at Job 1:6-2:7, p. 857.

Jesus' mission of announcing and bringing in the Kingdom of God inevitably led to conflict with Satan's forces, including exorcisms (see 8:16-17, 28-34; 9:32-34; 10:1, 7-8; 12:28). Matthew records that Satan has power over kingdoms (4:8-9; 12:26) and that he has angels at his command (see note on 25:41). Satan's primary tool is temptation, and his goal is to generate disobedience to God (4:1-11; 6:13; 16:23). Since Christ is the agent of God for the salvation of human beings, Satan attacked Christ first (4:1-11). But Christ has defeated him and will eventually strip Satan of all his powers (25:41, 46).

13:28-30 Just as Jesus rebuked the sons of Zebedee for wanting to destroy unbelieving villages (Luke 9:54-55), he prohibited his followers from retaliating against enemies. Judgment is God's work (see 7:1-5). Jesus urges his followers to wait patiently for God's righteous judgment (the harvest; see Luke 13:6-9).

13:31-33 Jesus used surprising, evocative imagery in these parables, either to emphasize the inevitable growth of the Kingdom through proclamation of the gospel or, more probably, to emphasize the contrast between insignificant beginnings and glorious consummation, and to exhort the disciples to patience. (see also 16:24-17:13).

13:33 Normally yeast refers to the influence of evil (e.g., 16:6; 1 Cor 5:6; Gal 5:9); here, however, it is positive, speaking of the all-pervasive influence of the Kingdom.

13:34-35 Even Jesus' manner of teaching fulfilled OT predictions. Psalm 78:2-3 speaks of passing down the history of God's revelation to children of the next generation. Jesus' revelation is the climax of that history (13:10-17; 1 Cor 2:7).

13:35 This verse quotes Ps 78:2. • Some manuscripts do not include of the world.

13:36-43 These verses are the interpretation of the parable told in 13:24-30. The people of the Kingdom (wheat) coexist with nonmembers (weeds) in the world (field) until the end of history. The mystery of the Kingdom is that it is present in the world without weeding out the wicked in judgment; Jesus' disciples must learn patience (see notes on 13:28-30, 31-33).

13:36 They went into the house (see 13:1). Jesus taught in parables publicly, but the interpretations were reserved for his disciples in private. • Please explain: Though the disciples were privileged to know the mysteries of the Kingdom (13:11-17), they did not understand the parables until Jesus explained them.

13:37 Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself.

13:38 The field is the world: The Kingdom includes all nations (28:16-20). • The people of the Kingdom are those who follow Jesus (13:11-17, 23; 21:43).

13:39 the world: Or the age; also in 13:40, 49.

⁴⁰Just as the weeds are sorted out and burned in the fire, so it will be at the end of the world. ⁴¹The Son of Man will send his angels, and they will remove from his Kingdom everything that causes sin and all who do evil. ⁴²And the angels will throw them into the fiery furnace, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth. ⁴³Then the righteous will shine like the sun in their Father's Kingdom. Anyone with ears to hear should listen and understand!

Parable of the Hidden Treasure

⁴⁴"The Kingdom of Heaven is like a treasure that a man discovered hidden in a field. In his excitement, he hid it again and sold everything he owned to get enough money to buy the field.

Parable of the Pearl

⁴⁵"Again, the Kingdom of Heaven is like a merchant on the lookout for choice pearls. ⁴⁶When he discovered a pearl of great value, he sold everything he owned and bought it!

Parable of the Fishing Net

⁴⁷"Again, the Kingdom of Heaven is like a fishing net that was thrown into the water and caught fish of every kind. ⁴⁸When the net was full, they dragged it up onto the shore, sat down, and sorted the good fish into crates, but threw the bad ones away. ⁴⁹That is the way it will be at the end of the world. The angels will come and separate the wicked people from the righteous, ⁵⁰throwing the wicked into the fiery furnace, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth. ⁵¹Do you understand all these things?"

"Yes," they said, "we do."

Teachers of Religious Law in the Kingdom

⁵²Then he added, "Every teacher of religious law who becomes a disciple in the Kingdom of Heaven is like a homeowner who brings from his storeroom new gems of truth as well as old."

Narrative: Jesus Leads the Disciples to Confession (13:53–16:20)

Jesus Rejected at Nazareth

Matt 13:53-58 // Mark 6:1-6 // Luke 4:16-24

⁵³When Jesus had finished telling these stories and illustrations, he left that part of the country. ⁵⁴He returned to Nazareth, his hometown. When he taught there in the synagogue, everyone was amazed and said, "Where does he get this wisdom and the power to do miracles?" ⁵⁵Then they scoffed, "He's just the carpenter's son, and we know Mary, his mother, and his brothers—James, Joseph, Simon, and Judas. ⁵⁶All his sisters live right here among us. Where did he learn all these things?" ⁵⁷And they were deeply offended and refused to believe in him.

Then Jesus told them, "A prophet is honored everywhere except in his own hometown and among his own family." ⁵⁸And so he did only a few miracles there because of their unbelief.

Herod and the Death of John the Baptist

Matt 14:3-12 // Mark 6:17-29; cp. Luke 3:19-20

14 When Herod Antipas, the ruler of Galilee, heard about Jesus, ²he said to his advisers, "This must be John the Baptist raised from the dead! That is why he can do such miracles."

13:40-42 The harvest of judgment, which began with the first coming of the Son of Man (3:12), will be completed when he returns (Rev 14:14-16).

13:41 his Kingdom: Not until the "end of the world" (13:40) will the rule of the Son of Man be visible over all things.

13:43 The righteous do the will of God as revealed by Jesus, in contrast to those "who do evil" (13:41).

13:44-46 Another mystery of the Kingdom (13:11) is that its value exceeds all other treasures, and so everything should be forfeited to acquire it (see 19:21, 29; Phil 3:7).

13:44 treasure . . . hidden in a field: Treasures were buried for protection against thieves and military enemies (25:25). • In his excitement: Those who discover the Kingdom find greater joy in it than can be found in any temporal pleasure (see 1 Pet 1:8).

13:47-50 This parable refers to God's judgment at the last day (25:31-46), which will eternally separate the wicked from the righteous. This note of warning reinforces the urgency of the previous two calls to decision.

13:49 The wicked are those who do not do the will of God as revealed in Jesus, and the righteous are those who do (see 5:21-48; 6:1, 33; 7:13-27; 12:33-37; 16:27).

13:51 The ability to understand the mysteries of the Kingdom is a gift from God (13:10-17, 23).

13:52 A teacher of religious law who becomes a disciple in the Kingdom has had his allegiance radically altered toward Jesus as the way of salvation. • new gems of truth as well as old: The sequence reflects the preeminence of the new covenant inaugurated in Jesus (5:17-20; 19:16-22) over the old covenant administered under Abraham and Moses.

13:54-58 That Jesus was rejected at home is part of the ongoing theme of the Messiah's rejection by his own people (see 12:1-50; 15:1-20; 16:1-12).

13:55-56 carpenter's son: A carpenter (literally craftsman) worked with his hands, whether in wood, metal, or stone. • Joseph: Other manuscripts read Joses; still others read John.

13:57 They were deeply offended. Dwelling on Jesus' all-too-common heritage (John 6:42), they could not see his uncommon significance.

13:58 Faith is required both to understand Jesus' message (13:10-17) and to experience his miracles.

14:1 Herod Antipas, the ruler of Galilee: Greek Herod the tetrarch. Herod Antipas was a son of King Herod the Great and was ruler over Galilee (see genealogy, p. 1579). Antipas's official title was tetrarch (ruler of a fourth ³For Herod had arrested and imprisoned John as a favor to his wife Herodias (the former wife of Herod's brother Philip). ⁴John had been telling Herod, "It is against God's law for you to marry her." ⁵Herod wanted to kill John, but he was afraid of a riot, because all the people believed John was a prophet.

⁶But at a birthday party for Herod, Herodias's daughter performed a dance that greatly pleased him, ⁷so he promised with a vow to give her anything she wanted. ⁸At her mother's urging, the girl said, "I want the head of John the Baptist on a tray!" ⁹Then the king regretted what he had said; but because of the vow he had made in front of his guests, he issued the necessary orders. ¹⁰So John was beheaded in the prison, ¹¹and his head was brought on a tray and given to the girl, who took it to her mother. ¹²Later, John's disciples came for his body and buried it. Then they went and told Jesus what had happened.

Jesus Feeds Five Thousand

Matt 14:13-21 // Mark 6:32-44 // Luke 9:10b-17 //

John 6:1-15

¹³As soon as Jesus heard the news, he left in a boat to a remote area to be alone. But the crowds heard where he was headed and followed on foot from many towns. ¹⁴Jesus saw the huge crowd as he stepped from the boat, and he had compassion on them and healed their sick.

¹⁵That evening the disciples came to him and said, "This is a remote place, and it's already getting late. Send the crowds away so they can go to the villages and buy food for themselves."

¹⁶But Jesus said, "That isn't necessary—you feed them."

¹⁷"But we have only five loaves of bread and two fish!" they answered.

¹⁸"Bring them here," he said. ¹⁹Then he told the people to sit down on the grass. Jesus took the five loaves and two fish, looked up toward heaven, and blessed them. Then, breaking the loaves into pieces, he gave the bread to the disciples, who distributed it to the people. ²⁰They all ate as much as they wanted, and afterward, the disciples picked up twelve baskets of leftovers. ²¹About 5,000 men were fed that day, in addition to all the women and children!

²²Immediately after this, Jesus insisted that his disciples get back into the boat and cross to the other side of the lake, while he sent the people home. ²³After sending them home, he went up into the hills by himself to pray. Night fell while he was there alone.

²⁴Meanwhile, the disciples were in trouble far away from land, for a strong wind had risen, and they were fighting heavy waves. ²⁵About three o'clock in the morning Jesus came toward them, walking on the water. ²⁶When the disciples saw him walking on the water, they were terrified. In their fear, they cried out, "It's a ghost!"

²⁷But Jesus spoke to them at once. "Don't be afraid," he said. "Take courage. I am here!"

²⁸Then Peter called to him, "Lord, if it's really you, tell me to come to you, walking on the water."

part of a kingdom) of Galilee and Perea (4 BC—AD 39; see 2:19-22). Jesus referred to Antipas as "that fox" (Luke 13:32), and John the Baptist justly condemned him for adultery (14:3-12; Luke 3:19-20). See "Herod Antipas" at Mark 6:14-29, p. 1659.

14:2 There was a rumor that John had been resurrected (see 16:14).

14:3-12 The popular appeal of John's message posed a political threat (see Josephus, Antiquities 18.5.2). Years after John's execution, the Jews viewed Herod's military defeat at the hands of Aretas (AD 36) as a just recompense for putting an innocent man to death.

14:4 John had continually warned Herod of his sin (see Lev 18:6; 20:21).

14:6 Herodias's daughter was probably Salome, a daughter from Herodias's previous marriage to Philip. Sexually provocative dances such as this were a regular occurrence for depraved royalty.

14:7 Such an extravagant, foolish oath was consistent with Herod Antipas's character (see "Herod Antipas" at Mark 6:14-29, p. 1659).

14:8 The practice of bringing a head . . . on a tray was not unknown in the ancient world (see Josephus, Antiquities 13.4.8; 14.15.13; 18.5.1; 20.5.1).

14:13-21 Jesus' actions consistently fulfilled OT promises regarding the Kingdom and the Messiah (11:5-6; 12:28). Here Jesus evoked the memory of God's provision of manna for the Israelites (Exod 16; see John 6:32), demonstrating that he is the promised end-time prophet (see Deut 18:15-16).

14:21 5,000 men . . . in addition to all the women and children: The count was of families, denoted by heads of households, rather than individuals.

14:22-33 Jesus' power over nature presented the disciples with the opportunity to trust in him as the Son of God (14:33; see also 8:23-27; Ps 8:6; Heb 2:8-9).

14:22 After the miraculous feeding, the crowds sought to make Jesus king (John 6:15), prompting his withdrawal because it was not the appropriate time.

14:23 Jesus often sought solitude in order to pray, particularly in conjunction with important events in his life and ministry (26:36-46; Mark 1:35; Luke 5:16; 6:12; 9:28).

14:25 About three o'clock in the morning: Literally In the fourth watch of the night. This was approximately 3:00–6:00 AM by Roman reckoning.

• The fact that Jesus came . . . walking on the water demonstrates God's sovereign reign over the stormy waters (see Job 9:8; Ps 77:19; Isa 43:16).

14:27 I am here: Or The 'I AM' is here; literally I am. See Exod 3:14. This declaration is associated with the appearance of God himself (see also John 8:24; 18:5-6).

²⁹"Yes, come," Jesus said.

So Peter went over the side of the boat and walked on the water toward Jesus.³⁰ But when he saw the strong wind and the waves, he was terrified and began to sink. "Save me, Lord!" he shouted.

³¹Jesus immediately reached out and grabbed him. "You have so little faith," Jesus said. "Why did you doubt me?"

³²When they climbed back into the boat, the wind stopped. ³³Then the disciples worshiped him. "You really are the Son of God!" they exclaimed.

Matt 14:34-36 // Mark 6:53-56; cp. John 6:22-25

³⁴After they had crossed the lake, they landed at Gennesaret. ³⁵When the people recognized Jesus, the news of his arrival spread quickly throughout the whole area, and soon people were bringing all their sick to be healed. ³⁶They begged him to let the sick touch at least the fringe of his robe, and all who touched him were healed.

Matt 15:1-20 // Mark 7:1-23

15 Some Pharisees and teachers of religious law now arrived from Jerusalem to see Jesus. They asked him, "Why do your disciples disobey our age-old tradition? For they ignore our tradition of ceremonial hand washing before they eat."

³Jesus replied, "And why do you, by your traditions, violate the direct commands of God? ⁴For instance, God says, 'Honor your father and mother,' and 'Anyone who speaks disrespectfully of father or mother must be put to death.' ⁵But you say it is all right for people to say to their parents, 'Sorry, I can't help you. For I have vowed to give to God what I would have given to you.' ⁶In this way, you say they don't need to honor their parents. And so you cancel the word of God for the sake of your own tradition. ⁷You ^hhypocrites! Isaiah was right when he prophesied about you, for he wrote, ⁸ 'These people honor me with their lips, but their hearts are far from me.

⁹ Their worship is a farce, for they teach man-made ideas as commands from God.' "

¹⁰Then Jesus called to the crowd to come and hear. "Listen," he said, "and try to understand. ¹¹It's not what goes into your mouth that defiles you; you are defiled by the words that come out of your mouth."

¹²Then the disciples came to him and asked, "Do you realize you offended the Pharisees by what you just said?"

¹³Jesus replied, "Every plant not planted by my heavenly Father will be uprooted. ¹⁴So ignore them. They are blind guides leading the blind, and if one blind person guides another, they will both fall into a ditch."

¹⁵Then Peter said to Jesus, "Explain to us the parable that says people aren't defiled by what they eat."

¹⁶"Don't you understand yet?" Jesus asked. ¹⁷"Anything you eat passes through the stomach and then goes into the sewer. ¹⁸But the words you speak come from the ^hheart—that's what defiles you. ¹⁹For from the heart come evil thoughts, murder, adultery, all sexual immorality, theft, lying, and ⁱblasphemy. ²⁰These are what defile you. Eating with unwashed hands will never defile you."

14:34-36 On the purpose of Jesus' miracles, see notes on 4:23; 11:5-6; 12:28.

15:1-20 Jesus indicted the Pharisees for disobeying God's law in their zeal to preserve traditions.

15:1 Jerusalem was the location of the Temple and thus the seat of authority in Judaism; this gave the ambassadors greater leverage in their arguments with Jesus.

15:2 The Jewish teachers' age-old tradition sought to apply the written Torah to common circumstances in the ordinary course of life. This tradition was memorized and passed on orally from teacher to student (cp. 1 Cor 11:23; 15:1-5). • To ignore the tradition of . . . hand washing (see Mark 7:2-4; Luke 11:38) was considered disobedient to the Torah and unfaithful to God's will for Israel (cp. 23:25-26).

15:4 Honor your father and mother: Exod 20:12; Deut 5:16. • Anyone . . . death: Exod 21:17 (Greek version); Lev 20:9 (Greek version).

15:5 vowed to give to God: Such a gift was likely donated at the Temple (see Mark 7:11; see also Prov 28:24), but functioned as a way to dodge financial responsibility for one's parents.

15:6 cancel: Because of a greater commitment to their traditions, the Pharisees in effect rendered God's law nonbinding, turning their piety into sinful disregard for the word of God. • their parents: Literally their father; other manuscripts read their father or their mother.

15:7 You hypocrites! See note on 23:13.

15:8-9 The quotation is from Isa 29:13 (Greek version).

15:11 what goes into your mouth: Jesus was speaking here either of foods that were not permitted (e.g., pork or shellfish) or of food contaminated by unclean hands (15:20). • That which defiles makes a person unfit for communion with God. Jesus pressed the matter beyond ceremonial purity to true inner purity (see 15:18-19; 23:25-26; Acts 10; 11:5-9; Rom 14:14). • One's words are a measure of one's character (see 15:18-20; Jas 3:1-12).

15:13 not planted by my heavenly Father: These Pharisees did not belong to the true people of God (see 3:9-12; Isa 5:1-7; Jer 45:4). They will be uprooted at the final judgment (see 3:10; 8:12).

1-2 Peter

Simon Peter was the most prominent of the twelve apostles. After Jesus' death, he became the primary spokesman for the early Christians in Jerusalem and was the apostle primarily responsible for evangelizing the Jews (Gal 2:7-8).

The Hebrew name Simeon (transliterated in English as "Simon") was probably his original name. Cephas is the transliteration of an Aramaic name given him by Jesus, meaning "rock"—translated in Greek as Petros (English "Peter"; see 16:17-18; Luke 6:14; John 1:42).

Though Bethsaida was Peter's hometown (John 1:44), he later lived in Capernaum. He was a married man (1 Cor 9:5). At one point, when visiting Peter's home, Jesus healed Peter's mother-in-law (8:5, 14-15; Mark 1:21, 29-31; Luke 4:31, 38-39).

Originally fishermen, Peter and his brother Andrew were among the first to be called by Jesus to be disciples, together with James and John, their fishing partners (4:18-22; Mark 1:16-20; cp. Luke 5:1-11; John 1:35-51). They were ordinary, minimally educated working men (Acts 4:13).

Peter's name occurs first on every list of the twelve apostles (10:2; Mark 3:16; Luke 6:14; Acts 1:13). Together with the brothers James and John, Peter was part of an "inner circle" of disciples who were with Jesus on certain special occasions—the healing of Jairus's daughter (Mark 5:37; Luke 8:51), Jesus' transfiguration (17:1; Mark 9:2; Luke 9:28), and Jesus' prayer in the garden (26:37; Mark 14:33; cp. Mark 13:3).

Bold and impulsive (26:33; Mark 14:29; Luke 5:8; 22:33; John 13:37; 21:7), Peter was the first of the disciples to confess his belief in Jesus as the Messiah (16:15-16; Mark 8:29; Luke 9:20). He also reproved Jesus when Jesus spoke of his coming death—a notion that did not fit Peter's view of the Messiah—and was in turn rebuked by Jesus for it (16:22-23; Mark 8:32-33). However, Jesus spoke of Peter as a key person he would use to build the church (16:18-19).

Peter, together with John, surreptitiously entered the courtyard of the high priest when Jesus was taken there for interrogation. But when challenged by people who recognized him (partly because of his Galilean accent), he vigorously denied all knowledge of Jesus (26:69-75; Mark 14:66-72; Luke 22:54-62)—as Jesus had said he would, in spite of Peter's insistence that he would never do so (26:33-35; Mark 14:29-31; Luke 22:31-34). Peter immediately felt deep remorse.

After the news of Jesus' resurrection, Peter was one of the first to run to the tomb to see if it was true (John 20:3-6), and he appears to have been the first of the Twelve to whom the risen Jesus showed himself (Luke 24:34; 1 Cor 15:5). Much of Jesus' conversation recorded by John in his last chapter was with Peter, whom Jesus encouraged to "feed my sheep" (John 21:15-17).

Following the coming of the Holy Spirit on the Day of Pentecost (Acts 2:1-13), Peter quickly emerged as the primary spokesman for the early Christians. From that point on, as recorded in Acts 1-12, he played a crucial role in the spread of the gospel in Judea, boldly preaching to the crowds (Acts 2:14-41; 3:12-26; 5:21, 42), healing people (Acts 3:1-11; 5:12-16; 9:32-43), and—even under arrest—speaking fearlessly to the authorities (Acts 4:1-20; 5:26-32). Twice he miraculously escaped from prison (Acts 5:18-25; 12:6-11). He also assumed leadership in the administrative affairs of the quickly growing community of disciples (Acts 5:3-11).

Peter was the first to bring the Good News to Gentiles (Acts 10:1-48; see Matt 16:18). Later, he played a key role in the Jerusalem council concerning Gentile converts, arguing that Gentiles should not be compelled to observe the law of Moses but should be accepted on the basis of their faith in Christ alone (Acts 15:7-10). Later, however, he was rebuked by Paul for his inconsistency on this point when he visited Antioch (Gal 2:11-16).

Other than his taking his wife with him on at least some of his mission trips (1 Cor 9:5), few details are known about Peter's later life and missionary work (did he spend time at Corinth? cp. 1 Cor 1:12; 3:22). Widespread early tradition says that Peter was crucified—like his Lord, just as Jesus had predicted (John 21:18-19)—in Rome during Nero's persecution of Christians in AD 64–65. The reliability of the tradition that he was crucified upside-down is less certain.

Peter was likely the source of the material recorded by Mark in his Gospel, which Mark learned when he was assisting Peter in his evangelistic work in Italy near the end of his life. Peter is also traditionally understood to be the author of 1 Peter (written from Rome—"Babylon," 1 Pet 5:13) and 2 Peter.

In the New Testament, Peter stands as a reassuring example of Christ's forgiving grace for those who know they've failed him—and of the way Christ can graciously restore and use such people for his glory, in spite of their failings.

Matt 15:21-28 // Mark 7:24-30

²¹Then Jesus left Galilee and went north to the region of Tyre and Sidon. ²²A Gentile woman who lived there came to him, pleading, "Have mercy on me, O Lord, Son of David! For my daughter is possessed by a demon that torments her severely."

²³But Jesus gave her no reply, not even a word. Then his disciples urged him to send her away. "Tell her to go away," they said. "She is bothering us with all her begging."

²⁴Then Jesus said to the woman, "I was sent only to help God's lost sheep—the people of Israel."

²⁵But she came and worshiped him, pleading again, "Lord, help me!"

²⁶Jesus responded, "It isn't right to take food from the children and throw it to the dogs."

²⁷She replied, "That's true, Lord, but even dogs are allowed to eat the scraps that fall beneath their masters' table."

²⁸"Dear woman," Jesus said to her, "your faith is great. Your request is granted." And her daughter was instantly healed.

Jesus Heals Many People

²⁹Jesus returned to the Sea of Galilee and climbed a hill and sat down. ³⁰A vast crowd brought to him people who were lame, blind, crippled, those who couldn't speak, and many others. They laid them before Jesus, and he healed them all. ³¹The crowd was amazed! Those who hadn't been able to speak were talking, the crippled were made well, the lame were walking, and the blind

The Sadducees were made up of the priestly class (in contrast to the lay movement of the Pharisees). The Sadducees probably lived in the vicinity of Jerusalem and controlled the Temple system (Acts 4:1-2; 5:17). They were powerful aristocrats and mediators between Rome and Israel (see Josephus, Antiquities 13.10.6; War 2.10.5). They did not have great favor or influence with the people (Josephus, Antiquities 18.1.4). The term Sadducee probably derives from Zadok, the high priest during the reigns of David (2 Sam 8:17; 15:24; 1 Kgs 1:8) and Solomon (1 Kgs 1:26, 32-48; 1 Chr 12:26-28); both words have the same Hebrew root. The earliest historical reference to the Sadducees occurs during the reign of John Hyrcanus (135–104 BC), a descendant of the Maccabees (Josephus, Antiquities 13.10.6), but it is clear from this account that they had already existed for some time.

Their theological views are often contrasted with those of the Pharisees (Acts 23:8; see also Acts 4:1-2). The Pentateuch had primary authority for the Sadducees. They rejected the oral tradition so cherished by the Pharisees. Also in contrast with the Pharisees, the Sadducees did not believe in the resurrection of the dead (see 22:23-33) or angelic beings (see Acts 23:8). They rejected the sovereignty of God and the concept of final judgment. The Pharisees were so committed to belief in the resurrection that they sided with Paul against the Sadducees when he was on trial for disturbing the Temple (Acts 23:6-10).

Despite their differences, the Pharisees and Sadducees united with a single front against Jesus. If the Pharisees opposed Jesus because he made light of their oral traditions, the Sadducees opposed Jesus because he affirmed the supernatural world of angels and demons and appealed to a final judgment and resurrection.

With the destruction of the Temple in AD 70, the Sadducees disappeared from the scene. They left no written records. Since all our information about the Sadducees comes from their opponents, we have a limited idea of what they were really like.

15:21-28 This encounter highlights another controversial issue: Gentile participation in the Kingdom of the Messiah (see 8:11).

15:22 Gentile woman (literally Canaanite woman): Matthew uses this archaic OT expression to describe the woman as a pagan. • Lord, Son of David: The woman apparently perceived that Jesus was the Messiah (see 1:1; 9:27; 17:15; 20:30).

15:23 no reply: Jesus' silence was a test of the woman's faith (15:28; cp. 8:24; 14:16).

15:26 Jews often referred to pagans as dogs, which are ceremonially unclean (Lev 11:27). Jesus was speaking to the woman of her spiritual condition as a Gentile—as unclean and separated from God (cp. 7:6).

15:29-31 Jesus returned to a predominantly Gentile area and performed many miracles. Though Jesus was sent primarily for Israel's sake (15:21-28), the new era that he inaugurated is also the beginning of Gentile salvation (1:3, 5-6; 2:1-12; 4:12-16; 8:5-13; 15:21-28; 28:16-20). • Such healings are signs that the Kingdom has broken into history through Jesus' ministry (8:1-9:34; 11:5-6; 12:28). • the God of Israel: This phrase suggests that the crowd (15:30) was predominantly Gentile.

Jesus Feeds Four Thousand

Matt 15:32-39 // Mark 8:1-10

³²Then Jesus called his disciples and told them, "I feel sorry for these people. They have been here with me for three days, and they have nothing left to eat. I don't want to send them away hungry, or they will faint along the way."

³³The disciples replied, "Where would we get enough food here in the wilderness for such a huge crowd?"

³⁴Jesus asked, "How much bread do you have?"

They replied, "Seven loaves, and a few small fish."

³⁵So Jesus told all the people to sit down on the ground. ³⁶Then he took the seven loaves and the fish, thanked God for them, and broke them into pieces. He gave them to the disciples, who distributed the food to the crowd.

³⁷They all ate as much as they wanted. Afterward, the disciples picked up seven large baskets of leftover food. ³⁸There were 4,000 men who were fed that day, in addition to all the women and children. ³⁹Then Jesus sent the people home, and he got into a boat and crossed over to the region of Magadan.

Matt 16:1-4; cp. Mark 8:11-13; Luke 12:54-56

16 One day the Pharisees and Sadducees came to test Jesus, demanding that he show them a miraculous sign from heaven to prove his authority.

²He replied, "You know the saying, 'Red sky at night means fair weather tomorrow; red sky in the morning means foul weather all day.' You know how to interpret the weather signs in the sky, but you don't know how to interpret the signs of the times! ⁴Only an evil, adulterous generation would demand a miraculous sign, but the only sign I will give them is the sign of the prophet Jonah." Then Jesus left them and went away.

⁵Later, after they crossed to the other side of the lake, the disciples discovered they had forgotten to bring any bread. ⁶"Watch out!" Jesus warned them. "Beware of the yeast of the Pharisees and Sadducees."

⁷At this they began to argue with each other because they hadn't brought any bread. ⁸Jesus knew what they were saying, so he said, "You have so little faith! Why are you arguing with each other about having no bread? ⁹Don't you understand even yet? Don't you remember the 5,000 I fed with ◀ Jesus' Ministry outside Israel (Matt 15:21-28; see also 16:13-20; Mark 7:1-8:30; Luke 9:18-20). The map shows the border between Jewish and Gentile territory. At least twice Jesus traveled outside of Jewish territories: In the region of TYRE and SIDON he released the daughter of a Gentile woman from demons (15:21-28), and at CAESAREA PHILIPPI Peter declared that Jesus is the Messiah (16:13-20).

perhaps Magdala (as in some Greek manuscripts; see also Mark 8:10).

16:1-12 Having been warmly received in the Gentile world, Jesus returned to his fellow countrymen only to encounter further rejection.

16:2-3 Jesus made a deliberate play on their words when they sought a "sign from heaven" (16:1). They were able to read the weather in the sky (Greek kouranos), the same word translated "heaven"), but they failed to discern the Messiah despite the many signs already given (see 11:1-6). • Several manuscripts do not include any of the words in 16:2-3 after He replied.

16:3 The signs of the times were Jesus himself (16:4) and the various miracles that he performed (cp. 11:2-6; 12:28).

16:4 the sign of the prophet Jonah: Literally the sign of Jonah.

16:9-10 Jesus had demonstrated to his disciples that he is the true bread of life (15:32-39; John 6:35, 48), whereas the Jewish leaders, particularly in their teachings, were like yeast in permeating everything they touched with their sinfulness (see next note).

15:32-39 The previous feeding miracle (see 14:13-21) was for Jews, whereas this one extended to Gentiles; it thus develops the theme of 15:27. Through this miracle Jesus demonstrated that he is the true bread of life (see 16:5-12; John 6).

15:39 Magadan is an unknown site, five loaves, and the baskets of leftovers you picked up? ¹⁰Or the 4,000 I fed with seven loaves, and the large baskets of leftovers you picked up? ¹¹Why can't you understand that I'm not talking about bread? So again I say, 'Beware of the ^byeast of the Pharisees and Sadducees.'

¹²Then at last they understood that he wasn't speaking about the yeast in bread, but about the deceptive teaching of the Pharisees and Sadducees.

Peter's Declaration of Faith, Jesus' Blessing

Matt 16:13-16, 20 // Mark 8:27-30 // Luke 9:18-21;
cp. John 6:67-69

¹³When Jesus came to the region of Caesarea Philippi, he asked his disciples, "Who do people say that the Son of Man is?"

¹⁴"Well," they replied, "some say John the Baptist, some say Elijah, and others say Jeremiah or one of the other prophets."

¹⁵Then he asked them, "But who do you say I am?"

¹⁶Simon Peter answered, "You are the Messiah, the Son of the living God."

¹⁷Jesus replied, "You are blessed, Simon son of John, because my Father in heaven has revealed this to you. You did not learn this from any ^chuman being. ¹⁸Now I say to you that you are ^dPeter (which means 'rock'), and upon this ^erock I will build my ^echurch, and all the powers of ^fhell will not conquer it. ¹⁹And I will give you the keys of the Kingdom of Heaven. Whatever you forbid on earth will be forbidden in heaven, and whatever you permit on earth will be permitted in heaven."

²⁰Then he sternly warned the disciples not to tell anyone that he was the Messiah.

Narrative: Jesus Reveals His Suffering and Glory (16:21–17:27)

Jesus First Predicts His Death

Matt 16:21-23 // Mark 8:31-33 // Luke 9:22

²¹From then on Jesus began to tell his disciples plainly that it was necessary for him to go to Jerusalem, and that he would suffer many terrible things at the hands of the elders, the leading priests, and the teachers of religious law. He would be killed, but on the third day he would be raised from the dead.

²²But Peter took him aside and began to reprimand him for saying such things. "Heaven forbid, Lord," he said. "This will never happen to you!"

²³Jesus turned to Peter and said, "Get away from me, ^gSatan! You are a ^hdangerous trap to me. You are seeing things merely from a human point of view, not from God's."

16:11-12 Yeast is often a symbol of sin and evil (see Exod 12:8, 15; Lev 6:16-17; Gal 5:9); here it indicates the permeating nature of the deceptive teaching.

16:13 Caesarea Philippi, located approximately twenty-five miles north of Capernaum, hosted many shrines to the Roman god of nature, Pan. • Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself.

16:14 Some, such as Herod Antipas (14:1-2), thought Jesus was John the Baptist resurrected. • Elijah was expected as a forerunner to the Messiah (11:14; 17:10-12; Mal 3:1; 4:5-6). • Jeremiah or one of the other prophets: Some Jews expected Jeremiah to be raised (see 2 Maccabees 15:13-16). Jesus' strong stand on sensitive matters (5:17; 15:1-20) may have led some to think Jesus was Jeremiah. Jesus was not yet understood as God's Messiah.

16:16 Peter's acknowledgment of Jesus as the Messiah, the Son of the living God (3:17) shows that his eyes had been opened by faith (see 11:25-27; 14:33; 27:54). • the Messiah: Or the Christ. Messiah (a Hebrew term) and Christ (a Greek term) both mean "anointed one."

16:17 God revealed to Peter his plan of salvation in Jesus, the Messiah. This moment of revelation was a high point in the unfolding of God's will for humanity (cp. Gal 1:16; 3:23; Eph 3:5). • Simon son of John: Greek Simon bar-Jonah; see John 1:42; 21:15-17.

16:18 that you are Peter (which means 'rock'): Literally that you are Peter. The phrase upon this rock is thus a pun: Peter was the foundational rock in that he was the first confessor and leader of the apostles—he was the "founding member" of the church (see Eph 2:20-22; Rev 21:14). Some scholars have suggested that Jesus was referring to himself when he said this rock, but it seems clear that Jesus was referring either to Peter or to his confession. However, it is clearly Jesus' church (my church), not Peter's, and Jesus himself will build it. So it is not necessary to conclude that later church leaders must derive their authority from Peter. • Matthew is the only Gospel writer who uses the term church (also 18:17). The idea here is more the community of God's people than an ecclesiastical institution. • and all the powers of hell: Literally and the gates of Hades (see note on 11:23). • will not conquer it: The church will not be defeated by the attacks of Satan (see 11:12; 13:24-30, 36-43).

16:19 Keys are an image for access to privileged knowledge that gives one authority (see 13:16-17; 23:13; Isa 22:22; Rev 3:7). • forbid (or bind, or lock) . . . permit (or loose, or open): Jesus granted to Peter (and later to the rest of the Twelve, 18:18) the authority to teach the will of God as revealed in Jesus Christ (13:52; 18:15-20; 23:2-12; 28:16-20). • will be: This could be translated will have been, emphasizing that God's sovereign decision comes first.

16:21-28 Jesus, now officially recognized by his disciples as the Messiah, begins to reveal a startling aspect of his mission: He must suffer before entering his glory (16:21-23), and those who follow him will meet a similar fate (16:24-28).

16:21 This is the first of three predictions of Jesus' passion—his suffering through betrayal, crucifixion, and death (see also 17:22-23; 20:18-19). Each prediction gives a lesson on the cost of discipleship (16:24-27; 20:20-28).

• Jesus: Some manuscripts read Jesus the Messiah. • That he would suffer was God's sovereign and necessary purpose for the Messiah (see 17:12).

16:22 began to reprimand him: Or began to correct him. Though Peter accurately perceived Jesus' identity as God's Messiah, he did not understand that the Messiah must suffer.

16:23 As when Satan tempted Jesus to assume royal privileges without first enduring the cross (see 4:8-10), so now Jesus perceived Peter's suggestion as incited by satanic forces. • dangerous trap: Literally stumbling block; see "Jesus, a Source of Stumbling" at 21:42-46, p. 1623.

Teachings about Discipleship

24Then Jesus said to his disciples, "If any of you wants to be my follower, you must give up your own way, take up your cross, and follow me. 25If you try to hang on to your life, you will lose it. But if you give up your life for my sake, you will save it. 26And what do you benefit if you gain the whole world but lose your own soul? Is anything worth more than your soul? 27For the Son of Man will come with his angels in the glory of his Father and will judge all people according to their deeds. 28And I tell you the truth, some standing here right now will not die before they see the Son of Man coming in his Kingdom."

The Transfiguration: Jesus Reveals His Glory

Matt 17:1-9 // Mark 9:2-10 // Luke 9:28-36

17Six days later Jesus took Peter and the two brothers, James and John, and led them up a high mountain to be alone. 2As the men watched, Jesus' appearance was transformed so that his face shone like the sun, and his clothes became as white as

Jesus the Messiah (16:13-20)

The Greek term christos is equivalent to the Hebrew mashiakh ("anointed one"), and both terms are translated as "Christ" or "Messiah."

In Judaism, the term "Messiah" was understood in a variety of ways (see 16:13-14). The OT refers to people, not all of them honorable, who were specially anointed by God for a variety of reasons or tasks (Exod 28:41; 1 Sam 9:16; 1 Kgs 19:16; Isa 45:1). The prophets expected a future Messiah who would usher in God's Kingdom (Dan 9:25-26; Zech 9:9-10). The dominant expectation among Jews in Jesus' time was that the Messiah would be a political warrior who would lead Israel to victory over its oppressors and reestablish Israel as a separate kingdom (see Psalms of Solomon 17-18). Some Jews saw the Messiah as a forerunner of the Kingdom of God. The community at Qumran, where the Dead Sea Scrolls were discovered, expected a Messiah who would function both as a priest and as a political warrior.

Given such ambiguity, it is not surprising that Jesus avoided the title. He taught his followers that he would suffer according to Isaiah's predictions (Isa 52:13-53:12, which Jews interpreted as referring to the nation of Israel). He would fulfill the promises to Abraham (Gen 12:2-3; 17:6). The emphasis Jesus gave to suffering and service as the path of victory (16:21-28; 20:25-28) collided with the popular Jewish paradigm of the Messiah as a royal conqueror. It was, however, God's means of bringing about his Kingdom (e.g., Luke 2:25-32; John 12:37-50; Acts 2:29-36).

16:24 give up . . . take . . . follow: These three imperatives use different images to speak of the same radical commitment of confessing one's sinfulness before God in humility, surrendering one's personal ambition to God, and living according to his will (see also 5:20; 10:34-39; 18:1-5; 20:20-28). • Take up your cross is a metaphor for devotion (see Luke 9:23) rather than a call to martyrdom, although martyrdom is an ever-present possibility for Jesus' disciples (5:10-12; 10:21). • In Matthew, follow is used both literally (9:19; 26:58) and metaphorically. Metaphorically, it indicates interest in a teacher (4:25; 8:1, 10; 12:15; 14:13; 19:2; 20:29; 21:9) or personal allegiance to Jesus involving a call, a commitment, and great ongoing costs (4:20, 22; 8:19, 22-23; 9:9; 10:38; 16:24; 19:21, 27).

16:25 Jesus' disciples must relinquish control of their lives, even to the point of being willing to suffer and die for Christ. Jesus promised that those who follow him with such radical abandon, though they may suffer now, will be vindicated at the final judgment (see 1 Pet 2:23).

16:26 your own soul? Or your self?

"Soul" and "life" (16:25) both translate the same Greek term (psychē) and refer to the essence of a person—the self.

16:27 The exhortation to deny oneself and follow Jesus is rooted in the fact that Jesus will return to judge all people according to their deeds (see 19:28; 24:29-31; 25:31; Ps 62:12; Prov 24:12).

16:28 This saying has been taken to refer either to (1) the transfiguration that follows (17:1-13); (2) the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ (27:50-53; 28:1-10); (3) Pentecost (Acts 2); (4) the destruction of Jerusalem in AD 70 (24:1-31); (5) the second coming of Christ in the future (24:29-31); or (6) an unfolding revelation of God's Kingdom in various ways, including the evangelism of the world. In the fourth view, coming would mean "coming in judgment" upon sinful Israel. • The expression Son of Man (16:27-28) forms an inclusio (bracketing expression) with 16:13, unifying 16:13-28 around the theme of the identity of the Son of Man. He is the Messiah who would suffer and then be exalted by God and return as Judge.

17:1 Peter . . . James and John later accompanied Jesus at Gethsemane (26:37; 2 Pet 1:16-19). • It is impossible to determine the exact location of this high mountain. The traditional site, Mount Tabor, is only about 1,900 feet (580 meters) high and is out of the way for a trip from Caesarea Philippi (16:13) to Capernaum (17:24). Mount Hermon, another possibility, is about 9,200 feet (2,800 meters) high and located in Syria, forty miles north of Capernaum. It is unlikely, however, that "teachers of religious law" (Mark 9:14) would have congregated at the foot of a mountain in Gentile territory. The most probable location is Mount Meron, about 4,000 feet (1,220 meters) high and situated between Caesarea Philippi and Capernaum.

17:2 Jesus' appearance was transformed: Jesus' inner, divine nature, previously veiled, was now disclosed so that the three caught a glimpse of his glory (see Exod 34:29-35; Ps 104:2; 2 Cor 3:12-18; Rev 1:16). Jesus' followers will one day share in this glory (13:43).

light. ³Suddenly, Moses and Elijah appeared and began talking with Jesus.

⁴Peter exclaimed, "Lord, it's wonderful for us to be here! If you want, I'll make three shelters as memorials—one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah."

⁵But even as he spoke, a bright cloud overshadowed them, and a voice from the cloud said, "This is my dearly loved Son, who brings me great joy. Listen to him." ⁶The disciples were terrified and fell face down on the ground.

⁷Then Jesus came over and touched them. "Get up," he said. "Don't be afraid." ⁸And when they looked up, Moses and Elijah were gone, and they saw only Jesus.

⁹As they went back down the mountain, Jesus commanded them, "Don't tell anyone what you have seen until the Son of Man has been raised from the dead."

Matt 17:10-13 // Mark 9:11-13

¹⁰Then his disciples asked him, "Why do the teachers of religious law insist that Elijah must return before the Messiah comes?"

¹¹Jesus replied, "Elijah is indeed coming first to get everything ready. ¹²But I tell you, Elijah has already come, but he wasn't recognized, and they chose to abuse him. And in the same way they will also make the Son of Man suffer." ¹³Then the disciples realized he was talking about John the Baptist.

Matt 17:14-20 // Mark 9:14-29 // Luke 9:37-43a

¹⁴At the foot of the mountain, a large crowd was waiting for them. A man came and knelt before Jesus and said, ¹⁵"Lord, have mercy on my son. He has seizures and suffers terribly. He often falls into the fire or into the water. ¹⁶So I brought him to your disciples, but they couldn't heal him."

¹⁷Jesus said, "You faithless and corrupt people! How long must I be with you? How long must I put up with you? Bring the boy here to me." ¹⁸Then Jesus rebuked the demon in the boy, and it left him. From that moment the boy was well.

¹⁹Afterward the disciples asked Jesus privately, "Why couldn't we cast out that demon?"

²⁰"You don't have enough faith," Jesus told them. "I tell you the truth, if you had faith even as small as a mustard seed, you could say to this mountain, 'Move from here to there,' and it would move. Nothing would be impossible."

Jesus Again Predicts His Death

Matt 17:22-23 // Mark 9:30-32 // Luke 9:43b-45

²²After they gathered again in Galilee, Jesus told them, "The Son of Man is going to be betrayed into the hands of his enemies. ²³He will be killed, but on the third day he will be raised from the dead." And the disciples were filled with grief.

Payment of the Temple Tax

²⁴On their arrival in Capernaum, the collectors of the Temple tax came to Peter and asked him, "Doesn't your teacher pay the Temple tax?"

²⁵"Yes, he does," Peter replied. Then he went into the house.

17:3 Moses symbolizes the law and Elijah the prophets. They appeared as witnesses to Christ, to demonstrate that Jesus, God's Son, is the fulfillment of everything written in the Law and the Prophets (see 5:17-20; 11:2-6; 12:28).

17:4 three shelters as memorials (literally three tabernacles; see Exod 33:7-11): Peter probably thought that the Kingdom was about to be ushered in with full glory (cp. Acts 1:6), and he desired to memorialize the moment.

17:5 a bright cloud overshadowed them: Such an occurrence accompanied God's presence among the ancient Israelites during Moses' ministry (see Exod 24:15-18; 25:8; 29:45-46; 40:34-38). • my dearly loved Son: The Father was confirming what Peter had previously affirmed (16:16-17). • They should listen to him because Jesus is God's Son, who, as a prophet, reveals God's will (11:27; see Deut 18:15, 18; Acts 3:22-23; 7:37).

6:5; Dan 8:17; 10:9, 15-19; Rev 1:17).

17:9 Jesus could not be fully understood until all of his work was accomplished, particularly his death and resurrection. • Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself.

17:10-13 Elijah's presence at the transfiguration prompted a question about the view that Elijah must return before the Messiah comes (literally that Elijah must come first; Mal 4:5-6). In pointing to John the Baptist, Jesus reinforced the unexpected idea that the Messiah must suffer, even as his precursor had suffered (14:3-12).

17:17 faithless and corrupt people: The expression is often used for moral depravity (see Deut 32:5, 19-22). Normally, this exclamation of Jesus was directed at the unbelieving Jewish crowds or leaders who refuse to acknowledge God's presence in him (see 12:39). Here, however, it was a sharp criticism of his disciples' failure to trust Jesus and his saving, healing power.

17:20 Here, the expression don't have enough faith is virtually synonymous with no faith. • faith even as small as a mustard seed: This could mean that if the disciples had even very little faith they would be able to accomplish great things (21:21; cp. 1 Cor 13:2). It could also mean that if they would allow their faith to grow (see 13:31-32), they could act with courageous belief. • Moving mountains is an adage for overcoming obstacles and fulfilling God's purposes (Isa 40:4; 49:11; 54:10; 1 Cor 13:2). • Some manuscripts add verse 21, But this kind of demon won't leave except by prayer and fasting. Cp. Mark 9:29.

17:22 betrayed: See 20:18; 26:14-16, 45-49 for the fulfillment of this prediction.

17:24 Every adult citizen of Israel was required to pay the Temple tax of one-half shekel (Greek two-drachma [tax]; see Exod 30:13-16; Neh 10:32-33). In Jesus' day, priests and some rabbis did not pay the tax. • Peter was the spokesman for the Twelve (see 10:2).

"Well, then," Jesus said, "the citizens are free! ²⁷However, we don't want to offend them, so go down to the lake and throw in a line. Open the mouth of the first fish you catch, and you will find a large silver coin. Take it and pay the tax for both of us."

Discourse: Jesus Teaches about Community Life (18:1-35)

The Greatest in the Kingdom

Matt 18:1-5 // Mark 9:33-37 // Luke 9:46-48

18 About that time the disciples came to Jesus and asked, "Who is greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven?"

²Jesus called a little child to him and put the child among them. ³Then he said, "I tell you the truth, unless you turn from your sins and become like little children, you will never get into the Kingdom of Heaven. ⁴So anyone who becomes as humble as this little child is the greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven. ⁵And anyone who welcomes a little child like this on my behalf is welcoming me.

Warning against Causing Sin

Matt 18:6-9 // Mark 9:42-48 // Luke 17:1-3a

⁶"But if you cause one of these little ones who trusts in me to fall into sin, it would be better for you to have a large millstone tied around your neck and be drowned in the depths of the sea.

⁷"What sorrow awaits the world, because it tempts people to sin. Temptations are inevitable, but what sorrow awaits the person who does the tempting. ⁸So if your hand or foot causes you to sin, cut it off and throw it away. It's better to enter eternal life with only one hand or one foot than to be thrown into eternal fire with both of your hands and feet. ⁹And if your eye causes you to sin, gouge it out and throw it away. It's better to enter eternal life with only one eye than to have two eyes and be thrown into the fire of hell.

¹⁰"Beware that you don't look down on any of these little ones. For I tell you that in heaven their angels are always in the presence of my heavenly Father.

¹²"If a man has a hundred sheep and one of them wanders away, what will he do? Won't he leave the ninety-nine others on the hills and go out to search for the one that is lost? ¹³And if he finds it, I tell you the truth, he will rejoice over it more than over the ninety-nine that didn't wander away! ¹⁴In the same way, it is not my heavenly Father's will that even one of these little ones should perish.

17:25-26 As an obedient Jew, Jesus would have paid the tax annually, and he did pay it. Jesus' point was that as God's Son, he is greater than the Temple (12:5-6), and he makes a decisive break with it (see 16:18-19; 21:33-46).

17:25 Peter? Literally Simon? • their own people or the people they have conquered? Literally their sons or others?

17:27 a large silver coin: Greek a stater, a Greek coin equivalent to four drachmas. It was adequate to pay the tax for both of them (see note on 17:24).

18:1-35 This fourth major discourse in Matthew (see note on 5:1-7:29) focuses on responses to the Messiah—acceptance by the disciples and rejection by the Jewish leaders and most of the populace. In light of this growing polarization, Jesus began to instruct his followers on the nature of community life. For a community to live according to Jesus' standards, it must live with humility (18:1-5), sensitivity (18:6-9), compassion (18:10-14), discipline (18:15-18), and forgiveness (18:21-35). As with the other discourses, a concluding formula (19:1-2) bridges to the next section.

18:1 About that time: Matthew connects the disciples' questions with the previous discussion concerning the Temple. The disciples began to assume that their new freedom in relation to Jewish authority entitled them to authority of their own. In addition, talk of special revelations (11:25-27; 13:11-17) and roles of leadership (10:2-4; 19:28) probably gave rise to jealous comparisons and petty desires for power among the disciples, perhaps revolving around the apparent privilege of Peter (17:25) or Peter, James, and John (17:1-3).

18:3 Like little children means to be humble (18:4). The disciples had been intent on status and ambition.

18:5 Jesus moved the discussion toward solidarity within the community; to welcome a humble follower of Jesus is to welcome Jesus himself (see 10:40-42). • on my behalf: Literally in my name.

18:6 To cause one . . . to fall into sin is to lead believing children (or possibly believing adults who become "like children"; see 18:3) to reject Christ and abandon the faith. • The designation little ones emphasizes their humility

(5:3-12; 18:4; 19:13-15). • Though the thought of being drowned with a large millstone around the neck is frightful, Jesus warned that causing another to fall away will bring far greater misery (18:7; 26:24; Rev 18:21; see Matt 22:13).

18:8-9 Concern shifts to the individual: Get rid of whatever causes you to sin (see 5:29-30; Col 3:5-17).

18:9 the fire of hell: Greek the Gehenna of fire. See note on 5:29.

18:10 Don't look down on them, either by refusing to receive them (18:5-6) or by refusing to give pastoral care when needed (18:12-14; see 19:13-15). • their angels: See 4:5-7; Heb 1:14. • Some manuscripts add verse 11, And the Son of Man came to save those who are lost. Cp. Luke 19:10.

18:12 Just as a shepherd will work to recover a lost sheep, the "little ones" (18:6) must not be despised or neglected.

18:14 The shepherd's joy is also the joy of the Father; the purpose of pastoral care is so God will not lose any of his sheep.

Correcting Another Believer

¹⁵If another believer sins against you, go privately and point out the offense. If the other person listens and confesses it, you have won that person back. ¹⁶But if you are unsuccessful, take one or two others with you and go back again, so that everything you say may be confirmed by two or three witnesses. ¹⁷If the person still refuses to listen, take your case to the church. Then if he or she won't accept the church's decision, treat that person as a pagan or a corrupt tax collector.

¹⁸"I tell you the truth, whatever you forbid on earth will be forbidden in heaven, and whatever you permit on earth will be permitted in heaven.

¹⁹"I also tell you this: If two of you agree here on earth concerning anything you ask, my Father in heaven will do it for you. ²⁰For where two or three gather together as my followers, I am there among them."

Parable of the Unforgiving Debtor

²¹Then Peter came to him and asked, "Lord, how often should I forgive someone who sins against me? Seven times?"

²²"No, not seven times," Jesus replied, "but seventy times seven!

²³"Therefore, the Kingdom of Heaven can be compared to a king who decided to bring his accounts up to date with servants who had borrowed money from him. ²⁴In the process, one of his debtors was brought in who owed him millions of dollars. ²⁵He couldn't pay, so his master ordered that he be sold—along with his wife, his children, and everything he owned—to pay the debt.

²⁶But the man fell down before his master and begged him, 'Please, be patient with me, and I will pay it all.' ²⁷Then his master was filled with pity for him, and he released him and forgave his debt.

²⁸But when the man left the king, he went to a fellow servant who owed him a few thousand dollars. He grabbed him by the throat and demanded instant payment.

²⁹His fellow servant fell down before him and begged for a little more time. 'Be patient with me, and I will pay it,' he pleaded. ³⁰But his creditor wouldn't wait. He had the man arrested and put in prison until the debt could be paid in full.

³¹"When some of the other servants saw this, they were very upset. They went to the king and told him everything that had happened. ³²Then the king called in the man he had forgiven and said, 'You evil servant! I forgave you that tremendous debt because you pleaded with me. ³³Shouldn't you have mercy on your fellow servant, just as I had mercy on you?' ³⁴Then the angry king sent 18:15-35 The believing community must not be fractured into rival parties and unreconciled relationships. Its members are to pursue reconciliation (18:15-20) and forgive willingly (18:21-35). At times, however, stern discipline may be necessary (18:17).

18:15-20 Restoration begins privately and should be made public only as a last resort.

18:15 If another believer (literally If your brother) sins, brotherly love requires us to go privately and point out the offense (Lev 19:17; Luke 17:3; Gal 6:1; 1 Tim 5:20; Titus 3:10). • Some manuscripts do not include against you.

18:16 By requiring the presence of one or two others, Jesus prevented slanderous, unsubstantiated accusations from being presented to the congregation (see John 8:17; 2 Cor 13:1; 1 Tim 5:19; Heb 10:28).

18:17 The church is the local Christian community. • The unrepentant person is to be considered a pagan or a corrupt tax collector, a wicked transgressor of the law. Church discipline by exclusion (excommunication; see Acts 5:1-6; Rom 16:17; 1 Cor 5:1-13; 2 Cor 6:14-18; Gal 5:7-12; 2 Thes 3:14-15) is rooted in the conviction that God's people are to be holy and that sin corrupts fellowship, both between people and between the people and God. The goal is neither vindictive retribution nor a public display of power, but restoration of the wayward to holiness and fellowship (18:10-15; Gal 6:1; Jas 5:19-20).

18:18-20 These sayings provide the basis for a process of discipline and restoration in the community of disciples.

18:18 forbid (or bind, or lock) . . . permit (or loose, or open; see 16:19): The privilege and authority granted to Peter (16:19) are here granted to the church (or possibly to the twelve apostles, 18:1). The decisions of the community, when in accord with God's will, are eternally binding.

18:19 anything you ask: In the context of church discipline (18:15-17), this suggests that discipline must be done in prayer.

18:20 Christ is present in the process of discipline, so the process is a ratification of God's decision. • gather together as my followers: Literally gather together in my name.

18:21-35 Peter's suggestion of seven times was generous, so Jesus' answer was startling. The disciple's willingness to forgive should be like God's forgiving grace, limitless and free (see 18:10-14). Those who do not forgive in this way cannot themselves have experienced God's forgiveness (18:35; see 6:12).

18:21 someone: Literally my brother.

18:22 seventy times seven: Or seventy-seven times; either way, Jesus prescribes limitless readiness to forgive from the heart (18:35; cp. Gen 4:23-24).

18:24 millions of dollars (Greek 10,000 talents [375 tons or 340 metric tons of silver]): The talent was the highest unit of currency, but its value fluctuated. The debt was clearly impossible to pay—this amount exceeded the tax revenue of all Galilee.

18:26 I will pay it all: The exaggerated debt and the slave's promise amplify the greatness of the king's mercy and the slave's unforgiving attitude (18:29-30).

18:28 a few thousand dollars (Greek 100 denarii; a denarius was equivalent to a laborer's full day's wage): The first servant's debt was about one million times greater than this sum owed to him.

18:34 This is how God responds (18:35) to anyone unwilling to forgive. • until he had paid his entire debt: i.e., permanently, because he could never repay.

Narrative: Jesus Instructs on the Way to Jerusalem (19:1–20:34)

Jesus Leaves Galilee

Matt 19:1-2 // Mark 10:1

19 When Jesus had finished saying these things, he left Galilee and went down to the region of Judea east of the Jordan River. ²Large crowds followed him there, and he healed their sick.

Jesus' Teaching about Divorce and Marriage

Matt 19:3-12 // Mark 10:2-12; cp. Matt 5:31-32; Luke 16:18

³Some Pharisees came and tried to trap him with this question: "Should a man be allowed to divorce his wife for just any reason?"

⁴"Haven't you read the Scriptures?" Jesus replied. "They record that from the beginning 'God made them male and female.'"

⁵And he said, "'This explains why a man leaves his father and mother and is joined to his wife, and the two are united into one.'"

⁶Since they are no longer two but one, let no one split apart what God has joined together."

⁷"Then why did Moses say in the law that a man could give his wife a ^bwritten notice of divorce and send her away?" they asked.

⁸Jesus replied, "Moses permitted divorce only as a concession to your hard hearts, but it was not what God had originally intended."

⁹And I tell you this, whoever divorces his wife and marries someone else commits adultery—unless his wife has been unfaithful."

¹⁰Jesus' disciples then said to him, "If this is the case, it is better not to marry!"

¹¹"Not everyone can accept this statement," Jesus said. "Only those whom God helps. ¹²Some are born as eunuchs, some have been made eunuchs by others, and some choose not to marry for the sake of the Kingdom of Heaven. Let anyone accept this who can."

Jesus Blesses the Children

Matt 19:13-15 // Mark 10:13-16 // Luke 18:15-17

¹³One day some parents brought their children to Jesus so he could lay his hands on them and pray for them. But the disciples scolded the parents for bothering him.

¹⁴But Jesus said, "Let the children come to me. Don't stop them! For the Kingdom of Heaven belongs to those who are like these children." ¹⁵And he placed his hands on their heads and blessed them before he left.

The Rich Man

Matt 19:16-22 // Mark 10:17-22 // Luke 18:18-23

¹⁶Someone came to Jesus with this question: "Teacher, what good deed must I do to have eternal life?"

18:35 That's what my heavenly Father will do to you: Prison and torture (18:34) is thus a metaphor for hell (see 5:22). • your brothers and sisters: Literally your brother.

19:1–20:34 Jesus was now on the move toward Jerusalem (19:1; 20:29; 21:1), with a further opportunity for instructing the disciples on various aspects of discipleship.

19:3 There were two divergent views on when one was allowed to divorce one's wife (see also note on Mark 10:4). One group of Pharisees, following Rabbi Shammai, argued that divorce was allowed only in the case of adultery or other grave sin, while the other group, following Rabbi Hillel, contended that a man could divorce his wife for any reason, such as if she burned his dinner.

19:4-5 The Pharisees were not considering all of God's word. The Creator had made marriage as a permanent union. • God made them male and female: Gen 1:27; 5:2. • This explains why . . . the two are united into one: Gen 2:24. See also 1 Cor 6:16; 7:10-16.

19:6 Since God made marriage a union, humans do not have the right to break that union. Jesus affirmed the indissolubility of marriage.

19:7-8 why did Moses say (literally command): The Pharisees thought Jesus had contradicted a command of the law (see Deut 24:1-4), but Moses permitted divorce only as a concession to their hard hearts. Jesus introduced the revolutionary principle that God's permission is not necessarily his desire (see 1 Cor 6:12). Divorce is never God's desire (Mal 2:14-16); it is an expression of human sin.

19:9 Jesus permits only one legitimate reason for a man to divorce: if his wife has been unfaithful (see 5:32). In the face of those who thought divorce could be taken lightly, Jesus affirms God's created order: Marriage was designed to be permanent (see Mark 10:11-12). • commits adultery: This speaks only of the man who divorces his wife unlawfully. In such a case, his remarriage is adulterous. Jesus' motivation is to reestablish the permanency of marriage. • Some manuscripts add And anyone who marries a divorced woman commits adultery. Cp. 5:32.

19:11 This statement refers to the disciples' comment (19:10).

19:12 and some choose not to marry: Literally and some make themselves eunuchs. • Eunuchs are males castrated either by a birth defect or by a surgical operation. Jesus also uses the term metaphorically for those who decide to remain celibate (see Luke 14:26; 18:29; 1 Cor 7:7-8). • for the sake of the Kingdom: Jesus was not denigrating marriage; he was simply indicating that the unmarried often have greater potential for ministry (see 1 Cor 7:25-35).

19:13 Jesus would lay his hands on others to bless them (see Luke 4:40; 13:13; see also Gen 48:14-15; Acts 19:6). • The disciples, motivated to protect Jesus, scolded the parents, demonstrating a wrong attitude toward children (see 18:5-6, 10).

19:16 Teacher: Some manuscripts read Good Teacher.

17“Why ask me about what is good?” Jesus replied. “There is only One who is good. But to answer your question—if you want to receive eternal life, keep the commandments.”

18“Which ones?” the man asked.

And Jesus replied: “‘You must not murder. You must not commit adultery. You must not steal. You must not testify falsely. 19Honor your father and mother. Love your neighbor as yourself.’”

20“I’ve obeyed all these commandments,” the young man replied. “What else must I do?”

21Jesus told him, “If you want to be perfect, go and sell all your possessions and give the money to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven. Then come, follow me.”

22But when the young man heard this, he went away sad, for he had many possessions.

Rewards of Discipleship

Matt 19:23-30 // Mark 10:23-31 // Luke 18:24-30

23Then Jesus said to his disciples, “I tell you the truth, it is very hard for a rich person to enter the Kingdom of Heaven. 24I’ll say it again—it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich person to enter the Kingdom of God!”

25The disciples were astounded. “Then who in the world can be saved?” they asked.

27Then Peter said to him, “We’ve given up everything to follow you. What will we get?”

28Jesus replied, “I assure you that when the world is made new and the Son of Man sits upon his glorious throne, you who have been my followers will also sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel. 29And everyone who has given up houses or brothers or sisters or father or mother or children or property, for my sake, will receive a hundred times as much in return and will inherit eternal life. 30But many who are the greatest now will be least important then, and those who seem least important now will be the greatest then.

Parable of the Vineyard Workers

20“For the Kingdom of Heaven is like the landowner who went out early one morning to hire workers for his vineyard. 2He agreed to pay the normal daily wage and sent them out to work.

6At five o’clock that afternoon he was in town again and saw some more people standing around. He asked them, ‘Why haven’t you been working today?’

19:17 Why ask me? The man, as a Jew, should have known that God’s standard of goodness is clearly reflected in his commandments. The man’s questions (also 19:20) show that he was not trusting in the adequacy of God’s revealed will. • only One . . . is good: The man may have believed he could act with perfect goodness on his own, whereas only God is truly good and thus the source of all goodness. • keep (some manuscripts read continue to keep) the commandments: Jesus has in mind either leading the man to see his sinfulness by asking him to do the impossible, or more probably, restating that good works are a telling gauge of the truthfulness of a person’s faith (see 7:13-27).

19:18-19 The quotation is from Exod 20:12-16; Deut 5:16-20; Lev 19:18.

19:21-22 By calling the man to go and sell and come, follow me, Jesus revealed that the man had not in fact kept the first of the ten commandments (Exod 20:3). His possessions—his wealth and security—had become his god (see 6:20, 24; 13:44-46).

19:23 Jesus draws a lesson for discipleship from the rich man’s tragic denial. It is hard for the rich to humble themselves, admit their need, and trust in God (see 5:3; Luke 6:24; 1 Tim 6:9-10). • Kingdom of Heaven is equivalent here to eternal life (19:16-17, 29) or to salvation as the result of God’s regenerating work (19:25-26).

19:24 easier for a camel: This analogy reinforces the difficulty that wealthy people face in entering the Kingdom. A few manuscripts have a Greek word meaning rope (Greek kamilos) instead of camel (Greek kamēlos), a difference of only one letter. • to go through the eye of a needle: The image makes the wealthy entering the Kingdom an impossibility. The situation is not utterly hopeless, however (19:26-27). See also note on Mark 10:25.

19:26 God’s regenerating grace is absolutely essential before the wealthy are able to repent from their idolatry, abandon their possessions if called to do so, and follow Jesus (19:21).

19:28 when the world is made new: Or in the regeneration. • you . . . will also sit on twelve thrones: The disciples’ part in judging is a reversal—those who are wealthy and powerful now will be judged by those who are humble and poor (see 19:30). • Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself. • Judging can mean both ruling and condemning (see Rev 20:4).

19:30 Literally But many who are first will be last; and the last, first.

20:1-16 This parable is similar to the parable of the Lost Son (Luke 15:11-32). In both, God’s grace is shown to two parties while one grumbles about unjust treatment.

20:2 the normal daily wage: Greek a denarius, the payment for a full day’s labor; similarly in 20:9, 10, 13.

But they, too, were paid a day's wage. 11 When they received their pay, they protested to the owner, 12 "Those people worked only one hour, and yet you've paid them just as much as you paid us who worked all day in the scorching heat."

13 "He answered one of them, 'Friend, I haven't been unfair! Didn't you agree to work all day for the usual wage?' 14 Take your money and go. I wanted to pay this last worker the same as you. 15 Is it against the law for me to do what I want with my money? Should you be jealous because I am kind to others?"

16 "So those who are last now will be first then, and those who are first will be last."

Jesus Predicts His Death and Resurrection

Matt 20:17-19 // Mark 10:32-34 // Luke 18:31-34

17 As Jesus was going up to Jerusalem, he took the twelve disciples aside privately and told them what was going to happen to him.

18 "Listen," he said, "we're going up to Jerusalem, where the Son of Man will be betrayed to the leading priests and the teachers of religious law. They will sentence him to die. 19 Then they will hand him over to the Romans to be mocked, flogged with a whip, and crucified. But on the third day he will be raised from the dead."

Matt 20:20-28 // Mark 10:35-45; cp. Luke 22:24-27

20 Then the mother of James and John, the sons of Zebedee, came to Jesus with her sons. She knelt respectfully to ask a favor. 21 "What is your request?" he asked.

She replied, "In your Kingdom, please let my two sons sit in places of honor next to you, one on your right and the other on your left."

22 But Jesus answered by saying to them, "You don't know what you are asking! Are you able to drink from the bitter cup of suffering I am about to drink?"

"Oh yes," they replied, "we are able!"

23 Jesus told them, "You will indeed drink from my bitter cup. But I have no right to say who will sit on my right or my left. My Father has prepared those places for the ones he has chosen."

24 When the ten other disciples heard what James and John had asked, they were indignant. 25 But Jesus called them together and said, "You know that the rulers in this world lord it over their people, and officials flaunt their authority over those under them. 26 But among you it will be different. Whoever wants to be a leader among you must be your servant, 27 and whoever wants to be first among you must become your slave. 28 For even the Son of Man came not to be served but to serve others and to give his life as a ransom for many."

Jesus Heals Two Blind Men

Matt 20:29-34 // Mark 10:46-52 // Luke 18:35-43;
cp. Matt 9:27-31

29 As Jesus and the disciples left the town of Jericho, a large crowd followed behind. 30 Two blind men were sitting beside the road. When they heard that Jesus was 20:8 Payment followed the day's work (Deut 24:14-15).

20:16 See 5:19; 8:11-12.

20:18 Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself.

20:19 the Romans: Literally the Gentiles.

20:20-28 Each prediction of Jesus' suffering in Matthew is connected to instruction on the nature of discipleship in light of that suffering (see 16:24-28; 17:24-18:5). This teaching called the Messiah's disciples to follow his example of service and sacrifice.

20:20-21 This mother's question appears to have been inspired by her sons, since Jesus responded to the sons rather than to the mother (cp. Mark 10:35-37).

20:21 The promise of sitting in positions of authority in God's Kingdom had already been given (19:28); the brothers' request seems to have been motivated out of selfish desire for prominence, with no regard for the suffering the Messiah would soon undergo (see 23:6; Luke 14:7-11).

20:22 The cup refers to Jesus' duty, calling, and destiny (see 26:39; John 18:11; see also Ps 75:8; Isa 51:17, 22; Rev 16:19).

20:23 You will indeed: James was eventually martyred (Acts 12:2), and John suffered significant persecution (Acts 4:3; 5:40; Rev 1:9).

20:24 The other disciples . . . were indignant: Selfish ambition was apparently not unique to James and John (see also 21:15; 26:8; Luke 13:14).

20:25-28 The desire for power is characteristic of pagan rulers in this world.

It ought not to be a trait of those who follow the Son of Man (18:1-5; 19:13-15; 23:1-12).

20:27 The word slave is a common metaphor for the submissive relationship of a disciple to his master (8:9; 10:24-25; 24:45-51; 25:14-30). Jesus' disciples serve others, following Jesus' example (e.g., John 13:1-17).

20:28 This expression, the Son of Man came, suggests Jesus' preexistence (see Dan 7:13-14). • Jesus was describing his voluntary offering of himself as a ransom for many, to pay the debt all people owe (see 26:26-29; Isa 53:10-12; Rom 3:24), thereby buying them out of slavery (see Gal 5:1).

20:29-34 The blind men's expression of faith in the Son of David was an acknowledgment of Jesus as the Messiah (see 21:9; 22:42; 2 Sam 7:12-16).

coming that way, they began shouting, "Lord, Son of David, have mercy on us!"

³¹"Be quiet!" the crowd yelled at them.

But they only shouted louder, "Lord, Son of David, have mercy on us!"

³²When Jesus heard them, he stopped and called, "What do you want me to do for you?"

³³"Lord," they said, "we want to see!"

³⁴Jesus felt sorry for them and touched their eyes. Instantly they could see! Then they followed him.

5. THE MESSIAH ACCOMPLISHES

SALVATION (21:1–28:20)

Narrative: Jesus Confronts the Leaders in Jerusalem (21:1–22:46)

Jesus' Messianic Entry into Jerusalem

Matt 21:1–11 // Mark 11:1–11 // Luke 19:28–40 //

John 12:12–19

21 As Jesus and the disciples approached Jerusalem, they came to the town of Bethphage on the Mount of Olives. Jesus sent two of them on ahead. ²"Go into the village over there," he said. "As soon as you enter it, you will see a donkey tied there, with its colt beside it. Untie them and bring them to me. ³If anyone asks what you are doing, just say, 'The Lord needs them,' and he will immediately let you take them."

⁴This took place to fulfill the prophecy that said,

⁵"Tell the people of Jerusalem, 'Look, your King is coming to you. He is humble, riding on a donkey—riding on a donkey's colt.'"

⁶The two disciples did as Jesus commanded. ⁷They brought the donkey and the colt to him and threw their garments over the colt, and he sat on it.

⁸Most of the crowd spread their garments on the road ahead of him, and others cut branches from the trees and spread them on the road. ⁹Jesus was in the center of the procession, and the people all around him were shouting,

"Praise God for the Son of David!

Blessings on the one who comes in the name of the LORD!

Praise God in highest heaven!"

¹⁰The entire city of Jerusalem was in an uproar as he entered. "Who is this?" they asked.

¹¹And the crowds replied, "It's Jesus, the prophet from Nazareth in Galilee."

Jesus Clears the Temple

Matt 21:12–13 // Mark 11:15–17 // Luke 19:45–46; cp. John 2:13–16

¹²Jesus entered the Temple and began to drive out all the people buying and selling animals for sacrifice. He knocked over the tables of the money changers and the chairs of those selling doves. ¹³He said to them, "The Scriptures declare, 'My Temple will be called a house of prayer,' but you have turned it into a den of thieves!"

Jesus Heals in the Temple

¹⁴The blind and the lame came to him in the Temple, and he healed them. ¹⁵The leading priests and the teachers of religious law saw these wonderful miracles and heard even the children in the Temple shouting, "Praise God for the Son of David."

But the leaders were indignant. ¹⁶They asked Jesus, "Do you hear what these children are saying?"

"Yes," Jesus replied. "Haven't you ever read the Scriptures? For they say, 'You have 21:1–28:20 Jesus' entry into Jerusalem initiates Matthew's account of how the Messiah's suffering and resurrection establish salvation.

21:1 Bethphage (a Hebrew name meaning house of figs) was probably located on the eastern slope of the Mount of Olives between Bethany and Jerusalem proper.

21:3 Jesus was revealing himself as the Lord who, as king of Israel, ascends to Mount Zion on a donkey (21:5; see Zech 9:9).

21:4–5 The OT fulfillment here emphasizes the Messiah's non-violent, humble, and saving work (see 11:28–30; Zech 9:9–10; Isa 62:11).

21:5 Tell the people of Jerusalem: Literally Tell the daughter of Zion; Isa 62:11. • donkey's colt: Zech 9:9.

21:7 over the colt, and he sat on it: Literally over them, and he sat on them.

21:9 This verse quotes Ps 118:25–26; 148:1. • Praise God: Greek Hosanna, a Hebrew exclamation of praise that literally means "save now"; also in 21:15.

21:11 The crowds with Jesus understood him to be a prophet, empowered by God to teach and to perform miracles. • The description from Nazareth in Galilee highlights Jesus' humble origins (see 2:23).

21:12–13 The close association of the Temple cleansing (see John 2:13–16) with the cursing of the fig tree (21:18–19) reveals Jesus as the Messiah who confronted Israel and warned that God judges those who reject the Messiah and his message.

21:12 Buying and selling took place within the Temple complex, in the Court of the Gentiles. • Money changers profited from the exchange of money from other currencies into official Jewish currency. Jesus criticized the commercialism that profaned the holiness of the Temple (see Mark 11:11–18).

21:13 Jesus' actions were justified, because God's glory was being desecrated through financial exploitation. • My Temple . . . a den of thieves: Isa 56:7; Jer 7:11.

21:15 The Jewish leaders' stubborn refusal to believe is contrasted with the exuberant faith and praise of little children (see 18:1–14; 19:13–15).

21:16 Haven't you ever read the Scriptures? Jesus put this penetrating question to opponents who did not perceive the fulfillment of messianic promises in his ministry. See also 12:3, 5; 19:4; 21:42; 22:31. • You have taught children and infants to give you praise: Ps 8:2 (Greek version).

Jesus Curses the Fig Tree

Matt 21:20-22 // Mark 11:20-25

¹⁸In the morning, as Jesus was returning to Jerusalem, he was hungry, ¹⁹and he noticed a fig tree beside the road. He went over to see if there were any figs, but there were only leaves. Then he said to it, "May you never bear fruit again!" And immediately the fig tree withered up.

²⁰The disciples were amazed when they saw this and asked, "How did the fig tree wither so quickly?"

²¹Then Jesus told them, "I tell you the truth, if you have faith and don't doubt, you can do things like this and much more. You can even say to this mountain, 'May you be lifted up and thrown into the sea,' and it will happen. ²²You can pray for anything, and if you have faith, you will receive it."

Jesus' Authority Is Challenged

Matt 21:23-27 // Mark 11:27-33 // Luke 20:1-8

²³When Jesus returned to the Temple and began teaching, the leading priests and elders came up to him. They demanded, "By what authority are you doing all these things? Who gave you the right?"

²⁴"I'll tell you by what authority I do these things if you answer one question," Jesus replied. ²⁵"Did John's authority to baptize come from heaven, or was it merely human?"

They talked it over among themselves. "If we say it was from heaven, he will ask us why we didn't believe John. ²⁶But if we say it was merely human, we'll be mobbed because the people believe John was a prophet." ²⁷So they finally replied, "We don't know."

And Jesus responded, "Then I won't tell you by what authority I do these things."

Parable of the Two Sons

²⁸"But what do you think about this? A man with two sons told the older boy, 'Son, go out and work in the vineyard today.' ²⁹The son answered, 'No, I won't go,' but later he changed his mind and went anyway. ³⁰Then the father told the other son, 'You go,' and he said, 'Yes, sir, I will.' But he didn't go.

³¹"Which of the two obeyed his father?"

They replied, "The first."

Then Jesus explained his meaning: "I tell you the truth, corrupt tax collectors and prostitutes will get into the Kingdom of God before you do. ³²For John the Baptist came and showed you the right way to live, but you didn't believe him, while tax collectors and prostitutes did. And even when you saw this happening, you refused to believe him and repent of your sins.

Parable of the Evil Tenant Farmers

³³"Now listen to another story. A certain landowner planted a vineyard, built a wall

21:19 there were only leaves: Mark observes that "it was too early in the season for fruit" (see Mark 11:13). It was spring (just before Passover); figs form in the spring but ripen in the fall.

• immediately the fig tree withered: Matthew has apparently compressed the story (cp. 21:18-22; Mark 11:13-14, 20-23). The cursing of the fig tree is a symbolic gesture depicting God's judgment on Israel for rejecting the Messiah (see 3:9; 8:11-12). Like a fig tree that shows promise but no fruit, the Israelites (especially the hypocritical leaders) did not bear the fruit of receiving the Messiah (see 21:33-46).

21:22 Jesus was exhorting the disciples to trust in God and to pray accordingly. He was not offering God's unconditional endorsement of all that they might desire (1 Jn 5:14-15).

21:23-22:46 This section focuses on the Jewish leaders' attack on Jesus' authority. In each case, Jesus' wisdom revealed the leaders' spiritual blindness. These debates also revealed Jesus' status as Messiah and the consequences of rejecting him. Tragically, the leaders grew more resistant with each encounter and plotted to eliminate Jesus (21:23, 46; 22:15-17, 23, 34, 41).

21:23 Elders (literally elders of the people) were family heads from each tribe who were members of the Sanhedrin in Jerusalem (cp. Ezra 5:5; 6:14; 10:8).

21:24 Jesus propounded a riddle, the solution to which answered the leaders' question and forced them into a dilemma that revealed their hearts (21:25-26). Answering by counter-question was typical for such debates.

21:25 John's ministry, like Jesus' (see 3:1, 5-6), was controversial, especially after John's public denouncement of the sins of Herod Antipas (see 14:4). The leaders did not want to acknowledge that John's ministry was from God, since they had refused to believe John by repenting of their sins (3:2) and accepting Jesus as the Messiah (John 1:29-34).

21:27 The leaders lacked integrity and courage to confess what they believed about John. So Jesus' refusal to answer their original question was fair.

21:28-22:14 Three parables expose the guilt of those who had rejected the Messiah and forfeited their privilege as God's chosen people. The new people of God are only those who embrace the Messiah.

21:28-32 This parable continues the point about John's significance.

21:29-31 "The first": Other manuscripts read "The second." In still other manuscripts the first son says "Yes" but does nothing, the second son says "No" but then repents and goes, and the answer to Jesus' question is that the second son obeyed his father.

21:29 I won't go: This response must have offended Jews who were taught to show outward respect for the authority of a father (see 8:21-22).

21:32 The right way to live is in conformity to God's will (3:15; 5:20; see also Prov 8:20; 12:28).

21:33-46 In this story Jesus draws on Isa 5:1-7. The people of Israel who rejected God's Messiah forfeited the privilege of being God's people. The Christian community, comprised of both Jews and Gentiles, has now been called to be the people of God (cp. Rom 9:4-8; 11:1-12).

around it, dug a pit for pressing out the grape juice, and built a lookout tower. Then he leased the vineyard to tenant farmers and moved to another country. ³⁴At the time of the grape harvest, he sent his servants to collect his share of the crop. ³⁵But the farmers grabbed his servants, beat one, killed one, and stoned another. ³⁶So the landowner sent a larger group of his servants to collect for him, but the results were the same.

⁴⁰"When the owner of the vineyard returns," Jesus asked, "what do you think he will do to those farmers?"

⁴¹The religious leaders replied, "He will put the wicked men to a horrible death and lease the vineyard to others who will give him his share of the crop after each harvest."

⁴²Then Jesus asked them, "Didn't you ever read this in the Scriptures?

'The stone that the builders rejected has now become the cornerstone. This is the LORD's doing, and it is wonderful to see.'

⁴³I tell you, the Kingdom of God will be taken away from you and given to a nation that will produce the proper fruit. ⁴⁴Anyone who stumbles over that stone will be broken to pieces, and it will crush anyone it falls on."

⁴⁵When the leading priests and Pharisees heard this parable, they realized he was telling the story against them—they were the wicked farmers. ⁴⁶They wanted to arrest him, but they were afraid of the crowds, who considered Jesus to be a prophet.

Parable of the Wedding Feast

22 Jesus also told them other parables. He said, ²"The Kingdom of Heaven can be illustrated by the story of a king who prepared a great wedding feast for his son. ³When the banquet was ready, he sent his servants to notify those who were invited. But they all refused to come!

⁴"So he sent other servants to tell them, 'The feast has been prepared. The bulls and fattened cattle have been killed, and everything is ready. Come to the banquet!' ⁵But the guests he had invited ignored them and went their own way, one to his farm, another to his business. ⁶Others seized his messengers and insulted them and killed them.

21:34-35 sent his servants: The prophets had spoken God's word to Israel. The tenant farmers represented the leaders of Israel, whom Jesus held responsible for the deaths of God's prophets (23:29-37).

21:37 Finally: God's revelation climaxed in Jesus (see 13:16-17; Heb 1:1-2).

21:40 When the owner of the vineyard returns refers to the Lord's coming in judgment (see 16:27; 24:1-36).

21:41 The Jewish religious leaders pronounced their own condemnation.

21:42 The cornerstone was either the first stone of the foundation or the capstone (as of an arch), the last to be laid. The very stone that the builders rejected as unworthy of use was, in fact, the most important. Jesus was referring to his own role in the Kingdom of God (21:43) and to the religious leaders' rejection of him. • The quotation is from Ps 118:22-23.

21:43 taken away from you: Either the privilege of being God's chosen nation no longer belonged to the Jews, or the religious leaders had lost the privilege of being leaders of God's people (see Rom 9-11). • The Christian community is a nation that will produce the proper fruit—that is, a life of trust and obedience that demonstrates the inauguration of the Kingdom (see 3:8; 7:15-20; 12:33; 13:8, 26).

21:44 Though in a short while the Messiah's opponents would gain a brief victory, they would ultimately be broken and the stone would crush them because the cross became the gateway to Jesus' vindication and triumph (see also Dan 2:34-35, 44-45). • This verse is not included in some early manuscripts. Cp. Luke 20:18.

21:45 This explanation fits with Matthew's theme of God's judgment on the Jewish leaders who misled the people of Israel (see 23:13-15).

22:1-14 In this parable, Israel, having repeatedly rejected God's word in the past, rejects the Messiah and is judged as a result. In Israel's place, God raised up the church (16:17-19; 21:43), of which righteousness is also expected (Rom 11:11-24).

22:2 The king represents God, whose son is Jesus (Gal 4:4; Heb 1:1-2). • The feast represents the Kingdom of the Messiah.

22:3-5 Those who were invited refers to the nation of Israel, who ignored God's servants, the prophets (see note on 21:33-46).

22:7 Jesus was alluding to the coming destruction of Jerusalem in AD 70 (see 23:37-39; 24:2).

22:8 Those who reject God's invitation aren't worthy to enter his Kingdom (cp. 3:8; 10:13, 37-38).

22:9 everyone you see: God's invitation is no longer restricted to the nation of Israel (see 28:16-20; cp. 10:5-6; 15:21-28).

22:10 good and bad alike: See 13:24-50.

Taxes for Caesar

Matt 22:15-22 // Mark 12:13-17 // Luke 20:20-26
15Then the Pharisees met together to plot how to trap Jesus into saying something for which he could be arrested. 16They sent some of their disciples, along with the supporters of Herod, to meet with him. “Teacher,” they said, “we know how honest you are. You teach the way of God truthfully.

You are impartial and don’t play favorites. 17Now tell us what you think about this: Is it right to pay taxes to Caesar or not?”

18But Jesus knew their evil motives. “You hypocrites!” he said. “Why are you trying to trap me? 19Here, show me the coin used for the tax.” When they handed him a Roman coin, 20he asked, “Whose picture and title are stamped on it?”

21“Caesar’s,” they replied.

“Well, then,” he said, “give to Caesar what belongs to Caesar, and give to God what belongs to God.”

22His reply amazed them, and they went away.

Discussion about Life in the Resurrection

Matt 22:23-33 // Mark 12:18-27 // Luke 20:27-40

23That same day Jesus was approached by some Sadducees—religious leaders who say there is no resurrection from the dead.

Jesus continually offended the Jewish leaders and those who followed them (11:5-6). Though he was born in David’s line, his mother’s reputation was tainted (1:18-25; 13:53-58). Jesus himself was from Nazareth (2:23), a very unprestigious place. His ministry was in Galilee, a backwater distant from official Judaism (4:12-16). His closest associate was the inexplicable John, who baptized people and prophetically castigated the political leaders (11:2-19; 14:3-12). Jesus was evasive in his dialogues (e.g., 13:10-15; 17:24-27; 19:3-10; 21:23-27), he refused to produce signs proving his messianic claims (12:38-42; 16:1-4), and he was accompanied by outcasts of society (9:9-13; 11:16-19). He offended Jewish sensibilities, disregarded Jewish traditions (5:17-20; 9:14-17; 12:1-14; 15:1-20; 21:1-17), and purposefully avoided recognition (8:4; 12:15-21). His revelations were reserved for the unlikely (11:25-27; 13:16-17; 16:13-20), and he often spoke of his own humiliating death (16:21; 17:22-23; 20:18-19; 26:2). Jesus did not come with the flash and spark of someone in need of attention, nor did he make his status and calling glowingly obvious. Instead, he chose the path of humility, privacy, and revelation recognized by faith.

In the end, Jesus was vindicated: He won arguments (15:1-20), exorcized demons (8:28-34), healed wondrously (9:1-8), raised people from the dead (9:18-26), and ultimately rose from the dead himself (28:1-10). His quiet but effective ministry inaugurated God’s Kingdom (11:2-6).

22:11 The term proper clothes corresponds to spiritual fruit that demonstrates real faith (see 7:13-27).

22:13 Weeping and gnashing of teeth express the intense pain and sorrow that result from condemnation for sin and unbelief (see 8:12; 13:42, 50; 24:51; 25:30). • Outer darkness is a metaphor for eternal punishment.

22:14 While many people are called—they hear the invitation to the Kingdom—few are actually chosen by God and respond in faithful obedience to Jesus.

22:15-22 Roman taxation was a controversial issue in first-century Palestine (see also 17:24-27).

22:16 The Pharisees, strict nationalists who resented Roman rule, were normally at odds with the supporters of Herod. Here, the unlikely alliance arose from a mutual hatred of Jesus.

22:17 Is it right . . . or not? The question was designed to trap Jesus. If he answered no, he could be arrested for rebellion against Rome. If he answered yes, he could be accused of supporting Roman oppression.

22:18 You hypocrites! See note on 23:13.

22:19 a Roman coin: Greek a denarius.

22:20 The poll tax had to be paid using the denarius coin, which bore the picture and title of Caesar. OT prohibitions against images (Exod 20:4; Lev 26:1; Deut 4:15-24) made the use of this coin controversial among Jews (see Josephus, War 2.9.2-3). Some Roman procurators apparently produced coins without images for use in Palestine in order not to offend the Jewish conscience.

22:21 Jesus outwitted his opponents by affirming the honor due to Caesar, while clearly differentiating it from the supreme honor and allegiance due to God. Loyalty to God does not necessarily entail disloyalty to the governing authorities. Jesus was acknowledging two dominions, Caesar’s and God’s, the latter having priority (Acts 4:19).

22:23-33 The resurrection was an important issue of Jesus’ day, but the question was raised only to trap Jesus.

22:23 The Sadducees (see 3:7) described a situation involving levirate marriage (see Gen 38:6-11; Deut 25:5-6), which they considered proof that resurrection from the dead is not possible.

They posed this question: ²⁴"Teacher, Moses said, 'If a man dies without children, his brother should marry the widow and have a child who will carry on the brother's name.' ²⁵Well, suppose there were seven brothers. The oldest one married and then died without children, so his brother married the widow. ²⁶But the second brother also died, and the third brother married her. This continued with all seven of them. ²⁷Last of all, the woman also died. ²⁸So tell us, whose wife will she be in the resurrection? For all seven were married to her."

²⁹Jesus replied, "Your mistake is that you don't know the Scriptures, and you don't know the power of God. ³⁰For when the dead rise, they will neither marry nor be given in marriage. In this respect they will be like the angels in heaven.

³¹"But now, as to whether there will be a resurrection of the dead—haven't you ever read about this in the Scriptures? Long after Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob had died, God said, ³²'I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.' So he is the God of the living, not the dead."

³³When the crowds heard him, they were astounded at his teaching.

The Most Important Commandment

Matt 22:34-40 // Mark 12:28-31; cp. Luke 10:25-28

³⁴But when the Pharisees heard that he had silenced the Sadducees with his reply, they met together to question him again. ³⁵One of them, an expert in religious law, tried to trap him with this question: ³⁶"Teacher, which is the most important commandment in the law of Moses?"

³⁷Jesus replied, "'You must love the LORD your God with all your heart, all your soul, and all your mind.' ³⁸This is the first and greatest commandment. ³⁹A second is equally important: 'Love your neighbor as yourself.' ⁴⁰The entire law and all the demands of the prophets are based on these two commandments."

Whose Son Is the Messiah?

Matt 22:41-46 // Mark 12:35-37 // Luke 20:41-44

⁴¹Then, surrounded by the Pharisees, Jesus asked them a question: ⁴²"What do you think about the Messiah? Whose son is he?"

They replied, "He is the son of David."

⁴³Jesus responded, "Then why does David, speaking under the inspiration of the Spirit, call the Messiah 'my Lord'? For David said, ⁴⁴'The LORD said to my Lord,

Sit in the place of honor at my right hand until I humble your enemies beneath your feet.'

⁴⁵Since David called the Messiah 'my Lord,' how can the Messiah be his son?"

⁴⁶No one could answer him. And after that, no one dared to ask him any more questions.

22:24 The quotation is from Deut 25:5-6.

22:29 The power of God most likely refers to God's ability to raise the dead.

22:30 like the angels in heaven: Jesus was not teaching genderlessness (i.e., androgyny) nor disparaging the divine order of marriage and sexuality; rather, he was affirming that people will be transformed into a glorious new existence (see 1 Cor 15:35-49; 2 Cor 5:1-5) in which aspects of the present order, such as marriage, will not be present.

22:31-32 Since God spoke of being the God of Abraham in the present tense, this proves that Abraham still lives, and thus that there is a resurrection.

22:31 read about this in the Scriptures? Long after Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob had died, God said: Literally read about this? God said to you.

22:32 I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob: Exod 3:6.

22:36 Since many strict Jews saw all commandments as equally binding, a careless response to this question could lead to the accusation of undermining the law of God.

22:37 Jesus answers from the Shema (Deut 6:4-9), one of the core statements of God's covenant with Israel. (The first Hebrew word of Deut 6:4-9 is shema, "hear.") • You must love the LORD your God with all your heart, all your soul, and all your mind: Deut 6:5.

22:39 Love your neighbor as yourself: Lev 19:18; see also Rom 13:9; Gal 5:6, 14; Jas 2:8.

22:40 are based on: Jesus' statement affirmed the unity and coherence of God's will, as recorded in Scripture.

22:41-46 Having successfully defended himself against his opponents' traps (21:23-22:40), Jesus questioned them as to how the Messiah can be called both the son of David and, at the same time, the Lord of David (Ps 110:1).

22:42 the son of David: See note on 9:27; see also 2 Sam 7:12-14; Ps 2:7-9; 110; Isa 11:1, 10; Jer 23:5-6.

22:44 The quotation is from Ps 110:1, which is frequently cited by NT authors to describe Jesus (see Acts 2:34-35; 1 Cor 15:25; Heb 1:13; 2:8; 10:12-13; Rev 3:21).

22:45 how can the Messiah be his son? The answer is that Jesus is more than the son of David: He is the Son of God (14:33).

22:46 No one could answer him because they had never thought the Messiah would be God as a human being in the flesh (see John 1:1-14).

23:1-25:46 This final, extended discourse (see note on 5:1-7:29) centers on judgment for rejecting the Messiah.

of religious law and the Pharisees are the official interpreters of the law of Moses.³ So practice and obey whatever they tell you, but don't follow their example. For they don't practice what they teach.⁴ They crush people with unbearable religious demands and never lift a finger to ease the burden.

⁸ "Don't let anyone call you 'Rabbi,' for you have only one teacher, and all of you are equal as brothers and sisters.⁹ And don't address anyone here on earth as 'Father,' for only God in heaven is your Father.¹⁰ And don't let anyone call you 'Teacher,' for you have only one teacher, the Messiah.¹¹ The greatest among you must be a servant.¹² But those who exalt themselves will be humbled, and those who humble themselves will be exalted.

¹⁵ "What sorrow awaits you teachers of religious law and you Pharisees. Hypocrites! For you cross land and sea to make one convert, and then you turn that person into twice the child of hell you yourselves are!

(21:23–22:46), but found none. Jesus now turned to the crowds and to his disciples to openly indict the religious leaders for their numerous failures to conform to God's righteous standards.

23:2 the Pharisees are the official interpreters of the law of Moses: Literally the Pharisees sit in the seat of Moses. They transmitted the oral traditions that were associated with the law and thought to be from Moses, and they judged religious and social matters on the basis of these traditions (see 15:2).

23:3 practice and obey: This was not a blanket endorsement of all that the Pharisees teach (see 15:1-20; 16:5-12; 23:13-39). It might refer only to what was in accord with the law of Moses, or it might be bitter irony or sarcasm. Jesus might also have been counseling conformity to the Pharisees' teachings to avoid giving offense (17:24-27).

23:4 unbearable religious demands: There were 613 legal prohibitions and commands, according to the rabbis (see 11:28-30; Acts 15:10, 28). • never lift a finger: The religious leaders were unwilling to consider relaxing traditional legal statutes.

23:5 On their arms . . . extra long tassels (literally They enlarge their phylacteries and lengthen their tassels): Pious Jews wore, on the head and upper left arm, a small pouch or box (phylactery) containing written copies of important OT commands (see Deut 6:6-9; 11:18-19). • Wearing tassels was another custom associated with piety (see 9:20; see also Num 15:38-41). Lengthening the tassels called attention to their wearer's pious practices.

23:6 The seats of honor in the synagogues were near the scrolls of the Torah and facing the congregation (they were "on the platform").

23:7 Rabbi, from Aramaic, means "master" or "teacher." It was a title of authority and respect.

23:8-12 Jesus does not prohibit the use of titles (especially for one's own father), but rather the assumption of undue honor by those who transmit knowledge about God. The community of Jesus is a brotherhood of equals, each of whom knows God (see 12:46-50; 18:15-20). The terms Rabbi, Father, and Teacher are roughly equivalent.

23:8 Rabbi: These men functioned in Judaism as mediators for dispensing knowledge about God (see 23:7). The new covenant, by contrast, has only one teacher, Jesus himself as Messiah (see Jer 31:31-34). • brothers and sisters: Literally brothers.

23:9 Writings from later Judaism provide ample evidence of revering the teachers by calling them Father (for example, see Mishnah Eduyoth 1:4). • God . . . is your Father: See 6:9; Mal 2:10; cp. 1 Cor 4:15.

23:10 Teacher: This title denotes the function and office of leading others into knowledge about God. Jesus, not the scribes and Pharisees, is the teacher of God's will (5:17).

23:11-12 Jesus' disciples should lead by serving, in stark contrast to Israel's religious leaders (who are described in 23:5-7).

23:13-36 Matthew collected seven statements of what sorrow awaits you (literally woe to you), drawing upon similar OT listings (Isa 5:8-23; Hab 2:6-20) and arranged them to climax in the murder of the prophets.

23:13 What sorrow awaits you: A stark warning of judgment from God. • Hypocrites! In English, hypocrisy describes a contradiction between reality and appearance. But in biblical usage, hypocrisy is misperceiving God's will, leading people astray, and thus incurring God's judgment. Coupled with this is often a desire for prestige and power (23:5-12), abuse of teaching authority, false teachings on doctrine or practice (23:13-22), and preoccupation with ethical minutiae (23:23-28). An accurate English term for this combination of factors is heresy. The Pharisees and teachers of religious law displayed all of these characteristics. As the Christian church began to grow, these characteristics continued to appear (e.g., 1 Tim 4:1-3; 2 Pet 2:1-22), so God's children always need to guard against them (Jas 4:7-10; 1 Pet 2:1-3).

• shut the door of the Kingdom: By their false teaching and opposition to Jesus (see 9:32-34; 12:22-37; 15:12-14; 21:15; John 9:13-34), the teachers of religious law and Pharisees prevented others from hearing and believing the truth about the Messiah. • Some manuscripts add verse 14, What sorrow awaits you teachers of religious law and you Pharisees. Hypocrites! You shamelessly cheat widows out of their property and then pretend to be pious by making long prayers in public. Because of this, you will be severely punished. Cp. Mark 12:40; Luke 20:47.

23:15 A convert (proselyte) made a full conversion to Judaism, performing such observances as baptism, sacrifice, and circumcision (see Acts 13:43). A convert was thus distinct from a "God-fearer," who adopted certain Jewish beliefs, most notably monotheism, without fully converting to Judaism (see Luke 7:4-5; Acts 10:2). It is likely that to make one convert means to persuade God-fearers to become full converts to Judaism by undergoing circumcision (cp. Gal 2:3, 14; 5:2-12; 6:12-13). • of hell: Greek of Gehenna; also in 23:33. See note on 5:29.

16^aBlind guides! What sorrow awaits you! For you say that it means nothing to swear 'by God's Temple,' but that it is binding to swear 'by the gold in the Temple.' 17Blind fools! Which is more important—the gold or the Temple that makes the gold sacred? 18And you say that to swear 'by the altar' is not binding, but to swear 'by the gifts on the altar' is binding. 19How blind! For which is more important—the gift on the altar or the altar that makes the gift sacred? 20When you swear 'by the altar,' you are swearing by it and by everything on it. 21And when you swear 'by the Temple,' you are swearing by it and by God, who lives in it. 22And when you swear 'by heaven,' you are swearing by the throne of God and by God, who sits on the throne.

23^aWhat sorrow awaits you teachers of religious law and you Pharisees. Hypocrites! For you are careful to tithe even the tiniest income from your herb gardens, but you ignore the more important aspects of the law—justice, mercy, and faith. You should tithe, yes, but do not neglect the more important things. 24Blind guides! You strain your water so you won't accidentally swallow a gnat, but you swallow a camel!

25^aWhat sorrow awaits you teachers of religious law and you Pharisees. Hypocrites! For you are so careful to clean the outside of the cup and the dish, but inside you are filthy—full of greed and self-indulgence! 26You blind Pharisee! First wash the inside of the cup and the dish, and then the outside will become clean, too.

27^aWhat sorrow awaits you teachers of religious law and you Pharisees. Hypocrites! For you are like whitewashed tombs—beautiful on the outside but filled on the inside with dead people's bones and all sorts of impurity. 28Outwardly you look like righteous people, but inwardly your hearts are filled with hypocrisy and lawlessness.

29^aWhat sorrow awaits you teachers of religious law and you Pharisees. Hypocrites! For you build tombs for the prophets your ancestors killed, and you decorate the monuments of the godly people your ancestors destroyed. 30Then you say, 'If we had lived in the days of our ancestors, we would never have joined them in killing the prophets.'

31^aBut in saying that, you testify against yourselves that you are indeed the descendants of those who murdered the prophets. 32Go ahead and finish what your ancestors started. 33Snakes! Sons of vipers! How will you escape the judgment of hell?

34^aTherefore, I am sending you prophets and wise men and teachers of religious law. But you will kill some by crucifixion, and you will flog others with whips in your synagogues, chasing them from city to city. 35As a result, you will be held responsible for the murder of all godly people of all time—from the murder of righteous Abel to the murder of Zechariah son of Berekiah, whom you killed in the Temple between the sanctuary and the altar. 36I tell you the truth, this judgment will fall on this very generation.

Matt 23:37-39 // Luke 13:34-35

37^aO Jerusalem, Jerusalem, the city that kills the prophets and stones God's messengers! How often I have wanted to gather your children together as a hen protects her chicks beneath her wings, but you wouldn't let me.

23:16-22 The religious leaders declared certain oaths less binding in order to commit fraud. Jesus calls for honest fulfillment of commitments (see 5:33-37).

23:23-24 tithe even the tiniest income from your herb gardens (literally tithe the mint, the dill, and the cumin): The teachers of religious law and Pharisees thought that meticulous tithing demonstrated their zeal for the law. Without denying the validity of the tithe, Jesus revealed how they had utterly failed to attend to the more important aspects of the law (Isa 1:16-17; Jer 22:3; Hos 6:6; Mic 6:8; Zech 7:9).

23:24 gnat . . . camel: These words form a pun in Aramaic (qalma . . . gamla), the language Jesus probably spoke. See Lev 11:4, 23, where gnats and camels are both forbidden as food.

23:26 Internal purity will result in external righteousness, but the reverse is not true (6:19-34; 12:33-37; 15:15-20). • Some manuscripts do not include and the dish.

23:27-28 It was a Jewish custom to coat limestone tombs (perhaps funerary urns or ossuaries) with a mixture of marble and lime to fill their porous surfaces, giving them a more pleasing appearance and helping visitors to Jerusalem to notice the graves and avoid touching them so as not to contaminate themselves. Jesus is not criticizing the adorning of tombs; rather, he points to the similarity between these whitewashed tombs and the teachers of religious law and Pharisees. Both may have looked good on the outside, but both were contaminated and impure within.

23:29 By building and decorating the tombs for the prophets, the teachers of religious law and Pharisees showed outward solidarity with the prophets, while inwardly they were of the same sinful character as their ancestors who had murdered the prophets.

23:32 finish what your ancestors started: By killing God's Messiah, they would bring to completion Israel's history of killing God's messengers (see 1 Thes 2:14-16).

23:35 The span from Abel (Gen 4:8-11) to Zechariah (2 Chr 24:15-22) follows the order of the Hebrew OT, in which 2 Chr is the last book. The implication is that this generation will be guilty of every murder of the righteous in the OT (cp. 27:25).

23:37 Despite the severe judgment Jesus had just leveled against Israel (23:29-36), he truly longed for them to repent and receive God's grace. • as a hen: An image of protective care (see

cp. Matt 10:16-25

24 As Jesus was leaving the Temple grounds, his disciples pointed out to him the various Temple buildings. ²But he responded, "Do you see all these buildings? I tell you the truth, they will be completely demolished. Not one stone will be left on top of another!"

³Later, Jesus sat on the Mount of Olives. His disciples came to him privately and said, "Tell us, when will all this happen? What sign will signal your ⁴return and the end of the world?"

⁴Jesus told them, "Don't let anyone mislead you, ⁵for many will come in my name, claiming, 'I am the Messiah.' They will deceive many. ⁶And you will hear of wars and threats of wars, but don't panic. Yes, these things must take place, but the end won't follow immediately. ⁷Nation will go to war against nation, and kingdom against kingdom. There will be famines and earthquakes in many parts of the world. ⁸But all this is only the first of the birth pains, with more to come.

⁹Then you will be arrested, persecuted, and killed. You will be hated all over the world because you are my followers. ¹⁰And many will turn away from me and betray and hate each other. ¹¹And many false prophets will appear and will deceive many people. ¹²Sin will be rampant everywhere, and the love of many will grow cold. ¹³But the one who endures to the end will be saved. ¹⁴And the Good News about the Kingdom will be preached throughout the whole world, so that all nations will hear it; and then the end will come.

¹⁵The day is coming when you will see what Daniel the prophet spoke about—the sacrilegious object that causes desecration also Deut 32:11; Ruth 2:12; Ps 17:8; 36:7; 57:1; 61:4; 91:4).

23:38 your house is abandoned and desolate: God would withdraw his presence from the Temple (Ezek 10:18-19; 11:22-23; cp. Matt 1:23), and both the Temple and Jerusalem would be destroyed. • Some manuscripts do not include and desolate.

23:39 Blessings on the one who comes in the name of the Lord: Ps 118:26. This is possibly the prediction of an end-time conversion of the nation of Israel to the Messiah (see also Rom 11:12-32).

24:1-31 Some believe ch 24 pertains to the return of Christ at the end of history. Others view the chapter as a prediction of the events of AD 70, when Jerusalem and the Temple were destroyed by the Romans. Others believe it refers to both. See also notes on Mark 13.

24:1 The architecture of the Temple was a source of pride among Jews—see note on Mark 13:1.

24:2 Not one stone: The destruction of Jerusalem and the Temple was a sign of God's judgment (see 1 Kgs 9:7-9; Jer 7:8-15; 9:10-12; 26:6, 18; Mic 3:12; see also Isa 64:11; Luke 19:44; Acts 6:14).

24:3 The Greek term translated return is parousia, which can mean coming or appearing. • end of the world (or end of the age): This expression refers to the climax and end of an epoch in salvation history (see 13:39-40, 49; also Heb 9:26). Jesus' second coming will bring normal history to a close with decisive judgement. The disciples assumed that the destruction of the Temple and the end of history were closely connected.

24:4-8 Jesus warned the disciples not to be deceived by impostors or overwhelmed by catastrophes in hope of a premature end to history. Time must run its predestined course. The signs predicted in 24:4-8 are not necessarily at the end; rather, they are signs prior to the end.

24:5 claiming, 'I am the Messiah': A series of false prophets and miracle workers evoked messianic images and persuaded the masses to follow them in hope of deliverance during the period between AD 30 and 70 (Josephus, Antiquities 18.4.1; 20.5.1; 20.8.6; War 6.5.2). The earliest recorded instance of an outright claim to be the Messiah was Bar Kochba's claim in AD 132. It is not clear whether Jesus is referring only to impostors in the period prior to the destruction of the Temple or to false messiahs throughout the church age or perhaps during a future tribulation.

24:6 these things must take place: Tumultuous times are part of God's sovereign plan as he brings history to a close (see 24:7, 29-30; 2 Thes 2:8-12). • The end could refer to the close of an epoch (such as at AD 70) or the end of human history as we now know it (cp. 24:13-14; see also 10:22; 13:39-40, 49).

24:8 first of the birth pains: Intense anguish is expected just prior to Jesus' second coming (see also 24:29-31; Isa 13:8; 26:17; Jer 4:31; 6:24; Mic 4:9-10).

24:9 hated (see Acts 28:22): At the end of the first century, the Roman historian Tacitus described Christians as "the hated ones of mankind" (Tacitus, Annales 15.44). The affliction of the righteous sometimes has the purpose of inciting repentance and obedience (see Exod 4:31; Deut 4:30; Judg 10:6-16; Ps 34:19; 37:39; 50:15). • because you are my followers: Literally on account of my name.

24:10 Persecution will lead some to abandon loyalty to Jesus (10:25; 13:21; 16:24-28; 26:33).

24:12 the love of many will grow cold (see Rev 2:4): If the love within the community of Jesus' disciples diminishes to the point of extinction, then the community ceases to be what God has designed it to be.

24:13 The one who endures maintains faithful allegiance to Jesus despite persecution. Here, the end may refer to the end of one's own life, the judgment on Israel in AD 70, or the end of history.

24:14 throughout the whole world: This anticipates the expansive Gentile mission (see 21:43; 28:16-20). There will be a delay prior to the end, however short or long, during which the Good News will spread significantly throughout the nations. • all nations: Or all peoples. • The end will be signaled by a "sacrilegious object" (24:15), furious persecution (24:16-28), and finally the sign of the Son of Man (24:29-31).

24:15 Daniel . . . spoke about a profaning or desolating of the Temple (see standing in the Holy Place." (Reader, pay attention!) ¹⁶"Then those in Judea must flee to the hills. ¹⁷A person out on the deck of a roof must not go down into the house to pack. ¹⁸A person out in the field must not return even to get a coat. ¹⁹How terrible it will be for pregnant women and for nursing mothers in those days. ²⁰And pray that your flight will not be in winter or on the Sabbath. ²¹For there will be greater anguish than at any time since the world began. And it will never be so great again. ²²In fact, unless that time of calamity is shortened, not a single person will survive. But it will be shortened for the sake of God's chosen ones.

²³"Then if anyone tells you, 'Look, here is the Messiah,' or 'There he is,' don't believe it. ²⁴For false messiahs and false prophets will rise up and perform great signs and wonders so as to deceive, if possible, even God's chosen ones. ²⁵See, I have warned you about this ahead of time.

²⁶"So if someone tells you, 'Look, the Messiah is out in the desert,' don't bother to go and look. Or, 'Look, he is hiding here,' don't believe it! ²⁷For as the lightning flashes in the east and shines to the west, so it will be when the Son of Man comes. ²⁸Just as the gathering of vultures shows there is a carcass nearby, so these signs indicate that the end is near.

The Coming of the Son of Man

Matt 24:29-36 // Mark 13:24-32 // Luke 21:25-33

²⁹"Immediately after the anguish of those days,

the sun will be darkened,
the moon will give no light,
the stars will fall from the sky,
and the powers in the heavens will be shaken.

³⁰And then at last, the 'sign that the Son of Man is coming will appear in the heavens, and there will be deep mourning among all the peoples of the earth. And they will see the Son of Man coming on the clouds Dan 8:13; 9:27; 11:31; 12:11). • the sacrilegious object that causes desecration (literally the abomination of desolation; see Dan 9:27; 11:31; 12:11): Attempts to identify a specific fulfillment include: (1) a false priest assuming the priesthood (see Josephus, War 4.3.6-10); (2) the presence of unlawful images of God or humans, or certain humans themselves (such as Antiochus Epiphanes, Caligula, Vespasian, or Titus) who were not to be allowed within the Temple precincts (see Josephus, War 4.4.1-4.7.1); (3) the presence of the antichrist in the Temple (cp. 1 Maccabees 1:54-64; 2 Maccabees 8:17). • Reader, pay attention! This covert statement reflects a special bond between writer and reader, based on a shared understanding that the events being described fulfill the prophecies of Dan 9, 11, and 12.

24:20 Josephus records the winter swelling of the Jordan River, which made it more difficult to cross (see Josephus, War 4.7.5). Muddy roads also made travel difficult in winter. • Normally Jews did not travel on the Sabbath in order to rest as God had commanded (see Gen 2:1-3; Exod 20:8-11; 23:12; 31:12-17; Lev 23:3; Deut 5:12-15; Jer 17:19-27).

24:21 greater anguish: Similar language is found in Neh 9:37; Jer 11:16; Dan 12:1; Joel 2:1-17. The blatant savagery of the times has been documented by Josephus (see War 5.10.2-3).

24:22 God's chosen ones endure (24:13) and remain faithful (24:37-25:46; see Isa 65:8-9; Rom 11:7).

24:24 false messiahs and false prophets (see 7:15; 24:4-8; also Acts 13:6; 2 Pet 2:1; 1 Jn 2:18; 4:1): Revelation describes a particular false prophet (see Rev 16:13). • signs and wonders: Not all miracles are proof of God's approval (see Deut 13:1-4; Rev 13:13).

24:26-28 These verses are an expansion of 24:23. The place and manner of the Messiah's appearing was disputed among Jews. The Messiah's glorious appearance and vindication will be unmistakable.

24:26 Some Jewish prophets persuaded the masses to follow them into the desert to see signs of deliverance (cp. 24:4-8). • hiding here: This is perhaps a reference to secretive sects, such as those at Qumran, or to the small fellowship groups associated with the Pharisees.

24:27-28 Lightning may be an allusion to the astrological phenomena attending the Messiah's coming (see 24:29-31; 1 Thes 4:13-18). It is not the suddenness of lightning that is in view but rather the magnitude of its visibility. Very possibly, Jesus gave these sayings to ward off premature excitement regarding the end (1 Thes 4:13-5:10; 2 Thes 2:1-12).

24:27 Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself.

24:28 Just as . . . is near: Literally Wherever the carcass is, the vultures gather.

24:29-31 These sayings form the climax of the discourse and answer the second of the disciples' initial questions (see 24:3). Some take 24:29-31 to refer to God's judgment on the Jewish people in AD 70, using apocalyptic images and metaphors to describe it. Others see a reference to the second coming of Christ at the end of history.

24:29 the sun will be darkened . . . will be shaken: See Isa 13:10; 34:4; Joel 2:10. This phenomenon can be taken literally, as befitting the climactic self-disclosure of God's Son, or metaphorically, as for a cosmically significant event (see Acts 2:17-21; Heb 12:26-27; 2 Pet 3:10; Rev 6:12-13). Similar apocalyptic language is used frequently in the OT for describing political disasters and the collapse of a government as cosmic judgments from God (e.g., Isa 13:9-16; Ezek 32:1-10; Joel 2:1-17; Amos 8:7-10).

24:30 the sign that the Son of Man is coming (literally the sign of the Son of Man): The sign is probably the Son of Man himself (see 12:38-42; 16:4). His coming expresses his vindication (see 26:64) and will bring deep mourning to those who experience God's judgment. • All the peoples of the earth could be translated all the tribes of the land. The term used here is not the usual Greek term for Gentile nations (ethnoi), but a term used frequently of the tribes (phulai) of Israel (the land), suggesting that a national disaster in Israel might be in view (see 21:43; Zech 12:10-14). • the Son of Man coming on the clouds: See Dan 7:13. Many believe that this means a descent of the Son of Man from God's presence to reside on earth of heaven with power and great glory.

³¹And he will send out his angels with the mighty blast of a trumpet, and they will gather his chosen ones from all over the world—from the farthest ends of the earth and heaven.

³²Now learn a lesson from the fig tree. When its branches bud and its leaves begin to sprout, you know that summer is near.
³³In the same way, when you see all these things, you can know his return is very near, right at the door. ³⁴I tell you the truth, this generation will not pass from the scene until all these things take place. ³⁵Heaven and earth will disappear, but my words will never disappear.

³⁶However, no one knows the day or hour when these things will happen, not even the angels in heaven or the Son himself. Only the Father knows.

Jesus' Return Will Be Sudden

Matt 24:37-41; cp. Luke 17:26-27, 34-35

³⁷When the Son of Man returns, it will be like it was in Noah's day. ³⁸In those days before the flood, the people were enjoying banquets and parties and weddings right up to the time Noah entered his boat. ³⁹People didn't realize what was going to happen until the flood came and swept them all away. That is the way it will be when the Son of Man comes.

⁴⁰Two men will be working together in the field; one will be taken, the other left.

⁴¹Two women will be grinding flour at the mill; one will be taken, the other left.

Matt 24:42-51 // Luke 12:39-48

⁴²So you, too, must keep watch! For you don't know what day your Lord is coming. ⁴³Understand this: If a homeowner knew exactly when a burglar was coming, he would keep watch and not permit his house to be broken into. ⁴⁴You also must be ready all the time, for the Son of Man will come when least expected.

⁴⁵A faithful, sensible servant is one to whom the master can give the responsibility of managing his other household servants and feeding them. ⁴⁶If the master returns and finds that the servant has done a good job, there will be a reward. ⁴⁷I tell you the truth, the master will put that servant in charge of all he owns. ⁴⁸But what if the servant is evil and thinks, 'My master won't be back for a while,' ⁴⁹and he begins beating the other servants, partying, and getting drunk? ⁵⁰The master will return unannounced and unexpected, ⁵¹and he will cut the servant to pieces and assign him a place with the ἡ ὑποκριτὴς. In that place there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

Parable of the Ten Bridesmaids

25 Then the Kingdom of Heaven will be like ten bridesmaids who took their lamps and went to meet the as Judge and Deliverer—i.e., the second coming of Christ. Others have argued that this describes the Son of Man coming in judgment, but not necessarily the second coming of Christ (see 10:23; 16:27; 19:28; 25:31; 26:64; 28:18).

24:31 Many believe that the rapture of God's people through angels (13:41; 16:27; 25:31) is predicted here. Others believe that angels here are human messengers (11:10; Luke 7:24; 9:52; Jas 2:25) and that Jesus is describing the expansion of the Good News among Gentiles (see 21:33-46; 22:1-14; Deut 30:1-10; Isa 27:13; Zech 2:6-13). • from all over the world: Literally from the four winds.

24:33 all these things: This expression, used first at 23:36 ("this judgment"), refers to the events associated with the destruction of the Temple (see 24:2, 8). • his return (literally he or it): It could mean Jesus' return (see Jas 5:9; Rev 3:20), the destruction of the Temple, or the end of history (see Luke 21:31).

24:34 this generation: Or this age, or this nation. In Matthew, generation is used particularly for contemporary, unbelieving Jews, especially focusing on the leaders who have led people away from the Messiah (11:16; 12:39, 41-42, 45; 16:4; 23:36).

24:35 Jesus' words are as sure as God's own (see 5:18; Isa 40:8; 55:11; 59:21).

24:36 The day is the day of judgment. • or the Son: Jesus' limited knowledge is suggested also in Acts 1:7. Because the day is unknown, Jesus' hearers should be vigilant and faithful (see 24:37-25:46). This statement ought to deter those who attempt to calculate the date of our Lord's return. • Some manuscripts do not include or the Son himself.

24:37-25:46 Jesus now applied his predictions (24:1-36) to his followers so they will be faithful and prepared for his second coming.

24:37-41 Jesus' second coming, like the flood (Gen 7), will come upon people unawares. The only adequate preparation is a life of consistent vigilance and obedience (cp. Luke 17:26-27, 34-35).

24:37 When the Son of Man returns: Jesus' second coming (see 24:3; cp. Luke 17:26). • in Noah's day (see Gen 6:9-22; 2 Pet 2:5; 3:5-6): The comparison here does not concern the magnitude of sins, but a lack of discernment about what God is doing, accompanied by a preoccupation with life's festivities (6:19-34).

24:40-41 The term taken most likely means taken in judgment, at AD 70 or at the end of history; left would then mean remaining to enter the new era of either the church (see 21:43; 22:1-14) or the Millennium.

24:42 To keep watch is to maintain active, energetic, single-minded obedience to the Lord (see 25:13; 26:38-41).

24:45-51 This parable and the three that follow (25:1-13, 14-30, 31-46) each dramatize the need for faithful obedience during the delay of Jesus' second coming.

24:45 servant: It is possible that Jesus' listeners would have thought of God's special servants, the prophets and lawgivers; however, Jesus so frequently used servant figuratively that it is more likely a description of every disciple's responsibility (see 10:24-25; 13:27-28; 18:23-35; 20:26).

25:1-13 This parable reinforces the need for individuals to be watchful bridegroom. ²Five of them were foolish, and five were wise. ³The five who were foolish didn't take enough olive oil for their lamps, ⁴but the other five were wise enough to take along extra oil. ⁵When the bridegroom was delayed, they all became drowsy and fell asleep.

⁶At midnight they were roused by the shout, 'Look, the bridegroom is coming! Come out and meet him!'

⁷'All the bridesmaids got up and prepared their lamps. ⁸Then the five foolish ones asked the others, 'Please give us some of your oil because our lamps are going out.'

⁹But the others replied, 'We don't have enough for all of us. Go to a shop and buy some for yourselves.'

¹⁰But while they were gone to buy oil, the bridegroom came. Then those who were ready went in with him to the marriage feast, and the door was locked. ¹¹Later, when the other five bridesmaids returned, they stood outside, calling, 'Lord! Lord! Open the door for us!'

¹²But he called back, 'Believe me, I don't know you!'

¹³'So you, too, must keep watch! For you do not know the day or hour of my return.'

Parable of the Three Servants

Matt 25:14-30 // Luke 19:11-27

¹⁴'Again, the Kingdom of Heaven can be illustrated by the story of a man going on a long trip. He called together his servants and entrusted his money to them while he was gone. ¹⁵He gave five bags of silver to one, two bags of silver to another, and one bag of silver to the last—dividing it in proportion to their abilities. He then left on his trip.

¹⁶'The servant who received the five bags of silver began to invest the money and earned five more. ¹⁷The servant with two bags of silver also went to work and earned two more. ¹⁸But the servant who received the one bag of silver dug a hole in the ground and hid the master's money.

¹⁹'After a long time their master returned from his trip and called them to give an account of how they had used his money. ²⁰The servant to whom he had entrusted the five bags of silver came forward with five more and said, 'Master, you gave me five bags of silver to invest, and I have earned five more.'

²¹'The master was full of praise. 'Well done, my good and faithful servant. You have been faithful in handling this small amount, so now I will give you many more responsibilities. Let's celebrate together!'

²²'The servant who had received the two bags of silver came forward and said, 'Master, you gave me two bags of silver to invest, and I have earned two more.'

²³'The master said, 'Well done, my good and faithful servant. You have been faithful in handling this small amount, so now I will give you many more responsibilities. Let's celebrate together!'

²⁴'Then the servant with the one bag of silver came and said, 'Master, I knew you were a harsh man, harvesting crops you didn't plant and gathering crops you didn't cultivate. ²⁵I was afraid I would lose your money, so I hid it in the earth. Look, here is your money back.'

²⁶'But the master replied, 'You wicked and lazy servant! If you knew I harvested crops I didn't plant and gathered crops I didn't cultivate, ²⁷why didn't you deposit and to prepare for the return of Christ (25:13; see also Luke 12:35-36).

25:1 To meet the bridegroom is an image for the coming of the Messiah (see Mark 2:19-20). • Details of wedding customs during the period are not known. Some think that the bride was led to the home of the bridegroom, who would stay away until the time appointed for the wedding feast. The bridesmaids (or virgins; also in 25:7, 11), who had already escorted the bride to the groom's home, would then wait for news of his arrival and escort him to the feast (25:10). Others think the groom may have come late in the night to the bride's home, where he was announced. Then, after celebrating with the bride's guests, the groom would take his bride under torches or lamps to his home.

25:3 While some have speculated that the oil symbolizes something specific (such as the Holy Spirit), it probably merely supports the point that proper preparation for the second coming of Christ is needed.

25:5 Both the prudent and the foolish bridesmaids sleep while waiting. The parable criticizes only the foolish bridesmaids' failure to bring enough oil.

25:6 The arrival of the bridegroom at midnight while the bridesmaids slept further highlights the fact that the second coming of Jesus will come suddenly, at a time that no one can anticipate (24:42-51).

25:14-30 This parable teaches that the Lord expects his servants to be faithful to the task given to them while waiting for his return. The delay of Christ's return will cause some to turn to evil deeds (24:48-49), some to inactivity (25:3), and some to fearful passivity (25:18).

25:15 bags of silver: Greek talents; also throughout the story. A talent is equal to 75 pounds or 34 kilograms.

25:19 After a long time: This highlights the long delay of Christ's return (24:45-51).

25:21 See 24:45-51; Luke 16:10. • Let's celebrate together (literally Enter into the joy of your master [or your Lord]; also in 25:23) is a metaphor for the Father's approval and perhaps for the messianic banquet (see 6:1, 4, 6, 18; 9:9-17).

25:24 I knew you were . . . harsh: A false understanding of his master becomes this servant's excuse for laziness.

Rev 21:6-8

The parable of the sheep and the goats is an example of the indissoluble link between faith and works. The connection between faith, works, and final approval is a consistent feature of Jesus' teachings (e.g., 7:13-27; 13:3-9, 18-23; 16:27). For Jesus, works are a sure indicator of faith, which begins with repentance (3:8-10)—a conversion of the heart and mind that involves turning away from sin to God (4:17; see also 3:2; 11:20-24; 12:38-42).

Jesus did not teach salvation by works—he taught the necessity of a conversion (an internal reorientation toward God by an act of God's grace), which results in a life of obedience. Good works are the natural consequence of a relationship with Jesus Christ (see, e.g., 7:15-20; 10:32-33; 12:33-37; 13:10-17; 15:15-20; 16:17).

Jesus promises blessing and reward to those who live in accord with God's will (5:3-12). Consequently, righteousness is required of those who want to enter the Kingdom (5:20-48; 7:21; 22:11-14; 23:3). Faith that does not result in works is not saving faith (Jas 2:14-26).

A misapplication of the concept of salvation by grace alone has led to a dichotomy between faith and works. Salvation is not achieved by works, but neither is it without works (see Gal 5:6, 21; Eph 2:10; 5:5; Heb 2:1-4; 1 Jn 1:5-10; Rev 21:8).

25:29 God gives abundant grace to those who are faithful with what they have already been given (see 13:12).

25:31-46 This is a description of the final judgment of which Jesus had been warning (see 7:13-27; 8:10-12; 11:20-24; 12:38-42; 13:24-30, 36-43; 16:24-28; 24:37-25:30).

25:31 To sit upon his glorious throne is here a posture of judgment (see 19:28; 22:44; Dan 7:13-14). • Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself.

25:32 nations: Or peoples.

25:33 The right hand is the place of honor (Gen 48:13-20; Ps 110:1).

25:34 prepared for you from the creation of the world: This might be a reference to God's choosing individuals for salvation in eternity past (see 13:10-17; Eph 1:4; Rev 17:8), or it might simply refer to the Kingdom itself as a place (cp. 25:41).

25:35-36 The deeds described here, often called "deeds of mercy," were acts of compassion shown to the helpless (see Isa 58:1-12; Ezek 18:7; Jas 1:26-27). These good deeds are not attempts to merit God's favor; rather, they arise from a love for Christ that results in compassion toward others (see 6:1-4).

25:37 These righteous ones (see 5:6, 20) are those who do God's will as taught by Jesus, expressed most clearly in deeds of love (7:12; 9:9-13; 22:34-40; 25:35-40).

25:40 my brothers and sisters (literally my brothers): This expresses either Jesus' solidarity with his disciples (see 10:42; 18:1-14; Gal 6:10) or Jesus' solidarity with humanity in general, irrespective of the faith of the one being helped (see 6:1-4; 25:43; Prov 19:17). The use of brothers and sisters points to the first interpretation (12:46-50; 18:15-35; 23:8; 28:10) but does not invalidate social responsibility for other people in general (see Luke 10:30-37).

25:41 his demons: Literally his angels, or his messengers.

stranger, and you didn't invite me into your home. I was naked, and you didn't give me clothing. I was sick and in prison, and you didn't visit me.'

⁴⁴'Then they will reply, 'Lord, when did we ever see you hungry or thirsty or a stranger or naked or sick or in prison, and not help you?'

⁴⁵'And he will answer, 'I tell you the truth, when you refused to help the least of these my brothers and sisters, you were refusing to help me.'

⁴⁶'And they will go away into eternal punishment, but the righteous will go into eternal life.'

Jesus' Arrest (26:1-56)

The Plot to Kill Jesus

Matt 26:1-5 // Mark 14:1-2 // Luke 22:1-2

26 When Jesus had finished saying all these things, he said to his disciples, ²'As you know, Passover begins in two days, and the Son of Man will be handed over to be crucified.'

³At that same time the leading priests and elders were meeting at the residence of Caiaphas, the high priest, ⁴plotting how to capture Jesus secretly and kill him. ⁵'But not during the Passover celebration,' they agreed, 'or the people may riot.'

Jesus Anointed at Bethany

Matt 26:6-13 // Mark 14:3-9; cp. Luke 7:36-50; John 12:1-11

⁶Meanwhile, Jesus was in Bethany at the home of Simon, a man who had previously had leprosy. ⁷While he was eating, a woman came in with a beautiful alabaster jar of expensive perfume and poured it over his head.

⁸The disciples were indignant when they saw this. 'What a waste!' they said. ⁹'It could have been sold for a high price and the money given to the poor.'

¹⁰But Jesus, aware of this, replied, 'Why criticize this woman for doing such a good thing to me? ¹¹You will always have the poor among you, but you will not always have me. ¹²She has poured this perfume on me to prepare my body for burial. ¹³I tell you the truth, wherever the Good News is preached throughout the world, this woman's deed will be remembered and discussed.'

Judas Agrees to Betray Jesus

¹⁴Then Judas Iscariot, one of the twelve disciples, went to the leading priests ¹⁵and asked, 'How much will you pay me to betray Jesus to you?' And they gave him thirty pieces of silver. ¹⁶From that time on, Judas began looking for an opportunity to betray Jesus.

25:46 The Greek term translated eternal can mean either "lasting forever" or "lasting for an age," in this case "the age to come" (13:39-40, 49; 24:3; John 17:3; 2 Thes 1:9; Philm 1:15; 1 Jn 5:11, 13). Some hold out hope that the punishment of the damned will, after "an age," be ended by annihilation or forgiveness. The parallel between eternal life and eternal punishment suggests strongly that it means "lasting forever," since eternal life does not end (see also Luke 16:19-31; Heb 6:2; Rev 20:10).

26:2 The irony is that the Son of Man, who is to judge the nations (25:31-46), must first be wrongly judged and condemned to death by evil people. Jesus' death was the ultimate Passover sacrifice (see John 19:31-37; 1 Cor 5:7). • Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself.

26:3 The residence of Caiaphas, the high priest, was near the Temple in Jerusalem's Upper City. Since it was not the normal meeting place, this gathering was ad hoc, urgent, and probably secretive. The council chamber, the traditional meeting place for the Sanhedrin, was located either at the southern end of the Court of the Israelites in the Temple, or on the western edge of the Temple hill. • Joseph Caiaphas, son-in-law of Annas (see John 18:13), was high priest from AD 18 to 36 (John 11:49), the longest tenure of any high priest from the time of Herod's rule until AD 70. His father-in-law, Annas, had been deposed but continued to be called high priest as well (see Luke 3:2; John 18:13, 19-24).

26:5 Jerusalem was flooded with pilgrims at Passover, and the Jewish leaders worried about having their authority taken away if they caused or allowed anything that resembled revolt against Rome (see 21:8-11, 14-16).

26:6-13 A similar anointing took place earlier in Galilee (Luke 7:36-50). Matthew's insertion of the episode at this point (cp. John 12:1-8) sets the Jewish leaders' murderous plotting (26:3-5) and Judas's betrayal (26:14-16) in sharp contrast to the woman's praiseworthy actions.

26:6 Simon, a man who had previously had leprosy: Jesus' presence in the man's home exhibited the forgiving, healing love Jesus often showed toward outcasts (see 8:7; 9:10).

26:7 eating: Or reclining. • The jar of expensive perfume was a burial ointment (see Mark 16:1; Luke 23:56-24:1; John 12:1-7; 19:38-42) made of nard, which was harvested in India. The value of this jar of perfume was nearly a year's wages (John 12:5).

26:8 The disciples were indignant: John 12:4 indicates that Judas Iscariot incited this reaction.

26:12 to prepare my body for burial: It is not clear whether the woman fully understood the significance of her actions. In addition to preparation for burial, the anointing also speaks of Jesus as king (1 Sam 10:1; 2 Kgs 9:6) and priest (Exod 29:7).

26:14-16 Judas's betrayal was a part of God's sovereign plan (Acts 1:16-17). • Iscariot: See note on 10:4. Judas sold himself to the authorities (see also John 11:57), concealed it (26:25), and then took them to Jesus at the appropriate time so they could carry out their plans (26:47-56; see John 18:2). Later, Judas was overcome by guilt and committed suicide (27:3-10; see Acts 1:15-22). Judas was apparently known for his greed (26:14-15; John 12:4-6; 13:29). It is also possible that he was motivated by disappointment over the nature of Jesus' reign as Messiah, his own humiliation over the anointing of Jesus (see John 12:1-8), or resentment over the leadership of the Galilean apostles, Peter and John. See also "Judas Iscariot" at Mark 14, p. 1685.

26:18 My time: The Messiah would now

17On the first day of the Festival of Unleavened Bread, the disciples came to Jesus and asked, "Where do you want us to prepare the Passover meal for you?"

18"As you go into the city," he told them, "you will see a certain man. Tell him, 'The Teacher says: My time has come, and I will eat the Passover meal with my disciples at your house.'" 19So the disciples did as Jesus told them and prepared the Passover meal there.

20When it was evening, Jesus sat down at the table with the Twelve. 21While they were eating, he said, "I tell you the truth, one of you will betray me."

22Greatly distressed, each one asked in turn, "Am I the one, Lord?"

23He replied, "One of you who has just eaten from this bowl with me will betray me. 24For the Son of Man must die, as the Scriptures declared long ago. But how terrible it will be for the one who betrays him. It would be far better for that man if he had never been born!"

25Judas, the one who would betray him, also asked, "Rabbi, am I the one?"

And Jesus told him, "You have said it."

26As they were eating, Jesus took some bread and blessed it. Then he broke it in pieces and gave it to the disciples, saying, "Take this and eat it, for this is my body."

27And he took a cup of wine and gave thanks to God for it. He gave it to them and said, "Each of you drink from it, 28for this is my blood, which confirms the ^ccovenant between God and his people. It is poured out as a sacrifice to forgive the ^asins of many. 29Mark my words—I will not drink ^bwine again until the day I drink it new with you in my Father's Kingdom."

complete the work for which he was commissioned, to die for the sins of the world.

26:20 Jesus sat down at the table: Or Jesus reclined.

26:23 eaten from this bowl with me: It was the custom for everyone present to dip their food into a common bowl, which probably contained herbs and fruit puree. Sharing a meal was a sign of friendship and trust, making a betrayer's presence all the more startling (26:21; but see John 13:26).

26:24 as the Scriptures declared: Jesus might have been referring to Isa 53:7-9 or to the broad OT theme of a suffering Messiah. This verse combines God's sovereign will with human responsibility.

26:25 Judas referred to Jesus as Rabbi, while the other disciples call him "Lord" (26:22). • "You have said it": This enigmatic statement affirmed that Judas was the betrayer.

26:26-29 The Last Supper derives its significance in part from the Jewish Passover (see Exod 12). The phases of the Jewish liturgy for Passover are as follows: (1) Festal blessing; (2) first cup (see Luke 22:17-18); (3) eating bitter herbs (see 26:23 and note); (4) eating unleavened bread (26:26; Mark 14:22); (5) second cup is mixed; (6) the Passover haggadah (reading) is given (Exod 12); (7) first part of the hallel (Pss 113-114; see note on Pss 113-118); (8) second cup is taken; (9) blessing and eating of unleavened bread (26:26; Mark 14:22; Luke 22:19); (10) the Passover lamb is eaten; (11) third cup (26:27-28; Mark 14:23-24; Luke 22:20); (12) fourth cup (see 26:29[?]; Mark 14:25[?]); (13) time of fellowship; (14) second part of the hallel (Pss 115-118; see Matt 26:30). None of the NT accounts of the Last Supper includes every aspect of a typical Jewish Passover. However, the most important aspects of the Passover that gave meaning to the early Christian celebration of the Lord's Supper are included (see 1 Cor 11:23-25). Jesus, the Lamb of God, is the ultimate Passover lamb and the perfect sacrifice for sin. • this is my body . . . my blood: Ever since the Reformation, there have been three dominant interpretations of Jesus' statements concerning the bread and the wine: (1) that the bread and wine change into the actual body and blood of Jesus Christ (transubstantiation); (2) that Christ is mysteriously present in the sacrament either spiritually (real presence) or "in, with, and under" the bread and wine (consubstantiation); (3) that the bread and wine symbolize the body and blood of Christ, benefiting the recipient through the Spirit by faith (symbolism). See also note on Mark 14:22-25.

26:26 The unleavened bread of the Passover (Exod 12:18) is also described as the "bread of suffering" (Deut 16:3), referring to hardships in Egypt. • The customary blessing over the bread in the Passover meal was "Blessed are you, O Lord our God, King of the universe, who brings forth bread from the earth."

26:27 He gave thanks. The traditional blessing for the Passover cup was "Blessed are you, O Lord our God, King of the universe, who creates the fruit of the vine." An early Christian variant is, "We give thanks to you, our Father, for the Holy Vine of David, your child, whom you made known to us through Jesus your child; glory be to you forever" (Didache 9.2). • The four cups of the Passover meal correspond to the fourfold promise of Exod 6:6-7, with two for deliverance, one for redemption (see 26:27-28), and one for fellowship (see 26:29).

26:28 the covenant: Some manuscripts read the new covenant. Under God's covenant with Israel, the blood of sheep or goats (Exod 12:5, 13; 24:8) was shed and placed on the two doorposts and on the lintel at Passover (Exod 12:7). The blood of Jesus, the sinless Lamb of God, establishes a new covenant (see Jer 31:31). The idea of the covenant is God's unilateral commitment to establish salvation for mankind, fulfilling the promise to Abraham (see Gen 12; Gal 3:15-29; 4:12-31). • to forgive the sins of many: Jesus shed his blood as a sacrifice for sin (see Jer 31:31-34; Mark 14:24). Some have understood many to refer only to God's chosen people, while others have understood many to be an expression meaning "all" (cp. 20:28).

26:29 until the day: Though the Kingdom had been inaugurated in Jesus' ministry, it awaits final consummation (see 1 Cor 15:20-28; Rev 19-22). • until the day I drink it new: The final consummation of the Kingdom is pictured as a feast like the Passover, symbolizing an eternal fellowship of love and peace.

26:30 They sang a hymn: Some have suggested that the Great Hallel (Ps 136) was sung.

Jesus Predicts Peter's Denial

Matt 26:31-35 // Mark 14:27-31; cp. Luke 22:31-34;
cp. John 13:36-38

³¹On the way, Jesus told them, "Tonight all of you will desert me. For the Scriptures say,

"God will strike the Shepherd, and the sheep of the flock will be scattered."

³²But after I have been raised from the dead, I will go ahead of you to Galilee and meet you there."

³³Peter declared, "Even if everyone else deserts you, I will never desert you."

³⁴Jesus replied, "I tell you the truth, Peter—this very night, before the rooster crows, you will deny three times that you even know me."

³⁵"No!" Peter insisted. "Even if I have to die with you, I will never deny you!" And all the other disciples vowed the same.

Jesus Prays in Gethsemane

Matt 26:36-46 // Mark 14:32-42 // Luke 22:39-46

³⁶Then Jesus went with them to the olive grove called Gethsemane, and he said, "Sit here while I go over there to pray." ³⁷He took Peter and Zebedee's two sons, James and John, and he became anguished and distressed. ³⁸He told them, "My soul is crushed with grief to the point of death. Stay here and keep watch with me."

³⁹He went on a little farther and bowed with his face to the ground, praying, "My Father! If it is possible, let this cup of suffering be taken away from me. Yet I want your will to be done, not mine."

⁴⁰Then he returned to the disciples and found them asleep. He said to Peter, "Couldn't you watch with me even one hour?"

⁴¹Keep watch and pray, so that you will not give in to temptation. For the spirit is willing, but the body is weak!"

⁴²Then Jesus left them a second time and prayed, "My Father! If this cup cannot be taken away unless I drink it, your will be done." ⁴³When he returned to them again, he found them sleeping, for they couldn't keep their eyes open.

⁴⁴So he went to pray a third time, saying the same things again. ⁴⁵Then he came to the disciples and said, "Go ahead and sleep. Have your rest. But look—the time has come. The Son of Man is betrayed into the hands of sinners. ⁴⁶Up, let's be going. Look, my betrayer is here!"

Jesus Is Betrayed and Arrested

Matt 26:47-56 // Mark 14:43-52 // Luke 22:47-53 // John 18:1-12

⁴⁷And even as Jesus said this, Judas, one of the twelve disciples, arrived with a crowd of men armed with swords and clubs. They had been sent by the leading priests and elders of the people. ⁴⁸The traitor, Judas, had given them a prearranged signal: "You will know which one to arrest when I greet him with a kiss." ⁴⁹So Judas came straight to Jesus. "Greetings, 'Rabbi!'" he exclaimed and gave him the kiss.

⁵⁰Jesus said, "My friend, go ahead and do what you have come for."

Then the others grabbed Jesus and arrested him. ⁵¹But one of the men with Jesus pulled out his sword and struck the high priest's slave, slashing off his ear.

⁵²"Put away your sword," Jesus told him. "Those who use the sword will die by the sword." ⁵³Don't you realize that I could ask my Father for thousands of angels to protect us, and he would send them instantly? ⁵⁴But if I did, how would the Scriptures be 26:31 God will strike (literally I will strike; Zech 13:7): In Zech 13:7-9, the Shepherd, God's partner, is struck down (understood by Jesus as a prediction of his own death), and out of the scattered sheep emerge a purged, purified remnant of faithful ones (Zech 13:8-9). In the short term, the disciples would soon be scattered and deny association with Jesus (26:34, 56, 69-75).

26:32 Jesus foresaw a time of restoration for the disciples despite their imminent abandonment of him (see ch 28; John 21).

26:35 While Peter's denial receives the most attention, all the other disciples denied or avoided association with Christ as well (see 26:56).

26:36-46 This scene reveals the depth of Jesus' awareness of the suffering that awaited him on the cross, as well as his utter commitment to God's will (see 20:28). Expressions in 26:41-42 echo the Lord's Prayer (6:9-13).

26:36 Gethsemane is the name of an olive orchard approximately 250 yards east of Jerusalem's Golden Gate, overlooking the Kidron Valley on the edge of the Mount of Olives. Jesus and his disciples apparently met there often (Luke 22:39-40; John 18:1-2).

26:37 He took Peter . . . James and John: These three, apparently the leaders of the apostles, received special revelation (17:1-13) and accompanied Jesus in this difficult hour. • Jesus became anguished and distressed from contemplating the Father's plan for him, to absorb God's wrath toward humans for their sin (see 27:45-46).

26:38 crushed with grief: See John 12:27; cp. Ps 42:5-6, 11; 43:5.

26:39 If it is possible: Jesus' heart's desire was for uninterrupted communion with the Father instead of coming under God's wrath. • Yet I want your will to be done: His resolution to do the Father's will was firm (4:1-11; 16:23; John 6:38).

26:42 If this cup cannot be taken away: Literally If this cannot pass.

26:49 Judas . . . gave him the kiss: Judas's use of a sign of affection to betray Jesus amplifies the heinousness of his betrayal.

26:51 one of the men with Jesus: This was Peter (John 18:26).

26:53 thousands (literally twelve legions): Jesus used Roman military language (a legion consisted of approximately 6,000 soldiers) to describe the aid he could receive from God. Jesus was not a helpless victim; he permitted his own arrest.

⁵⁵Then Jesus said to the crowd, "Am I some dangerous revolutionary, that you come with swords and clubs to arrest me? Why didn't you arrest me in the Temple? I was there teaching every day. ⁵⁶But this is all happening to fulfill the words of the prophets as recorded in the Scriptures." At that point, all the disciples deserted him and fled.

Jesus' Trial (26:57-27:26)

Jesus' Trial before the Jewish High Council

Matt 26:57-68 // Mark 14:53-65 // Luke 22:63-71;

cp. John 18:19-24

⁵⁷Then the people who had arrested Jesus led him to the home of Caiaphas, the high priest, where the teachers of religious law and the elders had gathered. ⁵⁸Meanwhile, Peter followed him at a distance and came to the high priest's courtyard. He went in and sat with the guards and waited to see how it would all end.

⁵⁹Inside, the leading priests and the entire high council were trying to find witnesses who would lie about Jesus, so they could put him to death. ⁶⁰But even though they found many who agreed to give false witness, they could not use anyone's testimony. Finally, two men came forward ⁶¹who declared, "This man said, 'I am able to destroy the Temple of God and rebuild it in three days.'"

⁶²Then the high priest stood up and said to Jesus, "Well, aren't you going to answer these charges? What do you have to say for yourself?" ⁶³But Jesus remained silent. Then the high priest said to him, "I demand in the name of the living God—tell us if you are the Messiah, the Son of God."

The Jewish High Council (26:59)

The high council of Jewish aristocrats in Jerusalem was endowed with considerable power in governing the Jewish people. It is traditionally called the Sanhedrin, a transliteration of the Greek word sunedrion ("council").

According to Jewish tradition, the Sanhedrin dates from Moses' choice of seventy elders (Num 11:16), but the earliest datable reference is found in Josephus (Antiquities 12.3.3) from the time of Antiochus the Great (223–187 BC). The Sanhedrin probably emerged from a self-governing body of leaders under the Persians (see Ezra 5:5-9; Neh 2:16). The high council was always controlled by the priestly class under the leadership of the high priest, though these priests were influenced to various degrees by Roman rulers and Pharisees. Herod the Great exercised a particularly heavy hand over the affairs of the Sanhedrin.

The Sanhedrin managed the internal legal and religious affairs of Judaism, including judicial decisions not resolved in lesser courts (called "local sanhedrins"), criminal justice and arrests, and official (though unenforceable) decisions regarding Jewish matters (e.g., Acts 9:1-2). Though the Sanhedrin could not of its own accord put tried criminals to death (e.g., John 18:31), apparently it could do so with the support of Roman officials.

The destruction of Jerusalem in AD 70 eliminated the high council as the ruling body of Judaism.

26:54 For Jesus to have resisted would have impeded the fulfillment of God's saving work (see 16:21-23).

26:55 The leaders' clandestine behavior was driven by fear of the masses who revered Jesus (see 21:26, 46; 26:3-5).

26:56 It is not clear which of the Scriptures Jesus was alluding to—perhaps Isa 53, or perhaps the OT theme of a suffering Messiah in general. • As Jesus had predicted earlier that evening, all the disciples deserted him (26:31-35).

26:57-27:26 The Gospels record Jesus as undergoing five hearings: (1) an informal hearing before Annas (John 18:13-24); (2) a night hearing before the Sanhedrin (26:59-66); (3) a morning hearing before the Sanhedrin (27:1-2); (4) a hearing before Herod Antipas

(Luke 23:6-12); and (5) a two-stage trial before Pilate (27:11-31; see Luke 23:6-12). It all amounts to two trials, a Jewish trial and a Roman trial.

26:57-68 This hearing might have been little more than an unofficial preliminary hearing designed to establish consensus on the terms of the charges. The Jewish leaders were under considerable pressure to keep this incident secret, lest their actions cause a riot (see 21:26, 46; 26:5, 55; John 11:45-53).

26:58 the high priest's courtyard: This location suggests an ad hoc meeting of the Sanhedrin at the palace of the high priest (26:3).

26:59 were trying to find witnesses: The verb tense suggests an extended, perhaps desperate, attempt to find any testimony that could lead to a formal accusation (see Mark 14:55-56). • the entire high council: Greek the Sanhedrin.

26:60 could not use anyone's testimony: The evidence was too insubstantial or inconsistent to meet their goal of a death sentence until two men came forward (Deut 17:6; 19:15) with testimonies that did not conflict.

26:61 The charge is either a misunderstanding or a deliberate distortion of Jesus' prediction of his death and resurrection (see John 2:19-21).

26:63 if you are the Messiah: This question from the high priest was prompted by Zech 6:12, which had predicted that the Messiah would rebuild the Temple (cp. 26:61).

⁶⁴Jesus replied, "You have said it. And in the future you will see the Son of Man seated in the place of power at God's right hand and coming on the clouds of heaven."

⁶⁵Then the high priest tore his clothing to show his horror and said, "Blasphemy! Why do we need other witnesses? You have all heard his blasphemy. ⁶⁶What is your verdict?"

"Guilty!" they shouted. "He deserves to die!"

⁶⁷Then they began to spit in Jesus' face and beat him with their fists. And some slapped him, ⁶⁸jeering, "Prophecy to us, you Messiah! Who hit you that time?"

Peter Denies Jesus

Matt 26:69-75 // Mark 14:66-72 // Luke 22:54-62 // John 18:15-18, 25-27

⁶⁹Meanwhile, Peter was sitting outside in the courtyard. A servant girl came over and said to him, "You were one of those with Jesus the Galilean."

⁷⁰But Peter denied it in front of everyone. "I don't know what you're talking about," he said.

⁷¹Later, out by the gate, another servant girl noticed him and said to those standing around, "This man was with Jesus of Nazareth."

⁷²Again Peter denied it, this time with an oath. "I don't even know the man," he said.

⁷³A little later some of the other bystanders came over to Peter and said, "You must be one of them; we can tell by your Galilean accent."

⁷⁴Peter swore, "A curse on me if I'm lying—I don't know the man!" And immediately the rooster crowed.

⁷⁵Suddenly, Jesus' words flashed through Peter's mind: "Before the rooster crows, you will deny three times that you even know me." And he went away, weeping bitterly.

Jesus Is Taken to the Roman Governor

Matt 27:1-2 // Mark 15:1 // Luke 23:1 // John 18:28

27Very early in the morning the leading priests and the elders of the people met again to lay plans for putting Jesus to death. ²Then they bound him, led him away, and took him to Pilate, the Roman governor.

Judas Hangs Himself

Matt 27:3-10; cp. Acts 1:18-19

³When Judas, who had betrayed him, realized that Jesus had been condemned to die, he was filled with remorse. So he took the thirty pieces of silver back to the leading priests and the elders. ⁴"I have sinned," he declared, "for I have betrayed an innocent man."

"What do we care?" they retorted. "That's your problem."

26:64 You have said it: This purposefully enigmatic response is essentially an affirmative answer (see 26:25; 27:11); Mark has "I Am" (Mark 14:62).

• you will see: By quoting Dan 7:13, Jesus affirmed that he was the Son of Man who would be vindicated and exalted by God. • seated in the place of power at God's right hand (literally seated at the right hand of the power; see Ps 110:1): Jews were reluctant to name God directly (see note on 5:4). • The term coming on the clouds of heaven (see Dan 7:13) could refer either to the destruction of Jerusalem in AD 70 or to Jesus' second coming at the end of history.

26:65 Blasphemy! Caiaphas evidently understood Jesus' claim to be the exalted Son of Man as a blasphemy against God's majesty. The Son of Man (Dan 7:13-14) was closely associated with this majesty.

26:67-68 Such abuse fulfills Isa 50:6; 53:4-9 and Jesus' own predictions (16:21; 17:22-23; 20:18-19; 26:2; see also Mark 14:65).

26:69-75 Peter's denials fulfill Jesus' prediction (26:34).

26:71 Jesus of Nazareth: Or Jesus the Nazarene.

26:73 your Galilean accent: Jews from Galilee had a distinctive accent, compared with those from Judea (cp. 4:13 and note).

26:75 When the crowing of the rooster reminded Peter of Jesus' prediction (26:34), he was struck with sorrow.

27:1-2 The Jewish leaders were ready to level charges against Jesus before Pilate so that he would order Jesus' execution. Pilate, a Gentile, fulfills Jesus' prediction (20:19).

27:1 The charge of blasphemy (26:65-66), though sufficient for the death penalty among Jews, would not convince a Roman judge. Hence, the leading priests and the elders conspired together to prepare a more political charge consistent with capital offenses in Roman law (see 27:11-26; Luke 23:2).

27:2 Tiberius Caesar appointed Pilate to be the governor (or prefect) of Judea. Pilate ruled primarily from Caesarea, not Jerusalem, from AD 26 to AD 36. Though he had sovereign power in Judea, Pilate was ultimately responsible to the legate of Syria, the central authority in the eastern portion of the Roman empire. Josephus records several instances where Pilate's disregard for the sanctity of Jewish customs led to revolt.

27:3-10 There are two accounts of Judas's death—this one and Acts 1:18-19. There are differences between the two: (1) Matthew states that the priests bought the field (27:6-7), while Acts seems to suggest that Judas bought it (Acts 1:18); (2) Matthew reports that Judas committed suicide by hanging himself (27:5), while Acts enigmatically refers to a fall and an abdominal rupture (Acts 1:18); (3) Matthew implies that the field of blood was so named because it became a place of burial (27:7-8), while Acts suggests that it was because of Judas's violent death there (Acts 1:19). The two accounts are compatible if one takes the account in Acts as describing the effects of the actions described in Matthew.

27:3 Judas was filled with remorse (Greek metamelomai), but he did not repent (Greek metanoō), which would have changed his heart and resulted in obedience and a relationship with God based on faith.

27:4 an innocent man: Jesus' innocence is a dominant theme in the narrative of his suffering (see 23:35; 26:55-56, 59-60; 27:18-19, 24; see also Luke 23:47).

⁵Then Judas threw the silver coins down in the Temple and went out and hanged himself.

⁶The leading priests picked up the coins. "It wouldn't be right to put this money in the Temple treasury," they said, "since it was payment for murder." ⁷After some discussion they finally decided to buy the potter's field, and they made it into a cemetery for foreigners. ⁸That is why the field is still called the Field of Blood. ⁹This fulfilled the prophecy of Jeremiah that says,

"They took the thirty pieces of silver—the price at which he was valued by the people of Israel, ¹⁰ and purchased the potter's field, as the LORD directed."

Jesus' Trial before Pilate

Matt 27:11-14 // Mark 15:2-5 // Luke 23:2-5 // John 18:29-38b

¹¹Now Jesus was standing before Pilate, the Roman governor. "Are you the king of the Jews?" the governor asked him.

Jesus replied, "You have said it."

¹²But when the leading priests and the elders made their accusations against him, Jesus remained silent. ¹³"Don't you hear all these charges they are bringing against you?" Pilate demanded. ¹⁴But Jesus made no response to any of the charges, much to the governor's surprise.

Jesus Is Sentenced to Death

¹⁵Now it was the governor's custom each year during the Passover celebration to release one prisoner to the crowd—anyone they wanted. ¹⁶This year there was a notorious prisoner, a man named Barabbas. ¹⁷As the crowds gathered before Pilate's house that morning, he asked them, "Which one do you want me to release to you—Barabbas, or Jesus who is called the Messiah?" ¹⁸(He knew very well that the religious leaders had arrested Jesus out of envy.)

¹⁹Just then, as Pilate was sitting on the judgment seat, his wife sent him this message: "Leave that innocent man alone. I suffered through a terrible nightmare about him last night."

²⁰Meanwhile, the leading priests and the elders persuaded the crowd to ask for Barabbas to be released and for Jesus to be put to death. ²¹So the governor asked again, "Which of these two do you want me to release to you?"

The crowd shouted back, "Barabbas!"

²²Pilate responded, "Then what should I do with Jesus who is called the Messiah?"

They shouted back, "Crucify him!"

²³"Why?" Pilate demanded. "What crime has he committed?"

But the mob roared even louder, "Crucify him!"

²⁴Pilate saw that he wasn't getting anywhere and that a riot was developing. So he sent for a bowl of water and washed his hands before the crowd, saying, "I am innocent of this man's blood. The responsibility is yours!"

²⁵And all the people yelled back, "We will 27:5 hanged himself: Judas's suicide resulted from a guilt-stricken, unrepentant conscience. His death satisfied OT law regarding the punishment of a false witness (see Deut 19:16-21).

27:6 since it was payment for murder: Literally since it is the price for blood.

27:7 Foreigners were Gentiles who died in Jerusalem. An asset whose owner could not be traced was used for public charity. In this instance, unclean money was used to buy an unclean place for unclean people.

27:8 Field of Blood is a way of describing a cemetery (cp. Acts 1:18-19).

27:9-10 the prophecy of Jeremiah: The citation is from Zech 11:12-13. Matthew might merely have been conforming to the Jewish custom of citing books by referring to the first book in the particular scroll—the first book in the scroll containing Zechariah would have been Jeremiah. Or, Matthew might have thought of similar passages in Jeremiah (Jer 19:1-13; 18:2-6; 32:6-15) along with Zech 11:12-13. • Matthew sees a striking resemblance between Zechariah's actions and those of the leading priests. Both contexts deal with the rejection of God's messenger who was to be king of God's people. • They took: Or I took. The Greek can be interpreted either way. • as the LORD directed: Literally as the LORD directed me. Zech 11:12-13; Jer 32:6-9.

27:11-26 The Roman trial included an initial hearing before Pilate (27:11-14), one before Herod Antipas (Luke 23:6-16), and a second hearing before Pilate (27:15-26).

27:11 king of the Jews: The Sanhedrin's original charge of blasphemy (26:65-66; 27:1) held no interest to the Romans, who saw it as a Jewish religious question (cp. Acts 25:18-20). The charge was therefore changed to incriminate Jesus in Roman eyes as a political rebel (see Luke 23:2).

27:15 Pilate's custom seems out of character; he was not known for wanting to please his Jewish subjects. However, if Pilate's position with Caesar was precarious at this point (see note on John 19:12; see Philo, On the Embassy to Gaius 159-161), then this gesture may have been to keep the peace and thus avoid negative attention from Rome.

27:16 notorious prisoner . . . named Barabbas (some manuscripts read Jesus Barabbas; also in 27:17): Elsewhere he is called a "revolutionary" (Mark 15:7; John 18:40), a term that also denotes a robber or insurrectionist (see Luke 23:19). To the zealots, Barabbas was a hero.

27:19 through a terrible nightmare (cp. 1:20): It is ironic that a pagan recognizes and takes a stand for Jesus' innocence, while the Jewish crowd does not.

27:24 The responsibility is yours! The priests had said the same thing to Judas (27:4).

27:25 all the people (see 21:43): This does not mean every living Jew. Instead, take responsibility for his death—we and our children!”

²⁶So Pilate released Barabbas to them. He ordered Jesus flogged with a lead-tipped whip, then turned him over to the Roman soldiers to be crucified.

Jesus' Death and Burial (27:27-66)

²⁷Some of the governor's soldiers took Jesus into their headquarters and called out the entire regiment. ²⁸They stripped him and put a scarlet robe on him. ²⁹They wove thorn branches into a crown and put it on his head, and they placed a reed stick in his right hand as a scepter. Then they knelt before him in mockery and taunted, “Hail! King of the Jews!” ³⁰And they spit on him and grabbed the stick and struck him on the head with it. ³¹When they were finally tired of mocking him, they took off the robe and put his own clothes on him again. Then they led him away to be crucified.

The Crucifixion

Matt 27:32-44 // Mark 15:21-32 // Luke 23:26-43 // John 19:17-24

³²Along the way, they came across a man named Simon, who was from Cyrene, and the soldiers forced him to carry Jesus' cross.

³³And they went out to a place called Golgotha (which means “Place of the Skull”).

³⁴The soldiers gave Jesus wine mixed with bitter gall, but when he had tasted it, he refused to drink it.

³⁵After they had nailed him to the cross, the soldiers gambled for his clothes by throwing dice. ³⁶Then they sat around and kept guard as he hung there. ³⁷A sign was fastened above Jesus' head, announcing the charge against him. It read: “This is Jesus, the King of the Jews.” ³⁸Two revolutionaries were crucified with him, one on his right and one on his left.

³⁹The people passing by shouted abuse, shaking their heads in mockery. ⁴⁰“Look at you now!” they yelled at him. “You said you were going to destroy the Temple and rebuild it in three days. Well then, if you are the Son of God, save yourself and come down from the cross!”

⁴¹The leading priests, the teachers of religious law, and the elders also mocked Jesus.

⁴²“He saved others,” they scoffed, “but he can't save himself! So he is the King of Israel, is he? Let him come down from the cross right now, and we will believe in him!”

those urging Jesus' condemnation are representative of all of unbelieving Israel, whose actions bring consequences for the nation as a whole (e.g., the destruction of Jerusalem in AD 70). • We will take responsibility for his death—we and our children (literally His blood be on us and on our children; see 23:35; 2 Sam 1:16; 14:9; Jer 51:35; Acts 5:28; 18:6; 20:26); Christians have at times misunderstood and misused this verse in persecution of Jews, but it is not an indictment against Jews in general.

27:26 When a man was flogged, he was beaten with whips that had leather thongs at the end, some with sharp bone, lead, or rock fragments stuck to the ends of the thongs (see also Deut 25:1-3; 1 Kgs 12:11, 14; Acts 16:22; 22:25; 2 Cor 11:24-25).

27:27-31 In the Jewish trial Jesus was mocked as a prophet (26:67-68); here he is mocked as a king.

27:27 The governor's soldiers were auxiliary troops recruited from non-Jewish residents of Palestine. • Their headquarters (or The Praetorium) was located at the official residence of the governor in Jerusalem (the Antonia Fortress on the northwest corner of the Temple compound).

27:28-29 The scarlet robe was probably the cloak of a soldier meant to emulate royal garb solely for the purpose of ridi-culing Jesus. • Weaving thorn branches into a crown was a mockery of Jesus as king.

27:32-44 Ironically, the taunts and ridicule of the crowd express the truth about Jesus: He is the Son of God and King of Israel, the Messiah.

27:32 Normally, the victim carried his own cross. Only the crossbeam was carried; the vertical pole would be waiting at the crucifixion site. Simon might have been forced because Jesus was weak from the effects of scourging. The act of enlisting Simon might also have been a further mockery. Jesus was treated as one who deserved a servant even though he was being marched to his death.

• Cyrene was a city in northern Africa.

27:34 Giving Jesus wine mixed with bitter gall was probably intended for ridicule (see Ps 69:21). It was also a sedative—Jesus probably rejected it in order to suffer fully for our sins (see Isa 53:10).

• Gall, otherwise known as wormwood, is a bitter narcotic made from the oil of Artemisia (cp. Mark 15:23).

27:35 they . . . nailed him to the cross: Crucifixion, though not generally practiced by Jews, was a widespread Roman punishment for military and political offenders, particularly slaves, rebels, and insurrectionists. The sheer cruelty and the public spectacle of crucifixion worked as a powerful social deterrent.

Victims were flogged and then crucified naked, adding to the humiliation. It was seen as the most painful of all possible deaths; it involved intense suffering, exposure to weather and insects, suffocation, and often a final violent thrust of a spear to end life. Further, since crucifixion was a curse from God (Deut 21:22-23), the act was particularly heinous to Jewish sensibilities. Paradoxically, what was so despicable among humans has become the instrument of our salvation. Jesus previously had instructed his disciples to take up their crosses and follow him (16:24). • by throwing dice: Literally by casting lots. A few late manuscripts add This fulfilled the word of the prophet: “They divided my garments among themselves and cast lots for my robe.” See Ps 22:18.

27:37 The official charge was fastened to the cross above the criminal's head; Jesus was crucified for political sedition.

27:38 Crucifying Jesus between two convicted revolutionaries (or criminals; also in 27:44) added further humiliation and guilt by association.

27:40 if you are the Son of God: This taunt recalls Jesus' temptation at the very beginning of his public ministry (4:1-11), in which the devil appealed to Jesus' privileged status in order to tempt him to avoid suffering (see also 16:21-23).

The Death of Jesus

Matt 27:45-56 // Mark 15:33-41 // Luke 23:44-49 // John 19:28-30

45At noon, darkness fell across the whole land until three o'clock. 46At about three o'clock, Jesus called out with a loud voice, "Eli, Eli, lema sabachthani?" which means "My God, my God, why have you abandoned me?"

47Some of the bystanders misunderstood and thought he was calling for the prophet Elijah. 48One of them ran and filled a sponge with sour wine, holding it up to him on a reed stick so he could drink. 49But the rest said, "Wait! Let's see whether Elijah comes to save him."

50Then Jesus shouted out again, and he released his spirit. 51At that moment the curtain in the sanctuary of the Temple was torn in two, from top to bottom. The earth shook, rocks split apart, 52and tombs opened. The bodies of many godly men and women who had died were raised from the dead. 53They left the cemetery after Jesus' resurrection, went into the holy city of Jerusalem, and appeared to many people.

54The Roman officer and the other soldiers at the crucifixion were terrified by the earthquake and all that had happened. They said, "This man truly was the Son of God!"

55And many women who had come from Galilee with Jesus to care for him were watching from a distance. 56Among them were Mary Magdalene, Mary (the mother of James and Joseph), and the mother of James and John, the sons of Zebedee.

The Burial of Jesus

Matt 27:57-61 // Mark 15:42-47 // Luke 23:50-56 // John 19:38-42

57As evening approached, Joseph, a rich man from Arimathea who had become a follower of Jesus, 58went to Pilate and asked for Jesus' body. And Pilate issued an order to release it to him. 59Joseph took the body and wrapped it in a long sheet of clean linen cloth. 60He placed it in his own new tomb, which had been carved out of the rock. Then he rolled a great stone across the entrance and left. 61Both Mary Magdalene and the other Mary were sitting across from the tomb and watching.

27:45 Darkness symbolizes the judgment of God or, more specifically, the arrival of the day of the Lord (see Amos 8:9-10; 5:18, 20; also Jer 4:27-28; 13:16; 15:9).

27:46 Eli, Eli: Some manuscripts read Eloi, Eloi. This cry means My God, my God, but the similarity in sound accounts for the people's confusion (27:47). • My God, my God, why have you abandoned me? Ps 22:1. Jesus was experiencing God's wrath for the sins of humanity.

27:47 It was widely believed that Elijah would return before the day of the Lord (11:14-15; 17:10-13; Mal 4:5).

27:48 The sour wine was vinegar. The drink was probably designed to mock Jesus (cp. Ps 69:21 with Matt 27:34) by pretending to help assuage his thirst. Others have suggested that it was given as an act of genuine kindness.

27:49 Some manuscripts add And another took a spear and pierced his side, and out flowed water and blood. Cp. John 19:34.

27:50 Each of the four Gospels highlights different aspects of Jesus' last moments. • released his spirit: This emphasizes the sovereignty of Jesus in that he released himself to death (see also John 19:30). • shouted out again (see 27:46): This cry was Jesus' final prayer (see Luke 23:46).

27:51 The significance of the splitting of the curtain in the Temple is that the wall dividing people from God has been torn down by the death of Jesus Christ (see also Eph 2:11-22; Heb 6:19; 9:1-10:25). • The earth shook, rocks split apart: These are portents of the arrival of judgment (see Exod 19:18; Judg 5:4; Ps 18:7; Joel 3:14-17; Amos 8:8-10). Josephus records the appearance about AD 30 of a star resembling a sword and a spontaneous opening of the gates of the Temple (Josephus, War 6.5.3-4).

27:52-53 tombs opened: Jesus' climactic death inaugurated the Kingdom of God by breaking the powers of death and establishing the final resurrection (see Isa 26:19; Dan 12:2; 1 Cor 15; Col 1:18; Heb 2:14-15). • these godly ones either did not enter the city until after Jesus' resurrection or they were not raised until then, with Jesus as the firstfruits (see 1 Cor 15:20, 23; Col 1:18). If that is the case, Matthew has included this episode to form a more powerful commentary on the impact of Jesus' death.

27:54 The Roman officer (literally centurion) and the other soldiers were Gentiles. • the Son of God: This may be an unqualified affirmation that Jesus is the unique Son of God (see 14:33; 16:16) or possibly a more general affirmation of Jesus' innocence (see Luke 23:47). They are responding to the earthquake and all that had happened as evidence of divine interest in this occasion.

27:58 In Roman crucifixion, the bodies of criminals were often left to rot. Deut 21:22-23 prohibits a body from remaining on a cross or a gallows overnight. Joseph's action was in accordance with Jewish law, while his motivation was probably his loyalty to Jesus. • Pilate issued an order: Pilate was accommodating, probably because he did not believe Jesus was guilty of insurrection (see 27:24-26).

27:59-60 Burial customs were important in Judaism, especially in contrast to the Greeks and Romans, who cremated their dead. Leaving a corpse unburied was the severest form of judgment (Deut 21:22-23; 2 Kgs 9:37; Ps 79:3; Jer 16:4, 6; Ezek 29:5; Rev 11:9). Death was lamented and mourned (Mark 5:38-39); the body was washed (Acts 9:37), anointed (26:6-13; John 12:3, 7; 19:39), and wrapped in burial cloths (27:59; see Gen 50:2-3). The body was placed in a tomb (see 23:27) that had been tunneled into a rock or carved into the side of a cave wall (see illustration, p. 1813). The entrance to a tomb was often closed with a huge stone and sealed to prevent ceremonial uncleanness or robbery. There were also some cemeteries (see 27:7). • clean linen . . . new tomb: Both reflect ceremonial purity. Joseph had purchased the tomb for his own family, but it had not yet been used.

The Guards at the Tomb

⁶²The next day, on the Sabbath, the leading priests and Pharisees went to see Pilate. ⁶³They told him, “Sir, we remember what that deceiver once said while he was still alive: ‘After three days I will rise from the dead.’” ⁶⁴So we request that you seal the tomb until the third day. This will prevent his disciples from coming and stealing his body and then telling everyone he was raised from the dead! If that happens, we’ll be worse off than we were at first.”

⁶⁵Pilate replied, “Take guards and secure it the best you can.” ⁶⁶So they sealed the tomb and posted guards to protect it.

Jesus’ Resurrection and Commission (28:1-20)
Jesus Is Raised from the Dead

Matt 28:1-10 // Mark 16:1-11 // Luke 24:1-12 // John 20:1-18

28 Early on Sunday morning, as the new day was dawning, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary went out to visit the tomb.

²Suddenly there was a great earthquake! For an angel of the Lord came down from heaven, rolled aside the stone, and sat on it. ³His face shone like lightning, and his clothing was as white as snow. ⁴The guards shook with fear when they saw him, and they fell into a dead faint.

⁵Then the angel spoke to the women. “Don’t be afraid!” he said. “I know you are looking for Jesus, who was crucified. He isn’t here! He is risen from the dead, just as he said would happen. Come, see where his body was lying. ⁷And now, go quickly and tell his disciples that he has risen from the dead, and he is going ahead of you to Galilee. You will see him there. Remember what I have told you.”

⁸The women ran quickly from the tomb. They were very frightened but also filled with great joy, and they rushed to give the disciples the angel’s message. ⁹And as they went, Jesus met them and greeted them. And they ran to him, grasped his feet, and worshiped him. ¹⁰Then Jesus said to them, “Don’t be afraid! Go tell my brothers to leave for Galilee, and they will see me there.”

The Report of the Guards

¹¹As the women were on their way, some of the guards went into the city and told the leading priests what had happened. ¹²A meeting with the elders was called, and

Four other Marys, apart from the mother of Jesus (see p. 1701), are mentioned in the Gospels:

(1) Mary Magdalene (probably from Magdala in Galilee) was freed from demon possession by Jesus (Mark 16:9) and became a faithful follower and financial supporter of Jesus and his disciples (Luke 8:2-3; cp. Matt 27:55-56; Mark 15:40-41). She was present when Jesus was crucified and buried (27:55-56, 61; Mark 15:40-41, 47; John 19:25; cp. Luke 23:49, 55-56), and she went to the tomb early on Sunday morning to embalm him. She was among the first to be told of his Resurrection (28:1-8; Mark 16:1-8; Luke 24:1-11, 22-24), and she was the first to see the resurrected Jesus (28:9-10; Mark 16:9-11; John 20:1-2, 11-18).

(2) Mary the mother of James the younger (not the same as James the apostle) and Joseph was also among the women who were present when Jesus was crucified and buried (27:55-56, 61—the “other Mary”; Mark 15:40-41, 47; cp. Luke 23:55). She first heard the news of his resurrection (28:1-8; Mark 16:1-8; Luke 24:1-11), and she first saw the risen Jesus (28:9-10; Mark 16:9-10).

(3) Mary of Bethany was the sister of Martha and Lazarus; their family was much loved by Jesus (John 11:5). Jesus commended Mary for her eagerness to learn from him (Luke 10:38-42). In grateful response to what Jesus did in raising her brother from the dead (John 11:32-45), Mary anointed Jesus’ feet with very expensive perfume, an act defended by Jesus when others criticized it as extravagant (26:6-13; Mark 14:3-9; John 12:1-11).

(4) Mary the wife of Clopas was also among the women watching when Jesus was crucified (John 19:25). Her husband Clopas is not mentioned elsewhere in the NT.

27:62-66 This incident bolsters the truth of Jesus’ resurrection—it is inconceivable that Matthew would fabricate such a story since witnesses abounded who could have countered the claims.

27:62 The next day, on the Sabbath: Or On the next day, which is after the Preparation.

28:1-10 The discovery of the empty tomb and the various resurrection appearances are presented with different emphases in each of the four Gospels. Matthew focuses on the reunion in Galilee, the attempt on the part of the Jewish leaders to discredit the resurrection, and the significance of the resurrection for the salvation of the world.

28:1 Early on Sunday morning: Literally After the Sabbath, on the first day of the week. • Mary Magdalene (see 27:56): The mention of two women as witnesses lends credibility to the historicity of the account—an inventor of tales would not have used women as witnesses, since a woman’s testimony was considered less reliable than a man’s.

Their story spread widely among the Jews, and they still tell it today.

The Messiah's Great Commission to His Disciples
Matt 28:16-20; cp. Mark 16:14-18

going to the mountain where Jesus had told them to go. ¹⁷When they saw him, they worshiped him—but some of them doubted!

¹⁸Jesus came and told his disciples, "I have been given all authority in heaven and on earth. ¹⁹Therefore, go and make disciples of all the nations, ¹baptizing them in the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit. ²⁰Teach these new disciples to obey all the commands I have given you. And be sure of this: I am with you always, even to the end of the age."

The Resurrection of Jesus (28:1-10)

Scripture unanimously depicts the personal and bodily resurrection of Jesus from the dead by the power of God, but numerous other attempts to explain it have emerged: (1) Jesus never really died—instead, he lost consciousness and regained it after being laid in a cool tomb (the swoon theory); (2) the disciples of Jesus stole his body and then lied about a resurrection (28:12-15); (3) the disciples had hallucinations and dreams that they mistakenly confused with a physical resurrection; and (4) the resurrection is a personal experience in the heart of faith, not an event in history. Behind such suggestions lies a deep-seated skepticism toward the supernatural, or at least toward whether a miraculous event could have happened. Such suggestions fail to take into account the fact that for NT authors and their audiences, the term "resurrection" could only have meant the literal reanimation of a dead corpse (see 1 Cor 15).

The historicity of Jesus' resurrection and the historical reliability of the biblical accounts are supported by (1) the evidence of an empty tomb; (2) the presence of women as witnesses (no one would have made up a story with women as witnesses, since the testimony of a woman was considered to be less reliable than that of a man); (3) the varied but basically unified accounts of Jesus' post-resurrection appearances; (4) the transformation of the disciples from a fearful band into fearless followers; and (5) the disciples' ability to overcome the scandal of following a crucified man (Deut 21:23 indicates that one who dies such a death has fallen under God's curse). Judaism had no concept of a dying and rising Messiah that could conveniently be applied to Jesus. Inventing something no one would find conceivable would have made little sense. The most reasonable conclusion is that Jesus did, in fact, rise from the dead.

28:12 Such a bribe was contrary to the law (see Exod 20:16; 23:8). • elders: See note on 21:23.

28:13 stole his body: Tomb robbery was a common problem in the ancient world, so such an accusation would have been entirely believable.

28:15 still tell it today: Justin Martyr wrote to Jews of his day (about AD 165), "You have sent . . . men throughout all the world to proclaim, 'A godless and lawless heresy has sprung from one Jesus, a Galilean deceiver, whom we crucified, but his disciples stole him by night from the tomb . . . and now [the disciples] deceive men by asserting that he has risen from the dead and ascended into heaven!'" (Justin Martyr, Dialogue with Trypho 108). This misinformation probably became widespread after the disciples began to proclaim Jesus' resurrection (see Acts 2:22-36).

28:17 some of them doubted: This might be a veiled reference to Thomas (John 20:24-29), but all eleven might have experienced a mixture of both worship and doubt (see also 14:31; Luke 24:10-11; John 20:24-29).

28:18 Jesus' authority is power delegated from the Father (see 7:29; 9:6-8; 21:23-27; 26:64; John 3:35).

28:19 go and: Literally going, a participle that supports the main imperative, make disciples. Matthew probably intended go to be understood as a separate command (as it is translated) and not as a circumstantial modifier (i.e., while you go; cp. the same construction in 9:6; Acts 10:20). • make disciples: A disciple is one who repents of sin, trusts in Jesus for salvation, and obeys his teachings. • all the nations (or all peoples): The mission to the Gentile nations formally began here (see 10:5-6; 15:24; see also 1:1; 2:1-12; 8:5-13; 21:43; 24:14; 26:13). • Two aspects of making disciples are baptizing and teaching (28:20). Baptism indicates public identification with, and surrender to, Jesus and the work he has done for salvation (see 3:13-17; 10:32-33; 20:28; 26:28; Acts 2:38; Rom 6:1-11; 1 Pet 3:21). • In the name of means entrance into a relationship and its benefits, which come to those who truly believe. • Father . . . Son . . . Holy Spirit: This is a formulaic expression for the nature of God as a trinity (see also 1 Cor 12:4-6; 2 Cor 13:14; Eph 4:4-6; 2 Thes 2:13-14; 1 Pet 1:2; Rev 1:4-6).

28:20 Teach: The disciples' curriculum is comprised of all the commands of Jesus (e.g., the Sermon on the Mount, 5:1-7:29). The church is to be marked by its obedience to Jesus' commands (5:17-20; 7:13-27). Jesus' authority and presence are the basis for the disciples' mission (see also 1:23; 18:20).

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO Mark

In his opening verse, Mark provides readers with the main key to understanding his Gospel: Although we can learn much about the disciples and other characters from reading Mark, it is most important to understand what he is teaching about Jesus: It is about "Jesus the Messiah, the Son of God" (1:1).

SETTING

It is generally agreed that Mark was the first of the four canonical Gospels to be written. Before the writing of Mark, there were no Gospels as such. The gospel traditions were circulated or "delivered" orally under the supervision of the eyewitnesses and ministers of the word of God (Luke 1:2). As these eyewitnesses began to die, it became important to record the gospel traditions in writing. According to church tradition, after the martyrdom of Peter in the mid-60s AD, the church in Rome asked John Mark to put into writing the accounts of Jesus' life and teachings that Peter had delivered to them orally. As a result, Mark became the first to compose what we call a "Gospel," a written account of Jesus' life and teachings, from the oral materials about Jesus.

SUMMARY

The overall structure of Mark is geographical. The first nine chapters narrate events of Jesus' ministry in Galilee and its environs. In chapter 10, Jesus and the disciples travel from Galilee to Jerusalem, and the last chapters of the book (chs 11–16) take place in and around Jerusalem. (Matthew and Luke, in their use of Mark, followed this geographical outline, but John organized his Gospel in a different way.)

Within the geographical outline, Mark has arranged much of his material topically. Thus we have collections of miracle stories (1:21–45; 4:35–5:43), controversy stories (2:1–3:6; 12:13–37), parables (4:1–34), and teachings about the end (13:5–37). Some of the materials include indicators of chronological sequence: Jesus' ministry began with his baptism (1:2-11; see Acts 1:22; 10:37) and temptation (1:12-13); his suffering, death, and resurrection occurred at the end (11:1-16:8). A few individual accounts are tied together chronologically, such as Peter's confession at Caesarea Philippi (8:27-33) and Jesus' transfiguration (9:1-13; see also 1:29, 35).

The major turning point in Jesus' ministry is highlighted in 8:27-33, very near the center of the book. At Caesarea Philippi, the disciples for the first time confess their belief that Jesus is the Messiah (8:29). Upon this acknowledgment, Jesus "began to tell them" of his forthcoming death and resurrection (8:31; cp. Matt 16:21). Jesus' death and resurrection are the dominant theme of 8:31-16:8.

AUTHOR

Although all four Gospels are introduced by a title assigning them to a specific author ("The Gospel according to Mark"), these titles are not part of the original manuscripts. The earliest known reference to the authorship of Mark comes from Papias at the beginning of the second century. The early church historian Eusebius quotes Papias as having said, "Mark became Peter's interpreter and wrote accurately all that he remembered, not, indeed, in order, of the things said or done by the Lord. For he had not heard the Lord, nor had he followed him, but later on . . . followed Peter" (Eusebius, Church History 3.39.16).

The early church was unanimous in attributing this Gospel to John Mark. It is unlikely that Papias and others would have attributed this Gospel to a non-apostle with a tarnished reputation (see Acts 13:13; 15:36-41) unless Mark were in fact the author.

The author of this Gospel was bilingual, as the Aramaic phrases in its Greek text suggest (e.g., 5:41; 7:34; 15:34). He was also Jewish, in that he knew and explained various Jewish customs to his Gentile readers (e.g., 7:3-4; 14:12). This fits with the view that John Mark could be the author. John Mark was a Jew who was raised in Jerusalem (Acts 12:12). He thus knew Aramaic (the native language of the people of Judea) and was familiar with Jewish customs.

Some have objected that this Gospel does not clearly indicate a connection between Mark and Peter and that it looks more polished as a literary composition than one might expect from a direct record of Peter's eyewitness testimony. But if this Gospel was written near or after Peter's death (see "Date," p. 1644), Peter had been telling these stories for over thirty years. Through continual retelling, his gospel account would have become well polished. There are also references to Peter in this Gospel that might be due to Mark's personal connection with him (e.g., 1:16-20; 8:32-33; 9:5-6; 14:28-31, 66-72). It fits the evidence well to consider this Gospel as

John Mark probably wrote down Peter's teaching about Jesus around the time of Peter's death. Peter died in Rome around AD 64 in the persecution that Nero waged against Christians (see "Simon Peter" at Matt 14:28-31, p. 1609). Mark probably wrote this Gospel in the late 60s, and various considerations support this hypothesis. (1) The emphasis on faithfulness in time of persecution (4:17; 8:34-38; 10:30; 13:9-13) suggests a time during or shortly after Nero's persecution in the mid-60s. (2) The lack of any clear allusion to the fall of Jerusalem suggests a time before AD 70. (3) However, the Jewish revolt (AD 66-73) had apparently already begun, and the destruction of Jerusalem was rapidly drawing near (see 13:1-37).

AUDIENCE

The Gospel of Mark was written for the church in Rome, according to tradition. It is clear that the original readers were Greek-speaking and that they were Gentiles, because the author explains Jewish customs (e.g., 7:3-4; 14:12) and distinguishes his readers from "the Jews" (7:3).

The original readers were Christians. They were familiar with the gospel traditions, for the author does not explain such things as who John the Baptist was (1:2-8), who Isaiah the prophet was (1:2), where Capernaum was located (1:21; 2:1), various OT references (2:25-26), who King Herod was (6:14-29), or who the Pharisees and teachers of religious law were (7:1).

It is also apparent that the readers were Romans, as indicated by the "Latinisms" in Mark. In 6:27, he uses a Latin word meaning "soldier"; in 12:42, he uses a Roman coin (the quadran) to explain the meaning of "two lepta" (Greek coins); and in 15:39, 44-45, he uses the Latin word "centurion" rather than the Greek word with the same meaning that Matthew and Luke use.

Mark is master of the unexpected. . . . The medium of irony is important for the Second Evangelist, who throughout the Gospel portrays Jesus as one who challenges, confounds, and sometimes breaks conventional stereotypes, whether religious, social, or political.

LITERARY FEATURES

Mark's own editorial work can be seen most clearly in his introductory statements (e.g., 1:21-22; 2:1; 4:1; 7:1), in his explanatory comments (e.g., 1:16; 2:15; 5:8, 28, 42; 6:14, 17, 20, 52; 7:3-4), and in his summaries (e.g., 1:14-15, 34, 39; 3:7-12; 6:53-56).

Mark repeats various terms and expressions to show progress, such as "suddenly," "at once," and "immediately" (e.g., 1:23; 3:6; 6:45). He uses the Greek present tense in the narrative to give a sense of immediacy (e.g., 1:12, 21, 38, 40, 44; 2:3; 3:13). Mark also often sandwiches one story within another (e.g., 3:22-30 into 3:20-21, 31-35; 5:25-34 into 5:21-24, 35-43; 11:15-19 into 11:12-14, 20-26); in the last example, this sandwiching indicates that the middle part (11:15-19, the cleansing of the Temple) is to be understood in light of the story surrounding it (11:12-14, 20-26, the cursing of the fig tree)—the cleansing of the Temple was a symbolic act of judgment (cp. 13:3-37). Thus, Mark's editorial work relates different events and shows meaningful connections.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

Mark's main purpose in writing his Gospel is stated in the opening verse of the Gospel: He wanted his readers to know that Jesus of Nazareth is “the Messiah, the Son of God.” The title “Son of God” occurs frequently in Mark, and there are diverse witnesses to Jesus’ status as God’s son: the demons (1:34; 3:11; 5:7; cp. 1:24); God himself (1:11; 9:7); Mark, the author (1:1); a Roman centurion (15:39); and Jesus himself (12:6; 13:32; 14:61-62).

During his life, the Son of God needed to protect himself and his followers from the prevailing misconceptions in the minds of the people about what the term “Christ” (or “Messiah”) meant (see “The Secret of the Messiah” at 3:11-12, p. 1653). Jesus’ ultimate mission as the Son of God is explained through his death, in which he gave his life as a ransom for many. The call to Christian discipleship is a call to follow the Messiah, the Son of God, and receive the benefits of his life and death (see “Following Jesus” at 8:34-38, p. 1667). Jesus’ ministry as Son of God during his life on earth also points forward to his return as the Son of God, ruling God’s Kingdom (see “The Day is Coming” at 13:1-37, p. 1681).

The Person of Christ. Mark’s major theological emphasis is the identity of Jesus of Nazareth. For Mark, Jesus is above all “the Messiah, the Son of God.” Other titles for Jesus occur in Mark’s Gospel, including Jesus’ own favorite, “Son of Man” (e.g., 2:10). But in Mark’s Gospel all of these titles, as well as his actions (e.g., 1:22; 4:41), point to his identity as the Christ (or Messiah), the Son of God.

The Death of Jesus. The Gospel of Mark has been called “a passion narrative with an extended introduction” because of Mark’s focus on the account of Jesus’ passion—his suffering, death, and resurrection. Throughout the Gospel we find numerous references to the death of Jesus (2:19-20; 3:6; 8:31; 9:9, 12, 31; 10:33-34, 45; 12:1-11; 14:1-11, 21, 24-25, 36; 14:64-15:47). Mark emphasizes that Jesus’ death was part of God’s plan for his life. His death was a divine necessity (8:31), for God had willed it (10:45; 14:36). The Scriptures of the OT also teach of the Messiah’s death (9:12; 14:21, 27, 49). Jesus came to give his life as a ransom for many (10:45) and to pour out his blood sacrificially in order to establish a new covenant (14:24).

Christian Discipleship. Mark emphasizes the importance of following Jesus by denying one’s self and taking up one’s cross (see 8:34). Christian discipleship does not permit a half-hearted response but requires leaving everything to follow Jesus (1:18, 20; 10:21, 29). Christian discipleship might even bring persecution and martyrdom (13:9-13a), but Christians are promised that endurance in faith means salvation (13:13b) and eternal life (10:30).

The “Secret of the Messiah.” Throughout Mark’s Gospel, Jesus tells others not to broadcast his true identity. Yet the secret is not and cannot be kept (7:36). Jesus is too great. Jesus creates such wonder and amazement that he simply cannot be hidden. His identity breaks through, so that all recognize that he is indeed the Messiah, the Son of God, the Lord of all creation.

The Coming of God’s Kingdom. The arrival of God’s Kingdom is central to Jesus’ message. People need to repent and believe the gospel because the Kingdom of God has arrived (1:14-15). Old Testament promises are being fulfilled. Life in the Kingdom is different from what it was during the time awaiting the Kingdom.

Mark’s Gospel has been described as ‘a passion-narrative with an extended introduction.’ The reason that almost half of Mark’s sixteen chapters describe the final period of Jesus’ ministry is that it is in his suffering, death, and resurrection that the revelation of God in Christ is most clearly seen.

and he will prepare your way.

³ He is a voice shouting in the wilderness,

"Prepare the way for the LORD's coming!
Clear the road for him!" "

⁴This messenger was John the Baptist. He was in the wilderness and preached that people should be baptized to show that they had ^brepented of their sins and turned to God to be forgiven. ⁵All of Judea, including all the people of Jerusalem, went out to see and hear John. And when they confessed their sins, he baptized them in the Jordan River. ⁶His clothes were woven from coarse camel hair, and he wore a leather belt around his waist. For food he ate locusts and wild honey.

⁷John announced: "Someone is coming soon who is greater than I am—so much greater that I'm not even worthy to stoop down like a slave and untie the straps of his sandals. ⁸I baptize you with water, but he will baptize you with the Holy Spirit!"

1:1 Mark opens with an introduction. This Gospel is about Jesus. With every account in Mark, one should ask, "What is Mark teaching about Jesus in this passage?" • Good News, a frequent term in Mark (see 1:14-15; 8:35; 10:29; 13:10; 14:9), is frequently translated gospel. See note on 1:15. • The Hebrew word Messiah (Greek christos) is often translated Christ. Both Messiah and Christ mean "anointed." In the OT, priests (Exod 28:41; Lev 16:32; 21:10), kings (2 Sam 1:14, 16; 19:21; Ps 2), and prophets (1 Kgs 19:16) were anointed with oil to indicate the Lord's presence, blessing, and authority for the tasks to which God called them. As time went on, Israelites increasingly looked forward to the coming of the Messiah, "the Anointed One," a descendant of David who would be Israel's king. The first-century political connotations of this title were such that Jesus avoided openly declaring that he was the Messiah (see "The Secret of the Messiah" at 3:11-12, p. 1653; see also 8:27-30; 14:61-63; 15:2, 26; John 4:25-26). • Some manuscripts do not include the Son of God; this title emphasizes Jesus' unique relationship with God the Father (1:11; 9:7; 12:4-6; 14:61-62).

1:2-8 This account is not primarily about John the Baptist, the messenger, but about the one he announces as "Jesus the Messiah, the Son of God" (1:1).

1:2-3 Mark includes OT prophecies to support his account of the Good News about Jesus Christ. John the Baptist's role as the prophetic messenger reveals that Jesus is the promised Lord—Christ, the Son of God. • Isaiah: Mark follows the Jewish practice of mentioning only the most prominent of the sources that make up the quotation (Mal 3:1; Isa 40:3).

1:2 This portion of the quotation is from Mal 3:1.

1:3 John the Baptist was the voice shouting in the wilderness for people to prepare the way for the Lord's coming (this portion of the quotation is from Isa 40:3, Greek version). In Isaiah, this prophecy refers to the coming of the Lord, the God of Israel. Here it refers to the Lord Jesus (see 12:35-37). The early church called itself "the Way," probably in reference to this promise (see Acts 9:2; 19:9, 23; 22:4; 24:14, 22; cp. Acts 2:28; 18:25-26; Rom 2:20; 2 Pet 2:2, 21).

1:4 John's mission as the Lord's messenger was to prepare people for the Messiah's coming (see Luke 1:76-77) by instructing them to confess their sins, turn to God for forgiveness, and be baptized. Those who did this were prepared to receive Jesus' message (see Luke 7:29-30). See "John the Baptist" at John 1:19-37, p. 1771. • That John was in the wilderness, probably the desert area around the Jordan River north of the Dead Sea, shows that he was the "voice" of whom Isaiah had spoken (1:3). • be baptized: The exact origin of John's baptism is unclear. The Qumran community had an initiatory "baptism" which was repeated regularly, but John's baptism was once for all. Jewish proselyte baptism has also been seen as a possible source, but it is more likely that such baptisms were not practiced until after John's ministry. See also "Baptism" at Acts 2:38, 41, p. 1828.

1:5 All of Judea: John the Baptist created a lot of interest. It was generally believed that there had been no prophet for over 400 years, so prophets were associated with Israel's past and with the future reign of the Messiah. John preached repentance like the ancient prophets, and he dressed like the great prophet Elijah (1:6), who was predicted to return in the last days (Mal 4:5).

1:6 camel hair . . . leather belt: Cp. Elijah (2 Kgs 1:8). • For food John ate what was available in the wilderness; locusts were allowed as food (cp. Lev 11:20-24).

1:7 Someone is coming: John knew that he was preparing for the Messiah's coming, but he did not yet know that Jesus was he (cp. Luke 7:18-23).

1:8 John's baptism prepared people for God's Kingdom by calling them to repentance. The baptism of Jesus brought the gift of the Holy Spirit, through whom sinful people become God's children (Rom 8:15-16; 1 Cor 12:13; Gal 4:6). • with: Or in, twice in this verse.

1:9 Jesus' home at this time was in Nazareth, a small town in lower Galilee (Matt 2:19-23; Luke 2:39). Jesus soon left Nazareth for Capernaum, a city on the Sea of Galilee (Matt 4:13). • John baptized him: Jesus' reason for receiving the baptism of repentance is explained in Matt 3:14-15.

1:10 The expression the heavens splitting apart indicates Jesus' unique access to God the Father; in 15:38, the same verb includes believers in that access through Jesus' death. • All four Gospels refer to the Spirit descending on him (or toward him, or into him) like a dove. The Spirit, who was involved in the first creation, acted with Jesus in bringing the new creation (Gen 1:2; Rom 8:15-17; 1 Cor 6:11; Eph 1:13-14; 2 Thes 2:13).

The arrival of God's Kingdom was central to Jesus' proclamation. People are to repent and believe the gospel because God's Kingdom has arrived in the person of Jesus (1:14-15; 4:11, 26, 30; 9:47; Matt 4:23; 5:3; 6:10; Luke 4:42-43; 6:20).

The arrival of God's Kingdom was eagerly awaited by the people of Israel, for it would fulfill the many promises of God that had not yet been realized:

- The Spirit would not only come again, as he had in the past, but he would come upon each individual believer in fulfillment of Joel 2:28-32 (cp. Acts 2:16-21).
- Satan would be defeated (3:27; Luke 10:18), as was already being demonstrated by Jesus' exorcisms (2:1-12; 3:11; 5:1-20).
- The new covenant promised in Jeremiah 31:31-34 would be established (14:24).
- The resurrection from the dead would produce its firstfruits (8:31; 9:9, 31; 10:33-34; 16:6; 1 Cor 15:20, 23).
- God's Anointed, the promised Son of David (Matt 2:1-12; Luke 2:25-38) would arrive.

These dimensions of God's Kingdom have already been fulfilled in the coming, death, resurrection, and ascension of Jesus.

Immediately prior to the arrival of Jesus and John the Baptist, Israel was oppressed by Rome and without true prophets or the active presence of God's Spirit. Instead of a king descended from David, a Roman governor ruled the land. In such a situation, fasting was appropriate. With the coming of Jesus came the coming of God's Kingdom, and things radically changed. The Spirit was once again active in the land, working through the prophet John the Baptist and in the ministry of Jesus. For those with eyes to see, the promised Messiah, or Christ, had appeared. Because God's Kingdom was with them in the person of Jesus, the disciples could not fast like the Pharisees and the disciples of John the Baptist (2:18-20). Fasting became inappropriate, for the OT promises were being fulfilled. It was time to celebrate and feast (2:19-20), because God's reign had begun (Luke 11:20). People were already entering into the Kingdom (10:23-25, 29-31) and experiencing its manifestations (9:1).

There is a future, not-yet-realized dimension of God's Kingdom that awaits Christ's return (14:25). The Jews' national hope for the arrival of God's Kingdom (see Acts 1:6) is mostly part of this "not yet" dimension (Acts 1:7-8). The ultimate judgment of evil, the final establishment of justice, and the eradication of disease, poverty, and even death will find their fulfillment when Jesus, the Son of Man, returns in glory, gathers his elect (13:24-27; Titus 2:11-14), judges the world (8:38; 13:26; 14:62; Matt 25:31-46; 2 Tim 4:1; Rev 14:14-20), and resurrects the dead (1 Thes 4:13–5:11; 1 Cor 15:12-57). Although the time of Christ's return is unknown (13:32), Christians are to be alert and watch for his coming (13:33, 35, 37) in anticipation of their "blessed hope" (Titus 2:13).

1:11 You are my dearly loved Son: See "The Son of God" at 4:35-41, p. 1655. By age twelve, Jesus was aware of his unique relationship with God the Father (Luke 2:49).

1:12-13 The Spirit then compelled Jesus (cp. Matt 4:1; Luke 4:1): Jesus was victorious over Satan and temptation from the beginning of his ministry; the later exorcisms (1:21-34; 3:11-12; 5:1-

20; 9:14-27) are an outworking of that victory (see 3:27). • Jesus was tempted in the wilderness of Judea. Satan and wild animals (Isa 13:19-22; Ezek 34:25) give the wilderness an evil aura. The wild animals included dogs, wolves, leopards, jackals, and bears. • The period of forty days recalls Israel's forty years of testing in the wilderness. Israel failed, but Jesus was victorious—he was tempted without sinning (Heb 2:18;

4:15; cp. Jas 1:3, 12; 1 Pet 1:7; Rev 2:10).

1:14-15 This summary introduces 1:14–3:6. Such summaries (see also 3:7-12; 6:6) help hearers understand what follows; most of Mark's original audience would have heard the Gospel read aloud.

1:14 Jesus' ministry is described as beginning after John was arrested. There was some overlap (John 3:22-24; 4:1-2), ^dGood News. ¹⁵"The time promised by God has come at last!" he announced. "The Kingdom of God is near! Repent of your sins and believe the 'Good News!'"

Mark 1:16-20 // Matt 4:18-22

¹⁶One day as Jesus was walking along the shore of the Sea of Galilee, he saw Simon and his brother Andrew throwing a net into the water, for they fished for a living. ¹⁷Jesus called out to them, "Come, follow me, and I will show you how to fish for people!" ¹⁸And they left their nets at once and followed him.

¹⁹A little farther up the shore Jesus saw Zebedee's sons, James and John, in a boat repairing their nets. ²⁰He called them at once, and they also followed him, leaving their father, Zebedee, in the boat with the hired men.

Jesus' Healing Miracles (1:21-45)

Jesus Casts Out an Evil Spirit

Mark 1:21-28 // Luke 4:31-37

²¹Jesus and his companions went to the town of Capernaum. When the Sabbath day came, he went into the synagogue and began to teach. ²²The people were amazed at his teaching, for he taught with real authority—quite unlike the teachers of religious law.

²³Suddenly, a man in the synagogue who was possessed by an evil spirit cried out, ²⁴"Why are you interfering with us, Jesus of Nazareth? Have you come to destroy us? I know who you are—the Holy One of God!"

²⁵But Jesus reprimanded him. "Be quiet! Come out of the man," he ordered. ²⁶At that, the evil spirit screamed, threw the man into a convulsion, and then came out of him.

²⁷Amazement gripped the audience, and they began to discuss what had happened. "What sort of new teaching is this?" they asked excitedly. "It has such authority! Even evil spirits obey his orders!" ²⁸The news about Jesus spread quickly throughout the entire region of Galilee.

but most of Jesus' ministry occurred after John's. John also belongs primarily to the old order (Matt 11:7-14), while Jesus belongs primarily to the new. Both men fulfilled God's plan through being arrested and executed (6:14-29; 9:31; 10:33). Jesus began preaching in Galilee at this time, but John 2:13-4:43 suggests that Jesus had had an earlier ministry in Judea. • God's Good News: Some manuscripts read the Good News of the Kingdom of God.

1:15 Jesus' preaching is summarized by his announcement that the Kingdom of God had come, and that people needed to repent and believe the Good News about the Messiah (1:1). • The Kingdom of God is not tied to a territory; it dynamically began in Jesus' person and extended to his followers. • In response to the arrival of God's Kingdom, people are called to repent (to turn from sin and yield to God), and to have faith in God's Good News. In Jesus' time, the Good News was the arrival of God's reign through the Messiah. For Mark's later audience, it was the news of Jesus' death, resurrection, ascension, and promised return (15:1-16:8). All people, Jews and Gentiles alike, need God's forgiveness through repentance and faith in Jesus.

1:16-20 The call of the two pairs of brothers—Simon and Andrew, James and John—followed an earlier encounter with Jesus (John 1:35-42).

1:16 Simon is called "Peter" in 3:16 and thereafter.

1:17 Mark uses Jesus' invitation—Come, follow me (1:20; 8:34)—and the expression "to follow him" (1:18; 2:14-15; 3:7; 5:24) to indicate what it means to be a Christian (see "Following Jesus" at 8:34-38, p. 1667).

1:19-20 Zebedee's sons . . . leaving their father: Jesus later taught that this is the kind of thing that his followers will do (8:34-35; Matt 10:37-39).

1:21-28 Jesus' exorcisms reveal Jesus' identity (see note on 1:23-24) and his power over Satan (see notes on 1:12-13 and 3:27; see also 1:34, 39; 3:11-12, 22; 5:1-20; 6:13; 7:24-30; 9:14-29).

1:21 Mark introduces his first account of an exorcism with Jesus and his companions going into the synagogue in Capernaum. Jesus' teaching in the synagogue suggests that he already had a reputation as a teacher and was therefore invited to speak (cp. Acts 13:15).

1:22 The teachers of religious law were professional scribes—scholars who taught, copied, and interpreted Jewish law for the people. They were primarily associated with the Pharisees (see "The Pharisees" at Matt 3:7, p. 1581). The scribes' authority was derived from quoting other scribes (cp. Matt 5:21-48). Jesus' teaching caused amazement because he spoke and acted with real authority (see 1:27; 5:20; 6:2; 7:37; 10:24-32; 11:18; 15:5).

1:23-24 The demon spoke through the man who was possessed by an evil (literally unclean) spirit (1:24). Demons frequently cause disease (9:17, 27; Matt 17:15) and self-destructive behavior (Mark 1:26; 5:2-5; 9:17-18, 20-22). Demons know who Jesus is (1:34); they consistently testify that he is the Holy One of God (see 3:11; 5:7). • In saying us, the evil spirit spoke on behalf of all demons. It recognized Jesus' complete authority and understood that he had come to interfere with and destroy evil.

1:25 Jesus did not need to shout or utter magic words. He simply spoke with the authority of the Son of God (1:1), and the evil spirit obeyed. • Be quiet! Jesus commanded the evil spirit not to make him known. This is an instance of the "messianic secret," an expression for passages in Mark in which Jesus commands demons or people not to reveal his identity (1:25, 34; 3:11-12; 8:30; 9:9; see "The Secret of the Messiah" at 3:11-12, p. 1653).

1:26 The screams and convulsions caused by the evil (literally unclean; also in 1:27) spirit were its parting cries of defeat (5:13; 9:26; cp. 15:37).

1:27-28 The amazement caused by this exorcism quickly spread the news about Jesus. • What sort of new teaching is this? Jesus' healings and exorcisms were understood holistically as being part of his teaching (1:21-22, 27; cp. 1:38-39; 3:14-15; 6:2, 5, 12-13, 30).

1:29-30 Simon (Peter) was married (see 1 Cor 9:5).

sick in bed with a high fever. They told Jesus about her right away. ³¹So he went to her bedside, took her by the hand, and helped her sit up. Then the fever left her, and she prepared a meal for them.

³²That evening after sunset, many sick and demon-possessed people were brought to Jesus. ³³The whole town gathered at the door to watch. ³⁴So Jesus healed many people who were sick with various diseases, and he cast out many demons. But because the demons knew who he was, he did not allow them to speak.

Jesus Preaches in Galilee

³⁵Before daybreak the next morning, Jesus got up and went out to an isolated place to pray. ³⁶Later Simon and the others went out to find him. ³⁷When they found him, they said, "Everyone is looking for you."

³⁸But Jesus replied, "We must go on to other towns as well, and I will preach to them, too. That is why I came." ³⁹So he traveled throughout the region of Galilee, preaching in the synagogues and casting out demons.

Mark 1:40-45 // Matt 8:1-4 // Luke 5:12-16

⁴⁰A man with leprosy came and knelt in front of Jesus, begging to be healed. "If you are willing, you can heal me and make me clean," he said.

⁴¹Moved with compassion, Jesus reached out and touched him. "I am willing," he said.

"Be healed!" ⁴²Instantly the leprosy disappeared, and the man was healed. ⁴³Then Jesus sent him on his way with a stern warning: ⁴⁴"Don't tell anyone about this. Instead, go to the priest and let him examine you. Take along the offering required in the law of Moses for those who have been healed of leprosy. This will be a public testimony that you have been cleansed."

⁴⁵But the man went and spread the word, proclaiming to everyone what had happened. As a result, large crowds soon surrounded Jesus, and he couldn't publicly enter a town anywhere. He had to stay out in the secluded places, but people from everywhere kept coming to him.

Controversy Stories (2:1-3:6)

Mark 2:1-12 // Matt 9:1-8 // Luke 5:17-26

2When Jesus returned to Capernaum several days later, the news spread quickly that he was back home. ²Soon the house where he was staying was so packed with visitors that there was no more room, even outside the door. While he was preaching God's word to them, ³four men arrived carrying a paralyzed man on a mat. ⁴They couldn't bring him to Jesus because of the crowd, so they dug a hole through the roof above his head. Then they lowered the man on his mat, right down in front of Jesus. ⁵Seeing their faith, Jesus said to the paralyzed man, "My child, your sins are forgiven."

1:31 Jesus healed Simon's mother-in-law instantaneously (see also 1:40-45; 2:1-12; 3:1-6; 5:25-34; 7:31-37; 8:22-26; 10:46-52); her fever left, and she got up and prepared a meal for her guests.

1:32-34 These public healings took place after sunset following the Sabbath (1:21, 29), and there were many witnesses (see also 1:39; 3:10-11; 6:5, 53-56).

1:33 Jesus' popularity among the crowds was growing (also in 1:37, 39, 45), as contrasted with the growing rejection by the leaders (2:1-3:6).

1:34 the demons knew who he was: See 1:23-25.

1:35 Despite Jesus' busy ministry, he sought time to pray (6:46; 14:32-39). Mark emphasizes the importance of prayer in Jesus' life (cp. Luke 3:21; 6:12; 9:18, 28-29; 11:1-4; 18:1; 22:32).

1:38-39 Prayer (1:35) equipped Jesus to preach, teach, heal, and cast out demons. • Jesus' mission in Galilee centered on preaching in the synagogues, where he took the opportunity to speak (1:21; Luke 4:16-30). Paul later used this same opportunity (Acts 13:5, 14-15; 14:1; 16:13; 17:1). • Jesus counted on Jewish hospitality when he traveled (cp. 6:10; Luke 10:7; Gen 18:1-8; 19:1-8; Heb 13:2; 3 Jn 1:5-8). • The region of Galilee was roughly forty miles north to south and twenty-five miles east to west (sixty-five by forty kilometers). In Jesus' day, Galilee was ruled by Herod Antipas (see "Herod Antipas" at 6:14-29, p. 1659).

1:40 Leprosy refers to a number of skin diseases (or even mildew in a building). An infected person was considered unclean and was ostracized from family and society (Lev 13:45-46; Num 12:9-12; 2 Chr 26:16-21; Luke 17:12).

1:41 Jesus' willingness to touch a ceremonially unclean leper reflects the new order of the Kingdom of God (1:15; 5:25-34; Luke 7:36-50; see Matt 10:8; 11:5). • Moved with compassion: Some manuscripts read Moved with anger.

1:43-45 Jesus told the man to go to the priest to certify his healing and to make the appropriate sacrificial offering (see Lev 14:2-32). This would be the public testimony of his healing.

• Despite Jesus' stern warning, . . . the man went and spread the word, so that Jesus was not able to go into town but had to preach in more secluded places. Jesus' fame could not be confined as people from everywhere came to see him (3:7-8).

2:1-3:6 Five controversy stories (2:1-12, 13-17, 18-22, 23-28; 3:1-6), grouped by their common theme, reveal Jesus' great authority and the leaders' hostility toward him.

2:1-12 This controversy story is also a miracle story, which links it to the previous collection (1:21-45).

2:1 back home: See Matt 4:13. The crowd's size shows Jesus' popularity.

2:4 because of the crowd: See 2:1. • The roof would have been flat, constructed of mud, thatch, and branches. They literally dug a hole to make an opening.

2:5 Jesus saw the faith of the paralytic and the four men who brought him.

• your sins are forgiven: Those listening understood Jesus' words as a claim to divine authority (2:6-10; Luke 7:48-49).

⁶But some of the teachers of religious law who were sitting there thought to themselves, ⁷"What is he saying? This is 'blasphemy! Only God can forgive sins!"

⁸Jesus knew immediately what they were thinking, so he asked them, "Why do you question this in your hearts? ⁹Is it easier to say to the paralyzed man 'Your sins are forgiven,' or 'Stand up, pick up your mat, and walk'? ¹⁰So I will prove to you that the Son of Man has the authority on earth to forgive sins." Then Jesus turned to the paralyzed man and said, ¹¹"Stand up, pick up your mat, and go home!"

¹²And the man jumped up, grabbed his mat, and walked out through the stunned onlookers. They were all amazed and praised God, exclaiming, "We've never seen anything like this before!"

Jesus Calls Notorious Sinners

Mark 2:13-17 // Matt 9:9-13 // Luke 5:27-32

¹³Then Jesus went out to the lakeshore again and taught the crowds that were coming to him. ¹⁴As he walked along, he saw Levi son of Alphaeus sitting at his tax collector's booth. "Follow me and be my disciple," Jesus said to him. So Levi got up and followed him.

¹⁵Later, Levi invited Jesus and his disciples to his home as dinner guests, along with many tax collectors and other disreputable sinners. (There were many people of this kind among Jesus' followers.) ¹⁶But when the teachers of religious law who were Pharisees saw him eating with tax collectors and other sinners, they asked his disciples, "Why does he eat with such scum?"

¹⁷When Jesus heard this, he told them, "Healthy people don't need a doctor—sick people do. I have come to call not those who think they are righteous, but those who know they are sinners."

A Discussion about Fasting

Mark 2:18-22 // Matt 9:14-17 // Luke 5:33-39

¹⁸Once when John's disciples and the Pharisees were fasting, some people came to Jesus and asked, "Why don't your disciples fast like John's disciples and the Pharisees do?"

¹⁹Jesus replied, "Do wedding guests fast while celebrating with the groom? Of course not. They can't fast while the groom is with them. ²⁰But someday the groom will be taken away from them, and then they will fast.

²¹"Besides, who would patch old clothing with new cloth? For the new patch would shrink and rip away from the old cloth, leaving an even bigger tear than before.

²²"And no one puts new wine into old wineskins. For the wine would burst the wineskins, and the wine and the skins would both be lost. New wine calls for new wineskins."

2:9-11 It is easier to say . . . your sins are forgiven because this claim cannot be directly proved or disproved, while the claim to heal can be. Jesus showed his ability to heal in order to show his authority to forgive. • Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself; see "The Son of Man" at Matt 8:18-20, p. 1593).

2:12 We've never seen anything like this before! Mark consistently records Jesus creating amazement (1:22, 27; 4:41; 6:50-51).

2:13-17 This controversy centers on Jesus' befriending disreputable sinners such as tax collectors and eating with them.

2:13-15 Levi was also called Matthew (cp. Matt 9:9-10). Certain people are known by two names in the NT (e.g., Simon=Peter; Saul=Paul; Judas son of James=Thaddaeus, see note on 3:18). • Tax collectors levied income and property taxes, while toll collectors took sales taxes, customs, and road tolls. All kinds of tax collectors were hated by Jews because they often gouged the public (Luke 19:8), and as agents of the Romans, they were regarded as traitors. Jesus invited Levi, a toll collector, to follow him, joining Peter, Andrew, James, and John (1:16-20).

2:16 The teachers of religious law who were Pharisees (literally the scribes of the Pharisees) understood Jesus' act of eating with sinners as intentionally accepting them as friends (Luke 15:1-2; 19:5, 7; Acts 11:2-18; Gal 2:11-12). Jesus indicated that these tax collectors and sinners were invited to share in the Kingdom of God. In Jesus' ministry, even Gentiles were invited to share the Kingdom (5:1-20; 7:24-30; cp. Matt 8:5-13; Luke 7:1-10; John 4:43-54). • Pharisees: See "The Pharisees" at Matt 3:7, p. 1581. • with such scum? Literally with tax collectors and sinners?

2:17 Jesus answered his opponents with a well-known proverb, comparing himself to a doctor and sinners to sick people. Salvation is for those who know they are sinners, not those who think they are righteous (Luke 16:15; 18:9; Rom 3:23).

2:18-22 This controversy deals with fasting, which Jesus did not practice with his disciples. The Pharisees regularly fasted two days a week, on Mondays and Thursdays (Luke 18:12), and Jews often fasted when mourning or specially seeking the Lord's favor (Lev 16:29-31; 1 Sam 31:13; 2 Sam 1:12; 12:21-23; Ezra 8:23; Esth 4:3; Matt 6:16).

2:19-20 Jesus was like a groom at his wedding, so fasting was inappropriate. It was a time for celebration (Luke 15:23-25, 32). The disciples would fast when Jesus was taken away by death (see Acts 13:2-3; 14:23).

2:21-22 Old customs of the old covenant are incompatible with the new arrival of God's Kingdom. Common experience shows that an unshrunk new patch sewn on old clothing will tear the old cloth as it shrinks. Similarly, brittle old wineskins will burst when new wine ferments in them. Jesus' meaning was that the fasting of the old cannot mix with the feasting of the new (see also notes on Matt 9:15-17).

2:23-28 In this controversy, Jesus and his disciples are accused of breaking the began breaking off heads of grain to eat. ²⁴But the Pharisees said to Jesus, "Look, why are they breaking the law by harvesting grain on the Sabbath?"

²⁵Jesus said to them, "Haven't you ever read in the Scriptures what David did when he and his companions were hungry? ²⁶He went into the house of God (during the days when Abiathar was high priest) and broke the law by eating the sacred loaves of bread that only the priests are allowed to eat. He also gave some to his companions."

²⁷Then Jesus said to them, "The Sabbath was made to meet the needs of people, and not people to meet the requirements of the Sabbath. ²⁸So the Son of Man is Lord, even over the Sabbath!"

Jesus Heals on the Sabbath

Mark 3:1-6 // Matt 12:9-14 // Luke 6:6-11

3 Jesus went into the synagogue again and noticed a man with a deformed hand. ²Since it was the Sabbath, Jesus' enemies watched him closely. If he healed the man's hand, they planned to accuse him of working on the Sabbath.

³Jesus said to the man with the deformed hand, "Come and stand in front of everyone." ⁴Then he turned to his critics and asked, "Does the law permit good deeds on the Sabbath, or is it a day for doing evil? Is this a day to save life or to destroy it?" But they wouldn't answer him.

⁵He looked around at them angrily and was deeply saddened by their hard hearts.

Then he said to the man, "Hold out your hand." So the man held out his hand, and it was restored! ⁶At once the Pharisees went away and met with the supporters of Herod to plot how to kill Jesus.

Expansion of Jesus' Ministry (3:7-19)

Crowds Follow Jesus

Mark 3:7-12 // Luke 6:17-19

⁷Jesus went out to the lake with his disciples, and a large crowd followed him. They came from all over Galilee, Judea, ⁸Jerusalem, Idumea, from east of the Jordan River, and even from as far north as Tyre and Sidon. The news about his miracles had spread far and wide, and vast numbers of people came to see him.

⁹Jesus instructed his disciples to have a boat ready so the crowd would not crush him. ¹⁰He had healed many people that day, so all the sick people eagerly pushed forward to touch him. ¹¹And whenever those possessed by evil spirits caught sight of him, the spirits would throw them to the ground in front of him shrieking, "You are the Son of God!" ¹²But Jesus sternly commanded the spirits not to reveal who he was.

¹³Afterward Jesus went up on a mountain and called out to the ones he wanted to go with him. And they came to him. ¹⁴Then he appointed twelve of them and called them his apostles. They were to accompany him, and he would send them out to preach, Sabbath (Exod 20:8-11). Picking grain by hand in another person's field was lawful (Deut 23:25). The charge was that by rubbing the chaff from the kernels, the disciples were working on the Sabbath, which was forbidden (Exod 34:21).

2:25-26 Jesus countered with reference to an incident in the life of King David (1 Sam 21). When David and his followers ate the sacred loaves—the twelve loaves in the Tabernacle that only priests were allowed to eat—they broke the law (see Lev 24:5-9). But deeper principles were at work (2:27-28).

2:27-28 Since Jesus is the Lord of humanity (Phil 2:9-11; Eph 1:20-22; 1 Cor 15:25-28) and since the Sabbath was made to meet the needs of people (see notes on Matt 12:3-7), he is Lord over the Sabbath. As with Jesus' authority to forgive sins (2:7), this was a claim to divine authority.

3:1-6 This account concludes the collection of controversy stories (2:1-3:6). As in the preceding story, Jesus is in conflict with the Pharisees over the Sabbath; as with the first story, the controversy involves a healing (2:1-12).

3:1-2 The scene again involves a synagogue, probably in Capernaum (1:21, 29). The presence of a crippled man on the Sabbath (3:1-2) created a situation that Jesus' enemies wished to exploit if he healed the man's hand, so they watched him closely.

3:3-4 Jesus challenged his enemies' view that doing good deeds was forbidden on the Sabbath (cp. Luke 13:10-17). • To destroy . . . life may refer to an incident in which the Maccabees decided to fight if attacked on the Sabbath (1 Maccabees 2:32-41). These great Jewish heroes were willing to kill on the Sabbath, yet the Pharisees would not allow good deeds on the Sabbath. Jesus' question shamed them into silence but did not change their hearts (3:5).

3:5-6 Jesus' opponents' hard hearts would not listen to sound reason, so instead of having changed attitudes, they began to plot how to kill him (see also 11:18; 12:12; 14:1-2, 10-11).

3:7-12 Jesus' departure to the lake (the Sea of Galilee) sets the scene for 4:1-5:43. The multitude that came to see John the Baptist (1:7) was surpassed by the multitude that came to see Jesus.

• Idumea was the NT name for ancient Edom (see map, p. 1642; cp. map, p. 626). • Tyre and Sidon were Phoenician cities on the Mediterranean coast that Jesus later visited (7:24, 31).

3:9 The boat probably belonged to Peter and Andrew or to James and John. The crowd's desire to see Jesus was so great that he needed to escape the crush of people (4:1; 5:24, 31).

3:10 Jesus healed many people that day; perhaps he healed all the sick (cp. Matt 12:15).

3:11-12 The evil (literally unclean) spirits knew who Jesus was (1:34; see also 1:22; 5:7), but Jesus did not want his identity revealed (see "The Secret of the Messiah" at 3:11-12, p. 1653).

3:13-19 The scene now changes to a mountain, and Mark tells how Jesus called his disciples, which is reminiscent of God's call of OT prophets (Exod 3:14-22; 1 Sam 3:4-14; Jer 1:5-19).

¹⁵giving them authority to cast out demons.

¹⁶These are the twelve he chose:

Simon (whom he named Peter),

¹⁷James and John (the sons of Zebedee, but Jesus nicknamed them "Sons of Thunder"), ¹⁸Andrew,

Philip,

Bartholomew,

Matthew,

Thomas,

James (son of Alphaeus),

Thaddaeus,

Simon (the zealot),

¹⁹Judas Iscariot (who later betrayed him).

Jesus, His Family, and Satan (3:20-35)

Jesus' Family Thinks He Is Crazy

²⁰One time Jesus entered a house, and the crowds began to gather again. Soon he and his disciples couldn't even find time to eat.

²¹When his family heard what was happening, they tried to take him away. "He's out of his mind," they said.

The Source of Jesus' Power

cp. Matt 9:32-34

²²But the teachers of religious law who had arrived from Jerusalem said, "He's possessed by ^bSatan, the prince of demons. That's where he gets the power to cast out demons."

²³Jesus called them over and responded with an illustration. "How can Satan cast out Satan?" he asked. ²⁴"A kingdom divided by civil war will collapse. ²⁵Similarly, a family splintered by feuding will fall apart.

²⁶And if Satan is divided and fights against himself, how can he stand? He would never survive. ²⁷Let me illustrate this further. Who is powerful enough to enter the house of a strong man and plunder his goods? Only someone even stronger—someone who could tie him up and then plunder his house.

²⁸"I tell you the truth, all sin and ^bblasphemy can be forgiven, ²⁹but anyone who blasphemes the Holy Spirit will never be forgiven. This is a sin with eternal consequences." ³⁰He told them this because they were saying, "He's possessed by an evil spirit."

John 7:3-5

3:14-15 Jesus appointed twelve to represent Israel's twelve tribes and to proclaim that the Kingdom of God had arrived. He called them apostles (Greek apostoloi, "emissaries"; some manuscripts do not include and called them his apostles). He chose them to accompany him and to be sent out (Greek apostello) to preach and to cast out demons. They represented Jesus and were endowed with his authority.

3:16-18 Simon and Andrew were brothers, as were James and John (1:16-20). • Peter is the Greek equivalent of the Aramaic kepa, meaning "rock."

3:17 but Jesus nicknamed them "Sons of Thunder": Literally whom he named Boanerges, which means Sons of Thunder, a nickname that probably speaks of their character (cp. Luke 9:53-54).

3:18 Philip is fifth on all four lists of the twelve disciples (Matt 10:1-4; Luke 6:12-16; Acts 1:13); James the son of Alphaeus (not the son of Zebedee and brother of John) is always ninth. Bartholomew might be Nathanael (John 1:43-51), and Matthew is probably Levi, the tax collector (2:14; Matt 9:9). Although Thomas is referred to as "the twin" (John 11:16; 20:24; 21:2), nothing else is said in the NT about this. Thaddaeus (Matt 10:3) is missing from Luke's list; he might be Judas, the son of James (Luke 6:16; Acts 1:13). The second Simon is the zealot (literally the Cananean, an Aramaic term for Jewish nationalists). That a government official (Matthew) and an anti-government activist were among the twelve apostles testifies to Jesus' ability to change people's hearts and overcome natural antagonism.

3:19 Identifying Judas as Iscariot suggests that Mark wanted to avoid confusing him with another Judas (Luke 6:16; Acts 1:13). Iscariot probably comes from 'ish ("man of") qeriyoth ("Kerioth," a town in Judea). • who later betrayed him: See 14:10-11, 43-46.

3:20-35 This story about Jesus and his family (3:20-21 and 31-35) brackets a controversy story about Jesus' exorcisms (3:22-30); this arrangement identifies Jesus' family with the religious leaders in opposing him.

3:20 That Jesus and the disciples can't find time to eat emphasizes Jesus' great popularity with the crowds (3:7-9).

3:21 He's out of his mind: Mark does not explain whether the attempt by Jesus' family to seize him was motivated by sincere but misguided concern, or by hostility. Jesus' brothers and sisters were not among his followers until after his resurrection (3:31-35; John 7:3-5; 1 Cor 15:7 mentions James, the brother of Jesus, who became a leader of the Jerusalem church, Acts 15:13-21).

3:22 The teachers of religious law (see note on 1:22) from Jerusalem attributed Jesus' apparent madness to his being possessed by Satan (Greek Beelzeboul; other manuscripts read Beezebul; Latin version reads Beelzebub; see note on Matt 10:25). Jesus' opponents credited his miracle-working ability to Satan (as in the rabbinic work, Sanhedrin 3:43a, where miracle-working is ascribed to sorcery).

3:23-27 Jesus showed the absurdity of this charge by giving several analogies. Satan would not undo his own work.

3:27 Jesus provided a better explanation for his ability to cast out demons: Someone stronger than Satan had arrived (1:7) and was able to loot Satan's house. Jesus, the Messiah, the Son of God (1:1), was introducing God's Kingdom and rescuing people from Satan's power.

3:28-30 The phrase I tell you the truth introduces many of Jesus' sayings and gives emphasis to what follows (see also 8:12; 9:1, 41; 10:15, 29; 11:23; 12:43; 13:30; 14:9, 18, 25, 30). • All sin and blasphemy can be forgiven, but there is a sin with eternal consequences—blasphemy against the Holy Spirit. To blaspheme the Holy Spirit is to attribute the work of God to an evil (literally unclean) spirit. Resisting and denouncing the work of God in this way prevents the convicting work of the Spirit that leads to repentance, saving faith in God, and pardon for sin (see also note on Matt 12:31; cp. Heb 6:4-6; 1 Jn 5:16-17).

Jesus Teaches in Parables (4:1-34)

Mark 4:1-12 // Matt 13:1-13 // Luke 8:4-10

4 Once again Jesus began teaching by the lakeshore. A very large crowd soon gathered around him, so he got into a boat.

Then he sat in the boat while all the people remained on the shore. ²He taught them by telling many stories in the form of ³parables, such as this one:

³"Listen! A farmer went out to plant some seed. ⁴As he scattered it across his field, some of the seed fell on a footpath, and the birds came and ate it. ⁵Other seed fell on shallow soil with underlying rock. The seed sprouted quickly because the soil was shallow. ⁶But the plant soon wilted under the hot sun, and since it didn't have deep roots, it died. ⁷Other seed fell among thorns that grew up and choked out the tender plants so they produced no grain. ⁸Still other seeds fell on fertile soil, and they sprouted, grew,

Throughout the Gospel of Mark, Jesus tells others—those he healed or raised from the dead, the disciples who recognized him as the Christ, and the demons who had a correct understanding of his true identity—not to reveal his identity (e.g., 1:34, 44; 3:11-12; 5:43; 7:36; 8:29-30; 9:9, 26, 30).

Why did Jesus command those he healed and those who knew his true identity to keep his healings and identity secret? The answer involves how the Roman authorities would have responded to an extremely popular preacher who proclaimed the arrival of God's Kingdom, performed marvelous healings, and openly allowed his followers to call him Israel's long-awaited Messiah and King. Roman authorities would not tolerate such a situation and would immediately seek to suppress such a movement. In the Roman empire, there was no room for another kingdom or for a messianic rescuer from Roman occupation.

Thus, though Jesus acknowledged to his disciples that he was the Messiah (8:26-30), he did not intend to overthrow Rome (see "The Coming of God's Kingdom" at 1:14-15, p. 1647). So it was expedient for Jesus to teach about God's Kingdom in parables (4:1-34, especially 4:10-12), to minimize the excitement created by his miracles (1:44; 5:43; 7:36; 8:26), to conceal his presence at times from the people (7:24; 9:30-31), to conceal his teaching from outsiders (4:10-13, 33-34; 7:17; 9:28), and to command those who knew his true identity not to reveal it (1:25, 34; 3:11-12; 8:29-30; 9:9). Jesus came "to give his life as a ransom for many" (10:45), not to lead the nation of Israel in rebellion against Rome.

Why does Mark emphasize this secrecy in his Gospel when Matthew only relates it twice (Matt 8:4; 16:20) and Luke only once (Luke 9:21)? In Mark, the secrecy motif shows Jesus' greatness. Jesus Christ, the Son of God (1:1), could not be hidden. The secret was not and cannot be kept (7:36), for Jesus is too great. Those who experienced and witnessed his healing touch could not help but proclaim what he had done. Jesus' identity broke through, and it became clear that he is indeed the Messiah, the Son of God, the Lord over nature, disease, and death.

3:31-35 Mark resumes from 3:20-21.
• Your mother and your brothers (some manuscripts add and sisters): Jesus' brothers are normally understood to have been children born to Joseph and Mary after Jesus' birth (see also 6:3; Matt 1:25; 12:46; John 19:26-27); some interpreters instead believe that they were either Joseph's children by an earlier marriage or Jesus' cousins, due to the Roman Catholic belief that Mary was perpetually a virgin.

3:33-34 In God's Kingdom, one's true relatives are determined not by blood but by a faith relationship (see also 10:29-30).

3:35 Doing God's will includes repentance from sin, faith in God, and following Jesus (1:15, 18, 20).

4:1-34 In this section Mark collects a number of Jesus' teaching parables.

4:1 Jesus again uses a boat to avoid the press of the crowd when he is teaching (3:9; Luke 5:2-3).

4:2 Parables are often stories (Luke 15:11-32; 18:1-8) but can also be proverbs (3:24-25; Luke 4:23), similes and metaphors (Matt 5:14; 10:16), riddles (7:15; 14:58), comparisons (Matt 13:33; Luke 15:3-7), examples (Luke 10:30-35; 12:16-21), or allegories (4:3-9; 12:1-12).

4:3-9 The collection begins with the longest parable and its interpretation (4:13-20), focusing on various types of soil as an analogy for various conditions of the human heart.

and produced a crop that was thirty, sixty, and even a hundred times as much as had been planted!" ⁹Then he said, "Anyone with ears to hear should listen and understand."

Jesus' Purpose for Teaching in Parables

¹⁰Later, when Jesus was alone with the twelve disciples and with the others who were gathered around, they asked him what the parables meant.

¹¹He replied, "You are permitted to understand the ^asecret of the Kingdom of God. But I use parables for everything I say to outsiders, ¹²so that the Scriptures might be fulfilled:

'When they see what I do,
they will learn nothing.
When they hear what I say,
they will not understand.
Otherwise, they will turn to me and be forgiven.'

Interpretation of the Parable of the Farmer Scattering Seed

Mark 4:13-20 // Matt 13:18-23 // Luke 8:11-15

¹³Then Jesus said to them, "If you can't understand the meaning of this parable, how will you understand all the other parables? ¹⁴The farmer plants seed by taking God's word to others. ¹⁵The seed that fell on the footpath represents those who hear the message, only to have Satan come at once and take it away. ¹⁶The seed on the rocky soil represents those who hear the message and immediately receive it with joy. ¹⁷But since they don't have deep roots, they don't last long. They fall away as soon as they have problems or are persecuted for believing God's word. ¹⁸The seed that fell among the thorns represents others who hear God's word, ¹⁹but all too quickly the message is crowded out by the worries of this life, the lure of ^bwealth, and the desire for other things, so no fruit is produced. ²⁰And the seed that fell on good soil represents those who hear and accept God's word and produce a harvest of thirty, sixty, or even a hundred times as much as had been planted!"

Parable of the Lamp

Mark 4:21-25 // Luke 8:16-18; cp. Matt 5:15; 13:12; Luke 11:33

²¹Then Jesus asked them, "Would anyone light a lamp and then put it under a basket or under a bed? Of course not! A lamp is placed on a stand, where its light will shine. ²²For everything that is hidden will eventually be brought into the open, and every secret will be brought to light. ²³Anyone with ears to hear should listen and understand."

²⁴Then he added, "Pay close attention to what you hear. The closer you listen, the more understanding you will be given—and you will receive even more. ²⁵To those who listen to my teaching, more understanding will be given. But for those who are not listening, even what little understanding they have will be taken away from them."

Parable of the Growing Seed

²⁶Jesus also said, "The Kingdom of God is like a farmer who scatters seed on the 4:10 The scene changes from Jesus' teaching a very large crowd from a boat to his being alone with the twelve disciples and . . . others. Their question concerns all the parables (4:33-34), not just this one.

4:11-12 Jesus' real followers were permitted to understand the secret (literally mystery) of the Kingdom of God—namely, that the Kingdom of God had come (1:14-15) and that Christ, the Son of God, was in their midst (1:1). For outsiders, it all seemed like riddles. • Jesus' reply to the disciples' question suggests that the parables were intended to prevent outsiders from understanding them, so that they would be unable to repent and be forgiven. The quotation from Isa 6:9-10 (Greek version) suggests that it was an intentional judgment on the hearers. Jesus' teaching in parables, and the resultant unbelief of outsiders, fulfilled what the Scriptures had predicted. The sensitive nature of Jesus' teaching about the Kingdom of God (a theme that would have made Roman authorities very uneasy) made teaching in parables useful in defusing this issue.

4:13 If Jesus' hearers could not understand the parable, they might lack the grace of citizenship in Christ's Kingdom. However, even the insiders required Jesus' explanation.

4:14-20 The interpretation of the parable of the four soils is allegorical. The farmer represents a preacher of God's word (4:14). The four types of soil that receive the seed represent different responses to the preaching of the word. The point of this parable and its interpretation is that hearers should be good soil and heed God's word (4:9). Only those who produce fruit and endure to the end will be saved (13:13; 8:35; Rev 2:10-11).

4:21-25 These sayings are connected with the exhortation to hear (4:9, 23-24) and with the distinction between insiders and outsiders (4:11-12, 24-25). They illustrate what citizens of the Kingdom will do.

4:21 A lamp is lighted to shine and give people light, not to remain hidden.

Citizens of the Kingdom are responsible for putting the light of the Good News on a stand (4:17).

4:22-23 One day the lamp (i.e., Jesus; cp. John 8:12) will shine his light on everything that is hidden, on every thought and secret action (13:26; 14:62; see Phil 2:10-11). The time to listen is before this occurs (4:9).

4:24 Those who listen and respond will be given more understanding, but those outside (4:11-12) will have greater darkness (2 Cor 3:14-16). • The closer you listen, the more understanding you will be given: Or The measure you give will be the measure you get back.

4:26-34 Mark now gives additional seed parables (4:3-20). Their common theme is the secret of the Kingdom of God (4:11). The parables of the seed growing secretly (4:26-29) and of the mustard seed (4:30-32) describe different stages of the seed-growth process. The Kingdom of God is hidden (4:21), but growth is certain (4:26-29) and the result will be glorious (4:32).

Mark 4:30-32 // Matt 13:31-32 // Luke 13:18-19

³⁰Jesus said, "How can I describe the Kingdom of God? What story should I use to illustrate it? ³¹It is like a mustard seed planted in the ground. It is the smallest of all seeds, ³²but it becomes the largest of all garden plants; it grows long branches, and birds can make nests in its shade."

A Summary of Jesus' Parable Ministry

Mark 4:33-34; cp. Matt 13:34-35

³³Jesus used many similar stories and illustrations to teach the people as much as they could understand. ³⁴In fact, in his public ministry he never taught without using parables; but afterward, when he was alone with his disciples, he explained everything to them.

Jesus Is Lord over All (4:35-5:43)

Jesus Calms the Storm

Mark 4:35-41 // Matt 8:23-27 // Luke 8:22-25

³⁵As evening came, Jesus said to his disciples, "Let's cross to the other side of the lake."

³⁶So they took Jesus in the boat and started out, leaving the crowds behind (although other boats followed). ³⁷But soon a fierce storm came up. High waves were breaking into the boat, and it began to fill with water.

The Son of God (4:35-41)

Time and again Jesus' healings, exorcisms, raising of the dead, and teachings created wonder, awe, amazement, and fear (e.g., 1:22, 27; 4:41; 5:15, 20, 33; 7:37; 9:15; 10:24, 26, 32; 12:17; 15:5, 44; 16:5-6, 8). This amazement emphasizes the miraculous nature of Jesus' ministry. Mark wanted his readers to ask themselves, "Who is this man, that even the wind and waves obey him?" (4:41). Mark has already given the answer: Jesus is "the Messiah, the Son of God" (1:1).

In the OT, the title "Son of God" is applied to the people of Israel (Exod 4:22; Deut 32:5-6, 18-19; Ps 82:6; Jer 3:19; 31:9, 20; Hos 11:1; Mal 2:10) and the angels (Gen 6:2; Job 1:6; 2:1; 38:7; Ps 29:1; 89:6). It is also applied to Israel's king in a special way—the anointed king was seen as God's "son" (2 Sam 7:14; 1 Chr 22:10; 28:6; Ps 2:7; 89:26-27). The coming Messiah (Israel's king, a descendant of David) was also called the Son of God in Jewish literature (the Apocrypha, the Mishnah, the Dead Sea Scrolls). Jews in the first century thus understood the Messiah as being the Son of God.

Immediately following Jesus' introduction in 1:1, his identity as "the Son of God" was affirmed by God at his baptism (1:11) and by demons at the start of his ministry (1:24; see also 1:34; 3:11; 5:7). Later, the disciples recognized Jesus as the Messiah (8:29) and Jesus began to teach them of his forthcoming death (8:31). Then, at Jesus' transfiguration, God affirmed the disciples' confession (9:7). As Jesus approached his death, he affirmed his unique identity as God's Son, both through his teaching (12:6; 13:32) and at his trial (14:61-62).

The climactic confession of Jesus' identity as God's Son took place at the crucifixion, where a Roman centurion was the first human in Mark's Gospel to recognize that Jesus is truly the Son of God (15:39). Jesus' identity as the Son of God is evidenced by his exorcisms and God's recognition. But his sacrificial death and the way he died (15:33-38) provide the supreme evidence that he is the Son of God.

4:26-29 This parable focuses on the seed and its inevitable growth. • the earth produces the crops on its own, the consummation of God's Kingdom does not depend on human action.

• The leaf blade, the heads of wheat, and ripened grain describe normal stages in a seed's growth.

4:29 Harvest time is analogous to the final inauguration of God's Kingdom. A sickle is a frequent symbol of the final judgment (Jer 50:16; Joel 3:13; Rev 14:14-19).

4:30-32 Jesus contrasts a very small beginning with a large result. The mustard seed is proverbially small (see Matt 17:20).

4:33-34 Mark's summary of this section indicates that 4:3-32 is a collection of parables, not a chronological description of Jesus' teaching on a specific day. • Jesus' private explanation of the parables to the disciples shows that they were not outsiders, even though they sometimes lacked understanding (cp. 4:13).

4:35-5:43 The three miracle stories in this section are connected by a shared location (the Sea of Galilee), the presence of the disciples, the use of a boat, and a common theme, Who is this man? (4:41).

4:35-41 This passage focuses on the greatness of Jesus Christ, the Son of God. Jesus' authority over natural forces demonstrated his divinity. • the other side: The eastern side of the Sea of Galilee was the region of the Gerasenes (5:1). • The fact that other boats followed shows Jesus' fame.

³⁸Jesus was sleeping at the back of the boat with his head on a cushion. The disciples woke him up, shouting, "Teacher, don't you care that we're going to drown?"

³⁹When Jesus woke up, he rebuked the wind and said to the waves, "Silence! Be still!" Suddenly the wind stopped, and there was a great calm. ⁴⁰Then he asked them, "Why are you afraid? Do you still have no faith?"

⁴¹The disciples were absolutely terrified. "Who is this man?" they asked each other. "Even the wind and waves obey him!"

Jesus Exercises Authority over Demons

Mark 5:1-20 // Matt 8:28-34 // Luke 8:26-39

5 So they arrived at the other side of the lake, in the region of the Gerasenes. ²When Jesus climbed out of the boat, a man possessed by an evil spirit came out from the tombs to meet him. ³This man lived in the burial caves and could no longer be restrained, even with a chain. ⁴Whenever he was put into chains and shackles—as he often was—he snapped the chains from his wrists and smashed the shackles. No one was strong enough to subdue him. ⁵Day and night he wandered among the burial caves and in the hills, howling and cutting himself with sharp stones.

⁶When Jesus was still some distance away, the man saw him, ran to meet him, and bowed low before him. ⁷With a shriek, he screamed, "Why are you interfering with me, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? In the name of God, I beg you, don't torture me!"

⁸For Jesus had already said to the spirit, "Come out of the man, you evil spirit."

⁹Then Jesus demanded, "What is your name?"

And he replied, "My name is Legion, because there are many of us inside this man."

¹⁰Then the evil spirits begged him again and again not to send them to some distant place.

¹¹There happened to be a large herd of pigs feeding on the hillside nearby. ¹²"Send us into those pigs," the spirits begged. "Let us enter them."

¹⁴The herdsmen fled to the nearby town and the surrounding countryside, spreading the news as they ran. People rushed out to see what had happened. ¹⁵A crowd soon gathered around Jesus, and they saw the man who had been possessed by the legion of demons. He was sitting there fully clothed and perfectly sane, and they were all afraid. ¹⁶Then those who had seen what happened told the others about the demon-possessed man and the pigs. ¹⁷And the crowd began pleading with Jesus to go away and leave them alone.

4:38 Jesus was probably asleep under the stern, using a bag of ballast sand as a pillow. In 1986, a boat dating from Jesus' time was discovered in the mud near the northwest shore of the Sea of Galilee. It is 26½ feet long, 7½ feet wide, and 4½ feet deep, with an elevated stern. It could hold up to fifteen people.

4:39-40 The disciples still lacked faith in Jesus (4:41), despite their numerous opportunities to experience his power and authority (1:21-34, 40-45; 2:1-12; 3:1-5).

4:41 The disciples were absolutely terrified—a frequent response to Jesus in Mark (5:15, 33; 6:50; 9:32; 10:32; 11:18; 16:8). • Who is this man? Readers already know that Jesus is the Messiah, the Son of God (1:1, 11, 24; 3:11).

5:1-20 Jesus and the disciples arrived at the other side of the lake, completing the journey begun in 4:35. As in 1:21-28 and 3:11, the demons truly recognized (1:34) that Jesus was the Son of the Most High God. For the first time in the Gospel of Mark, a Gentile was the recipient of Jesus' healing ministry (see note on 5:10-13; cp. 7:24-30).

5:1 The region of the Gerasenes (other manuscripts read Gadarenes; still others read Gergesenes; see Matt 8:28; Luke 8:26): Textual and geographical problems make the exact location uncertain. Manuscript evidence supports Gerasa, a city in this region located thirty-seven miles southeast of the Sea of Galilee (5:13). Some manuscripts read "Gadarenes"; Gadara was five miles southeast of the Sea of Galilee. A few manuscripts read "Gergesenes"; the town of Gergesa was located on a steep bank on the Sea of Galilee's eastern shore.

5:2-5 Mark focuses on Jesus. The evil (literally unclean; also in 5:8, 13) spirit had great strength, but Jesus' authority was even greater (5:6-13).

5:6-8 Despite the man's horrible condition, Jesus' coming provided him a glimmer of hope; he ran and knelt before Jesus, seeking help. • Son of the Most High God: Evil spirits know Jesus' true identity (1:24, 34; 3:11). • There was no struggle; Jesus was in charge and the evil spirit obeyed the Master. Torture is the final judgment awaiting evil spirits (Matt 8:29; Luke 8:31).

5:9 A legion was a Roman military unit of 5,000–6,000 men. Here it describes the presence of many evil spirits.

5:10-13 The spirits' persistent begging shows Jesus' mastery over them. They were permitted to enter a herd of about 2,000 pigs, whose presence marks this as Gentile territory (see note on 5:1). Some have focused on the economic loss of the pigs or have speculated about why Jesus let the demons destroy them, but Mark and his readers were interested in how Jesus saved the man.

5:15-16 The contrast between the former and present condition of the man who had been possessed was a testimony of Jesus' saving power.

5:17 The frightened people asked Jesus to go away. Fear and amazement are frequent responses to the mighty acts of Jesus (cp. 1:22, 27; 2:12; 4:41; 6:50-51). The response to Jesus' saving work varied (cp. 4:14-20).

5:18 Unlike his neighbors (5:17), the man experienced God's grace and wanted to go with him (literally to be with him; see 3:14).

Jesus Heals in Response to Faith

²¹Jesus got into the boat again and went back to the other side of the lake, where a large crowd gathered around him on the shore. ²²Then a leader of the local synagogue, whose name was Jairus, arrived. When he saw Jesus, he fell at his feet, ²³pleading fervently with him. "My little daughter is dying," he said. "Please come and lay your hands on her; heal her so she can live."

²⁴Jesus went with him, and all the people followed, crowding around him. ²⁵A woman in the crowd had suffered for twelve years with constant bleeding. ²⁶She had suffered a great deal from many doctors, and over the years she had spent everything she had to pay them, but she had gotten no better. In fact, she had gotten worse. ²⁷She had heard about Jesus, so she came up behind him through the crowd and touched his robe. ²⁸For she thought to herself, "If I can just touch his robe, I will be healed." ²⁹Immediately the bleeding stopped, and she could feel in her body that she had been healed of her terrible condition.

³⁰Jesus realized at once that healing power had gone out from him, so he turned around in the crowd and asked, "Who touched my robe?"

³¹His disciples said to him, "Look at this crowd pressing around you. How can you ask, 'Who touched me?'"

³²But he kept on looking around to see who had done it. ³³Then the frightened woman, trembling at the realization of what had happened to her, came and fell to her knees in front of him and told him what she had done. ³⁴And he said to her, "Daughter, your faith has made you well. Go in peace. Your suffering is over."

³⁵While he was still speaking to her, messengers arrived from the home of Jairus, the leader of the synagogue. They told him, "Your daughter is dead. There's no use troubling the Teacher now."

³⁶But Jesus overheard them and said to Jairus, "Don't be afraid. Just have faith."

³⁷Then Jesus stopped the crowd and wouldn't let anyone go with him except Peter, James, and John (the brother of James). ³⁸When they came to the home of the synagogue leader, Jesus saw much commotion and weeping and wailing. ³⁹He went inside and asked, "Why all this commotion and weeping? The child isn't dead; she's only asleep."

⁴⁰The crowd laughed at him. But he made them all leave, and he took the girl's father and mother and his three disciples into the

5:19-20 Jesus' mission for the man was to tell others the great things the Lord had done for him. Mark thus identifies Jesus as the Lord. • tell them everything: Unlike other occasions, Jesus did not try to keep his identity secret (see "The Secret of the Messiah" at 3:11-12, p. 1653), perhaps because it was less dangerous in this Gentile area. • Ten Towns: Greek Decapolis (see note on Matt 4:24-25).

5:21-43 Two healing miracles are connected by the need for faith (5:34, 36). The story of Jairus's daughter brackets the story of the healing of the woman who had constant bleeding (5:25-34; see Mark Introduction, "Literary Features," p. 1644), during which Jairus's sick daughter died (5:35-43).

5:21-22 As Jesus arrived in Galilee on the other (i.e., west) side of the lake, . . . a leader of the local synagogue named Jairus approached him. Jairus organized the worship services at the synagogue (cp. Acts 13:15) and represented the Jewish community to the outside world.

5:23 The father wanted Jesus to heal her physically (literally that she might be saved; see 3:4; 5:28, 34; 6:56; 10:52; 15:30-31).

5:24-34 As Jesus goes to Jairus's home with a great crowd following, Mark introduces a woman in the crowd who suffered from constant bleeding. This condition not only brought poor health, but made her ceremonially unclean and thus unable to participate in the normal life of the community (see Lev 15:25-27; "Clean and Unclean" at Lev 11:1-15:33, p. 213). She was a model of the kind of faith that Jairus should have.

5:27-29 The woman's faith (5:34) convinced her that just touching Jesus' clothing would bring healing; this took place immediately.

5:33-34 The woman responded in fear—not from guilt, but from the realization that she had experienced a mighty miracle from God. Unlike the fear of the Gerasenes (5:15-17), her fear was positive and brought Jesus' blessing. She experienced God's grace and salvation.

5:35-43 Since Jairus had left home, his daughter had died. Jesus reassured Jairus that, despite the death of his daughter and the seeming hopelessness of the situation, Jairus should not be afraid but have faith in Jesus.

5:36 overheard: Or ignored. • Just have faith: As the woman had (5:28).

5:37 Peter, James, and John became Jesus' inner circle (see 3:16-17; 9:2; 14:33).

5:38 The commotion and weeping and wailing confirmed the report of the messengers and dramatized the hopelessness of the situation. Such outbursts of grief were typical of funerals in Jesus' day, where professional mourners were often hired (cp. Matt 9:23).

5:39 Sleep is a metaphor for death (John 11:11; 1 Thes 4:13-15). The child isn't dead because she will be resurrected—she's only asleep, and will shortly "wake up" and resume her life. The same Greek word translated here as "sleep" refers to death in Matt 27:52; Acts 7:60; 13:36; 1 Cor 15:6, 18, 20, 51; 1 Thes 4:13-15.

5:40 Because the crowd did not understand Jesus' words, they laughed at him, knowing that the girl had died. He room where the girl was lying. ⁴¹Holding her hand, he said to her, "Talitha kum," which means "Little girl, get up!" ⁴²And the girl, who was twelve years old, immediately stood up and walked around! They were overwhelmed and totally amazed. ⁴³Jesus gave them strict orders not to tell anyone what had happened, and then he told them to give her something to eat.

3. JESUS IS MISUNDERSTOOD (6:1–8:26)

Mark 6:1–6a // Matt 13:53–58 // Luke 4:16–24

6 Jesus left that part of the country and returned with his disciples to Nazareth, his hometown. ²The next Sabbath he began teaching in the synagogue, and many who heard him were amazed. They asked, "Where did he get all this wisdom and the power to perform such miracles?" ³Then they scoffed, "He's just a carpenter, the son of Mary and the brother of James, Joseph, Judas, and Simon. And his sisters live right here among us." They were deeply offended and refused to believe in him.

⁴Then Jesus told them, "A prophet is honored everywhere except in his own hometown and among his relatives and his own family." ⁵And because of their unbelief, he couldn't do any miracles among them except to place his hands on a few sick people and heal them. ⁶And he was amazed at their unbelief.

Jesus Sends Out the Twelve Disciples

Mark 6:6b–13 // Matt 10:5–15 // Luke 9:1–6;

cp. Luke 10:1–11

Then Jesus went from village to village, teaching the people. ⁷And he called his twelve disciples together and began sending them out two by two, giving them authority to cast out evil spirits. ⁸He told them to take nothing for their journey except a walking stick—no food, no traveler's bag, no money. ⁹He allowed them to wear sandals but not to take a change of clothes.

¹⁰"Wherever you go," he said, "stay in the same house until you leave town. ¹¹But if any place refuses to welcome you or listen to you, shake its dust from your feet as you leave to show that you have abandoned those people to their fate."

made them all leave, probably to keep them from discouraging the parents any further.

5:41 Mark translates Talitha kum for his Greek-speaking readers as Little girl, get up! The Aramaic terms are not magical; they are simply the actual words Jesus spoke when he raised the little girl, since Aramaic was his native language. The Aramaic terms that Mark records probably come from learning the story in Aramaic in Jerusalem.

5:42 Jesus' authority over death was demonstrated when the little girl immediately stood up and walked around, with no need for recuperation. The transformation was instant and absolute.

5:43 The miracle is followed by a command not to tell anyone what had happened (see "The Secret of the Messiah," at 3:11–12, p. 1653). • give her something to eat: The Lord of nature, demons, illness, and death is also concerned with the daily needs of his creatures.

6:1–6a Nazareth's rejection of Jesus contrasts ironically with the faith displayed by others, and the miracles he couldn't do contrasts with the power displayed elsewhere.

6:1–2 The people's amazement at Jesus' teaching was due to the wisdom of his teaching and his power to heal and cast out demons. • Where did he get: His quiet years in Nazareth had not prepared them to accept him as an authoritative teacher and healer.

6:3–4 The residents of Nazareth thought of Jesus only as a carpenter (literally craftsman). • He's just a carpenter, the son of Mary: Some manuscripts read He's just the son of the carpenter and of Mary. One expects "son of Joseph"; this phrasing probably indicates that Joseph had died by this time. • brother . . . his sisters: See note on 3:31–35. • Joseph: Most manuscripts read Joses; see Matt 13:55. • They were deeply offended: They thought Jesus was claiming to be someone he could not possibly be.

6:5–6a Faith and healing are frequently connected in Mark (2:5; 5:34, 36; 9:23–24; 10:52). Jesus' miracles were not performances but the partial realization of God's Kingdom; entrance to that Kingdom and its benefits require repentance and faith (1:15). • A few sick people were healed, but the unbelief that Jesus encountered in his own village amazed him, a unique occurrence. • This section of Mark (3:7–6:6a) speaks of Jesus' rejection by his family (3:21, 31–35), the scribes (3:22), and the people of Gerasa (5:17); it ends with rejection by people in his hometown (6:1–6a). Along the way, a few people believed and were healed. This ending is similar to the ending of the previous section (1:14–3:6).

6:6b–8:21 Jesus' mission and the disciples' misunderstanding are prominent themes in this section.

6:6b This summary of Jesus' healing and preaching ministry introduces an account concerning the disciples. Jesus' teaching from village to village probably took place around the Sea of Galilee and perhaps in Capernaum (see 2:1).

6:7–13 Jesus now sent the disciples out to preach and heal. During this mission, Jesus' memorable teachings were engraved in their minds by retelling, and it prepared them to remember and retell later what Jesus did and taught (Luke 1:2).

6:7 two by two: This practice fulfilled the OT requirement of two witnesses (Num 35:30; Deut 17:6; 19:15; see Matt 18:16) and provided for companionship and mutual help (Acts 13:1–3; 15:22, 39, 40). • giving them authority: Jesus can delegate his authority (see 1:27; 2:10) to others. • The disciples were to cast out evil (literally unclean) spirits and to preach and heal (6:12–13; see 6:30).

6:8–9 The instructions for the disciples' mission were about what they should leave behind (food . . . bag . . . money . . . change of clothes). They were to travel light, counting on Jewish hospitality for food and lodging (cp. Luke 22:35–37). • no money: Literally no copper coins in their money belts.

6:10 They were to stay in the same house and not abuse hospitality by seeking out better offers of food and lodging.

6:11 The shaking of dust from the feet is best interpreted as a symbolic act pronouncing God's judgment upon those who rejected the apostles' preaching (cp. Acts 18:6), which was really a rejection of Jesus and of God, who sent him (9:37).

6:12–13 The message to repent is an abbreviation of the fuller message of 1:15.

Herod and the Death of John the Baptist

Mark 6:14-16 // Matt 14:1-2 // Luke 9:7-9

Mark 6:17-29 // Matt 14:3-12; cp. Luke 3:19-20

¹⁴Herod Antipas, the king, soon heard about Jesus, because everyone was talking about him. Some were saying, "This must be John the Baptist raised from the dead. That is why he can do such miracles." ¹⁵Others said, "He's the prophet Elijah." Still others said, "He's a prophet like the other great prophets of the past."

¹⁶When Herod heard about Jesus, he said, "John, the man I beheaded, has come back from the dead."

¹⁷For Herod had sent soldiers to arrest and imprison John as a favor to Herodias. She had been his brother Philip's wife, but Herod Antipas, sixth son of Herod the Great, was ruler of Galilee and Perea from 4 BC to AD 39, during the life of Jesus and in the region where Jesus Christ and John the Baptist concentrated their ministries.

Following the example of his father, Herod Antipas founded cities. Sepphoris, his first project, was the largest city in Galilee. It was Antipas's capital city until he built Tiberias, named in honor of the reigning emperor, Tiberius (AD 14–37). The city Tiberias was on the western shore of the Sea of Galilee. Antipas completed the city in AD 23 and made it his capital.

Herod Antipas offended many Jews by divorcing his wife and marrying Herodias, the wife of his half brother, Herod Philip (see diagram, p. 1579). Antipas's marriage to Herodias was in violation of the law of Moses (Lev 18:16; 20:21) because Herod's brother Philip was still alive. When John the Baptist spoke out strongly against this illegal marriage, Antipas imprisoned him (6:17-18); Herod was afraid John's denunciation would lead to a political revolt (Josephus, Antiquities 18.5.2). Herodias's daughter later danced for Herod, evoking a rash promise from him to give her anything she wanted (Matt 14:1-12). Herodias took the opportunity to have John beheaded.

It was obvious to Antipas that Jesus' ministry was even more remarkable than John's (see 6:14-16; Matt 14:1-2; Luke 9:7-9), but he was reluctant to use force to bring about a meeting, for fear of arousing the people against him. Jesus, for his part, was openly critical of Herod Antipas (8:15; Luke 13:31-33). Eventually, Jesus withdrew from Antipas's territories.

When Jesus was finally arrested, Pilate could find no fault in Jesus, so he sent him to Herod Antipas, who was in Jerusalem for Passover. Pilate may also have been attempting to reconcile himself to Antipas. Their relationship had been rather strained since the Galilean massacre (Luke 13:1), and because Pilate had brought votive shields that bore the image of Tiberius and were considered blasphemous by the Jews (Philo, On the Embassy to Gaius 299–304). When Jesus was brought before Antipas, Herod only mocked him and sent him back to Pilate (Luke 23:7-11). The main political accomplishment of the incident was that Herod and Pilate were reconciled (Luke 23:12).

Herod Antipas was later defeated in war by King Aretas, whose daughter he had divorced (Jews interpreted this defeat as an act of divine judgment). He was then deposed by Emperor Gaius in AD 39 and sent into exile, in response to accusations from Herod Agrippa I of Antipas's conspiracy against Rome (see "Herod Agrippa I" at Acts 12:1-4, p. 1851).

6:14-29 The account of John the Baptist's death, sandwiched between the sending out and the return of the disciples, continues the theme of Jesus' authority and power (see 6:7, 14). John's fate and the warning given to the disciples in their missionary charge (6:11) also foreshadowed Jesus' death. The one greater even than John (1:8) would soon be handed over to religious and political leaders and put to death (8:31; 9:31; 10:33).

6:14 Herod Antipas: See "Herod

Antipas," above. • soon heard about Jesus: The successful mission in Galilee and Perea of six teams of disciples (6:12-13) spread Jesus' fame throughout the region. • Some were saying: Some manuscripts read He was saying. • This must be John the Baptist raised from the dead: Either Herod was thinking that the spirit of John the Baptist had come to rest upon Jesus at his death, as the spirit of Elijah came upon Elisha, or he was saying figuratively in exasperation, "This is John the Baptist all over again!"

6:15 The return of the prophet Elijah had been prophesied in Mal 3:1; 4:5-6 (cp. 9:11-13).

6:17 imprison John: The Jewish historian Josephus (Antiquities 18.5.2) says that John was imprisoned in the fortress of Machaerus in Perea. • Josephus (Antiquities 18.5.4) states that Herodias was the wife of Herod Antipas's half brother, Herod Philip (see diagram, p. 1579; cp. Josephus, Antiquities 18.5.1).

Herod had married her.¹⁸ John had been telling Herod, "It is against God's law for you to marry your brother's wife."¹⁹ So Herodias bore a grudge against John and wanted to kill him. But without Herod's approval she was powerless,²⁰ for Herod respected John; and knowing that he was a good and holy man, he protected him. Herod was greatly disturbed whenever he talked with John, but even so, he liked to listen to him.

²¹Herodias's chance finally came on Herod's birthday. He gave a party for his high government officials, army officers, and the leading citizens of Galilee. ²²Then his daughter, also named Herodias, came in and performed a dance that greatly pleased Herod and his guests. "Ask me for anything you like," the king said to the girl, "and I will give it to you."²³ He even vowed, "I will give you whatever you ask, up to half my kingdom!"

²⁴She went out and asked her mother, "What should I ask for?"

Her mother told her, "Ask for the head of John the Baptist!"

²⁵So the girl hurried back to the king and told him, "I want the head of John the Baptist, right now, on a tray!"

²⁶Then the king deeply regretted what he had said; but because of the vows he had made in front of his guests, he couldn't refuse her. ²⁷So he immediately sent an executioner to the prison to cut off John's head and bring it to him. The soldier beheaded John in the prison, ²⁸brought his head on a tray, and gave it to the girl, who took it to her mother. ²⁹When John's disciples heard what had happened, they came to get his body and buried it in a tomb.

Jesus Feeds Five Thousand

Mark 6:30-31 // Luke 9:10a

Mark 6:32-44 // Matt 14:13-21 // Luke 9:10b-17 // John 6:1-15

³⁰The apostles returned to Jesus from their ministry tour and told him all they had done and taught. ³¹Then Jesus said, "Let's go off by ourselves to a quiet place and rest awhile." He said this because there were so many people coming and going that Jesus and his apostles didn't even have time to eat.

³²So they left by boat for a quiet place, where they could be alone. ³³But many people recognized them and saw them leaving, and people from many towns ran ahead along the shore and got there ahead of them. ³⁴Jesus saw the huge crowd as he stepped from the boat, and he had compassion on them because they were like sheep without a shepherd. So he began teaching them many things.

³⁵Late in the afternoon his disciples came to him and said, "This is a remote place, and it's already getting late. ³⁶Send the crowds away so they can go to the nearby farms and villages and buy something to eat."

³⁷But Jesus said, "You feed them."

"With what?" they asked. "We'd have to work for months to earn enough money to buy food for all these people!"

³⁸"How much bread do you have?" he asked. "Go and find out."

6:18 Mark gives the moral-religious reason for the imprisonment and execution of John the Baptist. Josephus refers to the political reason (fear that John's great popularity might start a revolution; Josephus, Antiquities 18.5.2). Similarly, the religious reasons for Jesus' condemnation (14:63-64) became political when he was brought before Pontius Pilate (15:2; Luke 23:2-3). • It is against God's law: Not only was the relationship adulterous (Lev 20:10), but it violated the further law against marrying a brother's wife (Lev 18:16; 20:21).

6:19-28 Herodias's role in the murder of John the Baptist recalls the story of Jezebel (1 Kgs 19:1-2). Herod succumbed to pressure (6:26-28), which foreshadows the later story of Pontius Pilate, who put Jesus to death against his better judgment (cp. 6:20, 25-28 with 15:6-15).

6:22 his daughter, also named Herodias: Some manuscripts read the daughter of Herodias herself. Herodias's daughter was also named Salome (Josephus, Antiquities 18.5.4).

6:29 This verse is similar to the description of Jesus' death and burial (see 15:43-46). Disciples of John existed after his death until at least the AD 200s (see Acts 18:24-19:7).

6:30-44 The disciples' mission concludes (6:6b-13, 30-34), followed by the account of the feeding of the 5,000 (6:35-44; see also Matt 14:13-21; Luke 9:10-17; John 6:1-15). The feeding of the 4,000 is sufficiently different to indicate that these were two separate occasions (see 8:1-10).

6:30 Mark calls Jesus' disciples apostles here to indicate their new status as those who had been sent out (see note on 3:14-15) and to avoid possible confusion between them and John the Baptist's disciples. • The apostles reported the success of what they had done and taught.

6:31-33 Let's go: Jesus and the disciples probably proceeded northward along the western shore of the Sea of Galilee toward Bethsaida (Luke 9:10), in sight of the crowds along the shore. • so many people: The great crowds demonstrate the success of the apostolic mission and the greatness of Jesus, whom the apostles represented.

6:34 they were like sheep without a shepherd: God's people need a shepherd (Num 27:16-17; 1 Kgs 22:17; 2 Chr 18:16; see Jer 13:10; Ezek 34:23). Teaching people God's word is compared to feeding sheep in Jewish literature (e.g., Ezek 34:1-24; 2 Baruch 77:13-15).

6:35-36 The place where Jesus taught was remote, but it still had farms and villages . . . nearby where the people could buy something to eat.

6:37 Just as the disciples were able to cast out demons and heal through his power (6:7, 13, 30), Jesus suggests that they should be able to feed the crowd. Their reply considered only what they themselves were capable of doing. They did not consider Jesus' power. • We'd have to work for months to earn enough money: Literally it would take 200 denarii. A denarius was equivalent to a laborer's full day's wage.

They came back and reported, "We have five loaves of bread and two fish."

³⁹Then Jesus told the disciples to have the people sit down in groups on the green grass. ⁴⁰So they sat down in groups of fifty or a hundred.

⁴¹Jesus took the five loaves and two fish, looked up toward heaven, and blessed them. Then, breaking the loaves into pieces, he kept giving the bread to the disciples so they could distribute it to the people. He also divided the fish for everyone to share. ⁴²They all ate as much as they wanted, ⁴³and afterward, the disciples picked up twelve baskets of leftover bread and fish. ⁴⁴A total of 5,000 men and their families were fed.

Mark 6:45-52 // Matt 14:22-33 // John 6:16-21

⁴⁵Immediately after this, Jesus insisted that his disciples get back into the boat and head across the lake to Bethsaida, while he sent the people home. ⁴⁶After telling everyone good-bye, he went up into the hills by himself to pray.

⁴⁷Late that night, the disciples were in their boat in the middle of the lake, and Jesus was alone on land. ⁴⁸He saw that they were in serious trouble, rowing hard and struggling against the wind and waves. About three o'clock in the morning Jesus came toward them, walking on the water. He intended to go past them, ⁴⁹but when they saw him walking on the water, they cried out in terror, thinking he was a ghost. ⁵⁰They were all terrified when they saw him.

But Jesus spoke to them at once. "Don't be afraid," he said. "Take courage! I am here!" ⁵¹Then he climbed into the boat, and the wind stopped. They were totally amazed, ⁵²for they still didn't understand the significance of the miracle of the loaves. Their hearts were too hard to take it in.

Mark 6:53-56 // Matt 14:34-36; cp. John 6:22-25

⁵³After they had crossed the lake, they landed at Gennesaret. They brought the boat to shore ⁵⁴and climbed out. The people recognized Jesus at once, ⁵⁵and they ran throughout the whole area, carrying sick people on mats to wherever they heard he was. ⁵⁶Wherever he went—in villages, cities, or the countryside—they brought the sick

6:41 The words took, blessed, breaking, and giving echo Jesus' words at the Last Supper (14:22-25). Both events envision the final messianic banquet in which believers will eat and drink with Jesus in the Kingdom of God (14:25; Matt 5:6; 22:1-10; see Rev 2:7; 19:7-9; 22:1-2, 14, 17-19).

6:42-44 This miracle makes Elisha's great miracle of feeding of 100 people with twenty loaves (2 Kgs 4:42-44) seem trivial by comparison. Readers of the Gospel must ask themselves, "Who is this man who does such things?" (4:41). He is the Messiah, the Son of God (1:1).

6:45-52 This story is a manifestation of Jesus' glory to the disciples (6:48-50). It is also a rescue story (6:47-48, 51) and a story about the disciples' lack of understanding (6:51-52).

6:45-46 The disciples proceeded to Bethsaida, the home of Peter and Andrew (John 1:44), while Jesus dismissed the crowd and went apart to pray. Jesus was a man of prayer (1:35) and urged his disciples to pray (see 14:38).

6:48 It was about three o'clock in the morning (literally about the fourth watch of the night, which began at 3:00 AM): This was a Roman designation of time (Jews reckoned only three watches), which supports the view that Mark wrote for Christians in Rome.

• Mark does not explain how Jesus saw his disciples' plight late at night in the middle of the lake (cp. John 6:19), as it is not important to the story. • Jesus came toward them, walking on the water: It appears that Jesus' purpose was to rescue the disciples from the storm. However, Mark then states that Jesus intended to go past them. Numerous attempts have been made to explain this, but the best explanation is that "to go past them" speaks of a divine manifestation (cp. Exod 33:18-34:6; 1 Kgs 19:11-13): Jesus apparently sought to show his divine glory to the disciples. This understanding is supported by the disciples' fear, a response often associated with theophany.

• Many have tried to rationalize the miracle of Jesus' walking on the sea, but Mark, Matthew, and John clearly understood this as a miracle, beyond natural explanation. If Jesus is in fact the Son of God, there is no need to find another explanation.

6:49-50 The disciples' terror is understandable—humans cannot walk on water, so they concluded that they were seeing a ghost. As in many divine manifestations, the Lord gave a word of assurance: Don't be afraid and Take courage! The reason is, I am here! It was not a ghost but Jesus—their friend, Savior, and Lord. • I am here! (or The 'I Am' is here; Greek reads I am): Because Jesus' walking on the sea and stilling the storm were miraculous, Mark's original readers would have understood the exclamation I am as a parallel to God's self-description in the OT (Exod 3:14; Deut 32:39; Isa 41:4; 43:10-13) and thus as a reference to Jesus' divinity.

6:51 Jesus' entrance into the boat calmed the storm. • totally amazed: They were reverential and awed at the greatness of Jesus Christ, the Son of God (cp. 2:12; 5:24; Matt 14:33).

6:52 The account ends with a comment about the disciples' dullness. It was not from lack of opportunity to believe in Jesus—they had witnessed the miracle of the loaves and many other miracles—but because their hearts were too hard, usually a quality of Jesus' opponents (e.g., 3:5; see also 8:17, 21; 9:32). Later their hearts would be softened, and they would understand (Luke 24:44-49; John 12:16; 13:7).

6:53-56 This summary of Jesus' ministry in Galilee emphasizes his great popularity and healing ability.

6:53 Gennesaret refers to a fertile plain, 3.5 miles long by 0.5 miles wide (5.6 by 0.8 kilometers), between Tiberias and Capernaum on the northwest coast of the Sea of Galilee. The original journey was to Bethsaida (6:45), so perhaps the winds (6:48) blew the ship off course and they landed at Gennesaret. Alternatively, 6:45 might indicate the direction of the journey (i.e., northeast), and not the actual goal of the voyage.

out to the marketplaces. They begged him to let the sick touch at least the fringe of his robe, and all who touched him were healed.

Mark 7:1-23 // Matt 15:1-20

7 One day some Pharisees and teachers of religious law arrived from Jerusalem to see Jesus. ²They noticed that some of his disciples failed to follow the Jewish ritual of hand washing before eating. ³(The Jews, especially the Pharisees, do not eat until they have poured water over their cupped hands, as required by their ancient traditions. ⁴Similarly, they don't eat anything from the market until they immerse their hands in water. This is but one of many traditions they have clung to—such as their ceremonial washing of cups, pitchers, and kettles.)

⁵So the Pharisees and teachers of religious law asked him, "Why don't your disciples follow our age-old tradition? They eat without first performing the hand-washing ceremony."

⁶Jesus replied, "You 'hypocrites! Isaiah was right when he prophesied about you, for he wrote,

'These people honor me with their lips, but their hearts are far from me.

⁷Their worship is a farce, for they teach man-made ideas as commands from God.'

⁸For you ignore God's law and substitute your own tradition."

⁹Then he said, "You skillfully sidestep God's law in order to hold on to your own tradition. ¹⁰For instance, Moses gave you this law from God: 'Honor your father and mother,' and 'Anyone who speaks disrespectfully of father or mother must be put to death.' ¹¹But you say it is all right for people to say to their parents, 'Sorry, I can't help you. For I have vowed to give to God what I would have given to you.' ¹²In this way, you let them disregard their needy parents. ¹³And so you cancel the word of God in order to hand down your own tradition. And this is only one example among many others."

¹⁴Then Jesus called to the crowd to come and hear. "All of you listen," he said, "and try to understand. ¹⁵It's not what goes into your body that defiles you; you are defiled by what comes from your heart."

6:56 The fringe of a garment refers to the tassels worn by Jewish men on their robes (see Num 15:38-39; Deut 22:12). Just touching the fringe of the garment of Jesus the Messiah, the Son of God, brought healing to the sick (see also 3:10; 5:28).

7:1-23 This account has no direct connection with what precedes it. It assumes only a context such as "Once in the ministry of Jesus." After setting the scene (7:1-4), Mark introduces the Pharisees' question (7:5) followed by Jesus' response (7:6-23). The first part of Jesus' response (7:6-13) centers around two OT passages and a twofold attack on the Pharisees' traditions (7:6-8, 9-13). In the second part (7:14-23), Jesus teaches about what does and does not truly defile.

7:1 Readers already know that the Pharisees and teachers of religious law were hostile to Jesus (see 2:16, 24; 3:6, 22).

7:2-4 Mark explains the Pharisaic practices of ritual cleansing for his non-Jewish (Gentile) readers. The ancient traditions (literally the traditions of the elders) were as yet unwritten accounts that the Pharisees believed had been given to Moses on Mount Sinai along with the written law. They were written down around AD 200 in the Mishnah, one of the key sources for understanding ancient Judaism.

7:3 poured water over their cupped hands: Literally washed with the fist.

7:4 immerse their hands: Some manuscripts read sprinkle themselves. • cups, pitchers, and kettles: Some manuscripts add and dining couches.

7:5 Since the Pharisees believed that their oral traditions were given to Moses as part of God's divine revelation, they asked Jesus why his disciples did not keep them. After all, teachers were responsible for the behavior of their disciples (see 2:24).

7:6-8 Jesus first responds by quoting Isa 29:13 (Greek version), which deals with the farce of equating man-made ideas with God's commands. It describes well the situation in which the Pharisees had substituted their human tradition for God's law.

7:9-13 Next, Jesus provides an instance where the Pharisees' traditions contradicted God's law and allowed them to sidestep its requirements. • 'Honor your father and mother': See Exod 20:12; Deut 5:16. • 'Anyone who speaks disrespectfully of father or mother must be put to death': See Exod 21:17 (Greek version); Lev 20:9 (Greek version).

7:11-12 But you say: The contrast with God's law is emphatic—their tradition repudiated God's command for people to honor their parents by providing for their needs. • 'For I have vowed to give to God what I would have given to you': Literally 'What I would have given to you is Corban' (that is, a gift). The tradition said that people could sidestep their obligation to support their parents by dedicating some of their resources to God, thus disregarding and dishonoring their needy parents.

7:13 The result of such traditions was to cancel the word of God. • only one example among many others: It was not an isolated instance; see, e.g., Isa 1:10-20; 58:1-14.

7:14-23 Jesus' second argument against the Pharisees was a proverb that Jesus told the crowd. Later, in the privacy of a home, Jesus explained it to his disciples (7:17-23). It concerns moral distinctions about eating. Eating affects the digestive system, but moral issues involve the heart. The heart is a metaphor for the seat of moral decision making. How a person eats (with clean or unclean hands) or what a person eats (clean or unclean food) affects only the digestive tract, so it has no bearing on the moral issues of the soul. To help his later readers understand the implications of Jesus' teaching, Mark adds the interpretive comment By saying this, he declared that every kind of food is acceptable in God's eyes. In the apostolic church, Peter and Paul were instrumental in bringing this implication to light (see Acts 10:1-11; 18; Rom 14:14; 1 Cor 8:8; Gal 2:11-21).

7:15 Some manuscripts add verse 16, Anyone with ears to hear should listen and understand. Cp. 4:9, 23.

¹⁷Then Jesus went into a house to get away from the crowd, and his disciples asked him what he meant by the parable he had just used. ¹⁸"Don't you understand either?" he asked. "Can't you see that the food you put into your body cannot defile you? ¹⁹Food doesn't go into your heart, but only passes through the stomach and then goes into the sewer." (By saying this, he declared that every kind of food is acceptable in God's eyes.)

²⁰And then he added, "It is what comes from inside that defiles you. ²¹For from within, out of a person's heart, come evil thoughts, sexual immorality, theft, murder, ²²adultery, greed, wickedness, deceit, lustful desires, envy, ²³slander, pride, and foolishness. ²³All these vile things come from within; they are what defile you."

Mark 7:24-30 // Matt 15:21-28

²⁴Then Jesus left Galilee and went north to the region of Tyre. He didn't want anyone to know which house he was staying in, but he couldn't keep it a secret. ²⁵Right away a woman who had heard about him came and fell at his feet. Her little girl was possessed by an evil spirit, ²⁶and she begged him to cast out the ^bdemon from her daughter.

Since she was a Gentile, born in Syrian Phoenicia, ²⁷Jesus told her, "First I should feed the children—my own family, the Jews. It isn't right to take food from the children and throw it to the dogs."

²⁸She replied, "That's true, Lord, but even the dogs under the table are allowed to eat the scraps from the children's plates."

²⁹"Good answer!" he said. "Now go home, for the demon has left your daughter."

³⁰And when she arrived home, she found her little girl lying quietly in bed, and the demon was gone.

Jesus Heals a Deaf Man

³¹Jesus left Tyre and went up to Sidon before going back to the Sea of Galilee and the region of the Ten Towns. ³²A deaf man with a speech impediment was brought to him, and the people begged Jesus to lay his hands on the man to heal him.

³³Jesus led him away from the crowd so they could be alone. He put his fingers into the man's ears. Then, spitting on his own fingers, he touched the man's tongue.

³⁴Looking up to heaven, he sighed and said,

7:20-22 These verses summarize thirteen things that truly defile a person. These actions and vices all come from the heart.

7:24-30 The discussion of clean and unclean and of undefiled and defiled in 7:1-23 has prepared readers for the story of the Gentile woman's faith. For Jews, Gentiles were defiled by definition, because they did not keep the regulations of the OT (see Acts 10:1-11:18, especially 10:14-15; 11:2-3, 8-9).

7:24 The city of Tyre (some manuscripts add and Sidon) and its surrounding regions lie on the Mediterranean coast in modern-day Lebanon. Originally an island, Tyre became a peninsula when Alexander the Great constructed a half-mile ramp from the mainland in 332 BC. Tyre had one of the most important harbors on the eastern side of the Mediterranean Sea. People earlier had come from Tyre to hear Jesus and see him work miracles (3:7-8), which explains how the Tyrian woman knew of him. • There is much discussion about why Jesus left Galilee to visit this Gentile region. Mark provides no explanation, so any suggestion is pure speculation. Mark's Gentile readers, however, would have understood this journey by Jesus as foreshadowing the church's mission to the Gentile world that led to their own conversion (for more about the genesis of the church in Rome, see Romans Introduction, p. 1889).

7:25-26 The woman was from Syrian Phoenicia and therefore a Gentile. The urgency and intensity of the woman's petition is seen in her falling at Jesus' feet and begging.

7:25 evil: Literally unclean.

7:27-28 Jesus' reply to the woman seems like a harsh refusal, but their interaction indicates that he wanted to see her faith (cp. Matt 15:28). • First I should feed the children—my own family, the Jews: Literally Let the children eat first. Jesus' use of first did not exclude her as a Gentile from the grace of God, but indicated that his mission was first to the Jews (Acts 13:46; Rom 1:16). The woman responded to Jesus' words with humility and faith. She acknowledged the priority of the Jewish people but argued that there was more than enough food for the dogs as well. (In Jewish literature, Gentiles were frequently referred to as dogs, which were seen as filthy scavengers rather than as adorable pets; see also note on Rev 22:15.) The woman's persistence and acknowledgment of Jesus as Lord were rewarded.

7:29-30 For similar healings from a distance, see Matt 8:5-13 // Luke 7:1-10 and John 4:46-54.

7:31-37 This miracle is very similar in order and vocabulary to the healing of the blind man in 8:22-26. Healing miracles in the Gospels follow a similar pattern—the constant telling and retelling of similar stories probably standardized their form and wording.

• This healing miracle includes a change of scene. Although some interpret the next miracle as occurring in the Gentile world (Sidon or Decapolis), it probably took place after Jesus returned to the Sea of Galilee (see note on Matt 4:13). The next incident takes place there (8:10) without a change of scene.

7:31 Ten Towns: Greek Decapolis (see note on Matt 4:24-25).

7:33 The healing was performed privately (7:33; see 5:40-45; 8:23) to prevent the spread of messianic fervor (see "The Secret of the Messiah" at 3:11-12, p. 1653; cp. John 6:15). • Jesus also used saliva in a healing at 8:23, where he spit on a man's eyes in curing his blindness. The medicinal use of saliva in ancient times is well documented.

7:34 Since Jesus was looking up to heaven when he sighed, his sigh is probably best understood as a prayerful gesture. • Ephphatha is an Aramaic term that Mark translates for his readers (see also 3:17; 5:41; 14:36; 15:34). These are not magical formulas or incantations; Mark is simply recounting some of the original words Jesus spoke. Matthew and Luke do not seem to have attributed any special significance to the Aramaic words of Jesus, since they did not include them in their Gospels.

"Ephphatha," which means, "Be opened!"

³⁵Instantly the man could hear perfectly, and his tongue was freed so he could speak plainly!

³⁶Jesus told the crowd not to tell anyone, but the more he told them not to, the more they spread the news. ³⁷They were completely amazed and said again and again, "Everything he does is wonderful. He even makes the deaf to hear and gives speech to those who cannot speak."

Mark 8:1-10 // Matt 15:32-39

8 About this time another large crowd had gathered, and the people ran out of food again. Jesus called his disciples and told them, "I feel sorry for these people. They have been here with me for three days, and they have nothing left to eat. ³If I send them home hungry, they will faint along the way. For some of them have come a long distance."

⁴His disciples replied, "How are we supposed to find enough food to feed them out here in the wilderness?"

⁵Jesus asked, "How much bread do you have?"

"Seven loaves," they replied.

⁶So Jesus told all the people to sit down on the ground. Then he took the seven loaves, thanked God for them, and broke them into pieces. He gave them to his disciples, who distributed the bread to the crowd. ⁷A few small fish were found, too, so Jesus also blessed these and told the disciples to distribute them.

⁸They ate as much as they wanted. Afterward, the disciples picked up seven large baskets of leftover food. ⁹There were about 4,000 men in the crowd that day, and Jesus sent them home after they had eaten. ¹⁰Immediately after this, he got into a boat with his disciples and crossed over to the region of Dalmanutha.

7:36-37 Despite his desire to avoid attention, Jesus' greatness shone too brightly—his person, his teaching, and his ability to heal inspired awe, and he could not be hidden (see "The Secret of the Messiah" at 3:11-12, p. 1653).

8:1-10 The stories about feeding the 4,000 and the 5,000 are similar. All four Gospels report the earlier feeding of the 5,000 (6:35-44; Matt 14:13-21; Luke 9:10-17; John 6:1-15), but only Mark and Matthew (Matt 15:32-39) also record the feeding of the 4,000 as a separate miracle (8:19-21; Matt 16:9-10). The details of the events are different.

8:1-3 The last reference to a large crowd was at the feeding of the 5,000 (6:34). Jesus showed compassion in 6:34 because the people "were like sheep without a shepherd." These stories reflect Jesus' concern for the total person—this time especially for the people's hunger. They were in the wilderness (8:4) and had no food (8:1). They had been with Jesus for three days and had nothing to eat (8:2), and they had come a long way and needed to eat before returning home (8:3).

8:4 The disciples' frustration at the situation reveals their dullness. They knew how God provided manna in the wilderness for his people in Moses' time (Exod 16). They were now in the presence of one far greater than Moses (see 9:5-7) and had recently seen him feed a greater number of people in a similar situation (6:30-44). However, they still did not understand (cp. 6:52). Even so, Jesus worked through them to bring physical and spiritual food to the hungry (8:6-8). What they could not do by themselves, the mighty Son of God would do through them.

8:5 Seven loaves: Numerous attempts have been made to allegorize the numbers in the two feeding miracles, but the lack of consensus among these interpretations, and the reference to "a few fish" in the present story, suggest that the numbers are not symbolic. None of the Gospel writers associate any clear significance with these numbers, and this should warn us against doing so. As with the feeding of the 5,000, the purpose of the numbers is to magnify the greatness of the miracle and of Jesus.

8:6-7 took, thanked God, distributed: These terms foreshadow the Last Supper (cp. 14:22-25).

8:8 They ate as much as they wanted: The superabundance of food shows the all-surpassing nature of God's Kingdom and of the one who brought it.

8:10-13 As in the earlier feeding miracle (6:30-44), the feeding of the 4,000 is followed by Jesus' crossing the Sea of Galilee by boat (cp. 6:45) and the Pharisees' initiating a dispute demanding that Jesus perform some miraculous sign (cp. 7:1-23). • The location of Dalmanutha is unknown. Matthew 15:39 has Magadan instead of Dalmanutha.

8:11 The antagonism of the Pharisees was persistent (2:16-18, 24; 3:6; 7:1-5; 10:2; 12:13, 15). The request for a sign is at times acceptable (Judg 6:36-40; 2 Kgs 20:8-11; Isa 7:10-12; see also John 2:18-19), but in this case it was obstinate testing of God. • The sought-after sign was not a healing, an exorcism, a raising from the dead, or a nature miracle, for there had been many of these already, and Jesus' ability to work such signs was well-known (1:32-34, 45; 3:7-12; 6:53-56) even to the Pharisees (3:22). What they sought was a miraculous sign from heaven—that is, directly from God—that would demonstrate once for all that Jesus was the Christ. No sign, however, could ever convince them of this. For those whose hearts were open to the truth, the miracles that Jesus had already done (Luke 7:22) were clear and irrefutable signs that Jesus was the Messiah, the Son of God. For those outside (4:11-12), no sign could make them believe (cp. Luke 6:19-31).

8:12 he sighed deeply: See note on 7:34. • I tell you the truth: Jesus' response was as strong as an oath meaning, "[May God's judgment fall upon me] if I give this generation any such sign." Such oaths express an unbending

¹⁶At this they began to argue with each other because they hadn't brought any bread. ¹⁷Jesus knew what they were saying, so he said, "Why are you arguing about having no bread? Don't you know or understand even yet? Are your hearts too hard to take it in? ¹⁸You have eyes—can't you see? You have ears—can't you hear? Don't you remember anything at all? ¹⁹When I fed the 5,000 with five loaves of bread, how many baskets of leftovers did you pick up afterward?"

"Twelve," they said.

²⁰And when I fed the 4,000 with seven loaves, how many large baskets of leftovers did you pick up?"

"Seven," they said.

²¹"Don't you understand yet?" he asked them.

Jesus Heals a Blind Man

²²When they arrived at Bethsaida, some people brought a blind man to Jesus, and they begged him to touch the man and heal him. ²³Jesus took the blind man by the hand and led him out of the village. Then, spitting on the man's eyes, he laid his hands on him and asked, "Can you see anything now?"

²⁴The man looked around. "Yes," he said, "I see people, but I can't see them very clearly. They look like trees walking around."

²⁵Then Jesus placed his hands on the man's eyes again, and his eyes were opened. His sight was completely restored, and he could see everything clearly. ²⁶Jesus sent him away, saying, "Don't go back into the village on your way home."

4. PREPARING FOR JERUSALEM (8:27–10:52)

Ministry outside Galilee (8:27–9:50)

Peter's Declaration of Faith

Mark 8:27-30 // Matt 16:13-16, 20 // Luke 9:18-21; cp. John 6:67-69 commitment (see Gen 14:22-23; Num 32:10-11; Ruth 1:17; 1 Sam 3:17; 20:13; 2 Sam 3:35; 19:13). • Jesus elsewhere describes this generation as "adulterous and sinful" (8:38) and "faithless" (9:19).

²⁷Jesus and his disciples left Galilee and went up to the villages near Caesarea Philippi. As they were walking along, he asked them, "Who do people say I am?"

8:14-21 This account of the journey across the Sea of Galilee reflects on Jesus' greatness, as manifested in the two feeding miracles, and emphasizes the dullness of the disciples, who do not see, hear, or understand because of their hardened hearts (see 4:9-20; 6:52).

8:14 The reference to having only one loaf of bread reminds readers of recent occasions when the disciples had not had enough bread and Jesus miraculously provided enough bread to feed thousands of people.

8:15 Matthew says that the yeast of the Pharisees refers to their false teaching (Matt 16:12). It could also refer to their unbelief and hardness of heart (8:10-13). The reference to Herod could refer to his unwillingness to accept what he knew to be true (6:14, 16, 20).

8:16 The disciples completely missed the point of Jesus' warning (8:15) and forgot that because Jesus was with them, their supply of bread was irrelevant.

8:17-20 Jesus asked eight questions that rebuked the disciples. They, of all people, should have been aware of the miraculous power of the Son of God. Although the disciples still remembered the feeding miracles, they never considered the implications for their immediate situation.

8:18 You have eyes . . . can't you hear? Jer 5:21.

8:19-20 Jesus' questions precisely recalled the feeding miracles (6:30-44; 8:1-10).

8:21 Don't you understand yet? This question implies a time when they would truly understand. Mark's readers knew that Jesus' resurrection would give the disciples understanding of Jesus' identity and power (see, e.g., Acts 4:23-31).

8:22-26 Earlier, Jesus and the disciples set out unsuccessfully for Bethsaida (6:45); here, they arrive, and Jesus heals a blind man. Only Mark has this two-part healing; it might connect with the opening of the disciples' spiritual eyes in the next account (8:27-38). • John 1:44 identifies Bethsaida as the home of Peter, Andrew, James, and John (see also John 12:21). This small fishing village, although technically part of Gaulanitis, was generally considered part of Galilee (John 12:21). It was relocated and given status as a city by Philip the Tetrarch (Josephus, Antiquities 18.2.1).

8:23 spitting on the man's eyes: See 7:33; cp. John 9:6-7. Attempts to diagnose the man's exact medical condition are speculative and unprofitable, diverting attention from the miracle.

8:24-25 The healing was not instantaneous—the man saw imperfectly at first. Jesus' second laying on of hands brought complete healing. Who is this man who stills the sea and heals the blind? Peter reveals this in the next account—he is the Messiah (8:29).

8:26 The story ends with Jesus telling the healed man to keep the event a secret (see "The Secret of the Messiah" at 3:11-12, p. 1653).

8:27-9:1 This section is the first cycle containing a prediction by Jesus of his suffering (8:31), an error by the disciples (8:32-33), and a collection of Jesus' sayings about discipleship (8:34-9:1). Cp. 9:30-10:31.

8:27-38 Peter's declaration of Jesus as Messiah and Jesus' first prediction of his death mark a turning point in Mark's Gospel and a new stage in Jesus' life. The question, "Who is this man?" raised by the disciples in 4:41, is now answered by Peter.

8:27-28 Philip the Tetrarch, son of Herod the Great, built Caesarea Philippi on the slopes of Mount Hermon about twenty-five miles (forty

28“Well,” they replied, “some say John the Baptist, some say Elijah, and others say you are one of the other prophets.”

29Then he asked them, “But who do you say I am?”

Peter replied, “You are the Messiah.”

30But Jesus warned them not to tell anyone about him.

Jesus First Predicts His Death

Mark 8:31-33 // Matt 16:21-23 // Luke 9:22

31Then Jesus began to tell them that the Son of Man must suffer many terrible things and be rejected by the elders, the leading priests, and the teachers of religious law. He would be killed, but three days later he would rise from the dead. 32As he talked about this openly with his disciples, Peter took him aside and began to reprimand him for saying such things.

33Jesus turned around and looked at his disciples, then reprimanded Peter. “Get away from me, Satan!” he said. “You are seeing things merely from a human point of view, not from God’s.”

Teachings about Discipleship

34Then, calling the crowd to join his disciples, he said, “If any of you wants to be my follower, you must give up your own way, take up your cross, and follow me. 35If you try to hang on to your life, you will lose it. But if you give up your life for my sake and for the sake of the Good News, you will save it. 36And what do you benefit if you gain the whole world but lose your own soul? 37Is anything worth more than your soul? 38If anyone is ashamed of me and my message in these adulterous and sinful days, the Son of Man will be ashamed of that person when he returns in the glory of his Father with the holy angels.”

9 Jesus went on to say, “I tell you the truth, some standing here right now will not die before they see the Kingdom of God arrive in great power!”

kilometers) north of the Sea of Galilee. The more famous Caesarea on the coast had been built by Philip’s father. • Who do people say I am? As a good teacher, Jesus asked a question to elicit his disciples’ understanding. The response is similar to 6:14-16. • John the Baptist: See notes on 6:14-15. • one of the other prophets: Jesus was clearly considered a prophet (6:4; 14:65; Luke 7:16, 39; 13:33; 24:19).

8:29-30 But who do you say I am? In the Greek text, you is emphatic. Peter responded for the group, You are the Messiah (or the Christ; Messiah [a Hebrew term] and Christ [a Greek term] both mean “anointed one”). Peter’s confession was correct, as the command not to tell anyone about him indicates (see “The Secret of the Messiah” at 3:11-12, p. 1653; see also 1:1; 14:61-62; Matt 16:17).

8:31-38 Then Jesus began to teach the disciples that he would suffer and be killed in Jerusalem and three days later . . . rise from the dead. Jesus now explicitly predicted what he had revealed in veiled form (2:19-20). In response, Peter objected, so Jesus taught him and the other disciples the nature of his mission and what it really means to follow him.

8:31 Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself (see “The Son of Man” at Matt 8:18-20, p. 1593). • It was a divine necessity that Jesus must suffer (see also 9:11; 13:7, 10). The immediate cause for Jesus’ suffering was the elders, the leading priests, and the teachers of religious law (see 10:33; 11:18, 27; 14:1, 43, 53), but the ultimate cause was the will of God. • Jesus’ death would not be the end, for three days later he would rise from the dead. • Three days later is a synonym for on the third day (Matt 16:21; Luke 9:22) and after three days and three nights (Matt 12:40).

8:32 Peter understood what Jesus had said, but he did not accept it. Peter shared the popular idea that the Messiah was to be a victorious national ruler (See “Jesus the Messiah” at Matt 16:16, p. 1613), so he thought Jesus’ talk of suffering and death was nonsense. • began to reprimand him for saying such things: Or began to correct him.

8:33 Jesus looked at his disciples before he publicly rebuked Peter; he wanted them to understand that Peter was wrong. • Get away from me, Satan does not mean that Peter was demon-possessed. Peter spoke from a human point of view, not from God’s, so he unwittingly spoke for Satan, the god of this world (2 Cor 4:4), and repeated Satan’s temptation (cp. Matt 4:8-10).

8:34-38 Jesus’ invitation to his disciples and the crowd lays out the cost of being his follower. • To give up your own way involves letting Jesus determine your goals and purposes in life. To take up your cross is metaphorical (cp. Luke 9:23); it indicates that faithfulness to Jesus must extend, if required, even to the point of death. To follow Jesus’ teaching and example is a continual commitment.

8:35 If you try to hang on (to literally save) your life by keeping it from Jesus, you will lose it in the next world. But if you lose it to Jesus and his cause (the spread of the Good News), you will save it forever.

8:36-37 The implied answer to Jesus’ rhetorical question is that possessing the entire world has no value if you give up eternal life. “He is no fool who gives what he cannot keep to gain that which he cannot lose” (Jim Elliot). You need your soul (or your self) to enjoy the benefits of the world to come. When you forfeit your life or soul, there is nothing you can give to purchase it back.

8:38 When Jesus, as the Son of Man, returns in glory to judge the world, he will be ashamed of those who were ashamed to be identified with him and his message (cp. Matt 7:21-23; 10:32-33; Luke 12:8-9; 2 Tim 2:12).

9:1 The introductory I tell you the truth indicates that the promise in this verse is important, but the meaning of the promise is much debated. It might suggest that some of the disciples will (1) witness Jesus’ resurrection from the dead (ch 16); (2) experience the coming of the Spirit upon the church (Acts 2); (3) see the fall of Jerusalem in AD 70; or (4) witness Jesus’ transfiguration as a foretaste of God’s coming Kingdom. Mark’s placement of the promise right before the transfiguration account (9:2-8) indicates that he probably meant the transfiguration as the fulfillment (see 2 Pet 1:16-18).

9:2-8 This account is tied to 8:27-9:1 both chronologically (six days later) and John, and led them up a high mountain to be alone. As the men watched, Jesus' appearance was ^ktransformed, ³and his clothes became dazzling white, far whiter than any earthly bleach could ever make them. ⁴Then Elijah and Moses appeared and began talking with Jesus.

⁵Peter exclaimed, "^aRabbi, it's wonderful for us to be here! Let's make three shelters as memorials—one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah." ⁶He said this because he didn't really know what else to say, for they were all terrified.

⁹As they went back down the mountain, he told them not to tell anyone what they had seen until the Son of Man had risen from the dead. ¹⁰So they kept it to themselves, but they often asked each other what he meant by "rising from the dead."

One of the core purposes of Mark's Gospel is to help his readers understand and accept the call to take up their cross and follow Jesus. This call is addressed not only to those who would be Jesus' apostles (3:13-14; cp. 1:16-20; 6:1; 10:28) but to all who desired to follow him (8:34; cp. 2:14-15; 10:21, 52). For some, the call to discipleship is very hard (10:24), but God provides grace (10:27). Others find it easy to respond to Jesus' call (2:14-15; cp. Luke 7:36-50).

For everyone, following Jesus requires a total commitment to turn from selfish ways (8:34-35). Taking up one's cross is a metaphor for giving up one's life to follow Jesus even to death, as illustrated by Jesus' crucifixion. For example, Peter, Andrew, James, and John left their homes and their source of income to follow Jesus (1:16-20). For a rich man, turning from his selfish ways required selling all he had and giving the proceeds to the poor (10:21, 28). Following Jesus also means being identified with him without being ashamed, and being faithful to Jesus and his teachings (8:38; cp. Rom 10:9). It requires removing anything that would interfere with following Jesus, regardless of how painful doing so might be (9:43-48). It requires entrusting one's life entirely to Jesus (1:15; 5:34; 10:52) and repenting of sin (1:15; 6:12). It even requires putting loyalty to Jesus above loyalty to one's own father and mother (Matt 10:37; Luke 14:26). Jesus explicitly commanded his disciples to proclaim his message, as recorded elsewhere (Matt 28:18-20; Luke 24:47-49; Acts 1:8). Jesus and the apostles, through their teaching and example, call Jesus' followers to proclaim the Good News wherever they may be (see Acts 2:14-42; 3:12-26; 4:1-2, 20; 8:4; 9:20; 11:19-26; 13:1-3; Rom 1:1-16; 10:14-15; 15:18-21; 1 Cor 9:16; Col 1:23; 1 Thes 2:9; 2 Tim 4:2).

Alongside Jesus' demands for discipleship are the rewards of following Jesus. Those who follow Jesus are promised entrance into the Kingdom of God (9:43-47; 10:23-31; cp. 1:15). They receive his forgiveness for their sins (2:7, 10; 3:28; 11:25), and they become members of the family of God (10:30). They are saved from judgment (8:35; 10:26; 13:13) and obtain eternal life (9:43; 10:17, 23, 30).

thematically (9:7). • The presence of Peter, James, and John (see also 5:37; 13:3; 14:33) might be the fulfillment of 9:1 ("some standing here"). Some interpreters believe that the pre-incarnate glory of the Son of God broke through the veil of his humanity (John 1:14; 17:5) at the transfiguration. It is more likely that this event was an advance glimpse of the Son of Man's future glory (see Matt 16:28; 2 Pet 1:16-18; cp. Exod 34:28-35; 2 Cor 3:7-18).

9:4 The appearance of Elijah and Moses, might indicate the fulfillment of the law and the prophets in Jesus (see Matt 5:17; cp. Mal 4:4-5).

9:5-6 The suggestion to build three shelters as memorials (literally three tabernacles; see Lev 23:33-43; Num 29:12-34) places Moses, Elijah, and Jesus on the same footing. The suggestion ignores Peter's own earlier confession (8:29) and the fact that only Jesus had been transfigured (9:2-3).

9:7 a cloud: Cp. Exod 40:34-35. • The voice from the cloud issued a stern rebuke of Peter's suggestion: This is my dearly loved Son—not an equal of Moses and Elijah. God's voice also confirmed Peter's earlier confession (8:29), and it indirectly rebuked Peter for rejecting Jesus' prediction of his suffering (8:32) by telling him and the other disciples to listen to him.

9:8 Only Jesus remained, not Moses or Elijah. Jesus was clearly superior to Elijah and Moses.

9:9 Secrecy would no longer be necessary after the Son of Man had risen from the dead, because Jesus the Messiah would then be clearly understood as apolitical and non-militaristic, so he could be proclaimed openly to all (see Acts 2:36; 3:6). • Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself.

9:10 Only after the fact did the three disciples understand what Jesus meant by "rising from the dead."

9:11 The disciples wanted to understand the prediction that Elijah must return before the Messiah comes (literally of religious law insist that Elijah must return before the Messiah comes?"

¹²Jesus responded, "Elijah is indeed coming first to get everything ready. Yet why do the Scriptures say that the Son of Man must suffer greatly and be treated with utter contempt? ¹³But I tell you, Elijah has already come, and they chose to abuse him, just as the Scriptures predicted."

Jesus Heals a Demon-Possessed Boy

Mark 9:14-29 // Matt 17:14-21 // Luke 9:37-43a

¹⁴When they returned to the other disciples, they saw a large crowd surrounding them, and some teachers of religious law were arguing with them. ¹⁵When the crowd saw Jesus, they were overwhelmed with awe, and they ran to greet him.

¹⁶"What is all this arguing about?" Jesus asked.

¹⁷One of the men in the crowd spoke up and said, "Teacher, I brought my son so you could heal him. He is possessed by an evil spirit that won't let him talk. ¹⁸And whenever this spirit seizes him, it throws him violently to the ground. Then he foams at the mouth and grinds his teeth and becomes rigid. So I asked your disciples to cast out the evil spirit, but they couldn't do it."

¹⁹Jesus said to them, "You faithless people! How long must I be with you? How long must I put up with you? Bring the boy to me."

²⁰So they brought the boy. But when the evil spirit saw Jesus, it threw the child into a violent convulsion, and he fell to the ground, writhing and foaming at the mouth.

²¹"How long has this been happening?" Jesus asked the boy's father.

He replied, "Since he was a little boy. ²²The spirit often throws him into the fire or into water, trying to kill him. Have mercy on us and help us, if you can."

²⁴The father instantly cried out, "I do believe, but help me overcome my unbelief!"

²⁵When Jesus saw that the crowd of onlookers was growing, he rebuked the evil spirit. "Listen, you spirit that makes this boy unable to hear and speak," he said. "I command you to come out of this child and never enter him again!"

²⁶Then the spirit screamed and threw the boy into another violent convulsion and left him. The boy appeared to be dead. A murmur ran through the crowd as people said, "He's dead." ²⁷But Jesus took him by the hand and helped him to his feet, and he stood up.

²⁸Afterward, when Jesus was alone in the house with his disciples, they asked him, "Why couldn't we cast out that evil spirit?"

that Elijah must come first; see Mal 4:5-6). How did this prediction fit with Jesus' proclamation of God's Kingdom and his prediction of his own death, resurrection, and return (8:31, 38; 9:9)?

9:12 The teachers of the law were correct: Elijah must return before the consummation of God's Kingdom, but Scripture also said that the Son of Man would suffer greatly (e.g., Ps 22; Isa 52:13-53:12).

9:13 The teachers of the law erred by not realizing that Elijah had already come (see Matt 17:11-13; cp. Mal 4:5-6). As a result, they failed to recognize that the Kingdom of God had already come and that the Messiah's suffering and death that were predicted in Scripture were already taking place.

9:14-29 This is the fourth and last exorcism in Mark (1:21-28; 5:1-20; 7:24-30). The disciples were unable to perform the exorcism, so Jesus performed it, emphasizing the necessity of faith (cp. 2:5; 5:34; 10:52). This is another example of Jesus' great healing ability and of the disciples' failure (8:32-33; 9:5-7).

9:14 Jesus and the three disciples (Peter, James, and John) rejoined the other disciples, the crowd, and the teachers of the law. This account is similar to the story of Moses descending from Mount Sinai to rejoin the people of Israel (Exod 34:29-35).

9:15 Some have suggested that just as Moses reflected God's glory when he descended from the mountain, Jesus' glorious transfiguration was still evident, so the crowds responded with awe. It is equally possible that Jesus' arrival after being absent was enough to elicit the awe of the crowd.

9:18 These symptoms are often associated with epilepsy (see Matt 17:15), but Mark emphasizes the demonic origin of the child's problem (9:17-18, 25-26, 28). The disciples' inability to heal the child magnifies the effect of Jesus' power (9:25-26). • becomes rigid: Or becomes weak.

9:19 Jesus said to them: Jesus might have been speaking to the disciples, the father (9:22-24), the crowd, or all present. • How long . . . ? Their lack of faith was obstinate and hard-hearted (cp. 3:5; 6:52; 8:17; 10:5).

9:20 The demon's reaction was nonverbal (contrast 1:24; 5:7, 9-10; see also 1:34b; 3:11-12) but violent, as the father had described (9:18).

9:21-22 The demon's activity had been taking place since he was a little boy, and the demon had tried to kill the child in various ways. • if you can: The father's request indicates that his faith had been severely dampened (9:18).

9:23 Jesus challenged the man to believe in the power of God—Anything is possible if a person believes (see 11:22-24), while lack of faith can hinder God's saving activity (see 6:5).

9:24 In desperation, the father cried out that he believed, though weakly.

9:25 The crowd was approaching, so Jesus quickly proceeded with the exorcism. • evil spirit: Literally unclean spirit. • The I in the command to the demon is emphatic, dramatizing Jesus' authority and power. • never enter him again! At times exorcisms could be temporary (see Matt 12:43-45; Luke 11:24-26).

9:26-27 The demon's violent reaction revealed its strength and showed Jesus' greatness (cp. 1:25-26; 5:15).

9:28-29 The account ends, surprisingly, by stressing the importance of prayer rather than of faith (cp. 11:22-24).

• only by prayer: Some manuscripts read only by prayer and fasting.

Jesus Again Predicts His Death

Mark 9:30-32 // Matt 17:22-23 // Luke 9:43b-45

³⁰Leaving that region, they traveled through Galilee. Jesus didn't want anyone to know he was there, ³¹for he wanted to spend more time with his disciples and teach them. He said to them, "The Son of Man is going to be betrayed into the hands of his enemies. He will be killed, but three days later he will rise from the dead." ³²They didn't understand what he was saying, however, and they were afraid to ask him what he meant.

Mark 9:33-37 // Matt 18:1-5 // Luke 9:46-48

³³After they arrived at Capernaum and settled in a house, Jesus asked his disciples, "What were you discussing out on the road?"

³⁴But they didn't answer, because they had been arguing about which of them was the greatest. ³⁵He sat down, called the twelve disciples over to him, and said, "Whoever wants to be first must take last place and be the servant of everyone else."

³⁶Then he put a little child among them. Taking the child in his arms, he said to them, ³⁷"Anyone who welcomes a little child like this on my behalf welcomes me, and anyone who welcomes me welcomes not only me but also my Father who sent me."

³⁹"Don't stop him!" Jesus said. "No one who performs a miracle in my name will soon be able to speak evil of me. ⁴⁰Anyone who is not against us is for us. ⁴¹If anyone gives you even a cup of water because you belong to the Messiah, I tell you the truth, that person will surely be rewarded."

9:30-10:31 This section is the second cycle (see note on 8:27-9:1) containing a prediction about Jesus' suffering (9:30-32), an error by the disciples (9:33-34), and teaching about discipleship (9:35-10:31).

9:31 Jesus continued to seek privacy (see 7:24) for teaching the disciples about his coming suffering. • The Son of Man is going to be betrayed: See 14:10-11, 41-45.

9:32 The disciples were still unable to accept Jesus' teaching concerning his death or to recognize how it fit into God's plan.

9:33-50 Because the disciples did not understand Jesus' prediction of his suffering, they were unable to see its implications for their own lives.

9:33-34 Capernaum was Jesus' home in Galilee (1:21; 2:1). • Jesus' disciples didn't answer his question because they knew that he would disapprove of their discussion. • about which of them was the greatest: This issue would come up again in 10:35-37.

9:35 Jesus sat down, assuming the role of a teacher (see 4:1-2; 12:41; Matt 5:1; Luke 4:20; 5:3). True greatness in God's Kingdom involves being the servant of everyone else, not the master, as Jesus would make clear by his own example in 10:45.

9:36-37 In Jesus' day, children were not romanticized as innocent and pure, but were considered to be weak and inferior. Children were to be received on my behalf (literally in my name). Welcoming a child is an example of humbly taking the last place and serving everyone else (9:35; cp. 10:13-16). Other sayings about receiving or rejecting Jesus also involve receiving or rejecting his followers (Matt 10:40; 25:31-46; Luke 10:16; John 13:20).

9:38-41 An unknown exorcist was casting out demons in Jesus' name though he was not one of the twelve disciples (9:38-40). John objected, but Jesus corrected him. • we told him to stop: Cp. 10:35-43; Luke 9:51-55. • The success of the unknown exorcist is contrasted with the failure of the disciples in the previous account (9:14-29).

9:40 The negative parallel to this proverb is found in Luke 11:23. These two proverbs should be understood as complementary, not contradictory, for Luke includes them both (Luke 9:50; 11:23). The exorcist casting out demons in Jesus' name was not against Jesus, but for him.

9:42-50 if you cause . . . sin: The consequences of causing sin ties these verses together (9:42-43, 45, 47). These sayings were not meant to be interpreted literally, for carrying them out would not prevent sin (see Matt 15:10-20). What Jesus conveys by these warnings is that no sin is worth going to hell for. It is better to repent—even if repenting is as painful as cutting off a hand, foot, or eye—than to suffer the punishment of hell.

9:43 hell: Greek Gehenna; also in 9:45, 47. Gehenna means "valley of Hinnom," which bordered Jerusalem on the southwest. It was a garbage dump for the city, and the continual burning of refuse there became a metaphor for the final place of judgment for the wicked.

9:43-45 Some manuscripts add vv 44 and 46, "where the maggots never die and the fire never goes out." See 9:48. These two verses were almost certainly copied from 9:48 and were not in the original text of Mark. Most of the best manuscripts do not include these verses, but a few include them.

9:48 The eternity of hell is emphasized by the terms never die and never goes out (cp. 9:43). The horror of hell is emphasized by its portrayal as a place ⁴⁹"For everyone will be tested with fire.

Jesus' Teaching about Divorce and Marriage

Mark 10:2-12 // Matt 19:3-12; cp. Matt 5:31-32; Luke 16:18

²Some Pharisees came and tried to trap him with this question: "Should a man be allowed to divorce his wife?"

³Jesus answered them with a question: "What did Moses say in the law about divorce?"

⁴"Well, he permitted it," they replied. "He said a man can give his wife a written notice of divorce and send her away."

⁵But Jesus responded, "He wrote this commandment only as a concession to your hard hearts. ⁶But 'God made them male and female' from the beginning of creation. ⁷This explains why a man leaves his father and mother and is joined to his wife, ⁸and the two are united into one.' Since they are no longer two but one, ⁹let no one split apart what God has joined together."

of everlasting fire, and of decay and corruption where maggots eternally eat everything away (cp. Isa 66:24). The putrid smell of decay and the presence of maggots in the Valley of Hinnom may lie behind this imagery (see note on 9:43). This imagery is a powerful warning for people to repent in order to escape the punishment of hell.

9:49-50 tested with fire: Literally salted with fire; other manuscripts add and every sacrifice will be salted with salt. The fire of testing has a purifying effect, like salt (see also 1 Pet 1:7; 4:12; Rev 3:18). Salt also refers to Christian character. Genuine Christian character will have a genuinely purifying influence. • But if it loses its flavor: The salt mined from the Dead Sea often contained gypsum, so although it looked like perfectly good salt, it was useless. It did not taste salty, and it created a disposal problem.

10:1-2 The Pharisees' question about divorce was much debated in Judaism, but it had a hostile purpose as they tried to trap Jesus (see 2:16, 18, 24; 7:5; 8:11; 12:13). John the Baptist was beheaded over his teaching that Herod Antipas's divorce and remarriage was unlawful (6:18-19), and according to the Jewish historian Josephus, John was martyred close to Jesus' current location east of the Jordan River, at Herod Antipas's fortress at Machaerus (see 6:28; Josephus, Antiquities 18.5.2).

If Jesus answered in agreement with John the Baptist, the Pharisees could indict him before Herod. But if Jesus said that divorce was lawful, he would be contradicting a prophet.

10:3 Jesus answered the Pharisees' trick question with a counter-question (cp. Matt 22:20).

10:4 The Pharisees quoted what Moses permitted. There was much debate among rabbis as to what constituted the "something wrong" (see Deut 24:1) that made divorce permissible. Rabbi Shammai allowed divorce only on the basis of sexual immorality. Rabbi Hillel permitted divorce even if a woman burned her husband's dinner or was less attractive than someone else (Mishnah Gittin 9:10).

10:5-9 God permitted divorce as a concession to the hard hearts of the people. But God's will is more aptly expressed in the passages that Jesus quotes from the law of Moses (Gen 1:27; 2:23-24; see also Mal 2:16). Jesus shows that God delights in marriage, which is the creation of a new union in which two become one. No one should rebel against God's will by seeking to split apart what God has united.

10:6 God made them male and female: Gen 1:27; 5:2.

10:7-8 The quotation is from Gen 2:24.

• Some manuscripts do not include and is joined to his wife.

10:10 Jesus often explained his teaching to his disciples in the privacy of a house (see 7:17; 9:28, 33).

10:11-12 Whoever divorces . . . and marries someone else commits adultery: The parallel in Luke 16:18 agrees with Mark and mentions no exceptions to this prohibition of divorce, Matthew's parallel account allows an exception in cases of infidelity (Matt 19:9; see also Matt 5:32). Paul also allows an exception if an unbelieving partner deserts the marriage (1 Cor 7:15). Mark's account focuses on the core principles—God hates divorce (Mal 2:16), marriage is meant to be for life, and divorce betrays the divine purpose of marriage.

10:13-16 Jesus' love and concern for children has already been seen in 5:41-43; 9:36-37, 42. Jesus uses the incident to teach that the Kingdom of God belongs to those who are like these children.

10:13 The ages of the children cannot be determined from this passage. The Greek word paidia can refer to a broad spectrum of ages, from a twelve-year-old child (5:41-42) down to an eight-day-old infant (Gen 17:12, Greek version). • the disciples scolded the parents: See note on Luke 18:15.

10:14-15 Mark does not explain what characteristics of children make them fit for the Kingdom of God; Matthew 18:4-5 suggests that the attributes in-

Mark 10:17-22 // Matt 19:16-22 // Luke 18:18-23

¹⁷As Jesus was starting out on his way to Jerusalem, a man came running up to him, knelt down, and asked, "Good Teacher, what must I do to inherit eternal life?"

¹⁸"Why do you call me good?" Jesus asked. "Only God is truly good. ¹⁹But to answer your question, you know the commandments: 'You must not murder. You must not commit adultery. You must not steal. You must not testify falsely. You must not cheat anyone. Honor your father and mother.'"

²⁰"Teacher," the man replied, "I've obeyed all these commandments since I was young."

²¹Looking at the man, Jesus felt genuine love for him. "There is still one thing you haven't done," he told him. "Go and sell all your possessions and give the money to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven. Then come, follow me."

²²At this the man's face fell, and he went away sad, for he had many possessions.

Mark 10:23-31 // Matt 19:23-30 // Luke 18:24-30

²³Jesus looked around and said to his disciples, "How hard it is for the rich to enter the Kingdom of God!" ²⁴This amazed them. But Jesus said again, "Dear children, it is very hard to enter the Kingdom of God. ²⁵In fact, it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich person to enter the Kingdom of God!"

²⁶The disciples were astounded. "Then who in the world can be saved?" they asked.

²⁷Jesus looked at them intently and said, clude humility and the ability to receive things simply.

10:17-31 The story of the rich man continues the themes of discipleship begun in 9:33 and the requirements for entering the Kingdom of God (10:13-16). The attitude of the rich man contrasts sharply with the childlike faith necessary for entering the Kingdom of God.

10:17 The rich man (10:22) was a young ruler (Matt 19:20; Luke 18:18) who showed respect toward Jesus by kneeling and calling Jesus Good Teacher. Teacher is a frequent title for Jesus in Mark (see 4:38; 5:35; 9:17, 38; 10:20, 35; 12:14, 19, 32; 13:1; 14:14); the addition of good is unique.

10:18 Jesus' reply has troubled interpreters for centuries. Jesus was probably objecting to the man's loose application of the term good to any human being, since ultimate goodness and perfection belong to God alone. Without in any way denying his own goodness, Jesus wanted to focus the rich man's attention on God. The rich man wanted to enter the Kingdom of God, and Jesus was contrasting God's goodness with the man's own human sinfulness (see note on 10:21).

10:19 Jesus' reply seems strange to Christians who are familiar with Paul's teaching on this subject (e.g., Rom 3:20; Gal 2:16). In naming five of the Ten Commandments Jesus was not implying that the man could earn eternal life by keeping them; he was telling him what God's standards are and allowing the man to evaluate his own performance. Truly loving God with all one's heart, soul, mind, and strength, and one's neighbor as one's self (12:30-31), requires trusting in God's grace, accepting Jesus' sacrificial death on our behalf (10:45; 14:24), and keeping his commands (John 15:10; 1 Jn 2:4; 3:22).

• The commandments are quoted from Exod 20:12-16 // Deut 5:16-20.

10:20 The man's reply was naive (as to what it really means to keep these commands; see Matt 5:21-48), but it was not arrogant, as the lack of any rebuke (cp. 12:13-17; Matt 23:1-36) indicates.

10:21 Instead of having an extended discussion about what it means to truly keep the commandments, Jesus focused on the specific issue that revealed this man's problem. He still lacked one thing: He loved riches more than he loved God, thus breaking the first and most important commandment (12:29-30; Exod 20:3; Deut 6:5). Entering the Kingdom of God requires repentance (1:15; 6:12), and Jesus helped this man to understand exactly what repentance entailed for him. He did not need, as he might have thought, to attain a higher level of personal righteousness. He needed to enter God's Kingdom through repentance and wholehearted love for God, thereby obtaining eternal life. He must deny himself (8:34) and love God first and foremost by giving away his money. For other commands involving a negative [sell all] and a positive [follow me] element, see 1:15, 18, 20; 10:28; see also Acts 2:38; 20:21.

• Jesus' command to the rich man was not a universal requirement for entering the Kingdom of God, but was addressed to his particular situation. It teaches anyone seeking eternal life that nothing else can come before God; repentance (1:15; 6:12) requires the removal of anything that we place above God.

10:22 Mark records the rich man's tragic choice. The man departed, still possessing his earthly riches (Matt 6:19), but lacking eternal treasure (Matt 13:44-46). His demeanor (face fell . . . sad) showed his awareness that his awful choice had brought him sorrow rather than joy.

10:23-27 Jesus astounded the disciples by reversing the idea, popular at that time, that riches were a sign of God's favor.

10:24 In response to the disciples' amazement, Jesus addressed them affectionately as dear children. • very hard: Some manuscripts read very hard for those who trust in riches.

10:25 Jesus was emphatically warning that riches are an obstacle to entering the Kingdom of God. The camel was the largest animal in Palestine, the eye of a needle the smallest hole. Some rich people are evidently able to overcome the problem created by riches and follow Jesus, but Jesus' followers came from among the poor more than from the rich. • Explanations about a gate in the Jerusalem wall called the "Eye of the Needle" are ill-conceived. There never was such a gate, and this explanation loses sight of Jesus' frequent use of hyperbole in his teaching (see also Matt 7:3-5; 23:24).

10:26 The disciples were astounded: It was generally believed that wealth was a sign of God's blessing that enabled the rich to do good deeds. Accordingly, it was assumed that the rich had an inside track on entering the Kingdom of God. The disciples' question was natural, given this understanding. God's assessment was the opposite of their conventional wisdom.

"Humanly speaking, it is impossible. But not with God. Everything is possible with God."²⁸ Then Peter began to speak up. "We've given up everything to follow you," he said.

²⁹"Yes," Jesus replied, "and I assure you that everyone who has given up house or brothers or sisters or mother or father or children or property, for my sake and for the Good News,³⁰ will receive now in return a hundred times as many houses, brothers, sisters, mothers, children, and property—along with persecution. And in the world to come that person will have eternal life.³¹ But many who are the greatest now will be least important then, and those who seem least important now will be the greatest then."

³²They were now on the way up to Jerusalem, and Jesus was walking ahead of them. The disciples were filled with awe, and the people following behind were overwhelmed with fear. Taking the twelve disciples aside, Jesus once more began to describe everything that was about to happen to him. ³³"Listen," he said, "we're going up to Jerusalem, where the Son of Man will be betrayed to the leading priests and the teachers of religious law. They will sentence him to die and hand him over to the Romans.³⁴ They will mock him, spit on him, flog him with a whip, and kill him, but after three days he will rise again."

Mark 10:35-45 // Matt 20:20-28; cp. Luke 22:24-27

³⁵Then James and John, the sons of Zebedee, came over and spoke to him. "Teacher," they said, "we want you to do us a favor."

³⁶"What is your request?" he asked.

³⁷They replied, "When you sit on your glorious throne, we want to sit in places of honor next to you, one on your right and the other on your left."

³⁸But Jesus said to them, "You don't know what you are asking! Are you able to drink from the bitter cup of suffering I am about to drink? Are you able to be baptized with the baptism of suffering I must be baptized with?"

³⁹"Oh yes," they replied, "we are able!"

Then Jesus told them, "You will indeed drink from my bitter cup and be baptized with my baptism of suffering. ⁴⁰But I have no right to say who will sit on my right or my 10:27 This verse tends to be interpreted in one of two ways: (1) Although salvation by one's own effort is impossible, by God's grace people can be saved through faith (Eph 2:8-10). (2) God can give an unusual grace that enables people to overcome their sinful love of riches and believe. Mark does not explain his understanding.

10:28 The disciples had done what Jesus told the rich man to do—they had given up everything to follow Jesus (1:16-20; 8:34-38).

10:29-30 Jesus assured his disciples that they would receive whatever they had given up for him many times over, including a new family in Christ (brothers, sisters, mothers, children) and Christian hospitality (houses). • a hundred times: What is gained in following Jesus far outweighs any loss. And in the world to come they will inherit the eternal life that the rich man desired but did not receive.

10:31 But many . . . greatest then: Literally But many who are first will be last; and the last, first. The account ends with a proverb, contrasting the way that God understands life and how people generally understand it (for similar sayings, see Matt 20:16; Luke 13:30). For those with eyes to see and ears to hear (4:9-12; 8:18), the Kingdom of God has already come, and the overturning of this world's values has begun.

10:32-34 The disciples' awe and the people's fear cast a dark shadow over what lay ahead, given the hostility of the Jerusalem leaders toward Jesus (see 3:22-30; 7:1-13). Taking the disciples aside again, Jesus described the coming events in the greatest detail yet (see also 8:31; 9:31). He knew what was about to happen; what awaited him in Jerusalem was neither a tragedy nor fate, but God's will (see 8:31-33; Acts 4:27-28). As the Son of God, Jesus had unique knowledge of his upcoming unique death as the Savior of the world.

10:33 Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself. • The leading priests and the teachers of religious law were the human agents who fulfilled God's purpose through their hatred of Jesus. • They did not have the right of capital punishment (John 18:31), so they had to hand Jesus over to the Romans (literally the Gentiles) to carry out the actual execution.

10:35-45 Following Jesus' third prediction of his suffering (10:32-33) comes another example of the disciples' failure (see 8:31-33; 9:31-34). The first part of the account involves the foolish request of James and John (10:35-37) and Jesus' reply to them (10:38-40). Then Jesus explains to the other disciples what greatness and leadership in the Kingdom of God mean (10:41-44). Jesus' own supreme example of servanthood

(10:45) illustrates and concludes this account.

10:37 The brothers' request indicates that James and John correctly understood that Jesus was the Messiah (see 8:29; 9:2-8). However, they completely misunderstood what it meant to be a leader in God's Kingdom (10:41-45).

10:38 The two brothers didn't know what they were asking: To share in his glory, they must share in his suffering as servants. • to drink from the bitter cup: Drinking from a cup is often associated with suffering and death (Ps 75:8; Isa 51:17, 22; Jer 25:15; 49:12; Lam 4:21; see also Mark 14:24, 36).

• The baptism of suffering recalls Jesus' total commitment to God's calling at his baptism, and it speaks of the believer's own baptism into Jesus' death, burial, and resurrection (Rom 6:3-5; Col 2:12).

10:39 James and John did indeed drink a bitter cup . . . of suffering for Jesus. James died for his faith (Acts 12:1-5). John died an old man, having experienced persecution (Tertullian, The Soul 50; Jerome, Commentary on Galatians 6, 10). Yet the death of James and John was not the same as that of Jesus—no believer can die Jesus' death as a vicarious sacrifice for the sins of the world (10:45) or experience the divine wrath as he did (15:34).

left. God has prepared those places for the ones he has chosen."

⁴¹When the ten other disciples heard what James and John had asked, they were indignant. ⁴²So Jesus called them together and said, "You know that the rulers in this world lord it over their people, and officials flaunt their authority over those under them. ⁴³But among you it will be different. Whoever wants to be a leader among you must be your servant, ⁴⁴and whoever wants to be first among you must be the slave of everyone else. ⁴⁵For even the Son of Man came not to be served but to serve others and to give his life as a ransom for many."

Jesus Heals Bartimaeus, a Blind Beggar

Mark 10:46-52 // Matt 20:29-34 // Luke 18:35-43;
cp. Matt 9:27-31

⁴⁶Then they reached Jericho, and as Jesus and his disciples left town, a large crowd followed him. A blind beggar named Bartimaeus (son of Timaeus) was sitting beside the road. ⁴⁷When Bartimaeus heard that Jesus of Nazareth was nearby, he began to shout, "Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!"

⁴⁸"Be quiet!" many of the people yelled at him.

But he only shouted louder, "Son of David, have mercy on me!"

⁴⁹When Jesus heard him, he stopped and said, "Tell him to come here."

So they called the blind man. "Cheer up," they said. "Come on, he's calling you!" ⁵⁰Bartimaeus threw aside his coat, jumped up, and came to Jesus.

⁵¹"What do you want me to do for you?" Jesus asked.

"My 'Rabbi,'" the blind man said, "I want to see!"

⁵²And Jesus said to him, "Go, for your faith has healed you." Instantly the man could see, and he followed Jesus down the road.

5. JESUS' MINISTRY IN JERUSALEM (11:1-13:37)

Jesus Confronts the Leaders in Jerusalem (11:1-25)

Jesus' Messianic Entry into Jerusalem

Mark 11:1-11 // Matt 21:1-11 // Luke 19:28-40 // John 12:12-19

11 As Jesus and his disciples approached Jerusalem, they came to the towns of Bethphage and Bethany on the Mount experience, Jesus did not have the authority to grant their request. Only God the Father could (see also 13:32).

10:41 the ten other disciples . . . were indignant: Perhaps they wanted the special places requested by James and John for themselves. All of Jesus' disciples needed a new understanding of what leadership in God's Kingdom means (10:42-45).

10:42-44 The unbelieving world (the rulers in this world) thinks that leadership means lording it over others. Just as Jesus' role as Messiah and Son of God meant suffering and death (8:31; 9:31; 10:32-34, 45), being his follower involves serving others, not ruling over them (9:35; John 10:11).

10:45 Jesus offered his own example to demonstrate what leadership in God's Kingdom means. • Jesus understands his death as a ransom. A ransom was a payment made to free a slave or captive. • The expression for many is probably an allusion to Isa 53:12, where many means all (cp. Rom 5:15, 18-20). Jesus died as the substitute for all. Later, Jesus would speak of his blood as being poured out for many (14:24).

10:46-52 The healing of blind Bartimaeus is the last healing miracle recorded in Mark. This event and the healing of the blind man in 8:22-26 form bookends around this section (see Mark Introduction, "Literary Features," p. 1644). It is also a bridge to Jesus' entrance into Jerusalem as Israel's Messiah in 11:1-11. Bartimaeus's confession (Jesus, Son of David) prepares the reader for the confession of the people upon Jesus' arrival in Jerusalem (11:10).

10:46 they reached Jericho: The journey Jesus began in 10:1 was nearing its conclusion. Jericho was the last major city in the Jordan River valley before Jerusalem. It may be the oldest continually-occupied city in the world. In Jesus' day, it was no longer located on the much smaller site of OT times (Tell es-Sultan), but had been moved and greatly enlarged. The road from Jericho up to Jerusalem was steep, with a difference in elevation of about 3,000 feet (about 1,000 meters). • The large crowd following Jesus might have been fellow pilgrims traveling to Jerusalem for Passover, but they certainly show Jesus' great popularity and charisma. • A blind beggar . . . was sitting beside the road: This was a good location for collecting alms from religious pilgrims going to Jerusalem.

10:47-48 Bartimaeus heard: Jesus' great fame had spread to Jericho, even as it had spread to Gentile areas (3:8). • Jesus, Son of David: Mark does not explain how Bartimaeus knew of Jesus' Davidic ancestry. Perhaps he knew that Jesus was the Messiah. The blind man, however, did not associate this title with political or military goals as did the vast majority of people in his day. Instead, Bartimaeus believed that Jesus was concerned with bringing God's Kingdom to the poor, maimed, lame, and blind, and he requested mercy and healing (10:51)—which was in harmony with Jesus' own understanding (cp. Luke 4:18-19).

10:50 threw aside his coat: Bartimaeus's response is best understood as simply a spontaneous act of joy and anticipation rather than as a symbolic casting off of his old way of life or leaving all to follow Jesus.

10:51 When Jesus asked what Bartimaeus wanted, Bartimaeus addressed Jesus as My Rabbi (Greek uses the Hebrew term Rabboni, found only here and in John 20:16). Bartimaeus's request, I want to see! revealed his faith, without which he might simply have asked for alms. The reports he had heard about Jesus enabled him to cry out for the miracle of sight.

10:52 The man's faith was rewarded, and he was healed (literally saved; see 5:23, 28, 34; 6:56; Matt 9:22; Luke 8:48). The healing was performed without touch, in contrast to the healing of the blind man in 8:22-26. Bartimaeus followed Jesus (see also 1:18; 2:14-15; 6:1; 8:34; 10:21, 28, 32) down the road (or on the way; cp. 1:2-3; 10:32).

11:1-13:37 This section centers on Jesus' relationship to the Jerusalem Temple. Mark's geographical arrangement places in 11:1-16:8 all his accounts of Jesus' teachings and events associated with Jerusalem. • The section of Olives. Jesus sent two of them on ahead. ²"Go into that village over there," he told them. "As soon as you enter it, you will see a young donkey tied there that no one has ever ridden. Untie it and bring it here. ³If anyone asks, 'What are you doing?' just say, 'The Lord needs it and will return it soon.'"

⁴The two disciples left and found the colt standing in the street, tied outside the front door. ⁵As they were untying it, some bystanders demanded, "What are you doing, untying that colt?" ⁶They said what Jesus had told them to say, and they were permitted to take it. ⁷Then they brought the colt to Jesus and threw their garments over it, and he sat on it.

⁸Many in the crowd spread their garments on the road ahead of him, and others spread leafy branches they had cut in the fields. ⁹Jesus was in the center of the procession, and the people all around him were shouting,

"Praise God!

Blessings on the one who comes in the name of the LORD!

¹⁰Blessings on the coming Kingdom of our ancestor David!
Praise God in highest heaven!"

¹¹So Jesus came to Jerusalem and went into the Temple. After looking around carefully at everything, he left because it was late in the afternoon. Then he returned to Bethany with the twelve disciples.

concludes (13:1-37) with Jesus' second extended teaching discourse (see 4:1-34), now focusing on the destruction of the Temple and the coming of the Son of Man. It is the climax for numerous statements within 11:1-13:37 concerning the divine judgment about to fall on Jerusalem and the Temple (see especially 11:12-25 and 12:1-12).

11:1 Jerusalem was Jesus' goal. During the week before his crucifixion, Jesus apparently stayed in Bethany with his disciples (11:11-12; 14:3-9). • The Mount of Olives is frequently associated with the site of the final judgment (Zech 14:4) and the place where the Messiah will manifest himself (Ezek 11:23; 43:1-5; see also Josephus, Antiquities 20.8.6). • As he did at other times, Jesus sent two of them (see 6:7).

11:2-3 There have already been numerous examples of Jesus' supernatural knowledge (2:8; 3:5; 5:30, 32; 8:17, 31), but the people's acceptance of the reply that the Lord needs it (11:3, 6) suggests that Jesus had prearranged it (cp. 14:13-16). Jesus had intentionally planned to enter Jerusalem in fulfillment of Zech 9:9.

11:3 The Lord needs it and will return it soon: Mark's readers have already seen the word Lord used to refer to Jesus (1:3; 2:28; 5:19; see also 12:36-37; 13:35), so they would understand it as referring to the Lord Jesus Christ, who needed the colt (Rom 10:9; Phil 2:11).

11:4-6 The disciples carried out Jesus' instructions and found things as he had said.

11:7-8 the colt . . . he sat on it: Cp. Zech 9:9; some of the people undoubtedly understood that they were witnessing the arrival of the Messiah. • The disciples made a seat for Jesus with their outer garments and others spread garments and branches from nearby trees into an honorary pathway for Jesus to ride upon to Jerusalem (see 1 Kgs 1:38-48; 2 Kgs 9:13).

11:9-10 Praise God! (Greek Hosanna, an exclamation of praise that literally means "save now!") Blessings on the one who comes in the name of the Lord! These exclamations come from Ps 118:25-26; 148:1. By the first century AD, Hosanna was no longer used literally as a cry for rescue from enemies, but had become an idiomatic expression of joy and jubilation (cp. "Praise the Lord!" as used today). For the people, it was the exuberant welcome (Luke 19:38-40) of a famous pilgrim, the prophet from Galilee (Matt 21:11). The miracle of raising Lazarus from the dead might have contributed to the excitement of the day (John 12:9-11), but even the disciples did not truly understand this event until later (John 12:16). For Jesus, though, it was a fulfillment of prophecy. Jesus prepared for the occasion carefully and offered himself to the people of Israel as God's Anointed, the Messiah.

11:11 The account ends surprisingly: The exuberant crowd disappears and Jesus' actual entrance into the Temple is anticlimactic in comparison to his approach. Apparently, in the minds of the people, nothing important had taken place. Jesus' looking around prepares the reader for God's judgment on the Temple (11:15-17).

11:12-25 In the synoptic Gospels, Jesus' messianic entry into Jerusalem is intimately associated with the cleansing of the Temple (see 11:15-17; cp. Matt 21:1-17; Luke 19:28-48). In John, however, the account of the cleansing is recorded early in Jesus' ministry (John 2:13-22). It is uncertain whether there were two separate cleansings of the Temple (an early event recorded in John and this later event recorded in Matthew, Mark, and Luke) or just one cleansing recorded at different places by John and the synoptic writers. • In Mark's account, the cursing of the fig tree (11:12-14, 20-25) forms an inclusio (bookends) around the cleansing of the Temple (11:15-19). Mark thus indicates that Jesus' cleansing of the Temple should be interpreted in light of his cursing of the fig tree—as an act of judgment rather than reformation.

11:13-14 it was too early in the season for fruit: Jesus did not curse the fig tree merely because it lacked fruit. Rather, he was performing a prophetic sign act like those of earlier prophets (Isa 20:1-6; Jer 13:1-11; 19:1-13; Ezek 4:1-17). Just as Jesus judged the fruitless fig tree, so too he judged the Temple and the worship of Israel, in which he found no fruit. This judgment was fulfilled in AD 70 with the destruction of Jerusalem and the Temple by the Romans.

out the people buying and selling animals for sacrifices. Jesus Curses the Fig Tree—Part 2

²⁰The next morning as they passed by the fig tree he had cursed, the disciples noticed it had withered from the roots up. ²¹Peter remembered what Jesus had said to the tree on the previous day and exclaimed, "Look, Rabbi! The fig tree you cursed has withered and died!"

²²Then Jesus said to the disciples, "Have faith in God. ²³I tell you the truth, you can say to this mountain, 'May you be lifted up and thrown into the sea,' and it will happen. But you must really believe it will happen and have no doubt in your heart. ²⁴I tell you, you can pray for anything, and if you believe that you've received it, it will be yours. ²⁵But when you are praying, first forgive anyone you are holding a grudge against, so that your Father in heaven will forgive your sins, too."

Controversies in Jerusalem (11:27-12:44)

Jesus' Authority Is Challenged

Mark 11:27-33 // Matt 21:23-27 // Luke 20:1-8

²⁷Again they entered Jerusalem. As Jesus was walking through the Temple area, the 11:15-19 The largest part of the Temple in Jerusalem was the Court of the Gentiles, surrounded by covered porticoes (see illustrations, pp. 1753, 1786-1787). It was here that this selling probably took place.

11:15-16 When they arrived back:

Upon entering the Temple, Jesus was intensely disturbed by the buying and selling of sacrificial animals and by the exchange of money. It was supervised by priests, who alone could certify that a potential sacrificial offering was acceptable. The practice of selling sacrificial animals was meant to ensure that only blemish-free animals were used in the service of the Temple. It was facilitated by setting up exchange tables in areas around Jerusalem, but exchange tables were set up within the Temple itself on the fifteenth of Adar, the month before Passover. Usually the exchange rate involved a 4- to 8-percent commission. Because of the large number of half-shekels (see Exod 30:11-16) and sacrifices involved, the money exchange and the sale of sacrificial animals was quite profitable. Jewish literature of the time was intensely critical of the priests for accumulating great wealth by robbing the poor. Jesus was not opposed to the Temple nor attacking the sacrificial system (1:44; Matt 5:17-19, 23; 17:24-27; Luke 17:14; Acts 6:7; 21:20-26), but he viewed this profiteering as theft and as desecrating the holy place. • Jesus' actions probably did not affect as large a number of people as is sometimes envisioned. These actions took place in one part of the large Court of the Gentiles and would not have been observed by most people in other parts of the Temple. The lack of interference by the Roman authorities suggests that they did not observe the event or did not regard it as a riot or as insurrection. Furthermore, at Jesus' trial, this action is never mentioned. It was not a massive attempt to stop all such activity, but a symbolic act foretelling the judgment soon to befall the Temple and the city.

11:16 from using the Temple as a marketplace: Or from carrying merchandise through the Temple. The Temple was also defiled by its use as a shortcut for carrying things from one part of the city to another. Other rabbis also forbade this practice (see Mishnah Berakhot 9.5; see Josephus, Against Apion 2.8).

11:17 Jesus quoted Isa 56:7 and Jer 7:11 in defense of his action. The first quotation emphasizes the importance of the Temple for Gentiles. God's house was intended by its very architecture (i.e., the Court of the Gentiles) to assist Gentiles in becoming children of Abraham. Jesus' act of judgment fell upon the leaders of Israel for hindering the Gentiles' access to the Temple. They were desecrating the Temple by taking part of the Temple specifically designated as a house of prayer for all nations and turning it into a den of thieves through the profiteering taking place (see note on 11:15-16).

11:18 The leading priests and teachers of religious law plotted to kill Jesus because they feared him. His great influence among the people, the amazement created by his actions, and the influence of his teaching threatened their position (see 3:6; 12:12; 14:1-2, 10-11). Their response shows that reform was not enough: God's judgment was necessary.

11:19 Jesus and the disciples left

11:20-21 Jesus' miraculous power to judge the fig tree testified to his authority to bring about the judgment of Jerusalem that he had foretold. If Mark's original readers were hearing his Gospel read to them in the late AD 60s, they knew that Roman legions were already enacting this prophetic judgment against Jerusalem.

11:22-23 The importance of Jesus' words is emphasized by his emphatic I tell you the truth. • This mountain probably indicates the Temple Mount, not the Mount of Olives. The judgment of the Temple is the focus of 11:12-25; it will be referred to again in 12:9 and at great length in 13:1-37. Jesus' reference to destroying the Temple would later be raised at his trial (14:58) and crucifixion (15:29).

11:24-25 Two additional sayings on prayer are tied to 11:23 by the word believe. In the first (11:24), we are told that we will receive what we ask for (see Matt 7:7) if we pray with the faith described in 11:23. • Forgiveness is the second condition for answered prayer. Only when we forgive others can our most important prayer, that God forgive us, be answered (Matt 5:23-24; 6:12, 14-15; Luke 6:37; 11:4; cp. Luke 7:41-43, 47; Eph 4:32; Col 3:13). • Some manuscripts add v 26, But if you refuse to forgive, your Father in heaven will not forgive your sins (cp. Matt 6:15).

11:27-33 Following the cleansing of the Temple (11:15-17; Matt 21:12-22; Luke 19:45-46), Jesus' opponents question his authority to do so (see also Matt 21:23-27; Luke 20:1-8; cp. John 2:18-22).

leading priests, the teachers of religious law, and the elders came up to him. ²⁸They demanded, "By what authority are you doing all these things? Who gave you the right to do them?"

²⁹"I'll tell you by what authority I do these things if you answer one question," Jesus replied. ³⁰"Did John's authority to baptize come from heaven, or was it merely human? Answer me!"

³¹They talked it over among themselves. "If we say it was from heaven, he will ask why we didn't believe John. ³²But do we dare say it was merely human?" For they were afraid of what the people would do, because everyone believed that John was a prophet. ³³So they finally replied, "We don't know."

And Jesus responded, "Then I won't tell you by what authority I do these things."

Parable of the Evil Tenant Farmers

Mark 12:1-12 // Matt 21:33-46 // Luke 20:9-19

12 Then Jesus began teaching them with stories: "A man planted a vineyard. He built a wall around it, dug a pit for pressing out the grape juice, and built a lookout tower. Then he leased the vineyard to tenant farmers and moved to another country. ²At the time of the grape harvest, he sent one of his servants to collect his share of the crop. ³But the farmers grabbed the servant, beat him up, and sent him back empty-handed. ⁴The owner then sent another servant, but they insulted him and beat him over the head. ⁵The next servant he sent was killed. Others he sent were either beaten or killed, until there was only one left—his son whom he loved dearly. The owner finally sent him, thinking, 'Surely they will respect my son.'

⁷"But the tenant farmers said to one another, 'Here comes the heir to this estate. Let's kill him and get the estate for ourselves!' ⁸So they grabbed him and murdered him and threw his body out of the vineyard.

⁹"What do you suppose the owner of the vineyard will do?" Jesus asked. "I'll tell 11:27 Upon returning again to Jerusalem (see 11:1, 11, 15), Jesus and the disciples entered the Temple. The constant repetition of Jerusalem reminds readers of what would soon take place there (10:32-34; see 8:31; 9:31; 14:1-16:8).

• In the Temple, Jesus encountered the leading priests, the teachers of religious law, and the elders. These three groups made up the seventy-one-member high council (the ruling body of the nation). From earlier encounters with them (8:31; see also 14:43, 53; 15:1), we expect them to oppose Jesus.

11:28 Jesus' authority includes his divine authority to cast out demons (1:22, 27; 5:1-13), heal (1:29-2:12; 5:21-43), forgive sins (2:10), and now to cleanse the Temple. Jesus' authority clearly was from God, but the religious leaders were unwilling to accept it.

11:29-30 Jesus often replied to his opponents with counter questions (e.g., 2:8-9, 19, 25-26; 3:4, 23; 10:3, 38; see also 12:16), which is an effective way both to teach and to refute.

11:31-32 Jesus clearly placed his opponents in a bind, for either a "yes" or a "no" would damage their reputation and authority in the eyes of the people. Denying John's prophetic authority would probably anger the people. Affirming it would mean that they should have accepted what John said, including what he said about Jesus. This answer would also answer their own question (11:28).

11:33 In answering, "We don't know," the religious leaders of the nation admitted that they could not answer a simple question that the people had no difficulty in answering: John was sent from God. They thus forfeited the religious leadership of the nation on this question. Their hardness of heart (3:5; 7:6), their unwillingness to see (4:12), and their deliberate refusal to accept the truth made further discussion fruitless. Their blindness and hostility toward God's servants John the Baptist and Jesus, their desecration of the Temple, and their plot to kill Jesus all revealed why God's judgment would come within that very generation (13:30).

12:1-12 The events of 11:27-12:44 all take place in the Temple (see 11:27; 13:1). This story (literally parable) is intimately tied to the previous question about Jesus' authority (11:27-33) by the introductory words, Then Jesus began teaching them. This parable is an extended reply by Jesus to the religious leaders. • Jesus intended his audience to interpret this parable in light of Isa 5:1-7, a similar story of someone planting a vineyard, building a lookout tower, putting a fence around the vineyard, and digging a pit for a wine vat. A similar question is asked: What do you suppose the owner of the vineyard will do? (12:9; cp. Isa 5:4). Isaiah specifically identifies the vineyard as the people of Israel (Isa 5:7); Jesus' hearers and Mark's readers would similarly have understood the present story as an allegory about the Israelites. Other details in the story are also clearly meant to be interpreted allegorically: The tenants represent the leaders of Israel; the owner represents God; the servants represent the OT prophets; the beloved son represents Jesus, the Son of God; the murder of the son represents Jesus' crucifixion; and the giving of the vineyard to others represents the judgment coming upon Israel (11:15-17; 13:1-37). The interpretation would have been more clear to Mark's readers than to Jesus' original audience, but the religious leaders who were Jesus' contemporaries understood it clearly enough that they sought to kill him (12:12).

12:1 The antecedent to them is the religious leaders of 11:27 (also in 12:12). • The beginning description of the story comes from Isa 5:1-7. Jesus' audience knew the book of Isaiah well and would immediately have recalled this allegory of the vineyard.

12:2-5 The time of the grape harvest probably refers to the time, some four years after planting, when a new vineyard would produce its first harvest. The owner's share of the crop would have been a quantity of grapes or wine, given in payment for the lease of the vineyard. • In the OT, prophets are often referred to as servants (Jer 7:25-26; Amos 3:7; Zech 1:6); they were repeatedly mistreated and killed by Israelite leaders (1 Kgs 18:13; 19:10, 14; 2 Chr 24:20-27; 36:15-16; Jer 26:20-23; Neh 9:26; see Matt 23:34, 37; 1 Thes 2:15).

12:6 Mark's early readers would immediately have associated his son whom he loved dearly with Jesus (cp. 1:11; 9:7; see also 1:1; 3:11; 5:7).

12:7 The reasoning of the tenants is unclear to us, although it was apparently clear to the original hearers, requiring no further explanation (cp. Matt 21:38; you—he will come and kill those farmers and lease the vineyard to others. ¹⁰Didn't you ever read this in the Scriptures?

'The stone that the builders rejected has now become the cornerstone.

¹¹ This is the LORD's doing, and it is wonderful to see.'

¹² The religious leaders wanted to arrest Jesus because they realized he was telling the story against them—they were the wicked farmers. But they were afraid of the crowd, so they left him and went away.

¹³ Later the leaders sent some Pharisees and supporters of Herod to trap Jesus into saying something for which he could be arrested. ¹⁴ "Teacher," they said, "we know how honest you are. You are impartial and don't play favorites. You teach the way of God truthfully. Now tell us—is it right to pay taxes to Caesar or not? ¹⁵ Should we pay them, or shouldn't we?"

Jesus saw through their hypocrisy and said, "Why are you trying to trap me? Show me a Roman coin, and I'll tell you." ¹⁶ When they handed it to him, he asked, "Whose picture and title are stamped on it?" "Caesar's," they replied.

¹⁷ "Well, then," Jesus said, "give to Caesar what belongs to Caesar, and give to God what belongs to God."

His reply completely amazed them.

Discussion about Life in the Resurrection

Mark 12:18-27 // Matt 22:23-33 // Luke 20:27-40

¹⁸ Then Jesus was approached by some Sadducees—religious leaders who say there is no resurrection from the dead. They posed this question: ¹⁹ "Teacher, Moses gave us a law that if a man dies, leaving a wife without children, his brother should marry the Luke 20:14). Perhaps with the son's coming, they assumed that the father had died, and that the murder of the son would leave the vineyard without a living claimant. Then ownership would fall to those who had been working the vineyard for years.

12:8 threw his body out of the vineyard: The tenants' disgraceful treatment of the son is heightened by their not even burying his body. Cp. Heb 13:12-13.

12:9 The parable concludes with two rhetorical questions (cp. 3:23, 33; 4:13; 7:18; 8:12). The first corresponds to what the "LORD of Heaven's Armies" says in the parable of the vineyard (Isa 5:5-7). Although some interpret Jesus' answer as meaning that God would replace the evil Jewish leaders (11:27; 12:12) with more faithful ones, Mark's readers likely would have understood the others to whom the vineyard would be given as the Gentile church (cp. Matt 21:43; Rom 9:25-33; 11:13-24). Thus, Jesus' parable connects with the coming destruction of Jerusalem (11:15-19; 13:1-37; 14:58; 15:29).

12:10-11 In his second rhetorical question, Jesus used a quotation from Ps 118:22-23. The rejected stone (the Son) had become the cornerstone of God's Kingdom (cp. Acts 4:11; 1 Pet 2:4, 6-7). The phrase is traditionally understood as the buried cornerstone that is part of the foundation, but it could be the capstone at the top of a building that marks its completion (cp. note on Matt 21:42). Whichever stone is meant, it was the most important one. Despite the evil intention of the builders—the religious leaders—all they did was in accordance with God's will (Acts 4:28), which was wonderful to see. Those who put Jesus to death were God's instruments in his plan for the Son of Man to give his life as a ransom for many (10:45).

12:12 The religious leaders: Literally They. For the second time, the presence of the crowd thwarted their evil intentions (see 11:31-32; 14:1-2).

12:13-17 Having failed in questioning Jesus' authority, Jesus' enemies tried to alienate his audience. Readers are aware from the beginning that the flattery of the Pharisees and supporters of Herod (see 3:6) was insincere; they wanted only to trap Jesus into saying something for which he could be arrested. The question is it right to pay taxes to Caesar or not? had been carefully thought out by Jesus' opponents. It presented Jesus with a dilemma. To say yes would alienate the people, for they despised the Romans and hated paying them taxes. To say no would make him a revolutionary and force an immediate confrontation with the Roman authorities, resulting in his arrest.

12:14 taxes: The Greek word refers to a poll tax or head tax; see note on 2:13-15; see also Luke 2:1-2; Acts 5:37.

12:15 Jesus' surprising reply revealed his wisdom. • a Roman coin (Greek a denarius): Apparently the poll tax had to be paid in Roman coinage.

12:16 The picture and title on the coin was almost certainly that of Tiberius Caesar, who reigned from AD 14–37. The inscription read, "Tiberius Caesar Augustus, Son of [the] Divine Augustus" on one side and "High Priest" on the other.

12:17 give to Caesar what belongs to Caesar: Jesus' words cannot be taken as those of an anti-Roman zealot opposing Jewish taxation by Caesar. Jesus clearly indicates elsewhere that he was opposed to the zealot cause (see Matt 5:9, 39, 41; 26:52). However, Jesus' statement cannot be understood as pro-Roman, either, because service to God is fundamental, and God is ultimately over Caesar. Like the evil farmers in the previous parable, the religious leaders had not given God what belonged to him.

12:18-27 This is the third controversy story of the series begun in 11:27. As in most NT references to the Sadducees, the setting is the Temple (Matt 22:23-33 // Luke 20:27-40; Acts 4:1-3; 5:12, 17; 22:30-23:10; the exceptions are Matt 3:7; 16:1-12). • The Sadducees' question (12:19-23) was carefully crafted and based on a commandment of Moses (Deut 25:5-6; see Gen 38:6-11; Ruth 4). Since all seven men could not have the woman as wife in the resurrection, and since none of them had a special claim, the Sadducees thought that they had proven the absurdity of the doctrine of the resurrection and refuted the Pharisees and Jesus (cp. Matt 12:41-42; Luke 16:19-31; see also Mark 8:31; 9:31; 10:34).

12:18 This is the only place in Mark where the Sadducees are mentioned by name, although they are included in references to the leading priests (see 8:31; 10:33; 11:18, 27). Sadducees did not believe in the resurrection from the dead (see Acts 4:1-2; 23:8). See also "The Sadducees" at Matt 16:1, p. 1610.

12:19 a law: See Deut 25:5-6. The Sadducees based their views only on the books of Moses. • Like the Pharisees (12:14), they addressed Jesus as Teacher. The Sadducees were fond of debating with religious teachers (see Josephus, Antiquities 18.1.4).

widow and have a child who will carry on the brother's name. ²⁰Well, suppose there were seven brothers. The oldest one married and then died without children. ²¹So the second brother married the widow, but he also died without children. Then the third brother married her. ²²This continued with all seven of them, and still there were no children. Last of all, the woman also died. ²³So tell us, whose wife will she be in the resurrection? For all seven were married to her."

²⁴Jesus replied, "Your mistake is that you don't know the Scriptures, and you don't know the power of God. ²⁵For when the dead rise, they will neither marry nor be given in marriage. In this respect they will be like the angels in heaven.

²⁶"But now, as to whether the dead will be raised—haven't you ever read about this in the writings of Moses, in the story of the burning bush? Long after Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob had died, God said to Moses, 'I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.' ²⁷So he is the God of the living, not the dead. You have made a serious error."

The Most Important Commandment

Mark 12:28-31 // Matt 22:34-40; cp. Luke 10:25-28

²⁸One of the teachers of religious law was standing there listening to the debate. He realized that Jesus had answered well, so he asked, "Of all the commandments, which is the most important?"

²⁹Jesus replied, "The most important commandment is this: 'Listen, O Israel! The LORD our God is the one and only LORD.

³⁰And you must love the LORD your God with all your heart, all your soul, all your mind, and all your strength.' ³¹The second is equally important: 'Love your neighbor as yourself.' No other commandment is greater than these."

³²The teacher of religious law replied, "Well said, Teacher. You have spoken the truth by saying that there is only one God and no other. ³³And I know it is important to love him with all my heart and all my understanding and all my strength, and to love

12:24-27 Jesus' response had two elements. First, he rebuked the Sadducees' ignorance of the Scriptures (i.e., the OT), where the resurrection of the dead is referred to most clearly in the Prophets (Isa 26:19; Ezek 37:1-14) and the Writings (Job 19:26; Ps 16:9-11; 49:15; 73:23-26; Dan 12:2; see "Introduction to the Old Testament: The Order of the Hebrew Bible," p. 4). However, the Sadducees accepted only the Torah (Genesis—Deuteronomy), so Jesus answered them from the Torah. The reference to God as the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob (see Exod 3:6, 15-16) showed that God's covenant with the patriarchs could not be broken by death. They were still alive (Matt 8:11-12; 13:17; Luke 16:19-31; John 8:56), for God is the God of the living, not the dead. God's covenant relationship with his people extends beyond their physical death, which means that the afterlife must be a reality. • Second, Jesus challenged the Sadducees' ignorance of God's power. They thought that life in the resurrection would have to be an extension of mortal life. Instead, it is life raised to an entirely new level. In this new existence, there is no need for sexual reproduction because there is no more death. The intimacy of marriage is superseded by fellowship with a multitude of fellow believers and with God (10:29-30; Matt 19:28-29; Luke 18:29-30; Rev 21:1-4). It is in this respect that resurrected believers will be like the angels in heaven. • Jesus' argument demonstrates his wisdom before his opponents and affirms the hope of the resurrection for his followers. Jesus is "the resurrection and the life" (John 11:25); he has conquered death and assured those who believe in him that they will "not perish but have eternal life" (John 3:16).

12:26 in the story . . . God said to Moses: Literally in the story of the bush? God said to him.

12:28-34 After the three hostile challenges of 11:27–12:27, the reader might expect the next question to Jesus to be hostile (see 11:28; 12:13, 15, 19-23), but this was not a hostile counter. Earlier references in Mark to the teachers of religious law have portrayed them as antagonistic (2:6-7, 16; 3:22; 7:1, 5; 8:31; 9:14; 10:33; 11:18, 27), and Jesus will warn the crowds against their hypocrisy (12:38-40), but this teacher was positively inclined toward Jesus (12:28, 32) and praised him (12:32-33). Jesus described the man's answer to his question as having understanding, and Jesus said that the man was not far from the Kingdom of God (12:34).

12:28 Of all the commandments: The Torah (Genesis—Deuteronomy) contains 613 separate commandments, and Jewish teachers frequently debated about which were more important than others. No command was considered unimportant, but some were recognized as more fundamental than others (see Matt 22:40). Rabbi Hillel's answer to this question was, "What is hateful to you, do not do to your neighbor" (Babylonian Shabbat 31a; see also Tobit 4:15). Other suggestions included Prov

3:6; Isa 33:15-16; 56:1; Amos 5:4; Mic 6:8; and Hab 2:4.

12:29-31 Jesus' reply combined two widely separated commands from the Torah. • The first, Deut 6:4-5, was probably the best known passage in the OT, for it was repeated twice daily by observant Jews. It is called the Shema because it begins with the word Listen (Hebrew shema). The first command corresponds to the first part of the Ten Commandments (Exod 20:2-11), which deals with a person's relationship to God. • The oneness of God is foundational to Jewish and Christian monotheism and is the basis for the command to love God with all one's heart (thinking and affection), soul (desire and feeling), mind (understanding), and strength (energy and power). • The second command is from Lev 19:18. It corresponds to the second part of the Ten Commandments (Exod 20:12-17), which concerns a person's relationship with other people. The second command is based on the natural inclination of people to look after themselves. Its importance to the early church can be seen in its frequent repetition (Matt 5:43-44; 19:19; 25:31-46; Rom 13:8-10; Gal 5:14; Jas 2:8; Didache 1.2; 2.7). The two commands are not independent, but are intimately associated as one commandment. Their integration precludes religious mysticism that addresses only a person's relationship with God or humanism that addresses only human relationships.

12:32-33 The scribe's affirmation adds emphasis to the importance of these two commands for authentic devotion.

my neighbor as myself. This is more important than to offer all of the burnt offerings and sacrifices required in the law."

³⁴Realizing how much the man understood, Jesus said to him, "You are not far from the Kingdom of God." And after that, no one dared to ask him any more questions.

Whose Son Is the Messiah?

Mark 12:35-37 // Matt 22:41-46 // Luke 20:41-44

³⁵Later, as Jesus was teaching the people in the Temple, he asked, "Why do the teachers of religious law claim that the Messiah is the son of David? ³⁶For David himself, speaking under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, said,

'The LORD said to my Lord,
Sit in the place of honor at my right hand until I humble your enemies beneath your feet.'

³⁷Since David himself called the Messiah 'my Lord,' how can the Messiah be his son?" The large crowd listened to him with great delight.

Jesus Criticizes the Teachers of Religious Law
Mark 12:38-40 // Luke 20:45-47; cp. Matt 23:1-36

³⁸Jesus also taught: "Beware of these teachers of religious law! For they like to parade around in flowing robes and receive respectful greetings as they walk in the marketplaces. ³⁹And how they love the seats of honor in the synagogues and the head table at banquets. ⁴⁰Yet they shamelessly cheat widows out of their property and then pretend to be pious by making long prayers in public. Because of this, they will be more severely punished."

The Widow's Offering

⁴¹Jesus sat down near the collection box in the Temple and watched as the crowds dropped in their money. Many rich people put in large amounts. ⁴²Then a poor widow came and dropped in two small coins.

⁴³Jesus called his disciples to him and said, "I tell you the truth, this poor widow has given more than all the others who are making contributions. ⁴⁴For they gave a tiny part of their surplus, but she, poor as she is, has given everything she had to live on."

12:34 The account ends with Jesus' commending the teacher of religious law for recognizing that this twofold command was more important than burnt offerings and sacrifices (see Hos 6:6). We are left uncertain as to the fate of this man. He was not far from the Kingdom of God, but did he enter it? Mark might have intentionally left this question unanswered so that each reader would wrestle with the question, Have I entered the Kingdom of God?

12:35-37 After having answered various questions, mostly from opponents, Jesus now asked a question (see 8:27; Matt 17:25; 21:31; Luke 10:36). The Messiah was considered the son of David because of such passages as Isa 9:2-7; 11:1-5; Jer 23:5-6; 33:15-16; Ezek 34:23-24; 37:24-28. Jesus' question did not deny that the Messiah was a descendant of David (10:47-48; 11:10; see Rom 1:3-4), but he demonstrated that this description, while correct, is inadequate. The Messiah is far more!

12:36 Psalm 110:1 is the OT verse most quoted in the NT. Since David authored the psalm, the statement "The LORD [God] said to my [David's] Lord [the Messiah]" indicates that the Messiah is David's Lord. Thus, the Messiah could not simply be David's son. He is the Son of God who sits at God's right hand (14:62) and will come to judge the world (8:38; 13:24-27, 32-37).

12:38-39 teachers of religious law: See

1:22. The warning here is similar to the one against the Pharisees and Herod in 8:15. The scribes broke the two greatest commands (12:30-31). They broke the first command by failing to love God and failing to reserve for him alone the reverence and adoration they sought for themselves. • Flowing robes were probably the garments worn by religious men; respectful greetings perhaps meant being called "Rabbi" (see Matt 23:7). The seats of honor were in the front of the synagogue facing the congregation.

12:40 The teachers of religious law broke the second command by failing to love their neighbors, as was seen in their cheating widows of their property. They clearly were cheating the most vulnerable and needy people despite God's concern for widows (Deut 14:29; Ps 68:5; 146:9; Isa 1:17; Jer 7:6; 49:11) and his condemnation of those who mistreat them (Isa 1:23; Ezek 22:7; Zech 7:10; Mal 3:5). The scribes wore a hypocritical cloak of false piety (see Matt 6:5-6; Luke 18:11-12). • they will be more severely punished: In the final judgment (9:42-48; see Luke 14:11).

12:41-44 This account of a poor widow highlights the contrast between the falsely pious religious leaders (12:38-40) and those who truly love God. The emphasis of the passage falls on Jesus' pronouncement, I tell you the truth, in which the widow is described as having given more than the rich.

12:41-42 The word translated collection box can refer to a building within the Temple compound in which Temple money was stored, but here it refers to one of thirteen money chests into which gifts were placed. As Jesus watched, many rich people put in large sums. Then he noticed a poor widow put in two small coins. (Greek two lepta, which is a kodrantes [i.e., a quadrans]. The use of the Roman term (quadrans) supports the view that Mark wrote his Gospel for the church in Rome; see Mark Introduction, "Audience," p. 1644.) These two coins were worth one sixtieth of a denarius, a normal day's pay (Matt 20:1-2).

12:43-44 Jesus called his disciples to hear his teaching (see 3:23; 6:7; 8:1; 10:42; see also 7:14; 8:34). Jesus' pronouncement in 12:43 revealed a radical difference between his thinking and that of the world. No one would have named a building after the widow for her gift of two small coins, but Jesus and his Father look at a person's heart (1 Sam 16:7). The widow was doing exactly what Jesus told the rich young ruler to do (10:21) and what he taught his disciples (1:18, 20; 8:34-37; 10:28-29). Like the woman of 14:3-9, the poor widow loved God with all her heart, soul, mind, and strength (12:30).

³Later, Jesus sat on the Mount of Olives across the valley from the Temple. Peter, James, John, and Andrew came to him privately and asked him, ⁴"Tell us, when will all this happen? What sign will show us that these things are about to be fulfilled?"

⁵Jesus replied, "Don't let anyone mislead you, ⁶for many will come in my name, claiming, 'I am the Messiah.' They will deceive many. ⁷And you will hear of wars and threats of wars, but don't panic. Yes, these things must take place, but the end won't follow immediately. ⁸Nation will go to war against nation, and kingdom against kingdom. 13:1-37 Chapter 13 brings to a conclusion the section begun at 11:1. Israel's failure to produce fruit (11:12-26; 12:38-40) and its leaders' hostility toward God's anointed, the Messiah (11:1-11, 27-33; 12:13-17, 18-27), would result in judgment and the destruction of Jerusalem and the Temple.

13:1 Leaving the Temple, Jesus was heading to the Mount of Olives (13:3).

• look at these magnificent buildings! The sight of the Temple would have been awe-inspiring (see note on 11:15-19). It was the largest temple complex in the world, with immense stones. One stone that has been uncovered in the western wall is estimated to weigh 600 tons. With its white stones, gold trim, and the gold-covered roof, the Temple complex looked like a snow-covered mountain; in the sun it was a blinding sight (Josephus, War 5.5.6). The Talmud says that "He who has not seen the temple in its full construction has never seen a glorious building in his life" (Babylonian Sukkah 51b).

13:2 Jesus' reply to the disciples was shocking. This glorious and massive Temple complex, a symbol of strength and permanence and God's favor for the Jews, would be totally, irrevocably destroyed. • Not one stone will be left on top of another! Jesus' prediction emphasized the total devastation that would result from the Roman army's systematic attack on the entire Temple complex (Josephus, Antiquities 6.9.1; 7.1.1.). To say that Jesus' prediction was not fulfilled because some of the foundation stones still stand is to misunderstand the language of prophecy. One does not expect a prophet to say that 97.9% of these stones will be removed! Anyone in the first century who visited Jerusalem after AD 70 would have acknowledged that Jesus' prediction had been fulfilled.

13:3-4 Andrew appeared here with the trio, Peter, James, and John (5:37; 9:2; 14:33), completing the two sets of brothers (1:16-20; 3:16-18). • Jesus' prediction elicited two questions from the disciples. Although some scholars argue that the second question goes beyond the first in looking to the coming of the Son of Man at the end of the age, it is best to interpret these two questions as focusing on the time and the sign associated with the destruction of Jerusalem and the Temple (cp. 13:29-30; Luke 21:7). These questions follow naturally from Jesus' prediction in 13:2. The desire to know the sign reflected the disciples' desire to be forewarned and prepared for all these things.

13:5-23 This section is often divided into two parts, 13:5-13 and 13:14-23. The first part is often interpreted as describing the destruction of Jerusalem, which occurred in AD 70, while the second part is taken to describe the coming of the Son of Man in the future. It is best, however, to interpret all of 13:5-23 as describing events surrounding the destruction of Jerusalem in AD 70 because: (1) 13:5-23 is Jesus' answer to the two questions (13:4) that deal with the destruction of Jerusalem (13:2); (2) The commands to flee Judea (13:14-16), the woe announced upon pregnant and nursing women (13:17), and the prayer that it not take place in winter (13:18) make sense if they refer to the events of AD 70 but not if they refer to the future return of Christ; (3) Three warnings in this passage (13:5, 9, 23) tie this passage together and indicate that 13:5-23 should be understood as a unit. • The subdivisions of this section are arranged as a chiasm (X-pattern):

A: Deceivers claim to be the Messiah (13:5-6).

B: There are reports of fighting and natural disasters (13:7-8).

C: There is persecution of believers (13:9-13).

B': The fighting in Judea and resulting tribulation begin (13:14-20).

A': Deceivers claim to be the Messiah (13:21-23).

13:5-6 Jesus warned his followers not to be misled by the many false messiahs who would come claiming, 'I am the Messiah' (literally claiming, 'I am') and would deceive many into following them. These false claimants would profess to be the long-awaited Jewish Messiah (not Jesus per se) or to speak on the Messiah's behalf. Such claimants included Theudas the Galilean (Acts 5:36), Simon the son of Gioras, and John of Gischala, who deceived many in the AD 60s.

13:7 The Greek word translated must is also used in 8:31. In both instances, God's sovereignty over events is emphasized. • but the end won't follow immediately: These things would occur, and just as birth pains are followed by childbirth, God's judgment on Jerusalem would follow. However, these events did not indicate that it was going to happen right away.

13:9 The second watch out! warns of persecution that was to come upon Christians (see 6:11; 8:34-38; 10:30; see 4:17). Jewish Christians would be brought before local councils of Jewish leaders, who had authority over Jewish communities. We read of such a council in Matt 10:17 and probably in Matt 5:22 (see also Acts 4:1-22). • beaten in the synagogues: Paul's beatings in 2 Cor 11:24-25 were probably inflicted in the local synagogue. • The followers of Jesus would also be susceptible to trial before governors and kings (see Acts 23:24; 24:10-27; 25:1-26:32). Jesus predicted three future events in the synoptic Gospels. One was his own death and resurrection (e.g., 8:31; 9:31; 10:33-34); this was a past event when the Gospels were written.

The second event that Jesus predicted was the destruction of Jerusalem in AD 70 (13:2-23, 28-31; 14:58; 15:29; Matt 24:3-28; Luke 19:41-44; 21:5-24; John 2:19; Acts 6:14). This event was probably about to happen when Mark wrote his Gospel (see "Date," p. 1644). It would not signify the very end, so the Christian community should not be troubled, but must live in faithful watchfulness for the Son of God's return in glory, which might be soon (13:34-37).

The third event that Jesus predicted was his own future return (8:38; 13:24-27, 32-37; 14:25; Matt 23:39; 24:3, 29-31; 24:36-26:46; Luke 21:25-36; John 14:1-3). References to Jesus' return can be found in every book of the NT except 3 John (see, e.g., 1 Cor 1:7-8; 3:13; 5:5; 2 Cor 1:14; Phil 1:6, 10; 2:16; 1 Thes 5:1-11; 2 Thes 2:2; 2 Tim 1:12, 18; 4:1, 8).

When Jesus returns, the promises about God's Kingdom will be completely fulfilled. Jesus will bring judgment and destruction for Satan and his angels (Rom 16:20; 2 Thes 2:3-12). Unbelievers will also experience eternal judgment (e.g., Matt 13:41-42; 25:31-46; Luke 6:24-26; 16:19-31; Acts 10:42; Eph 5:6; Col 3:6; Heb 10:25; 2 Pet 3:7; Jude 1:6; Rev 1:7; 6:14, 17). Meanwhile, the faithful (1 Thes 4:13-18), will be resurrected to experience the joy of eternal life. God will gather his chosen people (13:27) for salvation (Heb 1:14; 9:28), grace (1 Pet 1:13), and glory (1 Thes 2:12; 2 Thes 2:14; 1 Pet 1:7; 5:1, 4). He will give his people a priceless inheritance (1 Pet 1:4) and new eternal bodies (1 Cor 15:35-57; Phil 3:21; 1 Thes 4:13-18). All of creation will also be rescued from its curse (Gen 3:17-18) and be transformed (Rom 8:22-23; 2 Pet 3:12-13; Rev 21:1-22:5). Sorrow, tears, mourning, and death will no longer exist (Rev 21:4-5). Those who have had faith during this life will see God (Matt 5:8; Rev 22:4).

In light of these promises, believers in Jesus are to prayerfully await his return (Matt 6:10; Rev 22:20). We should not speculate dates for his coming (13:32; Acts 1:7), but should live in a way that is honorable (1 Jn 2:28) and be prepared (Matt 24:36-25:30; 1 Thes 5:1-11).

trials were due to their being followers of Jesus (13:9, 13), not on account of real wrongdoing (see 1 Pet 4:14-16).

• But this will be your opportunity to tell them about me: Or But this will be your testimony against them. The Greek can be interpreted either way.

13:10 Such trials (13:9, 11) would be a means through which the Good News would be preached to all nations (or all peoples). This would all take place first—i.e., before the destruction of Jerusalem. For Paul's understanding of how the Good News had already been preached to every nation in his day, see Rom 16:26; Col 1:6, 23 (see also Rom 1:5, 8; 10:18; 15:19, 23).

13:11 A word of encouragement follows the warning of 13:9. Jesus' followers need not fear what they should say in these circumstances. The early followers of Jesus were generally uneducated and without political influence (see Acts

4:10-17; 1 Cor 1:26), so this assurance would have comforted them. Believers are not prohibited from thinking about what they will say, but they need not worry about it.

13:12-13 There would be no single group, not even their own families, to whom persecuted Christians could automatically flee or turn for help (see Matt 10:35-36; Luke 12:53). They would be universally hated because of their allegiance to Jesus (because you are my followers, literally on account of my name). Those who remain faithful to death (to the end) will be saved from eternal punishment (see also 8:35; Rev 2:7, 10, 17, 26-28; 3:5, 12, 21).

13:14-20 Jesus now gave the sign requested in 13:4 and instructed his followers how to respond when they saw it. In 13:5-13, they were told not to be alarmed, but they were told that those in Judea must flee to the hills.

13:14 The day is coming when you will see the sacrilegious object that causes desecration (literally the abomination of desolation; see Dan 9:27; 11:31; 12:11): Mark did not explain what this object would be, but Jewish readers in the first century were familiar with the term. The prophet Daniel had foretold that such an object would stand in the Temple in Jerusalem (Dan 9:27; 11:31), and many Jews understood the events in Jerusalem in 167–164 BC, during the time of Antiochus Epiphanes IV, to be a fulfillment of that prophecy. (The deuterocanonical book of 1 Maccabees, written about 100 BC, narrates Antiochus's reign and describes how Antiochus and his followers erected a "sacrilegious object causing desecration on top of the altar for burnt offerings," 1 Maccabees 1:54, 59). • standing where he (or it) should not be: In light of the historical background and the reference to Jerusalem (13:2, 4) and Judea (13:14), this clause clearly refers to something inappropriate happening in the deck of a roof must not go down into the house to pack. ¹⁶A person out in the field must not return even to get a coat. ¹⁷How terrible it will be for pregnant women and for nursing mothers in those days. ¹⁸And pray that your flight will not be in winter. ¹⁹For there will be greater anguish in those days than at any time since God created the world. And it will never be so great again. ²⁰In fact, unless the Lord shortens that time of calamity, not a single person will survive.

But for the sake of his chosen ones he has shortened those days.

the Temple in Jerusalem. • (Reader, pay attention!): Mark alerted his original readers to pay attention to his description of this sign, which indicates that the expression required careful thought and discernment. Mark's readers were to look for a sign that was similar to what had happened in the time of Antiochus Epiphanes. • Although the phrase sacriligious object that causes desecration is grammatically neuter, the word standing is grammatically masculine, so it refers to a person and not a thing. Suggestions as to who it might have been include: (1) the emperor Caligula, who in AD 39-40 attempted to erect a statue of himself in the Temple (Josephus, Antiquities 12.8.2-3); (2) Pontius Pilate (AD 26-36), who attempted to have the Roman soldiers march into Judea displaying their standards, which were considered idolatrous by Jews (Josephus, War 2.9.2-3); (3) the Zealots in AD 69-70, when they committed atrocities in the Temple, appointed an unqualified person as the high priest of the nation, and "came into the sanctuary with polluted feet" (Josephus, War 4.3.4-8); (4) the Roman general Titus, who after conquering Jerusalem in AD 70 forced entry into the Temple as well (Josephus, War 6.4.7); (5) Titus's soldiers, who set up their standards in the Temple, sacrificed to them, and proclaimed Titus as emperor (Josephus, War 6.6.1); (6) the destruction of the Temple itself in AD 70; or (7) a future event involving the coming of the antichrist (see 2 Thes 2:3-4). The context and source of the expression eliminate several of these theories. In Daniel and 1 Maccabees, the expression involves the Temple, its altar, and its sacrificial rituals. In Mark 13:14-20, it is a sign for people to flee Judea, and what it refers to must occur while there is still time to flee (i.e., before the Roman army had occupied Judea and besieged Jerusalem). Explanations 1 and 2 are too early to serve as a recognizable sign to flee Judea, they didn't actually defile the Temple, and the Christians did not flee Jerusalem. Explanations 4-6 occurred too late, for there would have been no opportunity to flee after Titus entered Jerusalem. Explanation 7 does not refer to the destruction of Jerusalem in AD 70, which is the subject of 13:14-20, and the coming of the antichrist would not be limited to Judea. Explanation 3, however, fits well: It occurred in AD 69-70, shortly before Titus besieged Jerusalem, which would have given Christians a brief opportunity to leave Jerusalem before it was besieged; and it involved actions that defiled the holy place in the Temple. This interpretation also helps to distinguish the sign of the coming disaster (the sacriligious person) from the disaster itself (the destruction of Jerusalem and the Temple). • Then: At the appearance of the sacrilege, those in Judea were to flee to the hills. The early church historian Eusebius tells of a prophetic oracle given to the Jerusalem church that caused them to flee the city before its destruction (Eusebius, Church History 3.5.3).

13:15-16 A person relaxing on the roof of his Judean home should not even pack after seeing this sign, but come down and flee. Likewise, a person out in the field should not return home to retrieve his coat. Believers were to flee from the approaching Roman army as soon as they saw the sign of 13:14. The Roman army did not practice a swift "blitzkrieg" kind of warfare. Their movement tended to be cautious, methodical, and relentless. Jesus warned against playing a waiting game to see how things would develop.

13:17 The intensity of the coming disaster is illustrated by the suffering of the most vulnerable. In that day, the joy of motherhood (see Luke 1:25, 57-59) would be accompanied by terrible trouble.

13:18 In winter, the wadis (canyon-like riverbeds) are flooded, travel is more difficult, and survival is harder.

13:19 greater anguish in those days than at any time since God created the world: Such hyperbole is common in Semitic expression; it heightens the terror of that horrible time and should not be taken as an exact statistical analysis of how this suffering ranks alongside other disasters. • And it will never be so great again: The events of 13:14-23 would not bring history to an end; history would continue after the destruction of the Temple in AD 70.

13:20 God's shortening of his timetable for the days of calamity is referred to frequently in intertestamental Jewish literature (e.g., 2 Esdras 2:13; 2 Baruch 20:1). This statement emphasizes the horrors of this tribulation experienced by God's people, but also God's mercy in shortening this time. • not a single person will survive: The whole population of Judea might have been destroyed if the days of anguish had been longer. • chosen ones (literally elect): Followers of Jesus.

13:21-23 The larger section (13:5-23) concludes with another warning about messianic pretenders. Here the pretenders are associated with the events of AD 70, whereas in 13:5-6 they were associated with the normal course of events. Along with false messiahs, prophets would appear and perform miraculous signs and wonders (13:22), hoping to deceive not only the Jews of Judea and Jerusalem but even the Christians (God's chosen ones). Jesus warned his followers not to believe such reports. When the Messiah comes from heaven (13:26), everyone will see and know it (see Rev 1:7). • Watch out! This warning unifies the section (13:5-23) and brings it to a close (see note on 13:5-23). Jesus' teaching in this section was to warn his followers in Judea and Jerusalem not to be misled by false messianic hopes and claims. Many Jews succumbed to such claims in the late AD 60s, and Josephus (Antiquities 17.10.8) describes the great harm done by these pretenders, who encouraged the Jewish people to resist the Romans. Nothing should distract Christians from fleeing Judea and Jerusalem when they see the abomination of desolation taking place. • For Mark's readers in Rome, Jesus' message had a different application. Mark wanted his readers to watch out for those who promised timetables for prophecy to be fulfilled. They could not know the time (13:32), and a frenzy about the second coming of Christ was forbidden, but they were to be alert (13:33-37) and prepare themselves for persecution (13:9-13; see 8:34-38) according to Jesus' words of encouragement (13:11, 13).

The Coming of the Son of Man
Mark 13:24-33 // Matt 24:29-36 // Luke 21:25-33
24 "At that time, after the anguish of those days,

the sun will be darkened,
the moon will give no light,
the stars will fall from the sky,
and the powers in the heavens will be shaken.

25 Then everyone will see the Son of Man coming on the clouds with great power and glory. 27 And he will send out his angels to gather his chosen ones from all over the world—from the farthest ends of the earth and heaven.

28 "Now learn a lesson from the fig tree. When its branches bud and its leaves begin to sprout, you know that summer is near. 29 In the same way, when you see all these things taking place, you can know that his return is very near, right at the door. 30 I tell you the truth, this generation will not pass from the scene before all these things take place. 31 Heaven and earth will disappear, but my words will never disappear.

32 "However, no one knows the day or hour when these things will happen, not 13:24-27 At that time, after the anguish of those days: Many scholars argue that the cosmic signs of 13:24-25, the coming of the Son of Man in 13:26, and the gathering of the chosen ones from throughout the world in 13:27 are metaphorical ways of referring to the destruction of Jerusalem in AD 70 and to the vindication of the Son of Man by that event. The traditional interpretation, though, is that, whereas the former material refers to the destruction of Jerusalem, this passage refers to the coming of the Son of Man (the parousia) that will occur at the end of history. This interpretation fits better for several reasons: (1) After the anguish of those days means after the destruction of Jerusalem, not during it, and at that time (literally in those days) could occur at any time after the events of 13:5-23; (2) several words used in 13:26 are used elsewhere to describe the coming of the Son of Man: glory (8:38), power and clouds (14:62); and (3) in light of the early church's longing and praying for the return of the Lord Jesus (1 Cor 16:22; Rev 22:20), Mark's readers would have interpreted 13:26 as the second coming of Jesus, which will bring history as we know it to a close. The prophets, Jesus, and the Gospel writers described this event as though seen through a telescope, and the distance between events is unclear; no one knows the time for this event except God himself (13:32). The events of 13:5-23 and 13:24-27 are part of the same great, divine act that includes the coming of the Son of Man, his ministry, death, and resurrection, the judgment of Jerusalem in AD 70, and the Son of Man's final coming in glory.

13:24b-25 See Isa 13:10; 34:4; Joel 2:10. Some of the language used in the NT to describe Jesus' second coming, such as the "trumpet call of God" (1 Thes 4:16), appears to be metaphorical, and in the OT, cosmic language is frequently used to describe historical events metaphorically (see Isa 11:1-9; 13:9-11; Jer 4:23-28; Ezek 32:1-16). So it is possible that this imagery could refer to a past event, such as the destruction of Jerusalem, if that is the meaning of 13:24-27. However, the NT writers clearly understood the coming of the Son of Man to be the visible and personal return of Jesus in the future (see Acts 1:9-11).

13:26 Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself. • coming . . . glory: See Dan 7:13.

13:27 The Son of Man, at his coming, will gather his chosen people—those who believe in him and follow him—from all over the world (literally from the four winds; Zech 2:6) and from the farthest ends of the earth and heaven (see Deut 13:7; 30:4; Isa 42:10; 62:11). This hope is expressed frequently in the OT (e.g., Ps 107:2-3; Isa 11:11-16; 27:12-13; 43:5-13; 49:12; 60:1-9; Jer 31:10). For Mark's readers, this passage would have provided encouragement to endure and remain faithful despite the persecutions foretold in 13:9-13. The Son of Man's coming will also bring judgment on the unrighteous (8:38; 13:32-37; Matt 13:41-43; 24:36-51; 25:1-12, 31-46).

13:28-31 This passage contains the lesson (literally parable) of the fig tree (13:28-30) and two sayings (13:30-31). It is closely tied to 13:4-23 by the words all these things (13:4) and the expression when you see (13:29; cp. 13:14).

13:29 his return (literally he/it is near): The Greek has no explicit subject, so the choice between "he is near" or "it is near" depends on whether 13:29-30 refers to 13:4-23 or to 13:24-27. The NLT text understands it as referring to the return of the Son of Man. Because words in 13:4 are echoed in 13:29 and 30 (see note on 13:28-31), others interpret it as referring to the destruction of Jerusalem. Just as the sprouting of the fig tree is a herald of summer, the desolating sacrilege (13:14) would be a harbinger of Jerusalem's destruction.

13:30 This generation (or this age, or this nation) was to witness the fulfillment of these events. That generation did witness the destruction of Jerusalem. Those, however, who hold that all these things refers to the coming of the Son of Man have to interpret this generation as meaning something other than "people alive at this time." It could refer to the continued existence of the Jewish people, the whole human race, the Christian community, or the last generation of the end time.

13:31 Jesus personally guaranteed what he had said. My words include specifically what Jesus said in the whole discourse of ch 13. Mark's readers would have understood this as guaranteeing the truth of all Jesus' teachings known to them (Luke 1:2). Like the OT Scriptures (see Isa 40:8), Jesus' words are eternal. His teachings are more abiding than the fundamental elements of creation. The basic elements of creation will pass away (see also Ps 102:25-26; Isa 40:6-8; 51:6; Matt 5:18; Luke 16:17; 2 Pet 3:7, 10; Rev 20:11), but Jesus' words will never disappear.

13:32-37 Just as 13:28-31 picks up the theme of 13:5-23 in speaking of the destruction of Jerusalem, 13:32-37 picks up the theme of 13:24-27 and speaks of the coming of the Son of Man. An introductory warning against speculations concerning the end time (13:32) is followed by a warning to be on guard because one cannot know the time of the end (13:33). A story illustrates the need to be ready for the Lord's return (13:34), and its application repeats the need to watch lest they be found unprepared (13:35-36); the concluding warning is also for watchfulness (13:37).

13:32 The statement no one knows the day or hour (cp. Acts 1:7) introduces the warning to be watchful (13:33-37) and discourages speculation. • Jesus refers to himself as the Son, higher than the angels in an ascending hierarchy that begins with no one and ends with only the Father. The authenticity of this saying is assured by the limitation it places on the Son's knowledge, something the early church would not likely have imagined—in the apocryphal gospels (about AD 150–300), the tendency is even the angels in heaven or the Son himself. Only the Father knows. ³³And since you don't know when that time will come, be on guard! Stay alert!

Watch for the Master's Return

³⁴"The coming of the Son of Man can be illustrated by the story of a man going on a long trip. When he left home, he gave each of his slaves instructions about the work they were to do, and he told the gatekeeper to watch for his return. ³⁵You, too, must keep watch! For you don't know when the master of the household will return—in the evening, at midnight, before dawn, or at daybreak. ³⁶Don't let him find you sleeping when he arrives without warning. ³⁷I say to you what I say to everyone: Watch for him!"

Mark 14:1-2 // Matt 26:1-5 // Luke 22:1-2

14 It was now two days before Passover and the Festival of Unleavened Bread. The leading priests and the teachers of religious law were still looking for an opportunity to capture Jesus secretly and kill him. ²"But not during the Passover celebration," they agreed, "or the people may riot."

³Meanwhile, Jesus was in Bethany at the home of Simon, a man who had previously had leprosy. While he was eating, a woman came in with a beautiful alabaster jar of expensive perfume made from essence of nard. She broke open the jar and poured the perfume over his head.

⁴Some of those at the table were indignant. "Why waste such expensive perfume?" they asked. ⁵"It could have been sold for a year's wages and the money given to the poor!" So they scolded her harshly.

⁶But Jesus replied, "Leave her alone. Why criticize her for doing such a good thing to me? ⁷You will always have the poor among you, and you can help them whenever you want to. But you will not always have me. ⁸She has done what she could and has anointed my body for burial ahead of time. ⁹I tell you the truth, wherever the Good News is preached throughout the world, this woman's deed will be remembered and discussed."

to exalt and magnify Jesus' divine attributes (e.g., see the Infancy Gospel of Thomas). In the miracle of the incarnation, Jesus experienced limitation (10:40; 13:32). If the Son himself did not know the day or hour, Christians should refrain from seeking such knowledge for themselves.

13:33-37 These verses contain four variations of the same basic warning: Be on guard! Stay alert! (some manuscripts add and pray; 13:33), and watch. The repetition emphasizes the need to be vigilant.

13:34-35 The point of the story is not that the return of the Lord is uncertain or unexpected (see Matt 24:45-51; 25:1-30; Luke 12:36-38; 19:12-27), but that there will be no sign or warning of his coming. The parable is allegorical in at least two respects, with the master (Greek kurios) understood as the Lord [kurios] Jesus Christ and the slaves or household servants as the Christian community. But to allegorize the gatekeeper as the apostles or Peter was a post-NT development. • in the evening, at midnight, before dawn (literally the cock's crowing), or at daybreak: The four periods of the night correspond to the Roman division of the night into four watches of three hours each and simply mean that the master can return at any time during the night.

13:37 The passage, originally addressed to the disciples (you, see also 13:5), is also directed to all readers of Mark's Gospel (everyone). • Watch for him! Although 13:32-37 warns about being ready, the early church experienced this vigilance as a joyous anticipation of "that wonderful day when the glory of our great God and Savior, Jesus Christ, will be revealed" (Titus 2:13). Even Greek Christians in the first century repeated the Aramaic prayer, Maranatha ("Come, Lord," see 1 Cor 16:22; Rev 22:20) and today, we still "eagerly look forward to his appearing" (2 Tim 4:8).

14:1-16:8 The final section of Mark is the narrative of Jesus' suffering, death, and resurrection—the last few days of his life.

14:1-2 The plot by the leading priests and teachers of religious law to kill Jesus (see 3:6; 11:18; 12:12) now comes to a climax.

14:3-9 The story of Jesus' being anointed by a woman in Bethany (14:3-9) sets the scene for events to follow. Luke's account (Luke 7:36-50) is significantly different and might be a different event. This incident took place in Bethany, two miles east of Jerusalem on the lower, eastern slope of the Mount of Olives, where Jesus apparently stayed when he was in Judea (11:1, 11-12). The home belonged to Simon, a former leper (lepers were isolated from society; perhaps he had been healed by Jesus; see 1:40-45). • eating: Or reclining. The meal was a banquet, as indicated by their reclining. A woman (see John 12:3) broke the neck of a sealed, alabaster jar containing expensive perfume (pure nard) and poured it all on Jesus' head (see Exod 29:4-7; 2 Kgs 9:1-6).

14:4-5 Some (cp. Matt 26:8; John 12:4-5) were indignant over what they considered a waste of the expensive perfume, said to have been worth a year's wages (Greek 300 denarii) for the average worker. A denarius was equivalent to a laborer's full day's wage. This large amount of money could have been given to the poor, and it was obligatory to remember the poor during Passover.

14:6-8 Jesus defended the woman's action. That the disciples would always have the poor among them did not minimize Jesus' concern for the poor. The opportunity to minister directly to Jesus was limited. Only hours remained! She chose the best thing she could do with her perfume.

14:8 Jesus interprets the woman's action. She had anointed his body in preparation for his burial. Whether the woman was consciously motivated by Jesus' imminent death is unclear; her loving act served the purpose Jesus assigned it.

14:9 Although Mark does not give the woman's name, her deed (14:6) is indeed remembered as the story of Jesus is told throughout the world.

Mark 14:10-11 // Matt 26:14-16 // Luke 22:3-6

¹⁰Then Judas Iscariot, one of the twelve disciples, went to the leading priests to arrange to betray Jesus to them. ¹¹They were delighted when they heard why he had come, and they promised to give him money. So he began looking for an opportunity to betray Jesus.

Mark 14:22-26 // Matt 26:26-30 // Luke 22:14-20

¹²On the first day of the Festival of Unleavened Bread, when the Passover lamb is sacrificed, Jesus' disciples asked him, "Where do you want us to go to prepare the Passover meal for you?"

¹³So Jesus sent two of them into Jerusalem with these instructions: "As you go into the city, a man carrying a pitcher of water will meet you. Follow him. ¹⁴At the house he enters, say to the owner, 'The Teacher asks: Where is the guest room where I can eat the Passover meal with my disciples?' ¹⁵He will take you upstairs to a large room that is already set up. That is where you should prepare our meal." ¹⁶So the two disciples went into the city and found everything just as Jesus had said, and they prepared the Passover meal there.

¹⁷In the evening Jesus arrived with the Twelve. ¹⁸As they were at the table eating, Jesus said, "I tell you the truth, one of you eating with me here will betray me."

Judas Iscariot (14:10-11, 18-21, 43-45)

Judas Iscariot is infamous for betraying Jesus to the authorities (3:19; Matt 10:4; Luke 6:16).

The meaning of the name "Iscariot" (John 6:71; 13:26) is uncertain; it might refer to a village named Kerioth. He is not the same as Judas son of James (Luke 6:16; Acts 1:13).

Among the apostles, Judas Iscariot came to be known as greedy; he carried the money bag and had the reputation of stealing from it (John 12:6). The money offered him as a bribe by the leading priests later convinced him to betray Jesus (14:10-11; Matt 26:14-16; Luke 22:3-6).

Jesus called Judas himself a devil (John 6:70) and predicted the betrayal (14:18-21). The devil put the idea of betrayal into Judas's mind, and Satan "entered" him at the time of the betrayal (Luke 22:3; John 13:2, 27). Judas led a group of soldiers and officers to the garden of Gethsemane in the middle of the night, where he found Jesus and betrayed him with the prearranged signal, a kiss of greeting (14:43-52). Later, Judas was apparently overcome by remorse for betraying an innocent man, and he hanged himself (Matt 27:3-10; Acts 1:18-19).

Jesus clearly understood Judas's betrayal as part of God's plan for redemption: It brought about the death of the Messiah as the ultimate sacrifice for sin (14:21; Matt 26:24; Luke 22:22; cp. Matt 26:54). Even though Judas served God's plan, his tragic end was clearly deserved (Acts 1:25). It would have been better for Judas if he had never been born (14:21; Matt 26:24; cp. Luke 22:22; John 17:12). Judas's fate soberly warns those who are apparently followers of Jesus but have never committed themselves to him personally (cp. Heb 6:4-6).

woman, Judas Iscariot, one of the twelve disciples, offered to betray Jesus for money (Matt 26:15; 27:3, 9).

14:12-32 The preparation for the Passover meal (14:12-16) introduces the story of the Last Supper (14:22-25).

• The Last Supper is associated with the Passover meal (14:12, 14, 16; Matt 26:17-19; Luke 22:7-8, 11, 13, 15; cp. John 18:28; 19:14). Many pilgrims celebrated Passover in Jerusalem, where God's Temple was located (see Deut 16:2).

14:12 The time when the Passover lamb is sacrificed was twilight on the 14th of Nisan (Exod 12:6). This date falls in March or April each year.

14:13-15 Jesus' instructions to the disciples are similar to those of 11:2-6, suggesting that Jesus had prearranged a place for eating the Passover and

Last Supper with his disciples. Jesus' careful preparations for this meal emphasize its importance. The two disciples were to prepare the Passover meal, which included the lamb (which had to be slaughtered, skinned, cleaned, and roasted over an open fire), unleavened bread, a bowl of salt water, bitter herbs, and a bowl of a fruit puree, or kharosheth. Enough wine mixed with water was needed so that Jesus and the disciples could each drink four cups to celebrate God's fourfold blessing (Exod 6:6-7).

14:17 With the coming of evening, Jesus arrived with the Twelve at the upstairs guest room. "The Twelve" refers to Jesus' disciples as a group; ten arrived with Jesus, since two of them were already there (14:13).

14:18 As they were at the table: Or As they reclined. The Passover was eaten in a reclining position, as were other banquet meals. During the Passover meal, someone (usually the youngest son) would ask the host, "Why is this night different from other nights?" The father or host would then recount the stories of the Passover and the Exodus (Deut 26:5-9). The elements of the Passover meal were symbolic. The Passover lamb served as a reminder of the blood of the sacrificial lambs that protected Israelite homes from the angel of death, which visited the firstborn in Egypt (Exod 12:28-30). Unleavened bread recalled the rapid exodus of God's people (Exod 12:31-34, 39). The salt water represented the tears of their bondage and the crossing of the Red Sea, and the bitter herbs their slavery. The four cups of wine acknowledged God's fourfold promise in Exod 6:6-7 (see notes

¹⁹Greatly distressed, each one asked in turn, "Am I the one?"

²⁰He replied, "It is one of you twelve who is eating from this bowl with me. ²¹For the Son of Man must die, as the Scriptures declared long ago. But how terrible it will be for the one who betrays him. It would be far better for that man if he had never been born!"

²²As they were eating, Jesus took some bread and blessed it. Then he broke it in pieces and gave it to the disciples, saying, "Take it, for this is my body."

²³And he took a cup of wine and gave thanks to God for it. He gave it to them, and they all drank from it. ²⁴And he said to them, "This is my blood, which confirms the covenant between God and his people. It is poured out as a sacrifice for many. ²⁵I tell you the truth, I will not drink wine again until the day I drink it new in the Kingdom of God."

²⁶Then they sang a hymn and went out to the Mount of Olives.

²⁷On the way, Jesus told them, "All of you will desert me. For the Scriptures say,

'God will strike the Shepherd, and the sheep will be scattered.'

²⁸But after I am raised from the dead, I will go ahead of you to Galilee and meet you there."

²⁹Peter said to him, "Even if everyone else deserts you, I never will."

³⁰Jesus replied, "I tell you the truth, Peter—this very night, before the rooster crows twice, you will deny three times that you even know me."

³¹"No!" Peter declared emphatically. "Even if I have to die with you, I will never deny you!" And all the others vowed the same.

³²They went to the olive grove called Gethsemane, and Jesus said, "Sit here while I go and pray." ³³He took Peter, James, and John with him, and he became deeply troubled and distressed. ³⁴He told them, "My soul is crushed with grief to the point of death. Stay here and keep watch with me."

³⁵He went on a little farther and fell to the ground. He prayed that, if it were possible, the awful hour awaiting him might pass him by. ³⁶"Abba, Father," he cried out, "everything is possible for you. Please take on Matt 26:26-29). • The terrible deed of betraying Jesus was more heinous in that the betrayer was one of those eating with him (see Ps 41:9; 55:12-14).

14:19 The disciples were shocked and saddened, asking, Am I the one? This is the first they had heard that Jesus would be betrayed (though the reader has known it since 3:19). Jesus maintained his betrayer's anonymity.

14:21 Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself. • must die, as the Scriptures declared: See, e.g., Isa 52:13–53:12. Jesus foreknew this betrayal as part of the divine plan (cp. 8:31-33), but his betrayer was condemned. Jesus and the Gospel writers do not explain how God's sovereignty and Judas's human responsibility can coexist, but both are stated without compromise (see John 19:11).

14:22-25 The Lord's Supper began with a blessing. In modern practice, Christians ask God to bless the food; Jews in Jesus' day blessed God for providing the food with the words, "Blessed are you, O Lord our God, King of the universe, who brings forth bread from the earth." • this is my body. . . . This is my blood: Some understand these words to mean that the bread and wine are transformed into the very body and blood of Jesus (transubstantiation); others, that the bread and wine remain bread and wine but that the real presence of Jesus is found in them (consubstantiation). In these two views, when one participates in the Lord's Supper, one actually eats and drinks the body and blood of Jesus. A third view is that in eating the bread and wine, Christians spiritually feed on Jesus. A fourth view is that the meal is primarily a memorial, and the elements are symbolic of Jesus' sacrifice on our behalf. See also John 6:53-63 and notes.

14:24 The cup of wine represented Jesus' blood, poured out as a sacrifice (10:45; Isa 53:12). It initiated the covenant (some manuscripts read the new covenant) that God has made with his people (Luke 22:20; 1 Cor 11:25; see Exod 24:8; Zech 9:11; Heb 9:18-20; 10:26-29). The term many refers to all people (see 10:45; Rom 5:15-19).

14:25 the day I drink it new: Jesus will have a great banquet for his followers when he returns and fully establishes the Kingdom of God.

14:26-27 Then they sang a hymn: It was customary to end the Passover by singing the last part of the hallel psalms (Pss 114–118). • The singing of hymns brought the Passover meal and Last Supper to a conclusion, and Jesus and the disciples departed for the Mount of Olives to spend the night. As they proceeded, Jesus told his disciples that they would all desert him, which had to happen because the Scriptures foretold it. • God will strike: Literally I will strike. See Zech 13:7. As a result, the sheep (the disciples) would be scattered.

14:28 Despite predictions of their failure, the account included encouragement and hope. After Jesus was raised from the dead, he met the disciples in Galilee (see 16:7), where they were forgiven and restored (see John 21:1-23).

14:29-31 Peter's protests and Jesus' rebuke recall 8:32-33. Despite Peter's protests, his denial took place within a few hours.

14:32 Gethsemane (Aramaic, "oil press") remains an olive grove to this day. It is called a garden in John 18:1, and Luke 22:39 indicates that it was a favorite place for Jesus and his disciples.

14:33-34 Jesus went ahead with Peter, James, and John (5:37-43; 9:2-9; see also 13:3) and asked them to watch with him, meaning to agonize with and for him in prayer.

14:35-36 Jesus fell to the ground to pray because of his deep distress (see Gen 17:1-3; Lev 9:24; Num 14:5; 16:4). Since it was normal to pray out loud, Jesus' prayer was probably overheard by the three disciples, who would not have fallen asleep immediately. • Jesus

Mark 14:53-65 // Matt 26:57-68 // Luke 22:63-71;
cp. John 18:19-24

⁵⁵Inside, the leading priests and the entire high council were trying to find evidence against Jesus, so they could put him to death. But they couldn't find any. ⁵⁶Many false witnesses spoke against him, but they contradicted each other. ⁵⁷Finally, some men stood up and gave this false testimony: ⁵⁸"We heard him say, 'I will destroy this Temple made with human hands, and in three days I will build another, made without human hands.'" ⁵⁹But even then they didn't get their stories straight!

⁶⁰Then the high priest stood up before the others and asked Jesus, "Well, aren't you going to answer these charges? What do you have to say for yourself?" ⁶¹But Jesus was silent and made no reply. Then the high priest asked him, "Are you the Messiah, the Son of the Blessed One?"

⁶²Jesus said, "I AM. And you will see the Son of Man seated in the place of power at God's right hand and coming on the clouds of heaven."

⁶³Then the high priest tore his clothing to show his horror and said, "Why do we need other witnesses? ⁶⁴You have all heard his blasphemy. What is your verdict?"

"Guilty!" they all cried. "He deserves to die!"

⁶⁵Then some of them began to spit at him, and they blindfolded him and beat him with their fists. "Prophecy to us," they jeered. And the guards slapped him as they took him away.

14:53-65 The story of Jesus' trial follows immediately upon his arrest. Objections have been raised as to the historicity of the various accounts of Jesus' trial, because of differences of detail from the rules found in the Mishnah tractate Mishnah Sanhedrin. However, (1) the Mishnah was written around AD 200, whereas the Gospel of Mark was written in the late 60s, over 130 years earlier; (2) the rules found in Mishnah Sanhedrin idealize what later rabbis thought should take place in such trials and do not necessarily describe what did in fact take place; (3) it is questionable whether the Sadducees leading the Sanhedrin would have followed the Pharisaic rules found in Mishnah Sanhedrin (see Acts 23:6-10); (4) the rules found in Mishnah Sanhedrin sometimes conflict with what the Jewish historian Josephus wrote; (5) existing laws of conduct were not necessarily followed—Jesus was being tried by a kangaroo court, in which the sentence was predetermined and only the charge for carrying it out was sought (14:55); (6) if we must choose between the trial accounts found in the Gospels and Mishnah Sanhedrin, there is no reason to choose the reliability of Mishnah Sanhedrin over that of the Gospels.

14:53-54 The leading priests, the elders, and the teachers of religious law were not synonymous with the "entire high council" (14:55; 15:1), or Sanhedrin, but they made up a large part of it. Peter followed Jesus into the high priest's courtyard, where the Sanhedrin was meeting. The stage is set for Peter's denial (14:66-72).

14:55-59 The trial took place before the entire high council (Greek the Sanhedrin), which had seventy members and was led by the high priest. The Gospels portray a formal trial: There was a search for witnesses (14:55), eyewitness testimony (14:56-59), Jesus being placed under oath (Matt 26:63), Jesus being allowed to defend himself (14:60), the high priest tearing his robe (14:63), and the concluding verdict by the Sanhedrin (14:64). This does not mean that it was a fair trial—the decision to put Jesus to death had already been made. Evidence was not sought to determine the truth, but to obtain a guilty verdict and death sentence. • False witnesses giving false testimony misrepresented what Jesus said about the destruction and rebuilding of the Temple (see 15:29; John 2:19; Acts 6:14). Because the false witnesses contradicted each other, their testimony was unacceptable (Num 35:30; Deut 17:6; 19:15).

14:60-61 Since the false witnesses failed to agree (14:56), the high priest sought incriminating testimony from Jesus.

14:62 I AM: Or The 'I AM' is here; or I am the LORD. See Exod 3:14; cp. note on 6:49-50. The reader has known from the beginning that Jesus was the Messiah, the Son of God (1:1). This was acknowledged by demons (1:24; 3:11; 5:7), by God (1:11; 9:7), and by the disciples (8:29-30), but this is the first time that Jesus openly and publicly acknowledged that he was the Messiah. • The second part of Jesus' reply was that he would be seated in the place of power at God's right hand (literally seated at the right hand of the power; see Ps 110:1), which foretold his resurrection and ascension (Luke 24:50-51; Acts 1:9-11; see Phil 2:9; Heb 1:3) and his triumphal coming on the clouds of heaven (see Dan 7:13) to judge the world. At Jesus' return, roles will be reversed, and those judging the Son of Man will be judged by him.

14:63-64 The high priest tore his clothing at Jesus' response. This was a judicial act that indicated a guilty verdict and signified that there was no need to find other witnesses. The rest of the Sanhedrin agreed that Jesus was guilty and deserved to die. • Exactly what was blasphemous in Jesus' reply is unclear. Perhaps it was his reply "I AM," which was the way God referred to himself in Exod 3:14 (see John 8:58). However, Mark is not necessarily repeating the actual words Jesus said at his trial (cp. Matt 26:64; Luke 22:70), so these words could simply be indicating Jesus' affirmative response to the high priest's question. He was the Messiah, the Son of God. However, during the second Jewish revolt against Rome, Bar Kokhba (AD 132–135) claimed to be the Messiah, and it was not considered blasphemous. Jesus' identification of himself as the Son of Man cannot have been considered blasphemous, for we have over fifty instances before Jesus' trial in which he used this title, and the charge of blasphemy was never raised. Yet it was too much for the high priest and the Sanhedrin when Jesus clearly claimed to be the Son of Man of Dan 7:13 coming in God's name to judge the world. Not to mention that during his ministry, Jesus forgave sins (2:5-7; Luke 7:48-50), claimed to be the Son of God (12:6), pronounced judgment upon the Temple (14:58), and claimed to be Lord of the Sabbath (2:28). Already convinced that Jesus should be put to death, the religious leaders now pronounced the predetermined guilty verdict (14:55).

14:65 spit: See 10:34. • Prophecy: See 6:4, 15; 8:28; 14:58. • Similar abuse would follow his trial before Pontius Pilate (15:16-20).

Peter Denies Jesus

Mark 14:66-72 // Matt 26:69-75 // Luke 22:54-62 //

John 18:15-18, 25-27

⁶⁶Meanwhile, Peter was in the courtyard below. One of the servant girls who worked for the high priest came by ⁶⁷and noticed Peter warming himself at the fire. She looked at him closely and said, "You were one of those with Jesus of Nazareth."

⁶⁸But Peter denied it. "I don't know what you're talking about," he said, and he went out into the entryway. Just then, a rooster crowed.

⁶⁹When the servant girl saw him standing there, she began telling the others, "This man is definitely one of them!" ⁷⁰But Peter denied it again.

A little later some of the other bystanders confronted Peter and said, "You must be one of them, because you are a Galilean."

⁷¹Peter swore, "A curse on me if I'm lying—I don't know this man you're talking about!" ⁷²And immediately the rooster crowed the second time.

Suddenly, Jesus' words flashed through Peter's mind: "Before the rooster crows twice, you will deny three times that you even know me." And he broke down and wept.

Jesus' Trial before Pilate

Mark 15:1-5 // Matt 27:1-2, 11-14 // Luke 23:1-5 //

John 18:28-38a

15 Very early in the morning the leading priests, the elders, and the teachers of religious law—the entire high council—met to discuss their next step. They bound Jesus, led him away, and took him to Pilate, the Roman governor.

²Pilate asked Jesus, "Are you the king of the Jews?"

Jesus replied, "You have said it."

³Then the leading priests kept accusing him of many crimes, ⁴and Pilate asked him, "Aren't you going to answer them? What about all these charges they are bringing against you?" ⁵But Jesus said nothing, much to Pilate's surprise.

Jesus Is Sentenced to Death

Mark 15:6-15 // Matt 27:15-26 // Luke 23:13-25 //

John 18:38b-19:16

⁶Now it was the governor's custom each year during the Passover celebration to release one prisoner—anyone the people requested. ⁷One of the prisoners at that time was Barabbas, a revolutionary who had committed murder in an uprising. ⁸The crowd went to Pilate and asked him to release a prisoner as usual.

⁹"Would you like me to release to you this 'King of the Jews?'" Pilate asked. ¹⁰(For he realized by now that the leading priests had arrested Jesus out of envy.) ¹¹But at this point the leading priests stirred up the crowd to demand the release of Barabbas instead of Jesus. ¹²Pilate asked them, "Then what should I do with this man you call the king of the Jews?"

¹³They shouted back, "Crucify him!"

¹⁴"Why?" Pilate demanded. "What crime has he committed?"

But the mob roared even louder, "Crucify him!"

14:66-72 Peter's predicted denials (see 14:30), occurred during Jesus' trial.

14:67 The title Jesus of Nazareth (or Jesus the Nazarene) might have been contemptuous, for Judeans held a low view of Galileans (John 1:46; 7:41, 52).

14:68 Peter denied that he knew Jesus. To escape further questions, he left the courtyard and went to the entryway.

• Some manuscripts do not include Just then, a rooster crowed; it might be a later scribal addition to the text of Mark.

14:69-70 The servant girl repeated her accusation to other bystanders. The others thought Peter was Jesus' follower because he was a Galilean (see Matt 26:73; cp. Acts 2:7).

14:71 Peter swore: He took an oath that his denial was true.

14:72 Upon Peter's third denial, the rooster crowed the second time and Jesus' prediction was fulfilled (14:30). While Jesus stood boldly before the Sanhedrin, Peter quailed before those with little power, cursed Jesus, and swore that he did not know him. Recalling Jesus' words, Peter wept.

15:1-15 Following the story of Peter's denial, Mark turns back to Jesus and what happened at his trial. Pilate's wavering under pressure fits what is known of him from other sources.

15:1 Very early in the morning: Roman trials usually began at dawn. It is not clear whether this was a second meeting of the entire high council (Greek the Sanhedrin), or whether the account refers back to the decision of the council in 14:63-64 and resumes at this point.

• Since the high council lacked authority to institute capital punishment (John 18:31), they had to take Jesus to Pilate, the Roman governor of Judea from AD 26-36. Pilate's normal residence was on the coast at Caesarea, but he stayed in Jerusalem during Passover, when Israel's celebration of the Exodus raised hopes of deliverance from Roman rule.

15:2 The term king of the Jews is the Gentile equivalent of the Jewish title,

"King of Israel" (15:32). • You have said it: Jesus' reply to Pilate's question is found in all four Gospels; Jesus clearly understood himself to be a king (10:37-38; 11:9-10; 12:35-37), and Pilate eventually crucified him on this charge (15:26), although Pilate understood that Jesus was not a political threat (John 18:33-39).

15:3-5 Pilate sought a self-defense from Jesus concerning the charges.

15:6-8 The custom described in 15:6-8 is not known outside of the Gospels, but all four Gospels refer to it (Matt 27:15-21; Luke 23:18-25; John 18:37-40); in many instances prisoners in the ancient world were released on special holidays. • Barabbas: See also Matt 27:16-17; Luke 23:19. • who had committed murder in an uprising: Pilate's willingness to release Barabbas (15:15) probably indicates that he had not killed Roman citizens or soldiers.

15:9-14 Pilate apparently hoped to release Jesus, but the crowd was stirred up beyond discussion.

¹⁵So to pacify the crowd, Pilate released Barabbas to them. He ordered Jesus flogged with a lead-tipped whip, then turned him over to the Roman soldiers to be crucified.

¹⁶The soldiers took Jesus into the courtyard of the governor's headquarters (called the Praetorium) and called out the entire regiment. ¹⁷They dressed him in a purple robe, and they wove thorn branches into a crown and put it on his head. ¹⁸Then they saluted him and taunted, "Hail! King of the Jews!" ¹⁹And they struck him on the head with a reed stick, spit on him, and dropped to their knees in mock worship. ²⁰When they were finally tired of mocking him, they took off the purple robe and put his own clothes on him again. Then they led him away to be crucified.

The Crucifixion

Mark 15:21-28 // Matt 27:32-38 // Luke 23:26-34 // John 19:17-24

Mark 15:29-32 // Matt 27:39-44 // Luke 23:35-43

²¹A passerby named Simon, who was from Cyrene, was coming in from the countryside just then, and the soldiers forced him to carry Jesus' cross. (Simon was the father of Alexander and Rufus.) ²²And they brought Jesus to a place called Golgotha (which means "Place of the Skull"). ²³They offered him wine drugged with myrrh, but he refused it.

²⁴Then the soldiers nailed him to the cross. They divided his clothes and threw dice to decide who would get each piece. ²⁵It was nine o'clock in the morning when they crucified him. ²⁶A sign announced the charge against him. It read, "The King of the Jews." ²⁷Two revolutionaries were crucified with him, one on his right and one on his left.

²⁹The people passing by shouted abuse, shaking their heads in mockery. "Ha! Look at you now!" they yelled at him. "You said you were going to destroy the Temple and rebuild it in three days. ³⁰Well then, save yourself and come down from the cross!"

³¹The leading priests and teachers of religious law also mocked Jesus. "He saved others," they scoffed, "but he can't save himself! ³²Let this Messiah, this King of Israel, come down from the cross so we can see it

15:15 to pacify the crowd: To protect his job, Pilate ordered a completely innocent man to be crucified. • He ordered Jesus flogged: Flogging was preliminary to crucifixion. It was done with leather thongs tipped with metal, stone, or bone. This laceration of the flesh could itself bring death. Jesus' prediction in 10:34 was now being fulfilled.

15:16-41 The crucifixion account is one of the most historically certain accounts of ancient history. Only the most naive would credit the early church with creating a story in which the object of their faith was crucified, for this story was and still is an offense to Jews and absurd nonsense to Gentiles (1 Cor 1:23).

15:16 The entire regiment (literally cohort, one-tenth of a legion) was about 600 men. Those called out were probably all the soldiers currently on duty in the Praetorium.

15:17 a purple robe: Purple cloth, made with an expensive dye, was worn by royalty and other wealthy individuals (Luke 16:19; 1 Maccabees 10:20, 62; 11:58). This robe may have been a centurion's out-of-service robe.

15:18 King of the Jews: The formal charge (15:2) for which Jesus was convicted (15:26).

15:21-22 After they left the walled city of Jerusalem, Jesus' strength apparently failed. The Roman soldiers forced Simon . . . from Cyrene in northern Africa to carry Jesus' cross (cp. Matt 5:41). Normally, a crucifixion victim was forced to carry the horizontal crossbeam (the patibulum) of his own cross to the place of execution. The vertical post (the staculum) was sometimes left permanently in the ground as a warning and deterrent (like a hangman's scaffold in a public square). • Simon was the father of Alexander and Rufus, who were probably known to Mark's readers (cp. Rom 16:13). • Golgotha is Aramaic, meaning Place of the Skull. In the Latin Vulgate, "skull" is calvariae ("Calvary"). In Jesus' day, Golgotha lay outside the walled city of Jerusalem (John 19:20; see Matt 27:32; Heb 13:12). When Herod Antipas later enlarged the city with the "third wall," Golgotha was enclosed.

15:23 Whether Jesus was offered a drink of wine drugged with myrrh in kindness (Prov 31:6) or in mockery is uncertain. Jesus refused the drink, for he had committed himself to drinking the cup that God had given him (10:38-39; 14:36). • Myrrh has been used since before Jesus' time to treat wounds and infections and for digestive ailments.

15:24 Crucifixion goes back to the Medes and Persians in the 600s bc. It spread to the eastern Mediterranean world in the 300s bc through Alexander the Great and became the dominant form of capital punishment in the Roman empire until AD 337, when it was banned by Constantine. It was slow, shameful, and torturous. The victim sometimes lived for days, and crows and dogs would feed on the victims even before they died. A person could be fixed to the cross by ropes or, as with Jesus (Luke 24:39; John 20:25, 27; see Col 2:14), by nails between the bones of the victim's wrists. To prevent premature death by asphyxiation, a footrest or a seat was often placed on the vertical beam. • All four Gospels report that the soldiers divided his clothes among themselves. • threw dice: Literally cast lots. See Ps 22:18.

15:25 Mark records Jesus' crucifixion as occurring at the third hour, or nine o'clock in the morning. John 19:14 gives the time as around the sixth hour, or noon. These are rough estimates of time, and events in the later morning were typically described as occurring around either the third (Matt 20:3; Acts 2:15) or sixth hour (15:33; Matt 20:5; 27:45; Luke 23:44; John 4:6; 19:14; Acts 10:9).

15:26 Although the title King of the Jews was intended to mock Jesus, it was accurate and meaningful for Mark.

15:27 Two revolutionaries: Or Two criminals. Jesus, the most important victim, was placed in the center. • Some manuscripts add v 28, And the Scripture was fulfilled that said, "He was counted among those who were rebels." See Isa 53:12; also cp. Luke 22:37.

15:29-32 Jesus was being mocked and abused by the people passing by, the religious leaders, and the revolutionaries. • The people passing by shouted abuse (literally blasphemed), wagged their heads in contempt (see Lam 2:15), and believe him!" Even the men who were crucified with Jesus ridiculed him.

The Death of Jesus

Mark 15:33-41 // Matt 27:45-56 // Luke 23:44-49 // John 19:28-30

³³At noon, darkness fell across the whole land until three o'clock. ³⁴Then at three o'clock Jesus called out with a loud voice, "Eloi, Eloi, lemasabachthani?" which means

"My God, my God, why have you abandoned me?"

³⁵Some of the bystanders misunderstood and thought he was calling for the prophet Elijah. ³⁶One of them ran and filled a sponge with sour wine, holding it up to him on a reed stick so he could drink. "Wait!" he said. "Let's see whether Elijah comes to take him down!"

³⁷Then Jesus uttered another loud cry

Pontius Pilate (15:1-15, 43-45)

Pontius Pilate was the Roman governor of Judea from AD 26 to 36, including the time of Jesus' death in AD 30 or 33. Pilate gave the official order for Jesus to be crucified.

As the governor of Judea, Pilate was in control of all the Roman occupation forces, he appointed the Jewish high priests, and was in control of the Temple and its funds. He was the only one who had the authority to execute criminals (see John 18:31), so the Jewish authorities were compelled to bring charges before Pilate in order to see Jesus executed (15:1).

Pilate was sometimes abusive as governor. He appropriated Temple funds to construct a thirty-five-mile aqueduct for Jerusalem, and provoked a major protest. In response, Pilate had soldiers infiltrate the crowds in disguise and beat the offenders to death with clubs (Josephus, War 2.9.4; Antiquities 18.3.2). Another time, Pilate murdered some Galileans "as they were offering sacrifices at the Temple" (Luke 13:1); this incident might have estranged him from Herod Antipas (see "Herod Antipas" at 6:14-29, p. 1659). Pilate also tried to bring images of Caesar into Jerusalem for worship. Later (AD 36), Pilate slaughtered pilgrims who followed a Samaritan false prophet, an event that led to his dismissal by Tiberius in the same year.

Each Gospel records Pilate's role in the death of Jesus (15:1; Matt 27:2; Luke 23:1; John 18:29; see also Acts 3:13; 4:27; 13:28; 1 Tim 6:13). After interrogating Jesus, he was convinced that Jesus had done nothing deserving of death, so he tried to return the case to the Jewish authorities. When they resisted, he tried to pass Jesus to Herod Antipas for judgment—but he, too, refused the case. Pilate finally tried appealing to a traditional Roman custom of freeing a prisoner on Passover. Meanwhile, his wife had been deeply troubled by a dream about "that innocent man" (Matt 27:19). But the clamor of the crowd became threatening, and the Jewish leaders began insinuating that Pilate was not taking Jesus' threat to Rome seriously. Pilate yielded to Jewish pressure. He ordered that Jesus be whipped and then crucified, with the title "King of the Jews" posted on a sign over his head—but only after strenuously objecting and declaring himself to be innocent of the guilt of such an unjust death (15:2-15; Matt 27:11-26; Luke 23:2-25; John 18:29-19:22). Pilate's sympathy for Jesus stands as a testimony that Jesus posed no threat to the Roman government but only to the Jewish leadership.

Shortly after Jesus' death, Pilate gave special permission to Joseph of Arimathea to take the body of Jesus from the cross and bury it (15:42-46; Matt 27:57-61; Luke 23:50-53; John 19:38-42). He also gave permission to the Jewish authorities to seal the tomb, to make sure no one would steal the body or make false claims about Jesus coming back to life (Matt 27:62-65).

Little is known of Pilate after his dismissal in AD 36; Eusebius reports that Pilate committed suicide during the reign of Caligula, AD 37-41 (Eusebius, Church History 2.7).

and ridiculed his claim that he would destroy the Temple (see 14:58).

15:32 The two men who were crucified with Jesus also mocked him. One might expect compassion from those suffering a similar cruel fate (cp. Luke 23:39-43).

15:33 At noon (literally the sixth hour) darkness came over the whole land until three o'clock (literally the ninth hour). The whole land probably means all of Judah. The darkness was both literal and symbolic—it revealed the sinister nature of what was happening and was a taste of the judgment that Jesus predicted would come upon Israel (see 13:1-31; 14:58; 15:29).

15:34 Eloi, Eloi . . . why have you abandoned me? Jesus' loud cry is reported in its original Aramaic and then translated for Greek readers. • "My God, my God, why have you abandoned me?" Jesus quotes Ps 22:1. This saying is best interpreted in light of 14:27; Ps

22:1-31; Isa 53:10; 2 Cor 5:21; and Gal 3:13. Jesus' divine purpose in becoming a ransom for many (10:45) was now being realized.

15:35-36 The Aramaic term Eloi and its Hebrew equivalent Eli (Matt 27:46) sound sufficiently close to "Elijah" that some bystanders thought that Jesus was calling out for the prophet Elijah to rescue him (see Mal 4:5).

15:37 The death of Jesus, like the crucifixion, is told with stark simplicity.

and breathed his last. ³⁸And the curtain in the sanctuary of the Temple was torn in two, from top to bottom.

³⁹When the Roman officer who stood facing him saw how he had died, he exclaimed, "This man truly was the Son of God!"

⁴⁰Some women were there, watching from a distance, including Mary Magdalene, Mary (the mother of James the younger and of Joseph), and Salome. ⁴¹They had been followers of Jesus and had cared for him while he was in Galilee. Many other women who had come with him to Jerusalem were also there.

The Burial of Jesus

Mark 15:42-47 // Matt 27:57-61 // Luke 23:50-56 // John 19:38-42

⁴²This all happened on Friday, the day of preparation, the day before the Sabbath. As evening approached, ⁴³Joseph of Arimathea took a risk and went to Pilate and asked for Jesus' body. (Joseph was an honored member of the high council, and he was waiting for the Kingdom of God to come.) ⁴⁴Pilate couldn't believe that Jesus was already dead, so he called for the Roman officer and asked if he had died yet. ⁴⁵The officer confirmed that Jesus was dead, so Pilate told Joseph he could have the body. ⁴⁶Joseph bought a long sheet of linen cloth. Then he took Jesus' body down from the cross, wrapped it in the cloth, and laid it in a tomb that had been carved out of the ^brock. Then he rolled a stone in front of the entrance. ⁴⁷Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of Joseph saw where Jesus' body was laid.

Jesus Is Raised from the Dead

Mark 16:1-8 // Matt 28:1-8a // Luke 24:1-12 // John 20:1-10

16 Saturday evening, when the Sabbath ended, Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James, and Salome went out and purchased burial spices so they could anoint Jesus' body. ²Very early on Sunday morning, just at sunrise, they went to the tomb. ³On the way they were asking each other, "Who will roll away the stone for us from the entrance to the tomb?" ⁴But as they arrived, they looked up and saw that the stone, which was very large, had already been rolled aside.

If it was the former, the tearing (like the darkness, 15:33) was visible to people; it would indicate that Jesus' prediction of the sanctuary's destruction (14:58; 15:29) was being fulfilled spiritually (see Rom 9–11) but awaited physical fulfillment in AD 70. If it was the interior curtain that tore, it was probably a sign that, just as the heavens were split for Jesus to reveal his direct access to God (see note on 1:10), his death now extended this access to his followers (see Heb 6:19-20; 9:3-14; 10:19-20).

15:39 the Roman officer: Literally the centurion; similarly in 15:44-45. The Latin word centurio refers to an officer in charge of 100 men. • who stood facing him: Some manuscripts add heard his cry and. • Jesus as the Son of God was announced by God (1:11; 9:7), by demons (1:24, 34; 3:11; 5:7), by Mark (1:1), by Jesus himself (12:6; 13:32; 14:61-62), and now by a Gentile officer.

15:40-41 These women had supplied some of Jesus' economic needs (see Luke 8:2-3). They were also present at the burial (15:47) and the empty tomb (16:1-8) and would be the first witnesses of Jesus' resurrection. • Mary Magdalene, from the village of Magdala near the shore of the Sea of Galilee, was a key figure in the resurrection accounts (16:1, 9; Matt 28:1; Luke 24:10; John 20:1, 11-18). • Mary (the mother of James the younger): This James might have been James the son of Alphaeus (3:18). See "Women Named Mary" at Matt 27:55-56, p. 1640. • Salome is mentioned only here and in 16:1. • Joseph: Greek Joses; also in 15:47. See Matt 27:56.

15:42 This all happened on Friday, the day of preparation: Literally It was the day of preparation.

15:43-45 Joseph of Arimathea (possibly from the village of Ramathaim, twenty miles northwest of Jerusalem) was an honored member of the high council (Greek the Sanhedrin) and a secret disciple of Jesus who was waiting for the Kingdom of God to come (see Matt 27:57; Luke 23:50-51; John 19:38). He courageously requested the body of Jesus from Pilate for burial. Since he was a member of the high council and was not known to be Jesus' disciple, it served Rome's purposes to grant his request: It would satisfy Jewish concerns about leaving the dead exposed after sunset (Deut 21:22-23), and Jesus' disciples would not receive the body.

15:46 Joseph prepared Jesus' body for burial and laid it in his own tomb (see Matt 27:60; see illustration, p. 1813).

16:1 At the end of the Sabbath at sunset, the shops reopened and the women were able to buy burial spices to anoint Jesus' body (16:1). Their purpose was not to embalm the body, but to alleviate the stench that a decaying body would create. • The women were clearly not anticipating Jesus' resurrection. Even the empty tomb would fail to convince them that Jesus had been raised from the dead (John 20:2, 11-15).

16:2 on Sunday morning: Literally on the first day of the week; also in 16:9.

16:3-4 The women wondered how the large stone sealing the tomb could be removed (see illustration, p. 1813). God had already rolled the stone away to let the women and disciples in.

16:6 Jesus of Nazareth: Or Jesus the Nazarene.

16:7 The angel's message for the disciples repeated Jesus' prediction and promise (14:28). The disciples' desertion and denial would be forgiven and their apostolic commission restored.

¹²Afterward he appeared in a different form to two of his followers who were walking from Jerusalem into the country. ¹³They rushed back to tell the others, but no one believed them.

¹⁴Still later he appeared to the eleven disciples as they were eating together. He rebuked them for their stubborn unbelief because they refused to believe those who had seen him after he had been raised from the dead.

¹⁵And then he told them, "Go into all the world and preach the Good News to everyone. ¹⁶Anyone who believes and is baptized will be saved. But anyone who refuses to believe will be condemned. ¹⁷These miraculous signs will accompany those who believe: They will cast out demons in my name, and they will speak in new languages. ¹⁸They will be able to handle snakes with safety, and if they drink anything poisonous, it won't hurt them. They will be able to place their hands on the sick, and they will be healed."

¹⁹When the Lord Jesus had finished talking with them, he was taken up into heaven and sat down in the place of honor at God's right hand. ²⁰And the disciples went everywhere and preached, and the Lord worked through them, confirming what they said by many miraculous signs.

16:8 The account ends with the women fleeing the tomb in bewilderment.

• said nothing to anyone: This can be understood positively (they were not distracted from their commission to tell the disciples, 16:7; cp. Luke 10:4; 2 Kgs 4:29) or negatively (they failed to deliver the message). Cp. Luke 24:5-11; John 20:1-2, 18. • The most reliable early manuscripts of the Gospel of Mark end at v 8. Other manuscripts include various endings to the Gospel. A few include both the "shorter ending" and the "longer ending." The majority of manuscripts include the "longer ending" immediately after v 8.

16:9-20 Nearly all scholars agree that Mark did not write the "shorter" and "longer" endings. There are clear differences in their style, vocabulary, and theology. Also, the best two available Greek manuscripts (Codex Sinaiticus and Codex Vaticanus) lack these endings. However, there is reason to doubt that Mark intended to end his Gospel at

16:8: (1) Mark emphasizes the fulfillment of Jesus' predictions throughout his Gospel, and if the Gospel ended with 16:8, there would be no reference to the resurrection appearance(s) of Jesus; (2) all the other Gospels contain accounts of Jesus' appearances to the women and the disciples; (3) early readers of Mark evidently did not think the book could have ended with 16:8, because they wrote these endings; (4) there is no convincing explanation as to why Mark would have wanted to end his Gospel at 16:8 (all such explanations sound like modern existential literary interpretations that revel in paradox, very unlike the way a first-century Christian author would have thought); (5) it is strange for a Gospel to begin with a bold proclamation that Jesus is the Messiah (1:1) and end with the women's fear; (6) it would be unique for an ancient Greek book to end with gar ("because") as the last word—no other example of this has been found; and

(7) 16:7 raises the expectation that the disciples will meet Jesus in Galilee—if 16:8 was the original ending of Mark, it is the only unfulfilled prediction in the Gospel. Many scholars conclude that the original ending was accidentally torn off and lost, or was never finished.

16:14 One early manuscript adds: And they excused themselves, saying, "This age of lawlessness and unbelief is under Satan, who does not permit God's truth and power to conquer the evil [unclean] spirits. Therefore, reveal your justice now." This is what they said to Christ. And Christ replied to them, "The period of years of Satan's power has been fulfilled, but other dreadful things will happen soon. And I was handed over to death for those who have sinned, so that they may return to the truth and sin no more, and so they may inherit the spiritual, incorruptible, and righteous glory in heaven."

16:17 Or new tongues; some manuscripts do not include new.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO Luke

Luke describes the coming of Jesus as good news for the entire world—for people of every race, age, gender, ethnic group, and social position. With John the Baptist as his prophetic forerunner, Jesus came as the Son of God and as the Messiah, the King descended from David who defeats Satan and brings salvation and healing. As Jesus served and taught the people and proclaimed good news, the religious leaders opposed him. Jesus went to Jerusalem as the suffering servant, proclaimed judgment on the nation before being executed as a criminal, then rose from the dead to fulfill God's plan and launch his Spirit-driven mission to all the world. The risen Jesus, the Jewish Messiah, is the Savior of the whole world.

SETTING

Luke was written in the context of the growing conflict between the church and the synagogue in the mid-to-late first century AD. The early church did not view itself as a new religion, but as the fulfillment and completion of Judaism. The promises made to the Jews in the Hebrew Scriptures (the OT) were fulfilled through the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus Christ, and continued to be fulfilled through the missionary movement of the early church. During this time, more and more Gentiles (non-Jews) came into the church, while many Jews rejected the Good News. Division grew between those who believed that Jesus was the Messiah and those that denied this claim.

◆ Key Places in the Gospel of Luke. Luke begins with an account of John the Baptist's birth in the hill country of JUDEA (1:5-25, 39-66) and of Jesus' birth in BETHLEHEM (1:26-38; 2:1-40). Then, the narrative describes John's ministry in the wilderness of JUDEA and around the JORDAN RIVER (3:1-20), Jesus' baptism and temptation in the same region (3:21-4:13), his ministry in GALILEE (4:14-9:50), his journey to JERUSALEM (9:51-19:44; see map, p. 1747), the climax of Jesus' ministry in Judea (19:45-22:38), and his death and resurrection in Jerusalem (22:39-24:34). • The border on the map shows the extent of Herod the Great's kingdom, which was divided at his death in 4 BC (see map caption, p. 1572).

The pressing question in this conflict became, Who are the true people of God? Are they the church, made up of Jews and Gentiles who believe that Jesus is the Messiah? Or are they the Jews who reject Jesus as a false messiah? Luke addresses this question and demonstrates that Jesus is indeed the Messiah who calls all people, Jew and Gentile, to put their faith in him.

SUMMARY

Luke's Gospel begins with a formal prologue, written in the style of the fine Greco-Roman writers of Luke's day (1:1-4). This prologue demonstrates the author's literary skills and sets out the purpose of his work: to write a reliable historical account of the life of Jesus that would confirm the truth of the Christian message.

After this formal literary introduction, the writing style changes dramatically. Luke describes Jesus' birth (1:5-2:51) in a Jewish manner reminiscent of the Greek OT. This birth narrative clearly shows the Jewish roots of the gospel message and introduces themes that are developed in the rest of Luke and Acts.

In common with Matthew and Mark, Luke introduces Jesus' public ministry with accounts of John the Baptist (3:1-20), Jesus' baptism (3:21-22), Jesus' temptation (4:1-13), and descriptions of his ministry in and around Galilee (4:14-9:50). Jesus proclaimed the Kingdom of God, taught with authority, healed the sick, and cast out demons, demonstrating the authority of the Kingdom in his words and actions. As in Matthew and Mark, the high point of Jesus' Galilean ministry was Peter's confession that Jesus is the Messiah, followed by Jesus' explanation that the Messiah must suffer and die in Jerusalem (9:18-22). Jesus then headed toward Jerusalem to fulfill this mission (9:51-19:44). In this travel narrative—the most distinctive structural feature of Luke's Gospel—the author recounts many of Jesus' beloved stories and parables: the Good Samaritan, the Prodigal Son, the Rich Man and Lazarus, the story of Mary and Martha, and the Zacchaeus episode. The central theme of this section is God's love for the lost and Jesus' ministry to sinners, poor people, and outcasts. The theme of the entire Gospel is stated at the end of the Zacchaeus episode: "The Son of Man came to seek and save those who are lost" (19:10).

The climax of the narrative is Jesus' arrest, trial, and crucifixion (22:1-23:56). The central theme of the crucifixion is Jesus' innocence. Jesus is portrayed as the righteous suffering servant of the Lord (see Isa 52:13-53:12). At Jesus' death, the Roman officer at the foot of the cross cried out, "Surely this man was innocent" (23:47).

The narrative resolves with Jesus' resurrection (24:1-12). Luke's most distinctive contribution here is the account of the disciples on the road to Emmaus (24:13-35). As he walked with two discouraged disciples who did not recognize him, Jesus taught them that his death was not a failure, but a fulfillment of OT promises. All of Scripture anticipated this great salvation event (24:25-27). The narrative ends with a brief account of the ascension (24:50-53), which is described more fully in the book of Acts (Acts 1:1-11).

Structurally, Luke follows Mark's basic outline, with a Galilean ministry followed by a journey to Jerusalem and the climax of Jesus' ministry there. The main differences are: (1) Like Matthew, Luke begins with a birth narrative, which serves as a thematic introduction to the work (chs 1-2); (2) Luke omits one major section of Mark's account of the Galilean ministry, sometime called his "great omission" (Mark 6:45-8:26); and (3) Luke expands Mark's account of the journey to Jerusalem from a single chapter (Mark 10) to ten chapters (9:51-19:44) and includes here a great deal of Jesus' teaching and his ministry to outcasts in Israel.

LUKE AS LITERATURE

Luke's Gospel must be read and interpreted alongside its companion volume, the book of Acts. Luke and Acts are two volumes of a single work written by the same author (Luke). The two are a literary and theological unity—when Luke wrote his Gospel, he already had the writing of Acts in mind. Themes introduced in the Gospel, such as the salvation of the Gentiles, reach their narrative completion in the book of Acts. Scholars refer to this single two-volume work as "Luke-Acts."

Luke's purpose in writing gives his Gospel, like the other three Gospels, a unique perspective and emphasis that can best be understood by reading Luke's Gospel as a distinct account of Christ's life. However, it can also be beneficial to compare the accounts in the different Gospels. See also the harmony of the Gospels, p. 1567.

AUTHORSHIP

Though all of the Gospels are, strictly speaking, anonymous (their authors do not name themselves), the author of Luke-Acts was Luke, a physician and sometime companion of the apostle Paul. In several first-person plural passages in Acts (the "we" sections), the author describes himself as a participant in Paul's missionary activities (Acts 16:10-17, 20:5-17, 21:1-18, 27:1-28:16). Luke was a Gentile (Col 4:11-14), and one of his central themes is that God's salvation is for Gentiles as well as for Jews.

Luke evidently came to faith in Christ through the ministry of the apostle Paul (see "Luke" at Acts 16:10, p. 1861). Even though he was not present during the earthly ministry of Jesus, he was a careful and astute historian. He drew on eyewitness accounts and on written and oral sources as he thoroughly investigated the events he reported. His purpose was to write so that "you can be certain of the truth of everything you were taught" (1:4).

OCCASION AND PLACE OF WRITING

The specific place of writing is uncertain, but Rome, Ephesus, Caesarea, and Achaia (southern Greece) have all been suggested. The date is also uncertain. The two most common theories are an earlier date, AD 59–63, and a later date, AD 70–90. The earlier date is suggested by the ending of Acts, with Paul alive and in prison in Rome for two years (beginning about AD 60). If the Gospel was written before Acts, a date shortly before or during this imprisonment is likely (AD 59–63). A later date, after AD 70, has been proposed by those who believe that Luke used Mark's Gospel as a source and that Mark was written in the late 60s, just before the Jewish war of AD 66–70 (see Mark 13:14).

RECIPIENTS

Luke addressed his work to a man named Theophilus ("one who loves God"), most likely a patron who sponsored the expensive task of researching and writing a book of this length. Theophilus might have been a questioning unbeliever, but more likely he was a believer who desired more instruction concerning the origin of the Christian faith. The individual address is like a dedication. Luke–Acts is also intended for a larger Christian audience, one made up primarily of Gentile Christians, but with some Jewish Christians as well. These believers were seeking confirmation and assurance that God's plan of salvation was continuing, despite the rejection of Jesus by many of the Jews. Luke was affirming that the church, made up of both Jews and Gentiles who have accepted Jesus as the Messiah, represents the true people of God in the present age.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

The narrative of Luke–Acts positively affirms (1) that Jesus is the Messiah promised in the OT Scriptures; (2) that his death on the cross did not negate this claim, because the Messiah's death and resurrection were predicted in Scripture all along (24:26, 46); (3) that the mission to the Gentiles was initiated by the Spirit of God, was predicted in Scripture, and was part of God's purpose of bringing salvation to the whole world in the last days; and (4) that the Jews and Gentiles who make up the church are the people of God. The central theme of Luke's Gospel is that God's salvation, promised in the Scriptures, was fulfilled in the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus Christ.

A Historical Message. More than any other Gospel writer, Luke affirms that the story of Jesus is historical, and he assures his readers that the gospel message is authentic. He emphasizes that his account is based on reliable eyewitness testimony (1:1–4) and meticulously dates Jesus' ministry with reference to the rulers of his day (3:1–2).

Portrait of Jesus. Luke's portrait of Jesus reflects a theme of promise and fulfillment. Jesus is introduced as the promised Savior, the Messiah descended from King David. He was born in Bethlehem, the city of David, and will reign forever on David's throne (1:32–33; 2:4, 11). Jesus did not accomplish salvation through military power and conquest, but by suffering the fate of the prophets. He died as the servant of the Lord, fulfilling the promises of the OT. Through his death and resurrection, Jesus became the Savior of the world (2:11; Acts 2:36; 10:36). His servants now take this message of salvation to the ends of the earth.

Salvation for Outsiders. Luke emphasizes salvation for all who believe, especially with reference to the outsiders of Israel: the poor, sinners, despised Samaritans, women, and Gentiles.

Somehow of all the gospel writers one would have liked to meet Luke best of all, for this Gentile doctor who had the tremendous vision of the infinite sweep of the love of God must have been a lovely soul.

William Barclay
The Gospel of Luke, p. 7

(1) The poor. The Kingdom of God brings a great reversal of fortunes. God exalts the poor and the humble, and he will humble the rich and the arrogant (1:51-55; 16:19-31). The gospel is good news for the poor and oppressed (4:18) because they most recognize their need of God (6:20-21). It is impossible for the rich to enter the Kingdom when they trust in their riches instead of in God (12:13-21; 18:18-30).

(2) Sinners. God's love for the lost is revealed most clearly in Jesus' association with sinners and tax collectors. He called a despised tax collector, Levi, to be his disciple. As the great physician, Jesus came to heal the "sick" (sinners), not the "healthy" (the self-righteous; 5:27-32). He commended an immoral woman who anointed his feet because she recognized God's forgiveness and loved greatly in response (7:36-50). He rebuked the Pharisees and teachers of religious law for their self-righteousness, hypocrisy, and lack of compassion. The repentant tax collector in the Temple received forgiveness, while the self-righteous Pharisee gained nothing (18:9-14). Even the chief tax collector Zacchaeus was forgiven when he repented and turned to God (19:1-10). Jesus forgave and offered a place in paradise to the repentant criminal on the cross (23:39-43). Jesus' parables express this same theme—for example, the father forgave his prodigal son when he returned to him (15:11-32). The message throughout is that the coming of God's Kingdom brings forgiveness to all who repent and believe.

(3) Samaritans. The Samaritans were despised outsiders, but in Luke, Jesus commends a Samaritan for his gratitude to God when he was healed of leprosy (17:11-19), and Jesus told the parable of the Good Samaritan, in which a despised Samaritan was the only true neighbor to a wounded Jew (10:29-37). God's salvation does not depend on ethnic identity or social status, but on a repentant heart and a life of love for God and others.

(4) Women. In first-century culture, women were viewed as inferiors, but Jesus elevated women to a position of dignity in the Kingdom of God. Luke's Gospel gives special prominence to women, and mentions thirteen of them who are not found in the other Gospels. The birth narrative is told from the perspective of women (Mary and Elizabeth). Luke alone mentions the women who financially supported Jesus (8:1-3). In his story of Mary and Martha, Mary is commended for learning as a disciple at Jesus' feet (10:38-42).

(5) Gentiles. The ultimate outsiders were the Gentiles, and Luke emphasizes that God's salvation extends even to them. Though arising within Israel, Jesus would be "a light to reveal God to the nations" (2:32), and "all people will see the salvation sent from God" (3:4-6; Isa 40:5). While Matthew's genealogy (Matt 1:1-17) emphasizes Jesus' Jewish ancestry by beginning with Abraham, the father of the Israelites, Luke's genealogy goes all the way back to Adam, the father of the entire human race (3:23-38). In his sermon at Nazareth, Jesus declared that God had always demonstrated grace toward the Gentiles (4:24-27). Luke's message is that God loves all people everywhere and desires that all who are lost should be found (15:1-32; 19:10).

Rejection by Many in Israel. The dark side of this inclusion of the Gentiles and other outsiders is that Jesus' message was rejected by many in Israel. At Nazareth, when he announced that God had blessed Gentiles in the past, the people rose up in anger to kill him (4:28-30).

This episode initiated the rejection of Jesus by his own people and anticipated the Jewish opposition to the church (as recounted in Acts). Jerusalem rejected its Messiah and so stood under God's judgment (13:33-35; 19:41-44), and this pattern continues in Acts. While many in Israel believed the gospel, still more rejected it. Israel was divided, and the gospel went out to the Gentiles. Luke emphasizes that this did not negate the gospel message; Israel's rejection of the gospel was predicted in the OT Scriptures and was a continuation of Israel's history of stubbornness and hard-heartedness (11:29-32, 47-51; 13:34-35; 19:41-44; 23:27-31; Acts 13:46; 28:25-28; see also Rom 9-11).

1. INTRODUCTION (1:1-4)

1 Many people have set out to write accounts about the events that have been fulfilled among us. ²They used the eyewitness reports circulating among us from the early disciples. ³Having carefully investigated everything from the beginning, I also have decided to write an accurate account for you, most honorable Theophilus, ⁴so you can be certain of the truth of everything you were taught.

2. THE BIRTH OF THE SAVIOR (1:5-2:52)

Anticipating the Births of Jesus and John (1:5-56)

The Birth of John the Baptist Foretold

⁵When Herod was king of Judea, there was a Jewish priest named Zechariah. He was a member of the priestly order of Abijah, and his wife, Elizabeth, was also from the priestly line of Aaron. ⁶Zechariah and Elizabeth were righteous in God's eyes, careful to obey all of the Lord's commandments and regulations. ⁷They had no children because Elizabeth was unable to conceive, and they were both very old.

⁸One day Zechariah was serving God in the Temple, for his order was on duty that week. ⁹As was the custom of the priests, he was chosen by lot to enter the sanctuary of the Lord and burn incense. ¹⁰While the incense was being burned, a great crowd stood outside, praying.

¹¹While Zechariah was in the sanctuary, an angel of the Lord appeared to him, standing to the right of the incense altar.

1:1-4 Luke begins his Gospel with a formal preface in the style of the best Greek writers of his day. These four verses are some of the finest literary Greek in the NT.

1:1 Many people have set out to write accounts: Luke was not the first to put the history of Jesus into written form. Most scholars believe that Luke used Mark's Gospel and other written and oral sources in his writing. • fulfilled: This word can simply mean "accomplished," but Luke is thinking of Jesus' fulfillment of OT promises (4:21; 24:44).

1:2 from the early disciples: Literally from those who from the beginning were servants of the word.

1:3 As a good historian, Luke carefully investigated everything in the history of Jesus from the beginning in order to present a reliable historical account. • an accurate account: Some versions translate this phrase "in consecutive order," but it refers to an orderly or carefully written account, not to chronological sequence. • The name Theophilus means "loved by God" or "one who loves God"; it is probably a personal name, not a descriptive name. Different theories identify him as (1) an influential unbeliever, (2) a new convert needing instruction, (3) the judge overseeing Paul's trial (the book of Acts ends with Paul imprisoned in Rome, awaiting trial), or (4) the patron who sponsored Luke's writing project. The last possibility is the most likely, as it was common to dedicate a literary work to a financial patron and the Greek word translated most honorable indicates someone of high social status.

1:5-2:52 Luke's first two chapters give an account of Jesus' birth and introduce key themes that will appear later in Luke-Acts. The announcements and birth stories for Jesus and John the Baptist run side by side, showing their parallel roles in bringing God's salvation. At each point, Jesus is shown to be greater. John is the forerunner announcing Jesus' coming; Jesus is the Savior.

1:5 Herod was king of Judea: See "Herod the Great" at Matt 2:1-20, p. 1578. • a Jewish priest named Zechariah: The priests were descendants of Aaron, Moses' brother (Exod 28:1). • the priestly order of Abijah: See note on 1:8-9; see also 1 Chr 24:10. • Elizabeth was also from the priestly line of Aaron: It was considered especially pious for a priest to marry a woman from a priestly family.

1:7 Elizabeth was unable to conceive:

Childbearing was viewed as the highest calling for a woman, and infertility brought social stigma and shame. God miraculously intervened in the lives of various OT women so they could bear children (Gen 18:10-12; 25:21; 30:22-23; Judg 13; 1 Sam 1).

1:8-9 his order was on duty that week . . . he was chosen by lot: It was common in OT times to cast lots (similar to throwing dice) to determine God's will (Prov 16:33; 1 Chr 26:13-16; Neh 11:1; Jon 1:7). There were twenty-four orders of priests (1 Chr 24:1-19) that took turns in the Temple, and lots were cast to determine which priest would serve in the sanctuary. There were a large number of priests, so this privilege might come only once in a priest's lifetime. The angel appeared at the most sacred moment of Zechariah's life. • to enter the sanctuary of the Lord and burn incense: See "Herod's Temple" at John 8:20, p. 1787. Luke uses the word here translated sanctuary (Greek naos) for the Temple building, not the whole Temple grounds, which he calls hieron (2:27). The Temple building included the Holy Place and the Most Holy Place (see Heb 9:1-5; see also illustration, p. 583). The priests burned incense twice a day in the Holy Place.

¹²Zechariah was shaken and overwhelmed with fear when he saw him. ¹³But the angel said, "Don't be afraid, Zechariah! God has heard your prayer. Your wife, Elizabeth, will give you a son, and you are to name him John. ¹⁴You will have great joy and gladness, and many will rejoice at his birth, ¹⁵for he will be great in the eyes of the Lord. He must never touch wine or other alcoholic drinks. He will be filled with the Holy Spirit, even before his birth. ¹⁶And he will turn many Israelites to the Lord their God. ¹⁷He will be a man with the spirit and power of Elijah. He will prepare the people for the coming of the Lord. He will turn the hearts of the fathers to their children, and he will cause those who are rebellious to accept the wisdom of the godly."

¹⁹Then the angel said, "I am Gabriel! I stand in the very presence of God. It was he who sent me to bring you this good news! ²⁰But now, since you didn't believe what I said, you will be silent and unable to speak until the child is born. For my words will certainly be fulfilled at the proper time."

²¹Meanwhile, the people were waiting for Zechariah to come out of the sanctuary, wondering why he was taking so long. ²²When he finally did come out, he couldn't speak to them. Then they realized from his gestures and his silence that he must have seen a vision in the sanctuary.

²³When Zechariah's week of ^aservice in the Temple was over, he returned home. ²⁴Soon afterward his wife, Elizabeth, became pregnant and went into seclusion for five months. ²⁵"How kind the Lord is!" she exclaimed. "He has taken away my disgrace of having no children."

The Birth of Jesus Foretold

²⁶In the sixth month of Elizabeth's pregnancy, God sent the angel Gabriel to Nazareth, a village in Galilee, ²⁷to a virgin named Mary. She was engaged to be married to a man named Joseph, a descendant of King David. ²⁸Gabriel appeared to her and said, "Greetings, favored woman! The Lord is with you!"

²⁹Confused and disturbed, Mary tried to think what the angel could mean. ³⁰"Don't be afraid, Mary," the angel told her, "for you have found favor with God! ³¹You will conceive and give birth to a son, and you will name him Jesus. ³²He will be very great and will be called the Son of the Most High. The Lord God will give him the throne of his ancestor David. ³³And he will reign over Israel forever; his Kingdom will never end!"

³⁴Mary asked the angel, "But how can this happen? I am a virgin."

³⁵The angel replied, "The Holy Spirit will come upon you, and the power of the Most High will overshadow you. So the baby to be born will be holy, and he will be called

1:12-13 Zechariah was shaken and overwhelmed with fear: Fear and awe are common reactions when someone sees an angel or experiences the presence of God (Judg 6:22-23; 13:22; Isa 6:5). The person is often reassured by a saying such as Don't be afraid. • you are to name him John: John means "the Lord has shown favor." This favor came to Elizabeth and Zechariah through their son and to the Israelite nation through the Messiah, whose coming John would announce.

1:15 He must never touch wine or other alcoholic drinks: In the OT, abstaining from alcohol was part of the Nazirite vow of special dedication to God (see Num 6:1-21). This vow was usually temporary (see Acts 18:18; 21:23, 26); for some individuals such as Samson (Judg 13:4-7), Samuel (cp. 1 Sam 1:11), and John the Baptist, it was a lifelong commitment. • filled with the Holy Spirit, even before his birth (or even from birth): See 1:41, 44.

1:17 He will be a man with the spirit and power of Elijah: The prophet Malachi predicted that God would send Elijah before the time of God's salvation (see Mal 3:1; 4:5-6). John fulfilled this role by preparing the way for the Lord's coming. The salvation that John announced and Jesus accomplished can reconcile broken families.

1:19 I am Gabriel! Two angels are mentioned in Scripture: Gabriel (Dan 8:16; 9:21) and Michael (Dan 10:13; 12:1; Jude 1:9; Rev 12:7).

1:20 now . . . you will be silent and unable to speak: This discipline for Zechariah's lack of faith was also a sign that confirmed the prophecy. The Greek word translated silent in 1:22 can also mean "deaf" (7:22; cp. 1:62). • Zechariah is contrasted with Mary, who responded with faith (1:38).

1:24 went into seclusion for five months: The reason for this seclusion is unknown and does not seem related to any OT custom or command. Perhaps it was a spiritual retreat to honor God for answered prayer.

1:26 Nazareth, a village in Galilee, was an insignificant, disreputable little village southwest of the Sea of Galilee

(see John 1:46).

1:27 engaged to be married: In Jewish culture, marriages were arranged, and engagement was a formal legal contract between two families. Girls were normally married by their mid-teens.

• Joseph, a descendant of King David: See Matt 1:1-16. Joseph's ancestry is significant because the Messiah was to be a descendant of King David (2 Sam 7:11-16; Isa 9:7).

1:28 Greetings: Or Rejoice. • Some manuscripts add Blessed are you among women at the end of this verse.

1:31 you will name him Jesus: Jesus means "the Lord saves."

1:32-33 These verses echo God's covenant with David (2 Sam 7:11-16), the foundational promise of the coming Messiah (see also Isa 9:6-7; 11:1-5; Jer 23:5-6; 33:15-16; Ezek 37:24-25). • over Israel: Literally over the house of Jacob.

1:35 The Holy Spirit will come upon you: Jesus' conception was miraculous, by the power of the Most High. No further detail is provided as to how this happened.

the Son of God. ³⁶What's more, your relative Elizabeth has become pregnant in her old age! People used to say she was barren, but she has conceived a son and is now in her sixth month. ³⁷For the word of God will never fail."

³⁸Mary responded, "I am the Lord's servant. May everything you have said about me come true." And then the angel left her.

Mary Visits Elizabeth

³⁹A few days later Mary hurried to the hill country of Judea, to the town ⁴⁰where Zechariah lived. She entered the house and greeted Elizabeth. ⁴¹At the sound of Mary's greeting, Elizabeth's child leaped within her, and Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Spirit.

⁴²Elizabeth gave a glad cry and exclaimed to Mary, "God has blessed you above all women, and your child is blessed. ⁴³Why am I so honored, that the mother of my Lord should visit me? ⁴⁴When I heard your greeting, the baby in my womb jumped for joy. ⁴⁵You are blessed because you believed that the Lord would do what he said."

The Magnificat: Mary's Song of Praise

Mary, Mother of Jesus (Luke 1:26-2:51)

Matt 1:16, 18-25;
2:11, 13-23
Acts 1:14

Mary, the wife of Joseph, was the virgin mother of Jesus. Luke tells us that Mary, a young girl in Nazareth, was betrothed to Joseph, a local carpenter. Before the marriage took place, an angel announced to her that she would become pregnant by the power of God's Spirit and give birth to the Son of God (1:26-33). Mary responded to this extraordinary message in simple faith, humbly submitting herself to God's will (1:38, 46-55). Shortly thereafter, the message was confirmed by her relative Elizabeth, who spoke of Mary as the most blessed of all women (1:39-45). Mary's miraculous bearing of the Son of God was viewed as a fulfillment of prophecy (Isa 7:14).

Jesus' birth took place in unusual circumstances, when Joseph took Mary to Bethlehem to register for an official Roman census. The child was born in a stable because no other lodging was available (2:1-7). Some time later, Mary and Joseph fled to Egypt to save the child from Herod's massacre of young boys in the Bethlehem area (Matt 2:13-18). When they returned, they resettled in Nazareth to raise their family (2:39; Matt 2:19-23). After Jesus' birth, Mary apparently gave birth to several other sons and daughters (Matt 13:55-56; Mark 6:3). It is likely that Mary herself told Luke the details of Jesus' birth and the unusual events associated with it (2:51).

When Jesus was twelve years old, he stayed in the Temple during a family trip to Jerusalem. Mary and Joseph rebuked him for staying behind when they departed, but they did not understand Jesus' response (2:41-51). Early in Jesus' public ministry, Mary encouraged him to do a miracle at a wedding in Cana (John 2:1-11). Later, when she and Jesus' brothers went to see Jesus, he said that his disciples were his "real family" (8:19-21; Matt 12:46-50; Mark 3:31-35).

When Jesus was crucified, Mary was among the women looking on (cp. Mark 15:40, 47; John 19:25). As Jesus was dying, he asked John, the "disciple he loved," to take care of Mary as his own mother (John 19:26-27). After Jesus' death and resurrection, Mary was apparently a member of the believing community; she is listed among those who were praying together when the Spirit came on the Day of Pentecost (Acts 1:14).

God chose Mary to bring his Son, the Savior, into the world. For all Christians, she is a model of humble and obedient submission to God's will.

1:36 your relative Elizabeth: The KJV identifies Elizabeth as Mary's cousin, but the Greek term is more general.

1:37 For the word of God will never fail (some manuscripts read For nothing is impossible with God): This verse echoes Gen 18:14.

1:39 The hill country of Judea was 80–100 miles away from Nazareth, at least a four-day journey.

1:41 Elizabeth's child leaped within her:

See 1:15. John was already announcing the Messiah's coming. • Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Spirit: In the OT, being filled with the Spirit was often associated with a prophetic gift. The Spirit of prophecy was again appearing in Israel (see 1:67; 2:25, 27).

1:46-55 Mary's song is the first of three songs of praise in the birth narrative. It is called the Magnificat ("magnifies"), from the first word in the Latin translation. The song has many parallels to Hannah's prayer in 1 Sam 2:1-10. The fact that God cares for the oppressed and reverses their fortunes is a common theme throughout Luke's Gospel. The coming of God's Kingdom brings salvation to rejected and outcast people.

- 48 For he took notice of his lowly servant girl, and from now on all generations will call me blessed.
- 49 For the Mighty One is holy,
and he has done great things for me.
- 50 He shows mercy from generation to generation to all who fear him.

He has scattered the proud and haughty ones.
- 52 He has brought down princes from their thrones and sent the rich away with empty hands.

- 54 He has helped his servant Israel and remembered to be merciful.
- 55 For he made this promise to our ancestors, to Abraham and his children forever."

56 Mary stayed with Elizabeth about three months and then went back to her own home.

The Births of John and Jesus (1:57–2:20)
The Birth of John the Baptist

57 When it was time for Elizabeth's baby to be born, she gave birth to a son. 58 And when her neighbors and relatives heard that the Lord had been very merciful to her, everyone rejoiced with her.

59 When the baby was eight days old, they all came for the circumcision ceremony. They wanted to name him Zechariah, after his father. 60 But Elizabeth said, "No! His name is John!"

61 "What?" they exclaimed. "There is no one in all your family by that name." 62 So they used gestures to ask the baby's father what he wanted to name him. 63 He motioned for a writing tablet, and to everyone's surprise he wrote, "His name is John." 64 Instantly Zechariah could speak again, and he began praising God.

65 Awe fell upon the whole neighborhood, and the news of what had happened spread throughout the Judean hills. 66 Everyone who heard about it reflected on these events and asked, "What will this child turn out to be?" For the hand of the Lord was surely upon him in a special way.

The Benedictus: Zechariah's Prophecy

67 Then his father, Zechariah, was filled with the Holy Spirit and gave this prophecy:

68 "Praise the Lord, the God of Israel, because he has visited and redeemed his people.

69 He has sent us a mighty Savior from the royal line of his servant David, through his holy prophets long ago.

1:48 all generations will call me blessed: In Middle Eastern culture, honor and shame were extremely important, and one's legacy to future generations was highly cherished.

1:51 His mighty arm personifies God's mighty power (see Ps 98:1; Isa 40:10).

1:54-55 Gabriel's words in 1:32-33 recalled God's covenant with David; here Mary alluded to God's covenant with Abraham (Gen 12:1-3; 17:3-8). • The coming of Jesus brought glory to Israel and salvation to the Gentiles (see 2:32).

1:59 God commanded every Israelite male to be circumcised when eight days old (Gen 17:9-14; Lev 12:3). Circumcision signified the child's incorporation into the covenant community of Israel. • They wanted to name him Zechariah: It was common to name a child after a relative. The family and friends were surprised because John was not the name of any of his relatives.

1:62-63 they used gestures: Zechariah was mute and deaf (see note on 1:20). Zechariah's obedience in naming the child John confirmed his faith, and his voice and hearing were restored.

1:66 the hand of the Lord: This anthropomorphism (describing God with human characteristics, cp. 1:51) meant that God was at work in John's life.

1:67-79 This second hymn of the birth narrative is called the Benedictus ("Blessed" or "Praise") from the first word of the Latin translation. The hymn expects God's Messiah to deliver the Israelites from their enemies. Salvation entails physical deliverance and forgiveness of sins (1:77).

1:68 he has visited and redeemed his people: This recalls the exodus from Egypt, when God rescued his people from Pharaoh (Exod 3:7-10, 17-20).

1:69 He has sent us a mighty Savior (literally has raised up a horn of salvation for us): A "horn of salvation" was the horn of a powerful animal such as a ram or an ox. To "raise up a horn" invoked strength and power (see also Ps 89:24; 132:17). • from the royal line of his servant David: See note on 1:32-33.

1:71 saved from our enemies: The people of Israel hoped for rescue from their physical enemies, the Romans; Jesus brought salvation from sin, Satan, and death.

1:76-77 And you, my little son: Zechariah turned from speaking about the coming Messiah to address his newborn

The Birth of Jesus

Luke 2:1-7; cp. Matt 1:18-25

2 At that time the Roman emperor, Augustus, decreed that a census should be taken throughout the Roman Empire. ²(This was the first census taken when Quirinius was governor of Syria.) ³All returned to their own ancestral towns to register for this census. ⁴And because Joseph was a descendant of King David, he had to go to Bethlehem in Judea, David's ancient home. He traveled there from the village of Nazareth in Galilee. ⁵He took with him Mary, to whom he was engaged, who was now expecting a child.

⁶And while they were there, the time came for her baby to be born. ⁷She gave birth to her ^efirstborn son. She wrapped him snugly in strips of cloth and laid him in a manger, because there was no lodging available for them.

Praise and Rejoicing (1:44, 46-47, 64, 68)

Praise and rejoicing are prominent in Luke's Gospel and in Acts. Throughout Luke's Gospel, the recipients of God's grace praise him for his wonderful deeds (1:44, 46, 64, 68; 2:13, 38; 5:25-26; 7:16; 13:13; 17:15-18; 18:43; 19:37; 24:53). In Acts, praise accompanies healings (Acts 2:47; 3:8-9; 4:21) and the salvation of the Gentiles (Acts 11:18; 13:48; 21:20).

This motif of praise is closely linked to a key theme in Luke, that the fulfillment of God's promise in the coming of Jesus the Messiah is a cause for joy and rejoicing. The OT prophets had predicted that nature itself would break forth in songs of praise when God's salvation arrived (see Isa 55:12). When Jesus entered Jerusalem at the end of his ministry, his disciples shouted and sang, "praising God for all the wonderful miracles they had seen" (19:37). The Pharisees called on Jesus to rebuke his disciples, but he responded, "If they kept quiet, the stones along the road would burst into cheers!" (19:37-40). At the end of the Gospel, the disciples "returned to Jerusalem filled with great joy. And they spent all of their time in the Temple, praising God" (24:52-53). The arrival of God's marvelous salvation is a cause for rejoicing and praise.

son, John, who would prepare the Messiah's way. • called the prophet of the Most High: John was the last and greatest in the line of OT prophets (see 7:28). • prepare the way for the Lord: See Isa 40:3; see note on 1:17.

1:78 the morning light from heaven is about to break upon us (or the Morning Light from Heaven is about to visit us): The Messiah is identified in the OT as a light shining in darkness (Isa 9:2; 42:6-7; 49:6; Mal 4:2).

1:80 John grew up and became strong in spirit: Cp. 2:40, 52; 1 Sam 2:21, 26; 3:19. • John probably lived in the wilderness west of the Jordan River and southeast of Jerusalem. It was a place of testing (Deut 8:2; Pss 78: 95; 107) as well as spiritual retreat and preparation (Exod 3; 1 Kgs 19:4-6, 11-18; Isa 40:3).

2:1-7 Having described John's birth, Luke gives a parallel account of Jesus' birth, with emphasis on its lowliness. Although he was the glorious Messiah, Jesus entered the world in humble circumstances.

2:1 Caesar Augustus, whose given name was Octavian, ruled the Roman Empire from 27 BC to AD 14. Prior to his time, Rome was a republic ruled by a senate. The Roman senate gave Augustus supreme authority as emperor and the republic became an empire. Augustus secured the empire's borders and established the Pax Romana ("Roman Peace"), a period of unprecedented stability and prosperity in the Mediterranean world. • A census registered the people for tax purposes.

2:2 Quirinius was governor of Syria: Quirinius held this post AD 6-9. In 6-4 BC, Quirinius also had authority over Judea, possibly through some kind of joint rule. He may have begun the census. Historical accounts mention three other censuses at that time (in Syria, Gaul, and Spain), and there was no reason not to have one in Judea, though it is not mentioned in secular records. Jesus was born around 6-4 BC, before Herod the Great died in 4 BC (see Matt 2:1-19).

2:3-4 Since Joseph was a descendant of King David, he returned to David's hometown of Bethlehem (1 Sam 17:12, 58; 20:6), a tiny village in Judea five miles south of Jerusalem, where Micah 5:2 predicted that the Messiah would be born.

2:5 Mary, to whom he was engaged: See note on 1:27.

2:7 wrapped him snugly in strips of cloth: This common practice showed motherly love and care (see Ezek 16:4). • A manger was a feeding trough for animals. • no lodging available for them: This is a more accurate translation than the traditional "no room in the inn." The word translated lodging does not mean an inn (there were no inns in tiny Bethlehem), but either a guest room in a private house or a public shelter for travelers. Since there was no normal lodging, Joseph and Mary moved to an area reserved for animals.

2:8 Shepherds were sometimes portrayed in Judaism as drifters and dishonest troublemakers. This stereotype of sheep. ⁹Suddenly, an angel of the Lord appeared among them, and the radiance of the Lord's glory surrounded them. They were terrified, ¹⁰but the angel reassured them. "Don't be afraid!" he said. "I bring you good news that will bring great joy to all people. ¹¹The ⁹Savior—yes, the ¹¹Messiah, the Lord—has been born today in Bethlehem, the city of David! ¹²And you will recognize him by this sign: You will find a baby wrapped snugly in strips of cloth, lying in a manger."

¹³Suddenly, the angel was joined by a vast host of others—the armies of heaven—praising God and saying,

¹⁴ "Glory to God in highest heaven, and peace on earth to those with whom God is pleased."

¹⁵When the angels had returned to heaven, the shepherds said to each other, "Let's go to Bethlehem! Let's see this thing that has happened, which the Lord has told us about."

¹⁶They hurried to the village and found Mary and Joseph. And there was the baby, lying in the manger. ¹⁷After seeing him, the shepherds told everyone what had happened and what the angel had said to them about this child. ¹⁸All who heard the shepherds' story were astonished, ¹⁹but Mary kept all these things in her heart and thought about them often. ²⁰The shepherds went back to their flocks, glorifying and praising God for all they had heard and seen. It was just as the angel had told them.

The Presentation of Jesus (2:21-38)

Jesus Is Presented in the Temple

²¹Eight days later, when the baby was circumcised, he was named Jesus, the name given him by the angel even before he was conceived.

²²Then it was time for their purification offering, as required by the law of Moses after the birth of a child; so his parents took him to Jerusalem to present him to the Lord.

was not universal, however; in the OT, shepherds are usually viewed positively (e.g., Ps 23:1). Jesus came to common people such as these poor and humble peasants. • staying in the fields: This suggests warmer months of the year, perhaps March through November, though some shepherds stayed out year-round. The actual month of Jesus' birth is unknown. • They were guarding their flocks against thieves and wild animals.

2:9-10 terrified: As with Zechariah and Mary, the angelic presence was glorious and frightening. The angel told the shepherds, "Don't be afraid" (cp. 1:11-13, 28-30). • I bring you good news: This verb (Greek euangelizō, "I evangelize") is from the same root as the word for "Good News" (Greek euangelion, sometimes translated gospel; e.g., Gal 2:5, 7, 14). Isaiah's prophecies describe God's salvation as good news (see, e.g., Isa 52:7; 61:1). • to all people (literally to all the people): In Luke's writings, "the people" (grammatical singular) always refers to the people of Israel. The shepherds were being told that Israel's salvation had arrived and would ultimately go to all nations.

2:11 The Messiah (Greek Christos, a translation of Hebrew mashiakh) means "Anointed One" and refers to the coming savior from David's line (see note on 1:32-33; see "The Messianic Hope" at 3:15, p. 1707). As the Good News moved from a Jewish context to the Gentile world, Christians began to use Christos less as a title and more as a name.

2:12 this sign: Shepherds would appreciate the paradox and incongruity between the security of strips of cloth and the lowly circumstances of lying in a manger. Seeing a baby in such a setting was very unusual—a fitting sign that God was at work.

2:13 The armies of heaven reveal God's sovereign power and authority (2 Kgs 6:17; Ps 148:2). "Lord of Heaven's Armies" is a common OT name for God (e.g., 1 Sam 1:11; 17:45; 2 Sam 7:8; Isa 5:16; Rom 9:29; Jas 5:4).

2:14 Glory to God in highest heaven: This short hymn is known as the Gloria in excelsis Deo from the first line of the Latin translation. The Messiah's coming brings glory to God in the heavens and peace to humans on earth. • peace on earth to those with whom God is pleased: Peace indicates total well-being, not just the absence of hostility. The traditional translation, "on earth peace, good will toward men" (KJV), is based on the reading of some late manuscripts. The NLT text follows more reliable early manuscripts. Peace comes to the recipients of God's grace.

2:19 Mary kept all these things in her heart: Perhaps Mary reflected on the significance of these events and wondered about Jesus' destiny. It is also possible that Luke says this because Mary was his source of information on these events.

2:20 Glorifying and praising God are major themes throughout Luke's Gospel (e.g., 1:64; 2:13, 28; 5:25-26; 7:16; 13:13; 17:15, 18; 18:43; 19:37; 23:47; 24:53).

2:21 Eight days later . . . circumcised: See note on 1:59.

2:22 Time for their purification offering: The law of Moses prescribed a forty-day period of ritual purification for women following childbirth (Lev 12:1-8), after which an offering was made (2:24). • to present him to the Lord: Every firstborn, whether human or animal, was to be offered to the Lord; humans were bought back with a redemption price (see Exod 13:1-2, 15; 34:19-20; Num 3:11-13; 18:15-16; Neh 10:35-36).

2:23 he must be dedicated to the LORD: This is quoted from Exod 13:2.

2:24 a pair of turtle doves or two young pigeons: This quote from Lev 12:8 pertains to the purification ceremony after childbirth (see note on 2:22); Joseph and Mary offered the sacrifice prescribed for the poor.

2:25 Simeon was righteous and devout, like Zechariah and Elizabeth (1:6). They represent the righteous remnant of Israel that awaited God's salvation (Isa 10:20-22). Some have assumed that Simeon was a priest; the text says only Messiah to come and rescue Israel. The Holy Spirit was upon him ²⁶and had revealed to him that he would not die until he had seen the Lord's Messiah. ²⁷That day the Spirit led him to the Temple. So when Mary and Joseph came to present the baby Jesus to the Lord as the law required, ²⁸Simeon was there. He took the child in his arms and praised God, saying,

²⁹"Sovereign Lord, now let your servant die in peace, as you have promised.

³⁰I have seen your salvation,

³¹which you have prepared for all people.

³²He is a light to ^kreveal God to the nations, and he is the glory of your people Israel!"

³³Jesus' parents were amazed at what was being said about him. ³⁴Then Simeon blessed them, and he said to Mary, the baby's mother, "This child is destined to cause many in Israel to fall, and many others to rise. He has been sent as a sign from God, but many will oppose him. ³⁵As a result, the deepest thoughts of many hearts will be revealed. And a sword will pierce your very soul."

The Prophecy of Anna

³⁶Anna, a prophet, was also there in the Temple. She was the daughter of Phanuel from the tribe of Asher, and she was very old. Her husband died when they had been married only seven years. ³⁷Then she lived as a widow to the age of eighty-four. She never left the Temple but stayed there day and night, worshiping God with fasting and prayer. ³⁸She came along just as Simeon was talking with Mary and Joseph, and she began praising God. She talked about the child to everyone who had been waiting expectantly for God to rescue Jerusalem.

Jesus' Early Years (2:39-52)

The Childhood of Jesus in Nazareth

³⁹When Jesus' parents had fulfilled all the requirements of the law of the Lord, they returned home to Nazareth in Galilee. ⁴⁰There the child grew up healthy and strong. He was filled with wisdom, and God's ^afavor was on him.

Jesus Speaks with the Teachers

⁴¹Every year Jesus' parents went to Jerusalem for the Passover festival. ⁴²When Jesus was twelve years old, they attended the festival as usual. ⁴³After the celebration was over, they started home to Nazareth, but that he was a devout man in Jerusalem. • eagerly waiting for the Messiah to come and rescue Israel (literally awaiting Israel's consolation): This is an allusion to Isa 40:1, which promised comfort to Israel after returning from exile. • The Holy Spirit was upon him: See note on 1:41.

2:26 the Lord's Messiah (or the Lord's Anointed): This title, often used of David, came to refer to the Messiah, who would come from David's line.

2:27 to the Temple: This was the Temple compound, not the sanctuary. See note on 1:8-9.

2:29-32 This third great hymn of the birth narrative is called the Nunc dimittis ("now dismiss"), from the first words of the Latin translation. The hymn praises God for allowing Simeon to see God's salvation.

2:30 I have seen your salvation: The phrase echoes Isa 52:12.

2:31 The grammatical plural of people means all people, Jews and Gentiles (cp. note on 2:10).

2:32 The prophet Isaiah predicted that the coming Kingdom of God would bring salvation to all the nations (Isa 42:6-7; 49:6). • the glory of your people Israel! This quote from Isa 46:13 says that God's salvation will bring glory to Israel. Israel's role in the OT was to bring glory to God by revealing God's light to the nations.

2:34 to cause many in Israel to fall: Many Israelites rejected Jesus as the Messiah (see Isa 8:14-15). • a sign from God: See 11:29-30; cp. Isa 8:18.

2:35 the deepest thoughts of many hearts: Israel's true heart—whether for God or against him—would be revealed through their response to Jesus. • a sword will pierce your very soul: Mary would experience great pain at seeing her son rejected and dying on the cross.

2:36-38 Anna is the Greek equivalent of the Hebrew name Hannah, Samuel's mother (1 Sam 1-2; see note on 1:46-55). Jewish tradition identified seven OT women as prophets: Sarah, Miriam, Deborah, Hannah, Abigail, Huldah, and Esther. Anna was another prophetic witness to Jesus' identity as the Messiah. • The tribe of Asher, one of the ten northern tribes of Israel, was named after Jacob's eighth son (Gen 30:12-13). Most of those who returned from Babylonian exile were from the tribe of Judah; other Israelites also knew their tribal ancestry in Jesus' day. The apostle Paul was from the tribe of Benjamin (Phil 3:5).

2:37 she lived as a widow to the age of eighty-four (Or She had been a widow for eighty-four years): In the ancient world, great age was associated with wisdom and honor. • She never left the Temple: This is probably hyperbole; we might say, "She was there all the time," reflecting her total dedication to God.

2:40 filled with wisdom, and God's favor was on him (cp. 1:80; 2:52): The twin statements about Jesus' wisdom (2:40, 52) frame the story that follows about Jesus' extraordinary wisdom at an early age.

2:41-51 Jesus' visit to Jerusalem when he was twelve is the only account from Jesus' childhood recorded in the Gospels. Its main theme is Jesus' early spiritual insight, including both his growing awareness of his unique father-son relationship with God and his unique mission.

2:41 Every year . . . the Passover festival: Passover, celebrating Israel's deliverance from slavery in Egypt, was one of three great annual festivals that Jewish men were expected to attend (Exod 23:14-17; Deut 16:16). Jesus' family was devout and observant.

2:42 Jesus was twelve years old: A Jewish boy entered into his covenant responsibilities at age thirteen (the bar mitzvah ceremony developed later to express this custom). With this visit, Jesus' parents were preparing him to fulfill his Jesus stayed behind in Jerusalem. His parents didn't miss him at first, ⁴⁴because they assumed he was among the other travelers. But when he didn't show up that evening, they started looking for him among their relatives and friends.

⁴⁵When they couldn't find him, they went back to Jerusalem to search for him there. ⁴⁶Three days later they finally discovered him in the Temple, sitting among the religious teachers, listening to them and asking questions. ⁴⁷All who heard him were amazed at his understanding and his answers.

⁴⁸His parents didn't know what to think. "Son," his mother said to him, "why have you done this to us? Your father and I have been frantic, searching for you everywhere."

⁴⁹"But why did you need to search?" he asked. "Didn't you know that I must be in my Father's house?" ⁵⁰But they didn't understand what he meant.

⁵¹Then he returned to Nazareth with them and was obedient to them. And his mother stored all these things in her heart.

⁵²Jesus grew in wisdom and in stature and in favor with God and all the people.

Pontius Pilate was governor over Judea; Herod Antipas was ruler over Galilee; his brother Philip was ruler over Iturea and Traconitis; Lysanias was ruler over Abilene. ²Annas and Caiaphas were the ^bhigh priests. At this time a message from God came to John son of Zechariah, who was living in the wilderness. ³Then John went from place to place on both sides of the Jordan River, preaching that people should be baptized to show that they had repented of their ^csins and turned to God to be forgiven. ⁴Isaiah had spoken of John when he said,

"He is a voice shouting in the wilderness,
'Prepare the way for the LORD's coming!
Clear the road for him!'"

role in the covenant community.

2:44 they assumed he was among the other travelers: Joseph and Mary were probably traveling with a large caravan of relatives and friends from Galilee. Jesus probably spent a lot of time with his friends and relatives, so his parents were not worried at first.

2:46 The three days probably included one day traveling from Jerusalem, one day traveling back, and one day searching. • in the Temple: He was in the Temple compound, not the sanctuary. • listening to them and asking questions: Jesus was in the role of a student. In rabbinic instruction, a teacher responded to a student's question with a series of counter-questions. Jesus' insightful questions and answers amazed the teachers.

2:47 amazed at his understanding and his answers: Jesus fulfilled Isa 11:2.

2:49 Didn't you know that I must be in my Father's house? Or "Didn't you realize that I should be involved with my Father's affairs?" Jesus was aware that his greatest loyalty belonged to his Father in heaven.

2:51 Although Jesus recognized his relationship to his heavenly Father, he was obedient to his earthly parents. • his mother stored all these things in her heart: See note on 2:19.

2:52 Jesus grew in wisdom: See note on 2:40.

3:1-4:13 After the birth narrative, Luke sets the stage for Jesus' public ministry. He tells about the ministry of John the Baptist as forerunner of the Messiah and Jesus' baptism, genealogy, and temptation.

3:1 the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius: Tiberius Caesar became co-emperor with his stepfather Caesar Augustus in AD 11 and full emperor in AD 14, reigning until AD 37. Depending on which date Luke is referring to, John's public ministry began around AD 26/27 or AD 29/30; Jesus began his own ministry shortly thereafter. • Pilate: Pontius Pilate was governor of Judea from AD 26-36 (see "Pontius Pilate" at Mark 15:1-15, 43-45, p. 1691). • Herod Antipas was ruler: Literally Herod was tetrarch. Herod Antipas was a son of King Herod (see "Herod Antipas" at Mark 6:14-29, p. 1659). • Antipas's half brother Philip, another son of Herod the Great, was ruler (literally tetrarch) of the region northeast of Galilee from 4 BC until his death in AD 34. Tetrarch means "the ruler of a fourth of a kingdom"; the term came to mean any minor ruler. Philip the Tetrarch was another half-brother of both Antipas and Herod Philip (Matt 14:3; Mark 6:17; see diagram, p. 1579).

3:2 Annas and Caiaphas were the high priests: Annas was high priest AD 6-15 and was deposed by the Romans; his son-in-law Caiaphas was the current high priest (AD 18-36). Luke lists both names because Annas still wielded significant power behind the scenes (see John 18:13-14, 24; Acts 4:6). • a message from God came to John: John's calling as a prophet was similar to that of the OT prophets (see, e.g., Isa 6:1-13; Jer 1:1-19).

3:3 people should be baptized to show that they had repented of their sins and turned to God: John seems to have adapted the practice of baptism from Jewish rites using water to cleanse, or set apart, people and objects for God's service (cp. Lev 8:6). John called people to repent of their sins and prepare spiritually for the Messiah's coming. Their baptism publicly demonstrated their repentance and spiritual cleansing.

3:4-6 The quotation is from Isa 40:3-5 (Greek version); it speaks of God's delivering the Jews from exile in Babylon. After the Jews had returned from exile (Ezra 1-2), the passage became associated with God's end-time salvation. John shouted in the wilderness to prepare God's people for the Lord's coming. God's salvation is portrayed as a new exodus, bringing deliverance like the first exodus from Egypt. • Clear the road for him! . . . the rough places made smooth: The image reflects the Middle Eastern practice of preparing a road at the approach of a king, something like "rolling out the red carpet" (cp. 19:36-38).

⁶And then all people will see the salvation sent from God."

⁷When the crowds came to John for baptism, he said, "You brood of snakes! Who warned you to flee the coming wrath?"

⁸Prove by the way you live that you have repented of your sins and turned to God. Don't just say to each other, 'We're safe, for we are descendants of Abraham.' That means nothing, for I tell you, God can create children of Abraham from these very stones. ⁹Even now the ax of God's judgment is poised, ready to sever the roots of the trees. Yes, every tree that does not produce good fruit will be chopped down and thrown into the fire."

John Replies to Questions

¹⁰The crowds asked, "What should we do?"

¹¹John replied, "If you have two shirts, give one to the poor. If you have food, share it with those who are hungry."

¹²Even corrupt tax collectors came to be baptized and asked, "Teacher, what should we do?"

¹³He replied, "Collect no more taxes than the government requires."

¹⁴"What should we do?" asked some soldiers.

John replied, "Don't extort money or make false accusations. And be content with your pay."

John Preaches about the Messiah

Luke 3:15-18 // Matt 3:11-12 // Mark 1:7-8 // John 1:24-28

¹⁵Everyone was expecting the Messiah to come soon, and they were eager to know whether John might be the Messiah. ¹⁶John

The Messianic Hope (3:15)

Luke 2:25-32
2 Sam 7:11-16
Isa 9:6-7; 11:1-5
Jer 23:5-6; 33:15-16
Ezek 37:24-25

In the first century, many Jews eagerly looked for the coming of the Messiah, a deliverer who would defeat Israel's enemies and usher in an era of peace and prosperity for God's people.

The Hebrew word "Messiah," the equivalent of the Greek "Christ," means "Anointed One." The term comes from the practice of anointing kings in Israel with oil at their enthronement to confirm their appointment to rule the nation as God's representative.

There was widespread hope that a king from David's line would reestablish David's dynasty and reign in righteousness and justice on David's throne in Jerusalem. This hope had its foundation in 2 Sam 7:11-16, where God promised King David that he would raise up descendants after him and establish his throne forever. With the decline and subsequent collapse of Israel as a kingdom, the OT prophets predicted the coming of the Messiah (Isa 9:6-7; 11:1-5; Jer 23:5-6; 33:15-16; Ezek 37:24-25), the king who would deliver God's people and reign forever on David's throne.

Luke takes a special interest in showing that Jesus is truly the promised Messiah (1:32-33, 69-70; 3:15-16), but that he has fulfilled the messianic promises in a surprising way. After Peter confessed that Jesus is "the Messiah sent from God" (9:20), Jesus immediately began teaching about the Messiah's suffering. As Jesus approached Jerusalem for the last time, he was recognized as the King coming in the name of the Lord (18:38; 19:38), but then he was rejected (22:66-71) and crucified, mocked as "king of the Jews" (23:1-3) and "God's Messiah" (23:35).

On the third day, however, Jesus rose victorious from the dead, just as he predicted. During his appearances to the disciples he revealed that the Scriptures predicted all along that "the Messiah would have to suffer all these things before entering his glory" (24:26). Jesus' death and resurrection confirm that he is truly the Messiah and that his death brings restoration and forgiveness of sins (24:47).

3:7 the coming wrath is the judgment for all who reject the gospel. Israel as a nation would experience this wrath in the destruction of Jerusalem in AD 70 (see 21:20-23).

3:8 we are descendants of Abraham: See note on 1:54-55. Some Jews believed that their descent from Abraham guaranteed their salvation (see John 8:33-39; Acts 7:2; Rom 4:1). • That means nothing: God had selected the Israelites as his people, and he could reject them and create children of Abraham from these very stones if he chose (cp. Hos 1:3-9; Rom 9:6-8, 27-28; 11:17-21).

3:9 every tree that does not produce good fruit: Israel would be judged as an unfruitful vineyard (see Isa 5:1-7; cp. Luke 13:7-9; 20:9-19).

3:11 two shirts: The Greek word refers to a long shirt worn next to the skin. Even the smallest surplus should be shared with others in need.

3:12 corrupt tax collectors: The word for "corrupt" is not literally in the Greek, but it accurately expresses the connotation that "tax collector" had for first-century readers. They despised tax collectors, who were notoriously corrupt and worked for the hated Roman authorities.

3:14 These soldiers were probably not Roman, but local Jewish troops under the authority of Herod Antipas. They might have been assigned to protect the tax collectors. John does not condemn either tax collectors or soldiers, but calls them to honesty and integrity.

answered their questions by saying, "I baptize you with water; but someone is coming soon who is greater than I am—so much greater that I'm not even worthy to be his slave and untie the straps of his sandals. He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and with fire. ¹⁷He is ready to separate the chaff from the wheat with his winnowing fork. Then he will clean up the threshing area, gathering the wheat into his barn but burning the chaff with never-ending fire." ¹⁸John used many such warnings as he announced the Good News to the people.

The Imprisonment of John

Luke 3:19-20; cp. Matt 14:3-12 // Mark 6:17-29

¹⁹John also publicly criticized Herod Antipas, the ruler of Galilee, for marrying Herodias, his brother's wife, and for many other wrongs he had done. ²⁰So Herod put John in prison, adding this sin to his many others.

3:16 with water: Or in water. • I'm not even worthy to be his slave and untie the straps of his sandals: The untying of sandals was done only by slaves (to make this connection clear, the NLT adds be his slave and). John thus greatly honored the Messiah. • baptize you with the Holy Spirit and with fire (or in the Holy Spirit and in fire): The OT prophets predicted that in the last days, God would pour out his Spirit on his people (Joel 2:28; Ezek 36:28-29; Isa 32:15). This prophecy was at least partially fulfilled on the Day of Pentecost (Acts 2). Fire is an image of judgment (see 3:9); it also has the power to cleanse and refine God's people (see 1 Cor 3:10-15; cp. Isa 4:4; Mal 3:2).

3:17 After being harvested, the kernels of wheat would be beaten off the stalks and then tossed in the air with a winnowing fork to separate them from the chaff. The heavy grain would fall to the ground as the lighter chaff blew away. This is an image of separation for judgment. • never-ending fire: See Isa 66:24.

3:19-20 Herod Antipas, the ruler of Galilee (literally Herod the tetrarch) divorced his first wife and married Herodias, the wife of his half brother Herod Philip. When John publicly criticized Herod for this sin, Herod imprisoned and later executed him (cp. 9:9; Mark 6:16-29). Herod's execution of John is also recorded by the Jewish historian Josephus (Antiquities 18.5.2).

3:21-22 Jesus' baptism marked the beginning of his public ministry and his anointing as the Messiah (the "Anointed One"). The voice of God from heaven confirmed Jesus' identity and mission.

3:21 As he was praying: Luke emphasizes Jesus' trust and reliance on God in prayer (5:16; 6:12; 9:18, 28; 11:1; 22:32, 41, 44; 23:34, 46). • the heavens opened: This image was a sign of God's presence (Isa 64:1), divine revelation (Ezek 1:1; John 1:51), and the end of an age (Rev 4:1; 15:5; 19:11).

3:22 The Spirit might have looked like a dove, or perhaps it descended in a dove-like manner. • You are my dearly loved Son, and you bring me great joy (some manuscripts read my Son, and today I have become your Father): This statement resonates with Ps 2:7 and Isa 42:1. The former identifies Jesus as the Messiah from David's line; the latter indicates his role as servant of the Lord. Jesus' identity was again declared from heaven at his transfiguration (9:35).

3:23-38 This genealogy reverses Matthew's order (Matt 1:1-17). Luke lists

Jesus' lineage back to Adam, possibly to show Jesus' connection with all humanity as the Son of God (3:38). Matthew's genealogy descends from Abraham to Joseph, highlighting Jesus' status as the rightful heir of David's throne and the recipient of God's promises to Abraham. The great differences between the two genealogies have led some to propose that Luke's genealogy is that of Mary (see note on 3:23), who was probably among Luke's primary sources.

3:23 Jesus was about thirty years old: This is the only reference in the NT to Jesus' age during his public ministry, and it is an approximation. Jesus was born 6-4 BC (see note on 2:2) and began his ministry AD 27-29 (see note on 3:1), so Jesus was evidently 31-35 years old when he began his public ministry. • known as the son of Joseph: Jesus was the legal but not the biological son of Joseph. • Joseph was the son of Heli: If this is actually Mary's genealogy (see note on 3:23-38), then Joseph was Heli's son-in-law, a possible understanding of the Greek sentence.

3:27 Zerubbabel was the governor of Judea appointed by the Persians when the Jews returned from Babylonian exile. He supervised the rebuilding of the Temple (Ezra 3:2, 8).

The Temptation of Jesus (4:1-13)

Luke 4:1-13 // Matt 4:1-11 // Mark 1:12-13

4 Then Jesus, full of the Holy Spirit, returned from the Jordan River. He was led by the Spirit in the wilderness, ²where he was "tempted by the devil for forty days. Jesus ate nothing all that time and became very hungry.

³Then the devil said to him, "If you are the Son of God, tell this stone to become a loaf of bread."

⁴But Jesus told him, "No! The Scriptures say, 'People do not live by bread alone.'"

⁵Then the devil took him up and revealed to him all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time. ⁶"I will give you the 'glory of these kingdoms and authority over them,' the devil said, "because they are mine to give to anyone I please. ⁷I will give it all to you if you will worship me."

⁸Jesus replied, "The Scriptures say,

'You must worship the LORD your God and serve only him.'" ⁹Then the devil took him to Jerusalem, to the highest point of the Temple, and said, "If

3:31 Nathan was David's third son, born to him in Jerusalem (2 Sam 5:14); he is not to be confused with Nathan the prophet (2 Sam 7:2).

3:32 Boaz was the husband of Ruth the Moabite (see Ruth 2-4). • Salmon: Greek Sala, a variant spelling of Salmon. See Ruth 4:20-21.

3:33 Amminadab was the son of Admin. Admin was the son of Arni: Some manuscripts read Amminadab was the son of Aram. Arni and Aram are alternate spellings of Ram. See 1 Chr 2:9-10.

3:38 Enosh: Greek Enos, a variant spelling of Enosh. See Gen 5:6. • Seth was the third son of Adam and Eve, born after Cain murdered Abel and God banished him (Gen 4:25-26). • Adam was the son of God: Adam had no earthly father since God created him. In the temptation that follows, Satan repeatedly says to Jesus, "If you are the Son of God. . . ." Adam, the first son of God, failed when tested, but Jesus, the Son of God in the fullest sense, successfully resisted temptation.

4:1-13 Satan tempted Jesus to bypass his Father's plan of salvation by taking power and glory for himself. The forty-day temptation in the wilderness parallels Israel's forty years of testing in the wilderness. Israel failed when tested, but Jesus was victorious.

4:1 in the wilderness: Some manuscripts read into the wilderness.

4:2 tempted by the devil: The term diabolos is a Greek translation of the Hebrew satan, meaning "accuser" or "adversary" (1 Chr 21:1; Job 1-2; Zech 3:1-2). Luke uses both terms ("devil," 4:3, 6, 13; 8:12; "Satan," 10:18; 11:18; 13:16; 22:3, 31). Adam and Eve were tested by Satan and failed; Jesus, the second Adam, resisted temptation and thus reversed the judgment against Adam and Eve.

4:3 If you are the Son of God: Both Israel and Adam are identified as God's sons (3:38; Exod 4:22-23; Hos 11:1). Jesus, the Son of God in the fullest sense, succeeded where Adam and Israel failed.

4:4 People do not live by bread alone (Deut 8:3): Israel complained constantly about hunger in the wilderness, but Jesus depended on God's strength to sustain him.

4:6 they are mine to give: The NT elsewhere describes Satan's limited rule over the present world order (John 12:31; 14:30; 16:11; Eph 2:2; 1 Jn 5:19).

4:8 You must worship the LORD your God and serve only him (Deut 6:13): Israel turned to idolatry when suffering hardship in the wilderness (Deut 9:12). Jesus refused to worship Satan.

you are the Son of God, jump off! ¹⁰For the Scriptures say,

'He will order his angels to protect and guard you.

¹¹ And they will hold you up with their hands so you won't even hurt your foot on a stone.'

¹² Jesus responded, "The Scriptures also say, 'You must not test the LORD your God.'"

¹³ When the devil had finished tempting Jesus, he left him until the next opportunity came.

4. THE MINISTRY OF THE SAVIOR IN GALILEE (4:14-9:50)

Beginning of the Galilean Ministry (4:14-5:16)

Return to Galilee

Luke 4:14-15; cp. Matt 4:12-17; Mark 1:14-15

¹⁴ Then Jesus returned to Galilee, filled with the Holy Spirit's power. Reports about him spread quickly through the whole region. ¹⁵ He taught regularly in their synagogues and was praised by everyone.

Jesus Is Rejected at Nazareth

Luke 4:16-24 // Matt 13:53-58 // Mark 6:1-6a

¹⁶ When he came to the village of Nazareth, his boyhood home, he went as usual to the synagogue on the Sabbath and stood up to read the Scriptures. ¹⁷ The ^sscroll of Isaiah the prophet was handed to him. He unrolled the ^sscroll and found the place where this was written:

¹⁸ "The Spirit of the LORD is upon me, for he has anointed me to bring Good News to the poor."

He has sent me to proclaim that captives will be released, that the blind will see, that the oppressed will be set free, ¹⁹ and that the time of the LORD's favor has come."

²⁰ He rolled up the scroll, handed it back to the attendant, and sat down. All eyes in the synagogue looked at him intently. ²¹ Then he began to speak to them. "The Scripture you've just heard has been fulfilled this very day!"

²² Everyone spoke well of him and was amazed by the gracious words that came from his lips. "How can this be?" they asked. "Isn't this Joseph's son?"

²³ Then he said, "You will undoubtedly quote me this proverb: 'Physician, heal yourself'—meaning, 'Do miracles here in your hometown like those you did in Capernaum.' ²⁴ But I tell you the truth, no prophet is accepted in his own hometown.

²⁵ "Certainly there were many needy widows in Israel in Elijah's time, when the heavens were closed for three and a half years, and a severe famine devastated the land. ²⁶ Yet Elijah was not sent to any of them. He was sent instead to a foreigner—a widow of Zarephath in the land of Sidon. ²⁷ And many in Israel had leprosy in the time of the prophet Elisha, but the only one healed was Naaman, a Syrian."

²⁸ When they heard this, the people in the synagogue were furious. ²⁹ Jumping up, they mobbed him and forced him to the edge of the hill on which the town was built. They intended to push him over the cliff, ³⁰ but he passed right through the crowd and went on his way.

4:12 You must not test the LORD your God (Deut 6:16): In the wilderness, Israel constantly tested God's faithfulness, but Jesus responded with complete trust in God.

4:13 The next opportunity might have been Judas's betrayal (22:3-6, 21-22, 47-48); the supreme test came at Gethsemane (22:39-46).

4:14 Jesus returned to Galilee: The story of Jesus' ministry in Galilee begins here, and continues through 9:50.

• filled with the Holy Spirit's power: At his baptism, Jesus was anointed and empowered to accomplish his role as the Messiah (see 3:22; 4:1, 14, 18).

4:16-30 Jesus' sermon in Nazareth pre-viewed his whole public ministry. Jesus returned to his hometown synagogue to announce the good news that God's salvation had now arrived. The people were pleased until Jesus reminded them that God reaches out to Gentiles as well as to Jews. The infuriated crowd then attempted to kill him.

4:18-19 and that the time of the LORD's favor has come: Or and to proclaim the acceptable year of the LORD. The quotation is from Isa 61:1-2 (Greek version); 58:6. The "time of the LORD's favor" refers to the Year of Jubilee (Lev 25:8-55), when debts were erased, slaves were freed, and land was returned to its original owners. In Isa 61, the Year of Jubilee is a metaphor for God's salvation.

4:21 has been fulfilled: Jesus announced that because he was present, the new age of salvation had arrived. • this very day! Literally today; cp. 2:11; 5:26; 19:9; 23:43.

4:23 Physician, heal yourself was a common proverb in the ancient world. Here it might mean "prove your healing powers," or "help your own people; not just others." • like those you did in Capernaum: See 4:31-44.

4:25-26 widow of Zarephath: See 1 Kgs 17-18.

4:28 The people in the synagogue were furious that Jesus pointed out the favor God had shown to Gentiles. The Jews viewed themselves as sole recipients of God's favor, and they were oppressed by Gentile overlords.

4:30 he passed right through the crowd: The main emphasis is on the sovereign majesty of Jesus. His time had not yet come (cp. John 7:30, 44; 8:20, 59). This attempt to kill Jesus anticipated his crucifixion, so his escape foreshadows his resurrection.

Jesus Casts Out a Demon

Luke 4:31-37 // Mark 1:21-28

³¹Then Jesus went to Capernaum, a town in Galilee, and taught there in the synagogue every Sabbath day. ³²There, too, the people were amazed at his teaching, for he spoke with authority.

³³Once when he was in the synagogue, a man possessed by a ^hdemon—an evil spirit—cried out, shouting, ³⁴“Go away! Why are you interfering with us, Jesus of Nazareth? Have you come to destroy us? I know who you are—the Holy One of God!”

³⁵But Jesus reprimanded him. “Be quiet! Come out of the man,” he ordered. At that, the demon threw the man to the floor as the crowd watched; then it came out of him without hurting him further.

³⁶Amazed, the people exclaimed, “What authority and power this man’s words possess! Even evil spirits obey him, and they flee at his command!” ³⁷The news about Jesus spread through every village in the entire region.

Jesus Heals Many People

Luke 4:38-41 // Matt 8:14-17 // Mark 1:29-34

³⁸After leaving the synagogue that day, Jesus went to Simon’s home, where he found Simon’s mother-in-law very sick with a high fever. “Please heal her,” everyone begged. ³⁹Standing at her bedside, he rebuked the fever, and it left her. And she got up at once and prepared a meal for them.

⁴⁰As the sun went down that evening, people throughout the village brought sick family members to Jesus. No matter what their diseases were, the touch of his hand healed every one. ⁴¹Many were possessed by demons; and the demons came out at his command, shouting, “You are the Son of God!” But because they knew he was the Messiah, he rebuked them and refused to let them speak.

Jesus Continues to Preach in Galilee

The Suffering Prophet (4:22-24)

7:37, 52

Jesus is described by many titles in the Gospels, including Messiah, Son of David, Son of Man, Son of God, and Lord. In Luke, a key title is “Prophet.” Jesus was the prophet that Moses predicted in Deut 18:15.

As a prophet, Jesus preached God’s word and performed miracles like those of the great OT prophets. When Jesus raised the widow’s son, the people cried out, “A mighty prophet has risen among us” (7:16). The disciples on the Emmaus road identified him as “a prophet who did powerful miracles, and he was a mighty teacher” (24:19).

Like other prophets, Jesus suffered for his testimony (cp. 1 Kgs 19:3-18; Jer 11:18-19; 18:18; 20:1-2, 7-18; 26:7-11, 20-23; 38:1-6). While the people linked Jesus’ prophetic office to his miracles and teaching, Jesus connected it especially to his suffering. At Nazareth, he affirmed that “no prophet is accepted in his own hometown” (4:24), and he later accused Israel of murdering its prophets (11:47-52). As he journeyed to Jerusalem, he exclaimed, “It wouldn’t do for a prophet of God to be killed except in Jerusalem!” (13:33).

In the OT, when Israel did not heed God’s prophets, divine judgment followed. Similarly, God’s people had to listen to Jesus or face judgment (see Acts 3:22-23; 7:37).

Just as the revelation that Jesus is the Messiah confirms that he is the Savior for all people, so his role as prophet confirms that his message comes from God, and his words are the authentic word of God, which must be heard and obeyed.

4:31 Jesus moved from Nazareth to make Capernaum his base of operations during his Galilean ministry (see Mark 2:1).

4:33 an evil (literally unclean; also in 4:36) spirit: Unclean means “defiled” or “wicked”; hence, the NLT translation “evil spirit.”

4:34 Have you come to destroy us? Though there was only one demon present, the plural us suggests that all of Satan’s forces were aware and fearful of Jesus’ coming. • I know who you are: A common ancient belief held that naming a spiritual power gave a person authority over it. The demon might have been attempting to gain power over Jesus.

4:36 What authority and power this man’s words possess! Magicians and exorcists often used elaborate rituals and incantations. The people were amazed that Jesus merely spoke a word on his own authority and cast out the demon.

4:38 Simon’s home: Simon was from Bethsaida (John 1:44), but his present home and fishing business were in Capernaum. • Simon’s mother-in-law: Peter was married (see 1 Cor 9:5), but his wife is not named.

4:39 he rebuked the fever: The same Greek word was used when Jesus rebuked the demon (4:36). Jesus has full authority over physical and spiritual forces.

4:41 You are the Son of God! This was a title for the Messiah (see 2 Sam 7:14; Ps 2:7; 89:26-27). Luke often links the titles “Christ” and “Son of God” (9:35, 22:66-71; Acts 9:20, 22). • he . . . refused to let them speak: Jesus often showed his authority over demons by silencing them. He wanted to reveal his identity in his own way, not through their announcement.

found him, they begged him not to leave them. ⁴³But he replied, "I must preach the Good News of the Kingdom of God in other towns, too, because that is why I was sent." ⁴⁴So he continued to travel around, preaching in synagogues throughout Judea.

The First Disciples: A Miraculous Catch of Fish

5 One day as Jesus was preaching on the shore of the Sea of Galilee, great crowds pressed in on him to listen to the word of God. ²He noticed two empty boats at the water's edge, for the fishermen had left them and were washing their nets. ³Stepping into one of the boats, Jesus asked Simon, its owner, to push it out into the water. So he sat in the boat and taught the crowds from there.

⁴When he had finished speaking, he said to Simon, "Now go out where it is deeper, and let down your nets to catch some fish."

⁵"Master," Simon replied, "we worked hard all last night and didn't catch a thing. But if you say so, I'll let the nets down again."

⁶And this time their nets were so full of fish they began to tear! ⁷A shout for help brought their partners in the other boat, and soon both boats were filled with fish and on the verge of sinking.

⁸When Simon Peter realized what had happened, he fell to his knees before Jesus and said, "Oh, Lord, please leave me—I'm such a sinful man." ⁹For he was awestruck by the number of fish they had caught, as were the others with him. ¹⁰His partners, James and John, the sons of Zebedee, were also amazed.

Jesus replied to Simon, "Don't be afraid! From now on you'll be fishing for people!" ¹¹And as soon as they landed, they left everything and followed Jesus.

Jesus Heals a Man with Leprosy

Luke 5:12-16 // Matt 8:1-4 // Mark 1:40-45

¹²In one of the villages, Jesus met a man with an advanced case of leprosy. When the man saw Jesus, he bowed with his face to the ground, begging to be healed. "Lord," he said, "if you are willing, you can heal me and make me clean."

¹³Jesus reached out and touched him. "I am willing," he said. "Be healed!" And instantly the leprosy disappeared. ¹⁴Then Jesus instructed him not to tell anyone what had happened. He said, "Go to the priest and let him examine you. Take along the offering required in the law of Moses for those who have been healed of leprosy. This will be a public testimony that you have been cleansed."

¹⁵But despite Jesus' instructions, the report of his power spread even faster, and

4:43 The Greek verb translated preach the Good News corresponds to the noun often translated "gospel" ("Good News"; see note on 2:9-10; see also 1:19; 7:22; Matt 4:23; 24:14; Mark 1:1, 15; 16:15; Acts 8:4, 12; Rom 1:1-6, 15-17; 10:15-17; Gal 1:6-9; Eph 2:14-18; 3:6-7).

• The Kingdom of God was Jesus' central concern (see Mark 1:15), and God's sovereign reign was established through Jesus' words and deeds.

4:44 Judea (some manuscripts read Galilee): Luke probably used Judea in the general sense of "the land of the Jews," since Jesus' ministry was then in Galilee in the north (see 5:1), not south in Judea.

5:1-11 This is the first call of disciples recorded in Luke; Matthew and Mark recount a (presumably earlier) call of the four fishermen brothers (Matt 4:18-22; Mark 1:16-20). Jesus demonstrated extraordinary authority in the miraculous catch of fish and in his call of Simon Peter.

5:1 the Sea of Galilee: Greek the Lake of Gennesaret, another name for the Sea of Galilee.

5:3 Simon is called "Peter" in 6:14 and thereafter. • So he sat in the boat and taught the crowds: By sitting in the boat slightly offshore, Jesus had a platform from which to address the people without being mobbed.

5:4 let down your nets to catch some fish: Peter was naturally skeptical when a rabbi told fishermen how to catch fish. Jesus' command was odd for three reasons: (1) When the sun came up, the fish moved to the bottom of the lake (which is why they fished at night); (2) they fished with a heavy dragnet hung over the side of the boat by two men (or between two boats) and could not go deep with it; (3) they had just fished all night with no results, and the prospects were now much more unlikely.

5:7 Their partners in the other boat were James and John, who with their father Zebedee were business partners with Peter (see 5:10; Mark 1:19-20) and Andrew (see Mark 1:16). • both boats were filled with fish: This dramatic miracle confirmed Jesus' authority over the forces of nature.

5:8 I'm such a sinful man: Cp. Isa 6:5.

5:10 Jesus drew a spiritual analogy between fishing and seeking people for the Kingdom of God.

5:11 they left everything: Their sacrifice was remarkable in a culture that so highly valued loyalty to family and clan.

5:12 an advanced case of leprosy:

"Leprosy" does not refer specifically to the modern disease known as leprosy (Hansen's disease), but to a variety of skin disorders. To avoid contagion, lepers were outcasts in the ancient world, required to live on the margins of society. The law of Moses set guidelines for the diagnosis and quarantine of leprosy (Lev 13-14; see note on Lev 13:1-46).

5:13 Jesus reached out and touched him: Most people feared catching the disease through physical contact, but Jesus showed compassion. Jesus was not contaminated by disease or evil, but brought healing and salvation. • Be healed: Literally Be cleansed. This act had spiritual and physical significance, since leprosy separated Israelites from social contact and religious practice.

5:14 Jesus often told those he healed not to tell anyone what had happened to avoid celebrity status. Nonetheless, news of these events spreads like wildfire (see 5:15-16; see "The Secret of the Messiah" at Mark 3:11-12, p. 1653).

• Go to the priest and let him examine you. . . . the offering: Those healed of leprosy had to be declared clean by a priest, and a sacrifice was offered on their behalf (see Lev 14:2-32).

Controversies Begin (5:17-6:11)

Jesus Heals a Paralyzed Man

Luke 5:17-26 // Matt 9:1-8 // Mark 2:1-12

¹⁷One day while Jesus was teaching, some Pharisees and teachers of religious law were sitting nearby. (It seemed that these men showed up from every village in all Galilee and Judea, as well as from Jerusalem.) And the Lord's healing power was strongly with Jesus.

¹⁸Some men came carrying a paralyzed man on a sleeping mat. They tried to take him inside to Jesus, ¹⁹but they couldn't reach him because of the crowd. So they went up to the roof and took off some tiles. Then they lowered the sick man on his mat down into the crowd, right in front of Jesus.

²⁰Seeing their faith, Jesus said to the man, "Young man, your sins are forgiven."

²¹But the Pharisees and teachers of religious law said to themselves, "Who does he think he is? That's blasphemy! Only God can forgive sins!"

²²Jesus knew what they were thinking, so he asked them, "Why do you question this in your hearts? ²³Is it easier to say 'Your sins are forgiven,' or 'Stand up and walk'? ²⁴So I will prove to you that the Son of Man has the authority on earth to forgive sins." Then Jesus turned to the paralyzed man and said,

"Stand up, pick up your mat, and go home!"

²⁵And immediately, as everyone watched, the man jumped up, picked up his mat, and went home praising God. ²⁶Everyone was gripped with great wonder and awe, and they praised God, exclaiming, "We have seen amazing things today!"

Jesus Calls Notorious Sinners

Luke 5:27-32 // Matt 9:9-13 // Mark 2:13-17

²⁷Later, as Jesus left the town, he saw a tax collector named Levi sitting at his tax collector's booth. "Follow me and be my disciple," Jesus said to him. ²⁸So Levi got up, left everything, and followed him.

²⁹Later, Levi held a banquet in his home with Jesus as the guest of honor. Many of Levi's fellow tax collectors and other guests also ate with them. ³⁰But the Pharisees and their teachers of religious law complained bitterly to Jesus' disciples, "Why do you eat and drink with such scum?"

³¹Jesus answered them, "Healthy people don't need a doctor—sick people do. ³²I have come to call not those who think they are righteous, but those who know they are sinners and need to repent."

A Discussion about Fasting

Luke 5:33-39 // Matt 9:14-17 // Mark 2:18-22

³³One day some people said to Jesus, "John the Baptist's disciples fast and pray regularly, and so do the disciples of the Pharisees. Why are your disciples always eating and drinking?"

5:17-26 The healing of the paralyzed man initiated the conflicts Jesus had with religious leaders throughout his public ministry until he was crucified in Jerusalem.

5:17 Pharisees: See "The Pharisees" at Matt 3:7, p. 1581. • Teachers of religious law, also called "scribes" and "lawyers," were experts in interpreting the law of Moses. Most of the scribes were Pharisees, though some were Sadducees.

5:19 took off some tiles: Palestinian roofs were normally made of wooden beams covered with reeds and mud or clay. Either this roof had tiles, or else Luke was interpreting the episode for his Greek readers (cp. Mark 2:4, which speaks of digging through the roof).

5:22 Jesus knew what they were thinking: While the Pharisees were accusing Jesus of blasphemy, he was reading their minds—something only God can do.

5:23-24 Jesus showed his authority to forgive sins by healing the man.

5:24 Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself (see "The Son of Man" at Matt 8:18-20, p. 1593).

5:25 praising God: See note on 2:20.

5:27-32 The call of Levi led to Jesus' second conflict with the religious leaders, and it introduced the idea that Jesus had come to save sinners.

5:27 tax collector: See note on 3:12. • Levi's tax collector's booth was probably a toll booth for goods in transit. • Levi was also called Matthew (Matt 9:9; see "Matthew (Levi)" at Matt 9:9-10, p. 1594).

5:29 with Jesus as the guest of honor: Matthew introduced Jesus to his friends and colleagues to honor Jesus for calling him as a disciple. It was common in the ancient world to repay honor with honor.

5:30 with such scum? Literally with tax collectors and sinners? Meals were rituals of social status in the ancient world, and eating with someone meant social acceptance of that person. The Pharisees refused to eat with tax collectors and other sinners, or to enter their homes, believing that this would defile them. They expected Jesus, as a rabbi, to do the same. Jesus shattered social norms by dining with sinners and allowing sinful people to touch him (5:29; 7:39; 15:1). The religious leaders severely criticized him for this and derisively called him "a friend of tax collectors and other sinners" (7:34).

5:31-32 Jesus responded that, like a doctor, his mission was to work with sick people, not the healthy. Jesus was not called to minister to self-righteous people, but those who recognized their spiritual need for God's grace and healing.

5:33 John the Baptist's disciples: Most rabbis had students who learned from them and served them (see also Acts 19:1-7). • fast and pray regularly: Many pious Jews fasted two days a week (18:12). Fasting was associated with spiritual preparation (Esth 4:16) and repentance (2 Sam 12:22; Joel 1:14; Jon 3:5). Fasting is not a means of righteousness (Isa 58:4-5; Jer 14:12), but a spiritual discipline for cultivating intimacy with God. Fasting is often linked with prayer and spiritual retreat.

• Why are your disciples always eating and drinking? The point was that they did not fast regularly.

³⁴Jesus responded, "Do wedding guests fast while celebrating with the groom? Of course not. ³⁵But someday the groom will be taken away from them, and then they will fast."

³⁶Then Jesus gave them this illustration: "No one tears a piece of cloth from a new garment and uses it to patch an old garment. For then the new garment would be ruined, and the new patch wouldn't even match the old garment."

³⁷And no one puts new wine into old wineskins. For the new wine would burst the wineskins, spilling the wine and ruining the skins. ³⁸New wine must be stored in new wineskins. ³⁹But no one who drinks the old wine seems to want the new wine. "The old is just fine," they say."

A Discussion about the Sabbath

Luke 6:1-5 // Matt 12:1-8 // Mark 2:23-28

6 One Sabbath day as Jesus was walking through some grainfields, his disciples broke off heads of grain, rubbed off the husks in their hands, and ate the grain. ²But some Pharisees said, "Why are you breaking the law by harvesting grain on the Sabbath?"

³Jesus replied, "Haven't you read in the Scriptures what David did when he and his companions were hungry? ⁴He went into the house of God and broke the law by eating the sacred loaves of bread that only the priests can eat. He also gave some to his companions." ⁵And Jesus added, "The Son of Man is Lord, even over the Sabbath."

Jesus Heals on the Sabbath

Luke 6:6-11 // Matt 12:9-14 // Mark 3:1-6

⁶On another Sabbath day, a man with a deformed right hand was in the synagogue while Jesus was teaching. ⁷The teachers of religious law and the Pharisees watched Jesus closely. If he healed the man's hand, they planned to accuse him of working on the Sabbath.

⁸But Jesus knew their thoughts. He said to the man with the deformed hand, "Come and stand in front of everyone." So the man came forward. ⁹Then Jesus said to his critics, "I have a question for you. Does the law permit good deeds on the Sabbath, or is it a day for doing evil? Is this a day to save life or to destroy it?"

¹⁰He looked around at them one by one and then said to the man, "Hold out your hand." So the man held out his hand, and it was restored! ¹¹At this, the enemies of Jesus were wild with rage and began to discuss what to do with him.

Luke 6:12-16 // Matt 10:1-4 // Mark 3:13-19

5:34-35 Do wedding guests fast? Just as it would be inappropriate for anyone to fast at a wedding celebration, it was inappropriate for people to fast while the Messiah was with them. God's final salvation is a great wedding feast that God prepares for his people (Isa 25:6-8; see "The Messianic Banquet" at 14:1-24, p. 1737).

5:36-38 a new garment . . . new wine: New cloth shrinks when washed and so tears the old; new wine expands with fermentation and breaks brittle old wineskins. In either case, both old and new are ruined. Both illustrations make the point that the old is incompatible with the new. Jesus did not come to patch up the old covenant, but to establish a new one. The Kingdom of God brings a whole new orientation to thinking and living.

5:39 The old is just fine: The religious leaders were resistant to change.

6:1-11 Jesus' conflicts with the religious leaders continued with two controversies over the Sabbath. The law of Moses required Jews to rest on the Sabbath (Exod 20:8-11; Deut 5:13-14), but the Pharisees had forgotten that the real reason for the Sabbath was to benefit human beings.

6:1 his disciples broke off heads of grain: The law allowed this kind of grazing while walking through someone else's field (Deut 23:24-25).

6:2 by harvesting grain: The disciples were not accused of stealing grain, but of working on the Sabbath. They were breaking rules established by oral tradition.

6:3 While fleeing from Saul (1 Sam 21), David . . . and his companions took refuge at the sanctuary of Nob. The priest Ahimelech gave them the consecrated Bread of the Presence that only priests were lawfully allowed to eat (Exod 25:30; Lev 24:9). Jesus' point was that a technical violation of the law is superseded by the higher law of meeting human needs. There might also be a comparison between David and Jesus as God's chosen and anointed kings of Israel.

6:5 Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself (see "The Son of Man" at Matt 8:18-20, p. 1593). • Lord, even over the Sabbath: The saying is a play on words with a double meaning. First, son of man often means "human being," so Jesus affirmed that the Sabbath was made to serve human beings. Son of Man was also a title for the Messiah (see Dan 7:13-14). Jesus is Lord of the Sabbath because he created it.

6:6-7 watched Jesus closely: Jesus now had a reputation for placing human needs above the Sabbath commands, so the religious leaders hoped to catch him working on the Sabbath. • If he healed the man's hand: The rabbis of Jesus' day debated whether offering medical help was justified on the Sabbath; it was generally allowed only in extreme emergencies. The deformed hand was clearly not an emergency.

6:8 Come and stand in front of everyone: Jesus did not shy away from controversy, but was willing to confront the Pharisees' hypocrisy head on.

6:9 Is this a day to save life or to destroy it? Jesus' question penetrated the religious leaders' motives. They were plotting against Jesus (an evil act) because he was going to heal someone (a good act).

6:12 he prayed to God all night: See note on 3:21. Jesus prayed before important events and decisions such as choosing the Twelve, who would carry on his ministry after him.

Jesus Teaches His Disciples: The Great Sermon (6:17-49)

Crowds Follow Jesus

Luke 6:17-19 // Mark 3:7-12

¹⁷When they came down from the mountain, the disciples stood with Jesus on a large, level area, surrounded by many of his followers and by the crowds. There were people from all over Judea and from Jerusalem and from as far north as the seacoasts of Tyre and Sidon. ¹⁸They had come to hear him and to be healed of their diseases; and those troubled by evil spirits were healed. ¹⁹Everyone tried to touch him, because healing power went out from him, and he healed everyone.

Beatitudes and Sorrows

Luke 6:20-23 // Matt 5:3-12

²⁰Then Jesus turned to his disciples and said,

"God ²¹blesses you who are poor, for the Kingdom of God is yours.

²¹ God blesses you who are hungry now, for you will be satisfied.

God blesses you who weep now, for in due time you will laugh.

²²What blessings await you when people hate you and exclude you and mock you and curse you as evil because you follow the Son of Man. ²³When that happens, be happy! Yes, leap for joy! For a great reward awaits you in heaven. And remember, their ancestors treated the ancient prophets that same way.

²⁴"What sorrow awaits you who are rich, for you have your only happiness now.

²⁵ What sorrow awaits you who are fat and prosperous now, for a time of awful hunger awaits you. What sorrow awaits you who laugh now, for your laughing will turn to mourning and sorrow.

²⁶ What sorrow awaits you who are praised by the crowds, for their ancestors also praised false prophets.

Love for Enemies

Luke 6:27-36; cp. Matt 5:38-48; Matt 7:12

²⁷"But to you who are willing to listen, I say, love your enemies! Do good to those who hate you. ²⁸Bless those who curse you. Pray for those who hurt you. ²⁹If someone slaps you on one cheek, offer the other cheek also. If someone demands your coat, offer

6:13 Disciples were students and followers; apostles were specially commissioned representatives. • The number twelve symbolically represents the twelve tribes of Israel. The apostles represented the restored people of God.

6:14 Simon (whom he named Peter): Peter means "rock" or "stone" (see Matt 16:18).

6:15 Matthew was the tax collector also called Levi (see 5:27; Matt 9:9; 10:3).

• Simon (who was called the zealot): Zealot probably meant that he had joined the Zealot movement, a group of Jews actively seeking to overthrow the Roman government. The diversity of Jesus' apostles is striking.

6:16 Judas (son of James) was probably also called Thaddaeus (Matt 10:3; Mark 3:18). He was a different man than Judas Iscariot or Jude the half brother of Jesus (who wrote the NT book of Jude). • Judas Iscariot: Iscariot probably means "from Kerioth," a village twelve miles south of Hebron.

6:17-49 The central theme of Jesus' great sermon is that an authentic life of righteousness accompanies repentance and acceptance into God's Kingdom.

6:17 all over Judea . . . Tyre and Sidon: Tyre and Sidon were coastal cities on the Mediterranean Sea northwest of Galilee. Jesus was gaining wide popularity.

6:18 evil: Literally unclean.

6:20-23 God blesses those who acknowledge their inadequacy and weakness and turn to God for strength. The value system of God's Kingdom is radically different from the world's value system, in which power and strength represent success.

6:20-21 poor . . . hungry: Cp. Matt 5:3, 6. Luke had physical and spiritual poverty in mind. Poverty and suffering tend to make us more dependent on God. The OT includes many promises that God will feed and comfort his people (Ps 22:26; 107:36-41; 126:1-6; Isa 49:10-13; 51:3; 65:13).

6:23 treated the ancient prophets that same way: See "The Suffering Prophet" at 4:22-24, p. 1711.

6:24-26 Promises of blessing for the poor and oppressed are balanced in Luke with predictions of sorrow for the rich and powerful. Those who trust in themselves will be humbled, while those who depend on God will be blessed. The OT prophets often pronounced woes against nations and rulers who oppressed God's people and rejected his sovereignty (e.g., Isa 3:11; 5:8; Jer 50:27; Zech 11:17).

6:27 love your enemies! People were commonly taught in the ancient world to love their family and friends and hate their enemies. Jesus announced a radical new ethic of loving even one's enemies and overcoming evil through self-sacrificial love for others, not through violence and hatred (cp. Rom 12:14-21).

your shirt also. ³⁰Give to anyone who asks; and when things are taken away from you, don't try to get them back. ³¹Do to others as you would like them to do to you.

³²If you love only those who love you, why should you get credit for that? Even sinners love those who love them! ³³And if you do good only to those who do good to you, why should you get credit? Even sinners do that much! ³⁴And if you lend money only to those who can repay you, why should you get credit? Even sinners will lend to other sinners for a full return.

³⁵"Love your enemies! Do good to them. Lend to them without expecting to be repaid. Then your reward from heaven will be very great, and you will truly be acting as children of the Most High, for he is kind to those who are unthankful and wicked. ³⁶You must be compassionate, just as your Father is compassionate.

Do Not Judge Others

³⁷"Do not judge others, and you will not be judged. Do not condemn others, or it will all come back against you. Forgive others, and you will be forgiven. ³⁸Give, and you will receive. Your gift will return to you in full—pressed down, shaken together to make room for more, running over, and poured into your lap. The amount you give will determine the amount you get back."

³⁹Then Jesus gave the following illustration: "Can one blind person lead another? Won't they both fall into a ditch? ⁴⁰Students are not greater than their teacher. But the student who is fully trained will become like the teacher.

⁴¹"And why worry about a speck in your friend's eye when you have a log in your own? ⁴²How can you think of saying, 'Friend, let me help you get rid of that speck in your eye,' when you can't see past the log in your own eye? ⁴³Hypocrite! First get rid of the log in your own eye; then you will see well enough to deal with the speck in your friend's eye.

The Tree and Its Fruit

Luke 6:43-45 // Matt 12:33-35; cp. Matt 7:15-20

⁴³"A good tree can't produce bad fruit, and a bad tree can't produce good fruit. ⁴⁴A tree is identified by its fruit. Figs are never gathered from thornbushes, and grapes are not picked from bramble bushes. ⁴⁵A good person produces good things from the treasury of a good heart, and an evil person produces evil things from the treasury of an evil heart. What you say flows from what is in your heart.

⁴⁶"So why do you keep calling me 'Lord, Lord!' when you don't do what I say? ⁴⁷I will show you what it's like when someone comes to me, listens to my teaching, and then follows it. ⁴⁸It is like a person building a house who digs deep and lays the foundation on solid rock. When the floodwaters rise and break against that house, it stands firm because it is well built. ⁴⁹But anyone who hears and doesn't obey is like a person who builds a house right on the ground, without a foundation. When the floods sweep down against that house, it will collapse into a heap of ruins."

6:30 when things are taken away from you, don't try to get them back: Jesus' point is that the cycle of hatred and violence that characterizes human nature can only be broken by responding with good, not evil (Rom 12:17). We win the world through self-sacrificial love. Jesus was not promoting injustice, as though believers should let criminals take advantage of the weak. God established governments to punish evildoers (Rom 13:1-5).

6:31 Do to others as you would like them to do to you: While the golden rule appears in some form in various religious and philosophical traditions, only in Jesus' teaching is love for all people, including enemies, the fundamental ethic that governs all behavior.

6:34-36 The law of Moses prohibited charging interest on loans to other Israelites in order to prevent exploitation of the poor (Exod 22:25; Lev 25:35-37; Deut 23:20). Jesus further instructed his followers to lend . . . without expecting to be repaid. By doing good even to those who do evil, we act as children of the Most High and imitate our Father in heaven, who is kind to all people (cp. Rom 5:8).

6:37-42 Do not judge others: Jesus condemned hypocritical judgment that denigrated another person. Those who condemn others will be judged by that same standard. God requires his people to love others by warning them of the dangers of sin (Gal 6:1; Heb 3:13). Exhortation is an act of love; judgment is an act of pride.

6:38 pressed down, shaken together: A generous grain merchant would top off the buyer's container, press it down, shake it to make more room, and then pour until the grain overflowed into the buyer's lap. • The amount you give will determine the amount you get back: Or The measure you give will be the measure you get back.

6:40 Students: Or Disciples.

6:41 your friend's eye: Literally your brother's eye; also in 6:42. • a log in your own: Jesus did not say that the speck in our friend's eye is not our business, but that we must first correct our own faults so that we can see clearly enough to remove the speck. Jesus condemned hypocritical judgment; lovingly holding one another accountable regarding sin is desirable.

6:42 Friend: Literally Brother.

6:45 What people take in and treasure determines what will emerge in their lives.

6:49 anyone who hears and doesn't obey: See Ezek 33:31-33.

Jesus' Compassionate Ministry (7:1-50)

The Faith of a Roman Officer

Luke 7:1-10 // Matt 8:5-13

7 When Jesus had finished saying all this to the people, he returned to Capernaum. ²At that time the highly valued slave of a Roman officer was sick and near death. ³When the officer heard about Jesus, he sent some respected Jewish elders to ask him to come and heal his slave. ⁴So they earnestly begged Jesus to help the man. "If anyone deserves your help, he does," they said, ⁵"for he loves the Jewish people and even built a synagogue for us."

⁶So Jesus went with them. But just before they arrived at the house, the officer sent some friends to say, "Lord, don't trouble yourself by coming to my home, for I am not worthy of such an honor. ⁷I am not even worthy to come and meet you. Just say the word from where you are, and my servant will be healed. ⁸I know this because I am under the authority of my superior officers, and I have authority over my soldiers. I only need to say, 'Go,' and they go, or 'Come,' and they come. And if I say to my slaves, 'Do this,' they do it."

⁹When Jesus heard this, he was amazed. Turning to the crowd that was following him, he said, "I tell you, I haven't seen faith like this in all Israel!" ¹⁰And when the officer's friends returned to his house, they found the slave completely healed.

Jesus Raises a Widow's Son

¹¹Soon afterward Jesus went with his disciples to the village of Nain, and a large crowd followed him. ¹²A funeral procession was coming out as he approached the village gate. The young man who had died was a widow's only son, and a large crowd from the village was with her. ¹³When the Lord saw her, his heart overflowed with compassion. "Don't cry!" he said. ¹⁴Then he walked over to the coffin and touched it, and the bearers stopped. "Young man," he said, "I tell you, get up." ¹⁵Then the dead boy sat up and began to talk! And Jesus gave him back to his mother.

¹⁶Great fear swept the crowd, and they praised God, saying, "A mighty prophet has risen among us," and "God has visited his people today." ¹⁷And the news about Jesus spread throughout Judea and the surrounding countryside.

Luke 7:18-35 // Matt 11:2-19

¹⁸The disciples of John the Baptist told John about everything Jesus was doing. So John called for two of his disciples, ¹⁹and he sent them to the Lord to ask him, "Are you the Messiah we've been expecting, or should we keep looking for someone else?"

²⁰John's two disciples found Jesus and said to him, "John the Baptist sent us to ask, 'Are you the Messiah we've been expecting,

7:1-10 This episode shows God's message of salvation is for Gentiles as well as Jews.

7:2 a Roman officer (literally centurion; similarly in 7:6): A centurion was in charge of a "century," approximately 100 soldiers. There were 60 centuries, or 6,000 soldiers, in a Roman legion.

7:3 Jewish elders were leaders in the Jewish community. With his tendency to abbreviate accounts, Matthew has the centurion approaching Jesus (Matt 8:5-13). Luke tells the full story in which Jewish elders, and later the centurion's friends, act as intermediaries.

7:5 he loves the Jewish people and even built a synagogue for us: Such patronage by wealthy Gentiles was common in Jewish communities throughout the Roman empire. It suggests that the centurion might have been a "God-fearer" like Cornelius (Acts 10:2), a Gentile who worshiped the God of Israel but had not fully converted to Judaism.

7:6 I am not worthy of such an honor: The man was probably showing sensitivity to Jewish concerns; pious Jews would not enter the home of a Gentile, since it would make them ceremonially unclean (see Acts 10:28; 11:12). The centurion might also have been acknowledging Jesus' superior status.

7:8 the authority of my superior officers: The Roman army was renowned for its organization and discipline. The centurion recognized authority when he saw it in Jesus' words and actions.

7:9 I haven't seen faith like this in all Israel! While many in Israel were unresponsive to the Good News of salvation, some Gentiles believed and found salvation.

7:11-17 Jesus raised three people from the dead; the others were Jairus's daughter (8:40-56) and Lazarus (John 11:38-44). Jesus has authority over life and death (cp. 1 Kgs 17:17-24; 2 Kgs 4:18-37).

7:11 The location of the village of Nain is uncertain; it might be the modern town of Nein, six miles southeast of Nazareth.

7:12 A funeral procession: In Judaism, a large crowd of mourners and intense wailing signified great love for the deceased. Mourners were hired in some cases. • Widows were the most vulnerable members of society, and God had special concern for them (Exod 22:22; Deut 10:18; 27:19). This widow's only son was her means of support and hope for the future; his death was a terrible loss (see Jer 6:26; Amos 8:10; Zech 12:10).

7:13-14 The word translated coffin may refer to a casket or a funeral bier. A Jew was rendered unclean by touching a dead body or the coffin or bier (Lev 21:1, 11-12). As when he touched the man with leprosy (5:13), however, Jesus was not defiled. He replaced disease and death with cleansing and life.

7:16 A mighty prophet: Jesus was like Elijah and Elisha. • God has visited his people today: See note on 1:68.

7:18-23 The disciples of John the Baptist: See note on 5:33. John was now in prison (3:19-20), wondering whether Jesus was truly the Messiah, since he did not act like a powerful warrior-king who would overthrow the Romans. In response, Jesus defined his messianic role.

7:19 Are you the Messiah we've been expecting: Literally Are you the one who is coming? Also in 7:20.

or should we keep looking for someone else?"

²¹At that very time, Jesus cured many people of their diseases, illnesses, and evil spirits, and he restored sight to many who were blind. ²²Then he told John's disciples, "Go back to John and tell him what you have seen and heard—the blind see, the lame walk, those with leprosy are cured, the deaf hear, the dead are raised to life, and the Good News is being preached to the poor." ²³And he added, "God blesses those who do not fall away because of me."

²⁴After John's disciples left, Jesus began talking about him to the crowds. "What kind of man did you go into the wilderness to see? Was he a weak reed, swayed by every breath of wind? ²⁵Or were you expecting to see a man dressed in expensive clothes? No, people who wear beautiful clothes and live in luxury are found in palaces. ²⁶Were you looking for a prophet? Yes, and he is more than a prophet. ²⁷John is the man to whom the Scriptures refer when they say,

'Look, I am sending my messenger ahead of you, and he will prepare your way before you.'

²⁸I tell you, of all who have ever lived, none is greater than John. Yet even the least person in the Kingdom of God is greater than he is!"

²⁹When they heard this, all the people—even the tax collectors—agreed that God's way was right, for they had been baptized by John. ³⁰But the Pharisees and experts in religious law rejected God's plan for them, for they had refused John's baptism.

³¹"To what can I compare the people of this generation?" Jesus asked. "How can I describe them? ³²They are like children playing a game in the public square. They complain to their friends,

'We played wedding songs, and you didn't dance,
so we played funeral songs,
and you didn't weep.'

³³For John the Baptist didn't spend his time eating bread or drinking wine, and you say, 'He's possessed by a demon.' ³⁴The Son of Man, on the other hand, feasts and drinks, and you say, 'He's a glutton and a drunkard, and a friend of tax collectors and other sinners!' ³⁵But wisdom is shown to be right by the lives of those who follow it."

Jesus Is Anointed by a Sinful Woman

Luke 7:36-50; cp. Matt 26:6-13 // Mark 14:3-9;
cp. John 12:1-11

³⁶One of the Pharisees asked Jesus to have dinner with him, so Jesus went to his home and sat down to eat. ³⁷When a certain immoral woman from that city heard he was eating there, she brought a beautiful

7:23 God blesses those who do not fall away because of me (or who are not offended by me): The blessing is for those who are able to put aside their personal agendas and preconceived ideas about the Messiah and accept Jesus' path of suffering.

7:27 The quotation is from Mal 3:1. In Mal 4:5-6, this messenger is identified with the prophet Elijah. Though John denied that he was Elijah (John 1:21-23), he came in the spirit and power of Elijah (1:17) to prepare the way for the Messiah (see notes on 1:17; 3:4-6).

7:28 Jesus praised John as the greatest person who ever lived under the old covenant. But even the least person in the Kingdom of God is greater than John. The blessings of the new covenant—free and complete forgiveness of sins, the indwelling presence of the Holy Spirit, and intimate knowledge of God—give believers in Jesus a new and greater position than even John enjoyed.

7:29 agreed that God's way was right: Or praised God for his justice. The Greek can be interpreted either way.

7:31-35 To what can I compare the people of this generation? Jesus compares Israel to fickle children in the marketplace who play games of make-believe. They called John the Baptist to dance (a wedding game), but the solemn prophet refused calling them instead to mourning and repentance for their sins. Then they called on Jesus to mourn (a funeral game), but he was the bridegroom who announced the joyful celebration banquet of the Kingdom of God, so it would not have been fitting for him to mourn (cp. Mark 2:19-20).

7:33 John the Baptist didn't spend his time eating bread or drinking wine: John lived an ascetic life of self-denial, appropriate to his prophetic role of announcing God's Kingdom, the coming judgment, and the need for repentance and cleansing.

7:34 Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself.

7:35 But wisdom is shown to be right by the lives of those who follow it (or But wisdom is justified by all her children): In Proverbs, Wisdom is personified as a woman who calls God's people to a life of godliness and obedience to God's commands (Prov 1:20-33; 8:1-9:6). Wisdom's children are those who live righteously, as God's word instructs.

7:36-50 Jesus' comment in 7:35 is now illustrated by one of "wisdom's children" (see note on 7:35), a repentant sinner who shows gratitude for the forgiveness she has received.

7:36 One of the Pharisees asked Jesus to have dinner with him (see "The Pharisees" at Matt 3:7, p. 1581): Jesus has more positive contact with the Pharisees in Luke than in the other Gospels. He was a respected teacher and healer, so it is not surprising that this Pharisee invited him to dinner. Not all Pharisees were antagonistic—some were interested in his teaching or merely curious. • and sat down to eat: Or and reclined.

39When the Pharisee who had invited him saw this, he said to himself, "If this man were a prophet, he would know what kind of woman is touching him. She's a sinner!"

40Then Jesus answered his thoughts. "Simon," he said to the Pharisee, "I have something to say to you."

"Go ahead, Teacher," Simon replied.

41Then Jesus told him this story: "A man loaned money to two people—500 pieces of silver to one and 50 pieces to the other.

42But neither of them could repay him, so he kindly forgave them both, canceling their debts. Who do you suppose loved him more after that?"

43Simon answered, "I suppose the one for whom he canceled the larger debt."

"That's right," Jesus said. 44Then he turned to the woman and said to Simon, "Look at this woman kneeling here. When I entered your home, you didn't offer me water to wash the dust from my feet, but she has washed them with her tears and wiped them with her hair. 45You didn't greet me with a kiss, but from the time I first came in, she has not stopped kissing my feet. 46You neglected the courtesy of olive oil to anoint my head, but she has anointed my feet with rare perfume.

47"I tell you, her sins—and they are many—have been forgiven, so she has shown me much love. But a person who is forgiven little shows only little love." 48Then Jesus said to the woman, "Your sins are forgiven."

49The men at the table said among themselves, "Who is this man, that he goes around forgiving sins?"

50And Jesus said to the woman, "Your faith has saved you; go in peace."

The Good News of the Kingdom of God (8:1-9:17)

Women Who Followed Jesus

8 Soon afterward Jesus began a tour of the nearby towns and villages, preaching and announcing the Good News about the Kingdom of God. He took his twelve disciples with him, along with some women who had been cured of evil spirits and diseases. Among them were Mary Magdalene, from whom he had cast out seven demons; Joanna, the wife of Chuza, Herod's business manager; Susanna; and many others who were contributing from their own resources to support Jesus and his disciples.

Parable of the Farmer Scattering Seed

Luke 8:4-15 // Matt 13:1-13, 18-23 // Mark 4:1-20

4One day Jesus told a story in the form of a parable to a large crowd that had gathered from many towns to hear him: 5"A farmer went out to plant his seed. As he scattered it across his field, some seed fell on a footpath, where it was stepped on, and the birds ate it. 6Other seed fell among rocks. It began yellow, or red—that was often used to make expensive containers like this beautiful . . . jar.

7:38 she knelt behind him at his feet: At a banquet, guests reclined around a low table with their feet extended outward. The woman could not reach Jesus' head to anoint him, so she poured the perfume on his feet. • wiped them off with her hair: Letting down her hair in public was scandalous, and could have constituted grounds for her husband to divorce her; kissing his feet connoted reverence. She discarded propriety due to her gratitude.

7:40 Then Jesus answered his thoughts: See note on 5:22.

7:41 500 pieces of silver: Greek 500 denarii; a denarius was equivalent to a laborer's full day's wage, so 500 denarii was almost two years' wages for a day laborer. The poor were often heavily indebted to the wealthy in first-century Galilee.

7:43 the one for whom he canceled the larger debt: Those who had been forgiven the most responded with greater gratitude and love. The woman made her extraordinary act of sacrificial love because Jesus had forgiven her sins.

7:44-46 Simon had neglected to show Jesus the common courtesies of hospitality. Since roads were dusty, a servant would wash the dust from a guest's feet. Greeting a guest with a kiss on both cheeks is normal in the Middle East even today. Anointing the head with olive oil was a way to honor a respected guest.

7:47 so she has shown me much love:

This is a better translation than the traditional "because she loved much." It was not that her great love for Jesus caused him to forgive her, but that the forgiveness she had already received from Jesus prompted her love.

8:2-3 along with some women: Rabbis of Jesus' day did not have women disciples, so this was unusual. Some of these women, like Joanna, were from wealthy families and contributed financially to Jesus' ministry (see note on 7:5).

8:2 Magdalene means "from Magdala," a village north of Tiberias on the western side of the Sea of Galilee. Mary figures prominently in the burial and resurrection accounts (24:10; Mark 15:40, 47; John 19:25; 20:1, 18). Some have said that Mary Magdalene was the woman of 7:36-38, leading to the belief that she was a former prostitute. There is no basis for this speculation.

8:4-15 The parable of the farmer scattering seed depicts people's varied responses to Jesus' ministry of proclaiming God's Kingdom.

8:5 The custom in planting was first to scatter seed and then to plow it into the soil. • The seed that fell on a footpath running through the fields would not be plowed in, so it was stepped on and eaten by birds.

8:6 fell among rocks: Often there was a limestone layer nine to twelve inches under the soil, so that the rain was trapped and seed sprouted quickly in the moist soil. But when the rain stopped, the sun evaporated the trapped moisture and the plant died.

to grow, but the plant soon wilted and died for lack of moisture. ⁷Other seed fell among thorns that grew up with it and choked out the tender plants. ⁸Still other seed fell on fertile soil. This seed grew and produced a crop that was a hundred times as much as had been planted!" When he had said this, he called out, "Anyone with ears to hear should listen and understand."

⁹His disciples asked him what this parable meant. ¹⁰He replied, "You are permitted to understand the secrets of the Kingdom of God. But I use parables to teach the others so that the Scriptures might be fulfilled:

'When they look, they won't really see.

When they hear, they won't understand.'

¹¹"This is the meaning of the parable: The seed is God's word. ¹²The seeds that fell on the footpath represent those who hear the message, only to have the devil come and take it away from their hearts and prevent them from believing and being saved. ¹³The seeds on the rocky soil represent those who hear the message and receive it with joy. But since they don't have deep roots, they believe for a while, then they fall away when they face temptation. ¹⁴The seeds that fell among the thorns represent those who hear the message, but all too quickly the message is crowded out by the cares and riches and pleasures of this life. And so they never grow into maturity. ¹⁵And the seeds that fell on the good soil represent honest, good-hearted people who hear God's word, cling to it, and patiently produce a huge harvest.

Parable of the Lamp

Luke 8:16-18 // Mark 4:21-25; cp. Matt 5:15; 13:12;

Luke 11:33

¹⁶"No one lights a lamp and then covers it with a bowl or hides it under a bed. A lamp is placed on a stand, where its light can be seen by all who enter the house. ¹⁷For all that is secret will eventually be brought into the open, and everything that is concealed will be brought to light and made known to all.

¹⁸"So pay attention to how you hear. To those who listen to my teaching, more understanding will be given. But for those who are not listening, even what they think they understand will be taken away from them."

The True Family of Jesus

¹⁹Then Jesus' mother and brothers came to see him, but they couldn't get to him because of the crowd. ²⁰Someone told Jesus, "Your mother and your brothers are standing outside, and they want to see you."

²¹Jesus replied, "My mother and my brothers are all those who hear God's word and obey it."

Jesus Calms the Storm

Luke 8:22-25 // Matt 8:23-27 // Mark 4:35-41

²²One day Jesus said to his disciples, "Let's cross to the other side of the lake." So they got into a boat and started out. ²³As they sailed across, Jesus settled down for a nap. But soon a fierce storm came down on the lake. The boat was filling with water, and they were in real danger.

²⁴The disciples went and woke him up,

8:7 fell among thorns: One type of weed looked very much like wheat as it grew, but it had larger roots and took away the moisture and nutrients that the wheat needed.

8:8 Anyone with ears to hear meant everyone who was willing to listen.

8:10 the secrets (literally mysteries) of the Kingdom of God: What was hidden in the past about God's reign was now revealed through Jesus' words and actions. • When they look . . . they won't understand: This quote is from Isa 6:9 (Greek version), a passage repeatedly used in the NT to explain Israel's rejection of the gospel (see also Matt 13:14-15; Mark 4:12; John 12:40; Acts 28:26-27). In its original context, the passage refers to God's certain judgment of Israel at the hands of the Assyrians. Israel's sin and rebelliousness had taken them beyond the point of no return, so God blinded them in preparation for judgment. Those who rejected Jesus' message were blind to the truth.

8:11 The seed is God's word: This refers to Jesus' preaching of the Good News of the Kingdom.

8:12 to have the devil come and take it away: See note on 4:2. Satan seeks to prevent unbelievers from seeing the truth.

8:13 Deep roots indicate spiritual depth and maturity. The Greek word translated temptation can also mean "testing" or "trials."

8:16-17 A small clay lamp was filled with olive oil and set in a wall alcove. Jesus' message provides light for those who listen, and it reveals their heart attitudes.

8:18 those who listen: Cp. Prov 9:9.

• those who are not listening: See note on 8:10.

8:19-20 Jesus had four brothers—James, Joseph, Judas, and Simon—and an unknown number of sisters (Mark 6:3; Matt 13:55). These children were probably born to Joseph and Mary after Jesus' virginal conception and birth. (On the other hand, some believe that Mary remained a lifelong virgin and that Joseph was therefore a widower with children from a previous marriage when he married Mary.)

8:21 those who hear God's word and obey it: Jesus was not rejecting his family, but announcing that spiritual relationships—being part of God's family—supersede family ties.

8:22-25 Jesus' calming of the storm demonstrated his authority over nature and strongly indicated his deity, since God is master of the seas (see Ps 65:7; 89:9; 104:6-7; 107:23-32).

8:23 a fierce storm came down on the lake: Severe storms are common on the Sea of Galilee, which lies in a valley surrounded by high hills.

shouting, "Master, Master, we're going to drown!"

When Jesus woke up, he rebuked the wind and the raging waves. Suddenly the storm stopped and all was calm. ²⁵Then he asked them, "Where is your faith?"

The disciples were terrified and amazed. "Who is this man?" they asked each other. "When he gives a command, even the wind and waves obey him!"

Jesus Exercises Authority over Demons

Luke 8:26-39 // Matt 8:28-34 // Mark 5:1-20

²⁶So they arrived in the region of the Gerasenes, across the lake from Galilee. ²⁷As Jesus was climbing out of the boat, a man who was possessed by demons came out to meet him. For a long time he had been homeless and naked, living in the tombs outside the town.

²⁸As soon as he saw Jesus, he shrieked and fell down in front of him. Then he screamed, "Why are you interfering with me, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? Please, I beg you, don't torture me!" ²⁹For Jesus had already commanded the evil spirit to come out of him. This spirit had often taken control of the man. Even when he was placed under guard and put in chains and shackles, he simply broke them and rushed out into the wilderness, completely under the demon's power.

³⁰Jesus demanded, "What is your name?" "Legion," he replied, for he was filled with many ³¹demons. ³¹The demons kept begging Jesus not to send them into the bottomless pit.

³²There happened to be a large herd of pigs feeding on the hillside nearby, and the demons begged him to let them enter into the pigs.

So Jesus gave them permission. ³³Then the demons came out of the man and entered the pigs, and the entire herd plunged down the steep hillside into the lake and drowned.

³⁴When the herdsmen saw it, they fled to the nearby town and the surrounding countryside, spreading the news as they ran. ³⁵People rushed out to see what had happened. A crowd soon gathered around Jesus, and they saw the man who had been freed from the demons. He was sitting at Jesus' feet, fully clothed and perfectly sane, and they were all afraid. ³⁶Then those who had seen what happened told the others how the demon-possessed man had been healed. ³⁷And all the people in the region of the Gerasenes begged Jesus to go away and leave them alone, for a great wave of fear swept over them.

So Jesus returned to the boat and left, crossing back to the other side of the lake. ³⁸The man who had been freed from the demons begged to go with him. But Jesus sent him home, saying, ³⁹"No, go back to your family, and tell them everything God has done for you." So he went all through the town proclaiming the great things Jesus had done for him.

Jesus Heals in Response to Faith

Luke 8:40-56 // Matt 9:18-26 // Mark 5:21-43

⁴⁰On the other side of the lake the crowds welcomed Jesus, because they had been waiting for him. ⁴¹Then a man named Jairus, a leader of the local synagogue, came

8:24 he rebuked the wind and the raging waves: As Jesus rebuked demons (4:41) and diseases (4:39), so now he revealed his authority by rebuking the sea (cp. 2 Sam 22:16; Ps 18:15; 104:7; 106:9; Isa 50:2; Nah 1:4).

8:26-39 This exorcism demonstrated Jesus' authority over spiritual forces. It also contrasted the faith and devotion of the freed man with the fear and rejection of the townspeople.

8:26 the region of the Gerasenes (other manuscripts read Gadarenes; still others read Gergesenes; also in 8:37; see Matt 8:28; Mark 5:1): Gerasa was a city of the Decapolis, thirty miles southeast of the Sea of Galilee. Jesus deliberately went to a Gentile region and ministered there.

8:27 living in the tombs outside the town: Touching a tomb or a dead body rendered a Jew unclean, or ceremonially defiled. Jesus willingly entered this unclean place to rescue a person enslaved by Satan.

8:28 Jesus, Son of the Most High God: See notes on 4:34, 41.

8:29 evil (literally unclean) spirit: Unclean things are unfit for God's presence (see also the note on 4:33).

8:30 A Roman legion had about 6,000 soldiers, so this man had a great many demons.

8:31 the bottomless pit (Or the abyss, or the underworld): The Greek word abussos means "bottomless" and often refers to the underworld prison of evil spirits or fallen angels (Rev 9:1-2, 11; 11:7; 17:8; 20:1, 3; cp. 2 Pet 2:4). The metaphor is taken from the apparently bottomless depth of the ocean (the ancients had no means for sounding the ocean depths, so to them it was bottomless).

8:32 a large herd of pigs: Pigs were unclean animals for Jews, which shows that the people of this region were Gentiles. The unclean demons were fit only for pigs.

8:35 sitting at Jesus' feet: The man sat in the position of a disciple, indicating his willingness to follow Jesus (see 8:37).

8:37 begged Jesus to go away: Jesus' power over spiritual forces frightened the townspeople, and their loss of property (the pigs) angered them. Their rejection contrasts with the faith of the healed man.

8:39 go back to your family: The role of disciples is to proclaim to the world what Jesus has done for them.

8:40-56 These two accounts of healing demonstrate Jesus' authority over disease and death, and illustrate the power of faith.

8:41 The leader of the local synagogue was the officer who maintained the local synagogue and organized services (see also 8:49; 13:14; Acts 13:15; 18:8, 17).

and fell at Jesus' feet, pleading with him to come home with him. ⁴²His ^honly daughter, who was about twelve years old, was dying.

As Jesus went with him, he was surrounded by the crowds. ⁴³A woman in the crowd had suffered for twelve years with constant bleeding, and she could find no cure. ⁴⁴Coming up behind Jesus, she touched the fringe of his robe. Immediately, the bleeding stopped.

⁴⁵"Who touched me?" Jesus asked.

Everyone denied it, and Peter said, "Master, this whole crowd is pressing up against you."

⁴⁶But Jesus said, "Someone deliberately touched me, for I felt healing power go out from me." ⁴⁷When the woman realized that she could not stay hidden, she began to tremble and fell to her knees in front of him. The whole crowd heard her explain why she had touched him and that she had been immediately healed. ⁴⁸"Daughter," he said to her, "your faith has made you well. Go in peace."

⁴⁹While he was still speaking to her, a messenger arrived from the home of Jairus, the leader of the synagogue. He told him, "Your daughter is dead. There's no use troubling the Teacher now."

⁵⁰But when Jesus heard what had happened, he said to Jairus, "Don't be afraid. Just have faith, and she will be healed."

⁵¹When they arrived at the house, Jesus wouldn't let anyone go in with him except Peter, John, James, and the little girl's father and mother. ⁵²The house was filled with people weeping and wailing, but he said,

"Stop the weeping! She isn't dead; she's only asleep."

⁵³But the crowd laughed at him because they all knew she had died. ⁵⁴Then Jesus took her by the hand and said in a loud voice, "My child, get up!" ⁵⁵And at that moment her life returned, and she immediately stood up! Then Jesus told them to give her something to eat. ⁵⁶Her parents were overwhelmed, but Jesus insisted that they not tell anyone what had happened.

Jesus Sends Out the Twelve Disciples

Luke 9:1-6 // Matt 10:5-15 // Mark 6:6b-13; cp. Luke 10:1-11

9 One day Jesus called together his twelve disciples and gave them power and authority to cast out all demons and to heal all diseases. ²Then he sent them out to tell everyone about the Kingdom of God and to heal the sick. ³"Take nothing for your journey," he instructed them. "Don't take a walking stick, a traveler's bag, food, money, or even a change of clothes. ⁴Wherever you go, stay in the same house until you leave town. ⁵And if a town refuses to welcome you, shake its dust from your feet as you leave to show that you have abandoned those people to their fate."

⁶So they began their circuit of the villages, preaching the Good News and healing the sick.

8:43 with constant bleeding: Some manuscripts add having spent everything she had on doctors. Perhaps it was a menstrual disorder. The tragedy was both physical and spiritual, for such bleeding rendered the woman ceremonially unclean and thereby precluded her participation in community worship (Lev 15:25-30).

8:44 The fringe of his robe probably refers to the tassels that pious Jews wore on the edges of their robes (see Num 15:38-39; Deut 22:12).

8:45 Who touched me? Jesus recognized the touch of faith by a needy person.

8:48 your faith has made you well (literally your faith has saved you). Go in peace: Jesus said the same thing to the woman who had anointed his feet (7:50). The Greek word for "save" can indicate either spiritual or physical healing. Peace (cp. Hebrew shalom) is spiritual wholeness, not just lack of conflict (see 1:79; 2:14, 29; 7:50; 19:38, 42; 24:36).

8:51 Peter, John, and James became the inner circle of Jesus' disciples (see 5:1-11; 9:28; Mark 14:32-33).

8:52 The house was filled with people weeping and wailing: See note on 7:12. • she's only asleep: Jesus emphasized the temporary nature of the girl's state. For believers, death is only temporary "sleep" (cp. John 11:11; the same term is translated as "dead/died" in Acts 7:60; 13:36; 1 Cor 11:30; 15:6, 18, 20, 51; 1 Thes 4:14-15; 5:10).

8:55 her life (or her spirit) returned: Like the raising of the widow's son (7:15), the girl's normal mortal life was restored. At the final resurrection, believers will receive immortal, glorified bodies (see note on 24:39).

8:56 not tell anyone: See note on 5:14.

9:1-6 Jesus now sent his twelve disciples

(literally the Twelve; other manuscripts read the twelve apostles) to announce the Kingdom of God and demonstrate its authority by casting out demons and healing the sick. Jesus was training them to carry on his work after he was gone.

9:3 Take nothing for your journey: They were to live in dependence on God and on the charity of those to whom they ministered. • money: Or silver coins.

9:4 stay in the same house: They were to develop lasting relationships and be content without seeking better lodging or provisions.

9:5 shake its dust from your feet: Using a symbol of rejection, they were to leave such a town to the judgment it deserved.

9:7 Herod Antipas, the ruler of Galilee: Literally Herod the tetrarch. Herod Antipas was a son of King Herod and was ruler over Galilee. See notes on 3:1, 19-20.

Jesus Feeds Five Thousand

Luke 9:10a // Mark 6:30-31

Luke 9:10b-17 // Matt 14:13-21 // Mark 6:32-44 // John 6:1-15

10When the apostles returned, they told Jesus everything they had done. Then he slipped quietly away with them toward the town of Bethsaida. 11But the crowds found out where he was going, and they followed him. He welcomed them and taught them about the Kingdom of God, and he healed those who were sick.

12Late in the afternoon the twelve disciples came to him and said, “Send the crowds away to the nearby villages and farms, so they can find food and lodging for the night. There is nothing to eat here in this remote place.”

13But Jesus said, “You feed them.”

“But we have only five loaves of bread and two fish,” they answered. “Or are you expecting us to go and buy enough food for this whole crowd?” 14For there were about 5,000 men there.

Jesus replied, “Tell them to sit down in groups of about fifty each.” 15So the people all sat down. 16Jesus took the five loaves and two fish, looked up toward heaven, and blessed them. Then, breaking the loaves into pieces, he kept giving the bread and fish to the disciples so they could distribute it to the people. 17They all ate as much as they wanted, and afterward, the disciples picked up twelve baskets of leftovers!

Climax of the Galilean Ministry (9:18-50)

Peter's Declaration of Faith

Luke 9:18-21 // Matt 16:13-20 // Mark 8:27-30;
cp. John 6:67-69

18One day Jesus left the crowds to pray alone. Only his disciples were with him, and he asked them, “Who do people say I am?”

19“Well,” they replied, “some say John the Baptist, some say Elijah, and others say you are one of the other ancient prophets risen from the dead.”

20Then he asked them, “But who do you say I am?”

Peter replied, “You are the Messiah sent from God!”

Jesus First Predicts His Death

Luke 9:22 // Matt 16:21-23 // Mark 8:31-33

21Jesus warned his disciples not to tell anyone who he was. 22“The Son of Man must suffer many terrible things,” he said. “He will be rejected by the elders, the leading priests, and the teachers of religious law. He will be killed, but on the third day he will be raised from the dead.”

9:8 Jews expected that Elijah would come prior to God's final judgment (see notes on 1:17; 3:4-6). Some Jews expected that a prophet like Moses would come (Deut 18:15).

9:9 I beheaded John: See note on 3:19-20; see also Mark 6:14-29.

9:10-17 The feeding of the 5,000 recalls God's miraculous feeding of Israel with manna in the wilderness (Exod 16; see also 2 Kgs 4:42-44). It points forward to God's final salvation as a great feast for all nations (Isa 25:6-8; 65:13-14; see “The Messianic Banquet” at 14:1-24, p. 1737).

9:10 he slipped quietly away: Jesus knew that the disciples needed a time of spiritual retreat. • The town of Bethsaida was located on the northern shore of the Sea of Galilee, east of the Jordan River. It was the hometown of Peter, Andrew (John 1:44), and Philip (John 12:21).

9:11 He welcomed them: Although Jesus wished to retreat with his disciples, he had compassion on the crowds and ministered to them.

9:13 You feed them: After their ministry of healing the sick and casting out demons, Jesus wanted the disciples to demonstrate faith in God's ability to feed the crowds.

9:17 twelve baskets of leftovers: God abundantly provides for his people.

9:18-27 Peter's confession that Jesus was the Messiah marked a turning point, as Jesus moved from demonstrating his messianic authority through miracles to explaining the unexpected suffering of the Messiah. Jesus accepted the confession but clarified that his being the Messiah would involve suffering and death. He called his disciples to follow him regardless of the cost.

9:19 some say Elijah: See note on 9:8.

9:20 the Messiah: Or the Christ. Messiah (a Hebrew term) and Christ (a Greek term) both mean “anointed one.” The phrase could be translated “the Lord's Anointed,” a designation for the king of Israel (1 Sam 24:6, 10; 2 Sam 19:21; Ps 2:2). David was the Lord's anointed, as was the Messiah.

9:21-22 not to tell anyone who he was: Jesus did not want to encourage a popular uprising; his calling was not to overthrow Rome, but to suffer and die.

9:22 Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself. • must suffer many terrible things: This was the first of Jesus' prophecies concerning his coming death in Jerusalem (see 9:44; 17:25; see also note on 18:31-34). Jesus would fulfill Isa 52:13-53:12, in which the servant of the Lord (the Messiah) became a saving sacrifice for God's people. These events were part of God's purpose and plan. Despite opposition from human beings and from the spiritual forces of Satan, God works through the actions of human beings to accomplish his purposes. Though wicked men plotted against Jesus and put him to death, God accomplished salvation by raising Jesus from the dead (24:7, 26-27, 44-47; Acts 2:23-24; 3:18; 4:28). • elders: See note on 7:3. • the teachers of religious law: See note on 5:17. • leading priests: Though Israel had only one high priest, the upper-class priests were the aristocracy; they served on the Sanhedrin and held positions of power in Jerusalem.

Teachings about Discipleship

²³Then he said to the crowd, "If any of you wants to be my follower, you must give up your own way, take up your cross daily, and follow me. ²⁴If you try to hang on to your life, you will lose it. But if you give up your life for my sake, you will save it. ²⁵And what do you benefit if you gain the whole world but are yourself lost or destroyed? ²⁶If anyone is ashamed of me and my message, the Son of Man will be ashamed of that person when he returns in his glory and in the glory of the Father and the holy angels. ²⁷I tell you the truth, some standing here right now will not die before they see the Kingdom of God."

The Transfiguration

Luke 9:28-36 // Matt 17:1-9 // Mark 9:2-10

²⁸About eight days later Jesus took Peter, John, and James up on a mountain to pray. ²⁹And as he was praying, the appearance of his face was transformed, and his clothes became dazzling white. ³⁰Suddenly, two men, Moses and Elijah, appeared and began talking with Jesus. ³¹They were glorious to see. And they were speaking about his exodus from this world, which was about to be fulfilled in Jerusalem.

³²Peter and the others had fallen asleep. When they woke up, they saw Jesus' glory and the two men standing with him. ³³As Moses and Elijah were starting to leave, Peter, not even knowing what he was saying, blurted out, "Master, it's wonderful for us to be here! Let's make three shelters as memorials—one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah." ³⁴But even as he was saying this, a cloud overshadowed them, and terror gripped them as the cloud covered them.

³⁵Then a voice from the cloud said, "This is my Son, my Chosen One. Listen to him." ³⁶When the voice finished, Jesus was there alone. They didn't tell anyone at that time what they had seen.

Luke 9:37-43a // Matt 17:14-21 // Mark 9:14-29

³⁷The next day, after they had come down the mountain, a large crowd met Jesus. ³⁸A man in the crowd called out to him, "Teacher, I beg you to look at my son, my only child. ³⁹An evil spirit keeps seizing him, making him scream. It throws him into convulsions so that he foams at the mouth. It batters him and hardly ever leaves him alone. ⁴⁰I begged your disciples to cast out the spirit, but they couldn't do it."

⁴¹Jesus said, "You faithless and corrupt people! How long must I be with you and put up with you?" Then he said to the man, "Bring your son here."

9:23-27 If any of you wants to be my follower: After predicting his own suffering and death, Jesus taught that all who follow him must also experience death to self.

9:23 take up your cross daily: This did not simply mean carrying a heavy burden, but suffering a violent death by crucifixion. Believers must be completely willing to die to themselves and to live for God, even at the cost of their lives.

9:24 hang on to your life: Placing oneself on the throne denies Jesus. The result is to lose one's life, mainly at the last judgment (9:26; John 12:25).

9:26 the Son of Man . . . when he returns in his glory: See Dan 7:13-14; "The Son of Man" at Matt 8:18-20, p. 1593.

9:27 This difficult verse has been interpreted as referring to: (1) the second coming of Christ; (2) the destruction of Jerusalem in AD 70; (3) the resurrection of Jesus; and (4) the transfiguration, which follows in 9:28-36. The last possibility is the most likely.

9:28-36 At the transfiguration, Jesus' true glory was unveiled for three disciples to witness, confirming Peter's confession that Jesus was the Christ. Moses and Elijah confirmed that Jesus fulfilled the OT prophecies concerning the Messiah.

9:28 About eight days later: Mark says "after six days," referring to full days, while Luke includes parts of days. • Peter, John, and James were the inner circle of Jesus' disciples (see also 8:51; Mark 14:32-33). • a mountain: The site of the transfiguration is traditionally regarded as Mount Tabor in southern Galilee. Some have suggested Mount Hermon, which is closer to Caesarea Philippi, where Peter's confession (9:18-27) took place.

9:29 as he was praying: See note on 3:21. • his clothing became dazzling white (literally became bright as a flash of lightning): Jesus' pre-existent glory shone through his human body (cp. Ezek 1:4; Dan 7:9; see also Exod 34:29).

9:31 his exodus from this world: The Greek word exodos means "departure." As the exodus from Egypt was God's great act of deliverance in the OT, so Jesus' exodus from this world—his death, resurrection, and ascension—was God's great act of deliverance in the NT. Jesus would accomplish a new and greater exodus.

9:33 Let's make three shelters as memorials (literally three tabernacles): The Greek word translated shelter (skēnē) is the same word used in the Greek OT to refer to the Tabernacle, Israel's portable temple in the wilderness, and for the portable shelters Jews lived in during the Festival of Shelters (Lev 23:42; Neh 8:14-17). Peter might have wanted to prolong the event by giving Jesus, Moses, and Elijah a place to stay.

9:34 a cloud overshadowed them: Clouds often veil the presence of God (Exod 16:10; 19:9; 24:16).

9:35 The voice from the cloud recalls God's voice at Jesus' baptism (3:22).

• This is my Son, my Chosen One (some manuscripts read This is my dearly loved Son): My Chosen One alludes to Isa 42:1, identifying Jesus as the suffering servant of the Lord. • Listen to him is from Deut 18:15, identifying Jesus as "the prophet like Moses" (see Acts 3:22; 7:37).

9:38 my only child: The loss of an only son was especially tragic, since this left no one to carry on the family name (see note on 7:12; see Gen 22:16; 1 Kgs 17:17-24; Jer 6:26; Amos 8:10; Zech 12:10).

9:39 An evil spirit keeps seizing him: Demons sometimes inflict physical illnesses such as lameness (13:11) and muteness (11:14).

9:41 You faithless and corrupt people: It is unclear whether Jesus was speaking to the disciples or to the people as a whole.

5. THE SAVIOR ON THE WAY TOJERUSALEM (9:51–19:27)Discipleship along the Way (9:51–11:13)Opposition from Samaritans ⁵¹As the time drew near for him to ascend to heaven, Jesus resolutely set out for Jerusalem. ⁵²He sent messengers ahead to a Samaritan village to prepare for his arrival. ⁵³But the people of the village did not welcome Jesus because he was on his way to Jerusalem. ⁵⁴When James and John saw this, they said to Jesus, “Lord, should we call down fire from heaven to burn them up?” ⁵⁵But Jesus turned and rebuked them. ⁵⁶So they went on to another village.

The Cost of Following Jesus

Luke 9:57–62 // Matt 8:18–22

⁵⁷As they were walking along, someone said to Jesus, “I will follow you wherever you go.”

⁵⁸But Jesus replied, “Foxes have dens to live in, and birds have nests, but the Son of Man has no place even to lay his head.”

⁵⁹He said to another person, “Come, follow me.”

The man agreed, but he said, “Lord, first let me return home and bury my father.”

⁶⁰But Jesus told him, “Let the spiritually dead bury their own dead! Your duty is to go and preach about the Kingdom of God.”

⁶¹Another said, “Yes, Lord, I will follow you, but first let me say good-bye to my family.”

⁶²But Jesus told him, “Anyone who puts a hand to the plow and then looks back is not fit for the Kingdom of God.”

So pray to the Lord who is in charge of the harvest; ask him to send more workers into his fields. ³Now go, and remember that I am sending you out as lambs among wolves. ⁴Don’t take any money with you, nor a traveler’s bag, nor an extra pair of sandals. And don’t stop to greet anyone on the road.

9:51–19:44 Jesus’ journey to Jerusalem was a new phase in the suffering mission of the Messiah. In this section, Jesus prepared his disciples for what was to come, while the opposition from the Jewish leaders increased.

9:51 Jesus resolutely set out for Jerusalem: Though the route was indirect, Jerusalem was Jesus’ ultimate destination.

9:52–53 a Samaritan village: Jews and Samaritans had a history of conflict and racial prejudice; they hated each other (see note on 10:33). The Samaritans, who worshiped on Mount Gerizim, probably assumed that Jesus was traveling to Jerusalem to worship there.

9:54 call down fire from heaven to burn them up: Some manuscripts add as Elijah did. Three times, Elijah called down fire from heaven against the enemies of God (1 Kgs 18:38; 2 Kgs 1:1–17). In their zeal, James and John wanted to do the same.

9:55–56 Some manuscripts add an expanded conclusion to verse 55 and an additional sentence in verse 56: And he said, “You don’t realize what your hearts are like. For the Son of Man has not come to destroy people’s lives, but to save them.”

9:57–62 As he traveled toward Jerusalem to suffer and die, Jesus explained the cost to those who wished to follow him.

9:58 no place even to lay his head: Any disciple of Jesus must be ready to go anywhere and to give up home and security.

9:59 let me . . . bury my father: Respect for parents was a very important value in first-century Israel. Among other things, this meant providing them with an honorable burial. Jesus called for a commitment that took precedence over all human relationships.

9:60 Let the spiritually dead bury their own dead! Literally Let the dead bury their own dead. The word “spiritually” accurately reflects Jesus’ meaning, which is a play on the meaning of the word dead.

9:61–62 let me say good-bye to my family: The statement echoes Elisha’s request of Elijah (1 Kgs 19:20). Jesus required an even more complete commitment from his disciples. • puts a hand to the plow and looks back: The ancient farmer guided a light plow with his left hand and his oxen with the right. Looking away would turn the plow out of its path. For a believer, looking back meant placing earthly concerns ahead of God.

10:1–20 The Lord now chose seventy-two (some manuscripts read seventy; also in 10:17): The mission of the Twelve (9:1–6) represented Jesus’ ministry to Israel; this mission represented his outreach to the Gentiles. The numbers 72 or 70 represent the nations of the world. Genesis 10 lists 70 nations in the Hebrew text, but the Septuagint—the Greek OT—lists 72. Luke, who used the Septuagint, probably wrote 72, and then a later scribe “corrected” the text to agree with the Hebrew. The point is that the Good News is for both Jews and Gentiles.

10:2 The harvest refers to people who need to hear the Good News and be gathered to God’s presence (cp. Isa 27:12). There was urgency to the task, just as crops have to be brought in at the exact time when they are ripe. More workers were needed.

10:3 lambs among wolves: Jesus’ followers are not to dominate others, but to sacrifice themselves for the benefit of others. This makes them vulnerable (see Jer 5:6; Ezek 22:27; Hab 1:8; Zeph 3:3), but the Good Shepherd (Ps 23:1) protects them from the wolves.

10:4 Don’t take any money with you: Cp. 9:3. Jesus’ disciples were to depend on God and on the help of those whom they served. • don’t stop to greet anyone on the road: This did not mean being antisocial, but staying focused on the task Jesus had given them.

10:5 God’s peace means spiritual blessings and wholeness, the shalom of God (see note on 8:48).

around from home to home. Stay in one place, eating and drinking what they provide. Don't hesitate to accept hospitality, because those who work deserve their pay.

8 "If you enter a town and it welcomes you, eat whatever is set before you. 9 Heal the sick, and tell them, 'The Kingdom of God is near you now.' 10 But if a town refuses to welcome you, go out into its streets and say, 11 'We wipe even the dust of your town from our feet to show that we have abandoned you to your fate. And know this—the Kingdom of God is near!' 12 I assure you, even wicked Sodom will be better off than such a town on judgment day.

No, you will go down to the place of the dead."

16 Then he said to the disciples, "Anyone who accepts your message is also accepting me. And anyone who rejects you is rejecting me. And anyone who rejects me is rejecting God, who sent me."

17 When the seventy-two disciples returned, they joyfully reported to him, "Lord, even the demons obey us when we use your name!"

18 "Yes," he told them, "I saw satan fall from heaven like lightning! 19 Look, I have given you authority over all the power of the enemy, and you can walk among snakes and scorpions and crush them. Nothing will injure you. 20 But don't rejoice because evil spirits obey you; rejoice because your names are registered in heaven."

Jesus' Prayer of Thanksgiving

Luke 10:21-22 // Matt 11:25-27

Luke 10:23-24 // Matt 13:16-17

21 At that same time Jesus was filled with the joy of the Holy Spirit, and he said, "O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, thank you for hiding these things from those who think themselves wise and clever, and for revealing them to the childlike. Yes, Father, it pleased you to do it this way.

22 "My Father has entrusted everything to me. No one truly knows the Son except the Father, and no one truly knows the Father except the Son and those to whom the Son chooses to reveal him."

23 Then when they were alone, he turned to the disciples and said, "Blessed are the eyes that see what you have seen. 24 I tell you, many prophets and kings longed to see what you see, but they didn't see it. And they longed to hear what you hear, but they didn't hear it."

The Most Important Commandment

Luke 10:25-28; cp. Matt 22:34-40 // Mark 12:28-31

25 One day an expert in religious law stood up to test Jesus by asking him this question: "Teacher, what should I do to inherit eternal life?"

26 Jesus replied, "What does the law of Moses say? How do you read it?"

10:7 Don't move around from home to home: See note on 9:4. • because those who work deserve their pay: Those who minister for Jesus should receive compensation from those they serve (see also 1 Cor 9:14; 1 Tim 5:18).

10:9 The same mission was given to the Twelve (see 9:1). • Heal the sick: Healing was a sign of salvation (Isa 29:18-19; 35:5); it was physical evidence that the Kingdom of God was present (see note on 7:22).

10:11 See note on 9:5.

10:12 God destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah because of their wickedness (Gen 18:16-19:29).

10:13 Korazin and Bethsaida, two of the towns in which Jesus ministered, were located on the northern shore of the Sea of Galilee (see note on 9:10). • Tyre and Sidon were Gentile cities in Phoenicia, on the Mediterranean coast north of Galilee. The prophets had pronounced messages of judgment against their wickedness (Isa 23; Ezek 28).

10:15 Capernaum was Jesus' base of operations during his Galilean ministry; this town saw many of his miracles (see 4:31-41). • to the place of the dead (Greek to Hades): Though Capernaum was blessed by the Messiah's presence, it would be judged for its pride and rejection of Jesus.

10:18 I saw Satan fall from heaven like lightning! See Rev 12:7-12.

10:19 Snakes and scorpions were symbols of danger and evil (see Deut 8:15; Num 21:6-9; 1 Kgs 12:14; Isa 11:8; Ezek 2:6). Satan is the ancient serpent who tempted Eve (Gen 3:15; Rom 16:20; Rev 12:9; 20:2), and demonic forces are described as scorpions (Rev 9:3-4).

• Nothing will injure you: This didn't mean that Jesus' followers should take dangerous chances. The point is that God protects his servants (e.g., Acts 28:3-6).

10:20 Disciples should not rejoice in their spiritual power, but in the greatness of God who freely gives them salvation. • your names are registered in heaven: For the record of salvation in heaven's books, see Exod 32:32-33; Ps 69:28; Isa 4:3; Dan 12:1; Mal 3:16-17; Phil 4:3; Heb 12:23; Rev 3:5; 13:8; 17:8; 20:12, 15; 21:27.

10:21 hiding these things: God uses simple things that a child can understand to shame those who think themselves wise but are foolish in God's eyes (see Isa 29:14; 1 Cor 1:18-31).

10:22 The Father and the Son share an intimate relationship. Jesus came to earth to reveal the Father to a lost world (see John 1:1-18).

10:23 that see what you have seen: The disciples witnessed the arrival of God's promised salvation, the inauguration of the Kingdom of God.

10:25 an expert in religious law: See note on 5:17.

²⁷The man answered, "You must love the LORD your God with all your heart, all your soul, all your strength, and all your mind. And, 'Love your neighbor as yourself.'"

²⁸"Right!" Jesus told him. "Do this and you will live!"

Parable of the Good Samaritan

²⁹The man wanted to justify his actions, so he asked Jesus, "And who is my neighbor?"

³⁰Jesus replied with a story: "A Jewish man was traveling from Jerusalem down to Jericho, and he was attacked by bandits. They stripped him of his clothes, beat him up, and left him half dead beside the road.

³¹By chance a priest came along. But when he saw the man lying there, he crossed to the other side of the road and passed him by. ³²A Temple assistant walked over and looked at him lying there, but he also passed by on the other side.

³³Then a despised Samaritan came along, and when he saw the man, he felt compassion for him. ³⁴Going over to him, the Samaritan soothed his wounds with olive oil and wine and bandaged them. Then he put the man on his own donkey and took him to an inn, where he took care of him. ³⁵The next day he handed the innkeeper two silver coins, telling him, 'Take care of

Mark 14:3-9

John 11:1-44; 12:1-

11, 17

The sisters Martha and Mary lived with their brother Lazarus in Bethany, near Jerusalem; Jesus loved and visited this family. They are mentioned only in the Gospels of Luke and John (this Lazarus is not Lazarus the beggar from Luke 16:19-31).

Luke's account (10:38-42) focuses on the contrast between Martha and Mary. When Jesus visited their home, Martha was busy in the kitchen and became upset with her sister for not helping her prepare the meal. Jesus defended Mary's desire to simply sit and learn from him as the most important thing.

John's stories focus on Jesus' act of raising Lazarus from the dead (John 11:1-44; cp. Matt 26:6-13; Mark 14:3-9). When Jesus arrived in Bethany, four days after Lazarus had died, the sisters expressed their dismay that Jesus had not come in time to heal their sick brother. Jesus, deeply moved by the weeping of Lazarus's friends, went to the tomb and ordered Lazarus to come out. To everyone's astonishment, he did so, bound in the cloths he had been buried in. This amazing miracle exemplifies Jesus as the giver of eternal life (John 11:25-26). Ironically, this act of restoring Lazarus's life also galvanized the Jewish leaders to bring about Jesus' death because so many people were responding to Jesus' miracles (John 11:47-53; 12:10-11).

Soon thereafter, when the family invited Jesus for a celebration meal, Mary poured a bottle of extremely expensive perfume on Jesus as an expression of her gratitude. When people criticized her for what they considered an extravagant waste, Jesus defended her action, saying that it anticipated his coming death (John 12:1-8).

10:27 You must love the LORD your God: Jesus identified Deut 6:5 and Lev 19:18 as the two greatest commandments (Mark 12:28-34). Deuteronomy 6:5 is part of the prayer known as the Shema, which every Jew was to repeat daily.

10:28 Do this and you will live! Jesus was not suggesting that people would be saved by their works; rather, such love expresses genuine faith and devotion to the Lord.

10:29 who is my neighbor? A neighbor, in this context, was normally identified as a fellow Israelite.

10:30-37 Jesus' parable shows that true neighbors love even their enemies (10:29). Authentic spirituality is not based on ethnic identity or religious associations, but on love for God and for others.

10:30 The road from Jerusalem down to Jericho dropped 3,300 feet (1,000 meters) through rugged terrain where robbers often lay in wait for travelers.

10:31 a priest: Priests were descendants of Aaron from the tribe of Levi (Exod 28:1-3). They served in the Temple and offered sacrifices to God. • passed him by: A priest or a Levite became unclean and unable to serve in the Temple if he touched a dead body. This priest was unwilling to risk ritual impurity by helping a person in desperate trouble.

10:32 A Temple assistant (literally a Levite): Levites were members of the tribe of Levi. They were not given a tribal homeland in Israel, but were dedicated to God (Num 3:41, 45; 8:18; 35:2-3; Deut 18:1; Josh 14:3) as assistants to the priests in the service of the Temple.

10:33 a despised Samaritan: This reversal in the story must have left the listeners aghast. Jews and Samaritans hated each other (see 9:52-53; 17:16; John 4:4-42). After the Assyrians conquered the northern kingdom of Israel, Assyrian colonists intermarried with Israelites left in Samaria; these inhabitants became known as Samaritans. After the Judeans returned from Babylon, conflict arose between the Jews and the Samaritans (Ezra 4), who built a rival temple on Mount Gerizim and used their own version of the Pentateuch (Genesis—Deuteronomy) as their Scripture. Hatred between the two increased dramatically when the Jewish king John Hyrcanus attacked the Samaritans and destroyed the temple on Mount Gerizim (about 128 BC). In this context of mutual animosity, no first-century Jew would expect a despised Samaritan to help a wounded Jew. But in God's Kingdom, a despised foreigner becomes a helping neighbor!

10:34 Oil soothed the wound; wine was a disinfectant.

10:35 two silver coins: Greek two

Jesus Visits Martha and Mary

³⁸As Jesus and the disciples continued on their way to Jerusalem, they came to a certain village where a woman named Martha welcomed him into her home. ³⁹Her sister, Mary, sat at the Lord's feet, listening to what he taught. ⁴⁰But Martha was distracted by the big dinner she was preparing. She came to Jesus and said, "Lord, doesn't it seem unfair to you that my sister just sits here while I do all the work? Tell her to come and help me."

⁴¹But the Lord said to her, "My dear Martha, you are worried and upset over all these details! ⁴²There is only one thing worth being concerned about. Mary has discovered it, and it will not be taken away from her."

Teaching about Prayer

Luke 11:1-4 // Matt 6:9-13

Luke 11:9-13 // Matt 7:7-11

11 Once Jesus was in a certain place praying. As he finished, one of his disciples came to him and said, "Lord, teach us to pray, just as John taught his disciples."

²Jesus said, "This is how you should pray:

"Father, may your name be kept holy.

May your Kingdom come soon.

³Give us each day the food we need,

⁴and forgive us our sins, as we forgive those who sin against us.

And don't let us yield to temptation."

⁵Then, teaching them more about prayer, he used this story: "Suppose you went to a friend's house at midnight, wanting to borrow three loaves of bread. You say to him, 'A friend of mine has just arrived for a visit, and I have nothing for him to eat.' ⁷And suppose he calls out from his bedroom, 'Don't bother me. The door is locked for the night, and my family and I are all in bed. I can't help you.' ⁸But I tell you this—though he won't do it for friendship's sake, if you keep knocking long enough, he will get up and

9:28; 11:1-13; 18:1-8;
22:32, 39-46;

In Luke's Gospel, Jesus prayed at critical events in his life: his baptism (3:21), before calling the Twelve (6:12), at the transfiguration (9:28), for Peter before his denial (22:32), and for his murderers from the cross (23:34). He also taught the disciples to pray (11:1-4) and told parables about the need for persistent prayer (11:5-13; 18:1-8).

Jesus' prayers are part of Luke's emphasis on the intimacy between the Father and the Son. Jesus lived in communion with the Father, followed the Father's purpose, and remained faithful to the Father's will. In Gethsemane, Jesus agonized over the suffering that lay ahead, but he prayed, "I want your will to be done, not mine" (22:42). On the cross, he expressed total dependence on the Father, uttering as his last words, "Father, I entrust my spirit into your hands!" (23:46). Jesus modeled for us a life of trust and dependence on our heavenly Father.

denarii. A denarius was equivalent to a laborer's full day's wage.

10:38-42 Martha . . . Mary and their brother Lazarus were good friends of Jesus who lived in Bethany, east of Jerusalem (see John 11:1).

10:39 Mary . . . sat at the Lord's feet in the position of a disciple (cp. Acts 22:3). Rabbis did not usually have female disciples.

10:40 Martha was distracted by the big dinner she was preparing: Hospitality was valued highly, and Martha was fulfilling the expected role of a woman. She was frustrated that Mary was not.

10:42 There is only one thing worth being concerned about. Mary has discovered it: Jesus' words were shocking. Women were expected to serve domestically and were forbidden to learn as disciples from a rabbi. Jesus validated Mary's desire to be Jesus' disciple.

11:1 praying: See note on 3:21.

11:2-4 This is how you should pray: The "Lord's Prayer" was a model for Jesus' disciples to follow.

11:2 Some manuscripts add additional phrases from the Lord's Prayer as it is presented in Matt 6:9-13.

11:3 Give us each day the food we need: Or Give us each day our food for the day; or Give us each day our food for tomorrow. The Greek can be interpreted in various ways.

11:4 And don't let us yield to temptation (or And keep us from being tested): This is a difficult phrase in the Greek.

God does not tempt his people (Jas 1:13), but since testing is a growth-producing part of our Christian life (Jas 1:2-4), should believers pray to avoid it? The phrase probably means "protect us during temptation."

11:6 A friend of mine has just arrived for a visit: Standards of hospitality in first-century Jewish culture required a host to find adequate provisions for a visitor.

11:8 because of your shameless persistence (or in order to avoid shame, or so his reputation won't be damaged): Shame would also lie on the man who didn't want to get up, since hospitality was a community requirement. God protects his good name by providing for his people.

give you whatever you need because of your shameless persistence.

⁹And so I tell you, keep on asking, and you will receive what you ask for. Keep on seeking, and you will find. Keep on knocking, and the door will be opened to you. ¹⁰For everyone who asks, receives. Everyone who seeks, finds. And to everyone who knocks, the door will be opened.

¹¹"You fathers—if your children ask for a fish, do you give them a snake instead? ¹²Or if they ask for an egg, do you give them a scorpion? Of course not! ¹³So if you sinful people know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to those who ask him."

The Source of Jesus' Power

¹⁴One day Jesus cast out a demon from a man who couldn't speak, and when the demon was gone, the man began to speak. The crowds were amazed, ¹⁵but some of them said, "No wonder he can cast out demons. He gets his power from ¹⁶Satan, the prince of demons." ¹⁶Others, trying to test Jesus, demanded that he show them a miraculous sign from heaven to prove his authority.

¹⁷He knew their thoughts, so he said, "Any kingdom divided by civil war is doomed. A family splintered by feuding will fall apart.

¹⁸You say I am empowered by ¹⁹Satan. But if Satan is divided and fighting against himself, how can his kingdom survive? ¹⁹And if I am empowered by ²⁰Satan, what about your own exorcists? They cast out demons, too, so they will condemn you for what you have said. ²⁰But if I am casting out demons by the power of God, then the Kingdom of God has arrived among you. ²¹For when a strong man is fully armed and guards his palace, his possessions are safe—²²until someone even stronger attacks and overpowers him, strips him of his weapons, and carries off his belongings.

²³"Anyone who isn't with me opposes me, and anyone who isn't working with me is actually working against me.

²⁴"When an evil spirit leaves a person, it goes into the desert, searching for rest. But when it finds none, it says, 'I will return to the person I came from.' ²⁵So it returns and finds that its former home is all swept and in order. ²⁶Then the spirit finds seven other spirits more evil than itself, and they all enter the person and live there. And so that person is worse off than before."

²⁷As he was speaking, a woman in the crowd called out, "God bless your mother—the womb from which you came, and the breasts that nursed you!"

²⁸Jesus replied, "But even more ²⁹blessed are all who hear the word of God and put it into practice."

11:11-12 if your children ask: Some manuscripts add for bread, do you give them a stone? Or [if they ask], • A fish and an egg were common foods. A scorpion resembles an egg when it curls into a ball to lure its prey. Giving a snake or a scorpion would be a cruel practical joke, substituting something deadly for a good meal. No loving father would do such a thing.

11:13 give the Holy Spirit: Matthew's parallel (Matt 7:11) reads "give good gifts." The Holy Spirit is the greatest gift for believers, providing guidance, power, and the seal of salvation. Luke gives special prominence to the work of the Holy Spirit in Luke and Acts.

11:14-32 Jesus faced two challenges. He answered the first, an accusation that he was casting out demons by Satan's power (11:15), in 11:17-26. The second was a demand for miraculous signs (11:16), which he answered in 11:29-32.

11:14 a demon from a man who couldn't speak: Demons sometimes inflict physical disease or disability.

11:15 Satan: Greek Beelzeboul; also in 11:18-19; other manuscripts read Beezeboul; Latin version reads Beelzebub. Beelzeboul ("Baal, the prince") was the name of a Canaanite god that later came to be used as a name for Satan. The Jews mocked the name, calling him Beelzebub ("lord of the flies").

11:17 He knew their thoughts: See 5:22; 7:40; 9:47. • Any kingdom divided by civil war: Jesus' first response to the accusation was that he could not be working for Satan; he was tearing down Satan's kingdom by casting out demons.

11:20 by the power of God (literally by the finger of God): See Exod 8:19. • the Kingdom of God has arrived among you: Jesus' exorcisms were evidence that the Kingdom of God was present.

11:21-22 The strong man is Satan; the stronger man is Jesus. Jesus' exorcisms demonstrated that he was defeating and plundering Satan's property—those people held in bondage by him (cp. Isa 49:24-26).

11:23 Anyone who isn't with me opposes me: See note on 9:50.

11:24 evil (literally unclean) spirit: See note on 4:33.

11:26 seven other spirits: Seven may indicate completeness, meaning that the man was completely under their power, or it could simply indicate an overwhelming force.

11:28 even more blessed: Jesus again affirmed that our spiritual life and our relationship with God are more important than physical ancestry and family relationships (see note on 8:21).

11:29-30 The sign of Jonah could refer to the resurrection; Jonah's time in the fish was a sign to the Ninevites that God had sent him, like Jesus' time in the grave (see Matt 12:40). It could

Now someone greater than Solomon is here—but you refuse to listen. ³²The people of Nineveh will also stand up against this generation on judgment day and condemn it, for they repented of their sins at the preaching of Jonah. Now someone greater than Jonah is here—but you refuse to repent.

Receiving the Light

³³"No one lights a lamp and then hides it or puts it under a basket. Instead, a lamp is placed on a stand, where its light can be seen by all who enter the house.

³⁴"Your eye is like a lamp that provides light for your body. When your eye is healthy, your whole body is filled with light. But when it is unhealthy, your body is filled with darkness. ³⁵Make sure that the light you think you have is not actually darkness. ³⁶If you are filled with light, with no dark corners, then your whole life will be radiant, as though a floodlight were filling you with light."

Jesus Criticizes the Religious Leaders

Luke 11:37-52; cp. Matt 23:23-36

³⁷As Jesus was speaking, one of the Pharisees invited him home for a meal. So he went in and took his place at the table. ³⁸His host was amazed to see that he sat down to eat without first performing the hand-washing ceremony required by Jewish custom. ³⁹Then the Lord said to him, "You Pharisees are so careful to clean the outside of the cup and the dish, but inside you are filthy—full of greed and wickedness! ⁴⁰Fools! Didn't God make the inside as well as the outside? ⁴¹So clean the inside by giving gifts to the poor, and you will be clean all over.

⁴²"What sorrow awaits you Pharisees! For you are careful to tithe even the tiniest income from your herb gardens, but you ignore justice and the love of God. You should tithe, yes, but do not neglect the more important things.

⁴³"What sorrow awaits you Pharisees! For you love to sit in the seats of honor in the synagogues and receive respectful greetings as you walk in the marketplaces. ⁴⁴Yes, what sorrow awaits you! For you are like hidden graves in a field. People walk over them without knowing the corruption they are stepping on."

⁴⁵"Teacher," said an expert in religious law, "you have insulted us, too, in what you just said."

⁴⁶"Yes," said Jesus, "what sorrow also awaits you experts in religious law! For you crush people with unbearable religious simply mean that Jonah and Jesus both preached God's warning to repent (see 11:32). • Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself.

11:31 The queen of Sheba (literally The queen of the south): Sheba was a kingdom in southern Arabia. The queen traveled a great distance to hear Solomon's wisdom (1 Kgs 10:1-13; 2 Chr 9:1-12).

11:33 No one lights a lamp and then hides it: See note on 8:16-17. • Some manuscripts do not include or puts it under a basket.

11:35-36 Light and darkness are metaphors for good and evil (John 1:5; 3:19; 8:12; 12:35; Acts 26:18; Rom 13:12; 2 Cor 4:6; 6:14; Eph 5:8; 1 Thes 5:5; 1 Pet 2:9; 1 Jn 1:5; 2:8-9).

11:37 one of the Pharisees invited him home for a meal: See notes on 7:36 and 14:1. • and took his place at the table: Or and reclined.

11:38 the hand-washing ceremony required by Jewish custom: The Pharisees had developed elaborate washing rituals to ensure ceremonial purity (see Mark 7:1-5).

11:39 The Pharisees had meticulous rules for ceremonially cleaning cups and utensils for religious purity. Jesus accused them of cleaning only the outside of the cup (following external rules) but leaving the inside . . . filthy (keeping unrighteousness in their hearts).

11:41 by giving gifts to the poor: Acts of love reveal internal righteousness.

11:42-52 What sorrow awaits you Pharisees! Woes are the opposite of blessings (see note on 6:24-26). Jesus pronounced six woes, three against the Pharisees (11:42, 43, 44) and three against the teachers of religious law (11:46, 47, 52).

11:42 tithe even the tiniest income from your herb gardens (literally tithe the mint, the rue, and every herb): Tithing was required by the law (Deut 14:22-29; Lev 27:30-33; Num 18:21-32; 2 Chr 31:5-12). The Pharisees were meticulous in making sure that everything was properly tithed, but they ignored the more important issues—justice and the love of God.

11:43 The elders of the synagogues had special seats of honor. • The respectful greetings were honorable ways of addressing social and religious superiors (like addressing a judge as "your honor").

11:44 hidden graves in a field: Touching a grave or a dead body rendered a Jew ceremonially unclean (see note on 7:13-14). Jesus accused the religious leaders of being a defiling influence rather than a purifying one. This was a strongly offensive accusation (11:45).

11:45 an expert in religious law: The experts in religious law were closely aligned with the Pharisees and shared the same zeal for keeping the law of Moses.

11:46 unbearable religious demands: This refers to the oral tradition with all its intricate details on living according to torah (God's instruction in the books of Moses). The oral tradition placed a great burden upon the Jewish people.

demands, and you never lift a finger to ease the burden. ⁴⁷What sorrow awaits you! For you build monuments for the prophets your own ancestors killed long ago. ⁴⁸But in fact, you stand as witnesses who agree with what your ancestors did. They killed the prophets, and you join in their crime by building the monuments! ⁴⁹This is what God in his wisdom said about you: 'I will send prophets and apostles to them, but they will kill some and persecute the others.'

⁵⁰As a result, this generation will be held responsible for the murder of all God's prophets from the creation of the world—⁵¹from the murder of Abel to the murder of Zechariah, who was killed between the altar and the sanctuary. Yes, it will certainly be charged against this generation.

⁵²"What sorrow awaits you experts in religious law! For you remove the key to knowledge from the people. You don't enter the Kingdom yourselves, and you prevent others from entering."

⁵³As Jesus was leaving, the teachers of religious law and the Pharisees became hostile and tried to provoke him with many questions. ⁵⁴They wanted to trap him into saying something they could use against him.

Teaching and Preparation for Crisis along the Way (12:1–13:35)

A Warning against Hypocrisy

Luke 12:2–9 // Matt 10:26–33

Luke 12:10; cp. Matt 12:31–32 // Mark 3:28–30

12 Meanwhile, the crowds grew until thousands were milling about and stepping on each other. Jesus turned first to his disciples and warned them, "Beware of the yeast of the Pharisees—their hypocrisy.

²The time is coming when everything that is covered up will be revealed, and all that is secret will be made known to all. ³Whatever you have said in the dark will be heard in the light, and what you have whispered behind closed doors will be shouted from the housetops for all to hear!

⁴"Dear friends, don't be afraid of those who want to kill your body; they cannot do any more to you after that. ⁵But I'll tell you whom to fear. Fear God, who has the power to kill you and then throw you into hell. Yes, he's the one to fear.

⁶"What is the price of five sparrows—two copper coins? Yet God does not forget a single one of them. ⁷And the very hairs on your head are all numbered. So don't be afraid; you are more valuable to God than a whole flock of sparrows.

⁸"I tell you the truth, everyone who acknowledges me publicly here on earth, the Son of Man will also acknowledge in the presence of God's angels. ⁹But anyone who denies me here on earth will be denied before God's angels. ¹⁰Anyone who speaks against the Son of Man can be forgiven, but anyone who blasphemes the Holy Spirit will not be forgiven.

¹¹"And when you are brought to trial in the synagogues and before rulers and authorities, don't worry about how to defend yourself or what to say, ¹²for the Holy Spirit will teach you at that time what needs to be said."

Parable of the Rich Fool

¹³Then someone called from the crowd, "Teacher, please tell my brother to divide our father's estate with me."

11:48 They killed the prophets: See 1 Kgs 19:10, 14; Neh 9:26; Jer 2:30; 26:20–24. Luke portrays Jesus as "The Suffering Prophet" (4:22–24, p. 1711).

11:49 This is what God in his wisdom said about you: Literally Therefore, the wisdom of God said. In Proverbs, Wisdom is personified as a woman who imparts God's wisdom to human beings (Prov 1:20–33; 8:1–9:6). • The quotation is not explicitly from the OT.

11:51 from the murder of Abel to the murder of Zechariah: Abel's murder by his brother Cain was the first murder recorded in the OT (Gen 4:8). The stoning of Zechariah, son of Jehoiada (2 Chr 24:20–22) was the last, since Chronicles is the last book in the Hebrew OT (see Old Testament Introduction, "The Canon of the Old Testament," p. 4).

11:52 the key to knowledge: See Matt 16:19; 23:13.

12:1 Yeast permeates dough until it is entirely leavened. Leaven became a symbol for the permeating power of sin (Exod 12:14–20; 1 Cor 5:6). Like yeast, the hypocrisy of the Pharisees would spread until it affected all the people.

12:2–3 These verses are a warning against hypocrisy. All thoughts will be revealed by God, who knows all things and will judge every human being (Job 10:4–7; 11:11; Ps 11:4; 33:15; 139:12; Prov 15:3).

12:5 hell (Greek Gehenna): The Valley of Hinnom was a ravine along the southwestern side of Jerusalem. It became a metaphor for hell because Israelites had offered their children as sacrifices there (Jer 32:35) and later used it as a place to burn garbage (Jer 19:2, 10–13). Jesus' disciples should never be afraid of enemies who can only take away their life on earth. Instead, they should fear God, who can give eternal punishment.

12:6 two copper coins (Greek two assaria [Roman coins equal to 1/2 of a denarius]): The coin was worth about half an hour's work for a day laborer.

12:8 Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself (see "The Son of Man" at Matt 8:18–20, p. 1593). • will also acknowledge: At the final judgment (see Dan 7:7–14).

12:10 The Holy Spirit draws people to God. One who blasphemes the Holy Spirit rejects his testimony about Jesus and so rejects God. This is the unpardonable sin (see notes on Matt 12:31–32).

12:11–12 brought to trial: Jesus predicted persecution from Jews in the synagogues and from Gentile rulers and authorities. Paul and other apostles faced both kinds of persecution throughout Acts.

12:13–21 This parable shows the danger of trusting in riches instead of in God.

14Jesus replied, "Friend, who made me a judge over you to decide such things as that?" 15Then he said, "Beware! Guard against every kind of greed. Life is not measured by how much you own."

16Then he told them a story: "A rich man had a fertile farm that produced fine crops. 17He said to himself, 'What should I do? I don't have room for all my crops.' 18Then he said, 'I know! I'll tear down my barns and build bigger ones. Then I'll have room enough to store all my wheat and other goods.' 19And I'll sit back and say to myself, 'My friend, you have enough stored away for years to come. Now take it easy! Eat, drink, and be merry!'"

20But God said to him, 'You fool! You will die this very night. Then who will get everything you worked for?'

21Yes, a person is a fool to store up earthly wealth but not have a rich relationship with God."

Teaching about Money and Possessions

Luke 12:22-32 // Matt 6:25-34

Luke 12:33-34 // Matt 6:19-21

22Then, turning to his disciples, Jesus said, "That is why I tell you not to worry about everyday life—whether you have enough food to eat or enough clothes to wear. 23For life is more than food, and your body more than clothing. 24Look at the ravens. They don't plant or harvest or store food in barns, for God feeds them. And you are far more valuable to him than any birds! 25Can all your worries add a single moment to your life? 26And if worry can't accomplish a little thing like that, what's the use of worrying over bigger things?"

27"Look at the lilies and how they grow. They don't work or make their clothing, yet Solomon in all his ^kglory was not dressed as beautifully as they are. 28And if God cares so wonderfully for flowers that are here today and thrown into the fire tomorrow, he will certainly care for you. Why do you have so little faith?"

29And don't be concerned about what to eat and what to drink. Don't worry about such things. 30These things dominate the thoughts of unbelievers all over the world, but your Father already knows your needs. 31Seek the Kingdom of God above all else, and he will give you everything you need.

32So don't be afraid, little flock. For it gives your Father great happiness to give you the Kingdom.

33Sell your possessions and give to those in need. This will store up treasure for you in heaven! And the purses of heaven never get old or develop holes. Your treasure will be safe; no thief can steal it and no moth can destroy it. 34Wherever your treasure is, there the desires of your heart will also be.

Be Ready for the Lord's Coming father's estate: In Judaism, the oldest son received a double portion of the inheritance (Deut 21:17) and was responsible for dividing up the rest after his father's death. This younger brother wanted his share of the estate (cp. 15:11-32).

12:15 Guard against every kind of greed: See Exod 20:17; Deut 5:21; Job 31:24-25; Ps 49; Ecc 2:1-11.

12:16-20 On the surface, the rich man had a perfectly prudent plan, but the constant focus was on himself (cp. Ecc 5:10); he never considered giving crops to the needy. He assumed that his riches would last and only wanted a place to store them, without bringing God into the equation at all (Jas 4:13-17). His judgment was just.

12:19-20 My friend: Literally Soul. The man was speaking to himself. • You fool! In Scripture, a fool is not someone with a low intelligence, but one who dishonors and disobeys God (Ps 14:1-5). • You will die (literally Your soul will be demanded from you): The man was satisfied with his soul, but God was not.

12:22-34 Jesus' warning against greed

(12:13-21) is followed by teaching about living in dependence on God. Jesus' disciples were to focus on God's Kingdom and his purpose in this world rather than being obsessed with possessions.

12:24 Look at the ravens: Ravens were unclean (Lev 11:15; Deut 14:14), yet God cared even for them (Ps 147:9).

12:25 add a single moment to your life (literally add a single cubit to his length): Worry cannot add even one step on the road of life.

12:27 Solomon was among the richest kings of the world in his day (see 2 Chr 9:13-22).

12:30 unbelievers: Greek ethnē, sometimes translated "the nations" or "the Gentiles." To a Jewish audience, it meant all who were not God's people.

12:31 Seek the Kingdom of God: See note on 4:43. Adopt God's value system, pursue his purpose in the world, and submit to his authority.

12:32 little flock: God is the shepherd of his people (Ps 23; Jer 13:17; Ezek 34; Zech 10:3). Israel's leaders were also identified as shepherds and were criticized for harming or neglecting their sheep (Ezek 34; Zech 10:3).

12:33 Sell your possessions and give to those in need: This is not a command to liquidate all personal possessions, since elsewhere in the Bible it is assumed that believers will own property. It means recognizing that everything we have is God's and should be used to serve him and his people (see note on 11:41; see also Acts 2:44-45; 4:32-34). Believers are responsible for meeting the needs of the poor, especially in the church (Gal 6:10). • treasure for you in heaven: See 16:1-13; Matt 6:19-21. When God gives wealth, he also gives a ministry to help the unfortunate.

12:35-48 Jesus compared his faithful followers to servants in a master's household who were always prepared for his return and faithfully managed the resources he had left with them.

12:35 keep your lamps burning: This is a picture of readiness and vigilance (Exod 27:20-21; Lev 24:2; Ps 18:28; Matt 25:1-13).

waiting for your master to return from the wedding feast. Then you will be ready to open the door and let him in the moment he arrives and knocks. ³⁷The servants who are ready and waiting for his return will be rewarded. I tell you the truth, he himself will seat them, put on an apron, and serve them as they sit and eat! ³⁸He may come in the middle of the night or just before dawn. But whenever he comes, he will reward the servants who are ready.

³⁹Understand this: If a homeowner knew exactly when a burglar was coming, he would not permit his house to be broken into. ⁴⁰You also must be ready all the time, for the Son of Man will come when least expected."

⁴¹Peter asked, "Lord, is that illustration just for us or for everyone?"

⁴²And the Lord replied, "A faithful, sensible servant is one to whom the master can give the responsibility of managing his other household servants and feeding them. ⁴³If the master returns and finds that the servant has done a good job, there will be a reward. ⁴⁴I tell you the truth, the master will put that servant in charge of all he owns. ⁴⁵But what if the servant thinks, 'My master won't be back for a while,' and he begins beating the other servants, partying, and getting drunk? ⁴⁶The master will return unannounced and unexpected, and he will cut the servant in pieces and banish him with the unfaithful.

⁴⁷And a servant who knows what the master wants, but isn't prepared and doesn't carry out those instructions, will be severely punished. ⁴⁸But someone who does not know, and then does something wrong, will be punished only lightly. When someone has been given much, much will be required in return; and when someone has been entrusted with much, even more will be required.

Jesus Causes Division

⁴⁹"I have come to set the world on fire, and I wish it were already burning! ⁵⁰I have a terrible baptism of suffering ahead of me, and I am under a heavy burden until it is accomplished. ⁵¹Do you think I have come to bring peace to the earth? No, I have come to divide people against each other! ⁵²From now on families will be split apart, three in favor of me, and two against—or two in favor and three against.

⁵³'Father will be divided against son and son against father; mother against daughter and daughter against mother; and mother-in-law against daughter-in-law and daughter-in-law against mother-in-law.'"

12:36 The master could return from the wedding feast at any time of day or night. Jesus' followers must always be faithful and prepared for his return.

12:37 he himself will seat them: In Middle Eastern culture, the master would never serve his servants! Jesus redefined the role of the master by serving his disciples, giving himself for them, and meeting all their needs (see 22:24-27). • An apron was typical garb for a servant.

12:38 in the middle of the night or just before dawn: Literally in the second or third watch.

12:40 The Son of Man will come: See "The Son of Man" at Matt 8:18-20, p. 1593.

12:42 The faithful, sensible servant was a household manager. Wealthy homeowners appointed gifted and educated slaves as chief executive officers over their affairs.

12:44 in charge of all he owns: Although servants in the Roman world were slaves (the master's property), they could rise to very high social status, owning property, managing the entire household, and acting with the master's authority.

12:46 he will cut the servant in pieces: Such brutal judgment was common in the ancient world. It is uncertain whether Jesus was talking about temporal punishment or eternal damnation. • and banish him with the unfaithful: This could either mean "treat him as an unbeliever" (a temporal judgment) or "send him to hell" (an eternal judgment), depending on whether Jesus was referring to discipline for a believer or condemnation of an unbeliever. The point is that an unfaithful servant faces stringent judgment.

12:47-48 who knows . . . who does not know: Sins of ignorance receive less punishment than intentional sins (Num 15:22-26; Ps 19:13; cp. Luke 23:34).

• When someone has been given much: Believers will be held responsible for the knowledge and resources they have been given (see Jas 3:1). A sin in ignorance is still a sin.

12:49 I have come to set the world on fire: Jesus' ministry radically changed the status quo, bringing judgment on the wicked and purifying the righteous (see 3:16-17; 9:54; 17:29; Deut 4:24; Amos 5:6; Heb 12:29).

12:50 a terrible baptism of suffering: God's judgment is often pictured as an overwhelming flood (Ps 18:4; 42:7; 69:1-2; Isa 8:7-8; 30:27-28; Jon 2:5; see notes on Mark 10:38).

12:51-53 I have come to divide people: Jesus' ministry demands a decision for or against God that divides even family members.

12:53 Jesus quotes Mic 7:6, which was interpreted by the rabbis as the crisis and persecution that would lead to the Messiah's coming.

12:54 Clouds beginning to form in the west brought rain from the Mediterranean Sea.

And you are right. ⁵⁵When the south wind blows, you say, 'Today will be a scorcher.' And it is. ⁵⁶You fools! You know how to interpret the weather signs of the earth and sky, but you don't know how to interpret the present times.

⁵⁷"Why can't you decide for yourselves what is right? ⁵⁸When you are on the way to court with your accuser, try to settle the matter before you get there. Otherwise, your accuser may drag you before the judge, who will hand you over to an officer, who will throw you into prison. ⁵⁹And if that happens, you won't be free again until you have paid the very last penny."

A Call to Repentance

13 About this time Jesus was informed that Pilate had murdered some people from Galilee as they were offering sacrifices at the Temple. ²"Do you think those Galileans were worse sinners than all the other people from Galilee?" Jesus asked. "Is that why they suffered? ³Not at all! And you will perish, too, unless you repent of your sins and turn to God. ⁴And what about the eighteen people who died when the tower in Siloam fell on them? Were they the worst sinners in Jerusalem? ⁵No, and I tell you again that unless you repent, you will perish, too."

Parable of the Barren Fig Tree

⁶Then Jesus told this story: "A man planted a fig tree in his garden and came again and again to see if there was any fruit on it, but he was always disappointed. ⁷Finally, he said to his gardener, 'I've waited three years, and there hasn't been a single fig! Cut it down. It's just taking up space in the garden.'

⁸"The gardener answered, 'Sir, give it one more chance. Leave it another year, and I'll give it special attention and plenty of fertilizer. ⁹If we get figs next year, fine. If not, then you can cut it down.'"

Jesus Heals on the Sabbath

¹⁰One Sabbath day as Jesus was teaching in a synagogue, ¹¹he saw a woman who had been crippled by an evil spirit. She had been bent double for eighteen years and was unable to stand up straight. ¹²When Jesus saw her, he called her over and said, "Dear woman, you are healed of your sickness!" ¹³Then he touched her, and instantly she could stand straight. How she praised God!

¹⁴But the leader in charge of the synagogue was indignant that Jesus had healed her on the Sabbath day. "There are six days of the week for working," he said to the crowd. "Come on those days to be healed, not on the Sabbath."

¹⁵But the Lord replied, "You ^b*hypocrites*! Each of you works on the Sabbath day! Don't you untie your ox or your donkey from its stall on the Sabbath and lead it out for water? ¹⁶This dear woman, a

It is advisable to negotiate accounts with your accuser, if possible, before reaching the courtroom. It is also best to reckon with God before the final day of judgment.

12:59 last penny: Greek last lepton [the smallest Jewish coin].

13:1-4 Jesus was responding to a popular claim that bad things only happen to bad people. Sin has negative consequences, but not every bad thing is a result of sin. Jesus then clarified that all people are sinners who need to repent (13:3, 5; see Job 4:7; 8:4, 20; 22:5; see also Ps 34:21; 75:10; Prov 3:33; 10:3, 6-7, 16, 24-25; John 9:2-3).

13:1 Pilate had murdered some people from Galilee: This particular incident is not known from other sources, but Pilate was a ruthless governor who, on several occasions, violently suppressed revolts (see Josephus, War 2.9.2-4; Antiquities 18.3.1-2).

13:4 when the tower in Siloam fell: This incident is also unknown apart from this reference. The pool of Siloam was a reservoir in the southeastern corner of Jerusalem, so the tower might have been part of the southern wall of Jerusalem.

13:6-9 The parable of the barren fig tree illustrated Jesus' ministry to Israel. Unless the nation produced the fruit of repentance, it would face judgment. The parable is open-ended—Israel was being offered the chance to respond. Cp. Matt 21:18-19 // Mark 11:12-14.

13:6 a fig tree: Israel was sometimes portrayed as an unfruitful fig tree or a vineyard that God would judge (Isa 5:1-7; Mic 7:1-2; see Jer 8:13; 24:1-10; Hos 9:10).

13:9 cut it down: A stump or fallen tree was an image of judgment or destruction (see note on 3:9; see Isa 6:13; 10:34; 11:1; Jer 46:22; Dan 4:23; Matt 3:10; 7:19).

13:10 as Jesus was teaching in a synagogue (see 4:14-30): In the synagogue, visiting rabbis were often asked to teach after the Law and the Prophets were read.

13:14 the leader in charge of the synagogue: See note on 8:41. • not on the Sabbath: Rabbis debated whether to give medical help on the Sabbath and decided it was acceptable only in cases of extreme emergency (see note on 6:6-7).

13:15-16 You hypocrites! The religious leaders would take care of their own animals on the Sabbath (to protect their investment) but then refuse to meet the needs of a fellow human being. In an ironic wordplay, the same word is translated untie (13:15) and released (13:16). The religious leaders would free their animals but not a daughter of Abraham—one of God's chosen people and a recipient of his favor. • in bondage by Satan: Jesus' exorcisms and healings manifested the Kingdom of God and the defeat of Satan (see 11:20).

¹⁸Then Jesus said, "What is the Kingdom of God like? How can I illustrate it? ¹⁹It is like a tiny mustard seed that a man planted in a garden; it grows and becomes a tree, and the birds make nests in its branches."

²⁰He also asked, "What else is the Kingdom of God like? ²¹It is like the yeast a woman used in making bread. Even though she put only a little yeast in three measures of flour, it permeated every part of the dough."

The Narrow Door

Luke 13:28-30; cp. Matt 8:11-12; Matt 19:30 // Mark 10:31

²²Jesus went through the towns and villages, teaching as he went, always pressing on toward Jerusalem. ²³Someone asked him, "Lord, will only a few be saved?"

He replied, ²⁴"Work hard to enter the narrow door to God's Kingdom, for many will try to enter but will fail. ²⁵When the master of the house has locked the door, it will be too late. You will stand outside knocking and pleading, 'Lord, open the door for us!'

But he will reply, 'I don't know you or where you come from.' ²⁶Then you will say, 'But we ate and drank with you, and you taught in our streets.' ²⁷And he will reply, 'I tell you, I don't know you or where you come from. Get away from me, all you who do evil.'

²⁸"There will be weeping and gnashing of teeth, for you will see Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and all the prophets in the Kingdom of God, but you will be thrown out. ²⁹And people will come from all over the world—from east and west, north and south—to take their places in the Kingdom of God. ³⁰And note this: Some who seem least important now will be the greatest then, and some who are the greatest now will be least important then."

Jesus Grieves over Jerusalem

³²Jesus replied, "Go tell that fox that I will keep on casting out demons and healing people today and tomorrow; and the third day I will accomplish my purpose. ³³Yes, today, tomorrow, and the next day I must proceed on my way. For it wouldn't do for a prophet of God to be killed except in Jerusalem!

13:18-21 The parables of the mustard seed and the yeast reveal the nature of the Kingdom of God. Like a mustard seed, it grows from a tiny size until it becomes enormous; like yeast leavening dough, it permeates the entire world.

13:23 will only a few be saved? Some believed that only a small number would be saved. Others thought that all Jews would be saved because they were descendants of Abraham (see note on 3:8).

13:25 When the master of the house has locked the door: At a banquet, the master of the household locked the door after the invited guests had arrived. • I don't know you: In Scripture, knowing often means being chosen by God for a special relationship (Isa 63:16; Jer 1:5; Amos 3:2). The people of Israel were God's chosen people who had descended from Abraham (where you come from), but those who failed to respond to the invitation did not have a relationship with God. The same can be said of all who fail to respond to the Good News of the Kingdom.

13:28 The expression weeping and gnashing of teeth portrays rejection and suffering. • Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob were the three great founding patriarchs of the nation of Israel.

13:29 While many of God's chosen people, the Israelites, have rejected the gospel, other people . . . from all over the world will respond to God's offer of salvation and attend the messianic banquet (see 14:15; 17:20; Isa 2:2; 25:6-8; 51:4; 52:10; 55:5; 56:7; 59:19; Mic 4:1-2; Zech 2:13; Mal 1:11).

Further Teaching along the Way (14:1-17:10)

Jesus Heals on the Sabbath

14 One Sabbath day Jesus went to eat dinner in the home of a leader of the Pharisees, and the people were watching him closely. ²There was a man there whose arms and legs were swollen. ³Jesus asked the Pharisees and experts in religious law, "Is it permitted in the law to heal people on the Sabbath day, or not?" ⁴When they refused to answer, Jesus touched the sick man and healed him and sent him away. ⁵Then he turned to them and said, "Which of you doesn't work on the Sabbath? If your son or your cow falls into a pit, don't you rush to get him out?" ⁶Again they could not answer.

Jesus Teaches about Humility

⁷When Jesus noticed that all who had come to the dinner were trying to sit in the seats of honor near the head of the table, he gave them this advice: ⁸"When you are invited to a wedding feast, don't sit in the seat of honor. What if someone who is more distinguished than you has also been invited? ⁹The host will come and say, 'Give this person your seat.' Then you will be embarrassed, and you will have to take whatever seat is left at the foot of the table!

¹⁰"Instead, take the lowest place at the foot of the table. Then when your host sees you, he will come and say, 'Friend, we have a better place for you!' Then you will be honored in front of all the other guests. ¹¹For those who exalt themselves will be humbled, and those who humble themselves will be exalted."

¹²Then he turned to his host. "When you put on a luncheon or a banquet," he said, "don't invite your friends, brothers, relatives,

13:24-30; 17:8;

Isa 25:6; 65:13-14

Through his teaching and miracles, Jesus announced that God's messianic banquet was about to be served. All may come and feast at the table of salvation in God's Kingdom.

Jesus described his ministry as a wedding feast, with himself as the groom (5:33-35) and the Kingdom of God as a great banquet. All were invited, but some refused to come (14:15-21). Jesus is often portrayed as eating with diverse people, from despised tax collectors to pious Pharisees (5:29-33; 7:36-50; 11:37-41; 14:1-6). Jesus also used imagery of feasting and banquets in his teaching and parables (5:33-35; 6:21; 12:35-40; 13:24-30; 14:7-14, 15-24; 17:8; 22:30). He fed vast multitudes with a few loaves and fishes (9:10-17).

The OT background to this feasting imagery is Isa 25:6, where God's final salvation is described as a great feast for all people: "The LORD of Heaven's Armies will spread a wonderful feast for all the people of the world. It will be a delicious banquet, with clear, well-aged wine and choice meat" (see also Isa 65:13-14).

Jesus' public ministry marked the invitation to the banquet and its inauguration. Through his death and resurrection, he achieved salvation. All people can now come to God's banquet table and receive the spiritual blessings of the Kingdom. At the same time, this banquet awaits its final consummation in the future Kingdom, when Jesus' disciples will "eat and drink at my table in my Kingdom" and "will sit on thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel" (22:30).

13:35 your house is abandoned: Jesus predicted the destruction of Jerusalem that took place in AD 70. • Blessings on the one who comes in the name of the LORD! This refers to Ps 118:26. Psalm 118 was one of the psalms sung by pilgrims going up to Jerusalem for the annual festivals. Here Jesus referred to his second coming.

14:1 in the home of a leader of the Pharisees: In the Gospel of Luke, Jesus is frequently seen dining. See also "The Pharisees" at Matt 3:7, p. 1581.

14:2 whose arms and legs were swollen (or who had dropsy): Dropsy, medically known as edema, is an accumulation of fluid in tissues or a body cavity that causes swelling. It is usually a symptom of a more serious illness.

14:3 Is it permitted in the law to heal people on the Sabbath day? This question was debated by the rabbis (see note on 6:6-7).

14:5 Jesus pointed out the Pharisees' hypocrisy. They would rescue an animal on the Sabbath to protect their investment, but would not help a human being. • son: Some manuscripts read donkey.

14:7 the seats of honor: Meals in the ancient world were rituals of social status. The place given to someone at the table was determined by their place in the social pecking order. The quality of the food served to each guest also depended on their status. These guests were jockeying for the places of highest honor.

14:8 Jesus' response was a commentary on Prov 25:6-7.

14:9 Then you will be embarrassed: Shame and honor were among the most important values in first century Jewish culture. This kind of humiliation would have been almost worse than death.

14:12-13 don't invite your friends: Jesus challenged the prevailing use of banquets to flaunt and elevate one's status and rich neighbors. For they will invite you back, and that will be your only reward. ¹³Instead, invite the poor, the crippled, the lame, and the blind. ¹⁴Then at the resurrection of the righteous, God will reward you for inviting those who could not repay you."

Parable of the Great Feast

Luke 14:15-24; cp. Matt 22:1-14

¹⁵Hearing this, a man sitting at the table with Jesus exclaimed, "What a blessing it will be to attend a banquet in the Kingdom of God!"

¹⁶Jesus replied with this story: "A man prepared a great feast and sent out many invitations. ¹⁷When the banquet was ready, he sent his servant to tell the guests, 'Come, the banquet is ready.' ¹⁸But they all began making excuses. One said, 'I have just bought a field and must inspect it. Please excuse me.' ¹⁹Another said, 'I have just bought five pairs of oxen, and I want to try them out. Please excuse me.' ²⁰Another said, 'I just got married, so I can't come.'"

²¹"The servant returned and told his master what they had said. His master was furious and said, 'Go quickly into the streets and alleys of the town and invite the poor, the crippled, the blind, and the lame.' ²²After the servant had done this, he reported, 'There is still room for more.' ²³So his master said, 'Go out into the country lanes and behind the hedges and urge anyone you find to come, so that the house will be full. ²⁴For none of those I first invited will get even the smallest taste of my banquet.'"

The Cost of Being a Disciple

Luke 14:26-27 // Matt 10:37-38

Luke 14:34-35; cp. Matt 5:13; Mark 9:49-50

²⁵A large crowd was following Jesus. He turned around and said to them, ²⁶"If you want to be my disciple, you must, by comparison, hate everyone else—your father and mother, wife and children, brothers and sisters—yes, even your own life. Otherwise, you cannot be my disciple. ²⁷And if you do not carry your own cross and follow me, you cannot be my disciple.

²⁸"But don't begin until you count the cost. For who would begin construction of a building without first calculating the cost to see if there is enough money to finish it? ²⁹Otherwise, you might complete only the foundation before running out of money, and then everyone would laugh at you. ³⁰They would say, 'There's the person who started that building and couldn't afford to finish it!'

in the community. The host would invite friends of equal status and a few who were higher. These honored guests would then be expected to reciprocate, raising the first host's social position and reputation. Jesus turned this hierarchy upside down by instructing his followers to invite those who had no social status and could not reciprocate. God invites sinful human beings to dine at his banquet table of salvation (see "The Messianic Banquet" at Luke 14:1-24, p. 1737).

14:14 the resurrection of the righteous: see Dan 12:2.

14:15-24 This parable portrays what was happening in Jesus' ministry. The rich, powerful, and elite rejected Jesus' invitation to God's salvation banquet and would be shut out. Meanwhile, poor people and outcasts responded to the invitation (see also 1:52-53; 6:21, 25; 10:15; 18:14).

14:15 to attend a banquet: Literally to eat bread.

14:17 Come, the banquet is ready: The invitations would have been sent much earlier; the guests were summoned when the meal was ready.

14:18 they all began making excuses:

All such excuses would have been a great affront to the host, who had made a great investment in this important social event. These guests had previously accepted the invitation, and all of their excuses were weak. Clearly, they just didn't want to attend the banquet.

• I have just bought a field and must inspect it: No one would buy a field without first inspecting it.

14:19 oxen, and I want to try them out:

This is another weak excuse—no one would buy oxen without having seen them plow.

14:20 I just got married: Some see this as a legitimate excuse since the OT exempted men from military service in their first year of marriage (Deut 20:7; 24:5), but this feast was a local community event, not a distant war. Furthermore, in an Israelite village, a marriage and a banquet would never be planned at the same time, so there was no real conflict.

14:21 The poor, the crippled, the blind, and the lame were the outcasts of Israel, to whom Jesus ministered.

14:23 Go out into the country lanes:

These invites might be a reference to the Gentiles to whom the Good News eventually went (cp. Acts 9:15; 13:46-48; 18:4-6; Rom 11:11-12).

14:25-35 A large crowd was following Jesus:

Jesus' popularity was high, but he was about to teach that the cost of following him was also very high.

14:26 you must . . . hate everyone else:

Following Jesus requires complete dedication. The phrase by comparison does not appear in the Greek, but it accurately represents Jesus' meaning. Love for family and one's own life must not compete with devotion to Christ.

14:27 To carry your own cross is a picture of dying to self. The horizontal beam of the cross was carried by the condemned criminal headed for crucifixion (see note on 23:26).

Parable of the Lost Sheep

Luke 15:3-7 // Matt 18:12-14

15 Tax collectors and other notorious sinners often came to listen to Jesus teach. ²This made the Pharisees and teachers of religious law complain that he was associating with such sinful people—even eating with them!

³So Jesus told them this ⁴story: "If a man has a hundred sheep and one of them gets lost, what will he do? Won't he leave the ninety-nine others in the wilderness and go to search for the one that is lost until he finds it? ⁵And when he has found it, he will joyfully carry it home on his shoulders. ⁶When he arrives, he will call together his friends and neighbors, saying, 'Rejoice with me because I have found my lost sheep.' ⁷In the same way, there is more joy in heaven over one lost sinner who repents and returns to God than over ninety-nine others who are righteous and haven't strayed away!

Parable of the Lost Coin

⁸Or suppose a woman has ten silver coins and loses one. Won't she light a lamp and sweep the entire house and search carefully until she finds it? ⁹And when she finds it, she will call in her friends and neighbors and say, 'Rejoice with me because I have found my lost coin.' ¹⁰In the same way, there is joy in the presence of God's angels when even one sinner repents."

Parable of the Lost Son

¹¹To illustrate the point further, Jesus told them this story: "A man had two sons. ¹²The younger son told his father, 'I want my share of your estate now before you die.' So his father agreed to divide his wealth between his sons.

¹³A few days later this younger son packed all his belongings and moved to a distant land, and there he wasted all his money in wild living. ¹⁴About the time his money ran out, a great famine swept over the land, and he began to starve. ¹⁵He persuaded a local farmer to hire him, and the man sent him into his fields to feed the pigs. ¹⁶The young man became so hungry that even the pods he was feeding the pigs looked good to him. But no one gave him anything.

¹⁷"When he finally came to his senses, he said to himself, 'At home even the hired servants have food enough to spare, and here I am dying of hunger! ¹⁸I will go home to my father and say, "Father, I have sinned against both heaven and you, ¹⁹and I am no longer worthy of being called your son. Please take me on as a hired servant."'

²⁰So he returned home to his father. And while he was still a long way off, his father saw him coming. Filled with love and its saltiness. Jesus might be speaking hypothetically (if salt were to lose), or he might be referring to a combination of minerals that included salt. The salt around the Dead Sea was a mixture of sodium chloride and other minerals. When the sodium chloride was removed, what was left behind was "salt" without saltiness.

14:35 good neither for the soil nor for the manure pile: Salt had various uses in the ancient world, including flavoring (14:34), preserving, and weed-killing. The sludge left after removing the sodium chloride was useless.

15:1-32 Chapter 15 contains three related parables of things lost and found: a sheep (15:1-7), a coin (15:8-10), and a son (15:11-32). The loss of something loved causes deep sorrow, whereas finding it brings great joy and rejoicing. There is great rejoicing in heaven when lost sinners return to their heavenly Father.

15:1 Tax collectors were despised because they worked for the hated Roman authorities and were notorious for their corruption (see note on 3:12).

15:2 In their self-righteous hard-heartedness, the Pharisees and teachers of religious law did not care about lost people. Jesus embodied the heart of God, who longs for his wayward children to return.

15:4 A flock of a hundred sheep was of average size for a shepherd of modest means. God's people are often identified as the Lord's flock (Ps 23; Isa 53:6; Jer 13:17; Ezek 34; Zech 10:3). • leave the ninety-nine others: Other shepherds could watch the ninety-nine, so those left behind were not in danger. The shepherd would do anything to find the one that was lost.

15:8 ten silver coins (Greek ten drachmas; a drachma was the equivalent of a full day's wage): These coins might have been part of the woman's dowry. • light a lamp and sweep the entire house: Palestinian homes were poorly lit and normally had dirt or stone floors. Finding a small coin could be difficult.

15:11-32 Like the previous two parables (15:3-7, 8-10), the parable of the lost son demonstrates God's love for the lost and the joy he experiences when they return. It also allegorizes Jesus' ministry. The father represents God, the younger brother represents the tax collectors and sinners to whom Jesus ministered, and the older brother represents the religious leaders.

15:12 I want my share of your estate now: This appalling request essentially says, "To me, you are dead." There could be no greater insult to a father.

15:13 he wasted all his money in wild living: Jews considered the loss of family property to Gentiles in a distant land to be particularly disgraceful and grounds for excommunication (see also Deut 21:18-21).

15:15 Pigs were unclean animals (Lev 11:7; Deut 14:8), making this the most degrading job imaginable for a Jew.

15:20 his father saw him coming: His father was apparently watching the road, longing for his son's return. • he ran to his son: Running was considered undignified for the family patriarch, but the father was full of unbridled joy at his son's return.

compassion, he ran to his son, embraced him, and kissed him. ²¹His son said to him, 'Father, I have sinned against both heaven and you, and I am no longer worthy of being called your son.'

²²But his father said to the servants, 'Quick! Bring the finest robe in the house and put it on him. Get a ring for his finger and sandals for his feet. ²³And kill the calf we have been fattening. We must celebrate with a feast, ²⁴for this son of mine was dead and has now returned to life. He was lost, but now he is found.' So the party began.

²⁵Meanwhile, the older son was in the fields working. When he returned home, he heard music and dancing in the house, ²⁶and he asked one of the servants what was going on. ²⁷'Your brother is back,' he was told, 'and your father has killed the fattened calf. We are celebrating because of his safe return.'

²⁸The older brother was angry and wouldn't go in. His father came out and begged him, ²⁹but he replied, 'All these years I've slaved for you and never once refused to do a single thing you told me to. And in all that time you never gave me even one young goat for a feast with my friends. ³⁰Yet when this son of yours comes back after squandering your money on prostitutes, you celebrate by killing the fattened calf!'

³¹'His father said to him, 'Look, dear son, you have always stayed by me, and everything I have is yours. ³²We had to celebrate this happy day. For your brother was dead and has come back to life! He was lost, but now he is found!'

Parable of the Shrewd Manager

Luke 16:13 // Matt 6:24

16 Jesus told this story to his disciples: "There was a certain rich man who had a 'manager handling his affairs. One day a report came that the manager was wasting his employer's money. ²So the employer called him in and said, 'What's this I hear about you? Get your 'report in order, because you are going to be fired.'

³"The manager thought to himself, 'Now what? My boss has fired me. I don't have the strength to dig ditches, and I'm too proud to beg. ⁴Ah, I know how to ensure that I'll have plenty of friends who will give me a home when I am fired.'

⁵"So he invited each person who owed money to his employer to come and discuss the situation. He asked the first one, 'How much do you owe him?' ⁶The man replied, 'I owe him 800 gallons of olive oil.' So the manager told him, 'Take the bill and quickly change it to 400 gallons.'

⁷"And how much do you owe my employer?' he asked the next man. 'I owe him 1,000 bushels of wheat,' was the reply. 'Here,' the manager said, 'take the bill and change it to 800 bushels.'

15:21 The son gave his rehearsed speech. Some manuscripts add Please take me on as a hired servant. The lack of this sentence in the better manuscripts suggests that his father didn't give him a chance to finish.

15:22 The finest robe belonged to the father; it affirmed the son's role as an heir and a cherished member of the household. • Get a ring for his finger: A ring was a symbol of authority. Like the robe, it indicated his status as son and heir.

15:23 The father would have been fattening a calf for a banquet. The son was welcomed as a visiting dignitary.

15:28 The older brother was angry that his father would forgive such a sinner when he, the faithful son, had worked hard to achieve his position. Like the religious leaders, he refused to rejoice when his brother was found.

15:30 this son of yours: He refused to acknowledge his own relationship to his brother.

15:31 you have always stayed by me: The parable is open-ended: it does not record the older brother's response. The religious leaders still had a chance to respond to Jesus' offer of the Kingdom.

16:1 a certain rich man who had a manager: Wealthy landowners commonly put managers over their estates.

16:2 Get your report in order: This financial statement was probably for the benefit of the manager's successor.

16:3 I'm too proud to beg: The Jewish wisdom writer Sirach said, "It is better to die than to beg" (Sirach 40:28), a reflection of Jewish attitudes.

16:5-7 The manager called in his master's debtors and reduced their debts, thus making friends who would help him during his unemployment.

16:6 800 gallons . . . 400 gallons: Greek 100 baths . . . 50 [baths]. The size of the bath—a standard liquid measure—is not known with certainty.

16:7 1,000 bushels . . . 800 bushels: Greek 100 korous . . . 80 [korous]. The size of the kor—a standard dry measure—is not known with certainty.

16:8-9 Jesus seems to commend the manager's dishonesty, but Jesus' point is that believers need to use resources shrewdly in preparation for eternity.

16:8 The ways of the world are the opposite of God's ways. The children of this world use all their resources to get ahead in this world. God's people do just the opposite (16:9). • The children of the light are the people of God (see John 12:36; 1 Thes 5:5).

16:9 worldly resources: This is a better translation than the traditional "mammon of unrighteousness" (KJV). Believers are to use their resources wisely for spiritual benefit. • they will welcome you to an eternal home (or you will be welcomed into eternal homes): They are probably the friends. Just as the manager's friends would give him security,

The Pharisees and the Law

Luke 16:17; cp. Matt 5:18

Luke 16:18; cp. Matt 5:31-32; 19:9; Mark 10:11-12

14^a The Pharisees, who dearly loved their money, heard all this and scoffed at him.

15^a Then he said to them, "You like to appear righteous in public, but God knows your hearts. What this world honors is detestable in the sight of God.

16^a Until John the Baptist, the law of Moses and the messages of the prophets were your guides. But now the Good News of the Kingdom of God is preached, and everyone is eager to get in. 17 But that doesn't mean that the law has lost its force. It is easier for heaven and earth to disappear than for the smallest point of God's law to be overturned.

18^a For example, a man who divorces his wife and marries someone else commits adultery. And anyone who marries a woman divorced from her husband commits adultery."

Parable of the Rich Man and Lazarus

19^a Jesus said, "There was a certain rich man who was splendidly clothed in purple and fine linen and who lived each day in luxury. 20 At his gate lay a poor man named Lazarus who was covered with sores. 21 As Lazarus lay there longing for scraps from the rich man's table, the dogs would come and lick his open sores.

22^a Finally, the poor man died and was carried by the angels to sit beside Abraham at the heavenly banquet. The rich man also died and was buried, 23 and he went to the place of the dead. There, in torment, he saw Abraham in the far distance with Lazarus at his side.

24^a The rich man shouted, 'Father Abraham, have some pity! Send Lazarus over here to dip the tip of his finger in water and cool my tongue. I am in anguish in these flames.'

25^a But Abraham said to him, 'Son, remember that during your lifetime you had everything you wanted, and Lazarus had nothing. So now he is here being comforted, and you are in anguish. 26 And besides, there is a great chasm separating us. No one can cross over to you from here, and no one can cross over to us from there.'

17:20-21 When will God come? The coming of Jesus was the the friends we win to the Kingdom will warmly welcome us for eternity.

16:13 No one can serve two masters: Complete love and devotion can be given only to one master.

16:14 The Pharisees . . . heard all this and scoffed: Wealth was commonly believed to be a reward from God, so the Pharisees derided Jesus' warning against riches.

16:16 John the Baptist was a transitional figure—the last in the line of OT prophets and the herald of the age of salvation (see 1:5-25, 57-80; 3:1-20; 7:18-35). • everyone is eager to get in (or everyone is urged to enter in): The verb normally means "to suffer violence" and may have the negative sense of violent force into or against the Kingdom (see Matt 11:12). More likely, it carries here a positive sense of urgency to enter the Kingdom.

16:17 that doesn't mean that the law has lost its force: Although the new covenant fulfilled the OT law and prophets, the law has not passed away (however, cp. Acts 15:23-29). • Heaven and earth will be destroyed and replaced by a new heaven and earth at the end of the age (Rev 21:1), but God's word endures forever (Ps 119:89, 160; Isa 40:8; 55:10-11).

16:18 This example fit the context by showing that Jesus' authoritative words interpreted and fulfilled the OT law. • a man who divorces his wife and marries someone else commits adultery: The OT allowed for divorce but did not sanction it (Deut 24:1-4), and the rabbis of Jesus' day debated what constituted legitimate grounds. The school of Shammai allowed a man to divorce his wife only because of unfaithfulness, while the school of Hillel allowed divorce for almost any reason. Against such a casual attitude, Jesus said that breaking the marriage vow by divorce and marrying someone else was equivalent to adultery. Elsewhere (Matt 5:32; 19:9), Jesus provided a clear exception for cases of unfaithfulness.

16:19-31 This parable reiterates the theme of the danger of riches introduced in 16:13-15 and returns to the idea that the coming of God's Kingdom will mean the reversal of fortunes. The rich, proud, and powerful will be humbled and brought low, while the poor, humble, and oppressed will be exalted.

16:19 Purple was the color of royalty; Phoenician purple was an expensive dye made from mollusks.

16:21 the dogs would come and lick his open sores: This is an image of misery and poverty. In Jewish culture, dogs were detestable, unclean scavengers.

16:22 to sit beside Abraham at the heavenly banquet (literally to Abraham's bosom): The Greek suggests a banquet at which guests reclined around a low table (see John 13:23). Lazarus was taken to the messianic banquet in the Kingdom of God (see "The Messianic Banquet" at 14:1-24, p. 1737).

16:23 the place of the dead (Greek Hades) can refer to the grave (death) generally, or to the place where the wicked go after death, as here.

16:24 I am in anguish in these flames: See note on 12:5; see also Matt 25:41; Rev 20:10, 14-15. • Send Lazarus: Ironically, the man was still treating Lazarus as a lowly servant.

16:26 No one can cross over to you from here: A person's state after death is permanent.

²⁷"Then the rich man said, 'Please, Father Abraham, at least send him to my father's home. ²⁸For I have five brothers, and I want him to warn them so they don't end up in this place of torment.'

²⁹But Abraham said, 'Moses and the prophets have warned them. Your brothers can read what they wrote.'

³⁰The rich man replied, 'No, Father Abraham! But if someone is sent to them from the dead, then they will repent of their sins and turn to God.'

³¹But Abraham said, 'If they won't listen to Moses and the prophets, they won't be persuaded even if someone rises from the dead.'

Teachings about Forgiveness and Faith

Luke 17:1-3a // Matt 18:6-9 // Mark 9:42-48

Luke 17:5-6; cp. Matt 17:20

17 One day Jesus said to his disciples, "There will always be temptations to sin, but what sorrow awaits the person who does the tempting! ²It would be better to be thrown into the sea with a millstone hung around your neck than to cause one of these little ones to fall into sin. ³So watch yourselves!

"If another believer sins, rebuke that person; then if there is repentance, forgive. ⁴Even if that person wrongs you seven times a day and each time turns again and asks forgiveness, you must forgive."

⁵The apostles said to the Lord, "Show us how to increase our faith."

⁶The Lord answered, "If you had faith even as small as a mustard seed, you could say to this mulberry tree, 'May you be uprooted and be planted in the sea,' and it would obey you!"

⁷"When a servant comes in from plowing or taking care of sheep, does his master say, 'Come in and eat with me'? ⁸No, he says, 'Prepare my meal, put on your apron, and serve me while I eat. Then you can eat later.'

⁹And does the master thank the servant for doing what he was told to do? Of course not.

¹⁰In the same way, when you obey me you should say, 'We are unworthy servants who have simply done our duty.' "

Responses to the Kingdom along the Way (17:11-19:27)

Ten Healed of Leprosy

¹¹As Jesus continued on toward Jerusalem, he reached the border between Galilee and Samaria. ¹²As he entered a village there, ten men with leprosy stood at a distance, ¹³crying out, "Jesus, Master, have mercy on us!"

¹⁴He looked at them and said, "Go show yourselves to the priests." And as they went, they were cleansed of their leprosy.

¹⁵One of them, when he saw that he was healed, came back to Jesus, shouting, "Praise God!" ¹⁶He fell to the ground at Jesus' feet, thanking him for what he had done. This man was a Samaritan.

¹⁷Jesus asked, "Didn't I heal ten men? Where are the other nine? ¹⁸Has no one returned to give glory to God except this foreigner?" ¹⁹And Jesus said to the man, "Stand up and go. Your faith has healed you."

John 3:3; 18:36

16:31 they won't be persuaded even if someone rises from the dead: Wicked people refuse to repent even when faced with overwhelming evidence of the truth.

17:1 what sorrow awaits: Traditionally rendered woe! (see notes on 6:24-26; 11:42-52). • the person who does the tempting: Leaders bear a greater responsibility because they are accountable not only for themselves, but for those they lead (see Jas 3:1).

17:2 A millstone is a large round stone with a hole in its center, used to grind grain in a mill. A millstone could weigh hundreds of pounds.

17:3 another believer: Literally your brother, meaning a fellow member of God's family.

17:4 Even if that person wrongs you seven times a day: Seven is not an exact number, but means "many times" (see Ps 119:164). See Matt 18:21-22.

17:6 A mustard seed was proverbial for something very small (see 13:19). • you could say to this mulberry tree, 'May you be uprooted': Black mulberry trees can live for hundreds of years and have a vast root system, making them very difficult to uproot. • it would obey you: This is not a call to use faith for arbitrary miracles. God has unlimited power, and those who trust in him will see him use it.

17:7-10 In Greco-Roman culture, servants existed to serve their masters faithfully. Faith (17:5-6) entails obedient submission to Christ and his commands.

17:11-19 This healing reveals Jesus' compassion and power; in Luke, the blessings of salvation are joyfully received by many outside Israel.

17:11 As Jesus continued on toward Jerusalem: See note on 9:51-19:44.

17:12 ten men with leprosy stood at a distance: See note on 5:12. Lepers were required to keep their distance and cry out, "Unclean!" (Lev 13:45-46).

17:14 Go show yourselves to the priests: Leviticus 14:2-32 sets out guidelines for priests to use in diagnosing leprosy and pronouncing a leper clean (see notes on 5:12, 14). • as they went: To leave without yet being healed required faith, which Jesus was testing (cp. 2 Kgs 5:9-14).

17:16 The one man who returned to thank Jesus was a Samaritan, a hated foreigner in the eyes of most Jews (see note on 10:33).

17:19 Your faith has healed you (or Your faith has saved you): The Greek verb can refer to either physical or spiritual healing. Jesus' physical healings illustrate the salvation that his Kingdom brings.

17:20-37 This is the first of two discourses in Luke's Gospel on the coming of the Kingdom and the return of the Son of Man (see also ch 21).

parable (3850)
• Luke 21:29

Jesus replied, "The Kingdom of God can't be detected by visible signs. ²¹You won't be able to say, 'Here it is!' or 'It's over there!' For the Kingdom of God is already among you."

The Return of the Son of Man

Luke 17:23-24 // Matt 24:23-27 // Mark 13:21-23

Luke 17:26-27; cp. Matt 24:37-39

Luke 17:31; cp. Matt 24:17-18; Mark 13:15-16

²²Then he said to his disciples, "The time is coming when you will long to see the day when the Son of Man returns, but you won't see it. ²³People will tell you, 'Look, there is the Son of Man,' or 'Here he is,' but don't go out and follow them. ²⁴For as the lightning flashes and lights up the sky from one end to the other, so it will be on the day when the Son of Man comes. ²⁵But first the Son of Man must suffer terribly and be rejected by this generation.

²⁶"When the Son of Man returns, it will be like it was in Noah's day. ²⁷In those days, the people enjoyed banquets and parties and weddings right up to the time Noah entered his boat and the flood came and destroyed them all.

²⁸"And the world will be as it was in the days of Lot. People went about their daily business—eating and drinking, buying and selling, farming and building—²⁹until the morning Lot left Sodom. Then fire and burning sulfur rained down from heaven and destroyed them all. ³⁰Yes, it will be 'business as usual' right up to the day when the Son of Man is revealed. ³¹On that day a person out on the deck of a roof must not go down into the house to pack. A person out in the field must not return home. ³²Remember what happened to Lot's wife! ³³If you cling to your life, you will lose it, and if you let your life go, you will save it. ³⁴That night two people will be asleep in one bed; one will be taken, the other left. ³⁵Two women will be grinding flour together at the mill; one will be taken, the other left."

³⁷"Where will this happen, Lord?" the disciples asked.

Jesus replied, "Just as the gathering of vultures shows there is a carcass nearby, so these signs indicate that the end is near."

Parable of the Persistent Widow

18 One day Jesus told his disciples a story to show that they should always pray and never give up. ²"There was a judge in a certain city," he said, "who neither feared God nor cared about people. ³A widow of that city came to him repeatedly,

17:20-21 When will the Kingdom of God come? The common understanding among Jews was that the Messiah would establish God's Kingdom in Jerusalem; he would defeat Israel's enemies and bring in a period of peace, prosperity, justice, and righteousness (see "The Messianic Hope" at 3:15, p. 1707; cp. Acts 1:6). The Pharisees were apparently challenging Jesus' claim to be the Messiah because he was not defeating the Romans or establishing his Kingdom physically on earth. Jesus did not reject this future manifestation of the Kingdom (see 21:27; Matt 24:30-31), but pointed out that the Kingdom of God was being revealed to them through his ministry, though they were missing it. • The Kingdom of God can't be detected by visible signs (or by your speculations): Jewish apocalyptic literature of Jesus' day looked for visible signs in the heavens to signal the coming of the Messiah's kingdom. Jesus elsewhere affirmed that such signs would appear (see 17:24; 21:25; Acts 2:19-20), but the Pharisees were missing the manifestation of the Kingdom in Jesus' immediate ministry (see note on 7:22). • the Kingdom of God is already among you (or is within you, or is in your grasp): The Kingdom of God was already being revealed through Jesus' words and actions. It is unlikely that Jesus would say, "The Kingdom of God is within you," to those who were rejecting his message.

17:22 you will long to see the day when the Son of Man returns (or you will long for even one day with the Son of Man): The Greek says simply, you will long to see the days of the Son of Man, which may refer to his time on earth with his disciples or to the time of his second coming. "Son of Man" is a title Jesus used for himself.

17:23-24 People will tell you, 'Look, there is the Son of Man': False Messiahs have arisen throughout history, but expectations for the Messiah were particularly high in the first century, as a variety of figures claimed to be God's agents of deliverance (see Acts 5:36-37; 21:38). Jesus warned his disciples not to follow these imposters. • For as the lightning flashes: When Jesus suddenly returns, it will be evident to everyone.

17:25 suffer terribly (or suffer many things): Jesus would soon suffer crucifixion (see note on 9:22).

17:26-29 in Noah's day . . . in the days of Lot: See Gen 6-9 for Noah and Gen 18:16-19:29 for Lot; both are stories of God's cataclysmic judgment against human wickedness.

17:32-33 Lot's wife turned into a pillar of salt when she looked longingly back at Sodom (Gen 19:26). She exemplifies those who cling to . . . life.

17:34-35 one will be taken, the other left: Some consider this separation to refer to the Rapture of the church, but the parallels drawn to God's judgment in the Flood and against Sodom (17:26-29), as well as the reference to vultures and a dead body (17:37), suggest that it occurs at the final judgment (see Mal 3:18; Matt 25:32). • Some manuscripts add verse 36, Two men will be working in the field; one will be taken, the other left. Cp. Matt 24:40.

17:37 Where will this happen, Lord? Literally "Where, Lord?" • Just as . . . the end is near: Literally "Wherever the carcass is, the vultures gather." • so these signs indicate that the end is near: This clause, which does not appear explicitly in the Greek, explains the significance of the cryptic saying about the vulture.

18:1-8 The parable of the persistent widow follows naturally from Jesus' teaching about coming troubles (17:20-37). Believers can face trials and persevere through persistent prayer.

18:2 a judge . . . who neither feared God nor cared about people: The two most important attributes for a good judge are regard for justice (fear of God), and compassion for people (see 2 Chr 19:6-7). This judge had neither.

18:3 A widow: God is concerned for widows, orphans, and foreigners—the most vulnerable members of ancient society—and has promised judgment against those who oppress them (Exod 22:22; Deut 10:18; 24:17; 27:19; 6 saying, 'Give me justice in this dispute with my enemy.' ⁴The judge ignored her for a while, but finally he said to himself, 'I don't fear God or care about people, ⁵but this woman is driving me crazy. I'm going to see that she gets justice, because she is wearing me out with her constant requests!'"

⁶Then the Lord said, "Learn a lesson from this unjust judge. ⁷Even he rendered a just decision in the end. So don't you think God will surely give justice to his chosen people who cry out to him day and night? Will he keep putting them off? ⁸I tell you, he will grant justice to them quickly! But when the Son of Man returns, how many will he find on the earth who have faith?"

Parable of the Pharisee and Tax Collector

⁹Then Jesus told this story to some who had great confidence in their own righteousness and scorned everyone else: ¹⁰"Two men went to the Temple to pray. One was a Pharisee, and the other was a despised tax collector. ¹¹The Pharisee stood by himself and prayed this prayer: 'I thank you, God, that I am not like other people—cheaters, sinners, adulterers. I'm certainly not like that tax collector! ¹²I fast twice a week, and I give you a tenth of my income.'

¹³"But the tax collector stood at a distance and dared not even lift his eyes to heaven as he prayed. Instead, he beat his chest in sorrow, saying, 'O God, be ¹⁴merciful to me, for I am a sinner.' ¹⁴I tell you, this sinner, not the Pharisee, returned home justified before God. For those who exalt themselves will be humbled, and those who humble themselves will be exalted."

Jesus Blesses the Children

Luke 18:15-17 // Matt 19:13-15 // Mark 10:13-16

¹⁵One day some parents brought their little children to Jesus so he could touch and bless them. But when the disciples saw this, they scolded the parents for bothering him.

¹⁶Then Jesus called for the children and said to the disciples, "Let the children come to me. Don't stop them! For the Kingdom of God belongs to those who are like these children. ¹⁷I tell you the truth, anyone who doesn't receive the Kingdom of God like a child will never enter it."

The Rich Man

Luke 18:18-23 // Matt 19:16-22 // Mark 10:17-22

¹⁸Once a religious leader asked Jesus this question: "Good Teacher, what should I do to inherit eternal life?"

¹⁹"Why do you call me good?" Jesus asked him. "Only God is truly good. ²⁰But to answer your question, you know the commandments: 'You must not commit adultery. You must not murder. You must not steal. You must not testify falsely. Honor your father and mother.'"

²¹The man replied, "I've obeyed all these commandments since I was young."

• Give me justice: The woman was in the right in this dispute—she was not asking for special favors.

18:5 driving me crazy: This colorful Greek expression means literally "striking the eye" or "giving me a black eye," as in boxing. The sense is of wearing someone down through persistence.

18:7 God will surely give justice: If persistence resulted in justice from this unjust judge, how much more will God, who loves both people and justice, answer our prayers.

18:8 Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself (see "The Son of Man" at Matt 8:18-20, p. 1593). • when the Son of Man returns: This is an allusion to Dan 7:13-14. • how many will he find on the earth who have faith? The question is whether believers will remain faithful through the trials that will precede the coming of the Son of Man (see Matt 24:10-12; 2 Thes 2:3; 1 Tim 4:1).

18:9-14 The topic of prayer (18:1-8) leads into this parable about the right attitude for approaching God.

18:10 a despised tax collector: See notes on 3:12; 15:1.

18:11 stood by himself and prayed this prayer: Some manuscripts read stood and prayed this prayer to himself.

18:12 I fast twice a week, and I give you a tenth of my income: Fasting and tithing were signs of piety in Judaism. The law required fasting only once a year (Lev 16:29-31), but pious Jews in Jesus' day fasted twice a week (see also 5:33; 11:41-42).

18:13 he beat his chest in sorrow: This action indicated deep mourning and repentance.

18:14 Jesus' conclusion that only the tax collector went home justified before God would have shocked Jesus' audience, who regarded Pharisees as righteous and tax collectors as wicked. • those who exalt themselves will be humbled: See 1:52-53; 6:21, 25; 10:15; 14:11; 16:19-31.

18:15-17 This incident illustrates 18:14. • they scolded the parents: In this cultural context, children had no social status (see note on 9:48), so the disciples viewed them as an interruption to Jesus' important ministry.

18:17 receive the Kingdom of God like a child: Entrance into the Kingdom of God requires childlike faith and dependence on God.

18:18-30 The story of the rich religious leader warns against trusting in riches rather than pledging complete allegiance to God.

18:18 The man was probably a religious leader (traditionally ruler), not a political ruler. • what should I do to inherit eternal life? This question was commonly discussed by the rabbis of Jesus' day (see 10:27).

18:19 Why do you call me good? The man was calling Jesus "good" as a general compliment, but only God is truly good. Jesus was challenging the man's understanding of goodness—true goodness requires moral perfection.

18:20 you know the commandments: Jesus cites the fifth through ninth of the Ten Commandments (Exod 20:12-16; Deut 5:16-20), which pertain to relationships between human beings.

18:21 I've obeyed all these commandments: The man's claim to have kept all the commandments shows that he misunderstood the nature of true goodness.

The Rewards of Discipleship

Luke 18:24-30 // Matt 19:23-30 // Mark 10:23-31

²⁴When Jesus saw this, he said, "How hard it is for the rich to enter the Kingdom of God! ²⁵In fact, it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich person to enter the Kingdom of God!"

²⁶Those who heard this said, "Then who in the world can be saved?"

²⁷He replied, "What is impossible for people is possible with God."

²⁸Peter said, "We've left our homes to follow you."

²⁹"Yes," Jesus replied, "and I assure you that everyone who has given up house or wife or brothers or parents or children, for the sake of the Kingdom of God, ³⁰will be repaid many times over in this life, and will have eternal life in the world to come."

Jesus Predicts His Death and Resurrection

Luke 18:31-34 // Matt 20:17-19 // Mark 10:32-34

³¹Taking the twelve disciples aside, Jesus said, "Listen, we're going up to Jerusalem, where all the predictions of the prophets concerning the Son of Man will come true. ³²He will be handed over to the Romans, and he will be mocked, treated shamefully, and spit upon. ³³They will flog him with a whip and kill him, but on the third day he will rise again."

³⁴But they didn't understand any of this. The significance of his words was hidden from them, and they failed to grasp what he was talking about.

Rich and Poor (18:18-30)

Throughout Luke's Gospel, a reversal of worldly fortunes characterizes entrance into, or exclusion from, the Kingdom of God. Mary announced that God would lift up the poor and humble and bring down the rich and powerful (1:52-53). Jesus announced at Nazareth that the gospel is "Good News to the poor" (4:18). He pronounced blessings on the poor and hungry and woes against the rich and satisfied (6:20-25). This was a reversal of conventional wisdom, which held that God had blessed the rich and cursed the poor.

A number of Jesus' parables severely warn against the danger of riches. "The Parable of the Rich Fool" (12:13-21) reveals the consequence of storing up treasures on earth instead of having a rich relationship with God. "The Parable of the Rich Man and Lazarus" (16:19-31) shows the eternal cost of ignoring the poor and helpless while enjoying the good things in life. The rich man who asked Jesus the way to eternal life was devastated when Jesus said he must sell all that he had and give to the poor (18:18-30).

Who are the poor in Luke's Gospel? Are they the physically poor or those that are poor in spirit (cp. Matt 5:3)? Almost certainly it is both. The physically poor, who have very little, are naturally dependent on God for their needs. The rich and powerful are likely to be self-sufficient, forgetting their need for God. It is impossible for rich people to enter God's Kingdom as long as they trust in their riches to get them there (16:25-26). God accepts those who put their faith in him alone.

18:22 The man's love of his riches revealed that he had not perfectly obeyed God; he did not love God or others in the way that God requires (10:25-28). Love of riches is a form of idolatry (Eph 5:5; Col 3:5).

18:24 When Jesus saw this: Some manuscripts read When Jesus saw how sad the man was. • How hard it is for the rich to enter the Kingdom of God! Though Scripture sometimes speaks of riches as a blessing from God (2 Chr 1:11-12; Ps 112:3; 128:2; Prov 8:18; Isa 61:6), many passages warn against the danger of trusting riches instead of God (Ps 62:10; Prov 11:28; Jer 9:23-24; 49:4-5). • the eye of a needle: See note on Mark 10:25. This is not merely difficult, but impossible. No one can be saved while trusting in riches. Salvation comes only by dependence on God (18:27).

18:27 The point of the whole episode is that salvation is impossible by human effort, but possible by the grace of God.

18:28-30 We've left our homes to follow you: In contrast to the rich ruler, Peter and the other disciples had given up everything to follow Jesus. Jesus affirmed that they would receive back far more than they had given up.

18:30 repaid many times over in this life: Their reward would not necessarily be physical, but they would enjoy the blessings that come from spiritual wholeness and a right relationship with God.

18:31-34 This was Jesus' last prediction of his suffering and death before entering Jerusalem for his final week of ministry (see also 9:22, 44-45; 17:25).

18:31 Jesus' death was in fulfillment of all the predictions of the prophets; it was God's plan (24:25-26, 46; Acts 2:23; 3:18; 4:28). The primary prophecy about the suffering Messiah is Isa 52:13-53:12. Luke also refers to Ps 2 (Acts 4:25-26), Ps 16 (Acts 2:25-28), Ps 118:22 (Luke 20:17), and Isa 50:4-9 (18:32-33).

18:32-33 the Romans: Literally the Gentiles. • mocked. . . . They will flog him: See Isa 50:6.

18:34 The significance of his words was hidden from them: Not until after the resurrection did the disciples grasp the saving significance of Jesus' death (see 9:45; 24:13-34).

Jesus Heals a Blind Beggar

Luke 18:35-43 // Matt 20:29-34 // Mark 10:46-52;
cp. Matt 9:27-31

³⁵As Jesus approached Jericho, a blind beggar was sitting beside the road. ³⁶When he heard the noise of a crowd going past, he asked what was happening. ³⁷They told him that Jesus the Nazarene was going by. ³⁸So he began shouting, "Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!"

³⁹"Be quiet!" the people in front yelled at him.

But he only shouted louder, "Son of David, have mercy on me!"

⁴⁰When Jesus heard him, he stopped and ordered that the man be brought to him. As the man came near, Jesus asked him, ⁴¹"What do you want me to do for you?"

"Lord," he said, "I want to see!"

⁴²And Jesus said, "All right, receive your sight! Your faith has healed you." ⁴³Instantly the man could see, and he followed Jesus, praising God. And all who saw it praised God, too.

Jesus and Zacchaeus

19 Jesus entered Jericho and made his way through the town. ²There was a man there named Zacchaeus. He was the chief tax collector in the region, and he had become very rich. ³He tried to get a look at Jesus, but he was too short to see over the crowd. ⁴So he ran ahead and climbed a sycamore-fig tree beside the road, for Jesus was going to pass that way.

⁵When Jesus came by, he looked up at Zacchaeus and called him by name. "Zacchaeus!" he said. "Quick, come down! I must be a guest in your home today."

⁶Zacchaeus quickly climbed down and took Jesus to his house in great excitement and joy. ⁷But the people were displeased. "He has gone to be the guest of a notorious sinner," they grumbled.

⁸Meanwhile, Zacchaeus stood before the Lord and said, "I will give half my wealth to the poor, Lord, and if I have cheated people on their taxes, I will give them back four times as much!"

⁹Jesus responded, "Salvation has come to this home today, for this man has shown himself to be a true son of Abraham. ¹⁰For the Son of Man came to seek and save those who are lost."

Parable of the Ten Servants

Luke 19:11-27 // Matt 25:14-30

¹¹The crowd was listening to everything Jesus said. And because he was nearing Jerusalem, he told them a story to correct the impression that the Kingdom of God would begin right away. ¹²He said, "A nobleman was called away to a distant empire to be 18:35-43 This account again demonstrates Jesus' care for the poor and marginalized in Israel. It reminds the reader that Jesus is the Son of David, the Messiah (18:38), shortly before he enters Jerusalem as the king (19:28-44).

18:35 Jericho was located in an oasis in the Judean wilderness, eighteen miles (thirty kilometers) northeast of Jerusalem. At 820 feet (250 meters) below sea level, Jericho is the world's lowest city and one of the oldest.

18:37 Jesus the Nazarene; Or Jesus of Nazareth.

18:38 Son of David is a title for the Messiah, a descendant of David who would reign on David's throne forever (see "The Messianic Hope" at 3:15, p. 1707; see also 1:32-33; 2 Sam 7:11-16; Isa 9:6-7; 11:1-5; Jer 23:5-6; 33:15-16; Ezek 37:24-25).

19:1-10 The story of Zacchaeus is a fitting climax to Jesus' ministry to the outcasts of Israel on his journey to Jerusalem (9:51-19:44). The final verse of the episode (19:10) is often viewed as the theme verse of Luke's Gospel.

19:2 The chief tax collector for a particular region leased from the Romans the right to collect taxes, and then oversaw subordinate tax collectors from whom he collected a commission. This situation allowed Zacchaeus to get very rich, and chief tax collectors were hated even more than their subordinates (see notes on 3:12; 15:1; 18:10).

19:4 climbed a sycamore-fig tree: This act was very undignified for a man of Zacchaeus' power and wealth; it shows his genuine spiritual interest in Jesus.

19:5 Zacchaeus! . . . I must be a guest: Jesus knew Zacchaeus' name and invited himself to Zacchaeus' home, emphasizing his divine authority and that this appointment was made by God.

19:7 the guest of a notorious sinner: As with Levi earlier (5:27-32), Jesus' willingness to associate with sinners drew criticism (see note on 5:30).

19:8 I will give them back four times: Normal restitution for a wrong committed was to add twenty percent to the value of the goods lost (Lev 5:16; Num 5:7), though the penalty for theft of an animal was four or five times its value (Exod 22:1). Zacchaeus apparently regarded his financial gains as theft and promised the required restitution.

19:9 this man has shown himself to be a true son of Abraham: Zacchaeus was a child of Abraham by descent (a Jew); now he demonstrated faith like Abraham's (see Rom 4:11-12).

19:10 Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself. • to seek and save those who are lost: The Lord is a shepherd who seeks lost sheep (see notes on 12:32; 15:4; see Ps 23:1; Isa 53:6; Jer 13:17; Ezek 34; Zech 10:3; 13:7).

19:11-27 This parable has two main purposes: (1) to teach stewardship, the need to manage gifts and resources well while the king (Jesus) is away (cp. Matt 25:14-30); and (2) to correct the impression that the Kingdom of God would begin right away upon Jesus' entrance into Jerusalem. Most Jews of Jesus' day expected that when the Messiah came, God's Kingdom would be established physically on earth, with Jerusalem at its center (see Isa 2:2-4; 35:1-10; 65:17-25; Jer 30-31; Ezek 37; 40-48; Mic 4:1-5).

19:12 A nobleman was called away to a distant empire to be crowned king: The account fits the situation of Judea as a client kingdom of the Roman empire. After the death of a king, claimants to the throne would go to Rome to try to gain support (see note on 19:14). Like the nobleman, Jesus would first depart (to heaven) to receive his royal crowned king and then return.¹³ Before he left, he called together ten of his servants and divided among them ten pounds of silver, saying, 'Invest this for me while I am gone.'¹⁴ But his people hated him and sent a delegation after him to say, 'We do not want him to be our king.'

¹⁵ After he was crowned king, he returned and called in the servants to whom he had given the money. He wanted to find out what their profits were. ¹⁶ The first servant reported, 'Master, I invested your money and made ten times the original amount!'

¹⁷ 'Well done!' the king exclaimed. 'You are a good servant. You have been faithful with the little I entrusted to you, so you will be governor of ten cities as your reward.'

¹⁸ The next servant reported, 'Master, I invested your money and made five times the original amount.'

¹⁹ 'Well done!' the king said. 'You will be governor over five cities.'

²⁰ But the third servant brought back only the original amount of money and said, 'Master, I hid your money and kept it safe. ²¹ I was afraid because you are a hard man to deal with, taking what isn't yours and harvesting crops you didn't plant.'

²² 'You wicked servant!' the king roared. 'Your own words condemn you. If you knew that I'm a hard man who takes what isn't mine and harvests crops I didn't plant, ²³ why didn't you deposit my money in the bank? At least I could have gotten some interest on it.'

²⁴ Then, turning to the others standing nearby, the king ordered, 'Take the money from this servant, and give it to the one who has ten pounds.'

²⁵ 'But, master,' they said, 'he already has ten pounds!'

²⁶ 'Yes,' the king replied, 'and to those who use well what they are given, even more will be given. But from those who do nothing, even what little they have will be taken away. ²⁷ And as for these enemies of mine who didn't want me to be their king—bring them in and execute them right here in front of me.'

6. THE CLIMAX OF THE SAVIOR'S MISSION IN JERUSALEM (19:28–24:53)

The Savior Arrives (19:28–44)

Jesus' Messianic Entry into Jerusalem

Luke 19:28–40 // Matt 21:1–11 // Mark 11:1–11 // John 12:12–19

²⁸ After telling this story, Jesus went on toward Jerusalem, walking ahead of his disciples. ²⁹ As he came to the towns of Bethphage and Bethany on the Mount of Olives, he sent two disciples ahead. ³⁰ 'Go into that village over there,' he told them. 'As you enter it, you will see a young donkey tied there that no one has ever ridden. Untie it and Jesus' Final Journey to Jerusalem (Luke 9:51–19:48; see also Matt 19:1; 20:17–19; 20:29–21:2; Mark 10:1–52). When the time came, Jesus embarked on his final trip to JERUSALEM to face his impending death (9:51). From CAPERNAUM he traveled first to PEREA at the edge of JUDEA, then to JERICO (18:35–19:27), to Bethany and Bethphage on the Mount of Olives, which is just outside Jerusalem (19:28–35; see illustration, p. 1753), and finally to Jerusalem itself (19:36–48).

delegation: This happened to Archelaus, the son of Herod the Great, who violently put down protests after the death of his father. In response, the Jews sent a delegation to plead against his kingship before the Roman emperor.

19:17 you will be governor of ten cities as your reward: Because of the servant's faithfulness, the king gave him a major position in his kingdom. Similarly, those who are faithful to Jesus in this life will receive greater responsibility here and great rewards in heaven.

19:23 deposit my money in the bank: Literally put the money on the table, which means to give it to moneylenders who would loan it out at interest.

19:26 even more will be given: Those who are faithful with a little will be entrusted with more (cp. 8:18).

19:27 as for these enemies of mine: Those who reject Jesus' reign as king will suffer his judgment. This part of the parable was directed against the religious leaders. • bring them in and execute them: A new king would often execute his opponents (see 1 Kgs 2:13–46; cp. Ps 2).

19:28–40 Jesus' triumphant entry into Jerusalem fulfilled Zech 9:9–10 and symbolically announced that he was the Messiah, the King of Israel.

19:29 Bethany was on the eastern slope of the Mount of Olives, two miles east of Jerusalem; it was the home of Lazarus and his sisters, Mary and Martha (John 11:1, 18; 12:1; see Luke 10:38). The location of Bethphage is uncertain, but it was probably near Bethany on the same road from Jericho. • The Mount of Olives overlooks Jerusalem from the east and has significance at the return of Christ (see Acts 1:11; Zech 14:4).

19:30 you will see a young donkey: It is unclear whether Jesus had arranged for the donkey ahead of time, or whether he used divine insight. Either way, Jesus' authority; he will later return to rule God's people and judge those who have opposed him (see 19:14, 27).

19:13 ten pounds of silver: Greek ten minas; one mina was worth about three months' wages.

19:14 his people hated him and sent a bring it here.³¹ If anyone asks, 'Why are you untying that colt?' just say, 'The Lord needs it.'"

³²So they went and found the colt, just as Jesus had said. ³³And sure enough, as they were untying it, the owners asked them, "Why are you untying that colt?"

³⁴And the disciples simply replied, "The Lord needs it." ³⁵So they brought the colt to Jesus and threw their garments over it for him to ride on.

³⁶As he rode along, the crowds spread out their garments on the road ahead of him.

³⁷When he reached the place where the road started down the Mount of Olives, all of his followers began to shout and sing as they walked along, praising God for all the wonderful miracles they had seen.

³⁸ "Blessings on the King who comes in the name of the LORD!
Peace in heaven, and glory in highest heaven!"

³⁹But some of the Pharisees among the crowd said, "Teacher, rebuke your followers for saying things like that!"

⁴⁰He replied, "If they kept quiet, the stones along the road would burst into cheers!"

Jesus Weeps over Jerusalem

⁴¹But as he came closer to Jerusalem and saw the city ahead, he began to weep. ⁴²"How I wish today that you of all people would understand the way to peace. But now it is too late, and peace is hidden from your eyes.

⁴³Before long your enemies will build ramparts against your walls and encircle you and close in on you from every side. ⁴⁴They will crush you into the ground, and your children with you. Your enemies will not leave a single stone in place, because you did not recognize it when God visited you."

Teaching in the Temple Area (19:45–21:38)

Jesus Clears the Temple

Luke 19:45–46 // Matt 21:12–13 // Mark 11:15–17;

cp. John 2:13–16

Luke 19:47–48 // Mark 11:18–19

⁴⁵Then Jesus entered the Temple and began to drive out the people selling animals for sacrifices. ⁴⁶He said to them, "The Scriptures declare, 'My Temple will be a house of prayer,' but you have turned it into a den of thieves."

⁴⁷After that, he taught daily in the Temple, but the leading priests, the teachers of religious law, and the other leaders of the people began planning how to kill him. ⁴⁸But they could think of nothing, because all the people hung on every word he said.

Jesus' Authority Is Challenged

Luke 20:1–8 // Matt 21:23–27 // Mark 11:27–33

20 One day as Jesus was teaching the people and preaching the Good News in the Temple, the leading priests, the teachers of religious law, and the elders came up to him. ²They demanded, "By what entrance into Jerusalem was a symbolic action. He rode a humble donkey rather than a war horse to confirm that he was fulfilling the role of the Messiah by bringing reconciliation and peace (Zech 9:9–10).

19:31 The Lord needs it: Subjects of a king were expected to make resources available for his use (see 1 Sam 8:16). The donkey's colt had never been ridden, so it was pure and suitable for a king.

19:36 The crowds spread out their garments to show honor and homage to this royal figure (see 2 Kgs 9:13).

19:38 Blessings on the King . . . glory in highest heaven! See Ps 118:26; 148:1. Psalm 118 was one of the psalms sung by pilgrims traveling to Jerusalem for one of the festivals (Pss 113–118).

• Jesus brought peace in heaven—reconciliation between God and human beings—but peace on earth awaits the future (cp. 2:14; see 12:51–53; 19:41–44).

19:40 Compare Isa 55:12, in which nature is said to rejoice at the coming of God's salvation, and Hab 2:11, in which the stones of the walls cry out against Babylon.

19:42 now it is too late: Israel's rejection of Jesus was irrevocable.

19:43–44 Jesus foretold the siege and destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans in AD 70. The Jewish historian Josephus describes the horrific suffering of the inhabitants of Jerusalem during the Roman siege (War 5.1.1–7.1.1). • will not leave a single stone in place: This is an image of total devastation. • did not recognize it when God visited you: Literally did not recognize the time of your visitation, a reference to the Messiah's coming.

19:45–48 Having just entered Jerusalem as the Messiah, Jesus performed a messianic action (cp. Mal 3:1) by driving money changers and merchants selling animals for sacrifices out of the Temple. This cleansing was to restore true worship to the Temple. It was also symbolic of the judgment that Jesus had just pronounced against Israel (19:41–44).

19:45 Pilgrims coming to worship at the Temple would purchase animals for sacrifices in the Temple courts. Jesus also drove out the money changers who provided the correct currency for the Temple tax (Matt 21:12; Mark 11:15; see Exod 30:13–16; Neh 10:32–33). While these were necessary services, Jesus objected to the exploitation of the Temple for illicit commercial gain that distracted from its purpose as a place of worship. The Temple was meant to reflect God's glory for all nations, but it had become corrupt.

19:46 a house of prayer . . . a den of thieves: This is a combined allusion to Isa 56:7 and Jer 7:11.

19:47 The clearing of the Temple catalyzed the opposition and precipitated Jesus' crucifixion (but see note on Mark 11:12–25). • Jesus' opposition in Galilee came mainly from the Pharisees and teachers of religious law; in Jerusalem, the opposition also included the leading priests, who controlled the Temple. Jesus' actions against the Temple trade threatened their authority.

20:1–47 In this series of controversies between Jesus and the religious leaders of Jerusalem, they repeatedly questioned and challenged him, and he repeatedly outmatched them with his spiritual wisdom, insight, and authority.

20:1 the leading priests, the teachers of religious law, and the elders: The most influential Jewish leaders in Jerusalem authority are you doing all these things? Who gave you the right?"

³"Let me ask you a question first," he replied. ⁴"Did John's authority to baptize come from heaven, or was it merely human?"

⁵They talked it over among themselves. "If we say it was from heaven, he will ask why we didn't believe John. ⁶But if we say it was merely human, the people will stone us because they are convinced John was a prophet." ⁷So they finally replied that they didn't know.

⁸And Jesus responded, "Then I won't tell you by what authority I do these things."

Parable of the Evil Tenant Farmers

Luke 20:9-19 // Matt 21:33-46 // Mark 12:1-12

⁹Now Jesus turned to the people again and told them this story: "A man planted a vineyard, leased it to tenant farmers, and moved to another country to live for several years.

¹⁰At the time of the grape harvest, he sent one of his servants to collect his share of the crop. But the farmers attacked the servant, beat him up, and sent him back empty-handed. ¹¹So the owner sent another servant, but they also insulted him, beat him up, and sent him away empty-handed.

¹²A third man was sent, and they wounded him and chased him away.

¹³"What will I do?" the owner asked himself. "I know! I'll send my cherished son. Surely they will respect him."

¹⁴But when the tenant farmers saw his son, they said to each other, "Here comes the heir to this estate. Let's kill him and get the estate for ourselves!" ¹⁵So they dragged him out of the vineyard and murdered him.

"What do you suppose the owner of the vineyard will do to them?" Jesus asked.

¹⁶"I'll tell you—he will come and kill those farmers and lease the vineyard to others."

"How terrible that such a thing should ever happen," his listeners protested.

¹⁷Jesus looked at them and said, "Then what does this Scripture mean?

'The stone that the builders rejected has now become the cornerstone.'

¹⁸Everyone who stumbles over that stone will be broken to pieces, and it will crush anyone it falls on."

¹⁹The teachers of religious law and the leading priests wanted to arrest Jesus immediately because they realized he was telling the story against them—they were the wicked farmers. But they were afraid of the people's reaction.

Taxes for Caesar

Luke 20:20-26 // Matt 22:15-22 // Mark 12:13-17

²⁰Watching for their opportunity, the leaders sent spies pretending to be honest men. They tried to get Jesus to say something that could be reported to the Roman governor converged against Jesus, who threatened their authority.

20:2 By what authority are you doing all these things? Since these groups were the recognized Jewish authorities in Jerusalem, they wanted to know how Jesus could claim authority to enter Jerusalem as a king and drive the merchants from the Temple.

20:4-6 Jesus' question put the religious leaders in a double bind (see 20:5-6), as either answer would indict them.

20:6 the people will stone us: Stoning was the penalty for blasphemy (Lev 24:14-15), idolatry (Lev 20:2; Deut 13:10), and other sins of defiance against God. The people might have regarded rejection of an authentic prophet as blasphemy deserving of stoning.

20:7-8 The Jewish authorities refused to answer Jesus' question, so Jesus had no obligation to answer their question. Both their question and their refusal were guided by self-interest rather than integrity.

20:9-19 This story adapts Isaiah's Song of the Fruitful Vineyard (Isa 5:1-7) to allegorize Jesus' rejection by Israel's leaders. In Isaiah's allegory, the vineyard owner is God and Israel is the unfruitful vineyard that will be judged. Jesus added new characters—the tenant farmers were Israel's unrighteous leaders, the servants were the OT prophets (repeatedly rejected by Israel), and the son was Jesus. God would judge Israel's leaders for rejecting and murdering his Son.

20:9 leased it to tenant farmers: This was a common practice in first-century Palestine, especially in Galilee, where peasants would lease the right to raise crops from wealthy landowners.

20:10 the farmers attacked the servant: God's prophets were often mistreated and opposed (1 Kgs 19:10, 14; 2 Chr 24:21; 36:16; Neh 9:26; Jer 2:30; 26:20-24; 37:15; see "The Suffering Prophet" at 4:22-24, p. 1711).

20:13 my cherished son: The Messiah was predicted to have a unique father-son relationship with God (see note on 1:32-33; see 2 Sam 7:14; Ps 2:7; 89:26-29).

20:14 Let's kill him and get the estate for ourselves! They believed that killing the heir would give them power over the estate. They foolishly failed to realize that the owner was still alive and would demand justice. Similarly, the religious leaders thought that they could keep their authority over the people of Israel by killing Jesus.

20:17 The stone . . . cornerstone: Jesus cited Ps 118:22 to predict his rejection and restoration. The cornerstone was the key part of a building, used to support and align adjoining walls. Jesus was rejected by the builders (the religious leaders), but he would become the foundation of a new building (the church).

20:18 Jesus expanded the stone metaphor (20:17) with allusions to Isa 8:14-15 and Dan 2:34, 44-45. Although Israel rejected him, Jesus was the foundation for the new people of God, and he inaugurated a Kingdom that would last forever.

20:19 they realized he was telling the story against them: The story provoked the religious leaders to act it out by arresting and killing Jesus.

20:20-26 The religious leaders' question was meant to trap Jesus, but he once again outwitted them.

so he would arrest Jesus. ²¹"Teacher," they said, "we know that you speak and teach what is right and are not influenced by what others think. You teach the way of God truthfully. ²²Now tell us—is it right for us to pay taxes to Caesar or not?"

²³He saw through their trickery and said, ²⁴"Show me a Roman coin. Whose picture and title are stamped on it?"

"Caesar's," they replied.

²⁵"Well then," he said, "give to Caesar what belongs to Caesar, and give to God what belongs to God."

²⁶So they failed to trap him by what he said in front of the people. Instead, they were amazed by his answer, and they became silent.

Discussion about Life in the Resurrection

Luke 20:27-40 // Matt 22:23-33 // Mark 12:18-27

²⁷Then Jesus was approached by some Sadducees—religious leaders who say there is no resurrection from the dead. ²⁸They posed this question: "Teacher, Moses gave us a law that if a man dies, leaving a wife but no children, his brother should marry the widow and have a child who will carry on the brother's name. ²⁹Well, suppose there were seven brothers. The oldest one married and then died without children. ³⁰So the second brother married the widow, but he also died. ³¹Then the third brother married her. This continued with all seven of them, who died without children. ³²Finally, the woman also died. ³³So tell us, whose wife will she be in the resurrection? For all seven were married to her!"

³⁴Jesus replied, "Marriage is for people here on earth. ³⁵But in the age to come, those worthy of being raised from the dead will neither marry nor be given in marriage. ³⁶And they will never die again. In this respect they will be like angels. They are children of God and children of the resurrection.

³⁷"But now, as to whether the dead will be raised—even Moses proved this when he wrote about the burning bush. Long after Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob had died, he referred to the Lord as 'the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.' ³⁸So he is the God of the living, not the dead, for they are all alive to him."

³⁹"Well said, Teacher!" remarked some of the teachers of religious law who were standing there. ⁴⁰And then no one dared to ask him any more questions.

Whose Son Is the Messiah?

Luke 20:41-44 // Matt 22:41-46 // Mark 12:35-37

⁴¹Then Jesus presented them with a question. "Why is it," he asked, "that the Messiah is said to be the son of David? ⁴²For David himself wrote in the book of Psalms:

20:21 we know that you speak and teach what is right: This flattery was meant to throw Jesus off guard (see Ps 5:9; 12:2-3; 78:36; Prov 26:28; 28:23; 29:5; Ezek 12:24).

20:22 is it right for us to pay taxes to Caesar or not? If Jesus said yes, he would make the people angry, because they hated the burden of Roman taxation. If he said no, he would be accused of rebellion against the Roman authorities.

20:24 a Roman coin (Greek a denarius): This coin had the picture and title of the emperor Tiberius Caesar (see 3:1) stamped on it.

20:25 give to Caesar what belongs to Caesar: Jesus' brilliant answer could be taken in two ways. On the face of it, he said that this was Caesar's money that should properly be paid to Caesar. Jesus' Jewish listeners also knew that what belongs to Caesar was actually nothing, since everything in the universe belongs to God.

20:27 Sadducees . . . who say there is no resurrection from the dead: See "The Sadducees" at Matt 16:1, p. 1610.

20:28 Moses gave us a law: A dead man's brother would marry the widow to produce children who would maintain the dead man's name and property (Deut 25:5-6; see also Gen 38:8-10; Ruth 4:1-12).

20:29-33 Well, suppose there were seven brothers: A similar story of a woman married to seven husbands appears in the OT Apocrypha (Tobit 3:7-17; 6:10-8:18).

20:33 whose wife will she be in the resurrection? The Sadducees used this hypothetical situation in an attempt to show that the idea of resurrection was absurd. This was probably a stock polemic that the Sadducees used in debating the Pharisees.

20:35 will neither marry nor be given in marriage: Jesus emphasized that marriage is an institution for this life, not for the resurrection.

20:36 In this respect they will be like angels: Angels are not married and they are immortal. The Bible never teaches that people become angels (cp. Heb 1:5-2:18), but that we will be like them.

20:37 Having refuted the Sadducees' argument about marriage, Jesus turned to the larger question concerning the resurrection. • even Moses proved this: Jesus used the books of Moses (Genesis—Deuteronomy)—the only Scripture the Sadducees recognized as authoritative—to prove the resurrection. • when he wrote . . . he referred to the Lord: Literally when he wrote about the bush. He referred to the Lord. • the God of Abraham . . . Jacob: Exod 3:6. God identified himself as the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob long after these patriarchs had died. Since he was still their God, they must have had a continuing existence after death.

20:39 Well said, Teacher! Most teachers of religious law were Pharisees, so they agreed with Jesus on the resurrection and were pleased that he refuted the Sadducees.

20:40 Jesus' wise answers confounded his opponents, thwarting their attempts to trap him.

20:41-44 Having silenced his opponents, Jesus took the offensive in challenging the religious leaders' concept of the Messiah.

20:41 The OT predicted that the Messiah would be a descendant of David (see notes on 1:32-33; 18:38).

20:42-43 Jesus quotes Ps 110:1, which indicates that the Messiah is David's Lord.

Luke 20:45-47 // Mark 12:38-40; cp. Matt 23:1-14

⁴⁵Then, with the crowds listening, he turned to his disciples and said, ⁴⁶"Beware of these teachers of religious law! For they like to parade around in flowing robes and love to receive respectful greetings as they walk in the marketplaces. And how they love the seats of honor in the synagogues and the head table at banquets. ⁴⁷Yet they shamelessly cheat widows out of their property and then pretend to be pious by making long prayers in public. Because of this, they will be severely punished."

The Widow's Offering

Luke 21:1-4 // Mark 12:41-44

21 While Jesus was in the Temple, he watched the rich people dropping their gifts in the collection box. ²Then a poor widow came by and dropped in two small coins.

20:44 Jesus asked why David addressed his son (i.e., his descendant) as his Lord.
The implied answer was that the Messiah was more than just a human king descended from David. He is Lord of all (see 2:11; Acts 10:36). Psalm 110:1 became an important text for the apostles, confirming Jesus' identity as the Son of God (see Mark 14:62; Acts 2:34; 7:56;
Rom 8:34; 1 Cor 15:25; Eph 1:20; Col
3:1; Heb 1:3, 13; 8:1; 10:12-13; 1 Pet fensive, warning against the hypocrisy and exploitation of the *teachers of 20:47 Yet they shamelessly cheat widows: This might mean exploiting widows' property over which they were appointed guardians; it could also mean coercing widows to give money beyond their means. Widows were the most vulnerable members of society, and God had special concern for them. He would judge those who exploited them (Exod 22:22; Deut 10:18; 27:19).

21:1-4 Jesus set the sacrificial offering of the poor widow in contrast to the greed and hypocrisy of the rich people, including the teachers of religious law (20:45-47).

21:1 The Greek term translated collection box probably refers to the chests with trumpet-shaped openings used to collect offerings.

21:2 two small coins: Greek two lepta, the smallest of Jewish coins, together worth only about 1/4 of a denarius (the standard day's wage for a laborer).

21:4 The amount given counts for less than the heart attitude of the giver.

21:5-38 When Jesus predicted the destruction of the Temple of Jerusalem (21:6), his disciples questioned when it would take place and what signs would accompany it (21:7). Jesus responded by describing the events surrounding the destruction of the Temple and the return of the Son of Man (21:8-36).
This sermon is known as the Olivet Discourse because the Mount of Olives was the site of Jesus' teaching (see Matt 24:3; Mark 13:3).

21:5 majestic stonework: Herod the Great rebuilt and restored the Jerusalem Temple, producing one of the great structures of the ancient world (see "Herod the Great" at Matt 2:1-20, their surplus, but she, poor as she is, has ⁵Some of his disciples began talking about the majestic stonework of the Temple and the memorial decorations on the walls.

But Jesus said, ⁶"The time is coming when all these things will be completely demolished. Not one stone will be left on top of another!"

⁷"Teacher," they asked, "when will all this happen? What sign will show us that these things are about to take place?"

⁸He replied, "Don't let anyone mislead you, for many will come in my name, claiming, 'I am the Messiah,' and saying, 'The time has come!' But don't believe them.

⁹And when you hear of wars and insurrections, don't panic. Yes, these things must take place first, but the end won't follow massive white stones reflected the sun with such brilliance that from a distance the Temple looked like snow-covered mountains (War 5.5.6). • The memorial decorations were probably funded by offerings given by worshipers to fulfill vows.

21:6 Not one stone will be left on top of another: See note on 19:43-44.

21:8-11 Jesus foretold events that are often misinterpreted as signs of the end, such as the appearance of false mes-siahs, wars, earthquakes, famines, and severe persecution, but Jesus said that the end won't follow immediately.

You will be dragged into synagogues and prisons, and you will stand trial before kings and governors because you are my followers. ¹³But this will be your opportunity to tell them about me. ¹⁴So don't worry in advance about how to answer the charges against you, ¹⁵for I will give you the right words and such wisdom that none of your opponents will be able to reply or refute you! ¹⁶Even those closest to you—your parents, brothers, relatives, and friends—will betray you. They will even kill some of you. ¹⁷And everyone will hate you because you are my followers. ¹⁸But not a hair of your head will perish! ¹⁹By standing firm, you will win your souls.

²⁰And when you see Jerusalem surrounded by armies, then you will know that the time of its destruction has arrived.

²¹Then those in Judea must flee to the hills. Those in Jerusalem must get out, and those out in the country should not return to the city. ²²For those will be days of God's vengeance, and the prophetic words of the Scriptures will be fulfilled. ²³How terrible it will be for pregnant women and for nursing mothers in those days. For there will be disaster in the land and great anger against this people. ²⁴They will be killed by the sword or sent away as captives to all the nations of the world. The City of Jerusalem (21:20-24)

Luke 13:33-35;
19:41-44

The city of Jerusalem plays a crucial but ambivalent role throughout Luke and Acts. On the one hand, Jerusalem was the city of God, the great King—his presence dwelt there in his Temple. God would accomplish salvation in Jerusalem and the Good News would go out from there (as recorded in Acts). At the same time, Jerusalem symbolically represented God's rebellious people Israel, who had persecuted God's prophets in the past and were now rejecting his Son, the Messiah. This rejection would result in judgment against Jerusalem and its utter destruction by the Romans in AD 70 (13:33-35; 19:41-44; 21:20).

Jerusalem plays a key geographical role in the structure of Luke-Acts. The Gospel narrative begins in the Temple at the heart of Jerusalem, the most sacred place in the world, and Jesus' ministry culminated with his death and resurrection in Jerusalem. All this confirms that salvation emerged from Israel, fulfilling the promises made to Israel in the OT. The church then moved outward, taking the message of salvation from Jerusalem to the ends of the earth (Acts 1:8).

21:12-19 a time of great persecution: Jesus described the persecution that his followers would experience (see also Matt 10:17-22; Mark 13:9). The Jewish literature of Jesus' day similarly described a time of great tribulation prior to the arrival of God's final salvation.

21:12 dragged into synagogues: Jesus and his early followers were Jewish, and the earliest conflicts were with fellow Jews who did not accept Jesus as the Messiah. Jesus' followers were sometimes tried in the synagogue before a Jewish tribunal (cp. 2 Cor 11:24).

21:13 But this will be your opportunity to tell them about me: Or This will be your testimony against them. The Greek can be interpreted either way.

21:15 I will give you the right words: God often assured his prophets that he would give them the words to say (Exod

4:12, 15; Deut 18:18; Isa 50:4; 51:16; Jer 1:9). Jesus' disciples were to prepare themselves to be clear witnesses (see Col 4:5-6; 2 Tim 2:21; 1 Pet 3:15), knowing that the Spirit would help them to respond as powerfully as Jesus had done (20:20-44).

21:16 Families in Jewish and Gentile communities have often been divided as some members follow Jesus and some reject him.

21:17 because you are my followers: Literally on account of my name.

21:18-19 But not a hair of your head will perish! This idiom signifies full protection (1 Sam 14:45; 2 Sam 14:11; 1 Kgs 1:52; Dan 3:27). It refers here to the disciples' souls, because some would be martyred for their faith (21:16).

21:20-24 Jesus was describing the siege and destruction of Jerusalem that would take place in AD 70 (see note on 19:43-44).

21:21 Those in Jerusalem must get out: Because of this prophecy, Christians in Judea fled to the town of Pella in Decapolis before the destruction of Jerusalem in AD 70 (Eusebius, Church History 3.5).

21:22 For those will be days of God's vengeance: The destruction of Jerusalem was part of God's judgment for Israel's rejection of the Messiah.

21:24 until the period of the Gentiles comes to an end: Daniel predicted a period of successive Gentile empires before the coming of God's Kingdom (Dan 2:44; 7:27).

21:25 The prophets predicted that heavenly signs would precede the judgment of God at the end of the age (Isa 13:9-10; 34:4; Jer 4:23, 28; Ezek 32:7-8; Joel 2:10, 30-31; cp. Rev 6:13-14; 8:10; 9:1; 12:1, 3; 15:1).

▲ First-Century Jerusalem (Luke 19:28–21:37). At the time of Jesus and the apostles, Jerusalem was glorious and strong. Herod the Great (37–4 BC) had built extensively; his most prominent project was rebuilding the Temple (see illustration, p. 1787). Many events in the lives of Jesus and the apostles took place in Jerusalem. • Josephus described Jerusalem's three walls at the time of the Jewish rebellion (AD 66–70; see Josephus, War 5.4.1–4), with the "First Wall" being the oldest, and the "Third Wall" never reaching completion. Jerusalem was destroyed in AD 70 by the Roman general Titus. Later, Emperor Hadrian razed it completely in AD 135. • Buildings, streets, and roads are artist's concept only, unless otherwise named and located.

²⁹Then he gave them this illustration: "Notice the fig tree, or any other tree. ³⁰When the leaves come out, you know without being told that summer is near. ³¹In the same way, when you see all these things taking place, you can know that the Kingdom of God is near. ³²I tell you the truth, this generation will not pass from the scene until all these things have taken place. ³³Heaven and earth will disappear, but my ^cwords will never disappear.

For that day will come upon everyone living on the earth. ³⁶Keep alert at all times. And pray that you might be strong enough to escape these coming horrors and stand before the Son of Man."

Jesus Teaches Each Day

³⁷Every day Jesus went to the Temple to teach, and each evening he returned to spend the night on the Mount of Olives. ³⁸The crowds gathered at the Temple early each morning to hear him.

22 The Festival of Unleavened Bread, which is also called Passover, was approaching. ²The leading priests and teachers of religious law were plotting how to kill Jesus, but they were afraid of the people's reaction.

³Then Satan entered into Judas Iscariot, who was one of the twelve disciples, ⁴and he went to the leading priests and captains of the Temple guard to discuss the best way to betray Jesus to them. ⁵They were delighted, and they promised to give him money. ⁶So he agreed and began looking for an opportunity to betray Jesus so they could arrest him when the crowds weren't around.

21:27 Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself. • coming on a cloud with power and great glory: Jesus alluded to Dan 7:13–14.

21:31 All these things refers to the events described in 21:25–30.

21:32 this generation will not pass from the scene: This saying is puzzling—Jesus seems to have predicted that he would come again before the first generation of his disciples died out. There are three main interpretations: (1) the reference is to the destruction of Jerusalem in AD 70 when Jesus "came" in judgment against the nation of Israel; (2) "this generation" is not Jesus' contemporaries, but a future generation alive when these signs begin coming to fulfillment; (3) the term generation could be translated "race," referring to the Jewish race that will not disappear before Christ returns.

21:33 Heaven and earth will disappear: See note on 16:17.

21:34 The central theme of the discourse is Watch out! Believers are always to be alert and ready for Christ's return.

21:36 To stand before means "to pass the test" and stand approved before Jesus Christ at his second coming.

22:1–6 The religious leaders who had been plotting against Jesus (see 19:47) found their opportunity when Judas Iscariot approached them with an offer to betray Jesus.

22:1 The Passover meal was held on the 15th of Nisan (March–April) in the Jewish calendar and was immediately followed by the seven-day Festival of Unleavened Bread (Exod 12:1–20; 23:15; 34:18; Deut 16:1–8), sometimes also called Passover.

22:3 Satan entered into Judas Iscariot: See John 13:2; Acts 5:3. Satan had previously tempted Jesus (4:2), and had been waiting for this opportunity (4:13).

22:4 captains of the Temple guard: The Temple had its own police force.

22:5 Judas wanted the money. John tells us that he was a thief who stole from the disciples' common fund (John 12:6).

22:6 when the crowds weren't around: This was because of Jesus' popularity among the people.

22:7–30 Jesus celebrated the traditional Jewish Passover but transformed it with reference to his own sacrificial death as the Passover lamb. He also prepared his disciples for his coming death and the leadership role they would assume over his church.

22:7 The Passover lamb was sacrificed at twilight, and Passover was celebrated in the evening (see Exod 12:6–8).

22:8 Go and prepare the Passover meal: The lamb was roasted and eaten with bitter herbs and unleavened bread at the Passover meal (Exod 12:8; Num 9:11–12; Deut 16:3). The bitter herbs represented the bitterness of the Israelites' slavery in Egypt, and the unleavened bread recalled their haste in leaving Egypt.

22:10 A man carrying a pitcher of water would have been an unusual sight, because women normally carried the water.

22:11–12 The text does not say whether Jesus exhibited supernatural foreknowledge or whether he had made arrangements for this room ahead of time (see also 19:30–34).

At the house he enters, ¹¹say to the owner, 'The Teacher asks: Where is the guest room where I can eat the Passover meal with my disciples?' ¹²He will take you upstairs to a large room that is already set up. That is where you should prepare our meal." ¹³They went off to the city and found everything just as Jesus had said, and they prepared the Passover meal there.

¹⁴When the time came, Jesus and the apostles sat down together at the table. ¹⁵Jesus said, "I have been very eager to eat this Passover meal with you before my suffering begins. ¹⁶For I tell you now that I won't eat this meal again until its meaning is fulfilled in the Kingdom of God."

¹⁷Then he took a cup of wine and gave thanks to God for it. Then he said, "Take this and share it among yourselves. ¹⁸For I will not drink ^awine again until the Kingdom of God has come."

¹⁹He took some bread and gave thanks to God for it. Then he broke it in pieces and gave it to the disciples, saying, "This is my body, which is given for you. Do this in remembrance of me."

²⁰After supper he took another cup of wine and said, "This cup is the new ^ecovenant between God and his people—an agreement confirmed with my blood, which is poured out as a sacrifice for you.

²¹"But here at this table, sitting among us as a friend, is the man who will betray me. ²²For it has been determined that the Son of Man must die. But what sorrow awaits the one who betrays him." ²³The disciples began to ask each other which of them would ever do such a thing.

²⁴Then they began to argue among themselves about who would be the greatest among them. ²⁵Jesus told them, "In this world the kings and great men lord it over their people, yet they are called 'friends of the people.' ²⁶But among you it will be different. Those who are the greatest among you should take the lowest rank, and the leader should be like a servant. ²⁷Who is more important, the one who sits at the table or the one who serves? The one who sits at the table, of course. But not here! For I am among you as one who serves.

²⁸"You have stayed with me in my time of trial. ²⁹And just as my Father has granted me a Kingdom, I now grant you the right ³⁰to eat and drink at my table in my Kingdom. And you will sit on thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

Jesus Predicts Peter's Denial

Luke 22:31-34; cp. Matt 26:31-35 // Mark 14:27-31; cp. John 13:36-38

³¹"Simon, Simon, Satan has asked to sift each of you like wheat. ³²But I have pleaded in prayer for you, Simon, that your faith

22:14 sat down together at the table (or reclined together): The Jewish people followed Hellenistic practice at banquets by reclining on couches (see note on John 13:23).

22:15 Jesus ate the Passover meal with his disciples and followed the ritual order of the Passover celebration (see note on Matt 26:26-29).

22:16 until its meaning is fulfilled in the Kingdom of God: This celebration had as its goal the messianic banquet. Jesus' death as the true Passover lamb (1 Cor 5:7) inaugurated the Kingdom of God that will be completed at Jesus' second coming.

22:17 he took a cup of wine: The traditional Passover celebration used four cups of wine—at the opening benediction, after the Passover explanation, after the meal, and after a concluding psalm. This was probably the first cup that introduced the ceremony.

22:19-20 Using the bread and cup as symbols of his body and blood, Jesus instituted the communion service that the disciples were to practice in remembrance of his death. • This is my body, which is given for you: The unleavened bread of the Passover symbolized Jesus' death as the Passover lamb. His death would pay for the sins of the world (cp. 1 Cor 11:24-25). • what sorrow awaits the one who betrays him: Judas suffered guilt, condemnation, and a gruesome death for betraying Jesus (Matt 27:5; Acts 1:18).

22:20 God's covenants in the OT were confirmed with the blood of a sacrifice (Gen 15:9-10; Exod 24:8). Jesus' death established the new covenant that God had promised his people (Jer 31:31-34).

22:21-22 it has been determined: Though wicked men betrayed and killed Jesus, it was part of God's sovereign plan to accomplish salvation (see Acts 2:23).

22:22 Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself. • what sorrow awaits the one who betrays him: Judas suffered guilt, condemnation, and a gruesome death for betraying Jesus (Matt 27:5; Acts 1:18).

22:24 who would be the greatest among them: See also Mark 9:33-37; 10:35-45.

22:25 friends of the people: This translates a Greek word that refers to the practice of rulers bestowing gifts and favors on their subjects to gain loyalty and honor. Jesus contrasted the world's leadership style—military power, coercion, and bribery—with his own servant leadership in sacrificing himself for others.

22:27 For I am among you as one who serves: Jesus defined true leadership as service—meeting the needs of others and empowering them to be all that God has called them to be (see Mark 10:45). This statement was striking in a culture for which status and power were central.

22:29-30 I now grant you the right to eat and drink at my table: See "The Messianic Banquet" at 14:1-24, p. 1737.

22:30 you will sit on thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel: This could be a figurative reference to the apostles' leadership in the church, or it could indicate their special role in the future when the Kingdom would be consummated on earth (cp. Eph 2:20; Rev 3:21; 20:4).

22:31 Regarding Satan, see 4:2; 10:18; 11:15. Satan is the accuser of God's people (see Job 1:7; 2:2); he would test Simon Peter and the rest of the apostles. • asked to sift: Wheat was sifted through should not fail. So when you have repented and turned to me again, strengthen your brothers."

³³Peter said, "Lord, I am ready to go to prison with you, and even to die with you."

³⁴But Jesus said, "Peter, let me tell you something. Before the rooster crows tomorrow morning, you will deny three times that you even know me."

³⁵Then Jesus asked them, "When I sent you out to preach the Good News and you did not have money, a traveler's bag, or an extra pair of sandals, did you need anything?"

"No," they replied.

³⁶"But now," he said, "take your money and a traveler's bag. And if you don't have a sword, sell your cloak and buy one! ³⁷For the time has come for this prophecy about me to be fulfilled: 'He was counted among the rebels.' Yes, everything written about me by the prophets will come true."

³⁸"Look, Lord," they replied, "we have two swords among us."

"That's enough," he said.

Jesus Prays on the Mount of Olives

Luke 22:39-46 // Matt 26:36-46 // Mark 14:32-42

³⁹Then, accompanied by the disciples, Jesus left the upstairs room and went as usual to the Mount of Olives. ⁴⁰There he told them, "Pray that you will not give in to temptation."

⁴¹He walked away, about a stone's throw, and knelt down and prayed, ⁴²"Father, if you are willing, please take this cup of suffering away from me. Yet I want your will to be done, not mine." ⁴³Then an angel from heaven appeared and strengthened him. ⁴⁴He prayed more fervently, and he was in such agony of spirit that his sweat fell to the ground like great drops of blood.

⁴⁵At last he stood up again and returned to the disciples, only to find them asleep, exhausted from grief. ⁴⁶"Why are you sleeping?" he asked them. "Get up and pray, so that you will not give in to temptation."

Jesus Is Betrayed and Arrested

Luke 22:47-53 // Matt 26:47-56 // Mark 14:43-52 // John 18:1-12

⁴⁷But even as Jesus said this, a crowd approached, led by Judas, one of the twelve disciples. Judas walked over to Jesus to greet him with a kiss. ⁴⁸But Jesus said, "Judas, would you betray the Son of Man with a kiss?"

⁴⁹When the other disciples saw what was about to happen, they exclaimed, "Lord, should we fight? We brought the swords!" ⁵⁰And one of them struck at the high priest's slave, slashing off his right ear.

⁵¹But Jesus said, "No more of this." And he touched the man's ear and healed him.

⁵²Then Jesus spoke to the leading priests, a sieve to separate the grain from the chaff. It is an image of extreme testing (see Isa 30:28; Amos 9:9). • The NLT's each of you is precise, because the Greek word is plural, referring to all the disciples. Jesus foresaw Peter's denial and the trials of the other disciples.

22:32 So when you have repented: This you is singular; it refers to Peter's restoration after his denial of Jesus.

22:33 See Acts 4:3; 5:18; 12:1-9, where Peter suffered trials and was repeatedly jailed. Church tradition relates that Peter was crucified in Rome, but his declaration of loyalty here was premature.

22:34 On Thursday evening, Jesus said that Peter would deny him before the rooster crows tomorrow morning (literally before the rooster crows today): This does not contradict Mark's "this very night, before the rooster crows twice" (Mark 14:30); Luke and Matthew are simply more general, and in Jewish reckoning, sunset was the beginning of the next day.

22:36 take your money and a traveler's bag: For their missions to Israel's villages, the apostles had traveled without provisions and depended on others' support (9:3; 10:3-4). In the dangerous days to come, they would have to plan more carefully. Jesus prepared his disciples for his suffering and death, and also for the establishing of the church and the worldwide proclamation of the Good News. • a sword: Jesus was probably not telling his followers to take up arms, but speaking metaphorically (see note on 22:38)—they must prepare themselves for a violent crisis.

22:37 He was counted among the rebels: Isa 53:12.

22:38 That's enough: The disciples' two swords were probably not enough to defend the whole group, and Jesus elsewhere rejected violence (22:49-51 // Matt 26:52). Jesus might have meant that two swords were sufficient to fulfill Isa 53:12. Or perhaps he meant, "Enough of this foolish talk—you are misunderstanding me."

22:39 Mount of Olives: See note on 19:29, where Jesus went to the Garden of Gethsemane (Mark 14:32; Matt 26:36).

22:42 please take this cup of suffering away: A cup is a metaphor for experiencing either judgment or blessing (see, e.g., Ps 23:5; 75:8; 116:13; Isa 51:17). Jesus felt all the emotions of his humanity, including fear and anxiety.

22:43-44 These verses are not included in the most ancient manuscripts.

22:43 an angel from heaven: Angels often help and encourage human beings (see Heb 1:14; cp. 1 Kgs 19:5-8; Ps 91:11-12; Dan 3:28; 10:16-19).

22:44 his sweat fell to the ground like great drops of blood: The text does not say that Jesus sweated blood, as is often supposed, but that his sweat fell like blood pouring to the ground, which probably means that in his agony he sweated profusely.

22:45-46 Jesus' agonized prayer contrasted with the disciples' failure to be vigilant against temptation.

22:47 A kiss was a common greeting between friends. Judas's kiss highlighted his treachery.

22:51 he touched the man's ear and healed him: John tells us that the man's name was Malchus and that Peter was the one who cut off his ear (John 18:10). Peter probably thought that he was precipitating the final war and that the heavenly host was about to appear and destroy the Romans. When Jesus refused to fight, the terror-stricken disciples fled (Matt 26:56 // Mark 14:50).

the captains of the Temple guard, and the elders who had come for him. "Am I some dangerous revolutionary," he asked, "that you come with swords and clubs to arrest me?" ⁵³Why didn't you arrest me in the Temple? I was there every day. But this is your moment, the time when the power of darkness reigns."

Peter Denies Jesus

Luke 22:54-62 // Matt 26:69-75 // Mark 14:66-72 // John 18:15-18, 25-27

⁵⁴So they arrested him and led him to the high priest's home. And Peter followed at a distance. ⁵⁵The guards lit a fire in the middle of the courtyard and sat around it, and Peter joined them there. ⁵⁶A servant girl noticed him in the firelight and began staring at him. Finally she said, "This man was one of Jesus' followers!"

⁵⁷But Peter denied it. "Woman," he said, "I don't even know him!"

⁵⁸After a while someone else looked at him and said, "You must be one of them!"

"No, man, I'm not!" Peter retorted.

⁵⁹About an hour later someone else insisted, "This must be one of them, because he is a Galilean, too."

⁶⁰But Peter said, "Man, I don't know what you are talking about." And immediately, while he was still speaking, the rooster crowed.

⁶¹At that moment the Lord turned and looked at Peter. Suddenly, the Lord's words flashed through Peter's mind: "Before the rooster crows tomorrow morning, you will deny three times that you even know me." ⁶²And Peter left the courtyard, weeping bitterly.

Jesus Is Mocked and Beaten

Luke 22:63-65; cp. Matt 26:67-68 // Mark 14:65

⁶³The guards in charge of Jesus began mocking and beating him. ⁶⁴They blindfolded him and said, "Prophecy to us! Who hit you that time?" ⁶⁵And they hurled all sorts of terrible insults at him.

Jesus' Trial before the Jewish High Council

Luke 22:66-71 // Matt 26:57-68 // Mark 14:53-65; cp. John 18:19-24

⁶⁶At daybreak all the elders of the people assembled, including the leading priests and the teachers of religious law. Jesus was led before this high council, ⁶⁷and they said, "Tell us, are you the Messiah?"

But he replied, "If I tell you, you won't believe me. ⁶⁸And if I ask you a question, you won't answer. ⁶⁹But from now on the Son of Man will be seated in the place of power at God's right hand."

⁷⁰They all shouted, "So, are you claiming to be the Son of God?"

And he replied, "You say that I am."

⁷¹"Why do we need other witnesses?" they said. "We ourselves heard him say it."

Jesus' Trial before Pilate

Luke 23:1-5 // Matt 27:1-2, 11-14 // Mark 15:1-5 // John 18:28-38a 23 Then the entire council took Jesus to Pilate, the Roman governor.

22:52 The Greek word translated revolutionary normally means "thief," but the Romans used this term for violent revolutionaries who opposed Roman authority (such as Barabbas, 23:18-19). To patriotic Jews, they were freedom fighters; to the Romans, they were common thugs.

22:54 The high priest's home might have been the home of Caiaphas, the current high priest, or Annas, his father-in-law and the previous high priest (see note on 3:2; John 18:12-14).

22:59 because he is a Galilean: Peter's Galilean accent gave him away (cp. Judg 12:5-6).

22:61 the Lord turned and looked at Peter: Jesus was in the house being questioned and must have looked through a window or vestibule. When their eyes met and the rooster crowed, Peter remembered Jesus' prediction (22:34).

22:63 mocking and beating him: See 18:32; Isa 50:6; 53:3-5.

22:64 Prophecy to us! Who hit you that time? Jesus had a reputation as a prophet (4:24; 7:16, 39; 13:33; 24:19), so the soldiers mocked this claim.

22:66 At daybreak: It was Friday morning (see note on 22:34). • all the elders of the people assembled: The Jewish high council (Greek their Sanhedrin) was originally made up of the Jerusalem nobility, both civil leaders and priests, with the high priest as its head. In Jesus' time, the Sadducees still controlled the Sanhedrin (Acts 5:17), though leading Pharisees had also gained a prominent place on the council (Acts 23:7).

22:67-68 If I tell you, you won't believe me: Jesus pointed out the hypocrisy of the question. They had already made up their minds that he was not the Messiah, so it would do no good to answer.

22:69 Jesus referred to Ps 110:1 (see note on 20:42-43). Though he would be crucified, Jesus would be vindicated through his resurrection and exalted to God's right hand (see Acts 2:33-36; cp. Dan 7:13-14). Furthermore, he would be seated in the place of power as Judge. Jesus would soon sit in judgment over those who were trying him.

22:70 The significance of Jesus' statement (22:69) was not lost on the council members. The Messiah was expected to be the Son of God and have a special father-son relationship with God (see notes on 1:32-33; 4:41; cp. 2 Sam 7:14; Ps 2:7; 89:26). The Sanhedrin accused Jesus of claiming to be the Messiah (see notes on Mark 14:62, 63-64). • You say that I am: This is a qualified affirmation. Jesus probably meant, "What you say is true, but you do not understand what 'Messiah' means." They understood it as a confirmation (22:71).

22:71 Why do we need other witnesses? The high council regarded Jesus' confirmation that he was both the Messiah and the Son of God as a blasphemous claim and thus as confirmation of his guilt.

23:1 The council did not have the right to administer capital punishment (John 18:31), so they had to take Jesus before the Roman governor (see "Pontius Pilate" at Mark 15:1-15, p. 1691), who was in Jerusalem to maintain order during the potentially turbulent Passover festival.

²They began to state their case: "This man has been leading our people astray by telling them not to pay their taxes to the Roman government and by claiming he is the Messiah, a king."

³So Pilate asked him, "Are you the king of the Jews?"

Jesus replied, "You have said it."

⁴Pilate turned to the leading priests and to the crowd and said, "I find nothing wrong with this man!"

⁵Then they became insistent. "But he is causing riots by his teaching wherever he goes—all over Judea, from Galilee to Jerusalem!"

Jesus Is Sent to Herod Antipas

⁶"Oh, is he a Galilean?" Pilate asked. ⁷When they said that he was, Pilate sent him to Herod Antipas, because Galilee was under Herod's jurisdiction, and Herod happened to be in Jerusalem at the time.

⁸Herod was delighted at the opportunity to see Jesus, because he had heard about him and had been hoping for a long time to see him perform a miracle. ⁹He asked Jesus question after question, but Jesus refused to answer. ¹⁰Meanwhile, the leading priests and the teachers of religious law stood there shouting their accusations. ¹¹Then Herod and his soldiers began mocking and ridiculing Jesus. Finally, they put a royal robe on him and sent him back to Pilate.

¹²(Herod and Pilate, who had been enemies before, became friends that day.)

Jesus Is Sentenced to Death

Luke 23:13-25 // Matt 27:15-26 // Mark 15:6-15 // John 18:38b-19:16

¹³Then Pilate called together the leading priests and other religious leaders, along with the people, ¹⁴and he announced his verdict. "You brought this man to me, accusing him of leading a revolt. I have examined him thoroughly on this point in your presence and find him innocent. ¹⁵Herod came to the same conclusion and sent him back to us. Nothing this man has done calls for the death penalty. ¹⁶So I will have him flogged, and then I will release him."

¹⁸Then a mighty roar rose from the crowd, and with one voice they shouted, "Kill him, and release Barabbas to us!" ¹⁹(Barabbas was in prison for taking part in an insurrection in Jerusalem against the government, and for murder.) ²⁰Pilate argued with them, because he wanted to release Jesus. ²¹But they kept shouting, "Crucify him! Crucify him!"

²²For the third time he demanded, "Why? What crime has he committed? I have found no reason to sentence him to death. So I will have him flogged, and then I will release him."

²³But the mob shouted louder and louder, demanding that Jesus be crucified, and their voices prevailed. ²⁴So Pilate sentenced Jesus to die as they demanded. ²⁵As they

23:2 The religious charges against Jesus were now replaced by political ones in order to gain a Roman conviction. Pilate was only interested in what concerned Rome. The Jewish charge of blasphemy would not be sufficient, so the council had to show that Jesus was a danger to Rome. They accused Jesus of inciting insurrection against Roman taxation and claiming to be a king. All but the last charge were false.

23:3 You have said it: This is the same vague answer that Jesus gave to the high council (22:70), emphasizing Jesus' acceptance of the title "king of the Jews," but suggesting that Pilate's understanding of the title was different from his own.

23:4 I find nothing wrong with this man! To Pilate, Jesus did not seem to be a political threat.

23:5 he is causing riots: This accusation was also false, but the religious leaders knew that Pilate feared civil unrest and revolt against Rome.

23:6-7 Realizing that Jesus was a Galilean and thus under the jurisdiction of Herod Antipas (see "Herod Antipas" at Mark 6:14-29, p. 1659), Pilate saw an opportunity to get out of this sticky situation without condemning an innocent man or angering the religious leaders.

23:8 Herod was delighted: He was curious about Jesus' power as a miracle worker and religious teacher, just as he had been curious about John the Baptist (9:7, 9; Mark 6:20).

23:9 Jesus refused to answer: See Isa 53:7.

23:12 Herod and Pilate, who had been enemies before: There was a history of bad blood between Herod Antipas and Pilate. Herod and three of his brothers had previously brought charges against Pilate before Tiberius Caesar when Pilate set up idolatrous golden shields in Jerusalem, and Tiberius had ordered Pilate to remove the shields. Pilate was also governing Judea, which Antipas's father, Herod the Great, had once ruled, and which Antipas hoped one day to claim as his own.

23:14-15 Pilate and Herod repeatedly declared Jesus innocent (23:4, 22)—Jesus was the righteous and innocent suffering servant of the Lord (see also 23:41, 47; Isa 53:11).

23:16-18 I will have him flogged (or I will teach him a lesson!): The Greek word can mean "instruct," "punish," or "discipline"; it refers to a relatively mild whipping given for lesser offenses. It was different from the severe flogging that Romans gave in preparation for crucifixion (see Matt 27:26; Mark 15:15). • Some manuscripts add v 17, Now it was necessary for him to release one prisoner to them during the Passover celebration. Cp. Matt 27:15; Mark 15:6; John 18:39. Because of this custom, the crowd demanded that Pilate release Barabbas to them.

23:19 Palestine was a breeding ground for insurrection in the decades leading up to the Jewish revolt of AD 66–74. The Jewish historian Josephus describes a series of first-century revolutionaries, such as Judas of Galilee, who opposed Roman rule and taxation.

23:24 So Pilate sentenced Jesus to die: Pilate, always the ruthless pragmatist, felt that it was worth a miscarriage of justice to avoid antagonizing the religious leaders and crowds and jeopardizing his political career (see John 19:12 and note).

Luke 23:35-43 // Mark 15:29-32 // Matt 27:39-44

26As they led Jesus away, a man named Simon, who was from Cyrene, happened to be coming in from the countryside. The soldiers seized him and put the cross on him and made him carry it behind Jesus. 27A large crowd trailed behind, including many grief-stricken women. 28But Jesus turned and said to them, "Daughters of Jerusalem, don't weep for me, but weep for yourselves and for your children. 29For the days are coming when they will say, 'Fortunate indeed are the women who are childless, the wombs that have not borne a child and the breasts that have never nursed.' 30People will beg the mountains, 'Fall on us,' and plead with the hills, 'Bury us.' 31For if these things are done when the tree is green, what will happen when it is dry?"

32Two others, both criminals, were led out to be executed with him. 33When they came to a place called The Skull, they nailed him to the cross. And the criminals were also crucified—one on his right and one on his left.

34Jesus said, "Father, forgive them, for they don't know what they are doing." And the soldiers gambled for his clothes by throwing dice.

35The crowd watched and the leaders scoffed. "He saved others," they said, "let him save himself if he is really God's Messiah, the Chosen One." 36The soldiers mocked him, too, by offering him a drink of sour wine. 37They called out to him, "If you are the King of the Jews, save yourself!"

38A sign was fastened above him with these words: "This is the King of the Jews."

39One of the criminals hanging beside him scoffed, "So you're the Messiah, are you? Prove it by saving yourself—and us, too, while you're at it!"

40But the other criminal protested, "Don't you fear God even when you have been sentenced to die? 41We deserve to die for our crimes, but this man hasn't done anything wrong." 42Then he said, "Jesus, remember me when you come into your Kingdom."

43And Jesus replied, "I assure you, today you will be with me in 'paradise.'"

The Death of Jesus

Luke 23:44-49 // Matt 27:45-56 // Mark 15:33-41 // John 19:28-30

44By this time it was about noon, and darkness fell across the whole land until three

23:26 Cyrene was a city in northern Africa. Simon might have been a Jewish pilgrim visiting Jerusalem for Passover (see note on Mark 15:21-22). • put the cross on him: Prisoners bound for crucifixion were normally forced to carry the crossbeam to the place of execution. It was fastened to the upright beam at the crucifixion site.

23:28 Jesus warned of the horrors that would come to Jerusalem during its siege and destruction in AD 70.

23:29 Fortunate indeed are the women who are childless: Childlessness was normally a cause of great shame (see note on 1:7), but during this catastrophe, those who didn't have to see their children starve to death would be the fortunate ones.

23:30 People will beg the mountains, 'Fall on us': Jesus was quoting Hos 10:8. Death would be better than the extended agony and suffering that Jerusalem would experience.

23:31 This verse could also be rendered, If these things are done to me, the living tree, what will happen to you, the dry tree? If the Romans crucified an innocent man when the tree was green (i.e., during a period of relative peace), what more horrible things would they do when it was dry (i.e., when the land had become a tinderbox of revolution)? During the siege of Jerusalem (AD 66–70), the Romans crucified thousands of Jews outside the city of Jerusalem.

23:33 The Skull: The Greek word kranion ("skull") is sometimes rendered Calvary, which comes from the Latin word for "skull." The Aramaic term is Golgotha (Mark 15:22; Matt 27:33). The location is uncertain, but it has traditionally been associated with the present Church of the Holy Sepulchre. A less likely location is Gordon's Calvary, a rock outcrop near the Garden Tomb (see illustration, p. 1753). • they nailed him to the cross: Victims were often tied to the cross or nailed through the wrists and ankles to hasten death—here, the bodies had to be buried before sunset due to the Sabbath.

23:34 Jesus said, "Father, forgive them, for they don't know what they are doing": This sentence is not included in many ancient manuscripts. • by throwing dice (literally by casting lots; see Ps 22:18; John 19:23-24): The prisoner's possessions were treated as spoils of war and divided among the soldiers.

23:35 The crowd watched and the leaders scoffed (see Ps 22:7-8); Psalm 22 speaks of David, a righteous sufferer, crying out to God for protection. Jesus, David's descendant, was the ultimate righteous sufferer who fulfilled Ps 22.

23:36 Sour wine (cp. Ps 69:21) was a popular drink of the lower classes, especially among soldiers.

23:38 The sign confirmed that Jesus was crucified on the charge of claiming to be the King of the Jews (cp. John 19:19-22).

23:42 remember me when you come into your Kingdom: The criminal was perhaps thinking of the resurrection at the end of time, when Jesus would be raised up and vindicated by God.

23:43 Jesus corrected the man by assuring him that today he would be vindicated in God's presence (see also 2:11; 4:21; 5:26; 19:9). • The word translated paradise comes from a Persian word that means "garden"; it was used in Jewish literature for the Garden of Eden and also for heaven, the place of eternal bliss for God's people (see 2 Cor 12:4; Rev 2:7; cp. Luke 16:22-23; 2 Cor 5:8).

23:44 Darkness symbolizes sorrow as well as God's judgment (Ps 23:4; Isa 8:22; 9:1-2).

o'clock. ⁴⁵The light from the sun was gone. And suddenly, the curtain in the sanctuary of the Temple was torn down the middle. ⁴⁶Then Jesus shouted, "Father, I entrust my spirit into your hands!" And with those words he breathed his last.

⁴⁷When the Roman officer overseeing the execution saw what had happened, he worshiped God and said, "Surely this man was innocent." ⁴⁸And when all the crowd that came to see the crucifixion saw what had happened, they went home in deep sorrow. ⁴⁹But Jesus' friends, including the women who had followed him from Galilee, stood at a distance watching.

The Burial of Jesus

Luke 23:50-56 // Matt 27:57-61 // Mark 15:42-47 // John 19:38-42

⁵⁰Now there was a good and righteous man named Joseph. He was a member of the Jewish high council, ⁵¹but he had not agreed with the decision and actions of the other religious leaders. He was from the town of Arimathea in Judea, and he was waiting for the Kingdom of God to come. ⁵²He went to Pilate and asked for Jesus' body. ⁵³Then he took the body down from the cross and wrapped it in a long sheet of linen cloth and laid it in a new tomb that had been carved out of rock. ⁵⁴This was done late on Friday afternoon, the day of preparation, as the Sabbath was about to begin.

⁵⁵As his body was taken away, the women from Galilee followed and saw the tomb where his body was placed. ⁵⁶Then they went home and prepared spices and ointments to anoint his body. But by the time they were finished the Sabbath had begun, so they rested as required by the law.

⁵The women were terrified and bowed with their faces to the ground. Then the men asked, "Why are you looking among 23:45 the curtain in the sanctuary of the Temple: One curtain separated the Temple courtyard from the Holy Place, and another separated the Holy Place from the Most Holy Place. Luke does not say which was torn down the middle, but it was probably the latter—Jesus' death put an end to the sacrificial system of the Temple and opened a new and permanent way into the presence of God (see Heb 10:19-20).

23:46 Father, I entrust my spirit into your hands! See Ps 31:5; Ps 31 is another psalm about a righteous sufferer (see note on 23:35).

23:47 the Roman officer: Literally the centurion. • innocent (or righteous; cp. Mark 15:39): See note on 23:14-15. The innocent and righteous servant of the Lord died as a sacrifice for the sins of his people (Isa 53:11).

23:48 went home in deep sorrow (literally went home beating their breasts): Beating the breast was a sign of sorrow and mourning.

23:50-51 Not all the religious leaders opposed Jesus—Joseph had opposed the actions of the council. • The location of Arimathea in Judea is uncertain; it might be Ramathaim (= Ramah), twenty miles (thirty-two kilometers) northwest of Jerusalem.

23:52 He went to Pilate and asked for Jesus' body: The Romans used crucifixion as a public warning against revolt, so they did not generally allow a victim to be buried. Instead, they left the body exposed or rotting on the cross. An exception was made in this case, probably because Pilate knew that Jesus was innocent and because of Joseph's position of prestige on the Jewish high council.

23:53 The new tomb had probably been purchased by Joseph as a family tomb.

23:54 This was done late on Friday afternoon, the day of preparation (literally It was the day of preparation): The Greek text does not explicitly refer to Friday, but simply to the day of preparation for the Sabbath of Passover week; the Sabbath began Friday evening. • as the Sabbath was about to begin: The body had to be buried quickly, because the Jews could not work during the Sabbath, which began at sunset.

23:55-56 The women took special note of the tomb's location because they would return with spices and ointments to anoint his body. The spices were to mask the stench of a rotting corpse. A body would be placed on a stone bench in the side of the tomb until the flesh decomposed. The bones would then be collected and placed in a small ossuary, or bone box, and placed on a shelf in the tomb (see illustration, p. 1813). In this way, a tomb could be used for many family members over an extended period of time.

24:1-12 Women were the first to find the tomb empty and to hear the announcement of the resurrection. This is strong evidence for the historicity of the resurrection accounts. In first-century Judaism, women were not regarded as reliable witnesses, so the church would never have created stories in which women discovered the empty tomb.

24:1 But very early on Sunday morning (literally But on the first day of the week, very early in the morning): The early church worshiped on the first day of the week (Sunday) instead of the seventh (Saturday, the Sabbath) because Jesus rose on a Sunday morning (cp. Acts 20:7; Rev 1:10).

24:2 The stone was probably a large round stone that was rolled down a track to cover the tomb's entrance (see illustration, p. 1813).

24:4 two men suddenly appeared: Angels often appear as young men in Scripture (Gen 18:2; 19:1, 10; Josh 5:13; Judg 13:6-11; Heb 13:2). Dazzling white robes symbolize purity and holiness (Dan 10:5-6; Acts 1:10; Rev 4:4; 19:14).

24:5-7 Jesus had told his followers many times that he would rise from the dead (see 9:22, 44; 17:25; 18:31-34). Jesus' resurrection is a key tenet of the Christian faith (see 1 Cor 15:3-7, 12-57).

the dead for someone who is alive? ⁶He isn't here! He is risen from the dead! Remember what he told you back in Galilee, ⁷that the Son of Man must be betrayed into the hands of sinful men and be crucified, and that he would rise again on the third day."

⁸Then they remembered that he had said this. ⁹So they rushed back from the tomb to tell his eleven disciples—and everyone else—what had happened. ¹⁰It was Mary Magdalene, Joanna, Mary the mother of James, and several other women who told the apostles what had happened. ¹¹But the story sounded like nonsense to the men, so they didn't believe it. ¹²However, Peter jumped up and ran to the tomb to look. Stooping, he peered in and saw the empty linen wrappings; then he went home again, wondering what had happened.

The Walk to Emmaus

Luke 24:13-34; cp. Mark 16:12-13

¹³That same day two of Jesus' followers were walking to the village of Emmaus, seven miles from Jerusalem. ¹⁴As they walked along they were talking about everything that had happened. ¹⁵As they talked and discussed these things, Jesus himself suddenly came and began walking with them. ¹⁶But God kept them from recognizing him.

¹⁷He asked them, "What are you discussing so intently as you walk along?"

They stopped short, sadness written across their faces. ¹⁸Then one of them, Cleopas, replied, "You must be the only person in Jerusalem who hasn't heard about all the things that have happened there the last few days."

¹⁹"What things?" Jesus asked.

"The things that happened to Jesus, the man from Nazareth," they said. "He was a prophet who did powerful miracles, and he was a mighty teacher in the eyes of God and all the people. ²⁰But our leading priests and other religious leaders handed him over to be condemned to death, and they crucified him. ²¹We had hoped he was the Messiah who had come to rescue Israel. This all happened three days ago.

²²"Then some women from our group of his followers were at his tomb early this morning, and they came back with an amazing report. ²³They said his body was missing, and they had seen ²⁴angels who told them Jesus is alive! ²⁴Some of our men ran out to see, and sure enough, his body was gone, just as the women had said."

²⁵Then Jesus said to them, "You foolish people! You find it so hard to believe all Galilee (Matt 28:16-17; John 21:1-23). Finally Jesus led his disciples to the MOUNT OF OLIVES, where he ascended to heaven (24:50-51; Acts 1:6-12).

24:7 Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself. • Jesus rose on the third day, counting Friday as the first day and Sunday as the third.

24:9 His eleven disciples were the Twelve minus Judas.

24:10 Mary Magdalene and Joanna are mentioned in 8:2-3. Mary the mother of James is not the mother of James and John (see Matt 27:56), but might be the mother of James, the son of Alphaeus (6:15). See "Women Named Mary" at Matt 27:55-56, p. 1640.

24:12 Peter . . . ran to the tomb to look: John also accompanied Peter (John 20:2-9).

24:13-34 This account is Luke's most important contribution to the resurrection narratives. Jesus corrected these disciples' misunderstanding by showing from Scripture that it was necessary for the Messiah to suffer. He then opened their eyes to the truth of his resurrection.

24:13 two of Jesus' followers: Jesus had many disciples in addition to the Twelve (see 10:1, 17). Nothing else is known of Cleopas (24:18) or the other disciple (who may have been his wife). They were probably returning from celebrating the Passover in Jerusalem. • seven miles: Greek 60 stadia [11.1 kilometers].

24:16 God kept them from recognizing him: The Greek uses a passive construction (they were kept from recognizing him) known as a "divine passive," with God as the implied subject. God intentionally blinded their eyes until the moment of revelation, when Jesus broke bread with them (24:30-31; cp. 2 Kgs 6:17).

24:18 the only person in Jerusalem who hasn't heard about all the things: The Romans conducted crucifixions at major public crossroads to make an example of the victims and warn others against revolt. It was unthinkable to these disciples that a Passover pilgrim would not have heard of Jesus' crucifixion.

24:19 Jesus is often portrayed as a prophet in Luke's Gospel (see 7:16; cp. the description of Moses in Acts 7:22).

24:21 We had hoped he was the Messiah: Literally we had hoped he was the one who would deliver Israel. This is a reference to the Messiah—the crucifixion had dashed their hopes.

24:22 an amazing report: See 24:10-11.

24:25-26 the prophets wrote . . . that the Messiah would have to suffer: The crucifixion did not negate Jesus' identity as the Messiah but confirmed it, because the death of the Messiah was predicted in Scripture. Jesus rebuked the two for not recognizing from Scripture that the Messiah had to suffer (see Isa 50:4-9; 52:13-53:12; Pss 2; 16; 22; 118; cp. Luke 18:32; 20:17; 23:37; Acts 2:25-28; 4:25-26).

that the prophets wrote in the Scriptures. ²⁶Wasn't it clearly predicted that the Messiah would have to suffer all these things before entering his glory?" ²⁷Then Jesus took them through the writings of Moses and all the prophets, explaining from all the Scriptures the things concerning himself.

²⁸By this time they were nearing Emmaus and the end of their journey. Jesus acted as if he were going on, ²⁹but they begged him, "Stay the night with us, since it is getting late." So he went home with them. ³⁰As they sat down to eat, he took the bread and blessed it. Then he broke it and gave it to them. ³¹Suddenly, their eyes were opened, and they recognized him. And at that moment he disappeared!

³²They said to each other, "Didn't our hearts burn within us as he talked with us on the road and explained the Scriptures to us?"

³³And within the hour they were on their way back to Jerusalem. There they found the eleven disciples and the others who had gathered with them, ³⁴who said, "The Lord has really risen! He appeared to Peter."

Jesus Appears to His Disciples

Luke 24:35-49 // John 20:19-23

³⁵Then the two from Emmaus told their story of how Jesus had appeared to them as they were walking along the road, and how they had recognized him as he was breaking the bread. ³⁶And just as they were telling about it, Jesus himself was suddenly standing there among them. "Peace be with you," he said. ³⁷But the whole group was startled and frightened, thinking they were seeing a ghost!

³⁸"Why are you frightened?" he asked.

"Why are your hearts filled with doubt?" ³⁹Look at my hands. Look at my feet. You can see that it's really me. Touch me and make sure that I am not a ghost, because ghosts don't have bodies, as you see that I do." ⁴⁰As he spoke, he showed them his hands and his feet.

⁴¹Still they stood there in disbelief, filled with joy and wonder. Then he asked them, "Do you have anything here to eat?" ⁴²They gave him a piece of broiled fish, ⁴³and he ate it as they watched.

In the OT, the Spirit of God occasionally came upon individuals to empower them for God's service and for prophecy (Num 24:2; Judg 3:10; 1 Sam 10:10; 16:13; Ezek 11:5). In the Judaism of Jesus' day, there was a widespread belief that the Spirit of prophecy had departed from Israel with the last of the OT prophets. But the prophets had predicted that when God's salvation arrived, he would pour out his Spirit on all people (Isa 32:15; Ezek 36:26-27; Joel 2:28-32).

This prophecy finds its initial fulfillment in the birth narrative in Luke. The Holy Spirit inspired prophetic witness and guided the events of Jesus' birth. John the Baptist was filled with the Spirit even before he was born (1:15, 41), and Zechariah broke forth in a Spirit-filled hymn of praise to God (1:67). Mary conceived Jesus (1:35) and prophesied (1:46-55) through the power of the Spirit, and Simeon was led by the Spirit to the Temple to see the Messiah (2:24-27). Later in his life, Jesus was anointed by the Spirit at his baptism and empowered to accomplish his role as the Messiah (3:22; 4:1, 18).

Following his ascension, Jesus fulfilled the OT prophecies by pouring out his Spirit on his disciples on the Day of Pentecost, empowering them to take the Good News of salvation to the ends of the earth (24:49; Acts 1:8; 2:4, 17-18). Throughout Acts, the church accomplished its mission through the guidance, power, and direction of the Holy Spirit. For Luke, the coming of the Spirit marks the beginning of God's salvation—God's presence and power now reside with his people.

24:27 All the Scriptures, meaning all of the OT, point forward to the coming of Jesus the Messiah and the salvation that he would bring.

24:29 they begged him, "Stay the night with us": Middle Eastern hospitality demanded that they offer food and lodging to this stranger (Gen 18:3; 19:2; Judg 19:5-9).

24:30 As they sat down to eat (or As they reclined): The meal is a symbol of the messianic banquet and of the salvation that God is accomplishing (Isa 25:6-8; see "The Messianic Banquet" at 14:1-24, p. 1737). • Then he broke it and gave it to them: This action recalls the feeding of the 5,000 (9:16) and the institution of the Lord's Supper (22:19).

24:31 their eyes were opened: This is another example of the "divine passive" (see note on 24:16); God opened their eyes at the breaking of the bread. • at that moment he disappeared! In his resurrected and transformed body, Jesus had abilities not realized before the resurrection (see 24:36; 1 Cor 15:20-23, 35-57).

24:34 Peter (Greek Simon): This appearance to Simon Peter is not narrated in the Gospels, but Paul independently confirms it in 1 Cor 15:5.

24:39 ghosts don't have bodies, as you see that I do: In his resurrected state, Jesus was not an immaterial spirit, but had a real immortal and imperishable body. Believers will receive similar bodies at the final resurrection (1 Cor 15:35-57).

⁵⁰Then Jesus led them to Bethany, and lifting his hands to heaven, he blessed them. ⁵¹While he was blessing them, he left them and was taken up to heaven. ⁵²So they worshiped him and then returned to Jerusalem filled with great joy. ⁵³And they spent all of their time in the Temple, praising God.

24:44 the law of Moses and the prophets and in the Psalms: Jesus referred to the three sections of the Hebrew Scriptures: the Law, the Prophets, and the Writings (see Old Testament Introduction, "The Canon of the Old Testament," p. 4). The entire OT points to God's salvation through Christ.

24:46 that the Messiah would suffer and die: See note on 24:25-26.

24:47 The OT was the universal proclamation of the Gospel to all the nations (or all peoples): See Isa 42:6; 49:6; Joel 2:28-32; Amos 9:11-12; Acts 2:17-21; 13:47; 15:16-18.

24:48 The primary role of the apostles in the book of Acts was to be witnesses to the fulfillment of Scripture in the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus (see Acts 1:8).

24:49 I will send the Holy Spirit: The OT predicted that God would pour out his Spirit on all people (Isa 32:15; Jer 31:33; Ezek 36:26-27; Joel 2:28-32). This prediction was fulfilled on the Day of Pentecost (Acts 2:14-21).

24:50-53 Luke also narrates Jesus' ascension in Acts 1:1-11. For Luke, Jesus' ascension confirmed his vindication, exaltation, and enthronement at God's right hand as Messiah and Lord (Acts 2:24-36). From his position of glory and authority in heaven, Jesus guides and directs his church.

24:50 Bethany: See notes on 19:28-29; see also Acts 1:11-12; cp. Zech 14:4.

24:51 Cp. 2 Kgs 2:11. Jesus' ascension was his exaltation to a position of authority over all creation (see Acts 2:32-36; 5:31; Eph 1:19-23; Phil 2:9-11; Heb 1:13).

24:53 The Temple was a place of worship as well as of sacrifice. The apostles continued in their Jewish manner of worship because their goal was not to create a new religion but to announce the fulfillment of Scripture's promises of salvation through Jesus the Messiah.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO John

John wrote his Gospel to inspire faith. John knew Jesus intimately, and John's Gospel provides an intimate portrait of the Lord. John referred to himself as "the disciple Jesus loved." His Gospel has become the "beloved Gospel" of the church. Here we meet Nicodemus, doubting Thomas, Lazarus, and the Samaritan woman at the well. John records for us Jesus' most memorable sayings, his longest sermons, and his most profound miracles. Here we meet God face to face.

SETTING

A small community of Christians lived in ancient Ephesus during the late first century AD. They had learned the remarkable story of Jesus from the apostles Paul and John. This early church became strong in faith under the leadership of these men. While many stories circulated about Jesus, the apostle John had his own recollections and insights. In the later years of his life, John wrote these stories down, providing his followers—and us—with the fourth Gospel.

As an evangelist, pastor, and theologian, John's desire above all was for his followers to believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God (20:31). He realized that they had not had the privilege of seeing Jesus' many signs and miracles as he had (20:29). John's authority and deep experience with Jesus ring out from every story he told. As a valued eyewitness to Jesus' life (19:35), John was the source of many stories from faraway Galilee and Judea. John had heard, seen, and touched the Word of life (see 1 Jn 1:1-4). He told about Nicodemus and rebirth, described Jesus' miracle at Cana, and recorded many other episodes.

As the Christians of Ephesus told their fellow citizens about Jesus, they quickly found themselves debating about Jesus with rabbis in the local synagogues. Was Jesus truly the Son of God? How could he ◆ Key Places in the Gospel of John. The book of John describes Jesus' ministry in GALILEE (2:1-12; 4:43-54; 6:1-7:9), JERUSALEM (2:13-3:21; 5:1-47; 7:10-10:42; 12:12-50), JUDEA (3:22; 11:1-44; 12:1-11), and SAMARIA (4:4-42). The book includes a full account of Jesus' death and resurrection in JERUSALEM (13:1-20:31) and his post-resurrection appearance to his disciples beside the SEA OF GALILEE (21:1-23).

be the Messiah? Can Christians legitimately claim to be “children of Abraham”? Could anyone prove that Jesus’ claim of being sent from God was true? Guided by the Holy Spirit in his teaching and writing, John brilliantly led his Christian readers through these debates.

Tensions grew. As more Jews converted, small churches grew up alongside synagogues and began converting their members. Opposition to the Christian believers was inevitable. However, John stood by the church during terrible persecution and conflict. When it seemed that the fledgling church’s struggle with the prestigious synagogue community would overwhelm them, John courageously gave witness to the ministry of Jesus Christ. When false teachers later brought internal controversy and conflict to the church, John again gave the community strength. Writing letters to encourage and exhort (see 1, 2, and 3 John), John became the heroic pastor-theologian of Asia Minor.

John’s writing is as beloved today as it was in the earliest years of the church. Few books of the Bible have influenced Christian life and thought like John’s profound and dynamic Gospel. By combining intimacy of expression with penetrating insight, John provides a deeply satisfying portrait of Christ.

SUMMARY

John divided his Gospel into two main sections: chs 1-12 and chs 13-21. The first section, which has been called “The Book of Signs,” tells about Jesus’ public ministry of revealing himself to the Jewish world. The second section, sometimes called “The Book of Glory,” records Jesus’ private words to his disciples and tells of his death and resurrection.

Chapters 1-12. The Gospel prologue (1:1-18) artfully summarizes the entrance of God’s Word into the world. Jesus was baptized and called his earliest followers (1:19-51). Then a series of remarkable events (chs 2-4) highlights Jesus’ revelation of himself to the Jews. At a wedding in Cana, Jesus turned water into wine. In Jerusalem, he used a whip to drive corruption and money-dealing out of the Temple. He debated the meaning of spiritual rebirth with a rabbi named Nicodemus. At a well in Samaria, he met a woman with a checkered marital history and offered her “living water,” which no well can ever duplicate. In each of these events, Jesus unveiled his identity.

In the following section (chs 5-10), Jesus appears at a number of Jewish festivals, using ancient OT symbols and practices to reveal himself to God’s people. On the Sabbath, Jesus worked by healing a lame man. On Passover, Jesus provided bread for 5,000. In the symbolic light of the Festival of Shelters, Jesus healed a blind man, reinforcing his own identity as the light of the world. John's clear message is that Jesus came to fulfill what Judaism had promised since OT times.

Then Jesus began to prepare for his death and resurrection. John describes Jesus' arrival in Bethany, a town just east of Jerusalem (ch 11). His friend Lazarus had died, and Jesus raised him to life. Following this event (ch 12), Jesus made his final public appeal to the world to believe in him and his mission.

Chapters 13–21. John turns to Jesus' death and resurrection, reminding readers that the cross is not a sign of despair but a picture of glory and wonder. Jesus was returning to the Father and needed to prepare his disciples for his departure. At his final Passover meal (chs 13–17), Jesus disclosed to his disciples the things nearest to his heart. He told them candidly about his death and departure to the Father. He reassured them that he would not abandon them, but that he would return and turn their sorrow into joy. He promised them the gift of the Holy Spirit. Finally, Jesus prayed for them.

Following this Passover meal, Jesus led his followers east of the city and across a valley to an olive grove called Gethsemane (ch 18). Judas soon appeared with a large contingent of Roman soldiers and Temple guards. Following his arrest, Jesus stood before the Jewish high council to be interrogated, first by Annas and then by Caiaphas, the reigning high priest. By morning, the Jewish leaders took Jesus to the Roman governor, Pontius Pilate, who asked probing questions about Jesus' identity. Pilate, coaxed by the Jewish leaders, decided to crucify Jesus (ch 19).

The climax of John's Gospel is Jesus' resurrection from the dead (ch 20). This event begins a series of dramatic stories in which Jesus appeared to his followers and encouraged them. He gave them the Holy Spirit and commissioned them to represent him to the world. Jesus then gave his disciples their marching orders (ch 21). He reminded them of his power (21:1–14), reinstated Peter (21:15–17), and instructed him to follow him in his mission (21:18–23).

AUTHOR AND DATE

As with the other Gospels, John provides no explicit evidence as to its author, although the enigmatic figure of the "beloved disciple" provides clear clues (see 13:23; 19:26–27; 20:2–10; 21:7, 20–24). The Gospel of John must be connected with this person, for he is identified as the eyewitness source of this record of Jesus' life (19:35; 21:24).

Who was this beloved disciple? Leaders in the early church, beginning in AD 125, wrote that it was the apostle John, the son of Zebedee (see, e.g., Eusebius, Church History 3.23). This traditional view is sound and fully defensible. John was one of the Twelve and, along with James (his brother) and Peter, formed an inner circle around Jesus (Mark 3:17; Acts 1:13). The Gospel reflects this close perspective as it highlights Peter and John. Most scholars believe that John completed writing his Gospel by AD 90.

RECIPIENTS

John most likely wrote his Gospel for Jewish Christians living abroad in the Mediterranean world; with their grasp of Hebrew slipping, these believers were caught between the Jewish and Greek cultures.

J. B. Lightfoot,
Biblical Essays

John's knowledge of Palestine and Judaism is reflected throughout his Gospel.

John assumed that his audience was unfamiliar with some particulars of Jesus' world. For example, he explained that rabbi is a Hebrew word meaning "teacher" (1:38), and he gave an alternate name for the Sea of Galilee (6:1). At the same time, John assumed that his readers were familiar with Jewish traditions, concepts, and festivals. They probably were also familiar with the basic story presented in Mark's Gospel. For example, John refers to John the Baptist's imprisonment (3:24) without ever telling the complete story.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

Revelation and Redemption. "The light shines in the darkness, and the darkness can never extinguish it" (1:5). The light of God has inhabited the world: Christ reveals the Father (14:9). In Christ we see the glory of God in a human being. Even though Jesus was persecuted, tried, and crucified, the light cannot be extinguished. Jesus' purpose in revealing God is to redeem people: "The Word gave life to everything that was created, and his life brought light to everyone" (1:4). Those who embrace Christ's revelation and redemption with faith will gain eternal life.

Worship and the Spirit. Worship must take place "in spirit and in truth" (4:24), energized and formed by the Spirit of God. Nicodemus had to be born of "water and Spirit" to enter the Kingdom of God (3:5). In Galilee, after feeding the 5,000, Jesus told the crowd that living bread is available in his body, which was to be sacrificed. He instructed them to consume his body and blood, symbolic of the Lord's Supper (6:51-59). Yet worship focusing only on the individual elements and not accompanied by the Spirit of God is worth nothing (6:63).

Jesus Christ. John recorded Jesus' descriptions about his nature, origin, and relationship to the Father. Jesus affirmed his oneness with the Father (10:30; 14:9-10) and their unity of purpose (5:17; 8:42), as well as their personal distinctiveness (14:28; 17:1-5). Jesus even used the very title ("I AM") that God used for himself in the OT, thus affirming his own deity (8:58; 18:5; Exod 3:14).

The Holy Spirit. John's Gospel underscores the Holy Spirit as a central feature of Jesus' human experience (chs 4, 7) and of our lives (ch 3). The transforming power of God's Spirit is a hallmark of true discipleship.

The Mission of the Church. God sent Jesus into the world (8:18) to proclaim his glory and to testify to the Good News of redemption. In his departure, the Son passed this mission on to the Spirit (16:5-11), who in turn would fill the church and empower believers to fulfill the mission of Jesus in the world (20:20-23; Matt 28:18-20; Acts 1:7-8).

The End Times. Early Christians anticipated the return of Christ, and John affirms this anticipation. Yet in the meantime, believers can experience Jesus' longed-for presence in the Holy Spirit. Jesus' announcement of the Spirit's coming echoes the language of his own second coming (see 14:15-23). In a vital way, Jesus is already with us in the Spirit as we continue to look forward to Christ's personal return at the end of history.

I like the comparison of John's Gospel to a pool in which a child may wade and an elephant can swim. It is both simple and profound. It is for the beginner in the faith and for the mature Christian. Its appeal is immediate and never failing.

1. PROLOGUE: CHRIST, THE ETERNAL WORD (1:1-18)

- 1 ¹In the beginning the ^aWord already existed.
 The ^aWord was with God, and the ^aWord was God.
² He existed in the beginning with God.
³ God created everything through him, and nothing was created except through him.
⁴ The Word gave life to everything that was created,
 and his life brought light to everyone.
⁵ The light shines in the darkness, and the darkness can never extinguish it.
⁶ God sent a man, John the Baptist, ⁷to tell about the light so that everyone might believe because of his testimony. ⁸John himself was not the light; he was simply a witness to tell about the light. ⁹The one who is the true light, who gives light to everyone, was coming into the world.

¹⁰He came into the very world he created, but the world didn't recognize him. ¹¹He came to his own people, and even they rejected him. ¹²But to all who believed him and accepted him, he gave the right to become children of God. ¹³They are reborn—not with a physical birth resulting from human passion or plan, but a birth that comes from God.

¹⁴So the ^bWord became ^chuman and made his home among us. He was full of unfailing love and faithfulness. And we have seen his ^dglory, the ^dglory of the Father's ^eone and only Son.

¹⁵John testified about him when he shouted to the crowds, "This is the one I was talking about when I said, 'Someone is coming after me who is far greater than I am, for he existed long before me.' "

¹⁶From his abundance we have all received one gracious blessing after another.

1:1-18 The beginning of this prologue (1:1-5) might be a poem or hymn sung by the earliest Christians. The prologue's themes—the coming of the light into the world, the rejection of the light, and its gift of new life to believers—prepares readers for the story that follows.

1:1 Echoing Gen 1:1, John's Gospel introduces Jesus Christ, through whom God created everything (1:3); Jesus also creates new life in those who believe (1:12-13). The Gospel opens with its central affirmation, that Jesus Christ, the Word (Greek logos), not only revealed God but was God. In Greek thought, the logos was the rational principle guiding the universe and making life coherent. For Jewish people, the logos was the word of the Lord, an expression of God's wisdom and creative power. By Jesus' time, the logos was viewed as coming from God and having his personality (see Ps 33:6, 9; Prov 8:22-31); John affirmed this understanding (1:14).

1:3-4 and nothing was created except through him. The Word gave life to everything that was created: Or and nothing that was created was created except through him. The Word gave life to everything. The Greek grammar allows either possibility.

1:3 God as Christ is the logos (1:1-2); all that God does, the logos likewise does. Throughout his Gospel, John rightly viewed Jesus' actions as divine activity.

1:4-5 God created light and dispelled the darkness (Gen 1:2-5). The darkness resists God (3:19-21; 12:35; Matt 6:23; Acts 26:17-18; Eph 4:17-19; 5:7-14; 2 Pet 1:19; 1 Jn 1:5-7; 2:9-11).

1:4 The Word gave life: Life was God's original gift to his creatures (Gen 1:20-28; 2:7). Now the logos would give these creatures the possibility of new life through rebirth (1:13). • As one of his first creative acts, God brought light (Gen 1:3). Now, in the re-creation of humanity through Jesus Christ, God offered light and life anew. Light is a key theme in John's Gospel.

1:5 the darkness can never extinguish it: Or the darkness has not understood it; literally the darkness cannot grasp it. The Greek word katalambanō ("grasp") can mean either "understand" or "be hostile"; in John's Gospel, it means hostility. The darkness would try to destroy Jesus (the light), but it would fail. The light would successfully bring salvation to the world.

1:6-9 God sent a man, John the Baptist (literally a man named John) to herald Jesus' coming and to prepare God's people to receive Jesus as God's Son and Messiah (see 1:19-37; Luke 1:5-25, 57-80; 3:1-22; see also Isa 40:3; Mal 4:5-6).

1:8 Some Jews speculated that John the Baptist was the Messiah; some of his followers were even reluctant to follow Jesus (3:22-30). However, John the Baptist was not the light; his role was to announce Jesus (1:19-34).

1:10 The world cannot recognize the true light even when it encounters its Creator. The world lives in rebellion, loving darkness more than light (3:19; see "The World" at 17:5-26, p. 1807).

1:12 Only through divine renewal can people follow the light and enter God's family (3:1-17). • Individuals must believe in Christ to become children of God (12:35-36).

1:13 a birth that comes from God: People can escape the darkness only by God's grace (8:12; 12:35-36, 44-46).

1:14 The idea that the Word became human (literally became flesh) stunned both Greeks and Jews. Greeks separated the sphere of God from the mundane world of humanity, which they called flesh (Greek sarx). John wrote that God himself became flesh in Christ (cp. 1:1). Jesus' humanity and divinity were complete, not partial. The two ideas—Jesus as 100-percent divine and 100-percent human—form the bedrock of a Christian understanding of Christ. • the Word . . . made his home (Greek skēnoō, "pitched his tent") among us: This Greek word is related to the word used for the OT Tabernacle (Greek skēnē, "tent, tabernacle"), the tent in the wilderness where the Lord's glory resided and where Israel came to worship (Exod 25:8-9). The Father's glory in the Tabernacle (Exod 40:34-38) was now present in Jesus Christ (2:11; 12:23-28, 41; 17:1-5). • Jesus offered God's unfailing love and faithfulness (or grace and truth). Despite the world's hostile darkness, Jesus entered the world to save it (3:15-17).

1:15 he existed long before me: In a society where age was respected and honored (Lev 19:32; contrast Isa 3:5), John the Baptist emphasized Jesus' honor by pointing to his existence even before creation (1:1-3).

1:16 received one gracious blessing after another: Or received the grace of Christ rather than the grace of the law; a literal translation is received grace upon grace.

²¹"Well then, who are you?" they asked. "Are you Elijah?"

"No," he replied.

"Are you the Prophet we are expecting?"

Ps 33:6, 9
Prov 8:22-31
Isa 40:8
1 Jn 1:1
Rev 19:13

John raises the curtain on his Gospel with a stunning description of Jesus Christ as "the Word" (Greek logos, 1:1). Both Greek and Jewish listeners in the first century would immediately recognize the profound meaning of this title. Greeks would have thought of the seminal forces that sustain the universe. Jewish minds would have thought back to God creating the world with his word (Gen 1:3-28). In Jesus' day, the word of God took on creative personal attributes (Ps 33:6, 9). Jews viewed God's word as personifying divine wisdom. Through Wisdom, God extended himself into the cosmos, creating the world (Prov 8:22-31).

In John's drama, Jesus shares the same essence as God; the Son existed before time, and he was the agent of all creation. John anchors the divinity of Jesus in this ancient Jewish concept of Wisdom. The divine Wisdom that has existed from before time with God can now be known in Jesus Christ. In perhaps the most outrageous verse penned by an apostle, John writes that this Logos, this Wisdom, became flesh and lived among us as a human (1:14). What God is, the Logos is. The Logos is Jesus Christ.

1:17 the law: That is, the Torah, the first five books of the Bible (Genesis through Deuteronomy). • Although God's unfailing love and faithfulness (or grace and truth) are in the Torah, these qualities are fully revealed in Christ (3:16; 13:1).

1:18 Moses was denied his desire to see God directly (Exod 33:18-20). Only Jesus has seen the Father, so he alone completely knows him and can tell us about him (3:32-35; 14:9-10). • But the unique One, who is himself God (some manuscripts read But the one and only Son): The Son, who sees the Father, is himself God—not simply a messenger who knows something about God. John explicitly affirms Christ's deity. Jesus shares the substance of God's being.

1:19-12:50 Jesus reveals himself to the world through his miraculous signs and sermons. Audiences were divided: Some wanted to believe in him; others opposed him. This division intensifies as the book unfolds. Jesus ended his public ministry with a final appeal for people to believe in him (12:44-50).

1:19-51 John's Gospel gives limited attention to John the Baptist compared to the synoptic Gospels (Matt 3:1-6; Mark 1:2-6; Luke 1:1-24, 57-80; 3:1-13). Yet the apostle John wants us to see that John the Baptist correctly identified and exalted Jesus. John the Baptist's disciples leave him and follow Jesus; Jesus took over the ministry John began, increasing as John decreased (3:30).

1:19 Jewish leaders: See "The Jewish Leaders" at 5:9-18, p. 1779. • and Temple assistants: Literally and Levites.

1:20 The Jews expected the Messiah (the Hebrew form of the Greek word Christ) to bring spiritual leadership and political redemption to Israel (see Deut 18:15; see also the Jewish intertestamental book Psalms of Solomon).

1:21 Elijah was to be the Messiah's forerunner (Mal 4:5). John the Baptist fulfilled the forerunner's role, though he denied being the prophet Elijah (see Matt 11:14; Luke 1:17). • Are you the Prophet we are expecting? Literally Are you the Prophet? See Deut 18:15, 18; Mal 4:5-6; see also John 6:14; 7:40-41.

1:22-23 Then who are you? John the Baptist simply wanted to be known as a voice shouting in the wilderness (see Isa 40:3).

1:24 The Pharisees were deeply devoted to the Scriptures and earnestly desired a righteous life (see "Pharisees" at Matt 3:7, p. 1581). They also believed in the coming Messiah, which explains their inquiries here. Some Pharisees became believers in Jesus (Acts 15:5), including the apostle Paul (Acts 26:5; Phil 3:5).

1:25-26 Jewish baptisms were ritual washings for becoming ceremonially pure following contact with impurity (Lev 8:6; Num 19:7). • John's announcement of the Messiah's arrival required that participants confess their sins and be baptized (Matt 3:6). Baptism later became the symbol of membership in Jesus' kingdom (Acts 2:38; see also John 4:1-2). • with: Or in; also in 1:31, 33.

do not recognize. ²⁷Though his ministry follows mine, I'm not even worthy to be his slave and untie the straps of his sandal."

²⁸This encounter took place in Bethany, an area east of the Jordan River, where John was baptizing.

Jesus, the Lamb of God

John 1:29-34 // Matt 3:13-17 // Mark 1:9-11 // Luke 3:21-22

²⁹The next day John saw Jesus coming toward him and said, "Look! The ^hLamb of God who takes away the sin of the world! ³⁰He is the one I was talking about when I said, 'A man is coming after me who is far greater than I am, for he existed long before me.' ³¹I did not recognize him as the Messiah, but I have been baptizing with water so that he might be revealed to Israel."

³²Then John testified, "I saw the Holy Spirit descending like a dove from heaven and resting upon him. ³³I didn't know he was the one, but when God sent me to baptize with water, he told me, 'The one on whom you see the Spirit descend and rest is the one who will baptize with the Holy Spirit.' ³⁴I saw this happen to Jesus, so I testify that he is the Chosen One of God."

The First Disciples

³⁵The following day John was again standing with two of his disciples. ³⁶As Jesus walked by, John looked at him and declared, "Look! There is the ^hLamb of God!" ³⁷When John's two disciples heard this, they followed Jesus.

³⁸Jesus looked around and saw them following. "What do you want?" he asked them.

They replied, "Rabbi" (which means "Teacher"), "where are you staying?"

³⁹"Come and see," he said. It was about four o'clock in the afternoon when they went with him to the place where he was staying, and they remained with him the rest of the day.

⁴⁰Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, was one of these men who heard what John said and then followed Jesus. ⁴¹Andrew went to find his brother, Simon, and told him, "We have found the ^hMessiah" (which means "Christ").

⁴²Then Andrew brought Simon to meet Jesus. Looking intently at Simon, Jesus said, "Your name is Simon, son of John—but you will be called Cephas" (which means "a Peter").

⁴³The next day Jesus decided to go to Galilee. He found Philip and said to him, "Come, follow me." ⁴⁴Philip was from Bethsaida, Andrew and Peter's hometown.

⁴⁵Philip went to look for Nathanael and told him, "We have found the very person Moses and the prophets wrote about! His name is Jesus, the son of Joseph from Nazareth."

⁴⁶"Nazareth!" exclaimed Nathanael. "Can anything good come from Nazareth?"

"Come and see for yourself," Philip replied.

⁴⁷As they approached, Jesus said, "Now here is a genuine son of Israel—a man of complete integrity."

⁴⁸"How do you know about me?" Nathanael asked.

Jesus replied, "I could see you under the fig tree before Philip found you."

1:29 The phrase Lamb of God might refer to the Passover sacrifice of a lamb (see "The Cross and Passover" at 19:17-36, p. 1812) or to the daily sacrifice in the Temple (Exod 29:38-46; Heb 10). See also Rev 5.

1:32 John the Baptist's second testimony (see 1:19-23) told what happened when Jesus was baptized. • In the OT, kings and prophets were anointed with the Holy Spirit, but these anointings were temporary and tied to a particular office or occasion. By contrast, with the Spirit's resting on him, Jesus' anointing was permanent (see 3:34).

1:34 the Chosen One of God: Some manuscripts read the Son of God. See also Isa 42:1.

1:35-51 This section introduces the template for discipleship in John's Gospel. Disciples desired to come and see Jesus (1:39), and when they encountered him, they remained with him (see "Disciples of Jesus" at 9:1-41, p. 1789).

1:40-42 Simon is well known in the Gospels, not for his courage and faith, but for his failings (see 18:15-18, 25-27). Jesus named him Cephas ("the rock"; see 1:42 and note), referring to the great church leader he would later become (see Acts 1-5, 8-12, 15).

1:41 Messiah (a Hebrew term) and Christ (a Greek term) both mean "anointed one."

1:42 The names Cephas (from Aramaic) and Peter (from Greek) both mean "rock."

1:43-44 Galilee was the region of northern Israel around the Sea of Galilee.

• Bethsaida ("house of fishing") was a village on Galilee's north shore and the home of Peter, Andrew, and Philip. Later, Peter and Andrew moved to Capernaum, a village west of Bethsaida (Mark 1:21, 29).

1:45 Philip, a Greek name, and Nathanael, a Hebrew name, represent the mix of cultures in Galilee. Jesus' message there addressed both audiences. When Greeks wanted to see Jesus in Jerusalem, they approached Philip (12:20-22). • Moses: Literally Moses in the law. • Jesus grew up in Nazareth, a mountain village southwest of the Sea of Galilee.

1:46 Can anything good come from Nazareth? This village was not considered famous enough to be the hometown for a great leader (cp. Matt 13:53-58).

1:47 Jesus referred to Nathanael as a man of complete integrity, contrasting him with Jacob, the scheming, deceitful patriarch whom God renamed Israel (see Gen 25:27-34; 27:1-36; 32:22-32). It is as though Nathanael embodied God's ideal for Israel.

1:48-49 Jesus captured Nathanael's attention by knowing his character (1:47), then he captured his worship by supernaturally knowing his previous actions. Nathanael witnessed a miracle and took a remarkable step of faith.

You will see greater things than this.” ⁵¹Then he said, “I tell you the truth, you will all see heaven open and the angels of God going up and down on the Son of Man, the one who is the stairway between heaven and earth.”

Jesus and Jewish Institutions (2:1–4:54)
The Wedding at Cana: Purification Water Turned to Wine

2The next day there was a wedding celebration in the village of Cana in Galilee. Jesus’ mother was there, ²and Jesus and his disciples were also invited to the celebration. ³The wine supply ran out during the festivities, so Jesus’ mother told him, “They have no more wine.”

John the Baptist (1:19–37)

John the Baptist was a fiery open-air preacher who called people to repent and be baptized, to prepare for the coming of the Messiah. John acted in the role of Elijah, to prepare people for “the great and dreadful day of the LORD” (Mal 4:4–5; see Matt 11:14; 17:12; Mark 9:13).

John’s birth, like that of Jesus, was miraculous. His parents had been unable to have children and were elderly (Luke 1:5–25). His mother, Elizabeth, was a relative of Mary, the mother of Jesus (Luke 1:36), so John was related to Jesus. The two miraculous births near the same time signaled the beginning of God’s redeeming work.

John was filled with the Holy Spirit from birth and devoted his life to preparing people for the coming of the Lord (Luke 1:15–17). Living in the desert (Luke 1:80), he began preaching when he was about thirty years old. Dressed like a prophet and subsisting on desert food (locusts and wild honey, Matt 3:4; Mark 1:6), he called everyone to repent and be baptized (Matt 3:1–2; Mark 1:4; Luke 3:1–3). He even castigated the religious leaders who came to hear him (Matt 3:7).

Though John reluctantly baptized Jesus (Matt 3:13–17; Luke 3:21), he considered Jesus his superior, the one who would “baptize with the Holy Spirit and with fire” (1:33; Matt 3:11; Mark 1:7–8; Luke 3:16; cp. 3:23–30). He encouraged his followers to become Jesus’ disciples—and many did, including Andrew and possibly John (1:35–40), as well as Apollos (Acts 18:24–26) and the twelve disciples at Ephesus (Acts 19:1–7).

Herod Antipas received harsh judgment from John because of Herod’s unlawful marriage to Herodias, his brother Philip’s wife. To please Herodias, Herod imprisoned John and then beheaded him (Matt 14:3–12; Mark 6:17–29; Luke 3:19–20). John’s imprisonment marked the beginning of Jesus’ public preaching (Matt 4:12; Mark 1:14).

Shortly before his death, John seemed to be confused about Jesus and sent messengers from prison to ask him if he really was the Messiah. Jesus did not do what most people anticipated the Messiah to do. Rather than bringing judgment and a visible kingdom, he brought forgiveness, healing, and a spiritual kingdom. To reassure John, Jesus spoke of the miraculous things God was doing through him (Luke 7:18–23).

John remained faithful to his calling throughout his life, consistently preaching repentance and the judgment of God, even to people who had no desire to hear it. Jesus referred to John as one of the greatest servants of God who had ever lived (Matt 11:2–19; Luke 7:18–35), the end of a long line of prophets anticipating the coming of the Kingdom of God (Luke 16:16). John stood on the threshold of the new age, proclaiming its coming to all who would hear.

1:51 I tell you the truth (Greek amēn amēn): Jesus often used this expression to emphasize what he was about to say. In John’s Gospel, the Greek word amēn is always doubled. • you will all see heaven open: Jesus made the comparison with Jacob explicit (see note on 1:47; see Gen 28:10–22). Like Jacob, Nathanael would see God at work. Jesus himself is the new Bethel (“house of God,” Gen 28:19), the place where God lives. • going up and down on the Son of Man, the one who is the stairway between heaven and earth: Literally going up and down on the Son of Man; see Gen 28:10–17. “Son of Man” is a title Jesus used for himself (see note on 9:35; see also Dan 7:13–14; Mark 8:31).

• John the apostle used several names for Jesus (Son of God, Son of Man, Messiah). Knowing Jesus’ true identity is necessary to fully understanding and following him.

2:1–10:42 Jesus illustrated his identity and work through the institutions and festivals of Judaism (see 2:1; 5:1).

2:1–25 Jesus appeared at two symbolic Jewish ceremonies. At a wedding in Cana (2:1–12), he replaced the ritual cleansing water with his own superior wine. Later he cleansed the Temple (2:13–25).

2:1 The next day: Literally On the third day; see 1:35, 43. • The ceremonies surrounding a wedding celebration could last as long as a week; weddings often included dramatic processions in which the groom would bring the bride to his home for the festivities (Matt 25:1–13).

2:3 When the wine supply ran out, the host’s family would face embarrassment for failure to plan properly. Perhaps Jesus arrived unexpectedly (cp. Matt 25:1–13), bringing his circle of

⁴"Dear woman, that's not our problem," Jesus replied. "My time has not yet come."

⁵But his mother told the servants, "Do whatever he tells you."

⁶Standing nearby were six stone water jars, used for Jewish ceremonial washing. Each could hold twenty to thirty gallons. ⁷Jesus told the servants, "Fill the jars with water." When the jars had been filled, ⁸he said, "Now dip some out, and take it to the master of ceremonies." So the servants followed his instructions.

⁹When the master of ceremonies tasted the water that was now wine, not knowing where it had come from (though, of course, the servants knew), he called the bridegroom over. ¹⁰"A host always serves the best wine first," he said. "Then, when everyone has had a lot to drink, he brings out the less expensive wine. But you have kept the best until now!"

¹¹This miraculous sign at Cana in Galilee was the first time Jesus revealed his glory. And his disciples believed in him.

¹²After the wedding he went to Capernaum for a few days with his mother, his brothers, and his disciples.

The Jerusalem Temple Is Cleansed

¹³It was nearly time for the Jewish Passover celebration, so Jesus went to Jerusalem. ¹⁴In the Temple area he saw merchants selling cattle, sheep, and doves for sacrifices; he also saw dealers at tables exchanging foreign money. ¹⁵Jesus made a whip from some ropes and chased them all out of the Temple. He drove out the sheep and cattle,

The Gospels use three words to describe Jesus' miraculous works. In Matthew, Mark, and Luke, the Greek word dunamis ("power") describes an act of raw force that amazes observers and leads to the inevitable conclusion that God must be at work in Jesus (see Mark 6:2).

In John, however, this response of amazement is absent. John does not use the popular term dunamis. Instead, he labels each of Jesus' miracles as a "sign" (Greek sēmeion), an event that has a deeper meaning. John also describes Jesus' miracles as "works" (Greek erga, see 10:25; see 7:3, "miracles"; 9:3, "power"). Christ's miracles were part of the work that God gave him to do (17:4), revealing the Father to the world.

John selectively records seven miraculous signs that occurred during Jesus' ministry: (1) changing water to wine (2:1-11); (2) healing the official's son (4:46-54); (3) healing a paralyzed man (5:1-17); (4) feeding 5,000 (6:1-15); (5) walking on water (6:16-21); (6) healing a blind man (9:1-41); and (7) raising Lazarus from the dead (11:38-44). John also records the miraculous catch of fish after Jesus' resurrection (21:4-14). Most of the seven signs were met with belief (2:11; 4:48, 53; 11:45-48). However, the sign itself was not Jesus' purpose. Instead, the message behind the sign is always in view, so the signs are usually matched to a discourse by Jesus. Jesus fed the 5,000, for example, not just to meet their needs, but so that people would see him as the bread of life (6:35), given for them when he died on the cross (6:51).

disciples, which might explain why his mother brought the problem to him.

• A wedding banquet was a primary celebration in Jewish village life, and this episode also symbolized the joy of the Messiah's arrival.

2:4 Jesus initially distanced himself from the problem. His mission and its timing could not be set by a human agenda. • Jesus' time (literally hour) would come in the future when he was glorified as he was lifted up on the cross (12:23; 17:1).

2:6 Carved from solid rock, the stone water jars were used for religious washing ceremonies (see Mark 7:1-4). Jesus was about to fill Jewish ceremony with new content. • twenty to thirty gallons: Greek 2 or 3 measures [75 to 113 liters].

2:9-10 The master of ceremonies cited a proverb. The best wine was always served first when palates were most sensitive; yet this miraculous wine, served last, was the very best imaginable. Good wine symbolized God's blessing (Amos 9:13-14). The Messiah, God's greatest blessing, had arrived at last.

2:11 Jesus had offered his first miraculous sign (see "Miraculous Signs" at 2:1-11, above). In it, he revealed the glory of God (see also 1:14; 11:4, 40).

2:13 Passover, an annual spring festival, commemorated Israel's rescue from slavery in Egypt (Exod 12). Jews traveled to Jerusalem to participate in the festival (Deut 16:1-16). Because John refers to three Passover Festivals (2:13; 6:4; 11:55), many experts conclude that Jesus had a three-year public ministry.

2:14-17 Those who came for Passover needed to have approved sacrifices for worship. From this need grew a considerable industry for selling animals and exchanging money, but this business was being conducted in the Temple. Jesus, like a prophet, demanded that God's house be returned to its intended uses—worship, prayer, instruction, and sacrifice. This put Jesus at odds with the Temple leadership. • The synoptic Gospels place the clearing of the Temple near the end of Jesus' ministry (Matt 21:12-13; Mark 11:15-17; Luke 19:45-46). John might have placed his account of the event here to emphasize a connection with the miracle that transformed the water in purification jars into wine (2:1-11). The Temple and the stone jars were both instruments of purification in Judaism. Stone jars filled with water for ritual washing scattered the money changers' coins over the floor, and turned over their tables. ¹⁶Then, going over to the people who sold doves, he told them, "Get these things out of here. Stop turning my Father's house into a marketplace!"

¹⁷Then his disciples remembered this prophecy from the Scriptures: "Passion for God's house will consume me."

¹⁸But the Jewish leaders demanded, "What are you doing? If God gave you authority to do this, show us a miraculous sign to prove it."

¹⁹"All right," Jesus replied. "Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up."

²⁰"What!" they exclaimed. "It has taken forty-six years to build this Temple, and you can rebuild it in three days?" ²¹But when Jesus said "this temple," he meant his own body. ²²After he was raised from the dead, his disciples remembered he had said this, and they believed both the Scriptures and what Jesus had said.

Nicodemus: A Religious Leader Visits Jesus

²³Because of the miraculous signs Jesus did in Jerusalem at the Passover celebration, many began to trust in him. ²⁴But Jesus didn't trust them, because he knew all about people. ²⁵No one needed to tell him about human nature, for he knew what was in each person's heart.

3 There was a man named Nicodemus, a Jewish religious leader who was a Pharisee. ²After dark one evening, he came to speak with Jesus. "Rabbi," he said, "we all know that God has sent you to teach us. Your miraculous signs are evidence that God is with you."

³Jesus replied, "I tell you the truth, unless you are ⁴born again, you cannot see the Kingdom of God."

Nicodemus (3:1-9)

John 7:50; 19:39-42

Nicodemus was a highly respected Jewish Pharisee (3:1), one of the prominent members of the high council, who appears to have become a convert of Jesus. He is mentioned only in the Gospel of John.

Intrigued by the authority of Jesus and the miracles he was doing, Nicodemus went to see him secretly, at night, in a serious attempt to discover who he really was. Jesus challenged him with the need to be born again, if he wished to be in the Kingdom of God (3:1-8). The Gospel does not give us Nicodemus's response.

Later, however, in opposition to his colleagues on the Jewish high council, he strongly argued that Jesus should be given a fair trial (7:50). After Jesus was crucified, he bought seventy-five pounds of expensive perfumed ointment for his burial, took it to the tomb, and assisted Joseph of Arimathea in burying him (19:39-42). Thus, Nicodemus appears to be an example of a Jewish Pharisee who came to believe in Jesus and was willing to express that commitment publicly after his death.

now contained Jesus' wine, and a stone Temple dedicated to sacrificial purification would be replaced by Christ himself (2:19-21). Another view is that Jesus cleared the Temple at the beginning and again at the end of his ministry.

2:17 Passion for God's house will consume me: Or "Concern for God's house will be my undoing." See Ps 69:9.

2:19 Destroy this temple: Herod the Great began reconstructing the Temple's magnificent structure in 20 BC, and work on it continued until AD 64. This explains why Jesus' audience was amazed when he claimed he could destroy and rebuild it in a few days. However, Jesus spoke figuratively of his body as the temple where God was present (see 1:14; 1:51)—his body was destroyed and restored in three days through the resurrection, rendering the Jerusalem Temple and its services obsolete. Later, at his trial, Jesus' symbolic reference to destroying the Temple was used as evidence of blasphemy (Mark 14:58).

2:22 they believed: Witnessing a miracle from God can inspire belief, but it is not the deepest faith possible (20:29).

2:24 Jesus didn't trust them: John uses a play on words here. Because of his signs, many people trusted in Jesus (2:23), but Jesus didn't trust them. This did not refer to specific people Jesus met in Jerusalem, but to his knowledge of all humanity.

3:1 John links 2:25 and 3:1 by referring to humanity as a whole ("mankind," 2:25) and then to one specific man using the same Greek word (anthrōpos) in both verses. • Nicodemus was saturated in religious knowledge and had witnessed Jesus' work (2:13-24), but he had not experienced spiritual rebirth. • a Pharisee: See note on 1:24. He was elite, proud of his spiritual purity, and well educated in Jewish law.

3:2 After dark: Nicodemus might have feared public association with Jesus. Night also symbolizes the realm of evil, untruth, and unbelief (9:4; 11:10; 13:30).

3:3 born again: Or born from above; also in 3:7. John's expression "from above" (3:31; 19:11) means "from God." To experience spiritual rebirth, a person must be completely renewed through God's power. • Nicodemus interpreted Jesus' words physically; he demonstrated that those in darkness, who do not have spiritual rebirth, cannot understand Jesus or other "heavenly things" (3:12). Jesus sometimes used ironic misunderstanding as a teaching strategy (see "Misunderstanding" at 7:32-36, p. 1785).

4“What do you mean?” exclaimed Nicodemus. “How can an old man go back into his mother’s womb and be born again?”

5Jesus replied, “I assure you, no one can enter the Kingdom of God without being born of water and the Spirit. 6Humans can reproduce only human life, but the Holy Spirit gives birth to spiritual life. 7So don’t be surprised when I say, ‘You must be born again.’ 8The wind blows wherever it wants. Just as you can hear the wind but can’t tell where it comes from or where it is going, so you can’t explain how people are born of the Spirit.”

9“How are these things possible?” Nicodemus asked.

10Jesus replied, “You are a respected Jewish teacher, and yet you don’t understand these things? 11I assure you, we tell you what we know and have seen, and yet you won’t believe our testimony. 12But if you don’t believe me when I tell you about earthly things, how can you possibly believe if I tell you about heavenly things? 13No one has ever gone to heaven and returned. But the Son of Man has come down from heaven. 14And as Moses lifted up the bronze snake on a pole in the wilderness, so the Son of Man must be lifted up, 15so that everyone who believes in him will have eternal life.

16“For this is how God loved the world: He gave his one and only Son, so that everyone who believes in him will not perish but have eternal life. 17God sent his Son into the world not to judge the world, but to save the world through him.

18“There is no judgment against anyone who believes in him. But anyone who does not believe in him has already been judged for not believing in God’s one and only Son. 19And the judgment is based on this fact: God’s light came into the world, but people loved the darkness more than the light, for their actions were evil. 20All who do evil hate the light and refuse to go near it for fear their sins will be exposed. 21But those who do what is right come to the light so others can see that they are doing what God wants.”

John the Baptist Exalts Jesus

22Then Jesus and his disciples left Jerusalem and went into the Judean countryside. Jesus spent some time with them there, baptizing people.

23At this time John the Baptist was baptizing at Aenon, near Salim, because there was plenty of water there; and people kept coming to him for baptism. 24(This was before John was thrown into prison.) 25A debate broke out between John’s disciples and a certain Jew over ceremonial cleansing. 26So John’s disciples came to him and said, “Rabbi, the man you met on the other side of the Jordan River, the one you identified as the

3:6 the Holy Spirit gives birth to spiritual life: Literally what is born of the Spirit is spirit.

3:7 The Greek word translated You is plural; also in 3:12.

3:8 Wind translates the same word in Greek as spirit (Greek pneuma). The wind is an apt image for the Spirit, who is sent from heaven and cannot be contained or controlled.

3:13 There is great distance between this world and heaven (see 1:51; 3:31; 6:38, 42). Jesus bridged that distance, validating his divine status by defeating death and returning to heaven (16:5-11). • Son of Man: Some manuscripts add who lives in heaven. “Son of Man” is a title Jesus used for himself.

3:14-15 Jesus was lifted up on the cross so that all people could understand the way of salvation, look to him in faith, and have eternal life.

3:15 everyone who believes in him will have eternal life: Or everyone who believes will have eternal life in him. The Greek syntax allows for either interpretation.

3:16-21 Because there are no quotation marks around Jesus’ speech in Greek, translators debate where Jesus’ speech ends and John’s commentary begins; 3:16-21 might be John’s commentary.

3:16 The truth that God loved the world is basic to Christian understanding (1 Jn 4:9-10). God’s love extends beyond the limits of race and nation, even to those who oppose him (see “The World” at 17:5-26, p. 1807). • The Son came to save—not condemn (3:17)—men and women who habitually embrace the darkness (3:19-21).

3:18 As light penetrates and exposes the world’s darkness, God’s judgment on the world has already begun. Those who see this light and recognize the tragedy of their own situation have the responsibility of believing in God’s . . . Son (3:16-17).

3:19-20 When people live in spiritual darkness, they do not desire to be enlightened by Jesus, “the light of the world” (8:12; 9:5). Evil and darkness do not ignore the light; they wage war against it, trying to bring it down. But the darkness cannot extinguish the light (1:5). Those who refuse to believe live in darkness (cp. 13:30) and stumble because they cannot see (11:10). In the end, however, their sins will be exposed (5:28-30; Rev 20:11-15).

3:21 can see that they are doing what God wants: Or can see God at work in what he is doing. The Greek syntax allows for either interpretation.

3:22-26 John the Baptist identifies Jesus as the one who is truly from above (3:31); this requires John’s followers to shift their allegiance to Jesus.

3:22 Jesus spent some time . . . baptizing: See 4:2, which clarifies that Jesus’ disciples did the baptizing.

3:24 Before John was thrown into prison (see Matt 14:1-12; Mark 1:14; 6:14-29; Luke 3:19-20), he and Jesus worked together at the Jordan River. Once John was arrested, Jesus moved north into Galilee (Mark 1:14).

3:25 a certain Jew: Some manuscripts read some Jews.

3:26 everybody is going to him: Jesus’ popularity made some of John’s followers envious.

Messiah, is also baptizing people. And everybody is going to him instead of coming to us.”

²⁷John replied, “No one can receive anything unless God gives it from heaven. ²⁸You yourselves know how plainly I told you, ‘I am not the Messiah. I am only here to prepare the way for him.’ ²⁹It is the bridegroom who marries the bride, and the bridegroom’s friend is simply glad to stand with him and hear his vows. Therefore, I am filled with joy at his success. ³⁰He must become greater and greater, and I must become less and less.

³¹“He has come from above and is greater than anyone else. We are of the earth, and we speak of earthly things, but he has come from heaven and is greater than anyone else. ³²He testifies about what he has seen and heard, but how few believe what he tells them! ³³Anyone who accepts his testimony can affirm that God is true. ³⁴For he is sent by God. He speaks God’s words, for God gives him the Spirit without limit. ³⁵The Father loves his Son and has put everything into his hands. ³⁶And anyone who believes in God’s Son has eternal life. Anyone who doesn’t obey the Son will never experience eternal life but remains under God’s angry judgment.”

The Samaritan Woman at the Well

4 Jesus knew the Pharisees had heard that he was baptizing and making more disciples than John ²(though Jesus himself didn’t baptize them—his disciples did). ³So he left Judea and returned to Galilee.

⁴He had to go through Samaria on the way. ⁵Eventually he came to the Samaritan village of Sychar, near the field that Jacob gave to his son Joseph. ⁶Jacob’s well was there; and Jesus, tired from the long walk, sat wearily beside the well about noontime. ⁷Soon a Samaritan woman came to draw water, and Jesus said to her, “Please give me a drink.” ⁸He was alone at the time because his disciples had gone into the village to buy some food.

Believing occupies a central place in John’s Gospel. John does not use the noun faith that appears frequently elsewhere in the NT (e.g., see Matt 8:8-10; Mark 11:22-24; Acts 20:21; Rom 1:17; 3:27-31; 4:3-5; Heb 11:1-39; Jas 2:14-24; 1 Pet 1:5-7). John prefers the verb believe to underscore that faith is not static like a doctrine or a dogma, but dynamic, requiring action. In John’s Gospel, “believing” in Jesus is the trait of all true disciples.

In the Gospel of John, the verb translated “believe” is often followed by the Greek preposition eis (“into”). No parallel exists for this in ancient Greek usage. For John, faith is not a status, but an investment in the person of Jesus. Faith means accepting who Jesus is and what he claims to be. Faith constitutes a commitment to let his call change the way we live. Faith is the work God wants from us (6:29) as we abide in Jesus’ word, as we love him, and as we obey his commands (8:31; 15:1-17; see 1 Jn 5:10).

3:27-35 John the Baptist’s speech was inspired by two issues: (1) Some had questioned the legitimacy of his baptism (see 1:26); and (2) his disciples were concerned that people were beginning to follow Jesus instead of John (3:26).

3:29 John the Baptist saw Jesus as the bridegroom and himself as the bridegroom’s friend. His response deflected glory from himself and elevated Jesus’ stature.

3:31 Jesus had come from above, so he was uniquely able to reveal the Father (1:18; 3:13). • Some manuscripts do not include and is greater than anyone else.

3:34-35 The Father gives the Son the Spirit without limit as a sign of his profound love (3:35). It also illustrates Jesus’ divinity. John presents the one God as three persons (cp. 1 Jn 5:5-12).

3:36 God gave the gift of eternal life, promising new life and intimacy in a present experience with God. • Those who reject the Son will not see life. The world in its darkness stands under God’s angry judgment (Rom 1–3).

4:1-42 At a historic well in Samaria, Jesus offered himself as living water. Jesus engaged and confronted people with the revelation of God, and they either followed or fell away. • The Samaritan woman contrasted with Nicodemus at every turn: a woman (not a man), a Samaritan (not a Jew), a sinner (not righteous), and an outcast (not one of Israel’s rabbis). While Nicodemus fell silent and never responded to Jesus’ challenges (3:1-21), this woman acknowledged Jesus as Lord, remained in the light, and exhibited signs of discipleship (see 1:35-51).

4:1 Jesus: Some manuscripts read The Lord.

4:2 Jesus himself didn’t baptize anyone, but left water baptism to his disciples. After his glorification on the cross (7:37-39), Jesus baptized in the Holy Spirit (1:33; Acts 2:4).

4:3 After John the Baptist had been imprisoned (see Mark 6:14-29), Jesus left Judea (cp. Mark 1:14).

4:4-6 In going north to Galilee, Jesus took the less-preferred route through Samaria. Samaria had a long history of interaction with Judea (see 2 Kgs 17:24-41; Ezra 4:1-5; Neh 4:1-23; 6:1-19). In Jesus’ day, harsh racial and cultural conflict existed between Jews and Samaritans. Jews normally avoided Samaria by first going east to Jericho, then following the Jordan Valley north. • Sychar was probably in the region of Shechem. Jesus had come to Jacob’s well; Jacob had owned land near Shechem (Gen 33:18-19).

4:7 Due to the heat, it was customary for the women to draw water in early morning or evening. However, this woman lived in isolation, separated from her community. Jesus was compassionate toward outcasts.

⁹The woman was surprised, for Jews refuse to have anything to do with Samaritans. She said to Jesus, "You are a Jew, and I am a Samaritan woman. Why are you asking me for a drink?"

¹⁰Jesus replied, "If you only knew the gift God has for you and who you are speaking to, you would ask me, and I would give you living water."

¹¹"But sir, you don't have a rope or a bucket," she said, "and this well is very deep. Where would you get this living water?"

¹²And besides, do you think you're greater than our ancestor Jacob, who gave us this well? How can you offer better water than he and his sons and his animals enjoyed?"

¹³Jesus replied, "Anyone who drinks this water will soon become thirsty again."

¹⁴But those who drink the water I give will never be thirsty again. It becomes a fresh, bubbling spring within them, giving them eternal life."

¹⁵"Please, sir," the woman said, "give me this water! Then I'll never be thirsty again, and I won't have to come here to get water."

¹⁶"Go and get your husband," Jesus told her.

¹⁷"I don't have a husband," the woman replied.

Jesus said, "You're right! You don't have a husband—¹⁸for you have had five husbands, and you aren't even married to the man you're living with now. You certainly spoke the truth!"

¹⁹"Sir," the woman said, "you must be a prophet. ²⁰So tell me, why is it that you Jews insist that Jerusalem is the only place of worship, while we Samaritans claim it is here at Mount Gerizim, where our ancestors worshiped?"

²¹Jesus replied, "Believe me, dear woman, the time is coming when it will no longer matter whether you worship the Father on this mountain or in Jerusalem. ²²You Samaritans know very little about the one you worship, while we Jews know all about him, for salvation comes through the Jews."

²³But the time is coming—indeed it's here now—when true worshipers will worship the Father in spirit and in truth. The Father is looking for those who will worship him that way. ²⁴For God is Spirit, so those who worship him must worship in spirit and in truth."

²⁵The woman said, "I know the ^kMessiah is coming—the one who is called Christ. When he comes, he will explain everything to us."

²⁶Then Jesus told her, "I AM the Messiah!"

²⁷Just then his disciples came back. They were shocked to find him talking to a woman, but none of them had the nerve to ask, "What do you want with her?" or "Why are you talking to her?" ²⁸The woman left

4:9 The woman was surprised because social taboos would keep a Jewish teacher like Jesus from speaking to her (4:18). However, Jesus did not let social taboos constrain him from giving her what she truly needed. • Some manuscripts do not include the first sentence of this verse.

4:10 Shechem had no rivers and thus no living water (see "Living Water," facing page). However, Jesus was speaking symbolically: This gift from God was the Holy Spirit (7:37-39).

4:11 Jacob's well was more than 100 feet (30 meters) deep, and required a long rope for drawing water. The woman misunderstood Jesus' words because she was still in darkness (see "Misunderstanding" at 7:32-36, p. 1785).

4:12 our ancestor Jacob: The Samaritan woman appealed with reverence to the sacred traditions attached to the well rather than to the presence of God before her.

4:14 The notion of a fresh, bubbling spring was a powerful image in the dry climate of Israel. Those who come to God will neither hunger nor thirst (see Isa 49:10; 55:1-3; Jer 2:13).

4:15 The woman asked Jesus for this water, but she did not grasp the spiritual implications of his words. To overcome the spiritual barrier, Jesus addressed her sin (4:16-18).

4:16-18 Immorality blocked the woman's understanding. Her marital affairs, including having five husbands, underscored her sinful life.

4:19-20 The woman dodged Jesus' moral probing and brought up the historical ethnic division between Jews and Samaritans.

4:19 a prophet: Jesus revealed knowledge about the woman (4:16-18) that was inaccessible to the average person (cp. 1:48). • As the woman's understanding of Jesus unfolded, her names for him became increasingly well informed. Earlier she recognized him as a Jew (4:9) and called him sir (4:11, 15, 19). Later she thought he might be the Messiah (4:29). Finally, the people of the village recognized him as Savior of the world (4:42). Her growing understanding of Jesus' identity is a testimony to John's readers (see 20:31).

4:20 The Samaritans worshiped at Mount Gerizim (literally on this moun- tain), which towered above Shechem. Both were important OT locations (see Gen 12:6-7; 33:19; Deut 11:29; Josh 8:33; 24:1, 25, 32).

4:21-22 Jesus affirmed that the Jews had preserved the right understanding of the one you worship. • salvation comes through the Jews: God gave the Jews a special relationship with him, and the Messiah was to be a Jew (see also Rom 9:4-5).

4:24 in spirit and in truth: One Greek preposition governs both words (literally in spirit and truth) and makes them a single concept. True worship occurs as God's Spirit reveals God's truth and reality to the worshiper. Jesus Christ is the Truth (14:6; cp. 14:17; 15:26).

4:26 I AM the Messiah (or "The 'I AM' is here"; or "I am the LORD"; Greek reads "I am, the one speaking to you"; see Exod 3:14): Jesus' phrase was unusual and emphatic, and it suggests identity with God (see 8:58; Exod 3:14).

4:27-30 The woman was tentative about Jesus' identity (4:29), yet she ran to the village and told everyone to come and see. Testifying to others is a mark of discipleship (see 1:39, 46).

her water jar beside the well and ran back to the village, telling everyone,²⁹ "Come and see a man who told me everything I ever did! Could he possibly be the Messiah?"³⁰ So the people came streaming from the village to see him.

³¹Meanwhile, the disciples were urging Jesus, "Rabbi, eat something."

³²But Jesus replied, "I have a kind of food you know nothing about."

³³"Did someone bring him food while we were gone?" the disciples asked each other.

³⁴Then Jesus explained: "My nourishment comes from doing the will of God, who sent me, and from finishing his work."

³⁵You know the saying, 'Four months between planting and harvest.' But I say, wake up and look around. The fields are already ripe for harvest. ³⁶The harvesters are paid good wages, and the fruit they harvest is people brought to eternal life. What joy awaits both the planter and the harvester alike! ³⁷You know the saying, 'One plants and another harvests.' And it's true. ³⁸I sent you to harvest where you didn't plant; others had already done the work, and now you will get to gather the harvest."

Many Samaritans Believe

³⁹Many Samaritans from the village believed in Jesus because the woman had said, "He told me everything I ever did!"⁴⁰ When they came out to see him, they begged him to stay in their village. So he stayed for two days,⁴¹ long enough for many more to hear his message and believe. ⁴²Then they said to the woman, "Now we believe, not just because of what you told us, but because we have heard him ourselves. Now we know that he is indeed the 'Savior of the world.'"

Jesus Heals a Government Official's Son

⁴³At the end of the two days, Jesus went on to Galilee. ⁴⁴He himself had said that a prophet is not honored in his own hometown. ⁴⁵Yet the Galileans welcomed him, for they had been in Jerusalem at the Passover celebration and had seen everything he did there.

⁴⁶As he traveled through Galilee, he came to Cana, where he had turned the water into wine. There was a government official in nearby Capernaum whose son was very sick. ⁴⁷When he heard that Jesus had come from Judea to Galilee, he went and begged

In Israel, a land that frequently experienced drought, people were keenly aware of water sources and water quality. Springs and rivers that ran all year were few, so the land relied on cisterns to catch and store the winter rains and wells to tap underground water tables. In Jewish culture, "dead water" referred to standing and stored water. "Living water" referred to moving water, as in rivers, springs, and rainfall. Such water was precious because it was fresh. Because it came directly from God, it was used for ritual washings (see Lev 14:5-6, 50-51; 15:13; Num 19:17-19).

The distinction between "dead" and "living" water explains why the woman of Samaria was so perplexed when Jesus offered her living water (4:12). Samaria has no river. If Jacob had to dig a well there, how could Jesus offer superior water?

Jesus mentioned living water again in Jerusalem at the autumn Festival of Shelters (7:37-39). The festival, which fell during a dry time of year, included an emphasis on water. In this setting, Jesus stepped forward and made an extravagant claim: Anyone looking for living water should come to him and drink. Jesus is the source of living water; he came directly from God and brought divine renewal.

4:32-34 While Jesus spoke to the Samaritan woman, the disciples were gone buying food (4:8); now they urged Jesus to eat. Jesus continued to speak symbolically, but they did not understand him (4:33). Later, when the disciples received the Spirit, they understood (2:22). Jesus received his nourishment from doing what his Father told him to do (see 5:30; 6:38; 7:18; 8:50; 9:4; 10:37-38; 12:49-50).

4:35 Four months between planting and harvest: Jesus cited a local parable to contrast the natural harvest with his own. It was harvest time in Samaria, and the fields were ripe (literally white). Jesus, however, had planted seed at the well and now was already reaping the harvest of belief among the Samaritans (4:39-42).

4:38 others: Jesus might have meant John the Baptist, or he might have been referring to the work he had just done with the Samaritan woman.

4:39-40 Many Samaritans: The religiously sophisticated "chosen people" in Jerusalem did not respond to Jesus with faith (ch 3). By contrast, many believed in Jesus because of the testimony of this outcast woman.

4:42 The Samaritans had experienced for themselves that Jesus was true. Their name for Jesus, Savior of the world (also used in 1 Jn 4:14), demonstrated that the Samaritans were keenly aware of their distance from Judaism. Jesus' ministry was not simply for Jews, but for all people (1:4-12; cp. 12:20-26).

4:44-45 Unlike Jesus' fellow Jews, the Galileans welcomed him, but their welcome was based on awe of Jesus' miracles (cp. 2:23-25), not true faith.

Jesus to come to Capernaum to heal his son, who was about to die.

⁴⁸Jesus asked, "Will you never believe in me unless you see miraculous signs and wonders?"

⁴⁹The official pleaded, "Lord, please come now before my little boy dies."

⁵⁰Then Jesus told him, "Go back home. Your son will live!" And the man believed what Jesus said and started home.

⁵¹While the man was on his way, some of his servants met him with the news that his son was alive and well. ⁵²He asked them when the boy had begun to get better, and they replied, "Yesterday afternoon at one o'clock his fever suddenly disappeared!"

⁵³Then the father realized that that was the very time Jesus had told him, "Your son will live." And he and his entire household believed in Jesus. ⁵⁴This was the second miraculous sign Jesus did in Galilee after coming from Judea.

Jesus and the Sabbath (5:1-47)

Jesus Heals a Man on the Sabbath

5 Afterward Jesus returned to Jerusalem for one of the Jewish holy days. ²Inside the city, near the Sheep Gate, was the pool of Bethesda, with five covered porches. ³Crowds of sick people—blind, lame, or paralyzed—lay on the porches. ⁵One of the men lying there had been sick for thirty-eight years. ⁶When Jesus saw him and knew he had been ill for a long time, he asked him, "Would you like to get well?"

⁷"I can't, sir," the sick man said, "for I have no one to put me into the pool when the water bubbles up. Someone else always gets there ahead of me."

⁸Jesus told him, "Stand up, pick up your mat, and walk!"

⁹Instantly, the man was healed! He rolled up his sleeping mat and began walking! But this miracle happened on the Sabbath, ¹⁰so the Jewish leaders objected. They said to the man who was cured, "You can't work on the Sabbath! The law doesn't allow you to carry that sleeping mat!"

¹¹But he replied, "The man who healed me told me, 'Pick up your mat and walk.'"

¹²"Who said such a thing as that?" they demanded.

¹³The man didn't know, for Jesus had disappeared into the crowd. ¹⁴But afterward Jesus found him in the Temple and told him, "Now you are well; so stop sinning, or something even worse may happen to you." ¹⁵Then the man went and told the Jewish leaders that it was Jesus who had healed him.

4:48 Jesus sharply criticized the Galileans who desired miraculous signs and wonders before they would believe (see "Miraculous Signs" at 2:1-11, p. 1772; see also 6:30).

4:50 Your son will live! Jesus also healed the centurion's slave (Matt 8:5-13) and the Phoenician woman's daughter (Matt 15:21-28) from a distance.

4:53 Just like many others (2:23; 4:39), the official and his household believed in Jesus because of the miracle.

4:54 second miraculous sign . . . in Galilee: Two miracles at Cana (2:11; 4:46) frame this section of John's Gospel.

5:1-10:42 In this section Jesus appears at a series of Jewish festivals and uses their imagery to reveal more profound truths about himself. He appears at Sabbath (ch 5), Passover (ch 6), the Festival of Shelters (chs 7-9), and Hanukkah (ch 10). In each case, Jesus himself replaces some vital element in the ceremonies of the festival.

5:1-40 This chapter reads like a courtroom drama, with a description of the crime (5:1-15), followed by a decision to prosecute (5:16), a description of the charges (5:18), and Jesus' defense (5:17, 19-40).

5:1 one of the Jewish holy days: Because Jesus returned to Jerusalem for the celebration, it was probably one of the three pilgrimage festivals of Judaism (see Exod 23:14-17; Deut 16:16). These festivals lasted one week.

5:2 Greek copyists who had never been to Jerusalem had difficulty interpreting and spelling the name Bethesda: Other manuscripts read Beth-zatha; still others read Bethsaida. The best choice is Beth-esda ("house of flowing").

5:3 The pool of Bethesda had become a healing sanctuary for crowds of sick people who believed miraculous cures were possible. • Some manuscripts add an expanded conclusion to verse 3 and all of verse 4: waiting for a certain movement of the water, for an angel of the Lord came from time to time and stirred up the water. And the first person to step in after the water was stirred was healed of whatever disease he had. Most scholars believe this was not part of John's original text, but it represents an ancient tradition that provided helpful background information.

5:5 No social program helped this man, who had been ill for thirty-eight years. Hygiene and mobility were impossible, and he likely begged for a living from people who came to use the pool (see 5:7). His situation seemed hopeless.

5:8-9 Jesus healed the sick man instantly, only asking for his obedience. As proof of healing, Jesus told him to pick up his mat and walk. • Jesus worked this miracle on the Sabbath, a weekly day of rest on which all work was prohibited (based on Gen 2:2; Exod 20:8). Jewish tradition outlined thirty-nine categories of work that were not allowed (Mishnah Shabbat 7:2). Carrying something such as a sleeping mat from one place to another was banned (5:10). Therefore, the healed man broke the tradition by obeying Jesus' command.

5:12 Who said such a thing? The story ominously turns from a miraculous wonder to a Sabbath crime requiring the identity of the healer who breached tradition.

5:14 stop sinning: Though the man had been healed physically, he still needed to learn obedience to the Lord. The man's next action (5:15) might indicate that he didn't listen.

5:16 harassing: Or persecuting.

Jesus replied, "My Father is always working, and so am I." ¹⁸So the Jewish leaders tried all the harder to find a way to kill him. For he not only broke the Sabbath, he called God his Father, thereby making himself equal with God.

¹⁹So Jesus explained, "I tell you the truth, the Son can do nothing by himself. He does only what he sees the Father doing. Whatever the Father does, the Son also does. ²⁰For the Father loves the Son and shows him everything he is doing. In fact, the Father will show him how to do even greater works than healing this man. Then you will truly be astonished. ²¹For just as the Father gives life to those he raises from the dead, so the Son gives life to anyone he wants. ²²In addition, the Father judges no one. Instead, he has given the Son absolute authority to judge, ²³so that everyone will honor the Son, just as they honor the Father. Anyone who does not honor the Son is certainly not honoring the Father who sent him.

²⁴"I tell you the truth, those who listen to my message and believe in God who sent me have eternal life. They will never be condemned for their sins, but they have already passed from death into life.

²⁵"And I assure you that the time is coming, indeed it's here now, when the dead will hear my voice—the voice of the Son of God. And those who listen will live. ²⁶The Father has life in himself, and he has granted that same life-giving power to his Son. ²⁷And he has given him authority to judge everyone because he is the Son of Man. ²⁸Don't be so surprised! Indeed, the time is coming when all the dead in their graves will hear the voice of God's Son, ²⁹and they will rise again. Those who have done good will rise to experience eternal life, and those who have continued in evil will rise to experience judgment. ³⁰I can do nothing on my own. I judge as God tells me. Therefore, my judgment is just, because I carry out the will of the one who sent me, not my own will.

The Jewish Leaders (5:9-18)

Jesus experienced numerous conflicts with Jewish leaders throughout his public ministry. These opponents viewed themselves as defending the Temple and its sacrifices or the synagogue and its teachings. In Jesus' final week in Jerusalem, these debates intensified (Matt 23) and contributed to the case against him.

When John wrote his Gospel, Christians were being persecuted by local Jewish synagogues, and the language of their debate spilled over into John's Gospel (see Acts 14:19; 1 Thes 2:14; cp. Gal 1:13-14). The Greek term translated "the Jewish leaders" could be literally translated "the Jews." This word took on a technical meaning: It refers to the Temple leadership who confronted Jesus, judged him, and orchestrated his crucifixion (see 1:19; 2:18; 5:9-18; 9:18-22).

This is important because the NT—and particularly John's Gospel—has often been seen as anti-Semitic. But the truth is that Jesus, who was himself a Jew, did not wrestle with "Jews" in general. His antagonists were the "Jewish leaders"—the brokers of religious power in first-century Jerusalem.

5:17 My Father is always working, and so am I: Although work was prohibited on the Sabbath, even rabbis agreed that God worked on the Sabbath in giving life (births) and in taking life (deaths). The heart of Jesus' defense was to compare himself to God; the Jewish leaders objected to this claim of divine privilege.

5:19-30 Jesus claimed that his work on the Sabbath was the same as God's work on the Sabbath. Jesus claimed to be equal with God, doing the things God does. Yet he submitted to God's will, doing only what . . . the Father willed.

5:21 Most Jews firmly believed in resurrection but viewed it as something God alone could accomplish. Jesus claimed that he gives life.

5:22 In addition to giving life, Jesus claimed the absolute authority to judge, which belongs to God alone.

5:23 the Father . . . sent him: In the ancient world, a person could send an authorized representative to seal a contract or make an authoritative decision. Jesus claimed to be God's representative, so obeying him is the same as obeying God, and dishonoring Jesus is dishonoring God.

5:24 Jesus is the giver of life as well as the judge (see 5:21-22), but he never works independently of the Father.

5:27 Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself.

5:31-40 God's law requires more than one witness in a trial (Deut 17:6), so Jesus acknowledged that his own testimony was admissible only when confirmed by other witnesses. Thus, he introduced a series of witnesses for his defense.

5:32 The first witness for Jesus' defense was God himself. Jesus might have had in mind God's voice at his baptism (Mark 1:11) or the presence of God that enabled Jesus to perform miracles.

to listen to John the Baptist, and his testimony about me was true. ³⁴Of course, I have no need of human witnesses, but I say these things so you might be saved. ³⁵John was like a burning and shining lamp, and you were excited for a while about his message. ³⁶But I have a greater witness than John—my teachings and my miracles. The Father gave me these works to accomplish, and they prove that he sent me. ³⁷And the Father who sent me has testified about me himself. You have never heard his voice or seen him face to face, ³⁸and you do not have his message in your hearts, because you do not believe me—the one he sent to you.

³⁹“You search the Scriptures because you think they give you eternal life. But the Scriptures point to me! ⁴⁰Yet you refuse to come to me to receive this life.

⁴¹“Your approval means nothing to me, ⁴²because I know you don’t have God’s love within you. ⁴³For I have come to you in my Father’s name, and you have rejected me. Yet if others come in their own name, you gladly welcome them. ⁴⁴No wonder you can’t believe! For you gladly honor each other, but you don’t care about the honor that comes from the one who alone is God.

⁴⁵“Yet it isn’t I who will accuse you before the Father. Moses will accuse you! Yes, Moses, in whom you put your hopes. ⁴⁶If you really believed Moses, you would believe me, because he wrote about me. ⁴⁷But since you don’t believe what he wrote, how will you believe what I say?”

6 After this, Jesus crossed over to the far side of the Sea of Galilee, also known as the Sea of Tiberias. ²A huge crowd kept following him wherever he went, because they saw his miraculous signs as he healed the sick. ³Then Jesus climbed a hill and sat down with his disciples around him. ⁴(It was nearly time for the Jewish Passover celebration.) ⁵Jesus soon saw a huge crowd of people coming to look for him. Turning to Philip, he asked, “Where can we buy bread to feed all these people?” ⁶He was testing Philip, for he already knew what he was going to do.

⁷Philip replied, “Even if we worked for months, we wouldn’t have enough money to feed them!”

⁸Then Andrew, Simon Peter’s brother, spoke up. ⁹“There’s a young boy here with five barley loaves and two fish. But what good is that with this huge crowd?”

¹⁰“Tell everyone to sit down,” Jesus said. So they all sat down on the grassy slopes. (The men alone numbered about 5,000.)

¹¹Then Jesus took the loaves, gave thanks to God, and distributed them to the people. Afterward he did the same with the fish. And they all ate as much as they wanted. ¹²After everyone was full, Jesus told his disciples, “Now gather the leftovers, so that nothing is wasted.” ¹³So they picked up the pieces and filled twelve baskets with scraps left by the 5:33-35 Jesus’ second witness was John the Baptist, who pointed to Jesus as Messiah (1:29-34).

5:36 Jesus’ third witness, his teachings and miracles, were signs that unveiled his true identity and pointed to the Father who sent him.

5:39-40 Jesus’ fourth witness was the Scriptures. The OT pointed to the Messiah, and Jesus fulfilled its prophecies (see Luke 24:25-27).

5:41-47 Jewish trials sought to discover the truth. Falsely accused defendants could not only prove their innocence but also prosecute their accusers, which Jesus did here.

5:42 Jesus charged that the Jewish leaders did not have God’s love within them. Without God’s love, it was impossible for them to understand the things he was doing.

5:44 The Jewish leaders pursued honor and prestige from each other. They loved religious life, but they had forgotten to love God. This hypocrisy made them liable to judgment (5:45-46). • from the one who alone is God: Some manuscripts read from the only One.

5:45-46 Jesus’ fifth and final witness was Moses, the founding father of Judaism. John had already compared Jesus with Moses (1:17; see also 6:14-15). The Jewish leaders were ignoring Moses’ clear words about the Messiah (e.g., Deut 18:15).

6:1-71 Each story in this chapter uses the setting of the Passover Festival (6:4) to communicate a deeper meaning.

6:1-15 Jesus’ feeding the 5,000 recalls the great OT miracle of bread when Israel was in the wilderness (Exod 16:1-36). The rabbis of Jesus’ day expected the coming Messiah to “rain down food from heaven” once again (Exod 16:4), and he did.

6:5 Where can we buy bread: When the Israelites left Egypt following the first Passover and entered the desert, finding food and water was also their first concern (Exod 15:22-16:3).

6:7 Even if we worked for months, we wouldn’t have enough money: Literally 200 denarii would not be enough. A denarius was equivalent to a laborer’s full day’s wage.

6:9 Barley was the grain of the poor. The loaves were similar to pita bread. The two fish would have been salted, and with the five loaves of bread would make one meal.

6:10 The headcount of about 5,000 reflected the men alone (Matt 14:21) as social custom dictated. With women and children included, the total number was far greater.

6:11 The modest meal provided the crowd with as much as they wanted, echoing the miraculous provision of manna in the wilderness (Exod 16:35). Moses had first supplied Israel with heavenly bread; Jesus was the new supplier (see note on 6:1-15).

Jesus Walks on Water

John 6:16-21 // Matt 14:22-33 // Mark 6:45-52

¹⁶That evening Jesus' disciples went down to the shore to wait for him. ¹⁷But as darkness fell and Jesus still hadn't come back, they got into the boat and headed across the lake toward Capernaum. ¹⁸Soon a gale swept down upon them, and the sea grew very rough. ¹⁹They had rowed three or four miles when suddenly they saw Jesus walking on the water toward the boat. They were terrified, ²⁰but he called out to them, "Don't be afraid. I am here!" ²¹Then they were eager to let him in the boat, and immediately they arrived at their destination!

Jesus, the Bread of Life

²²The next day the crowd that had stayed on the far shore saw that the disciples had taken the only boat, and they realized Jesus had not gone with them. ²³Several boats from Tiberias landed near the place where the Lord had blessed the bread and the people had eaten. ²⁴So when the crowd saw that neither Jesus nor his disciples were there, they got into the boats and went across to

Capernaum to look for him. ²⁵They found him on the other side of the lake and asked, "Rabbi, when did you get here?"

²⁶Jesus replied, "I tell you the truth, you want to be with me because I fed you, not because you understood the miraculous signs. ²⁷But don't be so concerned about perishable things like food. Spend your energy seeking the eternal life that the Son of Man can give you. For God the Father has given me the seal of his approval."

²⁸They replied, "We want to perform God's works, too. What should we do?"

²⁹Jesus told them, "This is the only work God wants from you: Believe in the one he has sent."

³⁰They answered, "Show us a miraculous sign if you want us to believe in you. What can you do? ³¹After all, our ancestors ate manna while they journeyed through the wilderness! The Scriptures say, 'Moses gave them bread from heaven to eat.'"

³²Jesus said, "I tell you the truth, Moses didn't give you bread from heaven. My Father did. And now he offers you the true bread from heaven. ³³The true bread of God is the one who comes down from heaven and gives life to the world."

³⁴"Sir," they said, "give us that bread every day."

³⁵Jesus replied, "I am the bread of life. Whoever comes to me will never be hungry again. Whoever believes in me will never be thirsty. ³⁶But you haven't believed in me

6:14 him: Some manuscripts read Jesus. • he is the Prophet we have been expecting! The crowd understood the miracle as a fulfillment of OT promises (see Deut 18:15, 18; Mal 4:5-6).

6:15 The people were ready to force Jesus to become their king. To avoid this role, Jesus fled the crowd and commanded his disciples to go back across the lake (Mark 6:45-46).

6:18 East-west winds blowing down over the eastern cliffs of the Sea of Galilee late in the day commonly caused very rough waters and turbulent storms.

6:19 three or four miles: Greek 25 or 30 stadia [4.6 or 5.5 kilometers]. • The disciples' fear of the storm was now surpassed by their fear of Jesus, who came walking on the water to help them. This act recalled Moses, who led Israel through the water (Exod 14; see Ps 77:19-20).

6:20 I am here (or The 'I AM' is here; Greek reads I am; see Exod 3:14): Jesus identified himself by the name God had revealed to Moses on Mount Sinai (see also 4:26; 6:35).

6:21 immediately they arrived at their destination: The immediacy was yet another of Jesus' miracles.

6:24 The crowd sailed north to Capernaum to search for Jesus because he had made Capernaum his home in Galilee (Mark 2:1).

6:26-59 This dialogue took place in the synagogue at Capernaum (6:59) shortly before Passover (6:4), when Jews read the account of the exodus from Egypt (see Exod 1-15).

6:26 The crowd, which had concluded that Jesus was a prophet and wanted to take advantage of him politically (see note on 6:15), failed to see the meaning of the miracle, which Jesus then explained (6:27-59).

6:27 Jesus' most profound gift was not physical bread, but eternal life, which the Father authorized him to give. Physical bread is perishable; the gift of Jesus, who is himself the bread of life (6:35), will last forever. • Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself.

6:30 The crowd demanded a miraculous sign to demonstrate Jesus' status as Messiah. Jews believed that when the Messiah appeared, he would duplicate the great miracle of Moses. Manna would once again fall, and everyone would consider it a second exodus.

6:31 Moses gave them bread from heaven to eat: Exod 16:4; Ps 78:24.

6:32-33 Jesus corrected the people's argument: God, not Moses, fed Israel in the wilderness. The most important quest is to find and consume the true bread of God, who gives eternal life.

6:34 Sir, . . . give us that bread: This request parallels the request of the Samaritan woman (4:15). Spiritual awakening begins with a request for God's gift.

6:35 Jesus' I am statements in John depict Jesus' identity and ministry (see also 4:26; 8:12; 9:5; 10:7-9, 11-14; 11:25; 14:6; 15:1-5). Jesus purposefully used a phrase that would make his listeners think of the OT name for God (Exod 3:14). • I am the bread of life: Jesus is the true manna that descended from God (6:38). He satisfies the spiritual hunger of those who believe in him (cp. 4:10-13).

even though you have seen me. ³⁷However, those the Father has given me will come to me, and I will never reject them. ³⁸For I have come down from heaven to do the will of God who sent me, not to do my own will. ³⁹And this is the will of God, that I should not lose even one of all those he has given me, but that I should raise them up at the last day. ⁴⁰For it is my Father's will that all who see his Son and believe in him should have eternal life. I will raise them up at the last day."

⁴¹Then the people began to murmur in disagreement because he had said, "I am the bread that came down from heaven."

⁴²They said, "Isn't this Jesus, the son of Joseph? We know his father and mother. How can he say, 'I came down from heaven?'"

⁴³But Jesus replied, "Stop complaining about what I said. ⁴⁴For no one can come to me unless the Father who sent me draws them to me, and at the last day I will raise them up. ⁴⁵As it is written in the Scriptures, 'They will all be taught by God.' Everyone who listens to the Father and learns from him comes to me. ⁴⁶(Not that anyone has ever seen the Father; only I, who was sent from God, have seen him.)

⁴⁷"I tell you the truth, anyone who believes has eternal life. ⁴⁸Yes, I am the bread of life! ⁴⁹Your ancestors ate manna in the wilderness, but they all died. ⁵⁰Anyone who eats the bread from heaven, however, will never die. ⁵¹I am the living bread that came down from heaven. Anyone who eats this bread will live forever; and this bread, which I will offer so the world may live, is my flesh."

⁵²Then the people began arguing with each other about what he meant. "How can this man give us his flesh to eat?" they asked.

⁵³So Jesus said again, "I tell you the truth, unless you eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink his blood, you cannot have eternal life within you. ⁵⁴But anyone who eats my flesh and drinks my blood has eternal life, and I will raise that person at the last day. ⁵⁵For my flesh is true food, and my blood is true drink. ⁵⁶Anyone who eats my flesh and drinks my blood remains in me, and I in him. ⁵⁷I live because of the living Father who sent me; in the same way, anyone who feeds on me will live because of me. ⁵⁸I am the true bread that came down from heaven. Anyone who eats this bread will not die as your ancestors did (even though they ate the manna) but will live forever."

⁵⁹He said these things while he was teaching in the synagogue in Capernaum.

Many Disciples Desert Jesus

⁶⁰Many of his disciples said, "This is very hard to understand. How can anyone accept it?"

⁶¹Jesus was aware that his disciples were complaining, so he said to them, "Does this offend you? ⁶²Then what will you think if you see the Son of Man ascend to heaven again? ⁶³The Spirit alone gives eternal life. Human effort accomplishes nothing. And the very words I have spoken to you are spirit and life. ⁶⁴But some of you do not believe me." (For Jesus knew from the beginning which ones didn't believe, and he knew who would betray him.) ⁶⁵Then he said, "That is why I said that people can't come to me unless the Father gives them to me."

6:37-40 Jesus' mission in the world is sure to succeed. God sent Jesus (6:38) and calls people to follow him (6:37, 44). Those who come to him are secure in Jesus' promise that he will not reject them or lose them (6:39).

6:37 those the Father has given: God moves in people's hearts, bringing them to Jesus.

6:41-42 When Jesus identified himself as the true bread . . . from heaven, the crowd faced a decision. • people: Literally Jewish people; also in 6:52.

• Isn't this . . . the son of Joseph? They stumbled because their familiarity with Jesus made his claims seem outlandish.

6:43-51 Stop complaining: Rather than defending himself against their complaint (6:42), Jesus turns to the problem of their spiritual receptivity. Those who love the Father and listen to him will believe in Jesus.

6:45 in the Scriptures: Literally in the prophets. Isa 54:13.

6:49-50 Jesus connected the manna of the Exodus with himself, then pointed out a major difference: The Israelites remained mortal and they all died, whereas the bread from heaven (Jesus himself) provides eternal life (6:47, 51, 58).

6:51 this bread . . . is my flesh: The gift that brings life is now unveiled. On the cross, Jesus offered his flesh for the life of the world.

6:53-58 eat the flesh . . . drink his blood: Jesus answered the question the people asked (6:52). His words hinted at the Lord's Supper yet to come (see Luke 22:19). Since "flesh and blood" was a Jewish idiom for the whole person, Jesus might have been calling people to consume him fully by completely believing in him. Some Christian traditions see the bread as Christ's literal flesh broken for us and the wine as his literal blood poured out for us. Receiving communion means no less than embracing Jesus' life-giving sacrifice.

6:60-61 Jesus' language (6:53-58) was shocking, offensive (see Gen 9:4-5), and hard to understand for his disciples, just as it was to the crowd. Were they to take him literally? How would they eat his flesh? Jesus' answer is in 6:63.

6:63 The essence of Jesus' gift is found in the Holy Spirit alone, not in human effort (literally the flesh). Life and understanding come through the gift of the Spirit (see 14:15-20; 20:21-22). True life can be found only when the Holy Spirit infuses human life. To "eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink his blood" (6:53) involves a spiritual rather than a physical act (see note on 6:53-58).

⁶⁶At this point many of his disciples turned away and deserted him. ⁶⁷Then Jesus turned to the Twelve and asked, "Are you also going to leave?"

⁶⁸Simon Peter replied, "Lord, to whom would we go? You have the words that give eternal life. ⁶⁹We believe, and we know you are the Holy One of God."

⁷⁰Then Jesus said, "I chose the twelve of you, but one is a devil." ⁷¹He was speaking of Judas, son of Simon Iscariot, one of the Twelve, who would later betray him.

Jesus and the Festival of Shelters (7:1-8:59) Jesus and His Brothers

7 After this, Jesus traveled around Galilee. He wanted to stay out of Judea, where the Jewish leaders were plotting his death. ²But soon it was time for the Jewish Festival of Shelters, ³and Jesus' brothers said to him, "Leave here and go to Judea, where your followers can see your miracles! ⁴You can't become famous if you hide like this! If you can do such wonderful things, show yourself to the world!" ⁵For even his brothers didn't believe in him.

⁶Jesus replied, "Now is not the right time for me to go, but you can go anytime. ⁷The world can't hate you, but it does hate me because I accuse it of doing evil. ⁸You go on. I'm not going to this festival, because my time has not yet come." ⁹After saying these things, Jesus remained in Galilee.

Jesus Teaches Openly at the Temple

¹⁰But after his brothers left for the festival, Jesus also went, though secretly, staying out of public view. ¹¹The Jewish leaders tried to find him at the festival and kept asking if anyone had seen him. ¹²There was a lot of grumbling about him among the crowds. Some argued, "He's a good man," but others said, "He's nothing but a fraud who deceives the people." ¹³But no one had the courage to speak favorably about him in public, for they were afraid of getting in trouble with the Jewish leaders.

¹⁴Then, midway through the festival, Jesus went up to the Temple and began to teach. ¹⁵The people were surprised when they heard him. "How does he know so much when he hasn't been trained?" they asked.

¹⁶So Jesus told them, "My message is not my own; it comes from God who sent me. ¹⁷Anyone who wants to do the will of God will know whether my teaching is from God or is merely my own. ¹⁸Those who speak for themselves want glory only for themselves, but a person who seeks to honor the one who sent him speaks truth, not lies. ¹⁹Moses gave you the law, but none of you obeys it! In fact, you are trying to kill me."

²⁰The crowd replied, "You're demon possessed! Who's trying to kill you?"

²¹Jesus replied, "I did one miracle on the Sabbath, and you were amazed. ²²But you work on the Sabbath, too, when you obey Moses' law of circumcision. (Actually, this tradition of circumcision began with the patriarchs, long before the law of Moses.) ²³For if the correct time for circumcising your son falls on the Sabbath, you go ahead and do it so as not to break the law of Moses. So why should you be angry with me for healing God's light can penetrate the profound darkness of the world.

6:68-69 Simon Peter often served as spokesman for the Twelve (see also Matt 14:28-29; 16:16; 17:4; 18:21; 19:27; 26:33-35). • you are the Holy One of God: Other manuscripts read you are the Christ, the Holy One of God; still others read you are the Christ, the Son of God; and still others read you are the Christ, the Son of the living God. See Mark 1:24.

6:70-71 Once again Jesus demonstrated supernatural knowledge (see 1:47-49; 4:16-19). Judas would work for evil and betray Jesus to the authorities (12:4; 13:2; Matt 26:14-16). • Iscariot means "man from Kerieth," the home village of Judas's family.

7:1-52 This chapter is another account of Jesus during a Jewish festival, the Festival of Shelters. Jesus used elements of the festival to reveal his true identity to his Jewish compatriots and to show that he had fulfilled the festival's essential meaning (see 7:37-39; 8:12).

7:2 Jewish men were required to come to the Temple for the Festival of Shelters (Exod 23:14-17; Deut 16:16), an annual seven-day autumn harvest festival in Jerusalem six months after Passover (6:4). People lived in temporary shelters for the seven days as a reminder of the tents Israel used for forty years in the wilderness.

7:3-5 Jesus' brothers (see also Mark 3:31) reminded him of his religious obligation to celebrate the festival. Their words were cynical because at this time they didn't believe in him (7:5).

7:6-8 Jesus said that it was not the right time for him to go publicly to Jerusalem, although he later went secretly (7:10; see note on 12:23).

7:8 not going: Some manuscripts read not yet going.

7:15 people: Literally Jewish people. • The leaders wanted Jesus to show his credentials. Jesus had not been trained under a rabbi but was taught by his heavenly Father (cp. Peter and John, Acts 4:13; contrast Paul, Acts 22:3).

7:17 Those who truly want to do the will of God receive and accept Jesus and his teaching (see also 5:42-47). Those who focus on the world, by contrast, are not receptive to Christ.

7:19 Moses gave you the law, but none of you obeys it! The Jewish leaders were proud of the law of Moses, but ironically, in trying to kill Jesus, they were breaking the law (Exod 20:13).

7:20 You're demon possessed! See also 8:48-52; 10:20-21.

7:22 The law required circumcision on the eighth day (Lev 12:3) and permitted a boy to be circumcised even if that day fell on the Sabbath. Jesus argued as a rabbi would, from "the lesser to the greater," using circumcision as a precedent for healing, both of which are religious works.

a man on the Sabbath? ²⁴Look beneath the surface so you can judge correctly."

Is Jesus the Messiah?

²⁵Some of the people who lived in Jerusalem started to ask each other, "Isn't this the man they are trying to kill?" ²⁶But here he is, speaking in public, and they say nothing to him. Could our leaders possibly believe that he is the Messiah? ²⁷But how could he be? For we know where this man comes from. When the Messiah comes, he will simply appear; no one will know where he comes from."

²⁸While Jesus was teaching in the Temple, he called out, "Yes, you know me, and you know where I come from. But I'm not here on my own. The one who sent me is true, and you don't know him. ²⁹But I know him because I come from him, and he sent me to you." ³⁰Then the leaders tried to arrest him; but no one laid a hand on him, because his time had not yet come.

³¹Many among the crowds at the Temple believed in him. "After all," they said, "would you expect the Messiah to do more miraculous signs than this man has done?"

³²When the Pharisees heard that the crowds were whispering such things, they and the leading priests sent Temple guards to arrest Jesus. ³³But Jesus told them, "I will be with you only a little longer. Then I will return to the one who sent me. ³⁴You will search for me but not find me. And you cannot go where I am going."

³⁵The Jewish leaders were puzzled by this statement: "Where is he planning to go?" they asked. "Is he thinking of leaving the country and going to the Jews in other lands? Maybe he will even teach the Greeks!" ³⁶What does he mean when he says, 'You will search for me but not find me,' and 'You cannot go where I am going'?"

Jesus Promises Living Water

³⁷On the last day, the climax of the festival, Jesus stood and shouted to the crowds, "Anyone who is thirsty may come to me!"

³⁸Anyone who believes in me may come and drink! For the Scriptures declare, 'Rivers of living water will flow from his heart.'"

³⁹(When he said "living water," he was speaking of the Spirit, who would be given to everyone believing in him. But the Spirit had not yet been given, because Jesus had not yet entered into his glory.)

⁴⁰When the crowds heard him say this, some of them declared, "Surely this man is the Prophet we've been expecting." ⁴¹Others said, "He is the Messiah." Still others said, "But he can't be! Will the Messiah come from Galilee?" ⁴²For the Scriptures clearly state that the Messiah will be born of the royal line of David, in Bethlehem, the village where King David was born." ⁴³So the crowd was divided about him. ⁴⁴Some even wanted him arrested, but no one laid a hand on him.

⁴⁵When the Temple guards returned without having arrested Jesus, the leading 7:27 Some of the crowd thought that since they could trace Jesus' earthly origins, he could not be the Messiah. They believed that the Messiah would simply appear.

7:29 I come from him: Jesus sidestepped the speculation (7:27, 40-44) about his earthly origins and focused on his heavenly origins. His astounding claim provoked the religious leaders to try to arrest him for blasphemy (7:30; cp. 10:30-33).

7:30 Jesus' opponents failed to arrest him because in God's sovereign plan, his time (literally his hour), when he would be glorified on the cross, had not yet come (see note on 12:23; see also 10:17-18; 18:6-8). All four arrest scenes in chs 7-8 stress that Jesus was in control, not the Jewish leaders.

7:32-36 Jesus announced his return to the one who sent him, the Father in heaven (17:1-7). However, the Pharisees misunderstood, thinking he was leaving Judea to go among Gentiles (whom Pharisees would never visit). • The leaders would not find Jesus after his ascension. • you cannot go where I am going: These Pharisees, still in darkness, could not enter heaven, so Jesus would be beyond their reach there.

7:35 the Jews in other lands? Or the Jews who live among the Greeks?

7:37-38 living water: See "Living Water" at 4:10-14, p. 1777. A water ceremony was held each day during the Festival of Shelters, with prayer for God to send rain in the late autumn. The final day, called "the great day," was the climax of the festival, when the ceremony was repeated seven times. Water was poured over the altar as Levites sang Isa 12:3 (see Zech 14:8; see also Mishnah Sukkah ch 4). • Anyone who is thirsty may come to me! Jesus fulfilled an essential element in the Festival of Shelters. He himself is the source of living water, available to anyone who believes.

• Anyone who is thirsty may come to me! ³⁸*Anyone who believes in me may come and drink! For the Scriptures declare, 'Rivers of living water will flow from his heart':* Or "Let anyone who is thirsty come to me and drink." ³⁸For the Scriptures declare, 'Rivers of living water will flow from the heart of anyone who believes in me.' The syntax of the Greek allows for either interpretation.

7:39 In Jesus' crucifixion and resurrection, his life and the Spirit were poured out (see 19:34; 20:22). • But the Spirit had not yet been given: Several early manuscripts read But as yet there was no Spirit. Still others read But as yet there was no Holy Spirit.

7:40 Surely this man is the Prophet we've been expecting: See Deut 18:15, 18; Mal 4:5-6.

7:41-42 These Jews, different from the crowd (7:25-27) who thought the Messiah would appear mysteriously, believed the prophecy that the Messiah would be from Bethlehem of Judea (see Mic 5:2). However, they stumbled over the fact that Jesus seemed to be from Galilee, where he grew up.

7:45-52 The story concludes with the Jewish leaders frustrated and the world divided over Jesus (cp. 7:25-27, 31-32).

priests and Pharisees demanded, "Why didn't you bring him in?"

⁴⁶"We have never heard anyone speak like this!" the guards responded.

⁴⁷"Have you been led astray, too?" the Pharisees mocked. ⁴⁸"Is there a single one of us rulers or Pharisees who believes in him? ⁴⁹This foolish crowd follows him, but they are ignorant of the law. God's curse is on them!"

⁵⁰Then Nicodemus, the leader who had met with Jesus earlier, spoke up. ⁵¹"Is it legal to convict a man before he is given a hearing?" he asked.

⁵²They replied, "Are you from Galilee, too? Search the Scriptures and see for yourself—no prophet ever comes from Galilee!"

[The most ancient Greek manuscripts do not include John 7:53–8:11.]

⁵³Then the meeting broke up, and everybody went home.

A Woman Caught in Adultery

8 Jesus returned to the Mount of Olives, ²but early the next morning he was back again at the Temple. A crowd soon gathered, and he sat down and taught them. ³As he was speaking, the teachers of religious law and the Pharisees brought a woman who had been caught in the act of adultery. They put her in front of the crowd.

⁴"Teacher," they said to Jesus, "this woman was caught in the act of adultery. ⁵The law of Moses says to stone her. What do you say?"

⁶They were trying to trap him into saying something they could use against him, but Jesus stooped down and wrote in the dust with his finger. ⁷They kept demanding an answer, so he stood up again and said, "All right, but let the one who has never sinned throw the first stone!" ⁸Then he stooped down again and wrote in the dust.

⁹When the accusers heard this, they slipped away one by one, beginning with the oldest, until only Jesus was left in the middle of the crowd with the woman. ¹⁰Then Jesus stood up again and said to the woman, "Where are your accusers? Didn't even one of them condemn you?"

¹¹"No, Lord," she said.

And Jesus said, "Neither do I. Go and sin no more."

Throughout John's Gospel, people encountering Jesus misunderstood him (see 3:4; 4:11, 33; 7:35; 11:12, 50). Jesus' hearers were divided over the question of Jesus' identity. When they perceived what he was really saying, some wanted to arrest him while others wanted to become his followers (7:43-44). Only later, when Jesus' disciples had received the Spirit (16:12-13), did they really understand his significance.

The world still lives in darkness and it cannot understand the realities of life or of God (1:5). Divine revelation is inaccessible to the world. In fact, when the light of God penetrates the darkness, exposing the ugliness of the world's life, many people flee deeper into the darkness because they prefer it to the light (3:19-20). Only the transforming power of God's Spirit can provide understanding and help people see clearly as children of God (3:21; 8:12; 12:35-36, 46).

7:49-51 Nicodemus (ch 3) was probably in the process of coming to faith (see 19:39). Contrary to the implication of 7:48, some of the Pharisees—not just the ignorant crowd—believed in Jesus.

7:52 no prophet ever comes (some manuscripts read the prophet does not come) from Galilee! The Jewish leaders were apparently unaware that Jesus had been born in Bethlehem of Judea, not in Galilee (see Matt 2:1; Luke 2:1-7).

7:53-8:11 This story, a later addition to the Gospel of John, does not appear in the earliest Greek manuscripts. However, it is likely an authentic story from Jesus' life.

8:3 the teachers of religious law were Jewish scholars who specialized in knowing the OT law and the oral traditions that interpreted the law.

8:4 The form of the Greek sentence emphasizes the legal claim against the woman. She had been caught while committing the sin of adultery. The law required two witnesses and carefully outlined what evidence was needed.

8:5 The requirement of the law . . . to stone her indicates that the woman was engaged or married (Lev 20:10; Deut 22:23-24). The law also stated that her lover should be killed with her, but these religious leaders apparently ignored their obligation to that part of the statute. • These men could have dealt with the woman privately and kept her from public shame, but Jesus was their real target as they demanded, What do you say? Would he neglect the law since he had a reputation for mercy? Or would he ignore the woman's tragedy?

8:6 It is impossible to know what Jesus . . . wrote in the dust. It has been suggested that he wrote the sins of the accusers.

8:7 Jesus' answer did not mean that an accuser had to be morally perfect to make legal accusations. His reference to the one who has never sinned points to the motives of the accusers.

8:9 The jury crumbled as they slipped away. One accuser departed, followed by another, and then a succession of bystanders.

8:11 Neither do I: Jesus' words of assurance did not suggest that the woman was innocent. Jesus views sin and judgment seriously, yet he looks graciously and forgivingly on those caught in sin's grip.

Jesus, the Light of the World

¹²Jesus spoke to the people once more and said, "I am the light of the world. If you follow me, you won't have to walk in darkness, because you will have the light that leads to life."

¹³The Pharisees replied, "You are making those claims about yourself! Such testimony is not valid."

¹⁴Jesus told them, "These claims are valid even though I make them about myself. For I know where I came from and where I am going, but you don't know this about me. ¹⁵You judge me by human standards, but I do not judge anyone. ¹⁶And if I did, my judgment would be correct in every respect because I am not alone. The Father who sent me is with me. ¹⁷Your own law says that if two people agree about something, their witness is accepted as fact. ¹⁸I am one witness, and my Father who sent me is the other."

¹⁹"Where is your father?" they asked.

Jesus answered, "Since you don't know who I am, you don't know who my Father is. If you knew me, you would also know my Father." ²⁰Jesus made these statements while he was teaching in the section of the Temple known as the Treasury. But he was not arrested, because his time had not yet come.

The Unbelieving People Warned

²¹Later Jesus said to them again, "I am going away. You will search for me but will die in your sin. You cannot come where I am going."

²²The people asked, "Is he planning to commit suicide? What does he mean, 'You cannot come where I am going'?"

²³Jesus continued, "You are from below; I am from above. You belong to this world; I do not. ²⁴That is why I said that you will die in your sins; for unless you believe that I AM who I claim to be, you will die in your sins."

²⁵"Who are you?" they demanded.

Jesus replied, "The one I have always claimed to be. ²⁶I have much to say about you and much to condemn, but I won't. For I say only what I have heard from the one who sent me, and he is completely truthful." ²⁷But they still didn't understand that he was talking about his Father.

²⁸So Jesus said, "When you have lifted up the Son of Man on the cross, then you will understand that I AM he. I do nothing on my

8:12-59 The debate about whether or not Jesus is the Messiah continues from 7:52. Jesus was still at the Festival of Shelters in Jerusalem. During the festival, the conflicts Jesus had endured in ch 7 continued and intensified.

8:12 During the Festival of Shelters, sixteen gold bowls in the inner courts of the Temple were filled with oil and lighted. Jesus stood beneath these lights in the Temple (8:20) and said that he was now the source of the light. Jesus' light brings salvation not only to Israel but to the world, regardless of race or locale.

8:13 The Pharisees charged that Jesus' claims were not valid because Jewish law (Deut 19:15) requires more than one witness (cp. 5:31-32; see 8:17).

8:14-15 Jesus answered the Pharisees' charges, saying that he could make such claims about himself because he knew both his origin (heaven) and his destination (heaven). He then pointed to the most vital witness for his case, his Father who sent him (8:16).

8:16 The Father: Some manuscripts read The One.

8:17 if two people agree about something, their witness is accepted as fact: See Deut 19:15.

8:19 Throughout the festival, Jesus' audience proved they were in the darkness as they misunderstood him (see "Misunderstanding" at 7:32-36, p. 1785). They wanted to meet Jesus' father, who is God. Since they did not truly know God, they were unable to understand Jesus.

8:20 The Treasury was located in the section of the Temple called the Court of the Women. Jesus often taught there so that both men and women could hear him (Mark 12:41). • his time: Literally his hour. See notes on 2:4; 12:23.

8:21 In the earlier debate at the festival, Jesus' origins were at issue (7:27). Here, Jesus mentioned going away to the place he came from, meaning heaven. However, once again, his words were misunderstood.

8:22 people: Literally Jewish people; also in 8:31, 48, 52, 57.

8:23 Jesus' listeners were from below; they could not comprehend Jesus' meaning because he was from above (3:31; see note on 3:3).

8:24 unless you believe that I AM who I claim to be: Literally unless you believe that I am. Jesus used God's divine name (see 4:26; Exod 3:14), but the listeners missed the nuance (8:25). • die in your sins: Jesus' presence in the world, as the light penetrating the darkness, is the world's only chance for salvation.

8:25 Who are you? Later they understood and tried to stone Jesus for blasphemy (8:59). • The one I have always claimed to be: Or Why do I speak to you at all? The Greek text can be interpreted either way.

8:28 When you have lifted up the Son of Man on the cross, then you will understand that I AM he: Literally When you have lifted up the Son of Man, then you will know that I am. "Son of Man" is a title Jesus used for himself. See note ► Herod's Temple (John 8:20). Herod the Great, king of Judea at the time of Jesus' birth (37–4 BC), rebuilt the Temple in Jerusalem. The new structure replaced and expanded on the Second Temple that had been built during the time of Haggai, after the Jews returned from exile in Babylon (see Ezra 1–6). Herod's massive project began in 20 BC, and the core of the new structure was finished in a decade, but the work was not fully completed until AD 64. This Temple was destroyed in AD 70, just six years after its completion. Many events of Jesus' life and ministry took place within the Temple compound (see also 1:19; 2:14-15, 19-21; 5:14; 7:14, 28-32; 8:2, 59; 10:23; 11:56; Matt 4:5; 21:12-15, 23; 24:1-2; 27:5-6, 51; Mark 11:11, 15-17, 27; 12:35, 41; 13:1-2; 15:38; Luke 1:8, 23; 2:27, 36-37, 46; 4:9; 10:32; 19:45-47; 20:1; 21:1, 5, 37-38; 23:45; 24:53; Acts 2:46; 3:1-8; 4:1; 5:12, 20-26, 42; 21:23-30).

own but say only what the Father taught me. ²⁹And the one who sent me is with me—he has not deserted me. For I always do what pleases him.” ³⁰Then many who heard him say these things believed in him.

Jesus and Abraham: True Freedom

³¹Jesus said to the people who believed in him, “You are truly my disciples if you remain faithful to my teachings. ³²And you will know the truth, and the truth will set you free.”

³³“But we are descendants of Abraham,” they said. “We have never been slaves to anyone. What do you mean, ‘You will be set free’?”

³⁴Jesus replied, “I tell you the truth, everyone who sins is a slave of sin. ³⁵A slave is not a permanent member of the family, but a son is part of the family forever. ³⁶So if the Son sets you free, you are truly free. ³⁷Yes, I realize that you are descendants of Abraham. And yet some of you are trying to kill me because there’s no room in your hearts for my message. ³⁸I am telling you what I saw when I was with my Father. But you are following the advice of your father.”

³⁹“Our father is Abraham!” they declared. “No,” Jesus replied, “for if you were really the children of Abraham, you would follow his example. ⁴⁰Instead, you are trying to kill me because I told you the truth, which I heard from God. Abraham never did such a thing. ⁴¹No, you are imitating your real father.”

They replied, “We aren’t illegitimate children! God himself is our true Father.”

⁴²Jesus told them, “If God were your Father, you would love me, because I have come to you from God. I am not here on my own, but he sent me. ⁴³Why can’t you understand what I am saying? It’s because you can’t even hear me! ⁴⁴For you are the children of your father the devil, and you love to do the evil things he does. He was a murderer from the beginning. He has always hated the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he lies, it is consistent with his character; for he is a liar and the father of lies. ⁴⁵So when I tell the truth, you just naturally don’t believe me! ⁴⁶Which of you can truthfully accuse me of sin? And since I am telling you the truth, why don’t you believe me? ⁴⁷Anyone who belongs to God listens gladly to the words of God. But you don’t listen because you don’t belong to God.”

⁴⁸The people retorted, “You Samaritan devil! Didn’t we say all along that you were possessed by a demon?”

⁴⁹“No,” Jesus said, “I have no demon in me. For I honor my Father—and you dishonor me. ⁵⁰And though I have no wish to glorify myself, God is going to glorify me. He is the true judge. ⁵¹I tell you the truth, anyone who obeys my teaching will never die!”

⁵²The people said, “Now we know you are possessed by a demon. Even Abraham and the prophets died, but you say, ‘Anyone who obeys my teaching will never die!’ ⁵³Are you greater than our father Abraham? He died, on 1:51. • The synoptic Gospels describe Jesus as predicting his death three times (e.g., Mark 8:31; 9:31; 10:33-34). John parallels this (3:14; 8:28; 12:33-34), showing that the Father governs his Son’s fate.

8:30 Once again, the festival audience was divided. Earlier, the debate concluded with plans to arrest Jesus (8:20). Now many . . . believed in him, convinced that he was telling the truth. However, once Jesus’ full identity was disclosed their faith was sorely challenged (8:31-59).

8:31-32 Discipleship is more than knowing who Jesus is. It is also about obeying his teachings (3:36; 14:15, 21, 23; 15:10). • Because Jesus is the truth (14:6), knowing him brings discernment of what is true and what is false. • set you free: The truth brings freedom from darkness, falsehood, and sin.

8:33 Jesus challenged a widely held assumption about Israel’s status as God’s chosen people. Their heritage as descendants of Abraham had inspired feelings of privilege and immunity rather than obligation and responsibility (cp. Amos

3:1-15). • The people misunderstood what it meant to be set free. Jesus was not referring to freedom from human slavery; he meant spiritual bondage to sin (8:34). Truth, not their religious heritage, would free them (8:32; Rom 6:17; 8:2; 1 Jn 3:4, 8, 9).

8:35 Jesus unfolded the logic of his argument: If Israel is a spiritual slave, it has the same insecurity as any slave in a household. Members of a family are secure, slaves are not. Only Jesus can change the status of slaves and make them free and secure.

8:37-41 The leaders’ plot to kill Jesus (5:18) unmasked their true identity. They belonged to a different household, and their father was not Jesus’ Father. They were relying on the fact that their ancestral father was Abraham, but Jesus challenged their spiritual pedigree. The climax of his challenge comes in 8:44.

8:39 if you were really the children of Abraham, you would follow his example: Some manuscripts read if you are really the children of Abraham, follow his example.

8:41 your real father: Jesus knew who controlled them. • We aren’t illegitimate children! This was both a defense and an attack. In Greek, the pronoun we is emphatic: “We [in contrast to you] are not illegitimate,” implying that Jesus was illegitimate (see Matt 1:18-25).

8:44 Since the unbelieving people did not love Jesus (8:42; 1 Jn 5:1), they were not children of the Father in heaven who sent his beloved Son (8:47). Their true spiritual ancestry was revealed in their desire to kill God’s Son. This was the work of the devil, who brought death to the world (see Gen 3:1-20; Rom 5:12-14).

8:48-49 By calling Jesus a Samaritan devil, his opponents turned his charges back on him with a racial slur (see note on 4:4-6). Their statement that Jesus was demon possessed (also 7:20; 8:52; 10:20) countered his claim that they were linked to Satan (8:44). Jesus rightly replied that these words were a profound dishonor. In fact, it was a serious and unforgivable offense (Mark 3:22-29).

and so did the prophets. Who do you think you are?"

⁵⁴Jesus answered, "If I want glory for myself, it doesn't count. But it is my Father who will glorify me. You say, 'He is our God,' ⁵⁵but you don't even know him. I know him. If I said otherwise, I would be as great a liar as you! But I do know him and obey him. ⁵⁶Your father Abraham rejoiced as he looked forward to my coming. He saw it and was glad."

⁵⁷The people said, "You aren't even fifty years old. How can you say you have seen Abraham?"

⁵⁸Jesus answered, "I tell you the truth, before Abraham was even born, I am!" ⁵⁹At that point they picked up stones to throw at him. But Jesus was hidden from them and left the Temple.

Jesus Brings Light to the Blind

9 As Jesus was walking along, he saw a man who had been blind from birth.

²"Rabbi," his disciples asked him, "why was this man born blind? Was it because of his own sins or his parents' sins?"

³"It was not because of his sins or his parents' sins," Jesus answered. "This happened so the power of God could be seen in him. ⁴We must quickly carry out the tasks assigned us by the one who sent us. The night is coming, and then no one can work. ⁵But while I am here in the world, I am the light of the world."

⁶Then he spit on the ground, made mud with the saliva, and spread the mud over the blind man's eyes. ⁷He told him, "Go wash yourself in the pool of Siloam" (Siloam means "sent"). So the man went and washed and came back seeing!

⁸His neighbors and others who knew him as a blind beggar asked each other, "Isn't this the man who used to sit and beg?"

⁹Some said he was, and others said, "No, he just looks like him!"

In the first half of John's Gospel, he introduces a variety of people who model true discipleship (see 1:19-51; 4:1-42; 9:1-41). Taken together, John provides a profile of the mature follower, or "disciple," of Christ.

What is this profile of a disciple? (1) Disciples know who Jesus is. In each story, titles for Jesus identify him correctly (see, e.g., 1:25, 34, 36, 38, 41; 4:19, 25, 31; 9:2, 17, 22). (2) Disciples believe in Jesus. They see Jesus' mighty works, listen to his profound words, and believe (see 1:50; 4:39-41; 9:35-38; see also 20:8, 25-31). (3) Jesus' disciples understand that they must follow him if their discipleship is to be successful (1:37-43; 8:12; 10:4-5, 27; 12:26; 21:19-22). Following implies genuine devotion, leaving what we have to embrace the journey with Jesus.

8:53 Who do you think you are? This question was antagonistic and aggressive. However, if Jesus is immortal, ruling over life and death, then he is greater than Abraham, the prophets, or any of the greatest people in Israel's history (8:58).

8:54 You say, 'He is our God': Some manuscripts read You say he is your God.

8:56 Like his opponents, Jesus appealed to Abraham. Rabbis taught that God had given Abraham prophetic insight, teaching him about the coming age of the Messiah.

8:57 How can you say you have seen Abraham? (Some manuscripts read How can you say Abraham has seen you?): The Jewish leaders misunderstood Jesus: He was talking about his divine pre-existence, not his physical age.

8:58 before Abraham was even born, I am! (Or before Abraham was even born, I have always been alive; Greek reads before Abraham was, I am.) Jesus' life spans the past from before creation (1:1-2) and sweeps beyond the present into eternity. • I AM: This title is reminiscent of God's name given on Mount Sinai (Exod 3:14; cp. John 4:26; Isa 43:11-13; 48:12).

8:59 Jesus' audience finally understood his claim to divinity (8:58), and they were furious. They believed they had heard blasphemy and picked up stones to throw at him, which was the proper legal response (Lev 24:16). • Jesus was hidden from them because God had appointed a different time for his death (see note on 12:23; see also 7:30, 44; Luke 4:29-30).

9:1-41 At the Festival of Shelters (chs 7-8), Jesus claimed to be the light of the world (8:12). Now John tells about Jesus giving light, both physically and spiritually, to a blind man who lived in darkness (see 9:5). The story ends with a splendid reversal of roles: The blind man who was assumed to be in spiritual darkness could see God's light, whereas the Pharisees, who could see physically and were thought to be enlightened, were shown to be spiritually blind.

9:2 The disciples assumed that someone's sin—the man's or his parents'—had caused him to be born blind. Jesus corrected this common belief (9:3).

9:4 We must quickly carry out the tasks assigned us by the one who sent us: Other manuscripts read I must quickly carry out the tasks assigned me by the one who sent me; still others read We must quickly carry out the tasks assigned us by the one who sent me.

9:5 I am the light of the world: See note on 8:12.

9:6 During the NT era, saliva was used for medical purposes (see Mark 7:32-35; 8:22-25).

9:7 Siloam, a pool at the south end of the city of Jerusalem, was the source of water for the ceremonies at the Festival of Shelters. • Siloam means "sent": This phrase contained a double meaning: Jesus, who has been sent by God (4:34; 5:23, 37; 7:28; 8:26; 12:44; 14:24), told the blind man to wash in the pool called "sent."

But the beggar kept saying, "Yes, I am the same one!"

¹⁰They asked, "Who healed you? What happened?"

¹¹He told them, "The man they call Jesus made mud and spread it over my eyes and told me, 'Go to the pool of Siloam and wash yourself.' So I went and washed, and now I can see!"

¹²"Where is he now?" they asked.

"I don't know," he replied.

¹³Then they took the man who had been blind to the Pharisees, ¹⁴because it was on the Sabbath that Jesus had made the mud and healed him. ¹⁵The Pharisees asked the man all about it. So he told them, "He put the mud over my eyes, and when I washed it away, I could see!"

¹⁶Some of the Pharisees said, "This man Jesus is not from God, for he is working on the Sabbath." Others said, "But how could an ordinary sinner do such miraculous signs?" So there was a deep division of opinion among them.

¹⁷Then the Pharisees again questioned the man who had been blind and demanded, "What's your opinion about this man who healed you?"

The man replied, "I think he must be a prophet."

¹⁸The Jewish leaders still refused to believe the man had been blind and could now see, so they called in his parents. ¹⁹They asked them, "Is this your son? Was he born blind? If so, how can he now see?"

²⁰His parents replied, "We know this is our son and that he was born blind, ²¹but we don't know how he can see or who healed him. Ask him. He is old enough to speak for himself." ²²His parents said this because they were afraid of the Jewish leaders, who had announced that anyone saying Jesus was the Messiah would be expelled from the synagogue. ²³That's why they said, "He is old enough. Ask him."

²⁴So for the second time they called in the man who had been blind and told him, "God should get the glory for this, because we know this man Jesus is a sinner."

²⁵"I don't know whether he is a sinner," the man replied. "But I know this: I was blind, and now I can see!"

²⁶"But what did he do?" they asked. "How did he heal you?"

²⁷"Look!" the man exclaimed. "I told you once. Didn't you listen? Why do you want to hear it again? Do you want to become his disciples, too?"

²⁸Then they cursed him and said, "You are his disciple, but we are disciples of Moses! ²⁹We know God spoke to Moses, but we don't even know where this man comes from."

³⁰"Why, that's very strange!" the man replied. "He healed my eyes, and yet you don't know where he comes from? ³¹We know that God doesn't listen to sinners, but he is ready to hear those who worship him and do his will. ³²Ever since the world began, no one has been able to open the eyes of someone born blind. ³³If this man were not from God, he couldn't have done it."

³⁴"You were born a total sinner!" they answered. "Are you trying to teach us?" And they threw him out of the synagogue.

Spiritual Blindness

9:11 The blind man identified Jesus and testified strongly about him. The man was healed of his physical infirmity, gained increasing spiritual insight (9:17, 33), and became Jesus' disciple (9:38; cp. 5:11-15).

9:13 The Pharisees (see 1:24) were arbiters of legal interpretation, so the community looked to them to explain this miracle. Rather than celebrate the healing, these religious leaders interrogated the man because Jesus had performed the miracle on the Sabbath (see 5:16-18).

9:17 The man had already identified his healer (9:11, 16). Now he made his own spiritual judgment, calling Jesus a prophet.

9:18 The Pharisees wanted to discount the miracle and hoped the man's parents would deny the healing.

9:20-22 His parents confirmed that their son had been born blind, but they hesitated to judge how he could see because they were afraid of the social consequences.

9:24 God should get the glory for this: Or Give glory to God, not to Jesus; Greek reads Give glory to God. Cp. Josh 7:19.

9:28-29 The Pharisees could not defeat the logic of the miraculous sign (9:24-25, 30-33), so they turned from reason and cursed him (see 9:34). • The harsh division between Jesus and the religious leaders was clear. They considered those who followed Jesus to have rejected Moses and Judaism.

9:30 The Jewish leaders did not know where Jesus came from. The man's astonishment was understandable—a healing like this was unprecedented. Jesus' works confirmed his origin as from God. Once his true identity was known, belief and discipleship should have followed, but the Jewish leaders were willfully blind.

9:32-33 Only God could do something such as open the eyes of someone born blind. By healing the man, Jesus offered the Jewish leaders an unquestionable sign that he was from God and was the Messiah (cp. Ps 146:8; Isa 35:5; 42:7).

9:34 Discipline such as being thrown out of the synagogue was not uncommon. It brought social isolation that might require the man's departure from the village. Such serious persecution was precisely what Jesus predicted for his followers (15:18-27; 16:2).

9:35-38 Jesus pressed the man who had been blind to understand the miracle and the identity of his healer. Immediately, the man expressed faith and gave ³⁶The man answered, "Who is he, sir? I want to believe in him."

³⁷"You have seen him," Jesus said, "and he is speaking to you!"

³⁸"Yes, Lord, I believe!" the man said. And he worshiped Jesus.

³⁹Then Jesus told him, "I entered this world to render judgment—to give sight to the blind and to show those who think they see that they are blind."

⁴⁰Some Pharisees who were standing nearby heard him and asked, "Are you saying we're blind?"

⁴¹"If you were blind, you wouldn't be guilty," Jesus replied. "But you remain guilty because you claim you can see."

Jesus and the Festival of Dedication (10:1-42) The Good Shepherd and His Sheep

10 "I tell you the truth, anyone who sneaks over the wall of a sheepfold, rather than going through the gate, must surely be a thief and a robber! ²But the one who enters through the gate is the shepherd of the sheep. ³The gatekeeper opens the gate for him, and the sheep recognize his voice and come to him. He calls his own sheep by name and leads them out. ⁴After he has gathered his own flock, he walks ahead of them, and they follow him because they know his voice. ⁵They won't follow a stranger; they will run from him because they don't know his voice."

⁶Those who heard Jesus use this illustration didn't understand what he meant, ⁷so he explained it to them: "I tell you the truth, I am the gate for the sheep. ⁸All who came before me were thieves and robbers. But the true sheep did not listen to them. ⁹Yes, I am the gate. Those who come in through me will be saved. They will come and go freely and will find good pastures. ¹⁰The thief's purpose is to steal and kill and destroy. My purpose is to give them a rich and satisfying life.

¹¹"I am the good ^hshepherd. The good ^hshepherd sacrifices his life for the sheep. ¹²A hired hand will run when he sees a wolf

Jesus reverence due only to God (9:38; cp. 20:28).

9:35 Son of Man: Some manuscripts read the Son of God. "Son of Man" is a title Jesus used for himself (1:51; 3:13, 14; 5:27; 6:27, 53, 62; 8:28). The Greek translates a Hebrew and Aramaic phrase meaning "human being." People were not completely sure what Jesus meant by it (see 12:34). However, it signifies Jesus' identity as both human and as the Messiah (cp. Dan 7:13-14).

9:38-39 Some manuscripts do not include "Yes, Lord, I believe!" the man said. And he worshiped Jesus. Then Jesus told him.

9:39 those who think they see: Literally those who see.

9:40-41 Are you saying we're blind? Jesus answered that those who claim to hold all religious truth will discover that they are blind, while those who recognize their spiritual poverty will find true sight. In the story, the blind man and his family frequently confessed that they did not know, while the Pharisees repeatedly stated their confidence and remained guilty because of their religious pride. If they had confessed their ignorance and admitted their spiritual blindness, they would be guiltless. Instead, their conscious and willful rejection of Jesus established their guilt.

10:1-42 Chapter 10 continues the series of festival sermons (see note on 5:1-10:42). Jesus now moves to Hanukkah (the Festival of Dedication), the timing of which is crucial to understanding the story (see note on 10:22).

10:1-21 This illustration of a shepherd and his sheep assumes a Middle Eastern understanding of shepherding and draws on OT tradition deeply embedded in first-century Jewish culture. God was the shepherd of Israel (Gen 49:24; Ps 23; 78:52-53; Isa 40:10-11). Spiritual and political leaders of Israel were also shepherds of God's people, the flock of God (Isa 56:9-12; Jer 23:1-4; Ezek 34). Jesus' sermon builds on the occasion of Hanukkah (see 10:22) to address the theme of shepherds, using this festival as an opportunity to reflect on Israel's leaders ("shepherds") in light of Ezek 34. Jesus presents himself as the only good shepherd (10:11-14).

10:1 A wilderness shepherd would build a sheepfold, a pen with low stone walls topped by thorny branches to hold his sheep at night and protect them from danger. • The pen had one gate (or opening in the wall) that was closed with branches. Any invasion of the pen was a threat to the flock. • A bad shepherd was like a thief and a robber. He exploited the sheep for his own interests and did not care for or nurture them. Bad shepherds took the sheep's milk and wool for themselves and butchered the sheep without providing for the animal's safety (Ezek 34:3; see Isa 56:11; Jer 23:1-4). This was Jesus' most stinging indictment of the Jewish leaders.

10:3 the sheep recognize his voice: The Middle Eastern shepherd is well known for having intimate knowledge of the sheep. Sheep are led with flute tunes, songs, or verbal commands.

10:4 A good shepherd always leads his sheep; he never drives them. When they recognize his voice, they trust his leadership and follow him.

10:7 I am: See note on 6:35. A good shepherd is known for guarding the sheep at the gate as a sentry.

10:8 Some manuscripts do not include before me.

10:9 will be saved (or will find safety): As gatekeeper, Jesus keeps away those who might harm his sheep, keeping his sheep inside the pen where they are safe.

10:10 Jesus' followers must be wary of bad shepherds who desire to steal and kill and destroy. As the Hanukkah story was told to the Jewish people (see note on 10:22), they were reminded about false religious leaders whose failures had led to the loss of God's Temple in Jerusalem.

10:11-14 I am: See note on 6:35. The good shepherd leads his sheep, finds food and water, and locates paths in the wilderness (see Ps 23). The good shepherd stands between his sheep and danger (10:11) and fights to protect them. The OT describes God as Israel's shepherd (Ps 23; 80:1; Isa 40:10-11). The leaders of God's people should shepherd their flock as God does (Ezek 34:23). However, the leaders of Israel in Jesus' time were bad shepherds.

10:11-13 Small villages often created communal flocks and employed a hired hand to tend the sheep. However, an employee lacked the commitment of a true shepherd. The wilderness of Judea coming. He will abandon the sheep because they don't belong to him and he isn't their shepherd. And so the wolf attacks them and scatters the flock.¹³ The hired hand runs away because he's working only for the money and doesn't really care about the sheep.

¹⁴“I am the good shepherd; I know my own sheep, and they know me, ¹⁵just as my Father knows me and I know the Father. So I sacrifice my life for the sheep. ¹⁶I have other sheep, too, that are not in this sheepfold. I must bring them also. They will listen to my voice, and there will be one flock with one shepherd.”

¹⁷“The Father loves me because I sacrifice my life so I may take it back again. ¹⁸No one can take my life from me. I sacrifice it voluntarily. For I have the authority to lay it down when I want to and also to take it up again. For this is what my Father has commanded.”

¹⁹When he said these things, the people were again divided in their opinions about him. ²⁰Some said, “He's demon possessed and out of his mind. Why listen to a man like that?” ²¹Others said, “This doesn't sound like a man possessed by a demon! Can a demon open the eyes of the blind?”

Jesus at Hanukkah

²²It was now winter, and Jesus was in Jerusalem at the time of Hanukkah, the Festival of Dedication. ²³He was in the Temple, walking through the section known as Solomon's Colonnade. ²⁴The people surrounded him and asked, “How long are you going to keep us in suspense? If you are the Messiah, tell us plainly.”

²⁵Jesus replied, “I have already told you, and you don't believe me. The proof is the work I do in my Father's name. ²⁶But you don't believe me because you are not my sheep. ²⁷My sheep listen to my voice; I know them, and they follow me. ²⁸I give them eternal life, and they will never perish. No one can snatch them away from me, ²⁹for my Father has given them to me, and he is more powerful than anyone else. No one can snatch them from the Father's hand. ³⁰The Father and I are one.”

³¹Once again the people picked up had many predators. When a wolf or other predators attacked, the hired hand would run rather than defend the sheep. Jesus will never do this; he will always stand between his sheep and danger.

10:14-17 I sacrifice my life for the sheep: Jesus was alluding to his crucifixion (ch 19).

10:15 The Father and the Son share a profound intimacy, which Jesus shares with his sheep through the Holy Spirit (14:23-31; 15:1-11).

10:16 other sheep: Believers outside Judaism would one day join Jesus' sheepfold (see 11:52). In Jesus' vision for his people, Jewish and Gentile believers from diverse cultures would become one flock with one shepherd (17:20-23).

10:18 No one can take my life from me: The Son's death was voluntary. Jesus was not a martyr or a victim. His decision to die was freely given in obedience and intimate relationship with his Father (see Acts 2:23-24). • Jesus' resurrection was not an afterthought in which God rescued his Son from tragedy. God could not be contained by a tomb, and since Jesus and the Father are one, Jesus possessed the authority to rise from death.

10:19-21 Jesus divided his audience yet again (see also 6:66-69; 7:43; 9:16), inspiring either opposition or faith. • He's demon possessed: Cp. 7:20; 8:48-49, 52. • people: Literally Jewish people; also in 10:24, 31.

10:22 Hanukkah was a winter festival that commemorated the rededication of the Temple after it had been defiled by Antiochus IV (175–163 BC). Two hundred years before Christ, Greek soldiers captured and pillaged the Jerusalem Temple, took its treasures and artifacts, and made it unusable for worship. In the winter of 165–164 BC, a Jewish army led by Judas Maccabeus reclaimed the Temple and rededicated it to the Lord. The Festival of Hanukkah (“dedication”) marked this dedication (see 1 Maccabees 3–4; 2 Maccabees 8:1–10:8). During the festival, priests examined their commitment to service, using Ezek 34 as their principal text for reflection (also Jer 23:1-4; 25:32-38; Zech 11). At this Hanukkah celebration, Jesus used the shepherd theme from Ezek 34 to distinguish between himself as the good shepherd (10:11) and Israel's current religious leaders as bad shepherds (10:10, 12-13).

10:23 Massive covered colonnades surrounded the four sides of the central courtyard of the Temple. Solomon's Colonnade, on the east, provided shelter from winter weather.

10:24 The people who surrounded Jesus might have been seeking clarity, or they might have been hostile. In Luke 21:20 and Heb 11:30, the same word describes how Jerusalem and Jericho were surrounded before being destroyed; in Acts 14:20 it refers to Paul's disciples rallying around him after he was injured.

10:25-42 In Jesus' final public presentation of evidence about himself in this Gospel, he gives an exhaustive statement of his identity (10:30).

10:25 Jesus had already provided the Jewish people and their religious leaders with sufficient proof that he is the Son of God. The problem was not lack of information, but their unwillingness to believe him.

10:27-29 As the good shepherd, Jesus would die for his sheep and secure them from all predators and thieves (10:1, 8, 11; cp. Ezek 34:22-23). • The power of the Father, appearing in Christ, keeps his sheep safe. Believers cannot be taken from Jesus because no one is more powerful than he is. Their security is not sustained by their own efforts, but by Christ. • The word snatch implies violence (as in 6:15).

10:29 for my Father has given them to me, and he is more powerful than anyone else: Other manuscripts read for what my Father has given me is more powerful than anything; still others read for regarding that which my Father has given me, he is greater than all.

10:30 The Father and the Son are two separate persons with one purpose and nature (1:1, 14; 14:9; 20:28). This is the basis of Jesus' power to protect God's flock (10:28-29) and a stunning expression of Jesus' divinity.

10:31-33 The people realized Jesus' meaning (see 10:33) and wanted to ³⁹Once again they tried to arrest him, but he got away and left them. ⁴⁰He went beyond the Jordan River near the place where John was first baptizing and stayed there awhile. ⁴¹And many followed him. "John didn't perform miraculous signs," they remarked to one another, "but everything he said about this man has come true." ⁴²And many who were there believed in Jesus.

Foreshadowing Jesus' Death and Resurrection (11:1–12:50)

Lazarus: A Model of Jesus' Resurrection

11 A man named Lazarus was sick. He lived in Bethany with his sisters, Mary and Martha. ²This is the Mary who later poured the expensive perfume on the Lord's feet and wiped them with her hair. Her brother, Lazarus, was sick. ³So the two sisters sent a message to Jesus telling him, "Lord, your dear friend is very sick."

⁴But when Jesus heard about it he said, "Lazarus's sickness will not end in death. No, it happened for the glory of God so that the Son of God will receive glory from this." ⁵So although Jesus loved Martha, Mary, and Lazarus, ⁶he stayed where he was for the next two days. ⁷Finally, he said to his disciples, "Let's go back to Judea."

⁸But his disciples objected. "Rabbi," they said, "only a few days ago the people in Judea were trying to stone you. Are you going there again?"

⁹Jesus replied, "There are twelve hours of daylight every day. During the day people can walk safely. They can see because they have the light of this world. ¹⁰But at night there is danger of stumbling because they have no light." ¹¹Then he said, "Our friend Lazarus has fallen asleep, but now I will go and wake him up."

kill him. The problem was not Jesus' good works, but his claim to divinity (see 6:42, 60; 7:29-30). Committing blasphemy was punishable by stoning (Lev 24:23; see John 8:59).

10:34-36 your own Scriptures: Literally your own law. See Ps 82:6. • I say, you are gods! If the word god could be applied to people other than the Lord, then Jesus was not breaking the law by referring to himself in this way. Yet Jesus is not just any son of God; he is the Son of God who was sent . . . into the world.

10:38 Jesus' miraculous works should help true believers know and understand that the full reality of God dwells in Jesus.

10:40 His revelation to the Jewish leaders now complete, Jesus retired to the region beyond the Jordan River where John the Baptist had once worked and where Jesus was baptized.

10:41 everything he said about this man has come true: See 1:19-51; 3:22-36. The fulfillment of John the Baptist's predictions confirms both that he was a prophet and that what he said about Jesus was true.

10:42 This is a note of irony. While Jesus found little faith among the religious leaders in the holy city of Jerusalem, in the desert he found many who . . . believed.

11:1-57 The raising of Lazarus foreshadows Jesus' own coming death and resurrection. Even the description of Lazarus' grave (11:38, 44) prefigures Jesus' grave (20:1, 7). Shortly after this event, Jesus was anointed for burial (12:3) and the hour of his glorification began (12:23).

11:1 In Hebrew, Lazarus is a shortened form of Eleazar ("God helps"). Among Jews in the first century, it was the fourth-most-common name for a man (see also Luke 16:19-31). • Bethany was a small village east of Jerusalem just over the Mount of Olives (11:18), where Jesus often stayed when he was in Jerusalem. Jesus would have traveled through Bethany on the way to Jerusalem because most Jews used a route going east from Jerusalem, down to Jericho, and north to Galilee. • Mary and Martha were sisters (Luke 10:38-42). Martha was probably older; she was the host in Luke's story and here represented the family. Mary later anointed Jesus with perfume (12:1-8).

11:2 Mary who later poured the expensive perfume on the Lord's feet and wiped them with her hair: This incident is recorded in ch 12.

11:3 The two sisters had a dilemma. They knew Jesus' power as a healer, but they also realized that his return to Judea would entail personal risk (11:8).

11:4 Jesus' response paralleled his words about the man born blind (9:1-5). Jesus already knew that Lazarus was dead (11:14); he was talking about Lazarus' resurrection (11:43), which would bring glory to God.

11:6 The trip from where Jesus was staying (see 10:40) to Jerusalem would have taken only one day, but Jesus followed his own sense of timing (2:4; 7:5-9) and would not be compelled by others.

11:8 The disciples were rightly worried about the risk (7:25; 8:37, 44, 59; 10:31, 39). • people: Literally Jewish people; also in 11:19, 31, 33, 36, 45, 54.

¹²The disciples said, "Lord, if he is sleeping, he will soon get better!" ¹³They thought Jesus meant Lazarus was simply sleeping, but Jesus meant Lazarus had died.

¹⁴So he told them plainly, "Lazarus is dead. ¹⁵And for your sakes, I'm glad I wasn't there, for now you will really believe. Come, let's go see him."

¹⁶Thomās, nicknamed the Twin, said to his fellow disciples, "Let's go, too—and die with Jesus."

¹⁷When Jesus arrived at Bethany, he was told that Lazarus had already been in his grave for four days. ¹⁸Bethany was only a few miles down the road from Jerusalem, ¹⁹and many of the people had come to console Martha and Mary in their loss. ²⁰When Martha got word that Jesus was coming, she went to meet him. But Mary stayed in the house. ²¹Martha said to Jesus, "Lord, if only you had been here, my brother would not have died. ²²But even now I know that God will give you whatever you ask."

²³Jesus told her, "Your brother will rise again."

²⁴"Yes," Martha said, "he will rise when everyone else rises, at the last day."

²⁵Jesus told her, "I am the resurrection and the life. Anyone who believes in me will live, even after dying. ²⁶Everyone who lives in me and believes in me will never ever die. Do you believe this, Martha?"

²⁷"Yes, Lord," she told him. "I have always believed you are the Messiah, the Son of God, the one who has come into the world from God." ²⁸Then she returned to Mary. She called Mary aside from the mourners and told her, "The Teacher is here and wants to see you." ²⁹So Mary immediately went to him.

³⁰Jesus had stayed outside the village, at the place where Martha met him. ³¹When the people who were at the house consoling Mary saw her leave so hastily, they assumed she was going to Lazarus's grave to weep. So they followed her there. ³²When Mary arrived and saw Jesus, she fell at his feet and said, "Lord, if only you had been here, my brother would not have died."

³³When Jesus saw her weeping and saw the other people wailing with her, a deep anger welled up within him, and he was deeply troubled. ³⁴"Where have you put him?" he asked them.

They told him, "Lord, come and see."

³⁵Then Jesus wept. ³⁶The people who were standing nearby said, "See how much he loved him!" ³⁷But some said, "This man healed a blind man. Couldn't he have kept Lazarus from dying?"

³⁸Jesus was still angry as he arrived at the tomb, a cave with a stone rolled across its entrance. ³⁹"Roll the stone aside," Jesus told them.

But Martha, the dead man's sister, protested, "Lord, he has been dead for four days. The smell will be terrible."

11:16 Thomas, nicknamed the Twin (literally Thomas, who was called Didymus): See also 14:5; 20:24; 21:2; Mark 3:18. • Let's go, too—and die: Thomas knew that previous visits to Judea had been dangerous (5:18; 10:31, 39). Traveling to Jerusalem now would probably mean death for Jesus (cp. 11:49-50).

11:17 People were buried on the same day as their death. John noted that Lazarus had been in his grave for four days, so the miracle could not be construed as resuscitation.

11:18 was only a few miles: Greek was about 15 stadia [about 2.8 kilometers].

11:19 Life in NT times was lived publicly. Lazarus's large extended family, as well as the villagers, had arrived for a seven-day mourning period. To console the sisters in their loss, there was great wailing and crying (see 11:33 and note).

11:21 Lord, if only you had been here: Mary later repeated Martha's words (11:32), because both sisters knew Jesus' reputation as a healer. They concluded that Jesus would have healed Lazarus, but they did not imagine that Jesus would restore him from death.

11:22 whatever you ask: Martha thought that Jesus could still intervene in some way. Despite this, she objected when Jesus wanted to open the tomb (11:39); she wasn't thinking that Jesus would raise her brother from the dead.

11:24 when everyone else rises, at the last day: Martha misunderstood (cp. 11:11-13), thinking that Jesus was referring to the general resurrection of the dead at the end of time.

11:25 Jesus helped Martha to believe in him not simply as a healer, but as one who vanquishes death. • I am the resurrection and the life (some manuscripts do not include and the life): Victory over death is an aspect of living in association with Jesus. Although his followers are still mortal, they will enjoy eternal life after death. Regarding Jesus' I am statements, see the note on 6:35.

11:26-27 Do you believe this? Jesus was not asking if Martha believed he could bring Lazarus from the grave. Rather, did she believe that life itself is linked to Jesus? • "Yes, Lord": Even though the full implications were beyond her comprehension, she acknowledged that Jesus was indeed the Messiah. Yet she was surprised at the power he held.

11:28-32 Mary now joined the scene on the edge of the village, repeating her sister's plaintive cry. She fell at Jesus' feet, not in worship but in desperate grief.

11:33 The loud weeping and wailing typified public displays of grief in this culture (Mark 5:38), as did beating one's chest (Luke 18:13). • a deep anger welled up within him (or he was angry in his spirit), and he was deeply troubled: The Greek word expresses human outrage, fury, and anger. Jesus was furious, not at Martha or Mary, but at the futility of this scene and the people's unbelief in light of the reality of the resurrection.

11:39 Lazarus was buried in a tomb cut from the rocky hillside; such tombs were common. The tomb was closed and opened for further burials with a rolling stone that covered the entrance. A central door led to a cave room where burial benches were carved in stone along the inner wall. Horizontal burial chambers were cut along the top edge of the benches. See the illustration on p. 1813.

⁴⁰Jesus responded, "Didn't I tell you that you would see God's glory if you believe?"

⁴¹So they rolled the stone aside. Then Jesus looked up to heaven and said, "Father, thank you for hearing me. ⁴²You always hear me, but I said it out loud for the sake of all these people standing here, so that they will believe you sent me." ⁴³Then Jesus shouted, "Lazarus, come out!" ⁴⁴And the dead man came out, his hands and feet bound in graveclothes, his face wrapped in a headcloth. Jesus told them, "Unwrap him and let him go!"

The Plot to Kill Jesus

⁴⁵Many of the people who were with Mary believed in Jesus when they saw this happen. ⁴⁶But some went to the Pharisees and told them what Jesus had done. ⁴⁷Then the leading priests and Pharisees called the high council together. "What are we going to do?" they asked each other. "This man certainly performs many miraculous signs. ⁴⁸If we allow him to go on like this, soon everyone will believe in him. Then the Roman army will come and destroy both our Temple and our nation."

⁴⁹Caiaphas, who was high priest at that time, said, "You don't know what you're talking about! ⁵⁰You don't realize that it's better for you that one man should die for the people than for the whole nation to be destroyed."

⁵¹He did not say this on his own; as high priest at that time he was led to prophesy that Jesus would die for the entire nation. ⁵²And not only for that nation, but to bring together and unite all the children of God scattered around the world.

⁵³So from that time on, the Jewish leaders began to plot Jesus' death. ⁵⁴As a result, Jesus stopped his public ministry among the people and left Jerusalem. He went to a place near the wilderness, to the village of Ephraim, and stayed there with his disciples.

⁵⁵It was now almost time for the Jewish Passover celebration, and many people from all over the country arrived in Jerusalem several days early so they could go through the purification ceremony before Passover began. ⁵⁶They kept looking for Jesus, but as they stood around in the ◀ Jesus' Ministry in Judea (11:1–12:19). Judea was a Roman prefecture under Pontius Pilate (see profile, p. 1691). John records much of Jesus' ministry in JERUSALEM (2:13–3:21; 5:1–47; 7:10–10:42; 12:12–50) and JUDEA (3:22; 11:1–44; 12:1–11). When the time came for Jesus' death, Jesus embarked on his final trip from Galilee to Jerusalem (see map, p. 1747). The events of 11:1–20:31 took place during Jesus' final period in and around Jerusalem.

11:50–51 it's better . . . that one man should die: Caiaphas's words were ironic. He meant that it was better for a revolutionary to die than to have the Romans crush the entire Jewish nation. But Caiaphas was correct in a way that he could not perceive. The salvation that Judaism needed had little to do with Rome; it would come through the cross of Christ. John notes that Caiaphas's inspiration was not his own, but came from God.

11:52 Christ's death was not for Israel only, but for all, including people of other cultures scattered around the world (10:16; 12:32).

11:53–54 When the Jewish leaders began to plot Jesus' death, Jesus made a judicious political move in response (11:54). • Ephraim was a village about twelve miles north of Jerusalem, where Jesus was safe from the Sanhedrin but close enough to walk to the upcoming Passover festival (11:55).

11:55–57 As crowds arrived in Jerusalem on pilgrimage for Passover (see 2:13), the city was buzzing with talk about Jesus and his miracle of raising Lazarus from the dead. People wondered if Jesus would be obedient to the law and come to the city to celebrate or play it safe in the countryside. The priests and Pharisees knew that Jesus was faithful to the law and would attend the festival, so they tried to make the city a trap for him.

11:45–46 As news of the miracle spread rapidly into the city of Jerusalem (12:9, 17), public opinion was again divided (6:66–69; 7:43; 9:16; 10:19; 11:37). Jesus' reputation as a healer and as one who could raise the dead was known in Galilee (see Matt 9:24–26; 10:8; 11:5). Now he had brought this power to Judea.

11:47 the high council: Greek the Sanhedrin.

11:48 The council's deliberations unveiled their fears that everyone would believe in him. If people believed that the Messiah had come, the political implications would be threatening. The Romans viewed Jewish messiahs with suspicion, and the movement surrounding Jesus might inspire them to invade and destroy Jerusalem and its Temple. • our Temple: Or our position; Greek reads our place.

11:49 Caiaphas was the ruler of the high council from AD 18–36. He worked for ten years alongside Pontius Pilate, governor of Judea (AD 26–36; see 18:29), keeping the peace with Rome. • at that time: Literally that year; also in 11:51.

Temple, they said to each other, "What do you think? He won't come for Passover, will he?" ⁵⁷Meanwhile, the leading priests and Pharisees had publicly ordered that anyone seeing Jesus must report it immediately so they could arrest him.

Jesus Anointed at Bethany

John 12:1-11; cp. Matt 26:6-13 // Mark 14:3-9; cp. Luke 7:36-50

12 Six days before the Passover celebration began, Jesus arrived in Bethany, the home of Lazarus—the man he had raised from the dead. ²A dinner was prepared in Jesus' honor. Martha served, and Lazarus was among those who ate with him. ³Then Mary took a twelve-ounce jar of expensive perfume made from essence of nard, and she ^aanointed Jesus' feet with it, wiping his feet with her hair. The house was filled with the fragrance.

⁴But Judas Iscariot, the disciple who would soon betray him, said, ⁵"That perfume was worth a year's wages. It should have been sold and the money given to the poor." ⁶Not that he cared for the poor—he was a thief, and since he was in charge of the disciples' money, he often stole some for himself.

⁷Jesus replied, "Leave her alone. She did this in preparation for my burial. ⁸You will always have the poor among you, but you will not always have me."

⁹When all the people heard of Jesus' arrival, they flocked to see him and also to see Lazarus, the man Jesus had raised from the dead. ¹⁰Then the leading priests decided to kill Lazarus, too, ¹¹for it was because of him that many of the people had deserted them and ^bbelieved in Jesus.

Jesus' Messianic Entry into Jerusalem

John 12:12-19 // Matt 21:1-11 // Mark 11:1-11 // Luke 19:28-40

¹²The next day, the news that Jesus was on the way to Jerusalem swept through the city. A large crowd of Passover visitors ¹³took palm branches and went down the road to meet him. They shouted,

"Praise God!

Blessings on the one who comes in the name of the LORD!

Hail to the King of Israel!"

¹⁴Jesus found a young donkey and rode on it, fulfilling the prophecy that said:

¹⁵"Don't be afraid, people of Jerusalem. Look, your King is coming, riding on a donkey's colt."

¹⁶His disciples didn't understand at the time that this was a fulfillment of prophecy.

12:1-50 Two stories build simultaneously. A growing number of people are praising Jesus (this climaxes in 12:12), and the authorities are increasingly determined to arrest him and put him to death. • John records three events that occurred just days prior to Passover (12:1-11, 12-19, 20-36). Then he explains why most of the people refused to believe and details Jesus' final public appeal (12:37-50).

12:1 Pilgrims from throughout Israel began arriving in Jerusalem the week before the Passover. The festival was on Thursday that year; Jesus arrived late the preceding Friday, just before the Sabbath.

12:2 who ate: Or who reclined. The typical posture for eating was to recline at a low table.

12:3 Mary . . . anointed Jesus' feet: Doing so was not awkward, because Jews reclined at formal meals, but it was certainly a dramatic gesture (cp. Matt 26:6-16; Mark 14:3-9). • a twelve-ounce jar: Greek 1 litra [327 grams]. • Nard, a precious spice imported from North India, was sweet, red, and smelled like gladiolus perfume. Twelve ounces of nard cost a year's wages (12:5). According to Mark, Mary also anointed Jesus' head (Mark 14:3), and the perfume ran down and scented his garments (Mark 14:8). • her hair: Women never unveiled their hair in public (see Luke 7:38). Mary was acting with extravagant abandon and devotion.

12:5 a year's wages: Greek 300 denarii. A denarius was equivalent to a laborer's full day's wage. Judas may have been exaggerating, but Mary's sacrifice was certainly very costly.

12:7 Leave her alone: Jesus' defense of Mary interpreted her deed. The nard was a burial spice for his death. Jesus was readied for burial as he moved toward the hour of glorification and death (see note on 12:23).

12:8 Jesus would never neglect the poor, but this opportunity to serve him was unparalleled.

12:9 people: Literally Jewish people; also in 12:11.

12:11 had deserted them: Or had deserted their traditions; literally had deserted.

12:12 The next day was Sunday (see 12:1). • A large crowd of pilgrims (many from Galilee) camped in this region. As Jesus followed the road to Jerusalem, they cheered him. This triumphal entry appears in all four Gospels (Matt 21:1-11; Mark 11:1-11; Luke 19:29-38).

12:13-14 palm branches: The date palm was a celebratory symbol of Jewish nationalism. • meet him: The Greek word commonly describes crowds greeting a returning, triumphant king. • Praise God: Greek Hosanna, an exclamation of praise adapted from a Hebrew expression that means "save now." • Blessings on the one: The crowd quoted Ps 118:25-26, with a greeting for those who came to Jerusalem. The phrase Hail to the King of Israel is not in the psalm (but see Zeph 3:15). Although the people saw Jesus as a national political liberator, he rejected this role (6:15).

12:14 By choosing a young donkey rather than a warhorse, Jesus calmed the frenzied crowd that was passionate for his kingship. He also fulfilled OT predictions regarding the Messiah (see Zech 9:9) and showed that his kingship was not that of a warrior. His gift is life, not conquest.

12:15 This verse is a quotation of Zech 9:9 • people of Jerusalem: Literally daughter of Zion.

12:16 The crowds and even the disciples didn't understand Jesus' true significance. When the disciples received the Holy Spirit following Jesus' glorification, they fully comprehended who Jesus was (see 2:22).

But after Jesus entered into his glory, they remembered what had happened and realized that these things had been written about him.

¹⁷Many in the crowd had seen Jesus call Lazarus from the tomb, raising him from the dead, and they were telling others about it. ¹⁸That was the reason so many went out to meet him—because they had heard about this miraculous sign. ¹⁹Then the Pharisees said to each other, “There’s nothing we can do. Look, everyone has gone after him!”

Jesus Predicts His Death

²⁰Some Greeks who had come to Jerusalem for the Passover celebration ²¹paid a visit to Philip, who was from Bethsaida in Galilee. They said, “Sir, we want to meet Jesus.”

²²Philip told Andrew about it, and they went together to ask Jesus.

²³Jesus replied, “Now the time has come for the Son of Man to enter into his glory. ²⁴I tell you the truth, unless a kernel of wheat is planted in the soil and dies, it remains alone. But its death will produce many new kernels—a plentiful harvest of new lives. ²⁵Those who love their life in this world will lose it. Those who care nothing for their life in this world will keep it for eternity. ²⁶Anyone who wants to serve me must follow me, because my servants must be where I am. And the Father will honor anyone who serves me.

²⁷“Now my soul is deeply troubled. Should I pray, ‘Father, save me from this hour’? But this is the very reason I came! ²⁸Father, bring glory to your name.”

Then a voice spoke from heaven, saying, “I have already brought glory to my name, and I will do so again.” ²⁹When the crowd heard the voice, some thought it was thunder, while others declared an angel had spoken to him.

³⁰Then Jesus told them, “The voice was for your benefit, not mine. ³¹The time for judging this world has come, when Satan, the ruler of this world, will be cast out. ³²And when I am lifted up from the earth, I will draw everyone to myself.” ³³He said this to indicate how he was going to die.

³⁴The crowd responded, “We understood from Scripture that the Messiah would live forever. How can you say the Son of Man 12:17-19 This scene describes the apex of Jesus’ popularity.

12:17 were telling others: Literally were testifying.

12:19 everyone: Literally the world. The Pharisees’ words were more significant than they realized. Jesus came to reach the world (3:17), and the Pharisees said that Jesus had accomplished his task.

12:20 Among the people drawn to Jesus (12:19) were some Greeks, God-fearing Gentiles who had come to Passover to worship. Jesus’ mission was not simply to Israel but encompassed the entire world (10:16; 11:52). Following Jesus’ resurrection, the church’s mission was to go beyond Judea to Samaria, and ultimately to the ends of the earth (Matt 28:19; Acts 1:8).

12:21 The Greeks approached Philip because he had a Greek name and was no doubt Greek.

12:23 Jesus often said that the time (literally the hour) had not yet come (2:4; 7:30; 8:20), but now it had. The coming of the Greeks also marked the beginning of the key moment in Jesus’ ministry—the time of his glorification. This occurred when Jesus’ sacrificial work on the cross was completed (19:30), he rose from the dead (ch 20), he gave the Spirit (20:22), and he returned to his place of glory in heaven (17:5, 11). The connection with the Greeks who had come to Jerusalem (12:20) was significant: Jesus’ ministry among the Jews alone was finished and he now belonged to the wider world. • Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself.

12:24 The central event of Jesus’ glorification (12:23) was the cross. As with a kernel . . . planted in the soil, Jesus’ death would bring abundant life.

12:25 For disciples, sacrifice and self-effacement are means of gaining the fullness of life provided by Jesus’ sacrifice. Those who renounce the world will join Jesus in eternity and be honored by God just as Jesus is.

12:27 my soul is deeply troubled: John used the same term (Greek tarassō) to describe Jesus’ strong emotion of agony before Lazarus’ tomb (11:33; also 13:21). When Jesus stood before death, he could not be impassive. Jesus experienced genuine anguish, yet he remained strong in obedience to the Father’s will (5:19-23; 6:37; 8:29, 38; 14:31).

12:28 a voice spoke from heaven: Cp. Matt 3:17; 17:5; Mark 1:11; 9:7; Luke 3:22; 9:35. • God had already brought glory to himself when Christ entered the world (1:14) and through Jesus’ work, which showed God’s power to the world. • I will do so again: The final display of glory would come at the cross (see 12:23; 17:1). In John, the cross is an event of glory as Christ was “lifted up” (12:32) and glorified there. Jesus was prepared for crucifixion like a king coming to his coronation; the cross was like a throne (see 19:19-22), and he was buried like royalty. Jesus’ time of glorification included the entire sequence from arrest through resurrection.

12:29 It was impossible for people to comprehend what was happening with Jesus, and many of his signs led to confusion and division in the crowd. Only later did his disciples understand (2:22; 12:16), when Jesus was glorified and the Spirit was given. Still, God’s voice symbolized his validation of his Son before the world.

12:31-33 The time for judging does not occur only on Judgment Day; it began when the light penetrated the darkness and unmasked it (3:19; 5:24; 9:39). • Satan, the ruler of this world, is the architect of darkness, corrupter of the world, and promoter of death. Although Satan’s final demise lies in the future, the work of Christ unraveled Satan’s domain (see Luke 10:17-18; Mark 3:27). Christ is now enthroned as ruler in heaven (Acts 7:55-56; Eph 1:19-22).

12:32-34 when I am lifted up from the earth (see 3:14; 8:28): The crowd did not understand what Jesus meant. The Greek verb refers to being exalted (Matt 23:12) or honored (Luke 10:15). In John, the cross was not a place of shame and disgrace for Jesus, but the place where Jesus’ true glory was shown.

12:34 from Scripture: Literally from the law. • Popular Judaism believed that the Messiah would live forever and triumph over his foes. Jesus’ point of view seemed incomprehensible.

will die? Just who is this Son of Man, anyway?"

³⁵Jesus replied, "My light will shine for you just a little longer. Walk in the light while you can, so the darkness will not overtake you. Those who walk in the darkness cannot see where they are going. ³⁶Put your trust in the light while there is still time; then you will become children of the light."

After saying these things, Jesus went away and was hidden from them.

The Unbelief of the People

³⁷But despite all the miraculous signs Jesus had done, most of the people still did not believe in him. ³⁸This is exactly what Isaiah the prophet had predicted:

"LORD, who has believed our message?
To whom has the LORD revealed his powerful arm?"

³⁹But the people couldn't believe, for as Isaiah also said, ⁴⁰"The Lord has blinded their eyes and hardened their hearts—so that their eyes cannot see,

and their hearts cannot understand,
and they cannot turn to me and have me heal them."

⁴¹Isaiah was referring to Jesus when he said this, because he saw the future and spoke of the Messiah's glory. ⁴²Many people did believe in him, however, including some of the Jewish leaders. But they wouldn't admit it for fear that the Pharisees would expel them from the synagogue. ⁴³For they loved human praise more than the praise of God.

⁴⁴Jesus shouted to the crowds, "If you trust me, you are trusting not only me, but also God who sent me. ⁴⁵For when you see me, you are seeing the one who sent me. ⁴⁶I have come as a light to shine in this dark world, so that all who put their trust in me will no longer remain in the dark. ⁴⁷I will not judge those who hear me but don't obey me, for I have come to save the world and not to judge it. ⁴⁸But all who reject me and my message will be judged on the day of judgment by the truth I have spoken. ⁴⁹I don't speak on my own authority. The Father who sent me has commanded me what to say and how to say it. ⁵⁰And I know his commands lead to eternal life; so I say whatever the Father tells me to say."

3. THE BOOK OF GLORY: THE WORD IS GLORIFIED (13:1–20:31)

The Passover Meal (13:1–30)

Jesus Washes His Disciples' Feet

13 Before the Passover celebration, Jesus knew that his hour had come to leave this world and return to his Father. He had loved his disciples during his ministry on earth, and now he loved them to the very end. ²It was time for supper, and the devil had already prompted Judas, son of Simon Iscariot, to betray Jesus. ³Jesus knew that the Father had given him authority over everything and that he had come from

• who is this Son of Man, anyway? The Jews did not understand what sort of Messiah planned to die.

12:36 Jesus was the light (1:4, 7–9; 3:19–21; 8:12), and he urged the crowd to quickly make the choice to believe in him before it was too late. • They had the choice of becoming children of the light by rebirth through the power of God (1:12–13). • Jesus . . . was hidden from them: Jesus withdrew first from Judea (11:54) and then from this audience (12:36), and soon he would withdraw from the world (17:11).

12:37–38 Jesus' work was finished, yet most of the people . . . did not believe in him. His sermons before the world were complete and the signs had been displayed, but he was rejected (1:11).

• The quotation is from Isa 53:1.

12:39–40 The people couldn't believe: John quotes Isa 6:10 to explain Israel's unbelief (see Matt 13:13–15; Mark 4:12; Luke 8:10; Acts 28:26–27). When revelation comes, we must believe. If we refuse, the light disappears (12:35– 36). When God's light departs from the world, the darkness closes over unbelieving hearts.

12:41 Isaiah had glimpsed the Messiah's glory and how the world would respond (see Isa 6:10).

12:42–43 Many people did believe in him, but they wouldn't admit it. However, to follow Jesus involves telling others about him despite the social consequences (1:35–51; 4:1–42).

12:44–50 Jesus makes a final appeal for belief. These verses summarize chs 1–12. Jesus was sent by the Father, the sole source of his ministry. Jesus is the light shining in darkness to bring salvation and eternal life to all who believe in him.

12:49–50 The greatest error is for people to see the light and reject it, thinking it has no connection with the Father who sent the light.

13:1–20:31 This section focuses on the sign of the cross, the great climax of Jesus' life, as well as the time Jesus spent preparing his disciples for it

(chs 13–17). Jesus is glorified through each event of these momentous days. Jesus' arrest, trial, crucifixion, and resurrection all evoke responses of awe. On the cross, Jesus is elevated in glory before the world (12:32).

13:1–38 The setting is Jesus' final Passover meal on Thursday evening, when Judas Iscariot betrays Jesus. John does not record the meal itself as the synoptic Gospels do (Matt 26:17–29; Mark 14:12–25; Luke 22:7–20; see also 1 Cor 11:23–26). John emphasizes other activities at the event, such as the foot washing (13:1–17), Judas's betrayal (13:18–30), and the prediction of Peter's denials (13:31–38).

13:1 he loved them to the very end: Or he showed them the full extent of his love.

13:2 Judas . . . Iscariot, who had refused to believe, was engulfed by darkness and had become Satan's pawn (see note on 12:39–40). • the devil had already prompted Judas: Or the devil had already intended for Judas.

God and would return to God. ⁴So he got up from the table, took off his robe, wrapped a towel around his waist, ⁵and poured water into a basin. Then he began to wash the disciples' feet, drying them with the towel he had around him.

⁶When Jesus came to Simon Peter, Peter said to him, "Lord, are you going to wash my feet?"

⁷Jesus replied, "You don't understand now what I am doing, but someday you will."

⁸"No," Peter protested, "you will never ever wash my feet!"

Jesus replied, "Unless I wash you, you won't belong to me."

⁹Simon Peter exclaimed, "Then wash my hands and head as well, Lord, not just my feet!"

¹⁰Jesus replied, "A person who has bathed all over does not need to wash, except for the feet, to be entirely clean. And you disciples are clean, but not all of you." ¹¹For Jesus knew who would betray him. That is what he meant when he said, "Not all of you are clean."

¹²After washing their feet, he put on his robe again and sat down and asked, "Do you understand what I was doing?" ¹³You call me 'Teacher' and 'Lord,' and you are right, because that's what I am. ¹⁴And since

I, your Lord and Teacher, have washed your feet, you ought to wash each other's feet. ¹⁵I have given you an example to follow. Do as I have done to you. ¹⁶I tell you the truth, 'slaves are not greater than their master. Nor is the messenger more important than the one who sends the message. ¹⁷Now that you know these things, God will bless you for doing them.

¹⁸"I am not saying these things to all of you; I know the ones I have chosen. But this fulfills the Scripture that says, 'The one who eats my food has turned against me.' ¹⁹I tell you this beforehand, so that when it happens you will believe that I AM the Messiah. ²⁰I tell you the truth, anyone who welcomes my messenger is welcoming me, and anyone who welcomes me is welcoming the Father who sent me."

Jesus Predicts Judas's Betrayal

John 13:21-30 // Matt 26:20-25 // Mark 14:17-21 // Luke 22:21-23

²¹Now Jesus was deeply troubled, and he exclaimed, "I tell you the truth, one of you will betray me!"

²²The disciples looked at each other, wondering whom he could mean. ²³The disciple Jesus loved was sitting next to Jesus at the table. ²⁴Simon Peter motioned to him to ask, "Who's he talking about?" ²⁵So that disciple

13:4-5 Foot washing, common in the Hellenistic and Jewish cultures as a daily routine and as a gesture of hospitality (see Luke 7:36-50), was a lowly, menial task reserved for servants. When Jesus began to wash the disciples' feet, he took the posture of a slave.

13:8 Based on the depth of his devotion to Jesus, it is understandable that Peter protested. But Jesus was not simply giving Peter a model of service; this was a symbolic pre-enactment of his greater act of sacrifice on the cross (13:7). Receiving Jesus' spiritual cleansing is a condition for discipleship, so if Peter could not accept this act, he could not be Jesus' disciple at all.

13:9 wash my hands and head as well: Peter misunderstood Jesus (cp. 2:19-20; 3:3-4). Peter thought that to have more water was to have more of Jesus. Only when Peter received the Spirit did everything become clear (e.g., see Acts 2:14-36).

13:10 Jesus referred to an ultimate cleansing through his sacrifice which makes a person clean all over. • Some manuscripts do not include except for the feet.

13:14-15 Jesus' acts of service, such as washing feet and dying on the cross, provided an example of personal sacrifice to follow. • wash each other's feet: Foot washing was so commonplace that Jesus might have intended a literal repetition of his act, or he might have seen it as symbolic. Either way, Jesus wants similar servanthood and sacrifice to characterize his followers.

13:16 slaves are not greater than their master: This proverb was popular and appears in many places (see also 15:20; Matt 10:24; Luke 6:40). Here, Jesus meant that the sacrifice modeled by the master should be seen in the life of the servant.

13:18 I am not saying these things to all of you: The subject of Judas's betrayal enters the story for the third time (13:2, 11). The matter weighed heavily on Jesus (13:21). • I know the ones I have chosen: The statement does not imply that Jesus chose only the eleven and that Judas was an outcast. Jesus chose Judas and gave him every opportunity to believe. He realized that Judas had embraced the darkness rather than the light (6:70). • The one who eats my food has turned against me (literally has lifted his heel against me): See Ps 41:9. Eating together was a cultural symbol of personal intimacy, which made Judas's betrayal all the more treacherous.

13:19 Judas's betrayal did not take Jesus unaware, and it should not shock his disciples when it happens. • that I AM the Messiah: Or that the 'I AM' has come; or that I am the LORD; literally that I am. By using the phrase "I am," Jesus clearly equated himself with the God of the OT. See Exod 3:14.

13:21 For the third time, Jesus was deeply troubled (literally was troubled in his spirit; Greek tarassō; see 11:33; 12:27). The personal betrayal of Judas brought Jesus profound grief.

13:23 The disciple Jesus loved appears at the cross (19:26-27), at the tomb (20:2-9), and at the resurrection (21:1, 20-23). He is the author of this Gospel (21:24-25). Some scholars believe that Lazarus was in fact the disciple whom Jesus loved (see 11:3, 5, 36), but the person referred to here was among the twelve apostles, usually identified as the apostle John. • was sitting next to Jesus at the table: Literally was reclining on Jesus' bosom. They were probably reclining at a triclinium, a U-shaped table with couches. Guests reclined on the couches, while the center provided access to servers. The diners supported their bodies by their left elbows while using their right hands for eating. Feet were extended away from the table (cp. Luke 7:38).

13:25 Peter told "the disciple Jesus loved" (13:23), who was sitting next to leaned over to Jesus and asked, "Lord, who is it?"

²⁶Jesus responded, "It is the one to whom I give the bread I dip in the bowl." And when he had dipped it, he gave it to Judas, son of Simon Iscariot. ²⁷When Judas had eaten the bread, "Satan entered into him. Then Jesus told him, "Hurry and do what you're going to do." ²⁸None of the others at the table knew what Jesus meant. ²⁹Since Judas was their treasurer, some thought Jesus was telling him to go and pay for the food or to give some money to the poor. ³⁰So Judas left at once, going out into the night.

Jesus' Final Farewell (13:31–17:26)

Jesus Predicts Peter's Denial

John 13:36–38; cp. Matt 26:31–35 // Mark 14:27–31; cp. Luke 22:31–34

³¹As soon as Judas left the room, Jesus said, "The time has come for the Son of Man to enter into his glory, and God will be glorified because of him. ³²And since God receives glory because of the Son, he will give his own glory to the Son, and he will do so at once.

³³Dear children, I will be with you only a little longer. And as I told the Jewish leaders, you will search for me, but you can't come where I am going. ³⁴So now I am giving you a new commandment: Love each other. Just as I have loved you, you should love each other. ³⁵Your love for one another will prove to the world that you are my disciples."

³⁶Simon Peter asked, "Lord, where are you going?"

And Jesus replied, "You can't go with me now, but you will follow me later."

³⁷"But why can't I come now, Lord?" he asked. "I'm ready to die for you."

³⁸Jesus answered, "Die for me? I tell you the truth, Peter—before the rooster crows tomorrow morning, you will deny three times that you even know me.

Jesus, to ask the betrayer's identity. As he reclined next to Jesus, he leaned over to Jesus and spoke privately.

13:26 Meals were eaten with flat bread, which diners would dip into a common bowl. When Jesus gave a morsel to Judas (cp. Ruth 2:14), the disciples might have thought Jesus was honoring him. They did not understand what was occurring. They even thought that Judas's departure (13:29) fulfilled an official duty for the feast! But Jesus was signaling to Judas that he understood Judas's plan and was not taken by surprise. Jesus' knowledge is profound and complete (see 1:48; 2:25).

13:27 When Satan entered into Judas (see Luke 22:3), he became an example of what happens to those who are consumed by the darkness. Satan uses such people as pawns in a wider struggle against the light. • Hurry and do what you're going to do: In issuing this command, Jesus once again showed that he was in control, not human beings or Satan (see note on 7:30).

13:28–29 None of the others suspected that something odd was happening. Passover evening was one of the only nights when the city gates were left open. The night was spent in prayer and meditation, money was given to the poor, and provisions were always needed for this complex meal.

13:30 out into the night: Judas's departure was emblematic: The darkness had swallowed him completely (see note on 13:2; cp. 3:19). Jesus, the light of the world, is the antithesis of the night.

13:31–17:26 The OT and later Jewish literature include numerous examples of farewells in which a dying person offers last words to intimate friends (see Gen 49:1–27; Deut 31–34; Josh 23–24; 1 Sam 12; 1 Chr 28–29). Such farewells used a standard form. The dying person, surrounded by his loved ones, comforted them and exhorted them to obey the law. He prayed and blessed them and often left behind some writings. In some cases, the departing person passed on his "spirit" to his followers or his successor (see Num 27:18; Deut 34:9; 2 Kgs 2:9–14). Each of these elements is present in Jesus' farewell. • This section is often called the Upper Room Discourse, since the meal was taken in an "upstairs room" (Luke 22:39).

13:31 The time has come: Judas's departure into the night marks a solemn divide in the plot of the Gospel. Jesus was left with his intimate friends as the hour of glory was dawning. This time was launched by Judas's betrayal, and it culminated in the resurrection. • Son of Man is a title Jesus used for himself.

13:32 Several early manuscripts do not include And since God receives glory because of the Son.

13:33 Jesus addressed the apostles as his children, marking the start of his farewell address.

13:34–35 That the disciples were to love one another was not a new commandment (see Lev 19:18). However, that they were to love each other with the sort of love modeled by Jesus was dramatic. Jesus' love for God was expressed in perfect obedience (14:31); now this kind of love was his command—that disciples express their love for Jesus in committed obedience.

13:37 Peter claimed to be ready to die for Jesus, yet his denials are well known in the synoptic Gospels (Matt 26:32–34; Mark 14:27–30; Luke 22:31–34). Although Peter's verve and devotion failed, he was restored (21:15–19).

14:1–31 Jesus provided answers to his disciples' many spoken and unspoken concerns.

14:1 Jesus had himself been troubled (Greek tarassō) on three occasions (11:33; 12:27; 13:21). His confidence in God's power made it possible for him to face these crises. Faced with the upsetting words of 13:33, the disciples confronted similar feelings. • Trust (or believe, or have faith) in God: Only trusting God would help them through his hour of death.

14:2 There is more than enough room in my Father's home (or There are many rooms in my Father's house): God's house is the dwelling place where he resides (Rev 21:9–22:5). The word translated "room" is related to the Greek verb meaning "remain, abide, dwell." Jesus promises that his followers will have a place to "dwell" alongside him, wherever he is. Later, this "dwelling" becomes a place of "indwelling" as Jesus makes his home in his followers' hearts through the Spirit (14:23). • If this were not so, would I have told you that I am going to prepare a place for

John the Apostle, Son of Zebedee (13:23-25)

John, brother of James and son of Zebedee, was one of the twelve apostles. Early tradition identifies him as the author of the Gospel of John, the Letters of John, and the book of Revelation.

John and his brother James were among those closest to Jesus (Mark 5:37; 9:2; 13:3; 14:33). His mother, Salome, might have been a sister of Mary, the mother of Jesus (cp. 19:25; Matt 27:56; Mark 15:40; 16:1). John's name usually occurs after James's, which suggests that John was younger. James and John were fishermen like their father (Matt 4:21; Mark 1:19). They fished with Peter and Andrew, another pair of brothers who became disciples (Luke 5:10). They were among the first whom Jesus called as disciples, and they left everything to follow him (Matt 4:22; Mark 1:20; Luke 5:11; cp. John 1:35-40). Jesus named them "Sons of Thunder" (Mark 3:17), which might imply that they were loud or short-tempered (cp. Luke 9:54). At one point, the two brothers evoked the indignation of the other disciples when they asked for special positions of privilege in the coming kingdom (Matt 20:20-28; Mark 10:35-45; cp. Luke 22:24-27).

Early tradition links John to five NT books: the Gospel of John, three Letters of John, and the book of Revelation. John is understood to be the unnamed "disciple Jesus loved" and "another disciple" (13:23-25; 18:15-16; 19:26-27; 20:2-10; 21:20-24). He was possibly the unnamed disciple of John the Baptist, who, together with Andrew, became an early follower of Jesus (1:35-40).

John's name occurs three times in Acts; each time he was working with Peter (Acts 3:1-11; 4:1-23; 8:14-25). Paul referred to him as one of the "pillars" of the church in Jerusalem (Gal 2:9).

The most widespread tradition about John's later life is that he moved to Ephesus, where he eventually became the bishop of Asia Minor, lived to an old age, and died peacefully in the company of friends. His Gospel provides the most profound portrait that we have of Jesus, and his letters provide one of the finest depictions of the Christian life (1 John).

you? Or If this were not so, I would have told you that I am going to prepare a place for you. Some manuscripts read If this were not so, I would have told you, I am going to prepare a place for you.

14:3 Some scholars believe that Jesus meant he would come and get his followers after the resurrection (14:18). Others think these words refer to Jesus' second coming. For the disciples, the more important coming was Jesus' return from the grave (ch 16).

14:6 I am: See note on 6:35. Access to the Father's presence is only through Jesus, who is the way, the truth, and the life. • The way to the Father is only through Jesus. Other religions and philosophies propose different avenues to God, but Jesus asserted that he is the one exclusive path to God. • Jesus is the truth because God is truth. • God is the source of eternal life. At Lazarus's tomb, Jesus showed his divine power over life and death (11:25).

14:7 If you had really known me, you would know who my Father is: Some manuscripts read If you have really known me, you will know who my Father is.

14:8 Philip did not yet understand that in Jesus he was seeing the full embodiment of God (14:9).

14:9 Anyone who has seen me has seen the Father! Cp. 1:1-2. Jesus Christ is God-in-the-flesh (1:14), which explains his capacity to accomplish divine works. Jesus did not simply teach about God; in him God can be found. Jesus' remarkable statement echoed what he had said at Hanukkah: "The Father and I are one" (10:30). This claim is at the root of the world's opposition to Christ (5:18).

14:10 Jesus' claims were astonishing (10:30, 37-38). Yet true faith recognizes Jesus' union with God the Father.

14:12 Jesus promised that anyone who believes in him would perform great miracles and experience answers to going to be with the Father. ¹³You can ask for anything in my name, and I will do it, so that the Son can bring glory to the Father. ¹⁴Yes, ask me for anything in my name, and I will do it!

Jesus Promises the Holy Spirit

¹⁵If you love me, obey my commandments. ¹⁶And I will ask the Father, and he will give you another Advocate, who will never leave you. ¹⁷He is the Holy Spirit, who leads into all truth. The world cannot receive him, because it isn't looking for him and doesn't recognize him. But you know him, because he lives with you now and later will be in you. ¹⁸No, I will not abandon you as orphans—I will come to you. ¹⁹Soon the world will no longer see me, but you will see me. Since I live, you also will live. ²⁰When I am raised to life again, you will know that I am in my Father, and you are in me, and I am in you. ²¹Those who accept my commandments and obey them are the ones who love me. And because they love me, my Father will love them. And I will love them and reveal myself to each of them."

²²Judas (not Judas Iscariot, but the other disciple with that name) said to him, "Lord, why are you going to reveal yourself only to us and not to the world at large?"

²³Jesus replied, "All who love me will do what I say. My Father will love them, and we will come and make our home with each of them. ²⁴Anyone who doesn't love me will not obey me. And remember, my words are not my own. What I am telling you is from the Father who sent me. ²⁵I am telling

On four occasions, Jesus used an unusual word (Greek paraklētos, "called alongside," "advocate") to describe the Holy Spirit (14:16, 26; 15:26; 16:7). The same term occurs in Greek literature, where it refers to a legal advocate—someone who speaks in a person's defense and provides legal counsel. "Counselor" is a popular translation of this term, but the therapeutic connotations of this word in contemporary English are misleading; the older legal meaning of a lawyer providing advice or counsel is closer to the mark. "Comforter" is another popular translation, but this is also misleading; the older English meaning of someone who strengthens (an "encourager") is more accurate to the NT concept of paraklētos.

Jesus described the Spirit as another Advocate (14:16). Jesus, who is the first advocate (see 1 Jn 2:1), sent a second Advocate, the Holy Spirit. Every task of the Spirit in John 14–16 is a task Jesus undertook elsewhere in the Gospel. Jesus promised that the Holy Spirit would come to encourage, instruct, and strengthen his followers. In fact, the Spirit would sustain Jesus' own presence among his disciples. Five promises of the Spirit each indicate a different work that the Spirit does (14:16–17, 26; 15:26; 16:7, 13).

The Spirit became available to Jesus' disciples after his death (see 7:39; 20:22). The Spirit now continues the work of Jesus and his presence in the life of believers (14:16–24).

their prayers (see 1 Jn 5:14). These things would become possible when Jesus went to the Father, because he would send the Holy Spirit to empower the works (14:16). • The greater works will not outdo Jesus' work, but regular people empowered by the Spirit will be doing them. In the era of the Spirit, God promised to bring his Kingdom and power into the world in a way not seen before.

14:15 If you love me: Because Jesus loves the Father, he is obedient to what God directs him to say and do (12:49). If we love him, we will obey him, too (14:21, 23; 15:10, 14; see 1 Jn 2:3–4; 5:2). • obey: Other manuscripts read you will obey; still others read you should obey.

14:16 another Advocate (or Comforter, or Encourager, or Counselor; Greek reads Paraclete; also in 14:26): See "Our Advocate" at 14:1–16:15, above. The Spirit continues Jesus' work by advising, defending, and protecting believers.

14:17 The Holy Spirit, who leads into all truth (literally the Spirit of truth; see also 15:26; 16:13), communicates the truth about God. The Spirit maintains Jesus' presence in the world, duplicating and sustaining Jesus' work. • and later will be in you: Some manuscripts read and is in you.

14:18 Jesus had already assured his followers that they would not be spiritual orphans and that he would return to them (14:1–4). While he is away, they will be filled with the Spirit, who will sustain them with his presence (14:12–17).

14:20 Jesus' resurrection (14:19) inaugurated his spiritual union with his disciples, which is parallel to the union he enjoys with the Father (see 15:4–5; 1 Jn 1:3).

14:22 Several men are named Judas in the NT. Judas, the brother of Jesus, (Mark 6:3) wrote the epistle of Jude. Judas, the son of James, whom John is referring to here, is listed as an apostle in Luke 6:16; he is elsewhere identified as Thaddaeus (Matt 10:3; Mark 3:18). • Lord, why? Judas posed an important question. If Jesus planned to return mightily from death, why not use the opportunity to reveal himself definitively to the world and validate his power and identity?

14:23–24 Jesus answered Judas's question, explaining that his coming would be a profound spiritual revelation beyond the world's grasp. • Jesus' coming would occur in three experiences: his resurrection, the coming of the Spirit, and his second coming. When he comes in the Spirit, he and the Father will reside within believers, making a home with each of them (see note on 14:2).

you these things now while I am still with you. ²⁶But when the Father sends the ^hAdvocate as my representative—that is, the Holy Spirit—he will teach you everything and will remind you of everything I have told you.

²⁷"I am leaving you with a gift—peace of mind and heart. And the peace I give is a gift the world cannot give. So don't be troubled or afraid. ²⁸Remember what I told you: I am going away, but I will come back to you again. If you really loved me, you would be happy that I am going to the Father, who is greater than I am. ²⁹I have told you these things before they happen so that when they do happen, you will believe.

³⁰"I don't have much more time to talk to you, because the ruler of this world approaches. He has no power over me, ³¹but I will do what the Father requires of me, so that the world will know that I love the Father. Come, let's be going.

Jesus, the True Vine of Israel

15 "I am the true ^hgrapevine, and my Father is the gardener. ²He cuts off every branch of mine that doesn't produce fruit, and he prunes the branches that do bear fruit so they will produce even more. ³You have already been pruned and purified by the message I have given you. ⁴Remain in me, and I will remain in you. For a branch cannot produce fruit if it is severed from the vine, and you cannot be fruitful unless you remain in me.

⁵"Yes, I am the ^hvine; you are the branches. Those who remain in me, and I in them, will produce much fruit. For apart from me you can do nothing. ⁶Anyone who does not remain in me is thrown away like a useless branch and withers. Such branches are gathered into a pile to be burned. ⁷But if you remain in me and my words remain in you, you may ask for anything you want, and it will be granted! ⁸When you produce

Remaining in Christ (15:1-17)

One of Jesus' favorite words was menō, often translated "remain," "stay," or "abide." It describes a profound, intimate, and enduring relationship. For example, Jesus said, "You are truly my disciples if you remain faithful to [menō en, 'stay in'] my teachings" (8:31). The idea is that a disciple's life is fully formed by Jesus' word. Jesus described how the Son is in the Father and the Father is in the Son (14:10-11). Likewise, when we remain in Christ, the Son is in us and we are in the Father and the Son (17:21). Both the Father and the Son come and make their home within his disciples. This mutual indwelling is precisely what it means that the disciple remains in Christ. We cannot gain the permanence of our relationship by our own effort; this relationship is only made permanent by the gracious initiative of God indwelling our lives through his Spirit. This means commitment on the part of both God and the disciple. The mutual indwelling between God and the believer is not a fleeting or temporary commitment, but an enduring, permanent, and eternal relationship (see 1 Jn 2:14, 17).

14:26 Jesus promised to send the Holy Spirit (see also 14:16; 15:26; 16:7; 16:12-14). • The Spirit will teach . . . everything, recalling Jesus' words and clarifying their meaning. John experienced this power as he wrote his Gospel (2:22); Christians experience this work of the Spirit as they read the Scriptures.

14:27 The Jewish greeting peace (Hebrew shalom) captured the spirit of Jesus' work on earth to restore humanity's relationship with God (Isa 9:6-7; 52:7; 57:19; Rom 5:1). The resurrection (14:28) and the Spirit were instrumental in achieving this work.

14:28 the Father, who is greater than I am: Jesus is subordinate to the Father (see also 5:19-20), and yet is also one with the Father (10:30).

14:30 The events unfolding in Jerusalem that led to the cross were not controlled by the ruler of this world, meaning Satan. The cross was not an accident, and Jesus was not a helpless victim. Rather, Jesus was obedient to God's plan.

15:1-27 Jesus prepared his disciples for his departure, instructing them to remain in close fellowship with him. The image of a grapevine illustrates both intimacy and fruitfulness. To sustain genuine spiritual life in the world, believers must remain intimately connected to Christ.

15:1 I am: See note on 6:35. The grapevine and the vineyard traditionally represented God's people, planted and tended by him in Israel (Ps 80:8-18; Isa 5:1-7; Jer 2:21; 12:10-11; Ezek 15:1-5; Hos 10:1-2). When Jesus used this image, he made an important departure: He declared that he is the true grapevine, and that a relationship with God requires attachment to him.

15:2-3 Gardeners cut away dead branches and trim healthy branches so they will produce more fruit. Fruitfulness is the result of life-giving connection to the vine.

15:4 The term remain (Greek menō) is key to understanding 15:4-10. A growing disciple, in whom the Father and the Son live through the Spirit, must be continuously connected to Christ (see 14:16-25; 15:26).

15:6 Anyone who does not remain in Christ is separated from the vine and its life. A living branch produces clusters of grapes (15:5). Connection with the vine allows the life of Jesus to flow fruitfully through the disciple. Those who claim to be attached to Christ but yield no fruit are useless and will be burned.

15:7 Those whose lives are in harmony with Jesus may ask for anything because their prayers are controlled by his word. Their prayers will be answered and bring glory to God (14:10-13).

much fruit, you are my true disciples. This brings great glory to my Father.

⁹"I have loved you even as the Father has loved me. Remain in my ^alove. ¹⁰When you obey my commandments, you remain in my love, just as I obey my Father's commandments and remain in his love. ¹¹I have told you these things so that you will be filled with my joy. Yes, your joy will overflow! ¹²This is my commandment: Love each other in the same way I have loved you. ¹³There is no greater ^blove than to lay down one's life for one's friends. ¹⁴You are my friends if you do what I command. ¹⁵I no longer call you ^cslaves, because a master doesn't confide in his ^cslaves. Now you are my friends, since I have told you everything the Father told me. ¹⁶You didn't choose me. I chose you. I appointed you to go and produce lasting fruit, so that the Father will give you whatever you ask for, using my name. ¹⁷This is my command: Love each other.

Jesus' Disciples and the World

¹⁸"If the world hates you, remember that it hated me first. ¹⁹The world would love you as one of its own if you belonged to it, but you are no longer part of the world. I chose you to come out of the world, so it hates you. ²⁰Do you remember what I told you? 'A slave is not greater than the master.' Since they persecuted me, naturally they will persecute you. And if they had listened to me, they would listen to you. ²¹They will do all this to you because of me, for they have rejected the one who sent me. ²²They would not be guilty if I had not come and spoken to them. But now they have no excuse for their sin. ²³Anyone who hates me also hates my Father. ²⁴If I hadn't done such miraculous signs among them that no one else could do, they would not be guilty. But as it is, they have seen everything I did, yet they still hate me and my Father. ²⁵This fulfills what is written in their Scriptures: 'They hated me without cause.'

²⁶"But I will send you the ^dAdvocate—the Spirit of truth. He will come to you from the Father and will testify all about me. ²⁷And you must also testify about me because you have been with me from the beginning of my ministry.

16"I have told you these things so that you won't abandon your faith. ²For you will be expelled from the synagogues, and the time is coming when those who kill you will think they are doing a holy service for God. ³This is because they have never known the Father or me. ⁴Yes, I'm telling you these things now, so that when they happen, you will remember my warning. I didn't tell you earlier because I was going to be with you for a while longer.

The Work of the Holy Spirit

⁵"But now I am going away to the one who sent me, and not one of you is asking where I am going. ⁶Instead, you grieve because of what I've told you. ⁷But in fact, it is best for you that I go away, because if I don't, the ^eAdvocate won't come. If I do go away, 15:8 True disciples will experience a transformed, fruit-bearing life because they live in a relationship of love with both Jesus and the Father (15:9-10).

15:10 Just as Jesus demonstrated his love for the Father by obeying his will (14:31), Jesus' disciples exhibit their love through obedience to him (13:34-35; 14:15; 1 Jn 2:5; 5:2-3).

15:12-13 This is my commandment: Love each other: See 13:34. • Jesus demonstrated his love by sacrificing his life at the cross.

15:14-16 Both Abraham and Moses were called friends of God (Exod 33:11; 2 Chr 20:7; Isa 41:8; Jas 2:23). This is the highest relationship possible between God and a person. Jesus chooses his friends (15:16), who demonstrate their friendship by obeying him.

15:15 The disciples of a rabbi were considered his servants or slaves. Jesus elevated his followers to a higher relationship as his friends.

15:18-27 Disciples must be like their master in every respect, both in showing love and obedience and in experiencing the antagonism of those who oppose their message (15:20-21; see ch 9; 11:16). If the darkness is opposed to the light (1:5), and if Jesus' followers are bearers of that light in the world (1 Jn 1:7; 2:9), they should expect the world to hate them in the way it hated Jesus (see 17:14). Jesus' disciples share his separation from and conflict with the world.

15:20 A slave is not greater than the master: See note on 13:16. Jesus' disciples should mirror him in every way, even in his experience of persecution and martyrdom.

15:22-24 But now they have no excuse: Jesus' ministry provided both words (15:22) and works (15:24) as evidence that pointed to God. Once people have heard and seen him, they are accountable.

15:25 in their Scriptures: Literally in their law. Ps 35:19; 69:4. • They hated me without cause: This OT citation reveals the unwarranted anger of those who belong to the darkness.

15:26 But I will send you the Advocate (or Comforter, or Encourager, or Counselor; Greek reads Paraclete)—the Spirit of truth: See notes on 14:16-17. Like a legal advocate, the Holy Spirit counsels and protects Jesus' followers.

15:27 Disciples are not alone when they testify about Christ (Matt 28:20). The Spirit accompanies them, providing the words to say (Matt 10:19-20).

16:1-2 Jesus had outlined the coming conflicts (15:18-25) so that the disciples would not abandon their faith (literally be caused to stumble). The greatest obstacle his disciples would face was to stumble and renounce their faith before their Jewish opponents (see Matt 23:34; Luke 6:22), especially during the dark days ahead (see 12:35; 1 Jn 2:9-11).

16:7 the Advocate (or Comforter, or Encourager, or Counselor; Greek reads Paraclete): The Spirit was a gift awaiting Jesus' departure and glorification (7:37-39; 14:16, 26; 15:26; 16:12-14).

then I will send him to you. ⁸And when he comes, he will convict the world of its sin, and of God's righteousness, and of the coming judgment. ⁹The world's sin is that it refuses to believe in me. ¹⁰Righteousness is available because I go to the Father, and you will see me no more. ¹¹Judgment will come because the ruler of this world has already been judged.

¹²"There is so much more I want to tell you, but you can't bear it now. ¹³When the Spirit of truth comes, he will guide you into all truth. He will not speak on his own but will tell you what he has heard. He will tell you about the future. ¹⁴He will bring me glory by telling you whatever he receives from me. ¹⁵All that belongs to the Father is mine; this is why I said, 'The Spirit will tell you whatever he receives from me.'

Sadness Will Be Turned to Joy

¹⁶"In a little while you won't see me anymore. But a little while after that, you will see me again."

¹⁷Some of the disciples asked each other, "What does he mean when he says, 'In a little while you won't see me, but then you will see me,' and 'I am going to the Father'?"

¹⁸And what does he mean by 'a little while'? We don't understand."

¹⁹Jesus realized they wanted to ask him about it, so he said, "Are you asking yourselves what I meant? I said in a little while you won't see me, but a little while after that you will see me again. ²⁰I tell you the truth, you will weep and mourn over what is going to happen to me, but the world will rejoice.

You will grieve, but your grief will suddenly turn to wonderful joy. ²¹It will be like a woman suffering the pains of labor. When her child is born, her anguish gives way to joy because she has brought a new baby into the world. ²²So you have sorrow now, but I will see you again; then you will rejoice, and no one can rob you of that joy. ²³At that time you won't need to ask me for anything. I tell you the truth, you will ask the Father directly, and he will grant your request because you use my name. ²⁴You haven't done this before. Ask, using my name, and you will receive, and you will have abundant joy.

²⁵"I have spoken of these matters in figures of speech, but soon I will stop speaking figuratively and will tell you plainly all about the Father. ²⁶Then you will ask in my name. I'm not saying I will ask the Father on your behalf, ²⁷for the Father himself loves you dearly because you love me and believe that I came from God. ²⁸Yes, I came from the Father into the world, and now I will leave the world and return to the Father."

²⁹Then his disciples said, "At last you are speaking plainly and not figuratively. ³⁰Now we understand that you know everything, and there's no need to question you. From this we believe that you came from God."

³¹Jesus asked, "Do you finally believe? ³²But the time is coming—indeed it's here now—when you will be scattered, each one going his own way, leaving me alone. Yet I am not alone because the Father is with me. ³³I have told you all this so that you may have peace in me. Here on earth you

16:8-11 One of the Spirit's roles is to convict the world. Convict is a legal term: The world had conducted its trial of Jesus, examining the evidence for his case (his signs and claims). Now the world would stand trial before the Spirit, and its guilt would be proven.

16:8 The Spirit unveils to the world the real nature of its sin, the truth about righteousness found only in God, and the coming judgment, which has already dawned on the world as light penetrating the darkness.

16:11 Judgment of sinners had already begun, for the ruler of this world, Satan, had already been judged (see 12:31). The world thought it was judging Jesus, but the opposite occurred.

16:13 The Spirit of truth (see notes on 14:16-17), who conveys truth from God, guides the judgment of the world. • The Spirit says only what he has heard from the Father. The Father, Son, and Spirit work in perfect unity (16:15). The disciples could expect the Spirit to reveal things they had not heard before about the present and the future (see 14:26).

16:16-33 a little while: This refrain reassured the disciples that their separation from Jesus would be short lived.

16:16 Jesus reassured the disciples that his departure (on the cross) would be short and his return (in the resurrection) would be soon. When they saw him again, the disciples would experience overwhelming joy and intimacy with him in the Spirit.

16:20 At the crucifixion, the world thought it had won a victory over the light. The shock of the cross would cause the disciples to weep and mourn, but their sorrow would change to joy when Jesus defeated the grave (20:20).

16:21 the pains of labor: This metaphor symbolizes anguish that is followed by God's blessing and wonder (cp. Isa 21:2-3; 26:16-21; 66:7-10; Jer 13:21).

16:23-24 Ask . . . and you will receive: Two notable effects of the resurrection are the joy of understanding and the joy of successful prayer. The disciples would no longer experience the confusion described in 16:16-18.

16:25 Jesus spoke using figures of speech, which could only be interpreted with God's help (1 Cor 1:18-25). With the coming of the Spirit, the disciples would understand.

16:26-27 After Jesus' resurrection, the Spirit brought intimacy, allowing individual disciples to ask the Father to meet their needs. (14:23).

16:27 from God: Some manuscripts read from the Father.

16:33 But take heart, because I have overcome the world: "Such a saying as this is worthy to be carried from Rome to Jerusalem on one's knees" (Martin Luther). Jesus' final words did not chastise, but brought comfort. Jesus promised peace (14:27) and joy (16:20, 22).

will have many trials and sorrows. But take heart, because I have overcome the world.”

Jesus' Final Prayer

17 After saying all these things, Jesus looked up to heaven and said, “Father, the hour has come. Glorify your Son so he can give glory back to you. ²For you have given him authority over everyone. He gives eternal life to each one you have given him. ³And this is the way to have eternal life—to know you, the only true God, and Jesus Christ, the one you sent to earth. ⁴I brought glory to you here on earth by completing the work you gave me to do. ⁵Now, Father, bring me into the glory we shared before the world began.

⁶“I have revealed you to the ones you gave me from this world. They were always yours. You gave them to me, and they have kept your word. ⁷Now they know that everything I have is a gift from you, ⁸for I have passed on to them the message you gave me. They accepted it and know that I came from you, and they believe you sent me.

⁹“My prayer is not for the world, but for those you have given me, because they belong to you. ¹⁰All who are mine belong to you, and you have given them to me, so they bring me glory. ¹¹Now I am departing from the world; they are staying in this world, but I am coming to you. Holy Father, you have given me your name; now protect them by the power of your name so that they will be united just as we are. ¹²During my time here, I protected them by the power of the name you gave me. I guarded them so that not one was lost, except the one headed for destruction, as the Scriptures foretold.

¹³“Now I am coming to you. I told them many things while I was with them in this world so they would be filled with my joy. ¹⁴I have given them your word. And the world hates them because they do not belong to the world, just as I do not belong to the world. ¹⁵I’m not asking you to take them out of the world, but to keep them safe from the evil one. ¹⁶They do not belong to this world any more than I do. ¹⁷Make them holy by your truth; teach them your word, which is truth. ¹⁸Just as you sent me into the world, I am sending them into the world. ¹⁹And I give myself as a holy sacrifice for them so they can be made holy by your truth.

Now he added that his disciples can discover peace even when surrounded by threats; they can be tranquil despite those who are hostile to their faith.

17:1-26 This chapter records Jesus' longest prayer, which is often called his “high priestly prayer.” It provides an intimate glimpse into his heart. In this prayer, which closes the farewell that began at 13:31, Jesus expressed his own concerns to his Father (17:1-8) and then turned to concerns for the church and its future (17:9-26).

17:1 Jesus looked up to heaven, assuming the traditional Jewish posture for prayer (11:41; Ps 123:1). He probably also raised his hands (Exod 9:33; 17:11; Ps 28:2). Prayers like this were said aloud so that followers could hear (11:41-42; 12:27-30; also Matt 11:25-30; Luke 10:21-22). • Father was Jesus' usual way to address God, which he did six times in this prayer (see also 11:41; 12:27). This title—unusual in Judaism—reflected Jesus' intimacy with God. • This hour included Jesus' betrayal, arrest, torture, death, and resurrection (see note on 12:23). • Glorify your Son: In the Gospel of John, the cross is a place of honor. Jesus' oneness with the Father means that if the Son is glorified, the Father will also be glorified.

17:2 All authority has been placed in Jesus' hands (3:35); he can give eternal life as only God can (3:15; 5:21, 25-26).

17:3 to know you: The Hebrew idea of knowing encompassed experience and intimacy, which for Christians means love for God and obedience to him. • sent to earth: Jesus originated in heaven and was returning there (17:5), so he exercises divine authority as the agent of God.

17:4 Jesus' miracles displayed God's glory for the world to see (1:14). This task was finished; Jesus' life and obedience had glorified God.

17:5 Jesus prayed to return to the position he had with God before the world began (1:1).

17:6 This verse summarizes Christ's mission. He revealed the true person of God to the world, gathered up God's people into his flock, and instructed them in obedience. The result of this work is the church. • have revealed you: Literally have revealed your name; also in 17:26.

17:8 Jesus revealed himself widely to the world. Those who embraced his message became children of God (1:12; 11:52), and he revealed God's word to them.

17:9-19 Jesus prayed for his disciples, who must carry on after his departure.

17:10 Just as the Son brings glory to the Father (17:1, 4-5), the disciples bring the Son glory (17:22). The love and obedience that brought glory to God in Jesus' life become features of his disciples' lives.

17:11 you have given me your name: Some manuscripts read you have given me these [i.e., these disciples]. • Jesus' first concern for his disciples was that they . . . be united with an intimacy similar to the oneness shared by Jesus and the Father.

17:12-13 I protected them by the power of the name you gave me: Some manuscripts read I protected those you gave me, by the power of your name. • Until now, Jesus had guarded his followers. Now he was concerned for their strength and survival in his absence, because the world would be hostile toward them (15:18-27) and their mission of challenging the world by heralding the truth (16:8-11). After Jesus' departure, the Spirit would protect them (15:26) and bring them joy.

17:14 God's word, which Jesus had given his disciples, also provides a defense against the world. The Spirit would preserve and recall God's word in the church (14:26), equipping the church for its encounter with the world.

17:16-18 Being holy refers to purity gained by separation from the world, and living a life so aligned with God that it reflects his passions. Disciples are set apart by God, equipped by the Spirit, and readied by God's word to enter the world without being victimized by its darkness.

17:19 I give myself as a holy sacrifice (literally I sanctify myself): Priests and

The World (17:5-26)

One of the most frequently used words in John is "world" (Greek kosmos). In Greek-speaking Jewish thought, kosmos refers to the heavens and the earth as created by God (Gen 1; see also John 1:3, 10; 17:5, 24). John extends the concept to include the world of humanity (e.g., 1:10; 3:16).

Although it was created as good, the human world is hostile to God (1:10-11; 3:19-20; 12:37-41). It is controlled by a darkness that cannot comprehend the light and resists the light (3:19). The world is dead and needs life (6:33, 51), yet it hates the one who can save it (7:7). The world is under the dominion of Satan (12:31), who will one day be judged.

God loves the world of humanity, despite its hostility and rebellion against him. Jesus died to take away the sin of the world (1:29; 3:16-17). God's love for the world he created stands alongside his necessary judgment of the world (3:18-21, 36; 5:27-30; 12:47-48). Christ's followers experience this same tension in their mission. We are called into the world to bring the message of God's love, but we will experience conflict, because the world will be hostile to our message (see 14:27-31; 15:18-27; 17:13-26).

prophets were similarly set apart for service to God (Lev 8:30; Jer 1:5). Jesus recommitted himself to his mission, acknowledging that he was set apart for the purpose of the cross. The disciples would benefit because his death would enable them to experience new holiness in a deep attachment to God.

17:20 Jesus was praying for other sheep who were not yet in his flock (10:16). These are the believers through the centuries who have come to faith through the witness of Jesus' disciples.

17:21 For believers, becoming one with one another is an outgrowth of the union they enjoy with Jesus himself, a union modeled on the oneness of the Father and the Son. • may they be in us: Through the power of the Spirit, believers would experience a profound spiritual intimacy with the Father and the Son and be transformed (14:20, 23; 1 Jn 4:13). • Disciples of Jesus represent him, so their conduct and relationships with each other reflect the credibility of Christ in the world. When there is disunity, infighting, and intolerance, their testimony to the world is unconvincing. When people observe the community of believers, they know that it represents Jesus; a unified, loving community convinces the world to believe (13:35; 1 Jn 3:11).

17:22 The community of believers should display the same glory that Jesus displayed from the Father.

17:23 that the world will know: If the church lives in the Spirit, reflects God's glory and love, and shows unity sustained by a shared knowledge of God, then its testimony will astonish the world.

17:24 I want these . . . to be with me: Some day, Jesus' followers will see Jesus' true glory, the true love that has existed in heaven since the beginning of time (17:5). Jesus was returning to heaven, and he yearned to see his disciples there so that they might glimpse what no words on earth can describe.

17:26 All who accept the Son and embrace the Father will experience the kind of love known only between the Father and the Son. • I will be in them: Jesus wants to love his followers and indwell them with glory and joy unmatched by anything in the world.

18:1-40 After completing his farewell in the upper room (13:31–17:26), Jesus left the city and entered a garden just east of Jerusalem to pray. Here he was arrested, taken under guard into the city, and interrogated by the Jewish leaders. The climactic "time" that Jesus referred to repeatedly throughout the Gospel (see 2:4; note on 12:23) was now at hand.

18:1-2 Jesus crossed the Kidron Valley, a dry river valley (a wadi) outside Jerusalem's walls on the city's east edge. • The Garden of Gethsemane (Mark 14:32) was a grove of olive trees that grew along the west shoulder of the Mount of Olives (gath shemany means "olive press" in Aramaic). Jesus liked this place and frequently prayed there (see 8:1; Luke 21:37; 22:39).

18:3 John's full description of the arresting party expands the picture from the other Gospels. The Temple authorities sent Roman soldiers and Temple guards; while the Temple guards made Pharisees had given Judas a contingent of Roman soldiers and Temple guards to accompany him. Now with blazing torches, lanterns, and weapons, they arrived at the olive grove.

⁴Jesus fully realized all that was going to happen to him, so he stepped forward to meet them. "Who are you looking for?" he asked.

⁵"Jesus the Nazarene," they replied.

"I AM he," Jesus said. (Judas, who betrayed him, was standing with them.) ⁶As Jesus said "I AM he," they all drew back and fell to the ground! ⁷Once more he asked them, "Who are you looking for?"

And again they replied, "Jesus the Nazarene."

⁸"I told you that I AM he," Jesus said. "And since I am the one you want, let these others go." ⁹He did this to fulfill his own statement: "I did not lose a single one of those you have given me."

¹⁰Then Simon Peter drew a sword and slashed off the right ear of Malchus, the high priest's slave. ¹¹But Jesus said to Peter, "Put your sword back into its sheath. Shall I not drink from the cup of suffering the Father has given me?"

¹²So the soldiers, their commanding officer, and the Temple guards arrested Jesus and tied him up.

Annas and Caiaphas were both spoken of as high priests during the time of Jesus; they were instrumental in getting Jesus condemned to death.

Annas was the Jewish high priest about AD 6–15. Even after he was officially deposed by the Roman procurator of Judea, he retained considerable power and influence in the Jewish high council and was still spoken of as "high priest" fifteen to twenty years later (Luke 3:2; Acts 4:6)—perhaps because of the Jewish view that high priests retain their position for life. Five of his sons and his son-in-law Caiaphas became high priests after him. According to the Gospel of John, when Jesus was arrested, he was brought to Annas for his initial interrogation before he was turned over to Caiaphas for the official trial (18:13-24).

Caiaphas was the official Jewish high priest about AD 18–36. He worked closely with his powerful father-in-law, Annas. Caiaphas was the one who argued in the high council that it would be better for Jesus to be sacrificed than for the entire nation to be destroyed (11:49-50; cp. Matt 26:3-4). These prophetic words were given him by God because of his role as high priest (11:51-52). It was Caiaphas who tore his robes at Jesus' claim to be the Son of God (Matt 26:57, 65) and urged the high council to condemn him for blasphemy.

Not long after the execution of Jesus, the Jewish authorities became increasingly disturbed over the rapidly growing numbers of believers in Christ. Annas and Caiaphas also actively involved themselves in the interrogation of Peter and John over their healing a crippled beggar and their preaching about the resurrection of the dead (Acts 4:5-7).

the arrest, the Roman detachment stood by to prevent a riot. The Roman detachment was large enough to warrant a commander (18:12) and came armed, anticipating a struggle (18:10). Numerous men had claimed to be the Messiah, and often they had made politically explosive attempts to expel the Romans.

18:5 Jesus the Nazarene: Or Jesus of Nazareth; also in 18:7. • I AM he (or "The 'I AM' is here"; or "I am the LORD"; literally I am; also in 18:6, 8): Jesus identified himself by the divine name God had revealed to Moses on Mount Sinai (Exod 3:14; see also 4:26; 8:24, 58).

18:6 The soldiers and guards all drew back before the Lord (cp. Isa 6:5; Ezek 1:28; Dan 10:9; Acts 9:4; Rev 1:17). Even Roman soldiers, who were trained not to fall, fell to the ground before Christ. Although they submitted to God, they didn't really understand what had occurred and proceeded with the arrest.

18:8 I AM: Jesus used God's divine name for the second time (see note on 18:5).

18:9 his own statement: See 6:39; 17:12. • I did not lose a single one: Jesus continued to be a good shepherd, offering his life for the sheep and protecting them from the wolves (10:11-15). From the beginning, however, Judas Iscariot had not been a true disciple of Jesus (17:12).

18:10-11 Simon Peter drew a short sword or a long knife that was generally worn with everyday garments. • The Hebrew name Malchus means "king," a detail that John might have included for its wordplay on Jesus' true identity (see 18:36-37; 19:19). • Put your sword back: Jesus' mission was not to fight for his life, but to die for ours.

18:12-14 Jesus was bound by the soldiers and returned to Jerusalem. • First they took him to Annas, who had been the high priest and remained highly influential (five of his sons also became high priests). Caiaphas, his son-in-law, was the official high priest at that time (literally that year; see 18:24).

18:14 one man should die for the people: Caiaphas had previously made this political analysis (11:49-50). John points out the irony of this statement. Jesus' death did not bring Israel political salvation—it brought spiritual salvation to all who believe.

told the other Jewish leaders, "It's better that one man should die for the people."

¹⁵Simon Peter followed Jesus, as did another of the disciples. That other disciple was acquainted with the high priest, so he was allowed to enter the high priest's courtyard with Jesus. ¹⁶Peter had to stay outside the gate. Then the disciple who knew the high priest spoke to the woman watching at the gate, and she let Peter in. ¹⁷The woman asked Peter, "You're not one of that man's disciples, are you?"

"No," he said, "I am not."

¹⁸Because it was cold, the household servants and the guards had made a charcoal fire. They stood around it, warming themselves, and Peter stood with them, warming himself.

The High Priest Questions Jesus

John 18:19-24; cp. Matt 26:57-68 // Mark 14:53-65 // Luke 22:63-71

¹⁹Inside, the high priest began asking Jesus about his followers and what he had been teaching them. ²⁰Jesus replied, "Everyone knows what I teach. I have preached regularly in the synagogues and the Temple, where the people gather. I have not spoken in secret. ²¹Why are you asking me this question? Ask those who heard me. They know what I said."

²²Then one of the Temple guards standing nearby slapped Jesus across the face. "Is that the way to answer the high priest?" he demanded.

²³Jesus replied, "If I said anything wrong, you must prove it. But if I'm speaking the truth, why are you beating me?"

²⁴Then Annas bound Jesus and sent him to Caiaphas, the high priest.

Peter's Second and Third Denials

John 18:25-27 // Matt 26:71-75 // Mark 14:69-72 // Luke 22:58-65

²⁵Meanwhile, as Simon Peter was standing by the fire warming himself, they asked him again, "You're not one of his disciples, are you?"

He denied it, saying, "No, I am not."

²⁶But one of the household slaves of the high priest, a relative of the man whose ear Peter had cut off, asked, "Didn't I see you out there in the olive grove with Jesus?"

²⁷Again Peter denied it. And immediately a rooster crowed.

Jesus' Trial before Pilate

John 18:28-38a // Matt 27:1-2, 11-14 // Mark 15:1-5 // Luke 23:1-5

²⁸Jesus' trial before Caiaphas ended in the early hours of the morning. Then he was taken to the headquarters of the Roman 18:15 That other disciple is unnamed, but was probably the "disciple Jesus loved" (13:23)—John, the author of this Gospel.

18:16-17 During Jesus' interrogation by Annas (18:12-14, 19-24), the woman watching at the gate asked Peter if he was one of that man's disciples. In contrast to Jesus, who stood up to his questioners and denied nothing, Peter quickly denied his link to Jesus three times (18:17, 25, 27).

Jesus' Trial and Crucifixion (John 18:1-19:27; see also Matt 26:47-27:26; Mark 14:43-15:15; Luke 22:47-23:25). After Jesus was arrested in GETHSEMANE, he was taken to the HOUSE OF CAIAPHAS the high priest. There the Jewish leaders decided to send him to Pilate (at the PRAETORIUM) to sentence him to death (18:28). Pilate sent Jesus to Herod (at the PALACE OF ANTIPAS?), who questioned Jesus and sent him back (Luke 23:6-12). Then Pilate sentenced Jesus to be crucified (19:16). • Regarding the location of GOLGOTHA, see note on 19:17; see also illustration of Jerusalem in Jesus' time, p. 1753.

18:19 The high priest began asking Jesus questions, but his inquiry was contrary to Jewish legal procedure. In Jewish court, the priest did not ask questions directly of the defendant, but accumulated evidence from witnesses to establish guilt (see Num 35:30; Deut 17:6; 19:15; cp. Matt 18:16). If Jesus said anything incriminating, Annas would later use it to testify against him at Jesus' trial. He was attempting to follow Roman practice by making Jesus incriminate himself, rather than gathering evidence through witnesses as Jewish law demanded.

18:20-21 Jesus' sharp answer, reminding Annas that everything was in the public record, unmasked the priest's attempt to follow Roman practice.

18:20 people: Literally Jewish people; also in 18:38.

18:22-23 When Jesus reminded Annas of correct judicial procedure, one of the Temple guards viewed it as insolence and slapped Jesus. However, Jesus knew the law and represented it truthfully. No witnesses were accusing him, and no evidence was being presented.

18:24 Annas was at an impasse—his probing had been unsuccessful. So he sent Jesus to Caiaphas to be prosecuted before the Sanhedrin, Jerusalem's judicial high council (see Mark 14:53-15:1).

18:25-27 He denied it: Peter's three denials were later echoed when Jesus invited him three times to reaffirm his love (21:15-17).

18:28 The trial before Caiaphas ended in the early hours of the morning. Since they did not have the power of capital punishment (18:31), the Sanhedrin needed to enlist Pilate, the Roman governor, to carry out an execution. • the headquarters of the Roman governor: Greek the Praetorium; also in 18:33. • it would defile them: They did not want to become ritually unclean by contact with Gentiles in Pilate's headquarters.

governor. His accusers didn't go inside because it would defile them, and they wouldn't be allowed to celebrate the Passover. ²⁹So Pilate, the governor, went out to them and asked, "What is your charge against this man?"

³⁰"We wouldn't have handed him over to you if he weren't a criminal!" they retorted.

³¹"Then take him away and judge him by your own law," Pilate told them.

"Only the Romans are permitted to execute someone," the Jewish leaders replied.

³²(This fulfilled Jesus' prediction about the way he would die.)

³³Then Pilate went back into his headquarters and called for Jesus to be brought to him. "Are you the king of the Jews?" he asked him.

³⁴Jesus replied, "Is this your own question, or did others tell you about me?"

³⁵"Am I a Jew?" Pilate retorted. "Your own people and their leading priests brought you to me for trial. Why? What have you done?"

³⁶Jesus answered, "My Kingdom is not an earthly kingdom. If it were, my followers would fight to keep me from being handed over to the Jewish leaders. But my Kingdom is not of this world."

³⁷Pilate said, "So you are a king?"

Jesus responded, "You say I am a king. Actually, I was born and came into the world to testify to the truth. All who love the truth recognize that what I say is true."

³⁸"What is truth?" Pilate asked.

Jesus Is Sentenced to Death

Then he went out again to the people and told them, "He is not guilty of any crime. ³⁹But you have a custom of asking me to release one prisoner each year at Passover. Would you like me to release this 'King of the Jews'?"

⁴⁰But they shouted back, "No! Not this man. We want Barabbas!" (Barabbas was a revolutionary.)

19 Then Pilate had Jesus flogged with a lead-tipped whip. ²The soldiers wove a crown of thorns and put it on his head, and they put a purple robe on him. ³"Hail! King of the Jews!" they mocked, as they slapped him across the face.

⁴Pilate went outside again and said to the people, "I am going to bring him out to you now, but understand clearly that I find him not guilty." ⁵Then Jesus came out wearing the crown of thorns and the purple robe. And Pilate said, "Look, here is the man!"

So Pilate, probably fearing a riot, went outside to meet them. • The Passover meal itself had occurred the night before (see 13:1; Mark 14:14-16). The following day, another meal began the weeklong Festival of Unleavened Bread (Lev 23:5-6).

18:29 Pilate, the fifth Roman governor of Judea, ruled the country from AD 26 to 36. He usually lived on the coast in Caesarea, but kept troops stationed in a fortress in Jerusalem where he appeared personally for major festivals. He was a brutal ruler whose atrocities against the Jews were legendary (e.g., Luke 13:1; Josephus, War 2.9.2-4).

18:31-32 Pilate found the charges unsatisfying and told the Sanhedrin, judge him by your own law. Pilate saw this as a Jewish squabble, which he refused to investigate. The Jewish leaders, however, insisted that an execution was necessary. • fulfilled Jesus' prediction about the way he would die (see 12:32-33): The Jews would have employed stoning; the Romans used crucifixion. If Pilate delivered Jesus' sentence, he would be crucified.

18:33 Pilate was personally responsible for capital crimes in which the interests and security of the Roman empire were at stake, so he began his formal legal inquiry. • Are you the king of the Jews? To get the governor's attention, Caiaphas had charged that Jesus had urged people not to pay their taxes to the Roman government and had claimed to be a king (Luke 23:2). To Pilate, Jesus might have been just another Jewish terrorist-revolutionary (see Luke 23:18-19; Acts 5:36-37) with a head full of messianic notions and a band of well-armed followers.

18:34-35 Jesus' reply forced the governor to show the origin of his question. The Temple leadership was behind these charges. Pilate only wanted to know if Jesus was a rebel who might threaten Roman interests.

18:36-37 Jesus was willing to accept the title of king, but he made it clear that he did not govern an earthly kingdom that might rival Rome. Jesus' kingship is not of this world. Rather than being a political ruler, he rules through the devotion and obedience of his followers.

18:38-39 What is truth? Truth was not a foreign idea to Pilate, but he did not wait for an answer to his question because he did not believe there was one.

• Pilate returned to the council members waiting outside and delivered his verdict: not guilty. Although he referred to Jesus as "King of the Jews" (see also 19:19), the title meant nothing more to Pilate than a mocking expression of contempt. Pilate's offer of amnesty revealed his desire to let Jesus go.

18:40 Jesus was no threat to Rome, but Barabbas was a revolutionary, a violent man who took part in political uprisings (see Luke 23:19), with a proven capacity to challenge the Roman military occupation of Israel.

19:1-16 Jesus was also beaten after his sentencing (Mark 15:15), but here John records an earlier beating, which was likely Pilate's attempt to show that Jesus had been punished and could be released (19:4). When this failed, Pilate passed his sentence and handed Jesus over to the Jewish leaders for crucifixion (19:16).

19:2 The crown of thorns might have come from a date palm (cp. 12:13-14), whose thorns can exceed twelve inches. There are Greek coin images showing such crowns, with the stems woven and the thorns radiating upward above the crown. • The purple robe was probably a soldier's robe—dark red to complete the picture of mock royalty.

19:4-6 Pilate's intention was to bring Jesus out to display the marks of his punishment to sway the crowd to let him go. After being flogged with a lead-tipped whip, Jesus was bleeding profusely. • Pilate announced his verdict

6When they saw him, the leading priests and Temple guards began shouting, "Crucify him! Crucify him!"

"Take him yourselves and crucify him," Pilate said. "I find him not guilty."

7The Jewish leaders replied, "By our law he ought to die because he called himself the Son of God."

8When Pilate heard this, he was more frightened than ever. 9He took Jesus back into the headquarters again and asked him, "Where are you from?" But Jesus gave no answer. 10"Why don't you talk to me?" Pilate demanded. "Don't you realize that I have the power to release you or crucify you?"

11Then Jesus said, "You would have no power over me at all unless it were given to you from above. So the one who handed me over to you has the greater sin."

12Then Pilate tried to release him, but the Jewish leaders shouted, "If you release this man, you are no 'friend of Caesar.' Anyone who declares himself a king is a rebel against Caesar."

13When they said this, Pilate brought Jesus out to them again. Then Pilate sat down on the judgment seat on the platform that is called the Stone Pavement (in Hebrew, Gabbatha). 14It was now about noon on the day of preparation for the Passover. And Pilate said to the people, "Look, here is your king!"

15"Away with him," they yelled. "Away with him! Crucify him!"

"What? Crucify your king?" Pilate asked.

"We have no king but Caesar," the leading priests shouted back.

16Then Pilate turned Jesus over to them to be crucified. So they took Jesus away.

The Crucifixion

John 19:17-24 // Matt 27:32-38 // Mark 15:21-27 // Luke 23:26-34

17Carrying the cross by himself, he went to the place called Place of the Skull (in of not guilty a second time, but he was met with a strident call for Jesus' death (19:6).

19:6 Pilate knew that a riot could happen when a man popular with the masses was executed, so he shifted responsibility to crucify Jesus to the Temple leaders.

19:7 During the trial before Caiaphas, the charge of blasphemy—calling himself the Son of God—was determined to be Jesus' true crime (see Mark 14:61-65). • The leaders had already tried pitting Roman imperial interests against Jesus (18:33), and would do so again (19:12). Now they challenged the governor on another level: Pilate must keep the peace by upholding local law, even when it was irrelevant to Rome. Claiming to be God's son was not illegal, because Israel's kings did this (Ps 2:7; 89:22-27). However, Jesus claimed to have the divine authority of God himself (see 5:18), which they saw as blasphemy.

19:8-9 Pilate . . . was more frightened than ever: He was superstitious, and the idea of gods appearing in the world was not uncommon (Acts 14:11). He sensed that more than a political fight was going on, so he asked Jesus, Where are you from? He did not mean Jesus' birthplace, but whether Jesus was a divine man who had descended from heaven. • the headquarters: Greek the Praetorium. • Why Jesus gave no answer is unclear. Perhaps it was because Pilate would not have been able to understand the answer—that true power comes only from God, and God had empowered Jesus (cp. 19:11).

19:10-11 You would have no power over me: Although Pilate had the power to . . . crucify Jesus, it was only because God had given him this temporary power so Jesus could advance toward the cross (see 10:18).

19:12 Each time he had a conversation with Jesus, Pilate tried to release him: He kept trying, but his repeated efforts were fruitless. • "Friend of Caesar" is a technical term that refers to an ally of the emperor. It was an official title given to individuals such as senators who showed exceptional loyalty and service to the emperor. The Jewish leaders were implying that they would ruin Pilate's career by reporting that he was not working in Rome's interests. They probably knew that Pilate was also having a personal crisis. His patron in Rome, Sejanus (the chief administrator of the Empire under Tiberius Caesar), had fallen from favor and was executed in AD 31. Pilate had every reason to be afraid.

19:13 Pilate took the governor's judgment seat (Greek bēma, cp. Acts 25:6, "seat in court") to render his verdict.

• The Stone Pavement was the platform holding the judgment seat; from there Pilate now spoke with the authority of his office.

19:14 the day of preparation for the Passover (or the day of preparation during the Passover): Here, Passover does not refer to the Jewish Passover meal, which had taken place the night before, but to the whole Festival of Unleavened Bread. It was now Friday, the day of preparation for the Passover Sabbath, which would begin at sundown (cp. Mark 15:42; Luke 23:54).

• people: Literally Jewish people; also in 19:20.

19:15 The final words of the priests, "We have no king but Caesar," stood in direct contradiction to the OT understanding that God was Israel's king (cp. Judg 8:23; 1 Sam 8:7; 10:19). Jerusalem and its leaders were in the process of killing their true king (18:37) while paying homage to Caesar, the pagan king of Rome.

19:16 Pilate turned Jesus over to the Roman garrison, who prepared Jesus for crucifixion by a second flogging (Mark 15:15), which brought him near death. Bleeding profusely, his clothes soaked in blood, his thorn-laced crown now digging deeply into his head, and nearly in shock, Jesus was marched to a site outside the city.

19:17 The vertical beam (Latin staculum) of the cross was generally kept at the crucifixion site, and the victim was forced to carry only the heavy crossbeam (Latin patibulum). • Crucifixions were public executions that took place near major roadways. They were designed to shock and warn the people. • Place of the Skull (Hebrew and Aramaic Golgotha; Latin calvariae, "Calvary"): See map on p. 1809. Most archaeologists agree that Jesus' crucifixion was at the site of the present-day Church of the Holy Sepulchre, located in the Christian Quarter of the old walled city of Jerusalem (see "First-Century Jerusalem," p. 1753). An alternate site, Gordon's Calvary (north of the Damascus Gate), is a model of what the scene possibly looked like, but it holds only a tomb from the 500s BC and therefore cannot be the authentic site of Jesus' crucifixion and burial.

Hebrew, Golgotha).¹⁸ There they nailed him to the cross. Two others were crucified with him, one on either side, with Jesus between them.¹⁹ And Pilate posted a sign on the cross that read, "Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews."²⁰ The place where Jesus was crucified was near the city, and the sign was written in Hebrew, Latin, and Greek, so that many people could read it.

²¹ Then the leading priests objected and said to Pilate, "Change it from 'The King of the Jews' to 'He said, I am King of the Jews!'"

²² Pilate replied, "No, what I have written, I have written."

²³ When the soldiers had crucified Jesus, they divided his clothes among the four of them. They also took his robe, but it was seamless, woven in one piece from top to bottom.²⁴ So they said, "Rather than tearing it apart, let's throw dice for it." This fulfilled the Scripture that says, "They divided my garments among themselves and threw dice for my clothing." So that is what they did.

²⁵ Standing near the cross were Jesus' mother, and his mother's sister, Mary (the wife of Clopas), and Mary Magdalene.

²⁶ When Jesus saw his mother standing there beside the disciple he loved, he said to her, "Dear woman, here is your son."²⁷ And he said to this disciple, "Here is your mother." And from then on this disciple took her into his home.

At the beginning of John's Gospel, John the Baptist introduced Jesus by calling him the "Lamb of God" (1:29, 36). This odd phrase might refer to the sacrificial lamb that was killed daily in the Temple (Exod 29:38-46) or to the sacrificial lamb of Isa 53:7 (cp. Acts 8:32-35; Rev 5:5-14). Both rituals of sacrifice spoke of rescue and forgiveness from sin.

However, this was not all that John had in mind. John presented Jesus as the Passover lamb whose death marks the central event of the Passover season (see Exod 12:46; Luke 22:7; 1 Cor 5:7). In the first century, Jews made a pilgrimage to Jerusalem each spring to celebrate the Passover and to reread the story of the Exodus (see Exod 12-15). When Israel was being rescued from Egypt, the blood of a lamb was sprinkled on the doorposts of each Jewish home in Egypt and saved those inside from death (Exod 12). Jews who came to Jerusalem to celebrate the Passover needed to supply a perfect young lamb for sacrifice. The animal could not be diseased or have broken bones.

Jesus used his final Passover meal to show that his sacrificial death would give new meaning to the festival (Mark 14:17-31). In John, the cross became an altar where Christ, the Passover lamb, was slain. Jesus' legs were not broken (19:33), fulfilling a Passover rule (19:36; Exod 12:46). Blood ran freely from his wound (19:34), showing that his life was being exchanged for others. Just as a lamb died to save the lives of Jewish families at the Passover in Egypt, so, too, this one death of the Son of God on the cross serves to bring salvation to the world.

19:18 None of the Gospel writers dwell on the details of being nailed . . . to the cross because they were well known and horrific. The soldiers used the cross as a means of torture; they wanted victims to survive for a while, in some cases for days. Because the Sabbath would begin at dusk (19:31), they expedited Jesus' crucifixion. Jesus had been thoroughly beaten with stone- or metal-tipped whips, so his back was thoroughly lacerated, and he was bleeding profusely.

19:19-22 Pilate posted a sign on the cross: It was customary for the Roman soldiers to provide a written public notice of the criminal's name and crimes. Perhaps as a final act of revenge against the Jewish high council, Pilate ordered that the sign should identify Jesus of Nazareth (or Jesus the Nazarene) as the King of the Jews. Jesus' kingship was posted in three languages for the whole world to understand.

19:23-24 As was their common practice, the Roman soldiers divided his clothes. The soldiers gambled for his valuable robe, which was seamless, rather than dividing it up. • throw dice: Literally cast lots. • "They divided my garments among themselves and threw dice for my clothing": See Ps 22:18.

19:25-26 This is the only reference to Jesus' mother's sister in the NT. She might have been the wife of Zebedee and the mother of James and John (cp. Matt 27:56), which would make Jesus and John cousins. If so, it would help explain why Jesus assigned the disciple he loved (John) to care for Mary (John's aunt). • Mary (the wife of Clopas) is only mentioned here. She might be the same person as Mary the mother of James and Joseph (cp. Matt 27:56). • Jesus had healed Mary Magdalene, a woman from the village of Magdala (Mark 16:9; Luke 8:2). • Dear woman was a formal and polite form of address (see 2:4).

19:27 Here is your mother: Jesus employed a Jewish family law that assigned the care of one person to another. The scene had an additional significance: The people who were present represented the new community of the church that was born at the cross. Jesus wanted them to care for each other in obedience to his command to love one another (13:34; 15:12, 17).

19:28-29 I am thirsty: See Ps 22:15; 69:21. • The hyssop bush had been

The Death of Jesus

John 19:28-30 // Matt 27:45-56 // Mark 15:33-41 // Luke 23:44-49

²⁸Jesus knew that his mission was now finished, and to fulfill Scripture he said, "I am thirsty." ²⁹A jar of sour wine was sitting there, so they soaked a sponge in it, put it on a hyssop branch, and held it up to his lips. ³⁰When Jesus had tasted it, he said, "It is finished!" Then he bowed his head and gave up his spirit.

³¹It was the day of preparation, and the Jewish leaders didn't want the bodies hanging there the next day, which was the Sabbath (and a very special Sabbath, because it was Passover week). So they asked Pilate to hasten their deaths by ordering that their legs be broken. Then their bodies could be taken down. ³²So the soldiers came and broke the legs of the two men crucified with Jesus. ³³But when they came to Jesus, they saw that he was already dead, so they didn't break his legs. ³⁴One of the soldiers, however, pierced his side with a spear, and immediately blood and water flowed out. ³⁵(This report is from an eyewitness giving an accurate account. He speaks the truth so that you also may continue to believe.) ³⁶These things happened in fulfillment of the Scriptures that say, "Not one of his bones will be broken," ³⁷and "They will look on the one they pierced."

The Burial of Jesus

John 19:38-42 // Matt 27:57-61 // Mark 15:42-47 // Luke 23:50-56

³⁸Afterward Joseph of Arimathea, who had been a secret disciple of Jesus (because he feared the Jewish leaders), asked Pilate for permission to take down Jesus' body. When Pilate gave permission, Joseph came and took the body away. ³⁹With him came used in Egypt to brush lamb's blood on the doorposts and lintels during the first Passover (Exod 12:22). Jesus is God's Passover lamb (1:29, 36), and his blood likewise saves.

19:30 Jesus called out in triumph and exhaustion that he had finished the work he set out to do. On the cross he was not a victim, but a servant doing God's bidding.

19:31-33 The Jewish authorities, eager to complete the crucifixion before Sabbath began at dusk, asked Pilate to break the legs of the men. Breaking the legs with a mallet was common: It promoted asphyxiation and hemorrhaging, because the victim could no longer push himself up to breathe.

19:34 To confirm that Jesus was dead, a Roman soldier pierced his side with a spear. • blood and water flowed out: This has several levels of meaning: (1) The spear probably punctured Jesus' pericardium, the sac around the heart, releasing these fluids. (2) John might have been thinking of more Passover symbolism. The Passover lamb's blood had to flow as it died. (3) The living water, flowing from Jesus' side, reminds readers of earlier language that Jesus used to describe himself (see 7:37-39; "Living Water" at 4:10-14, p. 1777).

19:35 John was at the foot of the cross (19:26). He was not simply a collector of traditions about Jesus, but an eyewitness giving an accurate account of the events of Jesus' life (cp. 21:24). This same confidence can be seen in the opening of John's first letter (1 Jn 1:1-4) • may continue to believe: Some manuscripts read may believe.

◀ First-century Judean Tombs (John 19:41) Joseph of Arimathea's tomb, where Jesus was buried (see Matt 27:57-60), was like other first-century Judean tombs. This drawing is based on sixty-one such "rolling-stone" tombs that have been discovered. These tombs, carved in limestone, were affordable only by wealthy families, and they were constructed according to the laws of Judaism (see Mishnah Baba Batra 6:8). After preparation for burial, bodies were placed in the kokh (niche) which was then sealed with a rolling closure stone. Much later the dried bones were stored in ossuaries (stone boxes) within the tomb.

19:36 "Not one of his bones will be broken": Exod 12:46; Num 9:12; Ps 34:20. The Passover lamb could have no broken bones; Jesus was the perfect Passover lamb (see also 1 Cor 5:7).

19:37 "They will look on the one they pierced": Zechariah 12:10 describes how Israel would look on a prophet or the Messiah and lament their own fatal lack of faith.

19:38 According to Luke, Joseph of Arimathea was a courageous man who was waiting for the Kingdom of God (Luke 23:50-51). He was a wealthy (Matt 27:57) and influential leader in Jerusalem and a member of the high council (Mark 15:43) who disagreed with the decision to kill Jesus. He asked Pilate for the favor of burying Jesus in his personal tomb. • Joseph was a secret disciple (cp. 12:42-43), but his bold deed brought him out in public support of Jesus.

Nicodemus, the man who had come to Jesus at night. He brought about seventy-five pounds of perfumed ointment made from myrrh and aloes. ⁴⁰Following Jewish burial custom, they wrapped Jesus' body with the spices in long sheets of linen cloth. ⁴¹The place of crucifixion was near a garden, where there was a new tomb, never used before. ⁴²And so, because it was the day of preparation for the Jewish Passover and since the tomb was close at hand, they laid Jesus there.

Jesus' Resurrection (20:1-31)

The Empty Tomb

John 20:1-10 // Matt 28:1-10 // Mark 16:1-8 // Luke 24:1-12

20 Early on Sunday morning, while it was still dark, Mary Magdalene came to the tomb and found that the stone had been rolled away from the entrance. ²She ran and found Simon Peter and the other disciple, the one whom Jesus loved. She said, "They have taken the Lord's body out of the tomb, and we don't know where they have put him!"

³Peter and the other disciple started out for the tomb. ⁴They were both running, but the other disciple outran Peter and reached the tomb first. ⁵He stooped and looked in and saw the linen wrappings lying there, but he didn't go in. ⁶Then Simon Peter arrived and went inside. He also noticed the linen wrappings lying there, ⁷while the cloth that had covered Jesus' head was folded up and lying apart from the other wrappings. ⁸Then the disciple who had reached the tomb first also went in, and he saw and believed—⁹for until then they still hadn't understood the Scriptures that said Jesus must rise from the dead. ¹⁰Then they went home.

Jesus Appears to Mary Magdalene

John 20:11-18; cp. Matt 28:8-10; Mark 16:9-11

¹¹Mary was standing outside the tomb crying, and as she wept, she stooped and looked in. ¹²She saw two white-robed angels, one sitting at the head and the other at the foot of the place where the body of Jesus had been lying. ¹³"Dear woman, why are you crying?" the angels asked her.

"Because they have taken away my Lord," she replied, "and I don't know where they have put him."

¹⁴She turned to leave and saw someone standing there. It was Jesus, but she didn't recognize him. ¹⁵"Dear woman, why are you crying?" Jesus asked her. "Who are you looking for?"

She thought he was the gardener. "Sir," she said, "if you have taken him away, tell me where you have put him, and I will go and get him."

¹⁶"Mary!" Jesus said.

She turned to him and cried out, "Rabboni!" (which is Hebrew for "Teacher").

• Matt 23:7

19:39 Nicodemus (see 3:1; 7:50), a member of the high council, understood that these bodies had to be buried before the upcoming Sabbath (19:31, 42). His public support, as with Joseph of Arimathea, might indicate that he, too, was becoming a disciple (see note on 7:49-51). • Myrrh was a commonly used aromatic powder. • The aloes were fragrant powdered sandalwood often used as perfume. • seventy-five pounds (Greek 100 litras [32.7 kilograms]): This enormous amount of spices was appropriate for royalty; Jesus, the king, was given a royal burial.

19:41 a new tomb: More than 900 first-century burial tombs have been discovered in Judea, carved into the limestone hills (see illustration, p. 1813).

19:42 because it was the day of preparation for the Jewish Passover: Literally because of the Jewish day of preparation; see note on 19:14. The Sabbath was approaching, so Joseph and Nicodemus (19:38-39) would return to complete the burial process later.

20:1 Early on Sunday morning: Literally On the first day of the week. As a devoted follower of Jesus (see Luke 8:1-3; Matt 27:55-56), Mary Magdalene arrived at the tomb to help complete Jesus' burial (see 19:42). • Many Judean tombs were sealed with a rolling stone (see illustration, p. 1813).

20:2 Mary Magdalene ran and found Simon Peter. Her natural assumption was that someone had robbed the tomb and perhaps stolen the body—which was not an uncommon occurrence.

20:3-10 The other disciple was probably John, "the disciple Jesus loved," the author of this Gospel (see 13:23). He and Peter validated Mary's testimony by examining the tomb for themselves. John arrived first, but Peter entered first.

20:6-7 What Peter and John found in the tomb was remarkable. The linen wrappings (19:40) were on the burial bench (see note on 19:41). Jews also used a facial cloth for burials (cp. 11:44), which was rolled, wrapped under the chin, and tied on the top of the head. The apostles found this face cloth folded up on the bench. John's inclusion of these details counters any suggestion that grave robbers had taken Jesus' body; such costly garments would have been stolen in a robbery.

20:8-9 he saw and believed: Despite not fully understanding, John knew that God had been at work, and he realized that Jesus was alive.

20:11-13 Although two . . . angels appeared inside the tomb, the riddle of Jesus' disappearance remained unsolved (see Luke 24:4). • why are you crying? Sorrow was not the appropriate response in this moment.

20:14-15 Jesus, whom Mary mistook for the gardener, repeated the angel's question and added, Who are you looking for? Jesus' question was to provoke Mary's thinking: At this point Mary was looking for the body of Jesus, but she was about to meet the living Christ. Was she truly ready to meet her Lord?

20:16 When Jesus called Mary by name, she recognized him immediately (see 10:3-4).

20:17 Mary thought that with the resurrection, Jesus would resume normal relations with his disciples. She was trying to cling to the joy she discovered in her resurrected Lord. But his fellowship with her would come in a new form (20:22). Jesus had not yet ascended to complete his return to the Father, but the process

Jesus Appears to His Disciples

John 20:19-23 // Luke 24:35-49

19That Sunday evening the disciples were meeting behind locked doors because they were afraid of the Jewish leaders. Suddenly,

Jesus was standing there among them! “Peace be with you,” he said. 20As he spoke, he showed them the wounds in his hands and his side. They were filled with joy when they saw the Lord! 21Again he said, “Peace be with you. As the Father has sent me, so I am sending you.” 22Then he breathed on them and said, “Receive the Holy Spirit. 23If you forgive anyone’s sins, they are forgiven. If you do not forgive them, they are not forgiven.”

Luke 6:15
Acts 1:13

Thomas, also known as “the twin,” was one of the twelve apostles (Matt 10:3; Mark 3:18; Luke 6:15; Acts 1:13). He is remembered for his unbelieving response to Jesus’ resurrection.

Nothing is known of how Jesus first met and called Thomas to be his disciple. The only personal accounts of Thomas are found in the Gospel of John. Thomas voiced his willingness to follow Jesus, even if it meant death (11:16); he openly told Jesus that he didn’t understand what he was saying (14:5); and he was one of the seven disciples who returned to fishing after the resurrection, when Jesus appeared to them (21:2).

When Jesus first appeared to his disciples after his death, Thomas was not present. When Thomas heard the report from the others, he did not believe it, insisting he would have to see the evidence of the crucifixion in Jesus’ body with his own eyes and feel it with his own hands (20:19-23). A week later, when Jesus once again appeared to the disciples, he especially addressed Thomas, telling him to examine the marks of the nails and the spear in his body and challenging him to believe and not be skeptical. Thomas’s response represents one of the strongest statements of Jesus’ deity in the New Testament, and the culmination of the Gospel of John’s portrayal of Jesus: “My Lord and my God!” (20:28).

Later tradition speaks of Thomas working as a missionary in the East: in Parthia (Eusebius), Persia (Jerome), and India (Acts of Thomas). The Mar Thoma church on the west coast of India traces its roots back to the early missionary work of Thomas. The historical reliability of these accounts is uncertain.

Thomas’s name is unreliably linked to several later apocryphal writings: the Acts of Thomas, the Infancy Gospel of Thomas, the Epistle to the Apostles, the Apocalypse of Thomas, the Book of Thomas the Athlete, and especially the Coptic Gospel of Thomas, a Gnostic collection of Jesus’ sayings.

was underway. Before his final departure, he would give the Holy Spirit (20:22; see 14:15-21, 26; 15:26-27; 16:5-15).

20:18 Mary was the first eyewitness to see the Lord following his resurrection. She not only saw him, she heard him and touched him (see 1 Jn 1:1-4). This great privilege was given to a woman whose broken life had experienced healing (Luke 8:2). In Jewish culture this was astounding; a woman could not even be a witness in court. No Jew in this period would make up such a story.

20:19 That Sunday evening: Literally In the evening of that day, the first day of the week. • meeting behind locked doors: The disciples feared prosecution for following Jesus. • Peace be with you: This was a standard Jewish greeting (see also 3 Jn 1:15), but Jesus was doing more than just greeting his disciples; he was offering the Messiah’s peace (see Isa 9:6; 52:7) and delivering the gift of his Kingdom (see 14:27; 16:33).

20:20 The reality of Jesus’ resurrection was quite clear. Jesus showed them the wounds from the nails and the spear. He did not feign death, but conquered it. He was no phantom, but a real man with a real body. He had been dead, but was now alive. Jesus was fully human both in life (1:14) and in his resurrection.

20:21 I am sending you: God had sent Jesus into the world to establish his Kingdom, and now Jesus was sending his disciples to carry on his mission. Christ’s emissaries carry the truth of Jesus’ words to the world (cp. 17:18).

20:22 Jesus commissioned the disciples and then empowered them with the Holy Spirit. The Spirit had not been given previously because Jesus had not yet been glorified (7:39). The glorified Jesus, resplendent in his resurrected body, poured the Spirit on his followers. This gift fulfilled many promises that the Spirit would be sent (14:16, 26; 15:26; 16:7, 13). It foreshadows the arrival of the Spirit’s empowering presence at Pentecost (Acts 1:4-5; 2:1-47).

20:23 If you forgive anyone’s sins: The ongoing work of Christ’s followers parallels the work of Christ. Christ’s followers do not distribute and withdraw God’s forgiveness on a whim, but they follow Jesus’ prompting through the Spirit (15:5), just as Jesus obeyed his Father (14:31).

20:24-25 Thomas (nicknamed the Twin): Literally Thomas, who was called Didymus (see also 11:16; 14:5). Thomas was absent when Jesus revealed himself. He remained skeptical despite the testimony of his friends, who had seen the Lord. Thomas demanded a concrete experience identical to theirs.

when Jesus came. ²⁵They told him, "We have seen the Lord!"

But he replied, "I won't believe it unless I see the nail wounds in his hands, put my fingers into them, and place my hand into the wound in his side."

²⁶Eight days later the disciples were together again, and this time Thomas was with them. The doors were locked; but suddenly, as before, Jesus was standing among them. "Peace be with you," he said. ²⁷Then he said to Thomas, "Put your finger here, and look at my hands. Put your hand into the wound in my side. Don't be faithless any longer. Believe!"

²⁸"My Lord and my God!" Thomas exclaimed.

²⁹Then Jesus told him, "You believe because you have seen me. ^bBlessed are those who believe without seeing me."

Purpose of the Book

³⁰The disciples saw Jesus do many other miraculous signs in addition to the ones recorded in this ^bbook. ³¹But these are written so that you may continue to believe that Jesus is the Messiah, the Son of God, and that by believing in him you will have life by the power of his name.

4. EPILOGUE: THE WORD COMMISSIONS HIS FOLLOWERS (21:1-25)

The Miraculous Catch of Fish

21 Later, Jesus appeared again to the disciples beside the Sea of Galilee.

This is how it happened. ²Several of the disciples were there—Simon Peter, Thomas (nicknamed the Twin), Nathanael from Cana in Galilee, the sons of Zebedee, and two other disciples.

³Simon Peter said, "I'm going fishing."

"We'll come, too," they all said. So they went out in the boat, but they caught nothing all night.

⁴At dawn Jesus was standing on the beach, but the disciples couldn't see who he was. ⁵He called out, "Fellows, have you caught any fish?"

"No," they replied.

⁶Then he said, "Throw out your net on the right-hand side of the boat, and you'll get some!" So they did, and they couldn't haul in the net because there were so many fish in it.

⁷Then the disciple Jesus loved said to Peter, "It's the Lord!" When Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he put on his tunic (for he had stripped for work), jumped into the water, and headed to shore. ⁸The others stayed with the boat and pulled the loaded net to the shore, for they were only about a hundred yards from shore. ⁹When they got there, they found breakfast waiting for them—fish cooking over a charcoal fire, and some bread.

20:26-27 Eight days later was Sunday, one week after Jesus' resurrection (it was customary to include the current day when counting forward). Jesus' appearance on the following Sunday helps explain the disciples' meeting on "the Lord's Day" (see Rev 1:10). • Peace be with you: This scene was exactly like Jesus' first appearance (20:19-20). Jesus had already heard Thomas's complaint and now answered directly. • Believe! Jesus challenged Thomas to believe in the resurrection like the others.

20:28 "My Lord and my God!" This was not an astonished exclamation but a proclamation of heartfelt belief. It concludes John's study of Jesus' deity that has framed the whole book (see 1:1-18).

20:29 Jesus points to the generations of Christians who, through the testimony of others, would believe without seeing.

20:30-31 Many scholars view these words as the conclusion of John's Gospel, viewing ch 21 as an appendix. John's account is only a selection from Jesus' many . . . miraculous signs.

20:31 that you may continue to believe: Some manuscripts use the present tense, indicating that John wrote to encourage believers. Other manuscripts read that you may come to believe, suggesting that John wrote to stimulate new faith (cp. 1:7).

21:1-25 This final chapter adds an account about the resurrected Jesus in Galilee (21:1-14) and records the exchange between Peter and Jesus concerning Peter's love (21:15-23). The chapter ends by summarizing the authority and importance of John's eyewitness report (21:24-25).

21:1 Sea of Galilee: Greek Sea of Tiberias, another name for the Sea of Galilee (see 6:1).

21:2 Several of the disciples returned to fishing in the Sea of Galilee. This was not a sign that their faith had weakened—even rabbis who regularly preached kept practicing their occupations (see Acts 18:3; 20:34; 1 Cor 4:12). • Thomas (nicknamed the Twin): Literally Thomas, who was called Didymus. • The sons of Zebedee were James and John (see Matt 4:21).

21:3 Fishing was usually successful in the early hours of the morning.

However, this trip was useless and they caught nothing all night.

21:4-5 Jesus was standing on the beach, but the men did not recognize him (cp. 20:11-16; Luke 24:13-53). • Fellows: Literally Children.

21:6 "Throw out your net on the right-hand side": Casting a net into the sea at random was futile. But when they did as the stranger said, the immense catch was immediate (21:11).

21:7 "It's the Lord!" John recognized Jesus, probably remembering that a miracle like this had happened before (Luke 5:1-11). • Peter, who had stripped off his clothes while working, put on his tunic in order to meet the Lord.

21:8 a hundred yards: Greek 200 cubits [90 meters].

21:9 Cooked fish and bread were the mainstays of the Galilean diet; Jesus provided the men with breakfast. The charcoal fire is reminiscent of the scene of Peter's denials (18:18).

21:11 This miracle showed generous provision (as in 2:1-12; 6:1-15). No symbolism attaches to the number 153.

¹²"Now come and have some breakfast!" Jesus said. None of the disciples dared to ask him, "Who are you?" They knew it was the Lord. ¹³Then Jesus served them the bread and the fish. ¹⁴This was the third time Jesus had appeared to his disciples since he had been raised from the dead.

Peter's Restoration

¹⁵After breakfast Jesus asked Simon Peter, "Simon son of John, do you love me more than these?"

"Yes, Lord," Peter replied, "you know I love you."

"Then feed my lambs," Jesus told him.

¹⁶Jesus repeated the question: "Simon son of John, do you love me?"

"Yes, Lord," Peter said, "you know I love you."

"Then take care of my sheep," Jesus said.

¹⁷A third time he asked him, "Simon son of John, do you love me?"

Peter was hurt that Jesus asked the question a third time. He said, "Lord, you know everything. You know that I love you."

Jesus said, "Then feed my sheep."

¹⁸"I tell you the truth, when you were young, you were able to do as you liked; you dressed yourself and went wherever you wanted to go. But when you are old, you will stretch out your hands, and others will dress you and take you where you don't want to go." ¹⁹Jesus said this to let him know by what kind of death he would glorify God. Then Jesus told him, "Follow me."

²⁰Peter turned around and saw behind them the disciple Jesus loved—the one who had leaned over to Jesus during supper and asked, "Lord, who will betray you?" ²¹Peter asked Jesus, "What about him, Lord?"

²²Jesus replied, "If I want him to remain alive until I return, what is that to you? As for you, follow me." ²³So the rumor spread among the community of believers that this disciple wouldn't die. But that isn't what Jesus said at all. He only said, "If I want him to remain alive until I return, what is that to you?"

Concluding Remarks

²⁴This disciple is the one who testifies to these events and has recorded them here. And we know that his account of these things is accurate.

²⁵Jesus also did many other things. If they were all written down, I suppose the whole world could not contain the books that would be written.

21:12-13 None of the disciples dared to ask him, "Who are you?" Jesus' resurrected appearance was different. His offer of fish and bread removed all uncertainties (cp. 6:11; Luke 24:30).

21:14 This scene on the beach was the third time Jesus had appeared (see 20:11-23, 26-29).

21:15-17 do you love me? The three questions and affirmations mirror Peter's three denials (18:15-18, 25-27). Jesus invited Peter to reaffirm everything he had denied. • The Greek term translated love in Jesus' first two questions (agapaō) is different from the word in his third question (phileō). In each case, Peter answered with the second word (phileō). Most Greek scholars view the two words as synonyms in this situation. The focus of Jesus' exchange with Peter was not the quality of Peter's love, but Peter's commission to take care of Jesus' flock. Peter might be meditating on these events in 1 Pet 5:2-4.

21:15 more than these? Or more than these others do? Jesus was reminding Peter of his insistence that he would be more faithful and courageous than the others (13:37; Matt 26:33; Mark 14:29). He was urging Peter to examine himself.

21:17 feed my sheep: Jesus, who knows all things (1:42; 2:25; 16:30), understood that despite Peter's terrible failing, he still had faith and commitment to Jesus. These words called Peter to nurture and protect Christ's followers.

21:18 you will stretch out your hands: Jesus was probably predicting crucifixion, which according to tradition is how Peter died. • others (some manuscripts read another one) will dress you (literally bind you): Jesus alludes to captivity, bondage, and even crucifixion—victims were often tied to the cross.

21:19 Peter's life was a ministry tending the flock of God, and his martyrdom was a kind of death that glorifies God.

• Follow me: This might require suffering and death (see 13:16; 15:18-21).

21:20-22 "What about him, Lord?" Peter asked Jesus about the fate of John, wondering if he, too, would experience martyrdom. Jesus' answer was abrupt: It was not Peter's business to know how or when John would die. Peter's only task was to follow Jesus, which John was already doing. This episode forms the core of John's concept of discipleship: What matters most for the disciple of Jesus is to follow him and do his will, come what may.

21:23 Jesus' words to Peter spread, causing some to conclude that John would not die until Jesus returned in his second coming. Jesus' rebuke to Peter (21:22) is repeated to answer that rumor. Those among the community of believers (literally the brothers) who believed this rumor were thus instructed to abandon any speculation about John. According to tradition, John died peacefully in Ephesus at an old age, surrounded by fellow believers.

21:24 This disciple is the one who testifies . . . and has recorded: John's Gospel is anchored in his personal experiences. It is not a story written from hearsay or speculation, but from the remembrance of a man who spent life-changing years with Jesus and recalled, with the help of the Holy Spirit (14:26), what Jesus said and did. • we know: This account of the life of Christ was not speculation or weak reminiscence. Rather, it was based on the confident knowledge of reliable eyewitness accounts.

21:25 the whole world could not contain the books: John ends his Gospel acknowledging that the story he has described is larger than anything he can imagine or fully communicate. Though it is glorious for us to read, John's account pales in comparison to the glory of the person it describes.

THE CHRONOLOGY OF THE APOSTOLIC AGE

Events in the apostolic age are difficult to date because few precise statements are made about time. Many events, however, can be correlated with known dates in the Roman world.

EVENTS IN THE APOSTOLIC CHURCH

Events from AD 30 to 50. We know from Roman sources that Herod Agrippa I died in AD 44 (Acts 12:23), so his execution of the apostle James and imprisonment of Peter (Acts 12:2-17) must have happened before that date.

The famine prophesied by Agabus befell Palestine during the reign of Emperor Claudius (Acts 11:28-29). When the church in Antioch sent famine relief to the church in Jerusalem, Barnabas and Paul were appointed to carry the money (Acts 11:29-30). It was Paul's second trip to Jerusalem after his conversion. The Jewish historian Josephus dates the famine between AD 46 and 48.

While Paul was in Corinth on his second missionary journey, Gallio was governor of Achaia (Acts 18:12). An inscription discovered at nearby Delphi indicates that Gallio's term was AD 51-52. The incident in Acts 18:12-17 probably occurred at the beginning of Gallio's term. Paul then left Corinth not long afterward, probably in the summer or autumn of AD 52. Paul had spent eighteen months in Corinth (Acts 18:11), so he probably arrived in early AD 50. That arrival date is confirmed by Acts 18:2. When Paul came to Corinth, Aquila and Priscilla had recently been exiled from Rome. Claudius expelled Jews from Rome in AD 49.

Events from AD 50 to 70. Festus replaced Felix as governor of Judea during Paul's imprisonment in Caesarea (Acts 24:27), probably in the summer of AD 59. This event helps us date events in the rest of the book of Acts. Paul's arrest (Acts 21:33) was about two years beforehand (AD 57). Earlier that spring, Paul had celebrated Passover in Philippi (Acts 20:6; April AD 57). Paul had just spent three months in Greece (Acts 20:3), probably the winter of AD 56-57 (see 1 Cor 16:6). Previously Paul had spent three years in Ephesus (Acts 20:31; AD 53-56).

After Festus arrived in the summer of AD 59, Paul quickly stood trial and appealed to Caesar (Acts 25:1-12). The voyage to Rome most likely began in the fall of AD 59 (Acts 27:2) and ended early in AD 60 (Acts 28:11-16). Paul stayed in Rome "for the next two years" (Acts 28:30). The NT does not report the outcome of Paul's trial, but he was probably released and then recaptured and martyred in Rome along with Peter and many others during Nero's persecution (about AD 64~65; see "Introduction to Paul's Letters to Timothy and Titus," p. 2047).

In Jerusalem, James the brother of Jesus was stoned to death by the Jewish authorities in AD 62 (Josephus, Antiquities 20.9.1). Not long afterward, the church in Jerusalem left that doomed city and settled in Pella, one of the cities of the Decapolis east of the Jordan. Thus, when war broke out between the Jews and the Romans in AD 66, the Christians for the most part escaped its fury. That war ended in AD 70, when Jerusalem and the Temple were destroyed.

Events from AD 70 to 100. The NT and early Christians left few records of the period following the deaths of Peter and Paul and the destruction of Jerusalem. It is possible that both Matthew and Luke wrote after AD 70, but they did not write about the developments after AD 70. Similarly, the apostle John probably wrote his Gospel and three letters during the period before AD 90, but we learn few specifics about the late-first-century church from those writings. If Revelation was written in the early 90s AD, then it gives us a glimpse of what the churches in Asia Minor were facing during that time (see Revelation Introduction, "Date," p. 2164).

As the apostolic age came to a close, the church around the Mediterranean grew and developed, as it would continue to do after the last of the apostles had died and the leadership of the church passed on to the following generations (see "Introduction to the Time After the Apostles," pp. 2201-2205).

THE BOOK OF

Acts

The book of Acts has a central role in the NT: It connects Jesus with the emerging Christian community, and the Gospels with the rest of the NT. It frames the proclamation of the Christian message in both Jewish and Gentile settings and underscores the key roles of Peter and Paul in the spread of the Good News throughout the Mediterranean. It is the story of a dynamic message with an outreach to all.

SETTING

Luke wrote at a time when the Good News about Jesus Christ was spreading from Jerusalem throughout the Mediterranean world. Luke was probably a Gentile (non-Jew), and his material on Christian origins keeps the needs and outlook of the wider world in mind.

Following the day of Pentecost (ch 2), Acts tells the story of how the Good News of salvation through Jesus went out throughout the entire Roman world, from JERUSALEM to ROME, through the activities of the apostles and their associates.

Luke began his presentation of the message of Christ with an account of Jesus' life (the Gospel of Luke). In the book of Acts, Luke describes how the Christian faith was carried across the Mediterranean world.

It was important for Luke to show that God's love and mercy reaches out to all people—"God shows no favoritism," as Peter told Cornelius (10:34). Christ is the only Savior (4:12), so all can believe in him for salvation and new life (16:31). Despite the tendency of Jewish Christians to keep God's grace to themselves, the church came to the united conclusion that Gentiles are fully included in God's promises (see 15:1-31). The message of the forgiveness of sins is for all nations.

SUMMARY

The apostles and other people of God were filled with the Spirit and empowered to carry out the Great Commission to all people. Acts highlights the ministries of Peter (chs 1-12) and Paul (chs 13-28).

Acts follows a geographical outline based on 1:8. The Christian message and community of believers spread in Jerusalem (1:1-8:3), in Palestine and Syria (8:4-12:25), and in the Gentile world throughout the Roman empire (13:1-28:31). The closing word in the Greek text of Acts (akōlutōs, "unhindered," 28:31) speaks of the unhindered spread of the gospel to Jews (3:1-5:42), Samaritans (6:1-8:40), "God-fearers" (8:26-40; 9:32-11:18), and Gentiles (11:19-30; 13:1-28:31).

PURPOSES OF ACTS

Biography. Peter, Stephen, James, and Paul were the principal figures leading the Christian movement.

History. The book describes the actual places where the Christian message was shared, and the reactions of local officials and citizens to it.

Geography. Acts shows how the message was taken from Jerusalem to Rome (1:8; 9:15).

Evangelism. Acts gives clear examples of how Christian leaders proclaimed the Good News to different audiences (note the speeches of chs 2-5, 7, 10, 13, 22, 26). Acts shows that the gospel is open to all—not only to Jews but also to Gentiles (including Samaritans, "God-fearers," and "converts to Judaism"; 2:8-11; 8:4-25; 10:1-11:18), and not only to men but also to women (5:14; 8:12; 16:13-15; 17:4, 12, 34; 18:26; 21:9).

Politics. Acts presents a strong defense of the Christian faith to Jews (4:8-12; 7:2-53) and to Gentiles (e.g., Paul's defense before Felix, 24:10-21, and before Agrippa, 26:1-23). Luke argued that Christianity was entitled to the same protection Judaism enjoyed as a religio licita ("permitted religion") and that it represented no danger to the Roman state (18:15; 19:37; 23:29; 25:25; 26:32).

AUTHORSHIP

Luke was Paul's traveling companion (see 16:10 and note) and was with Paul during his later years (2 Tim 4:11). Several passages in Acts appear in the first person ("we"; 16:10-18; 20:5-15; 21:1-18; 27:1-28:16), which suggests that Luke was with Paul for parts of his journeys. In Col 4:14, Luke is referred to as the "beloved doctor" in connection with other non-Jews (cp. Col 4:11) who were working with Paul (see Phlm 1:24). Paul was grateful for Luke's love and support as a faithful co-worker and friend.

Luke was also apparently the author of the Gospel that bears his name. The theological viewpoint is consistent throughout both works. Each book highlights the historical character of God's action in redemption, the central role of the Holy Spirit, the central place of prayer, the importance of angels, and the fulfillment of OT promises in the life of Jesus and in the unfolding life of the Christian community. Luke was a theologian of holy history who saw God as governing the course of events for the outworking of the divine purpose.

As a responsible Hellenistic historian, Luke used good historical methods and described his procedures in detail, showing concern to write an accurate and orderly account of the truth of Christian origins (Luke 1:1-4). Where other sources can verify Luke's writings, he proves to have been careful and accurate in handling historical details. Luke was also a literary artist, a gifted storyteller who perceived and clearly portrayed the hand of God in the development of the Christian mission. He is one of the most important historical writers between Polybius, "the last of the great Greek historians" (100s BC), and Eusebius, the first major church historian (AD 275–339).

DATE AND PLACE OF WRITING

Acts was probably written in Rome, though Greece and Asia Minor are possible locations.

Acts is generally dated between the early 60s AD and the end of the expected life span of Paul's co-workers and traveling companions (mid-80s AD). Many scholars have opted for a date after AD 70, arguing that Luke used Mark as one of his sources and dating Mark in the late 60s. However, Acts makes no mention of the outcome of Paul's trial (about AD 62); the death of James, the Lord's brother (early 60s AD); the persecution of Christians carried out by Nero following the fire of Rome in AD 64; the deaths of Peter and Paul (about AD 64–65) and Nero (AD 68); the Jewish revolt (AD 66); or the destruction of Jerusalem (AD 70). Acts ends with Paul under house arrest (AD 60–62). Therefore, it seems more likely that Luke wrote Acts before AD 64. Those who date Acts after AD 70 would answer that Luke omits these events because they were not pertinent to his purpose (see 1:8; 9:15; 28:31).

RECIPIENTS AND DESTINATION

The book of Acts is the second volume of a two-part work (see 1:1-2; Luke 1:1-4). The prime recipient of Luke's Gospel and the book of Acts was Theophilus (1:1; Luke 1:3), whose name means "one who loves God." Theophilus is described by the title, "most honorable" (Luke 1:3), which is used elsewhere for Roman governors such as Felix and Festus (23:26; 24:2-3; 26:25). Theophilus may have been Luke's patron and benefactor. He was a Gentile who had received Christian instruction (Luke 1:4). Luke wanted him and others to have an accurate understanding of the Christian faith and of its spread into the Mediterranean world so they could be "certain of the truth" concerning Christianity (Luke 1:4).

LITERARY CHARACTERISTICS

The material of Acts is presented carefully and accurately (e.g., 11:28; 18:2), and this precision has often been affirmed by archaeology, geography, and related studies. Luke has combined historical accuracy and detail with a gift for vivid and dramatic descriptions (e.g., 5:17-32; 12:1-17; 14:8-20; 16:11-40; 27:1-44).

Acts is punctuated by powerful speeches of Peter, Stephen, James, and Paul (2:14-40; 7:2-53; 15:13-21; 22:3-21). The varied literary styles in Acts fit the cultural settings in a remarkable way. Peter's sermon on the day of Pentecost has a strongly Jewish character (2:14-40), while Paul's preaching before the cultured Greek philosophers in Athens uses the forms of Greek oratory (17:22-31). These characteristics all support the historical authenticity of the book.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

Acts shows that the Christian faith truly fulfills God's promises in the Hebrew Scriptures (2:16-36; 4:11-12; 10:42-43; 13:16-41; 17:30-31; see Luke 24:25-27, 44-47). Christ brought salvation (8:35; 10:36; 16:17, 30-31). Prayer advances God's Kingdom (1:12-15; 2:1-4; 4:24-31; 12:5) while the Holy Spirit energizes and equips God's people to carry out their mission (1:8; 4:8, 31; 6:3, 5, 10; 7:55; 11:24; 13:9, 52).

Acts shows the importance of the individuals that God has chosen to carry his message and testify about Christ. At the beginning the apostles testified about the life and ministry of Jesus (1:22; 10:39-41; see Luke 1:2) and explained Jesus' significance in God's plan to redeem humanity (2:40; 3:15; 4:33; 10:42). Matthias was chosen to replace Judas in the company of the twelve apostles (1:12-26). Later, other Christian leaders shared in the task of testifying for their Lord; Stephen and Philip are two outstanding examples of bold witness to their faith (7:2-53; 8:4-40). Other Christians simply shared their faith as they had opportunity (e.g., 8:1-4; 11:19-21). Later, God called Paul to participate in this enterprise as his "chosen instrument to take my message to the Gentiles and to kings, as well as to the people of Israel" (9:15; 22:1-21; 26:2-23). Paul, like Peter, occupies a central role in Acts as a major witness for Christ.

The apostles proclaimed that the death and resurrection of Jesus was God's plan fulfilling Scripture (2:22-36; 3:15; 4:27-28, 33; 7:52; 8:32-35; 10:38-43; 13:26-39). Jesus was the one appointed to redeem humankind, so the apostles' message was, "Believe in the Lord Jesus and you will be saved" (16:31). God offers his grace and forgiveness to all. "There is peace with God through Jesus Christ, who is Lord of all" (10:36).

The Book of Acts is more than first-century church history; it is a narrative about the Triune God on an unstoppable mission to the ends of the earth.

The Acts of the Apostles (1998)

1. PROLOGUE (1:1-5)The Promise of the Holy Spirit

1In my first book I told you, Theophilus, about everything Jesus began to do and teach ²until the day he was taken up to heaven after giving his chosen apostles further instructions through the Holy Spirit. ³During the forty days after he suffered and died, he appeared to the apostles from time to time, and he proved to them in many ways that he was actually alive. And he talked to them about the Kingdom of God.

⁴Once when he was eating with them, he commanded them, "Do not leave Jerusalem until the Father sends you the gift he promised, as I told you before. ⁵John baptized with water, but in just a few days you will be baptized with the Holy Spirit."

2. THE CHURCH BEGINS IN JERUSALEM (1:6-5:42)The Coming of the Holy Spirit (1:6-2:47)The Ascension of Jesus

⁶So when the apostles were with Jesus, they kept asking him, "Lord, has the time come for you to free Israel and restore our kingdom?"

⁷He replied, "The Father alone has the authority to set those dates and times, and they are not for you to know. ⁸But you will receive power when the Holy Spirit comes upon you. And you will be my witnesses, telling people about me everywhere—in Jerusalem, throughout Judea, in Samaria, and to the ends of the earth."

⁹After saying this, he was taken up into a cloud while they were watching, and they could no longer see him. ¹⁰As they strained to see him rising into heaven, two white-robed men suddenly stood among them. ¹¹"Men of Galilee," they said, "why are you standing here staring into heaven? Jesus has been taken from you into heaven, but someday he will return from heaven in the same way you saw him go!"

Here are the names of those who were present: Peter, John, James, Andrew, Philip, Thomas, Bartholomew, Matthew, James (son of Alphaeus), Simon (the zealot), and Judas (son of James). ¹⁴They all met together and were constantly united in prayer, along

1:1-3 Here Luke summarizes his first book; the reference is to the Gospel of Luke, which Luke had previously written to Theophilus (Luke 1:3). Theophilus is elsewhere called "most honorable" (Luke 1:3)—the title indicates that he was a person of very high social standing (cp. Acts 23:26; 24:2; 26:25). He was probably a benefactor or patron who assisted Luke with the expenses of publication or distribution of his work (see note on Luke 1:3).

1:3 he proved to them in many ways that he was actually alive: The Gospels describe the evidence for Christ's resurrection: Jesus' tomb was empty (Luke 24:3-4), his grave clothes were undisturbed (John 20:3-9), and many people saw him (see Matt 28:1-20; Mark 16:1-8; Luke 24:1-53; John 20:11-21:23; 1 Cor 15:3-8). Jesus appeared to the apostles in part to overcome their doubt (Matt 28:17; Luke 24:17-24, 38, 41; John 20:27; see Mark 16:14). • The Kingdom of God was the central theme of Jesus' teaching (see 1:6-8; Matt 4:17; Mark 1:14-15; Luke 4:43).

1:4 until the Father sends you the gift he promised: See 2:1-13; cp. John 14:15-17.

1:5 baptized: See "Baptism" at 2:38, 41, p. 1828. • with water: Or in water.

• with the Holy Spirit: Or in the Holy Spirit. Cp. 19:1-7.

1:6-11 Jesus' ascent into heaven (see also Luke 24:50-53) took place on the Mount of Olives (1:12; Luke 24:50). It was Jesus' last physical appearance—he was taken into heaven, where he will remain "until the time for the final restoration of all things" (3:21).

1:8 This key verse outlines the geographical extension of the Good News from its Jewish starting point in Jerusalem and Judea (1:6-8:1), out to Samaria (8:4-25), Antioch in Syria (11:19-30), and eventually throughout the Mediterranean world to Rome (13:1-28:31). Christ later gave a similar call to be his witnesses . . . to the ends of the earth to Saul of Tarsus (9:15), who had persecuted the Jewish Christians and then became the primary instrument for taking the Good News to the Gentiles. • The Holy Spirit was the source of power for all this evangelistic and missionary effort (see "The Holy Spirit's Presence" at 5:32, p. 1834).

1:10 Christ's rising into heaven indicates his elevation to a place of ultimate authority (see Eph 1:19-23; Phil 2:9-11).

1:11 Jesus promised to return from heaven in the same way (see Matt 24:30; Mark 13:26; John 14:3). Jesus has gone to heaven to prepare the place for his followers (John 12:26; 14:1-4; 2 Cor 5:4; Phil 3:21; Heb 6:20).

1:12 The witnesses of the ascension returned to Jerusalem with joy, worship, exhilaration, and praise to God (Luke 24:52), and with their doubts assuaged (see note on 1:3). • a distance of half a mile: Literally a Sabbath day's journey.

1:13-26 While the apostles waited for the promised gift of the Holy Spirit (1:4-5), the whole company of 120 disciples in Jerusalem engaged in earnest prayer (1:13-14), and then appointed an apostle to replace Judas Iscariot (1:15-26).

1:13 All eleven of the remaining apostles were present (cp. Matt 10:2-4; Mark 3:16-19; Luke 6:13-16). Judas Iscariot is omitted from this list on account of his betrayal and death (1:18-19).

1:14 The first disciples were united in worship, fellowship, and prayer (see also 2:42, 46-47; 4:24-31; 5:12; 12:5; 13:1-3). The faithful women who had been witnesses of Jesus' crucifixion and resurrection were present (Luke 23:49, 54-56; 24:1-10, 22). • The brothers of Jesus had not believed in him during his ministry (John 7:3-5; cp. Matt 12:46-49), but became his disciples after his resurrection (see "James, the Brother of Jesus" at 15:13-21, p. 1858).

¹⁵During this time, when about 120 believers were together in one place, Peter stood up and addressed them. ¹⁶"Brothers," he said, "the Scriptures had to be fulfilled concerning Judas, who guided those who arrested Jesus. This was predicted long ago by the Holy Spirit, speaking through King David. ¹⁷Judas was one of us and shared in the ministry with us."

²⁰Peter continued, "This was written in the book of Psalms, where it says, 'Let his home become desolate, with no one living in it.' It also says, 'Let someone else take his position.'"

²¹"So now we must choose a replacement for Judas from among the men who were with us the entire time we were traveling with the Lord Jesus—²²from the time he was baptized by John until the day he was taken from us. Whoever is chosen will join us as a witness of Jesus' resurrection."

²³So they nominated two men: Joseph called Barsabbas (also known as Justus) and Matthias. ²⁴Then they all prayed, "O Lord, you know every heart. Show us which of these men you have chosen ²⁵as an apostle to replace Judas in this ministry, for he has deserted us and gone where he belongs." ²⁶Then they cast lots, and Matthias was selected to become an apostle with the other eleven.

The Holy Spirit Comes

2 On the day of Pentecost all the believers were meeting together in one place. ²Suddenly, there was a sound from heaven like the roaring of a mighty windstorm, and it filled the house where they were sitting. ³Then, what looked like flames or tongues of fire appeared and settled on each of them. ⁴And everyone present was filled

Jesus' ascension into heaven was a final commissioning service for the apostles (1:6-11; Luke 24:45-53). The ascension marks the beginning of the powerful ministry of the Holy Spirit through the church (Luke 24:49).

Christ's ascent to heaven indicates his elevation to ultimate power and authority (Eph 1:19-23; Phil 2:9-11). That Jesus was going to the Father is noted in other places (John 3:13; 6:62; 13:1-3; 14:3, 28; 16:10, 16, 28; 20:17; Eph 4:8-10). It occurred at the last of Jesus' physical appearances; after this he would remain in heaven until the "times of refreshment" (3:20).

The ascension reminds believers of Jesus' promised return (1:11; see Matt 24:30; Mark 13:26; John 13:3). The witnesses of the ascension went back to Jerusalem with joy and exhilaration, in praise and worship of Christ (Luke 24:52). They were convinced that their Lord would return again, physically and personally (1 Thes 4:16; 2 Thes 1:7-10; 2 Pet 3:10).

Jesus' ascension anticipates the believer's own glorious entrance into the presence of God, where Jesus has gone to prepare the way (John 12:26; 2 Cor 5:4; Phil 3:21; Heb 6:20).

1:15 believers: Literally brothers.

1:16-17 Scripture had to be fulfilled: See 1:20.

1:18-19 Matthew's account (Matt 27:3-10) is somewhat different; the two can be harmonized by considering the priests' purchase of the "Field of Blood" as acting in Judas's name. In addition, Judas may have committed suicide by hanging, but subsequently he fell headfirst and his body split open, perhaps when the rope broke.

1:20-21 'Let someone else take his position': Ps 69:25; 109:8. It was imperative that a replacement be found for Judas so that his position as the twelfth apostle would not remain empty. The new people of God, like Israel, were to have twelve designated and appointed leaders (see Matt 19:28; Luke 22:29-30).

1:21-22 To qualify for nomination as an apostle, a man had to have been with the other apostles the entire time of Jesus' public ministry, from the time he was baptized by John until his ascension.

1:23-26 With prayer (1:14, 24) and humble dependence on God to reveal his will, the apostles cast lots, using an established method of finding God's will (see Lev 16:8; Num 27:21; Deut 33:8; Josh 14:2; 18:3-10; Prov 16:33). Matthias was selected to replace Judas. After Pentecost, the Holy Spirit guided Jesus' followers through dreams, visions, and prophecies instead of through lots

(cp. 2:17-18; 13:2; 16:7-10). • you know every heart: See also 1 Sam 16:6-7; 1 Kgs 8:39; 1 Chr 28:9; 2 Chr 6:30; Ps 7:9; 44:21; Jer 11:20; John 2:24-25; Rev 2:23.

2:1-4 Jews observed three great annual pilgrimage festivals, when many would go to the Temple in Jerusalem—Unleavened Bread (which includes Passover), Pentecost, and Shelters (see "Israel's Festivals," p. 235). The Festival of Pentecost came 50 days after Passover (when Jesus was crucified; see "The Cross and Passover" at John 19:17-36, p. 1812). On that decisive day, when the disciples were united and expectant as they gathered for prayer, the Holy Spirit came and filled the gathered believers.

with the Holy Spirit and began speaking in other ^clanguages, as the Holy Spirit gave them this ability.

⁵At that time there were devout Jews from every nation living in Jerusalem. ⁶When they heard the loud noise, everyone came running, and they were bewildered to hear their own languages being spoken by the believers.

⁷They were completely amazed. "How can this be?" they exclaimed. "These people are all from Galilee, ⁸and yet we hear them speaking in our own native languages! ⁹Here we are—Parthians, Medes, Elamites, people from Mesopotamia, Judea, Cappadocia, Pontus, the province of Asia, ¹⁰Phrygia, Pamphylia, Egypt, and the areas of Libya around Cyrene, visitors from Rome ¹¹(both Jews and converts to Judaism), Cretans, and Arabs. And we all hear these people speaking in our own ^dlanguages about the wonderful things God has done!" ¹²They stood there amazed and perplexed. "What can this mean?" they asked each other.

¹³But others in the crowd ridiculed them, saying, "They're just drunk, that's all!"

Peter Preaches to the Crowd

¹⁴Then Peter stepped forward with the eleven other apostles and shouted to the crowd, "Listen carefully, all of you, fellow Jews and residents of Jerusalem! Make no mistake about this. ¹⁵These people are not drunk, as some of you are assuming. Nine o'clock in the morning is much too early for that. ¹⁶No, what you see was predicted long ago by the prophet Joel:

¹⁷'In the last days,' God says,

'I will pour out my Spirit upon all people.

Your sons and daughters will prophesy.

Your young men will see visions, and your old men will dream dreams.

¹⁸In those days I will pour out my Spirit even on my servants—men and women alike—and they will prophesy.

¹⁹And I will cause wonders in the heavens above and signs on the earth below—blood and fire and clouds of smoke.

²⁰The sun will become dark, and the moon will turn blood red before that great and glorious day of the LORD arrives.

²¹But everyone who calls on the name of the LORD will be 'saved.'

2:4 everyone present was filled with the Holy Spirit: This event marks the coming of the Holy Spirit to fill Jesus' disciples, as he had promised, so that they could be powerful witnesses (1:4-5, 8). The Spirit's wisdom, energy, and power were the driving force behind the church's work and witness (e.g., 2:14-41, 43; 4:31; 9:17, 20; 13:9-12; see also Eph 5:18). • began speaking in other languages (or in other tongues): The Holy Spirit gave extraordinary communication that made it possible for people from other countries to hear in their own languages about what God had done (2:6-11). This passage is one of several references to speaking in "other languages" or "tongues" (see also 10:44-48; 19:6; 1 Cor 14:2-28; 14:39). Here, this supernatural gift reveals the energizing presence of God's Spirit and inaugurates the proclamation of the Good News to people of every nation.

2:5-11 Because Pentecost was a pilgrimage festival (see note on 2:1-4), Jews from every nation were present in Jerusalem at that time and were thus able to hear the Good News being proclaimed in their own languages. The Good News is for all people (2:38-39).

2:9-11 Parthians came from the region stretching from the Tigris River eastward to India. Medes (now called Kurds) were from Media, east of Mesopotamia and north of the Persian Gulf. Elamites were from Elam (now in Iran), north of the Persian Gulf and just east of the Tigris River. Mesopotamia lay between the Tigris and Euphrates rivers. Judea was well known as the Jewish homeland. Cappadocia, Pontus, and Asia were Roman provinces in Asia Minor (now in Turkey; see 1 Pet 1:1); Paul later taught and preached in some of these areas (see 16:6; 19:10, 26). Phrygia and Pamphylia were districts of Asia Minor later visited by Paul (13:13; 18:23). Egypt had a large Jewish population, particularly in the city of Alexandria (see 18:24). North Africa was also represented by Libya and Cyrene. Rome was the imperial capital and the home of thousands of Jews. The Cretans came from the island of Crete, located south-southeast of Greece, and the Arabs from the area south and east of Jerusalem. • The inclusion of all of these nations suggests how the Good News was going to go out to the ends of the earth (1:8).

2:11 converts to Judaism: See note on 13:43.

2:14-36 This is the first of about thirty speeches in Acts and one of the most important, standing as it does at the very inception of the church. It is a typical example of the preaching of the apostles, who proclaimed (1) that the OT promises had been fulfilled in the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus Christ, who is the promised Messiah; (2) that the apostles themselves were eyewitnesses of Jesus' entire public ministry and were his chosen representatives; (3) that people are called to repent of their sins and have faith in God through Christ; and (4) that salvation and the presence of the Holy Spirit are promised to those who respond affirmatively to this message of Good News. This basic message is echoed in the sermons of chs 3, 4, 5, 8, 10, and 13. The same themes characterized Paul's preaching (see 1 Cor 15:3-9). This message was repeatedly preached to both Jews and Gentiles throughout the Mediterranean world; all people are summoned to repent of their sins and turn to God through faith in Jesus Christ.

2:17-21 This passage quotes Joel 2:28-32. The prophet Joel predicted a wider exercise of the gifts of prophecy, including visions and dreams by both young and old, both men and women in the last days (Joel 2:28-29). In Acts, on the day of Pentecost, Peter declared that Joel's prophecy was being fulfilled, signaling that "the last days" had arrived. See also "The Gift of Prophecy" at 21:9-11, p. 1873.

22"People of Israel, listen! God publicly endorsed Jesus the Nazarene by doing powerful miracles, wonders, and signs through him, as you well know. 23But God knew what would happen, and his ¹prearranged plan was carried out when Jesus was betrayed. With the help of lawless Gentiles, you nailed him to a cross and killed him. 24But God released him from the horrors of death and raised him back to life, for death could not keep him in its grip. 25King David said this about him:

'I see that the LORD is always with me.
I will not be shaken, for he is right beside me.

26 No wonder my heart is glad, and my tongue shouts his praises!
My body rests in hope.

27 For you will not leave my soul among the dead or allow your Holy One to rot in the ^hgrave.

28 You have shown me the way of life, and you will fill me with the joy of your presence.'

29"Dear brothers, think about this! You can be sure that the patriarch David wasn't referring to himself, for he died and was buried, and his tomb is still here among us. 30But he was a prophet, and he knew God had promised with an oath that one of David's own descendants would sit on his throne. 31David was ¹looking into the future and speaking of the ¹Messiah's ¹resurrection. He was saying that God would not leave him among the dead or allow his body to rot in the ^hgrave.

32"God raised Jesus from the dead, and we are all witnesses of this. 33Now he is exalted to the place of highest honor in heaven, at God's right hand. And the Father, as he had promised, gave him the Holy Spirit to pour out upon us, just as you see and hear today. 34For David himself never ascended into heaven, yet he said,

'The LORD said to my Lord,
"Sit in the place of honor at my right hand

35 until I humble your enemies, making them a footstool under your feet."

36"So let everyone in Israel know for certain that God has made this Jesus, whom you crucified, to be both Lord and Messiah!"

37Peter's words pierced their hearts, and they said to him and to the other apostles, "Brothers, what should we do?"

38Peter replied, "Each of you must repent of your sins and turn to God, and be ¹baptized in the name of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of your sins. Then you will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. 39This promise is to you, to your children, and to those far away—all who have been called by

2:23-28 While cruel men had crucified Jesus, this action had not defeated God's ¹prearranged plan for salvation. In fact, God ¹raised him back to life, which David had foretold (2:25-28, which quotes Ps 16:8-11, Greek version).

2:31 David was not speaking of himself in the quoted passage (2:25-28), but was prophetically ¹looking into the future and speaking of the ¹Messiah's resurrection.

2:32-36 God raised Jesus from the dead, and we are all witnesses of this: The witness theme is often repeated in Acts (e.g., 3:15; 4:33; 5:32; 10:39-43). The capstone of this message is that God the Father, as he had promised, was now pouring out his Holy Spirit on the church through the risen Jesus. All Israel was called upon to recognize that God had acted decisively to make the crucified Jesus both Lord and Messiah!

2:34-35 This passage quotes Ps 110:1, which Jesus fulfilled when he ascended into heaven (1:9).

2:37-38 Brothers, what should we do? Peter answered by strongly exhorting his listeners to repent of your sins and turn to God, and be baptized. See "Baptism" at 2:38, 41, p. 1828.

⁴¹ Those who believed what Peter said were baptized and added to the church that day—about 3,000 in all.

The Believers Form a Community

⁴² All the believers devoted themselves to the ‘apostles’ teaching, and to ‘fellowship, and to sharing in meals (including the Lord’s Supper), and to prayer.

⁴³ A deep sense of awe came over them all, and the apostles performed many miraculous signs and wonders. ⁴⁴ And all the believers met together in one place and shared everything they had. ⁴⁵ They sold their property and possessions and shared the money with those in need. ⁴⁶ They worshiped together at the Temple each day, met in homes for the Lord’s Supper, and shared their meals with great joy and generosity—⁴⁷ all the while praising God and enjoying the goodwill of all the people. And each day the Lord added to their fellowship those who were being ‘saved.

3 Peter and John went to the Temple one afternoon to take part in the three o’clock prayer service. ² As they approached the Temple, a man lame from birth was being carried in. Baptism was an important element of the Christian faith from the very beginning (2:38). Baptism is a ritual cleansing that signifies the removal of impurity and sin; it represents repentance from sin and turning to God for forgiveness and purification.

The words “baptism” and “baptize” were already used in Judaism to refer to a religious rite for cleansing. The law of Moses established the use of water to cleanse people from ceremonial defilement (Num 19:14–19). Later, Gentile converts to Judaism from pagan religions were admitted to Judaism only after fulfilling certain obligations, which included the study of the Torah, circumcision, and a ritual bath to wash away the impurities of the Gentile background.

John had thus preached “that people should be baptized to show that they had repented of their sins and turned to God to be forgiven” (Luke 3:3). John’s baptism was an aspect of his role in preparing people’s hearts to receive the Messiah (Luke 3:4–6), and those who had received his baptism and repented of their sins were those who were prepared for Jesus’ message (Luke 7:29–30).

After his resurrection, Jesus commanded his disciples to baptize new converts (Matt 28:19). Christian baptism is understood as dying and rising with Christ, signifying the death of the old life and the beginning of the new (Rom 6:1–4; Col 2:12). Thus baptism signifies a Christian’s spiritual union with Christ (Gal 3:27) and with his church. Baptism thus became the rite of initiation in the Christian community. For this reason, many interpreters see baptism as the Christian equivalent of circumcision, the rite that initiated membership into the nation of Israel under the old covenant (Col 2:11–12). Whatever the connection with OT circumcision, baptism signifies a changed heart and a clean conscience that come from God’s forgiveness (Deut 10:16; 30:6; Jer 4:4; Rom 2:28–29; Phil 3:3; 1 Pet 3:21).

As a ritual cleansing, Christian baptism signifies both forgiveness of sins (2:38; 5:31; 10:43; 13:38; 26:18) and the reception of the Holy Spirit (2:38, 41; 9:17; 10:47–48; 11:16–17; 19:5–7; Luke 3:16). Many interpreters see baptism as the outward confirmation of the inward “seal” of the Spirit, whose presence is a “guarantee” of the eternal inheritance that awaits God’s faithful people (2 Cor 1:21–22; Eph 1:13–14; 4:30; Titus 3:5).

2:42–47 Luke makes a clear connection between personal faith and membership in the Christian community. Life in this new community involved devotion to apostolic teaching of God’s Word, fellowship, sharing, joy, and praise, and it resulted in the Lord’s continuing to add to their number those who were being saved.

2:42 fellowship: Greek koinōnia, a close mutual relationship and participation in life together. • sharing in meals (including the Lord’s Supper): Literally the breaking of bread; also in 2:46. • At this stage, prayer probably included participation in the formal prayers of the Temple (see 3:1).

2:46 and generosity: Or and sincere hearts.

3:1–11 Jesus’ promise that his disciples would do even greater works than he had done (John 14:12; see Mark 16:20) was fulfilled in the signs, wonders, and mighty works of the apostles (2:43; 5:12; 8:4–8). Here, Peter clearly ⁷Then Peter took the lame man by the right hand and helped him up. And as he did, the man's feet and ankles were instantly healed and strengthened. ⁸He jumped up, stood on his feet, and began to walk! Then, walking, leaping, and praising God, he went into the Temple with them.

⁹All the people saw him walking and heard him praising God. ¹⁰When they realized he was the lame beggar they had seen so often at the Beautiful Gate, they were absolutely astounded! ¹¹They all rushed out in amazement to Solomon's Colonnade, where the man was holding tightly to Peter and John.

Peter Preaches in the Temple

¹²Peter saw his opportunity and addressed the crowd. "People of Israel," he said, "what is so surprising about this? And why stare at us as though we had made this man walk by our own power or godliness? ¹³For it is the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob—the God of all our ancestors—who has brought glory to his servant Jesus by doing this. This is the same Jesus whom you handed over and rejected before Pilate, despite Pilate's decision to release him. ¹⁴You rejected this holy, righteous one and instead demanded the release of a murderer. ¹⁵You killed the author of life, but God raised him from the dead. And we are witnesses of this fact!

The book of Acts outlines the church's growth after Pentecost. In the early days there was numerical growth. Only 120 believers were present at the first prayer meeting seeking divine direction (1:13-15). After the mighty outpouring of the Holy Spirit on Pentecost, the number of Christians increased to about 3,000 (2:41). Many more believed the preaching of Peter and John, and the number grew to about 5,000 (4:4) and continued to rise (5:14; 6:1; 9:31; 21:20).

There is also ample evidence of geographical growth (1:8; 9:15). The church was not confined to Jerusalem, for the message spread to Lydda, Sharon, and Joppa on the Mediterranean coast (9:35, 42). The message of salvation in Christ also moved out from its Jewish base into Samaria (8:6, 12), then into Phoenicia, Cyprus, and Antioch (11:19-26). As Peter declared to Cornelius's household, "God shows no favoritism" (10:34). The message of Good News offers peace with God through Jesus Christ to all people (10:36).

With the increase in numbers and the geographical spread of the faith, the Christian communities also experienced growth in spiritual depth and vitality. Acts 2:42-47 vividly depicts this development in the inner life of the church, featuring earnest, united prayer in crises, generous sharing of possessions, courage during persecution, and boldness in witness (4:23-31, 32-37; 5:27-33, 40-42; 16:19-25). Philip's preaching and the manner of Stephen's death manifested a high standard of spiritual life and maturity (7:59; 8:4-40; 16:19-25). Church leaders encouraged and strengthened believers, made them more steadfast in their faith, enabled them to face persecution (14:22; 15:32, 41; 18:23; see 2 Tim 1:8; 2:1-9; 3:12), and lived by the standards they set for others (1 Cor 4:16, 20; Phil 4:9; 1 Thes 1:5-8; 2 Thes 3:9; 2 Tim 2:7). The church's sensitive handling of the Gentiles' inclusion also resulted in significant spiritual growth. "So the churches were strengthened in their faith and grew larger every day" (16:5).

exercised the power to heal in the name of Jesus Christ the Nazarene (3:6, 16). The cure was instant and undeniable (3:8), resulting in the man's praising God (3:8-9; cp. 2:47; 16:25; Luke 2:20; 17:15-18; 18:43; 19:37; 24:53). This is the first of many demonstrations of divine power given to disciples in Acts (4:24-31; 5:12; 6:8; 8:6; 9:33-42; 28:8).

3:6 The name of Jesus represents his identity and power to heal (see Mark 9:38-39). • Jesus Christ the Nazarene: Or Jesus Christ of Nazareth. • Some manuscripts do not include get up and.

3:10-11 The Beautiful Gate was probably the Nicanor Gate, built of Corinthian bronze and located on the east side of the Temple (see Josephus, War 5.5.3). It was adorned in a costly manner, with richer and thicker plates of silver and gold upon its panels than other gates.

• Solomon's Colonnade was a portico on the east side of the Temple (see Josephus, War 5.5.1-3; Antiquities 20.9.7).

3:12-26 The evangelistic speeches in the book of Acts focus on Jesus, the crucified and risen Lord. They call people to repentance and faith in Jesus as the promised Messiah and the divinely appointed Judge (2:38; 3:19; 11:18; 17:30; 26:20). They also offer the same Good News for the people of Israel and the Gentile world—"there is peace with God through Jesus Christ, who is Lord of all" (10:36).

3:15 It was unfathomable to the Jewish mind that the author of life, God himself, could be killed. They didn't recognize Jesus as Messiah (cp. 13:27; Luke 23:34), and they did not realize that the Messiah would be divine (see John 1:1-18; cp. Dan 7:13-14).

¹⁶"Through faith in the name of Jesus, this man was healed—and you know how crippled he was before. Faith in Jesus' name has healed him before your very eyes.

¹⁷"Friends, I realize that what you and your leaders did to Jesus was done in ignorance. ¹⁸But God was fulfilling what all the prophets had foretold about the Messiah—that he must suffer these things. ¹⁹Now repent of your sins and turn to God, so that your sins may be wiped away. ²⁰Then times of refreshment will come from the presence of the Lord, and he will again send you Jesus, your appointed Messiah. ²¹For he must remain in heaven until the time for the final restoration of all things, as God promised long ago through his holy prophets. ²²Moses said, 'The LORD your God will raise up for you a Prophet like me from among your own people. Listen carefully to everything he tells you.' ²³Then Moses said, 'Anyone who will not listen to that Prophet will be completely cut off from God's people.'

²⁴"Starting with Samuel, every prophet spoke about what is happening today. ²⁵You are the children of those prophets, and you are included in the covenant God promised to your ancestors. For God said to Abraham, 'Through your descendants all the families on earth will be blessed.' ²⁶When God raised up his servant, Jesus, he sent him first to you people of Israel, to bless you by turning each of you back from your sinful ways."

Peter and John before the Council

4 While Peter and John were speaking to the people, they were confronted by the priests, the captain of the Temple guard, and some of the Sadducees. ²These leaders were very disturbed that Peter and John were teaching the people that through Jesus there is a resurrection of the dead. ³They arrested them and, since it was already evening, put them in jail until morning. ⁴But many of the people who heard their message believed it, so the number of men who believed now totaled about 5,000.

⁵The next day the council of all the rulers and elders and teachers of religious law met in Jerusalem. ⁶Annas the high priest was there, along with Caiaphas, John, Alexander, and other relatives of the high priest. ⁷They brought in the two disciples and demanded, "By what power, or in whose name, have you done this?"

⁸Then Peter, filled with the Holy Spirit, said to them, "Rulers and elders of our people, ⁹are we being questioned today because we've done a good deed for a crippled man? Do you want to know how he was healed? ¹⁰Let me clearly state to all of you and to all the people of Israel that he was healed by the powerful name of Jesus Christ the Nazarene, the man you crucified but whom God raised from the dead. ¹¹For Jesus is the one referred to in the Scriptures, where it says,

"The stone that you builders rejected has now become the cornerstone."

¹²There is salvation in no one else! God has given no other name under heaven by which we must be 'saved.'

¹³The members of the council were amazed when they saw the boldness of Peter and John, for they could see that they were ordinary men with no special training

3:17 Friends: Literally Brothers, which was a common way to address one another (13:15, 26, 38; Gen 27:29; Lev 10:6; 25:46; Num 20:3; Deut 1:28; 24:7; Josh 22:3-4; 2 Sam 2:26; Ezek 11:15).
• in ignorance: Cp. 17:30; 1 Tim 1:12-14. The Christian message challenges this ignorance and calls all people to respond in faith and repentance (2:38).

3:19 The Good News of forgiveness is more fully explained elsewhere (see 5:30-32; 10:36-43; 13:26-38; Luke 24:25-27, 45-47).

3:20-21 The message of Good News offers refreshment (see Matt 11:28-29). The second coming of Christ will be one of those times of refreshment from God, when he will again send . . . Jesus to his people.

3:22 Jesus fulfills the ancient promise of a Prophet like Moses (see Deut 18:15, 18; cp. John 6:14; 7:40).

3:23 Refusing to heed Jesus, God's final

Prophet, would have disastrous consequences (John 3:16, 17, 36). • This verse quotes Deut 18:19; Lev 23:29.

3:25 your descendants: Literally your seed; see Gen 12:3; 22:18. • all the families on earth will be blessed: God's blessings on the covenant people were not intended to be selfishly hoarded, but were to be shared with the world.

4:1-22 Persecution was a common experience of God's people throughout the Bible. God's servants often faced hostility and opposition (Deut 30:7; 1 Kgs 18:13; Neh 4:1-3; Jer 37-38; Matt 23:34-37; Luke 11:49-51; 1 Thes 2:14-15). Jesus himself was persecuted (Luke 4:29; John 5:16), and he told his disciples to expect the same kind of treatment (Matt 10:23; 24:9; Mark 13:9; Luke 21:12; John 16:2), but he promised that the Holy Spirit would provide strength (1:8; Luke 12:11-12; 21:15). Acts records frequent times of persecution (4:3; 5:17-41; 7:54-8:3; 9:1-2; 11:19; 12:2; 13:50; 14:19; 16:19-24), but Acts also reiterates that the Holy Spirit empowers disciples to bear witness in such circumstances (2:44; 4:8-13; 6:10; 7:55). The boldness of Peter and John before the hostile high council exemplifies facing persecution with courage and power (4:20). See "Persecution," facing page.

in the Scriptures. They also recognized them as men who had been with Jesus. ¹⁴But since they could see the man who had been healed standing right there among them, there was nothing the council could say. ¹⁵So they ordered Peter and John out of the council chamber and conferred among themselves.

¹⁶"What should we do with these men?" they asked each other. "We can't deny that they have performed a miraculous ¹⁶sign, and everybody in Jerusalem knows about it. ¹⁷But to keep them from spreading their propaganda any further, we must warn them not to speak to anyone in Jesus' name again." ¹⁸So they called the apostles back in and commanded them never again to speak or teach in the name of Jesus.

¹⁹But Peter and John replied, "Do you think God wants us to obey you rather than him? ²⁰We cannot stop telling about everything we have seen and heard."

²¹The council then threatened them further, but they finally let them go because they didn't know how to punish them without starting a riot. For everyone was praising God ²²for this miraculous sign—the healing of a man who had been lame for more than forty years.

The Believers Pray for Courage

²³As soon as they were freed, Peter and John returned to the other believers and told them what the leading priests and elders had said. ²⁴When they heard the report, all the believers lifted their voices together in prayer to God: "O Sovereign Lord, Creator of heaven and earth, the sea, and everything in them—²⁵you spoke long ago by the Holy Spirit through our ancestor David, your servant, saying,

'Why were the nations so angry?

Why did they waste their time with futile plans?

Persecution is a common experience of God's people. God's servants have often faced hostility and opposition (e.g., Deut 30:7; 1 Kgs 18:13; Neh 4:1-3; Jer 37-38; Matt 23:34-37; Luke 11:49-51; 1 Thes 2:14-15). Jesus also dealt with persecution (Luke 4:29; John 5:16). At the end of his earthly life, he endured mocking, beating, and a horrible death by crucifixion, and he told his disciples to expect the same kind of treatment (Matt 10:23; 24:9; Mark 13:9; Luke 21:12; John 16:2). He prepared his followers for such occasions, telling them that the Holy Spirit would give them the needed courage (1:8; Luke 12:11-12; 21:15).

The book of Acts documents the persecution of the earliest Christians, beginning with the hostility of the Jewish high council and the attacks of Saul of Tarsus on the early church prior to his encounter with Jesus near Damascus (8:3; 9:1-13, 21; 22:4; 26:9-11; see 1 Cor 15:9; Gal 1:13; Phil 3:6). Peter, John, Stephen, James, Paul, and Barnabas all suffered persecution (4:17-18; 5:17-18; 7:57-60; 12:1-4; 14:5-6). Jesus, in his parable of the farmer and the seed, noted the withering effects of persecution on those with shallow faith (Matt 13:21-22; Mark 4:5-7). Persecution purifies God's people and gives them the opportunity to conform more closely to the character of Jesus. The apostles' experiences in Acts bear out Paul's general statement: "Everyone who wants to live a godly life in Christ Jesus will suffer persecution" (2 Tim 3:12; see Mark 10:30).

Jesus told his disciples to expect to defend their faith in hostile settings (Matt 10:18-20; Luke 21:12-15), and the apostles and other leaders did so with courage and boldness (e.g., 4:8-12, 31; 5:29-32; 6:8-10; 8:4-40; 9:27). Christians are called to defend their faith courageously and graciously, explaining their convictions to those who ask questions (Col 4:6; 2 Tim 2:24, 25; 1 Pet 3:15).

were not scholars or ordained teachers—they were working men without higher education. The educated members of the Jewish high council were treated as authorities on the Scriptures and matters of religion, so it amazed them to see uneducated men speaking with such boldness about such matters.

4:15 the council chamber: Greek the Sanhedrin.

4:16-18 They recognize the miracle but still stubbornly tried to prevent the message. Jesus had encountered similar resistance (Matt 19:8; Mark 10:5; see also Deut 10:16; 30:6; Jer 4:4).

4:19-20 The apostles stated a principle that can guide God's people in dealing with hostile authorities (see also 5:40; cp. 1 Sam 15:22; Jer 7:23; Luke 20:20-26; Rom 13:1-7). Jesus had predicted that his disciples would encounter hostility and persecution (Luke 21:12-19).

4:23-31 The believers heard the report that their leaders had been threatened and commanded never again to speak about Jesus (4:18). The Christian movement was clearly under attack from the religious authorities, so they united in prayer. They turned to God, placing their troubles before him and asking him to make them bold in speaking the message and to divinely confirm its truth with signs and wonders. God dramatically answered their request.

²⁶ The kings of the earth prepared for battle;
the rulers gathered together against the LORD and against his Messiah.'

²⁷"In fact, this has happened here in this very city! For Herod Antipas, Pontius Pilate the governor, the Gentiles, and the people of Israel were all united against Jesus, your holy servant, whom you anointed. ²⁸But everything they did was^h determined beforehand according to your will. ²⁹And now, O Lord, hear their threats, and give us, your servants, great boldness in preaching your word. ³⁰Stretch out your hand with healing power; may miraculous signs and wonders be done through the name of your holy servant Jesus."

³¹After this prayer, the meeting place shook, and they were all filled with the Holy Spirit. Then they preached the word of God with boldness.

The Fellowship of the Church (4:32–5:16)
The Believers Share Their Possessions

³²All the believers were united in heart and mind. And they felt that what they owned was not their own, so they shared everything they had. ³³The apostlesⁱ testified powerfully to the resurrection of the Lord Jesus, and God's great blessing was upon them all. ³⁴There were no needy people among them, because those who owned land or houses would sell them³⁵ and bring the money to the apostles to give to those in need.

³⁶For instance, there was Joseph, the one the apostles nicknamed Barnabas (which means "Son of Encouragement"). He was from the tribe of Levi and came from the island of Cyprus. ³⁷He sold a field he owned and brought the money to the apostles.

Ananias and Sapphira Attempt to Deceive

5 But there was a certain man named Ananias who, with his wife, Sapphira, sold some property. ²He brought part of the money to the apostles, claiming it was the full amount. With his wife's consent, he kept the rest.

³Then Peter said, "Ananias, why have you letⁱ Satan fill your heart? You lied to the Holy Spirit, and you kept some of the money for yourself. ⁴The property was yours to sell or not sell, as you wished. And after selling it, the money was also yours to give away. How could you do a thing like this? You weren't lying to us but to God!"

⁵As soon as Ananias heard these words, he fell to the floor and died. Everyone who heard about it was terrified. ⁶Then some young men got up, wrapped him in a sheet, and took him out and buried him.

⁷About three hours later his wife came in, not knowing what had happened. ⁸Peter asked her, "Was this the price you and your husband received for your land?"

"Yes," she replied, "that was the price."

⁹And Peter said, "How could the two of you even think of conspiring to test the Spirit of the Lord like this? The young men who buried your husband are just outside the door, and they will carry you out, too."

¹⁰Instantly, she fell to the floor and died. When the young men came in and saw that she was dead, they carried her out and buried her beside her husband. ¹¹Great fear gripped the entire church and everyone else who heard what had happened.

4:25-26 This passage quotes Ps 2:1-2, which describes the response of the Gentile nations to the Lord's anointed king. In a similar manner, the Jews and Gentiles in Jerusalem had gathered together against Jesus and now against his followers.

4:26 his Messiah: Or his anointed one; or his Christ. The term "anointed one" originally referred to Israel's anointed king; it came to refer to the Messiah, the coming King of Israel who would establish God's Kingdom forever (2 Sam 7:14-16; Ps 89:36-37; Isa 9:6-7; 11:1-9; 61:1; Jer 23:5-6; 33:14-16; Luke 1:32-33).

4:28 God's hand had been directing events all along in order to achieve his purpose. A similar awareness of God's hand guiding the affairs of his people is found in the OT (cp. Ezra 7:6, 9, 28; 8:18, 31; Neh 2:8, 18; Eccl 9:1; Ezek 8:1; Rom 8:28; 1 Pet 5:6).

4:32-35 The sharing of early believers was remarkable (see also 2:44-45; cp. 6:1). Being united in heart and mind, they willingly offered anything they possessed to meet the needs of other believers. This sharing was voluntary and without coercion, and it related to pressing needs in the community and was prompted by Christian love and concern for one another.

4:36-37 Barnabas is held up as an example of generous, unselfish giving in response to the genuine needs in the Christian community (see "Barnabas," facing page).

5:1-11 Luke is fond of balancing a positive example with a negative example. He has just recorded the remarkable story of Barnabas (4:36-37). Now Luke presents the opposite conduct of Ananias and Sapphira, who were tempted by the desire to be held in high regard.

Ananias had not been forced to sell his property or to give the proceeds away. The couple's sin was in their pretense and deception.

5:3-4 In lying about their property sale, Ananias was not just lying to others but to the Holy Spirit—that is, to God. His actions compromised the transparent sincerity, unity, and integrity of the church at its very foundation, and thus he fell under the direct judgment of God (cp. Lev 10:1-5; Josh 7:16-26).

5:11 Great fear gripped the entire church and everyone else who heard what had happened: The sudden judgment on Ananias and then on Sapphira had a sobering effect on both the Christian community and those who heard about this incident (cp. Heb 10:31). Believers were forcefully reminded that they needed to be pure, and for non-Christians the believers' integrity

The Apostles Heal Many

¹²The apostles were performing many miraculous signs and wonders among the people. And all the believers were meeting regularly at the Temple in the area known as Solomon's Colonnade. ¹³But no one else dared to join them, even though all the people had high regard for them. ¹⁴Yet more and more people ^kbelieved and were brought to the Lord—crowds of both men and women. ¹⁵As a result of the apostles' work, sick people were brought out into the streets on beds and mats so that Peter's shadow might fall across some of them as he went by. ¹⁶Crowds came from the villages around Jerusalem, bringing their sick and those possessed by evil spirits, and they were all healed.

The Second Clash with Judaism (5:17-42) The Apostles Arrested and Rescued

¹⁷The high priest and his officials, who were Sadducees, were filled with jealousy. ¹⁸They arrested the apostles and put them in the public jail. ¹⁹But an ^aangel of the Lord came at night, opened the gates of the jail, and brought them out. Then he told them, ²⁰"Go to the Temple and give the people this message of life!"

Barnabas (4:36-37)

Acts 9:26-28; 11:19-30; 13:1-15:40
Gal 2:1-14

Barnabas, like Stephen (see 6:5-8:2), is presented in Acts as a model Christian leader. A native of Cyprus, Barnabas was active in the Jerusalem church and demonstrated unselfish generosity in meeting the needs of the poorer members of that community (4:32-37). His given name was Joseph, but he was nicknamed Barnabas ("Son of Encouragement," 4:36), which indicates his character. He was a suitable person to give a fair and open-minded assessment of the new work in Antioch (11:19-22). Barnabas perceived God's blessing there and "encouraged the believers to stay true to the Lord" (11:23). His sterling character was clear in his transparent goodness, abundant faith, and Spirit-filled life and work (11:24). The leaders of the Antioch church chose him as their representative on the first missionary journey (13:1-3), confirming their recognition of his worth.

Barnabas's wisdom is clear in his trip to Tarsus to find Saul (11:25). Barnabas had been impressed by the boldness of Saul's preaching as a new Christian in Damascus and had taken him to the apostles, providing a vital introduction for a man who was under suspicion for his previous unrelenting attacks against believers. Through Barnabas's intervention, Saul obtained needed contact with the original apostles, received their acceptance, and preached fearlessly in Jerusalem until he was forced out of the city (9:26-30). Barnabas's trip was successful, and for a full year the two worked together in the Antioch church, drawing large crowds (11:26).

Barnabas was an impressive figure (note his reception in Lystra as Zeus, 14:8-18) and "a good man, full of the Holy Spirit and strong in faith" (11:24). He was John Mark's cousin and mentor and played a major role in giving John Mark a second chance to make good as a Christian leader (15:36-40).

Barnabas knew peer pressure, and he gave in to it on one occasion although he knew better (Gal 2:11-16). Paul's reminder to the Romans is helpful here: "Don't copy the behavior and customs of this world, but let God transform you into a new person by changing the way you think" (Rom 12:2). Barnabas wasn't perfect, but he was a Son of Encouragement to many and a generous, unselfish man who fostered growth in others and in the church.

was reestablished, so that once again "all the people had high regard for them" (5:13). Yet it also made outsiders wary of joining a movement with such high standards (5:13). This divine "pruning" (see John 15:1-11) helped new growth to follow (5:14; cp. 6:5-7; 11:24; 21:20).

5:12-16 As in Jesus' ministry, the apostles' preaching was accompanied by many miraculous signs and wonders, including convincing works of healing and exorcism (see also 6:8; cp. Matt 4:24; 9:35; Mark 1:32-34; Luke 4:40-41).

5:13 no one else dared to join them: Perhaps the high standards of belief or what had happened to Ananias and Sapphira (5:11) were daunting to the crowds. • though all the people had high regard for them: Christians were markedly different from the unbelievers around them.

5:16 evil: Literally unclean.

5:17-40 The success of the apostles' ministry again aroused strong opposition (cp. 4:1-3). The wealthy and powerful Sadducees controlled the Temple establishment and had a Temple police force at their disposal. They opposed belief in the resurrection (see "The Sadducees" at Matt 16:1-12, p. 1610) and were determined not to allow the apostles to proclaim their message about the resurrection of Jesus unchallenged. They also sensed that their hold on the Jewish people was loosening, so, filled with jealousy, they attacked the apostles.

5:19-20 The irony here is that the Sadducees denied the existence of angels (23:8). Angels frequently intervened in Acts (see also 10:3, 7, 22; 11:13; 12:6-11, 23; 27:23-24). Luke presents God as guiding his people in their ministry, using angels to accomplish his purpose.

²¹So at daybreak the apostles entered the Temple, as they were told, and immediately began teaching.

When the high priest and his officials arrived, they convened the high council—the full assembly of the elders of Israel. Then they sent for the apostles to be brought from the jail for trial. ²²But when the Temple guards went to the jail, the men were gone. So they returned to the council and reported, ²³“The jail was securely locked, with the guards standing outside, but when we opened the gates, no one was there!”

²⁴When the captain of the Temple guard and the leading priests heard this, they were perplexed, wondering where it would all end. ²⁵Then someone arrived with startling news: “The men you put in jail are standing in the Temple, teaching the people!”

The Apostles Arrested Again and Examined

²⁶The captain went with his Temple guards and arrested the apostles, but without violence, for they were afraid the people would stone them. ²⁷Then they brought the apostles before the high council, where the high priest confronted them. ²⁸“We gave you strict orders never again to teach in this man’s name!” he said. “Instead, you have filled all Jerusalem with your teaching about him, and you want to make us responsible for his death!”

²⁹But Peter and the apostles replied, “We must obey God rather than any human authority. ³⁰The God of our ancestors raised Jesus from the dead after you killed him by hanging him on a cross. ³¹Then God put him in the place of honor at his right hand as Prince and Savior. He did this so the people of Israel would repent of their sins and be forgiven. ³²We are witnesses of these things and so is the Holy Spirit, who is given by God to those who obey him.”

³³When they heard this, the high council was furious and decided to kill them.

³⁴But one member, a Pharisee named Gamaliel, who was an expert in religious law and respected by all the people, stood up and ordered that the men be sent outside

The Holy Spirit’s Presence (5:32)

The book of Acts clearly highlights the presence and power of the Holy Spirit. Jesus spoke in advance of the Spirit’s influence on the growth of the church (1:8; see John 14:15-17, 26; 15:26; 16:7-15). The Spirit’s guidance was clear in the selection of Spirit-filled leaders to care for the needs of the Hellenistic widows (6:1-7) and in the appointing of Barnabas and Saul for missionary service (13:1-5). When the first church council met to consider the membership of Gentiles in the church, those present followed the Spirit’s direction (15:28). Christian workers such as Stephen and Philip were filled with the Spirit and preached by his power (chs 6–8), and Paul’s ministry was charged with the Spirit’s energy from the beginning (9:17). In Acts, the growth, development, and expansion of the church took place entirely under the guidance and power of the Spirit (e.g., 2:4, 41-47; 4:31; 5:32; 8:15, 17, 29; 9:31). Because of the prominence of the Spirit’s work in Acts, the book has often been called “the Acts of the Holy Spirit.”

The Holy Spirit works in many ways. He gives and restores life (Gen 2:7; Ps 104:24-30; Ezek 37:1-14; Joel 2:28-32; Rom 8:9-11). He calls and commissions workers for the service of Christ (13:2; 20:28) and guides God’s servants where and when he wants, to do as he desires (8:29; 9:15; 10:19-20; 11:12; 16:6; 1 Cor 2:13; 1 Pet 1:12). He inspired the writing of Scripture (2 Tim 3:16-17; 2 Pet 1:20-21), instructing the church in Christ’s message (John 14:26; 1 Cor 12:3). He bears witness to the power of the Good News in signs and wonders (14:3; Heb 2:4), and teaches the truths of the Bible to God’s people (1:16; Heb 9:8; 10:15-17; 1 Pet 1:11-12). He bears witness to Jesus and brings him glory (John 15:26; 16:14). He convicts people of their sinfulness and need for the Good News (John 16:8) and warns people against hardening their hearts (Heb 3:7-11, 15). He bestows gifts upon God’s people (1 Cor 12:4-11), and he energizes and equips them to share the Good News, serve the Lord, and work for the Kingdom of God. (See also “The Holy Spirit’s Work” at 1 Cor 12:1-11, p. 1945.)

5:21 high council: Greek Sanhedrin; also in 5:27, 41.

5:29 See note on 4:19-20.

5:30-32 We are witnesses of these things: The apostles, as witnesses, were required to testify to what they had seen and heard (see Lev 5:1; cp. Acts 1:8; Matt 28:18-20; Luke 24:44-49; John 20:21).

5:30 on a cross: Literally on a tree.

5:33-40 God once again thwarted the Jewish leaders’ plans to stop the apostles—this time through the counsel of Gamaliel.

5:34 Gamaliel was an eminent Pharisee, a leader in the Jewish high council, and a famous teacher of the law. He was Paul’s teacher during his rabbinical education (see 22:3).

the council chamber for a while. ³⁵Then he said to his colleagues, "Men of Israel, take care what you are planning to do to these men! ³⁶Some time ago there was that fellow Theudas, who pretended to be someone great. About 400 others joined him, but he was killed, and all his followers went their various ways. The whole movement came to nothing. ³⁷After him, at the time of the census, there was Judas of Galilee. The Apostles Beaten, Threatened, and Released ⁴⁰The others accepted his advice. They called in the apostles and had them flogged. Then they ordered them never again to speak in the name of Jesus, and they let them go.

⁴¹The apostles left the high council rejoicing that God had counted them worthy to suffer disgrace for the name of Jesus. ⁴²And every day, in the Temple and from house to house, they continued to teach and preach this message: "Jesus is the ^dMessiah."

The Role of the Greek-Speaking Jews (6:1–8:40)

Seven Men Chosen to Serve

6 But as the believers rapidly multiplied, there were rumblings of discontent. The Greek-speaking believers complained about the Hebrew-speaking believers, saying that their widows were being discriminated against in the daily ^ddistribution of food.

In Acts 6 the new Christian community faced a crisis of leadership. The Hellenists, the Greek-speaking Jews in Jerusalem, were upset because the needs of their widows were being overlooked "in the daily distribution of food" (6:1). This disruption threatened the development of the church with "rumblings of discontent" (6:1) and had to be seriously addressed. Wisely, the apostles recognized the problem (6:2-3) and called for the selection of seven men to administer the food program (6:5-6). Many interpreters see the seven as the first deacons (see note on 6:2-6).

The apostles provided leadership that empowers by sensitively listening to genuine community needs. This wise handling of the issue, with the united, responsible action of both people and leaders, resulted in spiritual growth and increased the number of believers (6:7). Different gifts were recognized in the church and put to work for the common good (see 1 Cor 12:4-11; 1 Pet 4:10-11). A clear division of labor was agreed upon, with the apostles attending to preaching and teaching, and the material needs of the people being handled by other Spirit-filled leaders.

Every believer has the opportunity to exercise some kind of ministry. This usefulness of every Christian in the service of God is sometimes called the "priesthood of all believers" (1 Pet 2:5, 9; Rev 1:6; 5:10; see Exod 19:6; Isa 61:6; Rev 20:6). Not everyone has the same role, but all have the same calling to use their gifts in God's service.

God has given the church its leaders, not to "lord it over" other people, but to serve the community (Matt 20:25-28). The leaders of the church do well when they recognize both the needs of the community and those whom God has prepared to meet those needs. Good leaders recognize gifted people and help them develop, empowering the members of the body to use their God-given gifts (Eph 4:11-12).

5:36-37 This Theudas is otherwise unknown, although Josephus mentions a different man by that name who raised a revolt some years later (see Josephus, Antiquities 20.5.1). Theudas was a common Jewish name. • Judas of Galilee appears in Josephus as a rebel who opposed giving tribute to Caesar about AD 6 or 7, following the census of Quirinius (see Josephus, Antiquities 20.5.2; cp. Luke 2:2). His resistance, too, was crushed.

5:41 for the name of Jesus: Literally for the name.

6:1 The Greek-speaking believers were Jewish Christians who had lived elsewhere in the Greco-Roman world and probably observed some Greek customs. The Hebrew-speaking believers were more traditional Jews, native to Palestine, who spoke Hebrew or Aramaic and refrained from Greek customs. • believers: Literally disciples; also in 6:2, 7.

• their widows were being discriminated against: This injustice threatened the growth and development of the church with rumblings of discontent, and had to be addressed.

6:2-6 Wisely, the apostles called a meeting of all the believers to address believers. They said, “We apostles should spend our time teaching the ‘word of God, not running a food program. ³And so, brothers, select seven men who are well respected and are full of the Spirit and wisdom. We will give them this responsibility. ⁴Then we apostles can spend our time in prayer and ⁵teaching the word.”

⁵Everyone liked this idea, and they chose the following: Stephen (a man full of faith and the Holy Spirit), Philip, Procorus, Nicator, Timon, Parmenas, and Nicolas of Antioch (an earlier convert to the Jewish faith). ⁶These seven were presented to the apostles, who prayed for them as they laid their hands on them.

⁷So God’s message continued to spread. The number of believers greatly increased in Jerusalem, and many of the Jewish priests were converted, too.

Stephen Is Arrested

⁸Stephen, a man full of God’s grace and power, performed amazing miracles and signs among the people. ⁹But one day some men from the Synagogue of Freed Slaves, as it was called, started to debate with him. They were Jews from Cyrene, Alexandria, Cilicia, and the province of Asia. ¹⁰None of them could stand against the wisdom and the Spirit with which Stephen spoke.

¹¹So they persuaded some men to lie about Stephen, saying, “We heard him blaspheme Moses, and even God.” ¹²This roused the people, the elders, and the teachers of religious law. So they arrested Stephen and brought him before the high council.

¹³The lying witnesses said, “This man is always speaking against the holy Temple and against the law of Moses. ¹⁴We have heard him say that this Jesus of Nazareth will destroy the Temple and change the customs Moses handed down to us.”

¹⁵At this point everyone in the high council stared at Stephen, because his face became as bright as an angel’s.

Stephen’s Testimony before the Council

7 Then the high priest asked Stephen, “Are these accusations true?”

²This was Stephen’s reply: “Brothers and fathers, listen to me. Our glorious God appeared to our ancestor Abraham in Mesopotamia before he settled in Haran. ³God told him, ‘Leave your native land and your relatives, and come into the land that I will show you.’ ⁴So Abraham left the land of the Chaldeans and lived in Haran until his father died. Then God brought him here to the land where you now live.

⁵“But God gave him no inheritance here, not even one square foot of land. God did promise, however, that eventually the whole land would belong to Abraham and his descendants—even though he had no children yet. ⁶God also told him that his descendants would live in a foreign land, where they would be oppressed as slaves for 400 years. ⁷But I will punish the nation that enslaves them,’ God said, ‘and in the end they will come out and worship me here in this place.’

the dispute. They recognized the seriousness of the problem, as well as their own priority of teaching the word of God. The solution was to select wise and Spirit-filled men to oversee the food distribution. The community accepted the apostles’ solution and chose good leaders from the ranks of the Greek-speaking believers (all of their names are Greek). These seven devoted themselves to this special ministry, allowing the apostles to spend their time in prayer and teaching the word. • These seven men are sometimes called the first deacons because of the similarity of their role to the office of deacon (see 1 Tim 3:8-13). Although the Greek term translated “deacon” (Greek diakonos, “servant”) is not used here, a related Greek word is translated running a food program (6:2; Greek diakonein, “to serve”).

6:7 The result of the apostles’ wise handling of the issue was growth and increase in the number of believers, including many of the Jewish priests. • This is the first of three places in Acts where Luke notes that God’s message continued to spread (see also 12:24; 19:20). When real difficulties arose, God’s message could overcome the challenges posed by internal strife, idolatry, and paganism, and the result was growth in the community. Acts is the story of the “unhindered” message of Good News (see 28:31).

6:8-15 The Jewish leaders did to Stephen as they had done to Jesus (cp. Matt 26:3-4, 59-66): They got someone to lie about him, accused him of blasphemy, incited a riot, arrested him, and posted false charges against him.

6:12 high council: Greek Sanhedrin; also in 6:15.

6:14 Jesus of Nazareth: Or Jesus the Nazarene.

6:15 His face became as bright as an angel’s, just as Moses’ face had (6:14; see Exod 34:32-35). Stephen, like Moses, was bringing God’s instruction to Israel (see also 2 Cor 3:7-18).

7:1-53 Stephen responded to the accusations by testifying about his Lord (cp. Luke 21:12-17). Instead of defending himself against their prosecution, he became a witness in God’s prosecution of them, exposing their stubbornness and unfaithfulness to God. Stephen’s recital of Israel’s past reminded them of their repeated rejections of those whom God had sent. • Stephen’s review of Israel’s history has three principal parts, dealing with the work of the patriarchs (7:2-16), the ministry of Moses (7:17-43), and the role of the Tabernacle and the Temple (7:44-50). Stephen followed up his historical survey with a clear attack on the hardheartedness of his own people. With a prophetic challenge, he urged them to stop rebelling against the Holy Spirit and turn to God with repentance and faith.

“God also gave Abraham the covenant of circumcision at that time. So when Abraham became the father of Isaac, he circumcised him on the eighth day. And the practice was continued when Isaac became the father of Jacob, and when Jacob became the father of the twelve patriarchs of the Israelite nation.

“These patriarchs were jealous of their brother Joseph, and they sold him to be a slave in Egypt. But God was with him¹⁰ and rescued him from all his troubles. And God gave him favor before Pharaoh, king of Egypt. God also gave Joseph unusual wisdom, so that Pharaoh appointed him governor over all of Egypt and put him in charge of the palace.

“But a famine came upon Egypt and Canaan. There was great misery, and our ancestors ran out of food.¹² Jacob heard that there was still grain in Egypt, so he sent his sons—our ancestors—to buy some.¹³ The second time they went, Joseph revealed his identity to his brothers, and they were introduced to Pharaoh.¹⁴ Then Joseph sent for his father, Jacob, and all his relatives to come to Egypt, seventy-five persons in all.¹⁵ So Jacob went to Egypt. He died there, as did our ancestors.¹⁶ Their bodies were taken to Shechem and buried in the tomb Abraham had bought for a certain price from Hamor’s sons in Shechem.

“As the time drew near when God would fulfill his promise to Abraham, the number of our people in Egypt greatly increased.¹⁸ But then a new king came to the throne of Egypt who knew nothing about Joseph.¹⁹ This king exploited our people and oppressed them, forcing parents to abandon their newborn babies so they would die.

“At that time Moses was born—a beautiful child in God’s eyes. His parents cared for him at home for three months.²¹ When they had to abandon him, Pharaoh’s daughter adopted him and raised him as her own son.²² Moses was^htaught all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and he was powerful in both^lspeech and action.

²³“One day when Moses was forty years old, he decided to visit his relatives, the people of Israel.²⁴ He saw an Egyptian mistreating an Israelite. So Moses came to the man’s defense and avenged him, killing the Egyptian.²⁵ Moses assumed his fellow Israelites would realize that God had sent him to rescue them, but they didn’t.

²⁶“The next day he visited them again and saw two men of Israel fighting. He tried to be a peacemaker. ‘Men,’ he said, ‘you are brothers. Why are you fighting each other?’

²⁷“But the man in the wrong pushed Moses aside. ‘Who made you a ruler and judge over us?’ he asked.²⁸ ‘Are you going to kill me as you killed that Egyptian yesterday?’²⁹ When Moses heard that, he fled the country and lived as a foreigner in the land of Midian. There his two sons were born.

³³“Then the LORD said to him, ‘Take off your sandals, for you are standing on holy ground.³⁴ I have certainly seen the oppression of my people in Egypt. I have heard their groans and have come down to rescue them. Now go, for I am sending you back to Egypt.’

³⁵“So God sent back the same man his people had previously rejected when they demanded, ‘Who made you a ruler and judge over us?’ Through the angel who appeared to him in the burning bush, God sent Moses to be their ruler and savior.³⁶ And by means of many wonders and miraculous signs, he led them out of Egypt, through the Red Sea, and through the wilderness for forty years.

³⁷“Moses himself told the people of Israel, ‘God will raise up for you a Prophet like me from among your own people.’³⁸ Moses was with our ancestors, the assembly of God’s people in the wilderness, when the angel spoke to him at Mount Sinai. And there

7:14 Compare this figure with the seventy mentioned in the Hebrew text of Gen 46:27. The number seventy-five is probably taken from the Septuagint

(the Greek translation of the OT) for Gen 46:27. The Septuagint includes three descendants of Ephraim and two of Manasseh at Gen 46:20, making for a total of five more persons, whereas the Hebrew text does not include descendants for Joseph’s sons. The NT authors often quote from the Septuagint, which sometimes differs from the Hebrew Masoretic Text.

7:16 a certain price: Four hundred pieces of silver, according to Gen 23:16.

7:37 This verse quotes Deut 18:15. Moses had prophesied that the Messiah would come, and it had happened as Moses said.

7:38 to us: Some manuscripts read to you.

Moses received life-giving words to pass on to us.

³⁹“But our ancestors refused to listen to Moses. They rejected him and wanted to return to Egypt. ⁴⁰They told Aaron, ‘Make us some gods who can lead us, for we don’t know what has become of this Moses, who brought us out of Egypt.’ ⁴¹So they made an idol shaped like a calf, and they sacrificed to it and celebrated over this thing they had made. ⁴²Then God turned away from them and abandoned them to serve the stars of heaven as their gods! In the book of the prophets it is written,

‘Was it to me you were bringing sacrifices and offerings during those forty years in the wilderness, Israel?’

⁴³ No, you carried your pagan gods—the shrine of Molech, the star of your god Rephan, and the images you made to worship them.

So I will send you into exile as far away as Babylon.’

⁴⁴“Our ancestors carried the Tabernacle with them through the wilderness. It was constructed according to the plan God had shown to Moses. ⁴⁵Years later, when Joshua led our ancestors in battle against the nations that God drove out of this land, the Tabernacle was taken with them into their new territory. And it stayed there until the time of King David.

⁴⁶“David found favor with God and asked for the privilege of building a permanent Temple for the God of Jacob. ⁴⁷But it was Solomon who actually built it. ⁴⁸However, the Most High doesn’t live in temples made by human hands. As the prophet says,

Stephen (6:5–8:2)

Acts 11:19; 22:20

Stephen, like Barnabas (see 4:36-37), was an exemplary early Christian who, as a result of the boldness of his witness, was arrested and killed by the Jewish authorities. He is known as the first Christian martyr.

A Hellenistic (Greek-speaking) Jewish Christian, Stephen was one of seven men chosen to help administer the distribution of food to needy Christians in Jerusalem (6:1-6). He was the most prominent of the seven and is singled out as a man “full of faith and the Holy Spirit” (6:5). Manifesting the grace and power of God in an unusual measure, he did miraculous things (6:8) and proved to be a bold and effective evangelist and defender of the faith (6:9-10). His witness was so powerful, he was soon arrested by the authorities and brought before the high council for interrogation (6:9-12).

When witnesses accused Stephen of speaking against the sacred Temple and the law of Moses (6:13-14; cp. Mark 13:2; John 2:19; 4:21), he defended himself before the Jewish high council (7:1-53). He spoke of Israel’s long history of resisting God and his servants—first Moses and now the Prophet whom Moses had predicted (7:51-53). The Jewish authorities, infuriated by Stephen’s bold accusations, dragged him outside the city and stoned him to death (7:54-60). As he died, Stephen prayed that they might be forgiven (7:60).

Stephen’s bold witness gave rise to the first wave of persecution of the early Christians (8:1-3). But it resulted in the Good News spreading even wider as the believers fled Jerusalem and proclaimed the message of Jesus everywhere they went (8:4; 11:19-21). Stephen’s death provides the first example of the maxim, “The blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church.” His martyrdom marks the beginning of the spread of the Good News beyond the borders of Judaism, which ultimately made Christianity, more than any other faith, a worldwide religion. Stephen’s strong expression of faith, even as he was dying, could have been a factor in the later conversion of Saul, who observed his stoning (7:58–8:1; see 22:19-20).

Stephen’s life reminds us of the determined opposition that a faithful Christian witness can provoke. A bold testimony for Christ may be costly (see 22:20; Rev 2:10, 13), but there is no insuperable barrier to the growth of the church (see 8:1-3; Matt 16:18).

7:39-40 Just as the ancient Jews had rejected what Moses was saying, now Stephen was speaking to descendants who were still rejecting God’s deliverers—in this case, Jesus, the ultimate deliverer.

7:42-43 This passage quotes Amos 5:25-27 (Greek version) to illustrate how the people of Israel rebelled against Moses (7:39-41). Molech was a Canaanite god to whom human sacrifices were offered (Lev 18:21; 20:2-5; 1 Kgs 11:7; 2 Kgs 23:10; Jer 32:35). Rephan was a star god identified with the planet Saturn, who was worshiped by the Israelites during their wilderness wanderings.

7:44 the Tabernacle: Literally the tent of witness.

7:46 the God of Jacob: Some manuscripts read the house of Jacob.

7:48-50 One of the charges was that Stephen was speaking against the Temple (cp. 6:14). The leading priests

Stephen.

Persecution Scatters the Believers

1 Jn 5:12-13

In the book of Acts, the activity of the living God is clearly seen in miraculous signs, wonders, and mighty works (4:29-31; 5:12-15; 6:8; 8:6-7; 9:34; 14:3). The Bible does not attempt to prove miracles, but simply reports them. Filled with the Holy Spirit, the apostles and other Christian leaders performed them. The miracles offer tangible evidence of the power and truth of the Christian message (14:3; see John 3:2; Heb 2:4).

The greatest miracles are (1) the coming of Jesus Christ as the Word of God in human flesh (John 1:14), (2) his glorious resurrection from the dead (Matt 28; Mark 16; Luke 24; John 20; see Acts 23:6; 26:8), and (3) the miracle of the new birth (John 3:3-8; Gal 2:20; Eph 2:8-10). The coming of Jesus into the world to be the Savior and to die for our sins shows us how much God loves us (John 3:16; Rom 5:8; 8:32; Eph 2:4-5; 1 Jn 3:1-2). The fact that God raised Jesus from the dead reveals God's power over death and gives us a living hope, the promise of eternal life (1 Pet 1:3-8). The person who puts faith in Jesus Christ as Savior and Lord receives eternal life (John 1:12; 3:36; Rom 5:1-2; 1 Jn 5:12-13). Miracles remind us of the truth that "what is impossible for people is possible with God" (Luke 18:27; cp. Matt 19:26; Mark 10:27).

and scribes controlled the Temple commerce and had a vital business interest in maintaining their enterprises unhindered (see Luke 19:45-48). That is why these leaders were so worried about the Temple despite the fact that God himself had said that the Most High doesn't live in temples made by human hands.

7:49-50 This passage quotes Isa 66:1-2.

7:51 Stephen raised the same charge that God had raised against his people in the wilderness: that they were heathen (literally uncircumcised) at heart and deaf to truth, because they were rejecting the gospel and obstinately resisting the Holy Spirit (see Exod 32:9; 33:3; 34:9; Deut 9:6, 13; 31:27; see also Ps 78:8; Zech 7:11-12).

7:54 they shook their fists at him in rage: Literally they were grinding their teeth against him.

7:55-56 Jesus standing . . . at God's right hand: Usually Jesus is described as seated in heaven at God's right hand (2:33-34; 5:31; Luke 20:42; 22:69; Rom 8:34; Eph 1:20; Col 3:1; Heb 1:3, 13; 10:12). One possible explanation is that Jesus was welcoming Stephen, the first martyr, to heaven with honor. Stephen had confessed his Lord faithfully on earth, and now his Lord honored his promise to confess his faithful servant in heaven, standing as a witness to defend him (Matt 10:32; Luke 12:8). • the Son of Man standing: Cp. Dan 7:13-14. The Jewish leaders understood that Stephen was speaking of Jesus as the divine Son of Man (7:57), a title that speaks of Jesus' power and authority (cp. Rev 1:12-15).

7:57 they put their hands over their ears: They believed that the comparison of Jesus to the divine Son of Man (7:56) was horrible blasphemy.

7:58 Saul is later called Paul; see 13:9. Saul was the Hebrew form, Paul the Greek form of his name.

7:59-60 Stephen's prayer, Lord, don't charge them with this sin, is strikingly similar to Jesus' prayer at his crucifixion (Luke 23:34). Jesus clearly taught his followers the importance of both forgiveness (Matt 6:14-15; Mark 11:25; see Luke 11:4; 17:3-4) and prayer (Luke 11:5-10; 18:1-8; see also Acts 1:12-15; 4:23-31; 12:5; Jas 5:16-18). The Lord answered Stephen's prayer affirmatively in the case of Saul (ch 9).

8:1-4 Saul: Cp. 9:1-2; 22:4; 26:9-11; Gal 1:13-14. The result of this great wave of persecution was that all the believers . . .

all the believers except the apostles were scattered through the regions of Judea and Samaria. ²(Some devout men came and buried Stephen with great mourning.) ³But Saul was going everywhere to destroy the church. He went from house to house, dragging out both men and women to throw them into prison.

Philip Preaches in Samaria

⁴But the believers who were scattered preached the Good News about Jesus wherever they went. ⁵Philip, for example, went to the city of Samaria and told the people there about the Messiah. ⁶Crowds listened intently to Philip because they were eager to hear his message and see the miraculous ^ksigns he did. ⁷Many evil spirits were cast out, screaming as they left their victims. And many who had been paralyzed or lame were healed. ⁸So there was great joy in that city.

⁹A man named Simon had been a sorcerer there for many years, amazing the people of Samaria and claiming to be someone great. ¹⁰Everyone, from the least to the greatest, often spoke of him as “the Great One—the Power of God.” ¹¹They listened closely to him because for a long time he had astounded them with his magic.

¹²But now the people believed Philip’s message of Good News concerning the Kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ. As a result, many men and women were baptized. ¹³Then Simon himself believed and was baptized. He began following Philip wherever he went, and he was amazed by the signs and great miracles Philip performed.

¹⁴When the apostles in Jerusalem heard that the people of Samaria had accepted God’s message, they sent Peter and John there. ¹⁵As soon as they arrived, they prayed for these new believers to receive the Holy

Philip the Evangelist (8:4-13, 26-40)

Acts 6:5; 21:8-9

Philip, a prominent Hellenistic (Greek-speaking) Jewish Christian, was one of the first to take the Good News of Christ to those outside the borders of Judaism. Well respected among the early Christians, he was one of seven men chosen to administer the food-distribution program for needy believers in Jerusalem (6:1-6). Philip was a strong and effective evangelist in the power of the Spirit.

When Christians were forced to flee Jerusalem following the death of Stephen (8:4), Philip carried the Good News of Christ north to the ethnically-mixed city of Samaria. There he performed many miraculous healings and exorcisms, and people responded eagerly to his message (8:5-8). Many men and women were baptized, including a notorious sorcerer named Simon (8:9-13). Then, directed by an angel, Philip traveled southwest from Jerusalem toward Gaza (8:26). There, directed by the Spirit, he met the treasurer of Ethiopia, who was returning home after visiting Jerusalem (8:27). When the Ethiopian asked Philip to help him understand Isaiah 53, Philip told him the Good News about Jesus (8:28-35), then baptized the man by the roadside (8:36-38). Philip was then suddenly taken away by the Spirit of God to the town of Azotus (8:39-40), where he again preached the Good News. He traveled through all the coastal towns until he came to the large Roman city of Caesarea on the coast, where he settled down (8:40; 21:8-9).

Many years later, Paul spent a night in Philip’s home in Caesarea (21:8). By this time Philip was known as Philip the Evangelist. He had raised four unmarried daughters, all of whom had the gift of prophecy (21:9).

Philip exemplifies early Christian evangelists, whom the Holy Spirit empowered and guided to authenticate their witness (see also 1:8; 3:4-8; 5:12-16; 6:8; 10:9-20; 13:2; 14:8; 16:6-10; 19:11-12; 20:9-12, 22-23). Philip submitted to the power and guidance of the Spirit, and God used him to take the Good News to those beyond the borders of Judaism.

were scattered. Rather than having their enthusiasm dampened, however, they simply spread the Good News about Jesus wherever they went.

8:5-25 Philip: See “Philip the Evangelist,” above.

8:7 evil: Literally unclean. • cast out . . . healed: Miracles often accompany evangelism in Acts (see note on 3:1-11).

8:9-24 Simon the sorcerer was a showman, dazzling the people of Samaria and making self-exalting claims. Simon’s attempt to obtain spiritual power through payment gave the name simony to the later corrupt practice of buying and selling ordination to church leadership (cp. 1 Tim 6:9-10). Peter strongly rebuked Simon’s wickedness.

8:14-17 When the apostles sent two of their own to Samaria, it was an amazing step in overcoming prejudice (cp. Matt 10:5; Luke 9:52-54; John 4:9; 8:48). Then, it was even more amazing that Peter and John prayed that the new Samaritan believers would receive the Holy Spirit. This event parallels the day of Pentecost in Jerusalem (ch 2) and marks the spread of the Holy Spirit’s power from Judea to Samaria (1:8).

Spirit. ¹⁶The Holy Spirit had not yet come upon any of them, for they had only been baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. ¹⁷Then Peter and John laid their hands upon these believers, and they received the Holy Spirit.

¹⁸When Simon saw that the Spirit was given when the apostles laid their hands on people, he offered them money to buy this power. ¹⁹"Let me have this power, too," he exclaimed, "so that when I lay my hands on people, they will receive the Holy Spirit!"

²⁰But Peter replied, "May your money be destroyed with you for thinking God's gift can be bought! ²¹You can have no part in this, for your heart is not right with God. ²²Repent of your wickedness and pray to the Lord. Perhaps he will forgive your evil thoughts, ²³for I can see that you are full of bitter jealousy and are held captive by sin."

²⁴"Pray to the Lord for me," Simon exclaimed, "that these terrible things you've said won't happen to me!"

²⁵After testifying and preaching the word of the Lord in Samaria, Peter and John returned to Jerusalem. And they stopped in many Samaritan villages along the way to preach the Good News.

Philip and the Ethiopian Eunuch

²⁶As for Philip, an ^aangel of the Lord said to him, "Go south down the desert road that runs from Jerusalem to Gaza." ²⁷So he started out, and he met the treasurer of Ethiopia, a eunuch of great authority under the Kandake, the queen of Ethiopia. The eunuch had gone to Jerusalem to worship, ²⁸and he was now returning. Seated in his carriage, he was reading aloud from the book of the prophet Isaiah.

²⁹The Holy Spirit said to Philip, "Go over and walk along beside the carriage."

³⁰Philip ran over and heard the man reading from the prophet Isaiah. Philip asked, "Do you understand what you are reading?"

³¹The man replied, "How can I, unless someone instructs me?" And he urged Philip to come up into the carriage and sit with him.

³²The passage of Scripture he had been reading was this:

"He was led like a sheep to the slaughter.
And as a ^blamb is silent before the shearers,
he did not open his mouth.

³³He was humiliated and received no justice.
Who can speak of his descendants?
For his life was taken from the earth."

³⁴The eunuch asked Philip, "Tell me, was the prophet talking about himself or someone else?" ³⁵So beginning with this same Scripture, Philip told him the Good News about Jesus.

³⁶As they rode along, they came to some water, and the eunuch said, "Look! There's some water! Why can't I be baptized?" ³⁸He ◀ Philip's Ministry (8:4-40). When persecution began sweeping over the church in JERUSALEM, Philip traveled north to SAMARIA, where he proclaimed the Good News and many people became believers. Later, God's Spirit directed Philip to go south toward GAZA. Along the way, he evangelized an Ethiopian eunuch. After the eunuch was baptized, the Spirit "snatched Philip away" to AZOTUS (8:39-40), where Philip continued preaching and traveling north to CAESAREA.

8:26-40 Philip obeyed the Holy Spirit's leading and then seized the opportunity to share the message of Good News with a eunuch on the desert road . . . from Jerusalem to Gaza. This incident shows Philip's remarkable effectiveness as a Christian apologist and evangelist in his outreach for Christ and in his breaking down of barriers.

8:26 Go south: Or Go at noon. The Greek can be interpreted either way.

8:27 In the ancient world, a eunuch was an official, typically castrated, who served in a royal court (see 2 Kgs 9:30-32; Esth 1:10; 2:3, 14-15, 21; 4:4-5).

Eunuchs were often scorned by Jews because they could not perpetuate the covenant family, and the law of Moses excluded men who had damaged genitals from the assembly of Israel (Deut 23:1; cp. Lev 21:17-23), but Isaiah spoke of God's acceptance of Gentiles and eunuchs (Isa 56:3-8; see also Matt 19:12). In the new covenant, all who have genuine faith have a place among the people of God. • The eunuch had traveled from Africa to Jerusalem to worship in the Temple, probably for one of the great Jewish festivals.

8:29 The Holy Spirit guides the servants of God in where, when, and what to preach, teach, or do (9:15; 10:19-20; 11:12; 16:6; 1 Cor 2:13; 1 Pet 1:12). See "The Holy Spirit's Presence" at 5:32, p. 1834.

8:32-33 The passage of Scripture was Isa 53:7-8 (Greek version), one of the Servant Songs of Isaiah, a passage that speaks of the suffering servant of the Lord.

8:36 Some manuscripts add verse 37, "You can," Philip answered, "if you believe with all your heart." And the eunuch replied, "I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God."

8:24 Simon recognized the need for Peter to intercede in prayer for him, but it is not clear that he repented and turned from his wickedness. His main concern was apparently to avoid the terrible consequences that Peter predicted when his wicked motives were exposed.

ordered the carriage to stop, and they went down into the water, and Philip baptized him.

³⁹When they came up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord snatched Philip away. The eunuch never saw him again but went on his way rejoicing. ⁴⁰Meanwhile, Philip found himself farther north at the town of Azotus. He preached the Good News there and in every town along the way until he came to Caesarea.

Saul's Conversion (9:1-31)

The Experience of Saul near Damascus

9 Meanwhile, Saul was uttering threats with every breath and was eager to kill the Lord's followers. So he went to the high priest. ²He requested letters addressed to the synagogues in Damascus, asking for their cooperation in the arrest of any followers of the Way he found there. He wanted to bring them—both men and women—back to Jerusalem in chains.

³As he was approaching Damascus on this mission, a light from heaven suddenly shone down around him. ⁴He fell to the ground and heard a voice saying to him, "Saul! Saul! Why are you persecuting me?"

⁵"Who are you, lord?" Saul asked.

And the voice replied, "I am Jesus, the one you are persecuting! ⁶Now get up and go into the city, and you will be told what you must do."

⁷The men with Saul stood speechless, for they heard the sound of someone's voice but saw no one! ⁸Saul picked himself up off the ground, but when he opened his eyes he was blind. So his companions led him by the hand to Damascus. ⁹He remained there blind for three days and did not eat or drink.

The Role of Ananias

¹⁰Now there was a believer in Damascus named Ananias. The Lord spoke to him in a vision, calling, "Ananias!"

"Yes, Lord!" he replied.

¹¹The Lord said, "Go over to Straight Street, to the house of Judas. When you get there, ask for a man from Tarsus named Saul. He is praying to me right now. ¹²I have shown him a vision of a man named Ananias coming in and laying hands on him so he can see again."

¹³"But Lord," exclaimed Ananias, "I've heard many people talk about the terrible things this man has done to the believers in Jerusalem! ¹⁴And he is authorized by the leading priests to arrest everyone who calls upon your name."

¹⁵But the Lord said, "Go, for Saul is my chosen instrument to take my message to the Gentiles and to kings, as well as to the people of Israel. ¹⁶And I will show him how much he must suffer for my name's sake."

• Caesarea Maritima, a major seaport on the Mediterranean, was the seat of Roman government in Judea. It was built by Herod the Great about 22-9 bc and was named to honor Emperor Caesar Augustus.

9:1-19a The conversion of Saul of Tarsus on the Damascus road is of central importance to the narrative of Acts—Luke recounts the story three times (also 22:1-21; 26:1-29). Paul alludes to this experience several times in his letters (1 Cor 15:8-10; Gal 1:11-17; Phil 3:4-11; see 1 Tim 1:12-17). Saul's conversion was his prophetic call and commission as an apostle (9:15; 22:15, 21; 26:15-18). No one is beyond the power of God to reach, redeem, and use them for holy purposes—nothing is impossible with God (Luke 1:37). Paul was prepared through his training, upbringing, and experience to play a unique role in taking the gospel into the broader world as the "apostle to the Gentiles" (Rom 11:13; see 1 Cor 15:9; 2 Cor 12:11-12; Gal 1:1; Eph 3:8).

9:1 followers: Literally disciples.

9:2 The synagogues (Greek synagōgē, "gathering place") were local Jewish meeting places. After the Exile, Jews began to meet in local synagogues as places of instruction and centers of worship. Synagogue services consisted of the reading of the Law and the Prophets, exposition of the Scriptures, prayer, praise, and thanksgiving (see 13:15; 15:21; Neh 9:5; Matt 6:5; Luke 4:16-21). Jesus attended, taught, preached, and performed miracles in synagogues (Matt 12:9-10; Mark 1:21, 39; Luke 4:16; 13:10-13; John 6:59; 18:20), as did the apostles (see 9:20; 13:5, 14; 14:1; 17:1, 10, 17; 18:4, 19, 26). • Damascus, the capital of Syria, was an important center with a long and distinguished past and the nearest major city outside of Palestine. It took from four to six days to reach Damascus from Jerusalem, a fact that highlights Saul's earnestness (9:1-5; see 22:4-8; 26:9-15). • The term the Way is used in Acts for Christianity (see 19:9, 23; 24:14, 22)—it is "the way of God" (18:26) that tells people "how to be saved" (16:17, literally the way of salvation). See also John 14:6; 2 Pet 2:2.

9:10 believer: Literally disciple; also in 9:26, 36. • Ananias: See also 22:12. The name Ananias was quite common (note the husband of Sapphira, 5:1, and the Jewish high priest [AD 47-59], 23:2). • a vision: See "Visions" at 10:9-16, p. 1846.

9:13 the believers: Literally God's holy people; also in 9:32, 41.

9:15 Saul is my chosen instrument to take my message to the Gentiles: In God's plan for spreading the Good News, the Gentiles were the next step (see 1:8; cp. chs 10-11). Saul of Tarsus (Paul) was God's choice to spearhead this expansive missionary effort to bring the Christian message to the Gentiles and to kings, as well as to the people of Israel. The rest of Acts illustrates Saul's (Paul's) faithfulness in carrying out this divine commission (e.g., 26:19-23).

9:16 As Jesus predicted, Paul suffered greatly for his faith (see 2 Cor 11:23-27; see Acts 13:45; 14:19; 16:22-27; 21:30-31; 26:21; 2 Tim 1:11-12).

¹⁷So Ananias went and found Saul. He laid his hands on him and said, "Brother Saul, the Lord Jesus, who appeared to you on the road, has sent me so that you might regain your sight and be filled with the Holy Spirit." ¹⁸Instantly something like scales fell from Saul's eyes, and he regained his sight. Then he got up and was baptized. ¹⁹Afterward he ate some food and regained his strength.

Saul in Damascus and Jerusalem

Saul stayed with the believers in Damascus for a few days. ²⁰And immediately he began preaching about Jesus in the synagogues, saying, "He is indeed the Son of God!"

²¹All who heard him were amazed. "Isn't this the same man who caused such devastation among Jesus' followers in Jerusalem?" they asked. "And didn't he come here to arrest them and take them in chains to the leading priests?"

²²Saul's preaching became more and more powerful, and the Jews in Damascus couldn't refute his proofs that Jesus was indeed the Messiah. ²³After a while some of the Jews plotted together to kill him. ²⁴They were watching for him day and night at the city gate so they could murder him, but Saul was told about their plot. ²⁵So during the night, some of the other believers lowered him in a large basket through an opening in the city wall.

²⁶When Saul arrived in Jerusalem, he tried to meet with the believers, but they were all afraid of him. They did not believe he had truly become a believer! ²⁷Then Barnabas brought him to the apostles and told them how Saul had seen the Lord on the way to Damascus and how the Lord had spoken to Saul. He also told them that Saul had preached boldly in the name of Jesus in Damascus.

²⁸So Saul stayed with the apostles and went all around Jerusalem with them, preaching boldly in the name of the Lord. ²⁹He debated with some Greek-speaking Jews, but they tried to murder him. ³⁰When the believers heard about this, they took him down to Caesarea and sent him away to Tarsus, his hometown.

Summary of the Church

³¹The church then had peace throughout Judea, Galilee, and Samaria, and it became stronger as the believers lived in the fear of ◀ Saul's Conversion and Early Travels, AD 34~37 (9:1-31). In his zeal to stamp out Christianity, Saul (1) traveled north toward DAMASCUS, where he intended to arrest believers, but along the way Christ appeared to him. In Damascus, Saul was baptized and began preaching about Jesus (9:20-23). During this time, Saul evidently (2) traveled to ARABIA and (3) back (see Gal 1:17). After three years in Damascus, he escaped a plot against his life and (4) went to JERUSALEM, where he finally met with the apostles (9:26-28; see Gal 1:18). There, too, he faced death threats, so after a visit of about two weeks he was taken to CAESAREA and (5) sailed to TARSUS, his hometown (9:29-30; see Gal 1:21), where he stayed for approximately ten years (AD 37~47; see 11:25-26).

declaration provoked astonishment, for he was the very man who had created such devastation among Jesus' followers in Jerusalem.

9:22-25 Despite the bewilderment of his hearers, Saul so compellingly presented the evidence for the claims of Jesus as Messiah that the non-believing Jews in Damascus found themselves unable to refute it. Apparently this went on for some time (see Gal 1:18), so some of the non-believing Jews launched a plot on his life, but he was spared when some believers let him down out of the city in a large basket. Paul recounts this incident in 2 Cor 11:32-33.

9:25 some of the other believers: Literally his disciples.

9:26-28 When Saul arrived in Jerusalem, the Christian community understandably did not immediately trust him, given his recent history of violently persecuting Christians (8:3; 9:1, 13; 22:3, 4; 26:9-11). Fortunately, Barnabas, the "Son of Encouragement" (4:36), introduced the changed man to the apostles and explained his encounter with the Lord at Damascus, his sense of call, and his subsequent boldness in preaching in the name of Jesus in Damascus. Barnabas was able to convince the apostles that Saul's conversion was genuine, so Saul remained with the apostles in Jerusalem, where he preached boldly for his Lord. Paul recalls this visit in Gal 1:18-19.

9:29 Again Saul debated with some Greek-speaking Jews, and again an assassination was planned (cp. 9:22-24).

9:30 After the believers (literally brothers) heard about the plot, Saul was once again sent away (cp. 9:25), this time to Tarsus, his hometown, the capital of Cilicia (see map, left; see 21:39; 22:3; 23:34; cp. Gal 1:21).

9:31 This verse is one of several in Acts that detail the numerical and spiritual growth of the church (see also 2:41; 4:4; 5:14; 6:1, 7; 12:24; 21:20). • The first Christians were discovering the truth of the principle, "the fear of the Lord

9:17 Ananias's God-given role was to welcome Saul into the Christian family, beginning with laying hands on Saul to heal him and fill him with the Holy Spirit.

The Apostle Paul (9:1-31)

Acts 7:58–8:3; 11:25–30; 12:25–28:31
Rom—Phlm
2 Pet 3:15–16

Paul was a leading persecutor of the early Christians who later became an apostle of Jesus Christ, the most illustrious of the early Christian missionaries, and the great apostle to the Gentiles. He has done more to shape Christianity than any other individual except Christ himself. We know about him from Luke's account of his conversion and ministry in Acts and from the thirteen letters bearing his name in the New Testament.

Paul was born in Tarsus to Jewish parents who were Roman citizens (through which he himself acquired Roman citizenship) and grew up in a traditional Jewish home. A tentmaker (or leatherworker) by trade, he was educated as a Pharisee by the well-known rabbi Gamaliel in Jerusalem. He became active in the violent persecution of Christians as a young man (22:3–5). But through a life-changing, personal revelation of the resurrected Jesus (9:3–6; 22:6–10), he was radically converted. He then dedicated the rest of his life to proclaiming Jesus as Savior and Lord throughout the Mediterranean world (see Gal 1:11–16). His dedication and hard work, especially among Gentiles (to whom he was specifically called), resulted in the founding of scores of churches during the first century. Most of his letters were written to these churches.

Paul's belief in Jesus as the Jewish Messiah set him apart from his Jewish contemporaries. His vision of Jesus (ch 9) brought him to the realization that Jesus' death and resurrection bring righteousness and life-transforming power to those who believe in him. Paul no longer understood righteousness in terms of the careful observance of the law of Moses, but as a gift from God to those who put their trust in Christ, the Savior who died for their sins (Rom 4:1–8). And he was convinced that this gift is for Gentiles as well as Jews (Rom 3:21–26).

Paul's thirteen letters deal with a wide range of issues, such as salvation and what Christians believe about Christ (Romans, Galatians, Ephesians, Colossians), specific problems in the church (1 Corinthians), the nature of Christian life and community (Ephesians, Colossians), and questions about Paul's own authority as an apostle (Galatians, 2 Corinthians). Some of his letters are intended to encourage young believers who are suffering for their faith (Philippians, 1 Thessalonians) or to correct false teachings (Galatians, Colossians, 2 Thessalonians). Still others are written to individuals, giving specific advice related to their life and ministry (1–2 Timothy, Titus, Philemon). Together, these thirteen letters reveal much about the life of the earliest Christians and the problems they faced, and about Paul's own grace-centered understanding of the Christian faith and life.

Paul's letters, with their strong focus on Christ, reflect his all-consuming passion for Christ and his twin convictions that (1) salvation is given only to those who put their faith in Christ as Savior (Gal 2:16), and (2) every part of a believer's life is to be devoted to serving Christ as Lord (Rom 14:7–9; 2 Cor 5:15). Of all the NT writers, it is Paul who spells out most clearly what salvation is (Rom 1–8) and gives us the fullest picture of the Christian life and Christian community. Paul's letters also highlight the power of the Holy Spirit in believers' lives (Eph 5:18; cp. Gal 2:20; Col 1:27). He encourages believers to pursue the high standard of a life that is truly like Christ (Rom 8:30; Eph 4:13, 15; 5:1). Believers are to live a life of love (1 Cor 13; Eph 5:2) and fully submit to Christ. Paul, more than any other NT writer, shows us how and why Christians must always find their deepest roots and motivation in the grace of Christ (Rom 12:1–2). For Paul, the whole of a believer's life—and indeed, the entire universe—is centered in Christ and Christ alone; everything finds its true meaning only in relation to him (Col 1:15–20; 2:6–3:4).

Luke's account of Paul's missionary life, which spans a period of perhaps thirty years, begins with Paul's preaching in Damascus shortly after his conversion (about AD 32–35) and ends with his imprisonment in Rome (AD 60–62). But the Pastoral Letters (1 Timothy—Titus) appear to be dated to a later time, and reliable later traditions affirm that Paul was released from prison (around AD 62) and continued his missionary activity. He was later rearrested and—after a lifetime of suffering as an evangelist for Christ—finally killed in Nero's persecution of Christians around AD 64–67. Paul's desire, not only to suffer as Christ suffered but also to die as Christ died, was thus fulfilled—with the sure hope of one day being resurrected, just as Christ was resurrected (Phil 3:10–11).

The Mission of Peter to the Gentiles (9:32–11:18)

Peter Heals Aeneas and Raises Dorcas

³²Meanwhile, Peter traveled from place to place, and he came down to visit the believers in the town of Lydda. ³³There he met a man named Aeneas, who had been paralyzed and bedridden for eight years. ³⁴Peter said to him, “Aeneas, Jesus Christ heals you! Get up, and roll up your sleeping mat!” And he was healed instantly. ³⁵Then the whole population of Lydda and Sharon saw Aeneas walking around, and they turned to the Lord.

³⁶There was a believer in Joppa named Tabitha (which in Greek is Dorcas). She was always doing kind things for others and helping the poor. ³⁷About this time she became ill and died. Her body was washed for burial and laid in an upstairs room. ³⁸But the believers had heard that Peter was nearby at Lydda, so they sent two men to beg him, “Please come as soon as possible!”

³⁹So Peter returned with them; and as soon as he arrived, they took him to the upstairs room. The room was filled with widows who were weeping and showing him the coats and other clothes Dorcas had made for them. ⁴⁰But Peter asked them all to leave the room; then he knelt and prayed. Turning to the body he said, “Get up, Tabitha.” And she opened her eyes! When she saw Peter, she sat up! ⁴¹He gave her his hand and helped her up. Then he called in the widows and all the believers, and he presented her to them alive.

⁴²The news spread through the whole town, and many believed in the Lord. ⁴³And Peter stayed a long time in Joppa, living with Simon, a tanner of hides.

is the foundation of true knowledge” (Prov 1:7; 9:10; cp. Job 28:28; Ps 111:10; Eccl 12:13; see Luke 7:16), and they were growing in their faith (cp. 2:43; 19:17).

9:32-43 These verses describe Peter's itinerant ministry in Judea, particularly along the seacoast. Exercising spiritual powers given to him by God, Peter performed wonderful works, including the healing of Aeneas and the raising of Dorcas. Jesus had promised such signs and wonders to the disciples (John 14:12). • Typical of Luke's writing, the healing of a man is matched by the healing of a woman (see Luke 13:10-17; 14:1-6). The people in the area were deeply moved by these miracles, and many were drawn into the faith (9:35, 42).

9:36 The names Tabitha in Aramaic and Dorcas in Greek both mean “gazelle.”

9:43 living with Simon, a tanner of hides: Tanning was an unclean business in Jewish eyes, which might suggest that Peter was not scrupulous in observing Jewish traditions (cp. Gal 2:11-14).

10:1-8 a Roman army officer: Literally a centurion; similarly in 10:22. A centurion was the highest-ranking non-commissioned officer in the Roman army; he was in charge of a century, a subdivision of roughly 100 men. Luke often describes centurions in favorable terms (10:22; 21:32; 22:25-26; 23:17, 23; 27:6, 11, 43; 28:16; Luke 7:1-10; 23:47). It was important for Luke to show that Christianity was not hostile to Roman officials or institutions and could, like Judaism, be permitted in the Roman empire (see Acts Introduction, “Purposes of Acts: Politics,” p. 1822). • a captain of the Italian Regiment: A regiment included six centuries; a Roman legion was usually divided into ten regiments. The NT mentions the Italian Regiment and the Imperial Regiment (27:1).

was a captain of the Italian Regiment. ²He was a devout, God-fearing man, as was everyone in his household. He gave generously to the poor and prayed regularly to God. ³One afternoon about three o'clock, he had a vision in which he saw an ⁴angel of God coming toward him. "Cornelius!" the angel said.

⁴Cornelius stared at him in terror. "What is it, sir?" he asked the angel.

And the angel replied, "Your prayers and gifts to the poor have been received by God as an offering! ⁵Now send some men to Joppa, and summon a man named Simon Peter. ⁶He is staying with Simon, a tanner who lives near the seashore."

⁷As soon as the angel was gone, Cornelius called two of his household servants and a devout soldier, one of his personal attendants. ⁸He told them what had happened and sent them off to Joppa.

Peter Visits Cornelius

⁹The next day as Cornelius's messengers were nearing the town, Peter went up on the flat roof to pray. It was about noon, ¹⁰and he was hungry. But while a meal was being prepared, he fell into a trance. ¹¹He saw the sky open, and something like a large sheet was let down by its four corners. ¹²In the sheet were all sorts of animals, reptiles, and birds. ¹³Then a voice said to him, "Get up, Peter; kill and eat them."

¹⁴"No, Lord," Peter declared. "I have never eaten anything that our Jewish laws have declared impure and unclean."

¹⁵But the voice spoke again: "Do not call something unclean if God has made it clean." ¹⁶The same vision was repeated three times. Then the sheet was suddenly pulled up to heaven.

¹⁷Peter was very perplexed. What could the vision mean? Just then the men sent by Cornelius found Simon's house. Standing outside the gate, ¹⁸they asked if a man named Simon Peter was staying there.

¹⁹Meanwhile, as Peter was puzzling over the vision, the Holy Spirit said to him, "Three men have come looking for you. ²⁰Get up, go downstairs, and go with them without hesitation. Don't worry, for I have sent them."

Visions are important in the Bible (Jer 14:14; Dan 8:1-27; 9:21; Hos 12:10; Obad 1:1; Hab 2:3), and are closely related to other revelatory experiences such as dreams (Gen 37:5-10; 40:9-13). Classic examples include Ezekiel's vision of the valley of the dry bones (Ezek 37:1-14) and Isaiah's vision of God's throne (Isa 6).

Visions are prominent in Acts, and they are usually connected with prayer (9:11-12; 16:9, 10; 22:17-21; 23:11; see Luke 1:8-20). Cornelius was praying when an angel visited him (10:4, 30-32). The following day, Peter received a vision as he prayed (10:9-12; see 11:5-9). In the previous chapter of Acts, the visions of Paul and Ananias are connected with prayer and high-light God's involvement in their lives (9:3-6, 10-16). These visions are not chance coincidences but the providential outworking of God's saving purpose in the world.

Visions give divine direction and show Christian workers the way in which they should carry out the Great Commission (see 1:8; Matt 28:16-20; Luke 24:47; see also Mark 16:15; John 20:21-23). Paul had visions on the Damascus road at his conversion (9:5; 22:7-10; 26:14-19), on the threshold of his missionary advance into Europe (16:9), at Corinth (18:9, 10), in the Temple (22:17-18), and again in Jerusalem before he set out on his trip to Rome (23:11). Through visions God is active in guiding the affairs of the church and in extending its mission (see the notes on 10:3, 9-16; 22:17-22; 23:11; see also Gal 1:8-9 and note).

10:2 a devout, God-fearing man:

Gentiles who are described as God-fearing were attracted to the high ethical standards of Judaism but were not prepared to accept the rite of circumcision or the full implications of the Jewish law by becoming full converts to Judaism (cp. 13:43). Christianity was an attractive option to Gentiles who worshiped God (18:7; see 13:48; 16:30; 17:4, 12, 17). These people would be wide open to the message of the gospel that announced that "there is peace with God through Jesus Christ" (10:36).

10:3 In Acts, visions are usually related to prayer (9:3-6, 10-16; 10:2-6, 9-12; 11:5-9; 12:9-17; 18:9-10; 22:17-21; 23:11). These visions are not chance coincidences, but expressions of God's saving work, providing divine direction and encouragement.

10:9-16 Peter received the same vision three times to confirm its truthfulness (see Gen 41:32; 2 Cor 13:1).

10:14 anything that our Jewish laws have declared impure and unclean (literally anything common and unclean): See Lev 11 for a description of animals that were clean and unclean for food.

10:17 Peter was very perplexed: The meaning of the vision would become clear through the events that followed (10:17-48; see 11:1-18): Peter should not hesitate to enter or even eat in the home of a Gentile because God has accepted Gentiles and cleansed them.

²¹So Peter went down and said, "I'm the man you are looking for. Why have you come?"

²²They said, "We were sent by Cornelius, a Roman officer. He is a devout and God-fearing man, well respected by all the Jews. A holy angel instructed him to summon you to his house so that he can hear your message." ²³So Peter invited the men to stay for the night. The next day he went with them, accompanied by some of the brothers from Joppa.

²⁴They arrived in Caesarea the following day. Cornelius was waiting for them and had called together his relatives and close friends. ²⁵As Peter entered his home, Cornelius fell at his feet and worshiped him. ²⁶But Peter pulled him up and said, "Stand up! I'm a human being just like you!" ²⁷So they talked together and went inside, where many others were assembled.

²⁸Peter told them, "You know it is against our laws for a Jewish man to enter a Gentile home like this or to associate with you. But God has shown me that I should no longer think of anyone as impure or unclean. ²⁹So I came without objection as soon as I was sent for. Now tell me why you sent for me."

³⁰Cornelius replied, "Four days ago I was praying in my house about this same time, three o'clock in the afternoon. Suddenly, a man in dazzling clothes was standing in front of me. ³¹He told me, 'Cornelius, your prayer has been heard, and your gifts to the poor have been noticed by God! ³²Now send messengers to Joppa, and summon a man named Simon Peter. He is staying in the home of Simon, a tanner who lives near the seashore.' ³³So I sent for you at once, and it was good of you to come. Now we are all here, waiting before God to hear the message the Lord has given you."

The Gentiles Hear the Good News

³⁴Then Peter replied, "I see very clearly that God shows no favoritism. ³⁵In every nation he accepts those who fear him and do what is right. ³⁶This is the message of Good News for the people of Israel—that there is 'peace with God through Jesus Christ, who is Lord of all. ³⁷You know what happened throughout Judea, beginning in Galilee, after John began preaching his message of baptism. ³⁸And you know that God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Spirit and with power. Then Jesus went around doing good and healing all who were oppressed by the devil, for God was with him.

The apostles proclaimed the Good News in a definite sequence. In summary, (1) the OT promises have been fulfilled in the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus Christ. (2) God has exalted Jesus by resurrecting him to be the head of the new Israel as the divinely appointed Messiah. (3) The apostles were witnesses of God's work in Jesus Christ, both as eyewitnesses of his public ministry and resurrection (13:31) and as his chosen advocates (1:22; 2:32; 3:15; 4:33; 5:32; 10:39-43). (4) The proper response to this Good News is repentance and faith (2:38; 3:19; 13:39, 48; 17:30, 34; 20:21; 26:20). (5) The Holy Spirit is promised to those who accept this offer of God's forgiveness and salvation from sin through Jesus Christ.

This basic message was repeatedly preached to many people, both Jews and Gentiles, throughout the Mediterranean world (note 1:8; 9:15; 28:31). It is echoed in the sermons of chs 2, 3, 4, 5, 8, 10, and 13. The same themes characterize Paul's preaching (e.g., 1 Cor 15:3-9).

All people are summoned to repentance from sin and faith in the saving power of Jesus (4:12; 13:38; 16:31)—through his death we can be "made right in God's sight" (13:39). Because the message is crucial to people's destiny, those who proclaim it are warned not to change it (13:40-42; see Heb 2:3).

10:25-26 Cornelius . . . worshiped him: This act must have been more than traditional obeisance to a high-ranking person. The Bible restricts worship to God alone (see 14:11-17; Exod 20:3; Deut 5:7; Matt 22:37-38; Mark 12:29-30; Luke 10:27; 1 Cor 10:14; Col 3:5; 1 Pet 4:3; 1 Jn 5:21; Rev 4:10; 9:20; 22:8-9). Peter was just a fellow human being whom Cornelius should not worship.

10:34-35 God shows no favoritism: See Deut 10:17; 2 Chr 19:7; Job 34:19;

Luke 20:21; Rom 2:11; Gal 2:6; Col 3:25; 1 Pet 1:17. The application of this principle is the meaning of Peter's vision (10:9-16). • In every nation he accepts those who fear him and do what is right: See Rom 10:11-13.

10:36-43 Peter repeatedly underscores the importance of the apostolic witnesses to the message of Good News. The apostles ate and drank with Jesus (see Luke 24:41-43) and were eyewitnesses of his resurrection, so they could attest that he had conquered death (see 3:15; 4:33; 13:30-31). The original apostles were chosen in advance to be his witnesses (see 1:12-26); gradually, others such as Paul and Barnabas carried on this powerful preaching and teaching in the name of Jesus Christ (9:15; 14:1-3; 26:16).

³⁹“And we apostles are witnesses of all he did throughout Judea and in Jerusalem. They put him to death by hanging him on a cross, ⁴⁰but God raised him to life on the third day. Then God allowed him to appear, ⁴¹not to the general public, but to us whom God had chosen in advance to be his witnesses. We were those who ate and drank with him after he rose from the dead. ⁴²And he ordered us to preach everywhere and to testify that Jesus is the one appointed by God to be the judge of all—the living and the dead. ⁴³He is the one all the prophets testified about, saying that everyone who believes in him will have their sins forgiven through his name.”

The Gentiles Receive the Holy Spirit

⁴⁴Even as Peter was saying these things, the Holy Spirit fell upon all who were listening to the message. ⁴⁵The Jewish believers who came with Peter were amazed that the gift of the Holy Spirit had been poured out on the Gentiles, too. ⁴⁶For they heard them speaking in other ^tongues and praising God.

Then Peter asked, ⁴⁷“Can anyone object to their being baptized, now that they have received the Holy Spirit just as we did?” ⁴⁸So he gave orders for them to be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ. Afterward Cornelius asked him to stay with them for several days.

Peter Explains His Actions

11 Soon the news reached the apostles and other believers in Judea that the Gentiles had received the word of God.

²But when Peter arrived back in Jerusalem, the Jewish believers criticized him. ³“You entered the home of Gentiles and even ate with them!” they said.

⁴Then Peter told them exactly what had happened. ⁵“I was in the town of Joppa,” he said, “and while I was praying, I went into a trance and saw a vision. Something like a large sheet was let down by its four corners from the sky. And it came right down to me. ⁶When I looked inside the sheet, I saw all sorts of tame and wild animals, reptiles, and birds. ⁷And I heard a voice say, ‘Get up, Peter; kill and eat them.’

⁸“‘No, Lord,’ I replied. ‘I have never eaten anything that our Jewish laws have declared impure or unclean.’

⁹“But the voice from heaven spoke again: ‘Do not call something unclean if God has made it clean.’ ¹⁰This happened three times before the sheet and all it contained was pulled back up to heaven.

¹¹“Just then three men who had been sent from Caesarea arrived at the house where we were staying. ¹²The Holy Spirit told me to go with them and not to worry that they were Gentiles. These six brothers here accompanied me, and we soon entered the home of the man who had sent for us. ¹³He told us how an angel had appeared to him in his home and had told him, ‘Send messengers to Joppa, and summon a man named Simon Peter. ¹⁴He will tell you how you and everyone in your household can be saved!’

¹⁵“As I began to speak,” Peter continued, “the Holy Spirit fell on them, just as he fell on us at the beginning. ¹⁶Then I thought of 10:39 on a cross: Literally on a tree.

10:41 the general public: Literally the people.

10:43 Based on what they had seen and heard (10:39-42), the apostles could proclaim that Jesus of Nazareth was indeed the one all the prophets testified about. The whole plan of the Scriptures is profoundly centered in Christ (see Luke 24:25-27, 44-47; John 5:39). • The major point of their message was that everyone who believes in him will have their sins forgiven through his name (see Luke 24:47).

10:44-48 On the day of Pentecost, Peter told the assembly that if they would repent, turn to God, and be baptized in the name of Jesus for the forgiveness of sins, they would receive “the gift of the Holy Spirit” (2:38; cp. 19:1-7). As Cornelius and his household listened to Peter’s message, the Holy Spirit fell upon them, too, and they were baptized (see “Baptism” at 2:38, 41, p. 1828).

They received the Holy Spirit just as the Jews did, so clearly God had shown no partiality (10:34-35). This event parallels the day of Pentecost in Jerusalem (ch 2) and marks the spread of the Holy Spirit’s power to Gentiles (1:8; 2:39).

10:45 The Jewish believers: Literally The faithful ones of the circumcision.

10:46 in other tongues: Or in other languages.

10:48 Cornelius asked Peter to stay with them for several days, perhaps because of his need for instruction in the Christian way.

11:1-18 Jews traditionally kept themselves separate and did not eat or associate socially with Gentiles (10:28; 22:21-22; see John 4:9, 27; 18:28; Gal 2:12-14). Therefore, when the Jewish believers in Jerusalem learned that Gentiles had received the word of God, they criticized Peter’s unconventional actions and wanted an explanation, which Peter provided.

11:1 other believers: Literally brothers.

11:2 the Jewish believers: Literally those of the circumcision.

11:3 of Gentiles: Literally of uncircumcised men.

11:4-17 Peter reviewed the sequence of events, explaining that the whole development was the result of God’s initiative (11:12). Peter had eaten with Gentiles because God had made it clear that he should (11:4-12). Peter had then observed the Holy Spirit’s definite action of coming upon Gentiles, and he realized that they were being accepted and blessed by God just as Jewish believers had been (11:15-17; see 1:5). Peter was submitting to God’s will in admitting Gentiles to the church.

11:8 anything that our Jewish laws have declared impure or unclean: Literally anything common or unclean.

¹⁸When the others heard this, they stopped objecting and began praising God. They said, "We can see that God has also given the Gentiles the privilege of ^hrepenting of their sins and receiving eternal life."

The Church in Antioch of Syria (11:19-30)

The Ministry of the Greek-Speaking Believers

¹⁹Meanwhile, the believers who had been scattered during the persecution after Stephen's death traveled as far as Phoenicia, Cyprus, and Antioch of Syria. They preached the word of God, but only to Jews.

²⁰However, some of the believers who went to Antioch from Cyprus and Cyrene began preaching to the Gentiles about the Lord Jesus. ²¹The power of the Lord was with them, and a large number of these Gentiles believed and turned to the Lord.

The Ministry of Barnabas

²²When the church at Jerusalem heard what had happened, they sent Barnabas to Antioch. ²³When he arrived and saw this evidence of God's blessing, he was filled with joy, and he encouraged the believers to stay true to the Lord. ²⁴Barnabas was a good man, full of the Holy Spirit and strong in faith. And many people were brought to the Lord.

²⁵Then Barnabas went on to Tarsus to look for Saul. ²⁶When he found him, he brought him back to Antioch. Both of them stayed there with the church for a full year, teaching large crowds of people. (It was at Antioch that the believers were first called Christians.)

The Ministry of the Church in Antioch

²⁷During this time some prophets traveled from Jerusalem to Antioch. ²⁸One of them named Agabus stood up in one of the meetings and predicted by the Spirit that a great famine was coming upon the entire Roman world. (This was fulfilled during the reign of Claudius.) ²⁹So the believers in Antioch decided to send relief to the brothers and

Peter's Early Ministry, AD 37-40

(9:32-11:18). Sometime after meeting Saul in Jerusalem (9:26-28; see Gal 1:18; about AD 37), Peter left Jerusalem and began traveling "from place to place." He first went to LYDDA (9:32-38) and then JOPPA, where he stayed "a long time" (9:39-43). He was there when the Lord sent messengers from Cornelius and prompted Peter to go to CAESAREA, where Cornelius and his household heard the Good News and believed (10:1-48). After staying a few days, Peter returned to Jerusalem and gave the church a report of what had happened (11:1-18).

cosmopolitan city, the third-largest in the Roman empire after Rome and Alexandria. Antioch was of central importance in the spread of the Christian message to the Gentile world.

11:20 This outreach effort on the part of Jewish believers . . . from Cyprus and Cyrene was the first systematic attempt to preach to Gentiles about the Lord Jesus. • the Gentiles: Greek the Hellenists (i.e., those who speak Greek); other manuscripts read the Greeks.

11:21-24 Once again, as had happened in the household of Cornelius, Gentiles turned to the Lord in considerable numbers. The explosion of Christian faith into the Gentile world had to remain in harmony with the church at Jerusalem, so the Jerusalem church sent Barnabas to Antioch to oversee developments there. He could see that God's blessing was on what was happening, so he endorsed it with joy.

11:25-26 Barnabas recognized the special gifts that Saul possessed for preaching and teaching. His assessment of Saul's gifts was wise, and it resulted in a fruitful team ministry in Antioch.

11:26 Believers (literally disciples; also in 11:29) were first called Christians in Antioch. It was possibly a term of derision. The Greek text uses this term in only two other NT passages (26:28; 1 Pet 4:16). The NLT occasionally uses the term to clarify the meaning of the text (e.g., 1 Cor 7:12-15).

11:27-28 some prophets: See "The Gift of Prophecy" at 21:9-11, p. 1873. • Agabus: See also 21:10-12.

11:28 Claudius, nephew of Tiberius Caesar (Luke 3:1), was the Roman emperor in AD 41-54. His last wife was his niece Agrippina, whose son Nero he adopted.

11:29-30 The upshot of Agabus's prophecy was that the believers in Antioch decided to make a contribution to the Jewish believers—the brothers and sisters (literally the brothers)—in Judea. The believers in Antioch gave as generously as they could and committed the responsibility for this financial aid to leaders they trusted, namely, to Barnabas and his fellow worker Saul. This unified love and support of Christians for one another was a tangible demonstration of the difference Christ had made in their lives. Paul describes this visit in his letter to the Galatians (Gal 2:1-10).

11:16 with water: Or in water. • with the Holy Spirit: Or in the Holy Spirit.

11:18 Peter's logical, straightforward explanation convinced those who had objected—they recognized God's hand at work in the conversion of the Gentiles and their receiving eternal life. However, issues relating to the inclusion of Gentiles would soon provoke a major crisis (15:1-35; Paul's letter to the Galatians).

11:19-26 The persecution that followed Stephen's death forced believers into other areas (8:1-3), and they traveled as far as Phoenicia, Cyprus, and Antioch. • Antioch of Syria was a thriving sisters in Judea, everyone giving as much as they could. ³⁰This they did, entrusting their gifts to Barnabas and Saul to take to the elders of the church in Jerusalem.

Persecution in the Jerusalem Church (12:1-25)

The Martyrdom of James

12 About that time King Herod Agrippa began to persecute some believers in the church. ²He had the apostle James (John's brother) killed with a sword.

The Imprisonment and Escape of Peter

³When Herod saw how much this pleased the Jewish people, he also arrested Peter. (This took place during the Passover celebration.) ⁴Then he imprisoned him, placing him under the guard of four squads of four soldiers each. Herod intended to bring Peter out for public trial after the Passover. ⁵But while Peter was in prison, the church prayed very earnestly for him.

⁶The night before Peter was to be placed on trial, he was asleep, fastened with two chains between two soldiers. Others stood guard at the prison gate. ⁷Suddenly, there was a bright light in the cell, and an angel of the Lord stood before Peter. The angel struck him on the side to awaken him and said, "Quick! Get up!" And the chains fell off his wrists. ⁸Then the angel told him, "Get dressed and put on your sandals." And he did. "Now put on your coat and follow me," the angel ordered.

⁹So Peter left the cell, following the angel. But all the time he thought it was a vision. He didn't realize it was actually happening. ¹⁰They passed the first and second guard posts and came to the iron gate leading to the city, and this opened for them all by itself. So they passed through and started walking down the street, and then the angel suddenly left him.

¹¹Peter finally came to his senses. "It's really true!" he said. "The Lord has sent his angel and saved me from Herod and from what the Jewish leaders had planned to do to me!"

¹²When he realized this, he went to the home of Mary, the mother of John Mark, where many were gathered for prayer. ¹³He knocked at the door in the gate, and a servant girl named Rhoda came to open it. ¹⁴When she recognized Peter's voice, she was so overjoyed that, instead of opening the door, she ran back inside and told everyone, "Peter is standing at the door!"

¹⁵"You're out of your mind!" they said. When she insisted, they decided, "It must be his angel."

¹⁶Meanwhile, Peter continued knocking. When they finally opened the door and saw him, they were amazed. ¹⁷He motioned for them to quiet down and told them how the Lord had led him out of prison. "Tell James and the other brothers what happened," he said. And then he went to another place.

¹⁸At dawn there was a great commotion among the soldiers about what had happened to Peter. ¹⁹Herod Agrippa ordered a thorough search for him. When he couldn't be found, Herod interrogated the guards and sentenced them to death. Afterward Herod left Judea to stay in Caesarea for a while.

The Death of Herod Agrippa I

²⁰Now Herod was very angry with the people of Tyre and Sidon. So they sent a delegation to make peace with him because 11:30 This is the first reference in Acts to elders as officers of the Christian church (see also 14:23; 15:2-23; 16:4; 20:17-35; 21:18; cp. 1 Tim 3:1-7; Titus 1:5-9).

12:1-5 Jesus had clearly predicted persecution and hardship for his followers (Luke 11:49-51). For the first time since Jesus' death, Roman authorities took direct violent action against the church. James, the brother of John, was one of the first called to be a disciple (Mark 1:16-20; Luke 5:1-11), and he was one of the first Christians to be martyred for his faith. • King Herod Agrippa: Literally Herod the king. He was the nephew of Herod Antipas and a grandson of Herod the Great. He attacked the church (cp. 12:20-23), a move that he found to be politically helpful with the Jewish people. The letter of James, the brother of Jesus, was probably written after this persecution to the scattered Christians (see 8:1-4; James Introduction, "Date of Writing," p. 2111).

12:3 the Passover celebration: Literally the days of unleavened bread.

12:4 Herod had Peter guarded by four squads of soldiers, making it humanly impossible for the apostle to escape (cp. 12:6). However, God was in charge, and nothing is too hard for him (cp. 4:27-31; Gen 18:14; Jer 32:17, 27; Matt 19:26; Mark 10:27; Luke 1:37; 18:27).

12:5 the church prayed very earnestly: God answers the earnest prayers of his people (12:6-17; see Luke 11:1-13; 18:1-8; cp. Matt 7:7-11; John 15:7; Phil 4:6-7; Jas 5:16; 1 Jn 3:22).

12:6-19 God, through an angel, led Peter out, reunited him with his praying friends, and sent him out to Caesarea to carry on the work of spreading the Good News. The message advanced despite determined opposition.

12:13-17 Rhoda was so surprised when Peter appeared that she left him standing at the closed door. Both she and the other believers were amazed by God's answer to their prayers (12:5).

12:18-23 When Peter couldn't be found after a careful search, Herod interrogated the guards and put them their cities were dependent upon Herod's country for food. The delegates won the support of Blastus, Herod's personal assistant,²¹ and an appointment with Herod was granted. When the day arrived, Herod put on his royal robes, sat on his throne, and made a speech to them. ²²The people gave him a great ovation, shouting, "It's the voice of a god, not of a man!"

²³Instantly, an angel of the Lord struck Herod with a sickness, because he accepted the people's worship instead of giving the glory to God. So he was consumed with worms and died.

The Success of the Mission

²⁴Meanwhile, the word of God continued to spread, and there were many new believers.

²⁵When Barnabas and Saul had finished their mission to Jerusalem, they returned, taking John Mark with them.

4. THE CHRISTIAN MESSAGE GOES TO THE GENTILES (13:1-21:17)

Paul and Barnabas's First Missionary Journey from Antioch (13:1-14:28)

Barnabas and Saul Are Commissioned

13 Among the prophets and teachers of the church at Antioch of Syria were Barnabas, Simeon (called "the black man"), Lucius (from Cyrene), Manaen (the childhood companion of King Herod Antipas), and Saul. ²One day as these men were worshipping the Lord and fasting, the Holy Spirit said, "Appoint Barnabas and Saul for the special work to which I have called them."

Herod Agrippa I (12:1-4, 18-23)

Herod Agrippa I was Herod the Great's grandson, Herod Antipas's nephew, and Herodias's brother (see genealogy, p. 1579). Agrippa I ruled the whole of Palestine for a short time following the death of Jesus, during the very early days of the Christian movement (AD 41-44).

While at school in Rome, Agrippa lived a wanton life, incurring many debts. At one point he stated that he wished his friend Gaius Caligula were emperor rather than Tiberius. This was reported to Tiberius, who imprisoned him. He remained in prison until Tiberius's death six months later.

Upon Caligula's accession to the throne, he rewarded Agrippa by releasing him and giving him Philip the Tetrarch's territories and the northern part of Lysanias's territory as well as the title of king. The title of king aroused the jealousy of Herodias, and Herod Antipas (her husband) was both critical and jealous of Agrippa. Agrippa responded by accusing Antipas of conspiracy and orchestrating Antipas's banishment. Agrippa then acquired all of Antipas's territories and property (AD 39).

When his friend Caligula died in AD 41, Agrippa curried the favor of the new emperor, Claudius, whereupon Claudius added Judea and Samaria to Agrippa's domain—territory once ruled by his grandfather, Herod the Great.

Agrippa was an active persecutor of the early Christians. He is remembered for killing the apostle James and having Peter arrested—acts which gained him the favor of the Jews (12:1-4). The Jews, for their part, liked him more than any of the other Herods. Agrippa died suddenly in AD 44 shortly after his subjects hailed him as a god (12:18-23; see Josephus, Antiquities 19.8.2; 19.9.1; War 2.11.5).

to death (cp. 16:27). However, Herod met his own painful end as a divine judgment on his conceit when he accepted the people's worship. Josephus records the death of Herod Agrippa I in greater detail (Josephus, Antiquities 19.8.1-2).

12:24-25 Herod's demise from a terrible illness (12:23) contrasts with the growth of the Christian church and the unhindered message of Good News (28:31).

12:25 mission to Jerusalem, they returned: Or mission, they returned to Jerusalem. Other manuscripts read mission, they returned from Jerusalem; still others read mission, they returned from Jerusalem to Antioch.

13:1-3 The prophets and teachers of the church at Antioch spent significant time in worship and prayer, earnestly seeking the Lord's will as they fasted and opened themselves to divine direction. As they prayed, the Holy Spirit spoke to them, and they set apart Barnabas and Saul in clear recognition of God's call for them to carry out a special work in his name. The believers' inward journey in prayer and listening to God is matched by their outward journey in service, evangelism, and mighty works of healing and salvation.

13:1 prophets and teachers: See "The Gift of Prophecy" at 21:9-11, p. 1873; see also 1 Cor 12:28-29; Eph 4:11.

• The name Simeon suggests a Jewish background (see Gen 29:33; Luke 2:25; 3:30); he is also called "the black man" (literally who was called Niger), so he was probably of African descent. • Lucius is a Latin name; he came from Cyrene, the capital of Libya in North Africa. He was probably one of the preachers from Cyrene who had brought the Christian message to Antioch (11:20). • Manaen had been brought up with King Herod Antipas (literally Herod the tetrarch); he was probably Luke's source for insight into Antipas's thoughts and actions (see Luke 9:7-9). • Barnabas and Saul are prominently featured in the subsequent narrative.

³So after more fasting and prayer, the men laid their hands on them and sent them on their way.

Barnabas and Saul in Cyprus

⁴So Barnabas and Saul were sent out by the Holy Spirit. They went down to the seaport of Seleucia and then sailed for the island of Cyprus. ⁵There, in the town of Salamis, they went to the Jewish synagogues and preached the word of God. John Mark went with them as their assistant.

⁶Afterward they traveled from town to town across the entire island until finally they reached Paphos, where they met a Jewish sorcerer, a false prophet named Bar-Jesus. ⁷He had attached himself to the governor, Sergius Paulus, who was an intelligent man. The governor invited Barnabas and Saul to visit him, for he wanted to hear the word of God. ⁸But Elymas, the sorcerer (as his name means in Greek), interfered and urged the governor to pay no attention to what Barnabas and Saul said. He was trying to keep the governor from believing.

⁹Saul, also known as Paul, was filled with the Holy Spirit, and he looked the sorcerer

John Mark, writer of the earliest Gospel (the Gospel of Mark), was an assistant of three early missionaries—Barnabas, Paul, and Peter.

Mark was taken along as an assistant by Barnabas and Paul on their first missionary journey. However, for unknown reasons, he left them to return to Jerusalem before the trip was completed (12:25; 13:4-5, 13). Because of this, when Barnabas wanted to take him along on the second trip, Paul flatly refused. The sharp disagreement that resulted broke the team apart: Barnabas took Mark (his cousin) with him, and Paul chose Silas, and the two pairs went their separate ways (15:36-41).

Later, it appears that Paul and Mark were reconciled and that Mark once again served as his assistant. In Colossians, Paul refers to him as a co-worker and suggests that he may soon be sending him to visit the church in Colosse (Col 4:10; Phlm 1:24). Still later, when Paul was awaiting execution in prison in Rome, he asked Timothy to bring Mark with him, for he thought Mark would be helpful to him in his ministry (2 Tim 4:11).

Mark also appears to have assisted Peter when Peter was engaged in missionary work in Italy near the end of his life; early Christian tradition speaks of him as Peter's "interpreter." In one of Peter's letters, he speaks endearingly of Mark as his "son" who is with him (1 Pet 5:13). Early tradition says it was from Peter himself that Mark got the information for his account of the life and words of Jesus. Generally considered to be the earliest of all the Gospels, Mark's Gospel was almost certainly one of the key sources used by Matthew and Luke when they later wrote their own Gospels. For this reason, Mark's Gospel is one of the most influential of all the early Christian writings.

Mark's story reminds us that God can overcome human failings and restore rocky relationships for the sake of Christ and the Good News. Early failures do not disqualify a person from a life of effective service and even lasting significance.

13:3 the men laid their hands on them: This solemn act was only done after more fasting and prayer; the Pastoral Epistles warn against laying hands on a person to appoint that person as a Christian leader without due care and diligence (1 Tim 5:22). At this point, Barnabas and Saul were sent . . . on their way as missionaries of the church at Antioch.

13:4 Barnabas and Saul's first missionary journey was undertaken with a strong consciousness of the Holy Spirit as their guide. • Seleucia was Antioch's ancient seaport, located about twelve miles (20 km) west of the city at the mouth of the Orontes River. • Their journey took them westward by sea to the island of Cyprus, which was Barnabas's homeland (4:36).

13:5 Landing in the town of Salamis on the eastern end of Cyprus, they went to the Jewish synagogues (see note on 9:2), where the Jews could hear and respond to the Christian message. They would also meet converts to Judaism (see note on 13:43) and spiritually hungry Gentiles who are sometimes described as "God-fearers" (see note on 10:2).

13:6-12 At Paphos there was a power struggle with a false prophet, with the result that the power of God was manifested and the Roman governor became a believer.

13:6 Paphos was located on the southwest coast of Cyprus. As the leading city of Cyprus, it was of strategic importance. • a Jewish sorcerer . . . named Bar-Jesus: Such eastern magicians often exercised a tremendous influence in the Greco-Roman world.

13:7-8 The governor, Sergius Paulus, who was an intelligent man, was attracted to the teaching of Barnabas and Saul. But Elymas (the sorcerer's Greco-Roman name) recognized a challenge to his power and strongly opposed the message of Barnabas and Saul.

13:9 Luke makes the significant transition from the name Saul (a Hebrew name) to Paul (a Greco-Roman name), perhaps indicating that Paul was now on a predominantly Gentile mission. For the rest of the book of Acts, he is called Paul except when he recounts his conversion (as in 22:7, 13; 26:14).

in the eye. ¹⁰Then he said, "You son of the devil, full of every sort of deceit and fraud, and enemy of all that is good! Will you never stop perverting the true ways of the Lord?"

¹¹Watch now, for the Lord has laid his hand of punishment upon you, and you will be struck blind. You will not see the sunlight for some time." Instantly mist and darkness came over the man's eyes, and he began groping around begging for someone to take his hand and lead him.

Paul and Barnabas in Antioch of Pisidia

¹³Paul and his companions then left Paphos by ship for Pamphylia, landing at the port town of Perga. There John Mark left them and returned to Jerusalem. ¹⁴But Paul and Barnabas traveled inland to Antioch of Pisidia.

On the Sabbath they went to the synagogue for the services. ¹⁵After the usual readings from the books of Moses and the prophets, those in charge of the service sent them this message: "Brothers, if you have any word of encouragement for the people, come and give it."

¹⁶So Paul stood, lifted his hand to quiet them, and started speaking. "Men of Israel," he said, "and you God-fearing Gentiles, listen to me."

¹⁷"The God of this nation of Israel chose our ancestors and made them multiply and grow strong during their stay in Egypt. Then with a powerful arm he led them out of their slavery. ¹⁸He put up with them through forty years of wandering in the wilderness. ¹⁹Then he destroyed seven nations in Canaan and gave their land to Israel as an inheritance. ²⁰All this took about 450 years.

"After that, God gave them judges to rule until the time of Samuel the prophet. ²¹Then the people begged for a king, and God gave them Saul son of Kish, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, who reigned for forty years. ²²But God removed Saul and replaced him with David, a man about whom God said, 'I have found David son of Jesse, a man after my own heart. He will do everything I want him to do.'

²³"And it is one of King David's descendants, Jesus, who is God's promised Savior of Israel! ²⁴Before he came, John the Baptist preached that all the people of Israel

◀ Barnabas and Paul's First Missionary Journey, AD 47-48 (13:4-14:28). Barnabas and Paul (Saul) founded new churches throughout the region of Pisidia. It is likely that Paul's letter to the Galatians was addressed to these churches a short time after this first journey (see Galatians Introduction, p. 1976). Paul later returned to strengthen these churches during his second and third journeys (see maps, pp. 1859, 1869).

13:10-11 Paul, who became the chief spokesman, rebuked the sorcerer's fraudulent claims, exposed his deceit, and pronounced divine judgment (cp. 8:20-24). The sorcerer was instantly struck blind, a condition that lasted for some time, giving a strong demonstration of the truthfulness and superiority of the apostolic message over the bogus claims of the sorcerer.

13:12 The teaching about the Lord included a miraculous demonstration of divine power (cp. Mark 1:21-27), for it was a teaching about the living God (see 14:15).

13:13-14 Pamphylia and Pisidia were districts of the Roman province of Galatia, in what is now Turkey. They landed at the port of Perga. From here, major roads opened into the interior beyond the Taurus Mountains. • At this point, John Mark left the team for reasons that are not stated (see note on 15:36-41). Possibly he was unhappy that the Good News was moving out into Gentile lands; possibly he was homesick or otherwise unable to continue a difficult journey. Whatever the reason, he returned to the more familiar and comfortable Jewish surroundings of Jerusalem.

13:14 Paul and Barnabas traveled inland into the high country, and came to Antioch of Pisidia (in the Roman province of Galatia in Asia Minor, not to be confused with Antioch in Syria). As was their custom, the apostles began at the synagogue (see note on 9:2; cp. 13:5; 14:1; 17:1, 2, 10, 17; 18:4, 19; 19:8).

13:15 After the usual Scriptures for the day had been read, one from the books of Moses (literally from the law) and the other from the prophets (see Luke 4:16-28), the officials of the synagogue invited the visitors to speak any word of encouragement for the people.

13:16-41 Paul accepted the invitation, motioned to quiet his audience (cp. 19:33; 21:40), and launched into a straightforward proclamation of the Good News. This is Paul's first great speech in Acts, and it provides a model of his preaching to a Jewish audience (see 22:1-21).

13:17-22 To establish common ground, Paul traced Jewish history from the Exodus onward, stressing the Jews' powerful deliverance from Egyptian bondage, the providential occupation of their inheritance in Canaan, the establishment of the monarchy, the removal of Saul, and the special place of David.

13:18 He put up with them: Some manuscripts read He cared for them; cp. Deut 1:31.

13:22 David was a man after God's own heart despite his sins (e.g., 2 Sam 11-12). This verse quotes 1 Sam 13:14.

13:23-25 Paul here moved to the theme of his message: Jesus, one of David's descendants, was God's promised Savior of Israel. The Messiah's way had been prepared by John the Baptist, who insisted that Israel needed to repent . . . and turn to God and be baptized. John was a humble servant who simply cleared the ground for the one whose coming he announced.

needed to repent of their sins and turn to God and be baptized. ²⁵As John was finishing his ministry he asked, 'Do you think I am the Messiah? No, I am not! But he is coming soon—and I'm not even worthy to be his slave and untie the sandals on his feet.'

²⁶"Brothers—you sons of Abraham, and also you God-fearing Gentiles—this message of salvation has been sent to us! ²⁷The people in Jerusalem and their leaders did not recognize Jesus as the one the prophets had spoken about. Instead, they condemned him, and in doing this they fulfilled the prophets' words that are read every Sabbath. ²⁸They found no legal reason to execute him, but they asked Pilate to have him killed anyway.

²⁹"When they had done all that the prophesies said about him, they took him down from the cross and placed him in a tomb. ³⁰But God raised him from the dead! ³¹And over a period of many days he appeared to those who had gone with him from Galilee to Jerusalem. They are now his witnesses to the people of Israel.

³²"And now we are here to bring you this Good News. The promise was made to our ancestors, ³³and God has now fulfilled it for us, their descendants, by raising Jesus. This is what the second psalm says about Jesus:

'You are my Son.
Today I have become your Father.'

³⁴For God had promised to raise him from the dead, not leaving him to rot in the grave. He said, 'I will give you the sacred blessings I promised to David.' ³⁵Another psalm explains it more fully: 'You will not allow your Holy One to rot in the grave.' ³⁶This is not a reference to David, for after David had done the will of God in his own generation, he died and was buried with his ancestors, and his body decayed. ³⁷No, it was a reference to someone else—someone whom God raised and whose body did not decay.

³⁸"Brothers, listen! We are here to proclaim that through this man Jesus there is forgiveness for your sins. ³⁹Everyone who believes in him is made right in God's sight—something the law of Moses could never do. ⁴⁰Be careful! Don't let the prophets' words apply to you. For they said, ⁴¹ 'Look, you mockers, be amazed and die!

For I am doing something in your own day, something you wouldn't believe even if someone told you about it.' "

⁴²As Paul and Barnabas left the synagogue that day, the people begged them to speak about these things again the next week. ⁴³Many Jews and devout converts to Judaism followed Paul and Barnabas, and the two men urged them to continue to rely on the grace of God.

Paul and Barnabas Turn to the Gentiles

⁴⁴The following week almost the entire city turned out to hear them preach the word of the Lord. ⁴⁵But when some of the Jews saw the crowds, they were jealous; so they slandered Paul and argued against whatever he said.

⁴⁶Then Paul and Barnabas spoke out boldly and declared, "It was necessary that we first preach the word of God to you Jews.

13:26-37 Paul reviewed the shameful treatment Jesus had received, involving unjust condemnation and death. But God raised Jesus from the dead, as attested by witnesses. This message provides good news, for through Jesus sinners can experience the forgiveness of sins. But this message must be met with faith, or dire consequences will follow.

13:29 from the cross: Literally from the tree.

13:31 The fact that Jesus was raised from the dead was well documented by witnesses.

13:33 'You are my Son. Today I have become your Father': Or 'Today I reveal you as my Son.' Ps 2:7.

13:34 This verse quotes Isa 55:3.

13:35 This verse quotes Ps 16:10.

13:38-41 Paul appealed for them to believe the message about Jesus, through whom there is forgiveness for your sins.

13:38-39 English translations divide verses 38 and 39 in various ways.

13:39 Faith is prerequisite to being made right in God's sight; this was not provided for in the law of Moses (Ps 14:1-3; see Rom 3:9-20).

13:40-41 Paul closed his message with a strong warning (cp. Heb 2:3). The Good News must not be ignored, neglected, or rejected, or frightening consequences will follow.

13:41 This verse quotes Hab 1:5 (Greek version).

13:42-43 The message stirred up interest among the people, and many of them were converted.

13:43 Full converts to Judaism (also called proselytes) were Gentiles who had gone through the rite of circumcision to become full members of the Jewish community, observing the Jewish law (see also 2:11; 6:5; Matt 23:15). • The grace of God is a key concept in the NT to describe God's unmerited favor shown preeminently through Jesus Christ (see "The Grace of God" at 20:24, p. 1871).

13:44-49 The excitement caused by the apostles' preaching led to a mass turnout on the following week. This response provoked the jealousy of some of the Jews (cp. 5:17; 4:1-2), whose ability to win converts to Judaism (13:43) was being dwarfed by Paul's ministry. They verbally attacked Paul and his ministry (cp. 6:8-12; 18:6; 19:9; Matt 23:13). Paul met this hostility with a bold declaration that these Jews had had their opportunity to hear the word of God, and that since they had rejected it, the offer of salvation would now be given to the Gentiles (cp. 10:34-35), in accord with the Lord's command in Scripture. The local Gentiles welcomed the Good News and many responded to it, so the Lord's message was carried throughout that region.

But since you have rejected it and judged yourselves unworthy of eternal life, we will offer it to the Gentiles. ⁴⁷For the Lord gave us this command when he said,

‘I have made you a light to the Gentiles, to bring salvation to the farthest corners of the earth.’”

⁴⁸When the Gentiles heard this, they were very glad and thanked the Lord for his message; and all who were chosen for eternal life became believers. ⁴⁹So the Lord’s message spread throughout that region.

⁵⁰Then the Jews stirred up the influential religious women and the leaders of the city, and they incited a mob against Paul and Barnabas and ran them out of town. ⁵¹So they shook the dust from their feet as a sign of rejection and went to the town of Iconium. ⁵²And the believers were filled with joy and with the Holy Spirit.

Paul and Barnabas in Iconium

14 The same thing happened in Iconium. Paul and Barnabas went to the Jewish synagogue and preached with such power that a great number of both Jews and Greeks became believers. ²Some of the Jews, however, spurned God’s message and poisoned the minds of the Gentiles against Paul and Barnabas. ³But the apostles stayed there a long time, preaching boldly about the grace of the Lord. And the Lord proved their message was true by giving them power to do miraculous signs and wonders. ⁴But the people of the town were divided in their opinion about them. Some sided with the Jews, and some with the apostles.

⁵Then a mob of Gentiles and Jews, along with their leaders, decided to attack and stone them. ⁶When the apostles learned of it, they fled to the region of Lycaonia—to the towns of Lystra and Derbe and the surrounding area. ⁷And there they preached the Good News.

Paul and Barnabas in Lystra and Derbe

⁸While they were at Lystra, Paul and Barnabas came upon a man with crippled feet. He had been that way from birth, so he had never walked. He was sitting ⁹and listening as Paul preached. Looking straight at him, Paul realized he had faith to be healed. ¹⁰So Paul called to him in a loud voice, “Stand up!” And the man jumped to his feet and started walking.

¹¹When the crowd saw what Paul had done, they shouted in their local dialect, “These men are gods in human form!”

¹²They decided that Barnabas was the Greek god Zeus and that Paul was Hermes, since he was the chief speaker. ¹³Now the temple of Zeus was located just outside the town.

13:47 This verse quotes Isa 49:6.

13:50-51 Jewish opposition once again forced Paul and Barnabas . . . out of town. They shook the dust from their feet as a sign of rejection, as Jesus had taught his disciples (see Matt 10:14-15; Mark 6:11-12; Luke 9:5-6; 10:10-11). That place was then treated as pagan territory, and other people were given access to the message of new life in Christ.

13:52 Despite probable harassment and persecution, the believers (literally the disciples) were filled with joy and with the Holy Spirit (cp. 5:41; 16:23-25; Matt 5:10-12; 2 Cor 8:2; 1 Thes 1:6).

14:1 The missionaries moved on to the next town, Iconium (now called Konya), located east of Pisidian Antioch on a high plateau in south central Asia Minor (Iconium, as well as Lystra and Derbe [14:6], were towns in what is now Turkey). Iconium enjoyed a favorable location on several key trade routes. • In their usual fashion, Paul and Barnabas began their ministry in the area by speaking powerfully in the Jewish synagogue, which led to a great response from both Jews and Greeks.

14:2 Once again Paul and Barnabas faced hostile Jews who rejected the Christian message and also poisoned the minds of the Gentiles.

14:3 The Spirit-inspired apostles were resilient to withstand the verbal attack against them, and they persisted in preaching the Good News that God’s grace was available to Gentiles as well as to Jews. • boldly: Spirit-inspired boldness is evident throughout Acts (see 2:14; 4:9-10, 13; 7:2-53; 8:30-35; 9:27-28; 18:26; 19:8; 22:3-21; 23:1-6; 28:16-20, 23-31). • In addition, the Holy Spirit confirmed the Christian message with miraculous signs and wonders (cp. 5:12-16; 15:12; 16:18; 19:11).

14:4 The apostolic message required a decision about belief in Jesus, and opinion was clearly split. • Paul and Barnabas are called apostles for the first time (also in 14:14), extending the idea of apostleship beyond the Twelve. Their message was in continuity with that of the original apostles, and they were prepared to suffer hardship and persecution for it as the earlier apostles had done (5:41; 14:19; 20:24; 21:13-14; see also Rom 8:35-38; 2 Cor 4:8-17).

14:6 Lycaonia was a southern region of the Roman province of Galatia. Its major cities were Lystra, Derbe, Laranda, and Iconium. Acts reports two more visits by Paul to Lycaonia (16:1-5; 18:23). Paul’s letter to the Galatians was probably addressed to scattered believers in the churches of Lycaonia (see Galatians Introduction, “Recipients,” p. 1978). • Lystra was located roughly twenty-five miles (40 km) south-southwest of Iconium. • Derbe, situated about thirty miles (50 km) southeast of Lystra, was on the busy major road that stretched from Iconium and Lystra eastward to Tarsus, the capital of Cilicia.

14:8-20 Paul’s healing of a man with crippled feet recalls a similar incident in 3:1-12. In Acts, the work of Paul parallels the work of Peter, and the many miraculous signs and wonders performed among the Jews were also performed among the Gentiles.

14:9 Paul realized he had faith to be healed: Paul, full of the Holy Spirit (9:17), sensed the man’s spiritual openness and expectancy for divine help and intervention.

14:11-13 Zeus was the patron god of Lystra, and the city had a temple in his honor. They associated Barnabas with Zeus, perhaps because he was the more impressive figure, and Hermes was identified with Paul . . . since he was the chief speaker. The native people

So the priest of the temple and the crowd brought bulls and wreaths of flowers to the town gates, and they prepared to offer sacrifices to the apostles.

¹⁴But when the apostles Barnabas and Paul heard what was happening, they tore their clothing in dismay and ran out among the people, shouting, ¹⁵"Friends, why are you doing this? We are merely human beings—just like you! We have come to bring you the Good News that you should turn from these worthless things and turn to the living God, who made heaven and earth, the sea, and everything in them. ¹⁶In the past he permitted all the nations to go their own ways, ¹⁷but he never left them without evidence of himself and his goodness. For instance, he sends you rain and good crops and gives you food and joyful hearts." ¹⁸But even with these words, Paul and Barnabas could scarcely restrain the people from sacrificing to them.

¹⁹Then some Jews arrived from Antioch and Iconium and won the crowds to their side. They stoned Paul and dragged him out of town, thinking he was dead. ²⁰But as the believers gathered around him, he got up and went back into the town. The next day he left with Barnabas for Derbe.

Paul and Barnabas Return through Pisidia and Pamphylia

²¹After preaching the Good News in Derbe and making many disciples, Paul and Barnabas returned to Lystra, Iconium, and Antioch of Pisidia, ²²where they strengthened the believers. They encouraged them to continue in the faith, reminding them that we must suffer many hardships to enter the Kingdom of God. ²³Paul and Barnabas also appointed elders in every church. With prayer and fasting, they turned the elders over to the care of the Lord, in whom they had put their trust. ²⁴Then they traveled back through Pisidia to Pamphylia. ²⁵They preached the word in Perga, then went down to Attalia.

The Successful Return to the Antioch Church

²⁶Finally, they returned by ship to Antioch of Syria, where their journey had begun. The believers there had entrusted them to the grace of God to do the work they had now completed. ²⁷Upon arriving in Antioch, they called the church together and reported everything God had done through them and how he had opened the door of faith to the Gentiles, too. ²⁸And they stayed there with the believers for a long time.

The Council at Jerusalem: Conflict over Gentiles (15:1-35)

The Challenge of the Judaizers

15 While Paul and Barnabas were at Antioch of Syria, some men from Judea arrived and began to teach the believers: "Unless you are circumcised as required by the law of Moses, you cannot be saved."

The Debate in the Jerusalem Church

²Paul and Barnabas disagreed with them, arguing vehemently. Finally, the church decided to send Paul and Barnabas to Jerusalem, accompanied by some local believers, to talk to the apostles and elders about this question. ³The church sent the delegates to of Lystra thought that they were being treated to a divine visitation similar to a past mythological appearance cited by the poet Ovid (in which the gods Zeus and Hermes came to visit the area but were unrecognized except by an old couple; see Ovid, Metamorphoses 8.616–724). So the people set out to honor these supposed gods.

14:13-18 The apostles opposed the people's idolatry and their attempt to offer sacrifices to them. They directed the people's worship to the living God; the apostles were his representatives as they brought the Good News of the Christian message.

14:15 Friends: Literally Men.

14:19-20 The crowd became fickle when some Jews arrived from Antioch and Iconium and easily turned the people against the apostles. • They stoned Paul and dragged him out of town: Paul later referred to this time of persecution as a lesson (2 Tim 3:11-12). • thinking he was dead: That Paul got up and went back into the town suggests that God miraculously healed him of his wounds.

14:20 believers: Literally disciples; also in 14:22, 28. • The next day he left: Paul later returned to Lystra on his second missionary journey (16:1).

14:22-23 The apostles were diligent in following up with those who had made a Christian profession of faith. These new disciples needed to be nurtured, supported, and encouraged (15:32, 41; 16:40; 18:23; see 1 Thes 3:2; 4:18; 5:14). • Paul and Barnabas . . . appointed elders: See "Church Leaders" at Titus 1:5-9, p. 2071.

14:26-28 As soon as Paul and Barnabas returned home to Antioch from their first missionary journey, they called the church together and gave a full report of their evangelism and discipleship. They humbly acknowledged divine guidance in opening the door of faith to the Gentiles (see 11:18; 1 Cor 16:9; 2 Cor

2:12). Similar reports (15:4, 12; 21:19) always stressed the activity of God as working through the ministries of his servants (see Rom 15:17-18; 1 Cor 3:5-9; 15:10-11).

15:1 These men from Judea were Jewish Christians who taught the necessity of circumcision (and with it, conversion to Judaism) in order to be saved. The central issue was how Gentiles were to be received into Christian fellowship. Paul wrote his letter to the Galatians about this time to counter the same teaching in Galatia (see Galatians Introduction, "Date," p. 1979). • believers: Literally brothers; also in 15:3, 23, 32, 33, 36, 40.

15:2-3 The Antioch church decided to send . . . delegates to Jerusalem to resolve this matter in discussion with the apostles and elders there. En route, the entourage visited believers in Phoenicia and Samaria, where the Christian faith had made substantial inroads (ch 8).

Jerusalem, and they stopped along the way in Phoenicia and Samaria to visit the believers. They told them—much to everyone's joy—that the Gentiles, too, were being converted.

⁴When they arrived in Jerusalem, Barnabas and Paul were welcomed by the whole church, including the apostles and elders. They reported everything God had done through them. ⁵But then some of the believers who belonged to the sect of the Pharisees stood up and insisted, "The Gentile converts must be circumcised and required to follow the ^blaw of Moses."

⁶So the apostles and elders met together to resolve this ^cissue. ⁷At the meeting, after a long discussion, Peter stood and addressed them as follows: "Brothers, you all know that God chose me from among you some time ago to preach to the Gentiles so that they could hear the Good News and believe. ⁸God knows people's hearts, and he confirmed that he accepts Gentiles by giving them the Holy Spirit, just as he did to us. ⁹He made no distinction between us and them, for he cleansed their ^dhearts through faith. ¹⁰So why are you now challenging God by burdening the Gentile believers with a yoke that neither we nor our ancestors were able to bear? ¹¹We believe that we are all saved the same way, by the undeserved grace of the Lord Jesus."

¹²Everyone listened quietly as Barnabas and Paul told about the miraculous ^esigns and wonders God had done through them among the Gentiles.

¹³When they had finished, James stood and said, "Brothers, listen to me. ¹⁴Peter has told you about the time God first visited the Gentiles to take from them a people for himself. ¹⁵And this conversion of Gentiles is exactly what the prophets predicted. As it is written:

¹⁶ 'Afterward I will return and restore the fallen house of David.
I will rebuild its ruins and restore it,
¹⁷ so that the rest of humanity might seek including the Gentiles—

Circumcision (cutting off the male foreskin) was widely practiced in the ancient Near East (Jer 9:25-26). For Jews, it had religious significance as the sign of the covenant that God had established with the people of Israel (7:8; Gen 17:9-14; Josh 5:2; John 7:22; Sirach 44:20). It was normally performed on the eighth day of a male infant's life (7:8; Gen 17:12; Lev 12:3; Luke 1:59). The NT notes the circumcision of John the Baptist, Jesus, Paul, and Timothy (16:3; Luke 1:59; 2:21; Phil 3:5). Circumcision became a metaphor for the renewal of a person's relationship with God (Deut 10:16; 30:6; Jer 4:4; Rom 2:28-29). In the late 40s AD, some Jewish Christians tried to require Gentile Christians to undergo circumcision (15:1, 5; see 21:20-21; Gal 2:4, 11-13), to which Paul and Barnabas objected (15:2). The ensuing church council at Jerusalem settled the matter in favor of not requiring Gentiles to be circumcised (15:19-21, 28-29).

Paul insisted that "it makes no difference whether or not a man has been circumcised" (1 Cor 7:19). "What is important is faith expressing itself in love" (Gal 5:6). In Galatians, Paul argued against vigorous Jewish opponents to insist that everyone enters God's family simply through faith in Jesus Christ (Gal 2:14-21). Circumcision is not required for acceptance by God (Gal 5:6). The cross of Christ is the way that sinners enter into covenant with God (Gal 2:14-21; Col 2:11-15).

met to resolve the dispute concerning Gentiles and circumcision (15:1-2).

15:5 These Pharisees were believers, yet they retained their strong adherence to the law of Moses (see "The Pharisees" at Matt 3:7, p. 1581). Paul argued against their message most strenuously (see Gal 1:6-9; 2:14-3:14).

15:7-11 Peter, no doubt remembering his own experience in the household of Cornelius (ch 10), argued that God had already confirmed his acceptance of the Gentiles without circumcision by giving them the Holy Spirit. The undeserved grace of the Lord Jesus had been made available to all.

15:10 Gentile believers: Literally disciples.

15:13-19 James, the brother of Jesus, declared that the conversion of the Gentiles was clearly in accord with Scripture. He argued forcefully that it was contrary to the divine will to put unnecessary requirements on the admission of the Gentiles.

15:14 Peter: Greek Simeon. Peter's given name was Simon (see Matt 16:17-19).

15:15-19 Because God's prophets had predicted the conversion and inclusion of the Gentiles, James argued that the Gentiles should be accepted as Gentiles, without requiring them to practice Judaism (15:1).

15:16-18 This passage quotes Amos 9:11-12 (Greek version); Isa 45:21.

¹⁹"And so my judgment is that we should not make it difficult for the Gentiles who are turning to God. ²⁰Instead, we should write and tell them to abstain from eating food offered to idols, from sexual immorality, from eating the meat of strangled animals, and from consuming blood. ²¹For these laws of Moses have been preached in Jewish synagogues in every city on every Sabbath for many generations."

The Decision of the Council

²²Then the apostles and elders together with the whole church in Jerusalem chose delegates, and they sent them to Antioch of Syria with Paul and Barnabas to report on this decision. The men chosen were two of the church leaders—Judas (also called Barsabbas) and Silas. ²³This is the letter they took with them:

"This letter is from the apostles and elders, your brothers in Jerusalem. It is written to the Gentile believers in Antioch, Syria, and Cilicia. Greetings!

²⁴"We understand that some men from here have troubled you and upset you with their teaching, but we did not send them! ²⁵So we decided, having come to complete agreement, to send you official representatives, along with our beloved Barnabas and Paul, ²⁶who have risked their lives for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ. ²⁷We are sending Judas and Silas to confirm what we have decided concerning your question.

²⁸"For it seemed good to the Holy Spirit and to us to lay no greater burden on you than these few requirements: ²⁹You must abstain from eating food offered to idols, from consuming blood or the meat of strangled animals, and from sexual immorality. If you do this, you will do well. Farewell."

James, one of Jesus' brothers (Matt 13:55; Mark 6:3; Gal 1:19; cp. Jude 1:1), became the recognized leader of the church in Jerusalem shortly after Jesus' resurrection. He is traditionally recognized as the author of the book of James.

Though Jesus' brothers were initially skeptical of his claims (John 7:3-5), they later became believers (1:14). James's personal encounter with the resurrected Jesus (1 Cor 15:7) might have helped convince him. Two of Jesus' brothers (James and Jude) are known to have played significant roles in the early Christian community. James quickly rose to the position of leader of the church in Jerusalem. At the council in Jerusalem, James was instrumental in getting the Jewish church leaders to accept Gentile believers without requiring that they be circumcised—a decision of major importance for Paul and the early mission to Gentiles (15:13-21). Paul visited James in Jerusalem after his third missionary trip (21:18), just as he had done earlier, following his conversion (Gal 1:19).

Like most Jewish Christians, James continued to observe the law of Moses. He emphasized the need for believers to observe certain key laws when among Jews (15:20-21; 21:18-25). James acknowledged the validity of Paul's missionary calling and emphasis on salvation by faith alone (Gal 2:6-9), but many Jewish Christians did not. These Jewish believers demanded that Gentile converts be circumcised and observe the law of Moses in order to be saved.

James's Jewish background is reflected in his letter, which is full of practical advice for wise living, much of it in line with the traditional wisdom teaching of Jewish Scripture. One paragraph of his letter (Jas 5:1-6) reads very much like the work of the OT prophets (e.g., cp. Amos 5:21-24; 6:1-7).

James, titled "the Just" by his contemporaries, was apparently put to death for his faith by Jewish priests in Jerusalem (Josephus, Antiquities 20.9; Eusebius, Church History 2.23.4-18).

15:20 Eating food offered to idols is sinful if it involves knowingly partaking of an idolatrous sacrifice (see Exod 20:4; Deut 5:8; 1 Cor 8:4-13; 10:14-30; Rev 2:14, 20). • Sexual immorality was common in the Greek world but is always sinful (Exod 20:14; Deut 5:18; Gal 5:19). • eating the meat of strangled animals: God's law prohibits eating meat that has blood in it (Lev 17:13-14) or consuming blood (Lev 17:10-12),

"for the life of every creature is in its blood" (Lev 17:14). Also, "It is the blood, given in exchange for a life, that makes purification possible" (see Lev 17:11 and note). This command was first given to Noah, the ancestor of Gentiles as well as Jews (Gen 9:4).

15:22-29 The Jerusalem church chose two of the church leaders (literally leaders among the brothers) to report its decision. They took with them a letter from the apostles and elders . . . in Jerusalem explaining the terms of the agreement.

15:29 Farewell: The letter to the churches includes this familiar Hellenistic greeting at the end of a letter, found only here in the NT. Paul often ended his letters on a more theological note (e.g., 1 Cor 16:23-24; 2 Cor 13:13; see Eph 6:23-24; Phil 4:23; Col 4:18; 1 Thes 5:23-28; 1 Tim 6:21).

Joyful Return to the Antioch Church

³⁰The messengers went at once to Antioch, where they called a general meeting of the believers and delivered the letter. ³¹And there was great joy throughout the church that day as they read this encouraging message.

³²Then Judas and Silas, both being prophets, spoke at length to the believers, encouraging and strengthening their faith. ³³They stayed for a while, and then the believers sent them back to the church in Jerusalem with a blessing of peace. ³⁵Paul and Barnabas stayed in Antioch. They and many others taught and preached the word of the Lord there.

Paul's Second Missionary Journey from Antioch (15:36–18:22)Paul and Barnabas Separate

³⁶After some time Paul said to Barnabas, "Let's go back and visit each city where we previously preached the word of the Lord, to see how the new believers are doing."

³⁷Barnabas agreed and wanted to take along John Mark. ³⁸But Paul disagreed strongly, since John Mark had deserted them in Pamphylia and had not continued with them in their work. ³⁹Their disagreement was so sharp that they separated. Barnabas took John Mark with him and sailed for Cyprus. ⁴⁰Paul chose Silas, and as he left, the believers entrusted him to the Lord's gracious care. ⁴¹Then he traveled throughout Syria and Cilicia, strengthening the churches there.

Paul Returns to Derbe and Lystra

16 Paul went first to Derbe and then to Lystra, where there was a young disciple named Timothy. His mother was a Jewish believer, but his father was a Greek. ²Timothy was well thought of by the believers in Lystra and Iconium, ³so Paul wanted him to join them on their journey. In deference to the Jews of the area, he arranged for Timothy to be circumcised before they left, for everyone knew that his chose Silas as his partner for a second missionary journey through Syria and Cilicia. The two men traveled overland to visit Derbe and Lystra, explaining the decision of the Jerusalem council and strengthening believers in their faith.

16:1–3 Paul returned to churches that he and Barnabas had established on their previous journey.

16:2 believers: Literally brothers; also in 16:40.

16:3 Paul had Timothy circumcised to enhance Timothy's acceptance and effectiveness as a Jew in Jewish circles (contrast Titus, who was a full Gentile, Gal 2:3). Elsewhere Paul clarified that it makes no difference to God whether we are circumcised or not circumcised (Rom 2:25–29; Gal 5:6; 6:15). Paul was prepared to use any legitimate means to communicate the Good News (1 Cor 9:20–21) to various audiences.

15:30–31 The believers at Antioch received the decision with great joy that conversion to Judaism and keeping all the requirements of the law of Moses was not required of them. The dispute had been resolved, so the work of teaching and preaching in Antioch could continue unimpeded.

15:33 Some manuscripts add verse 34, But Silas decided to stay there.

15:36–41 The discordant separation of Paul and Barnabas is indicated by a very strong word in Greek (their disagreement was so sharp). It was an honest disagreement between two godly men about whether John Mark (Barnabas's cousin, Col 4:10) should be given a second chance to accompany them on a mission journey after he had deserted them in Pamphylia (see 13:13). The rift between Paul and John Mark was eventually healed (2 Tim 4:11).

15:40–41 Following his disagreement with Barnabas over John Mark, Paul father was a Greek. ⁴Then they went from town to town, instructing the believers to follow the decisions made by the apostles and elders in Jerusalem. ⁵So the churches were strengthened in their faith and grew larger every day.

A Call from Macedonia

⁶Next Paul and Silas traveled through the area of Phrygia and Galatia, because the Holy Spirit had prevented them from preaching the word in the province of Asia at that time. ⁷Then coming to the borders of Mysia, they headed north for the province of Bithynia, but again the Spirit of Jesus did not allow them to go there. ⁸So instead, they went on through Mysia to the seaport of Troas.

⁹That night Paul had a vision: A man from Macedonia in northern Greece was standing there, pleading with him, "Come over to Macedonia and help us!" ¹⁰So we decided to leave for Macedonia at once, having concluded that God was calling us to preach the Good News there.

Timothy traveled with Paul for much of his missionary career and was one of Paul's best-loved and most trusted assistants. Two of Paul's last letters were written to Timothy at a time when Timothy was providing leadership for the church in Ephesus, near the end of Paul's life.

Timothy had a devout mother and grandmother (2 Tim 1:5), and he was highly respected by the Christians in his hometown, Lystra, and in nearby Iconium. He joined Paul's missionary team on Paul's second missionary journey. Paul speaks of prophetic words that confirmed Timothy's selection. Timothy also received a special gifting for service through the laying on of the hands of the elders and of Paul (1 Tim 1:18; 4:14; 2 Tim 1:6). Out of deference to the Jews in the area, Paul had Timothy circumcised (16:1-3).

Over the next fifteen years, Paul sent Timothy on special assignments to several different churches (19:22; 1 Cor 4:17; 16:10-11; Phil 2:19-23; 1 Thes 3:2-6; 1 Tim 1:3; cp. Acts 17:14-15; 18:5). Paul included Timothy's name as coauthor of several of his letters (2 Cor 1:1; Phil 1:1; Col 1:1; 1 Thes 1:1; 2 Thes 1:1; Phlm 1:1). Paul had a close relationship with Timothy and held him in high regard (see Rom 16:21; 1 Cor 4:17; 1 Thes 3:2; 1 Tim 1:2; 6:11; 2 Tim 1:2). As Paul neared the end of his life and awaited his sentence in prison, he longed to see Timothy (2 Tim 1:3-4). Of all Paul's co-workers, Timothy especially is commended for his selfless concern for Christ and his people (Phil 2:20-22).

In Paul's second letter to Timothy (2 Timothy), written shortly before Paul was killed, he encouraged Timothy to be bold and fearless in his proclamation of the Good News, willing to suffer for Christ (2 Tim 1:8; 2:1-3; 4:1-2, 5)—a strong word to one who might have been timid by nature (2 Tim 1:6-7). Timothy himself seems to have become a prisoner later on (Heb 13:23).

Timothy was exemplary in the way he faithfully served the cause of Christ behind the scenes, devoting himself selflessly and with single-minded focus to the work of Christ and the people of Christ wherever help was needed (Phil 2:20-22). He serves as a reminder that even shy people may become strong and effective witnesses for Christ.

16:4-5 Paul and Silas faithfully communicated the decisions of the Jerusalem council. The wisdom of the decision was indicated as the churches were strengthened in their faith and grew larger every day (cp. 2:41; 4:4; 5:14; 6:1; 9:31; 21:20).

16:6-10 God directed the missionaries' travels: The Holy Spirit had prevented them from proceeding westward into the province of Asia, the Spirit of Jesus did not allow them to go north to Bithynia, and then Paul had a vision calling them to go northwest over the Aegean Sea to Macedonia. God's Spirit guided his servants in Acts in a variety of ways, including divine visions (see also 9:10; 10:9-16; 22:18), direct intuition (cp. 8:29, 39; 10:19; 20:22), counsel with other believers (cp. 15:29), guidance through prayer (13:2, 4), insight through Scripture (28:25-27), and prophecy (11:28). Guidance by the indwelling Holy Spirit helped them to accomplish their mission to be Christ's witnesses (1:8; see also 4:8, 31; 11:24; 13:9).

16:6-7 Phrygia, Galatia, Asia, Mysia, and Bithynia were all districts in what is now Turkey.

16:8 Troas, a major port on the Aegean Sea, was one of the more significant cities in the Roman empire. Paul's strategy was often to visit principal places such as Troas, Athens, Corinth, and Ephesus. When the Christian faith had been planted in major centers, local Christian workers could carry it into outlying areas

(e.g., Epaphras took the message from Ephesus to Colosse, Col 1:7; 4:12-13).

16:9-10 a vision: See "Visions" at 10:9-16, p. 1846.

16:10 we: The most natural interpretation of the shift from "they" to "we" is that Luke, the writer of this book, here joined Paul and accompanied him on his journey. From the "we" passages in Acts, we can infer Luke's itinerary with Paul: Luke apparently accompanied Paul from Troas to Philippi (16:10-17). Later Luke joined Paul again at Philippi and sailed with him to Troas, then to Miletus (20:5-15), then from Miletus to Jerusalem (21:1-18). After Paul's two-year imprisonment in Caesarea, Luke traveled with him to Rome (27:1-28:16).

Lydia of Philippi Believes in Jesus

¹³On the Sabbath we went a little way outside the city to a riverbank, where we thought people would be meeting for prayer, and we sat down to speak with some women who had gathered there.
¹⁴One of them was Lydia from Thyatira, a merchant of expensive purple cloth, who worshiped God. As she listened to us, the Lord opened her heart, and she accepted what Paul was saying. ¹⁵She and her household were 'baptized, and she asked us to be her guests. "If you agree that I am a true believer in the Lord," she said, "come and stay at my home." And she urged us until we agreed.

Luke (16:10)

Acts 1:1
Luke 1:3
Col 4:14
2 Tim 4:11
Phlm 1:24

Luke, a Gentile medical doctor who became a convert and trusted assistant of Paul in his missionary work, wrote both the Gospel of Luke and the Acts of the Apostles—one-quarter of the NT.

Though we know very little about Luke's background, he seems to have first encountered Paul and his preaching in western Asia Minor, where he became a convert. Leaving his home, he devoted his life to the service of Christ and the Good News as a dedicated assistant of Paul. Paul speaks of him warmly as "the beloved doctor" and one of his faithful "co-workers" (Col 4:14; Phlm 1:24). Luke is the only Christian who faithfully remained with Paul when Paul was awaiting execution in Rome (2 Tim 4:11). He is the only Gentile to have his writings included in the NT.

Accompanying Paul on his last trip to Jerusalem, Luke probably acquired the information for his Gospel and the early part of the book of Acts from people he interviewed in Judea when Paul was imprisoned there for two years. Having talked extensively with people who heard and saw Jesus, and having carefully studied what others had written about him, Luke then wrote his own careful account of Jesus' life and teachings (see Luke 1:1-4).

When Paul was sent by ship to Rome to have his case tried there, Luke accompanied him. While Paul was under house arrest, awaiting his trial, Luke might have used the time to write the book of Acts. The first fifteen chapters provide a chronological account of the earliest missionary work as told to him by the early followers of Christ and by Paul himself. But beginning in Acts 16:10—the point at which Luke joined Paul's team—he provides a direct eyewitness account. Acts emphasizes the way the Holy Spirit empowered and guided the early missionaries in their witness (1:4-5, 8) and ends with Paul still under house arrest in Rome (28:30-31).

We are indebted to Luke for many unique passages: his full account of Jesus' birth, descriptions of Jesus' ministry to women, many words about Jesus caring for the poor, and the only comprehensive account of the first thirty years of missionary activity—all carefully documented. Through Luke's writings we gain a much deeper appreciation of the crucial work of the Holy Spirit in the ministry of Jesus and the early missionaries.

16:11 Samothrace is a small mountainous island lying west-northwest of the Hellespont about twenty miles (32 km) from the coast of Thrace. • Neapolis (modern Kavala) was the seaport for Philippi and the eastern terminus of the famous Via Egnatia (the Egnatian Way), which ran from Rome to Asia.

16:12 At Philippi, about ten miles (17 km) inland from Neapolis, Paul began his missionary labors in Europe.

16:13-36 Luke gives his readers cameos of three lives touched by the Good News in Philippi: a wealthy woman (16:14-15), an exploited slave girl (16:16-21), and a middle-class officer (16:23-36).

16:13 The Jewish community at Philippi was too small to have a synagogue, which required ten adult males. Instead, Jews met for prayer in an open space by the Gangites (now called Angista) River that afforded privacy, quiet, and water for Jewish purification rites.

16:14-15 The first person changed by Christ in Philippi was Lydia, a successful businesswoman from Thyatira (modern Akhisar), a city of western Asia Minor famous for its woolen fabrics, weavers, and linens. Lydia responded to the message and she and her household were baptized (cp. 16:32-33). • One of Lydia's first acts as a true believer in the Lord was to extend hospitality to the visiting missionaries. Hospitality is an important Christian virtue (Matt 25:31-46; Rom 12:13; 16:23; 1 Tim 3:2; Titus 1:8; Heb 13:2; 1 Pet 4:9; 3 Jn 1:5-8; cp. Gen 18:1-8; 19:1-3; 24:23-33).

16:16-18 The second portrait of a changed life in Philippi is of a slave girl who had a spirit . . . to tell the future.

by telling fortunes. ¹⁷She followed Paul and the rest of us, shouting, "These men are servants of the Most High God, and they have come to tell you how to be saved."

¹⁸This went on day after day until Paul got so exasperated that he turned and said to the demon within her, "I command you in the name of Jesus Christ to come out of her." And instantly it left her.

¹⁹Her masters' hopes of wealth were now shattered, so they grabbed Paul and Silas and dragged them before the authorities at the marketplace. ²⁰"The whole city is in an uproar because of these Jews!" they shouted to the city officials. ²¹"They are teaching customs that are illegal for us Romans to practice."

²²A mob quickly formed against Paul and Silas, and the city officials ordered them stripped and beaten with wooden rods. ²³They were severely beaten, and then they were thrown into prison. The jailer was ordered to make sure they didn't escape. ²⁴So the jailer put them into the inner dungeon and clamped their feet in the stocks.

²⁵Around midnight Paul and Silas were praying and singing hymns to God, and the other prisoners were listening. ²⁶Suddenly, there was a massive earthquake, and the prison was shaken to its foundations. All the doors immediately flew open, and the chains of every prisoner fell off! ²⁷The jailer woke up to see the prison doors wide open.

He assumed the prisoners had escaped, so he drew his sword to kill himself. ²⁸But Paul shouted to him, "Stop! Don't kill yourself! We are all here!"

²⁹The jailer called for lights and ran to the dungeon and fell down trembling before Paul and Silas. ³⁰Then he brought them out and asked, "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?"

³¹They replied, "Believe in the Lord Jesus and you will be saved, along with everyone in your household." ³²And they shared the word of the Lord with him and with all who lived in his household. ³³Even at that hour of the night, the jailer cared for them and washed their wounds. Then he and everyone in his household were immediately baptized. ³⁴He brought them into his house and set a meal before them, and he and his entire household rejoiced because they all believed in God.

³⁵The next morning the city officials sent the police to tell the jailer, "Let those men go!" ³⁶So the jailer told Paul, "The city officials have said you and Silas are free to leave. Go in peace."

³⁷But Paul replied, "They have publicly beaten us without a trial and put us in prison—and we are Roman citizens. So now they want us to leave secretly? Certainly not! Let them come themselves to release us!"

³⁸When the police reported this, the city officials were alarmed to learn that Paul

• Even though the demon within her was stating the truth, Paul, like Jesus, did not permit it to proclaim the Christian message (cp. Mark 1:25, 34; 3:11-12; Luke 4:35, 41). The Lord had commanded that the gospel be proclaimed by his disciples, not by opponents (Matt 28:18-20; Luke 24:46-49; John 20:21; Acts 1:8; 9:15; 26:15-18; see 22:15).

16:19-21 As in the ministry of Jesus, sometimes the Good News threatened established commercial interests (see also 19:25-27; Mark 5:1-20). The slave girl's exploiters viciously attacked the missionaries and dragged them before the authorities as criminals, blamed them for fomenting a disturbance, resorted to racial bias (these Jews), and appealed to the Philippians' pride (us Romans; the Philippians prided themselves on being Roman citizens of a Roman colony). • customs that are illegal: By law, Jews were not permitted to make converts of Romans.

16:22-24 All reasonable security measures were taken to ensure that Paul and Silas didn't escape after they had been stripped and beaten with wooden rods (see 22:24-26; 2 Cor 6:5; 11:23-25).

As at Christ's tomb (Matt 27:65), however, human effort did not prevent divine intervention.

16:25 Paul and Silas, like the persecuted apostles in Jerusalem, were joyful, "rejoicing that God had counted them worthy to suffer disgrace for the name of Jesus" (5:41).

16:26 The massive earthquake is reminiscent of the great earthquake at Jesus' resurrection (Matt 28:2-3).

16:27-36 Luke's third portrait in Philippi is of the Philippian jailer who, shaken by what had happened, responded in faith when challenged to accept the Lord Jesus and be saved. He was baptized with his household and rejoiced in his newfound faith as he reached out with hospitality to the preachers.

16:27 The Roman jailer clearly knew that his life could be forfeited if the prisoners for whom he was responsible escaped. This was standard practice (12:19; 27:42; cp. Code of Justinian 9.4.4).

16:29-30 Paul and Silas had impressed the jailer with their cheerful faith (16:25), their composure in crisis, and their concern for his well-being (16:28). Whatever the jailer's previous understanding of Paul's message, God touched his heart, and he cried out for divine help.

16:31-34 Paul and Silas directed the jailer to a faith in Christ that brings blessing both to him and his family. The whole household received Christian instruction, and their response was expressed in baptism (see "Baptism" at 2:38, 41, p. 1828) and the offering of hospitality to Paul and Silas.

16:37-39 Paul and Silas were both Roman citizens, so the beating and imprisonment (16:22-24) had been illegal. After the city officials learned of this, they were justifiably alarmed because they had committed a crime against Rome. • Let them come themselves to release us: Paul made use of his rights as a Roman citizen in order to clear his name and ensure that no disrepute would attach to the Christian message or those who accepted it. Luke intended to show that Christianity should enjoy the same status as Judaism in the Roman empire as a permitted religion—and Silas were Roman citizens. ³⁹So they came to the jail and apologized to them. Then they brought them out and begged them to leave the city. ⁴⁰When Paul and Silas left the prison, they returned to the home of Lydia. There they met with the believers and encouraged them once more. Then they left town.

Paul Preaches in Thessalonica

17 Paul and Silas then traveled through the towns of Amphipolis and Apollonia and came to Thessalonica, where there was a Jewish synagogue. ²As was Paul's custom, he went to the synagogue service, and for three Sabbaths in a row he used the Scriptures to reason with the people. ³He explained the prophecies and proved that the Messiah must suffer and rise from the dead. He said, "This Jesus I'm telling you about is the Messiah." ⁴Some of the Jews who listened were persuaded and joined Paul and Silas, along with many God-fearing Greek men and quite a few prominent women.

⁵But some of the Jews were jealous, so they gathered some troublemakers from the marketplace to form a mob and start a riot. They attacked the home of Jason, searching for Paul and Silas so they could drag them out to the crowd. ⁶Not finding them there, they dragged out Jason and some of the other believers instead and took them before the city council. "Paul and Silas have caused trouble all over the world," they shouted, "and now they are here disturbing our city, too." ⁷And Jason has welcomed them into his home. They are all guilty of treason against Caesar, for they profess allegiance to another king, named Jesus."

⁸The people of the city, as well as the city council, were thrown into turmoil by these reports. ⁹So the officials forced Jason and the other believers to post bond, and then they released them.

Paul and Silas in Berea

¹⁰That very night the believers sent Paul and Silas to Berea. When they arrived there, they went to the Jewish synagogue. ¹¹And the people of Berea were more open-minded than those in Thessalonica, and they listened eagerly to Paul's message. They searched the Scriptures day after day to see if Paul and Silas were teaching the truth. ¹²As a result, many Jews believed, as did many of the prominent Greek women and men.

¹³But when some Jews in Thessalonica learned that Paul was preaching the word of God in Berea, they went there and stirred up trouble. ¹⁴The believers acted at once, sending Paul on to the coast, while Silas and Timothy remained behind. ¹⁵Those escorting Paul went with him all the way to Athens; then they returned to Berea with instructions for Silas and Timothy to hurry and join him.

Paul Preaches in Athens

¹⁶While Paul was waiting for them in Athens, he was deeply troubled by all the idols the Christian faith was compatible with the life of a Roman citizen. Accordingly, it was important to note that Paul made use of his rights as a Roman citizen (cp. 22:25-27) and was ready to use the privileges of citizenship to advance the cause of Christ in a hostile world.

16:40 This meeting in the home of Lydia bolstered the spirits of the Philipian Christians who had to deal with the fallout from the missionaries' work there.

17:1-9 After traveling through Macedonia to Thessalonica, Paul preached to the Jews first (Rom 1:16) in the synagogue. Here, as elsewhere, there was a mixed response.

17:1-3 Amphipolis was a Roman military post located on the Egnatian Way in the northeastern part of Macedonia. • Apollonia, named after the Greek god Apollo, was also situated on the Egnatian Way. • Thessalonica offered a starting point for ministry because it had a Jewish synagogue (see note on 9:2). Paul was able to preach for three consecutive Sabbaths, explaining the Scriptures and showing their fulfillment in Jesus.

17:4 God-fearing Greek men: See note on 10:2. • quite a few prominent women (some manuscripts read quite a few of the wives of the leading men): Luke regularly draws attention to women who joined the Christian movement (17:4, 12, 34; see also 5:14; 8:12; 16:13-15, 31-34; 18:26; 21:9).

17:5-7 Once again, the enemies of the Christian faith saw it as a disruptive threat (cp. 16:19-21). Ironically, they gathered some troublemakers and then accused Paul and Silas of causing trouble by disturbing the peace and committing treason against Caesar—serious charges of threatening the stability of the empire (cp. Luke 23:2).

17:5 the crowd: Or the city council.

17:6 other believers: Literally brothers; also in 17:10, 14.

17:8-9 The charges did not hold up under scrutiny, so the officials released Paul and Silas after Jason and the other believers posted bond. Christianity, Luke contended, was politically harmless to the Roman empire and should therefore be recognized as a permitted religion and not subjected to political attack.

17:10-12 In light of the strong opposition in Thessalonica, the believers sent Paul and Silas to Berea, located about fifty miles (80 km) west of Thessalonica. There the missionaries had a better reception than in Thessalonica. Many Jews came to faith, as well as many of the prominent Greek women and men. The Bereans were exemplary in their attitude, for they were open-minded and eager to learn, good listeners, diligent Bible students, and thoughtful people. Their resulting faith had a strong foundation.

17:13-15 Paul acknowledged the determination and persistence of this persecution when he wrote to the Thessalonians (1 Thes 2:14-16).

17:16-34 In this chapter, we see Paul presented as a model witness for Christ, engaging the thinkers of his day and challenging them with the Christian message. Paul quoted writers his he saw everywhere in the city. ¹⁷He went to the synagogue to reason with the Jews and the God-fearing Gentiles, and he spoke daily in the public square to all who happened to be there.

¹⁸He also had a debate with some of the Epicurean and Stoic philosophers. When he told them about Jesus and his resurrection, they said, "What's this babbler trying to say with these strange ideas he's picked up?" Others said, "He seems to be preaching about some foreign gods."

¹⁹Then they took him to the high council of the city. "Come and tell us about this new teaching," they said. ²⁰"You are saying some rather strange things, and we want to know what it's all about." ²¹(It should be explained that all the Athenians as well as the foreigners in Athens seemed to spend all their time discussing the latest ideas.)

²²So Paul, standing before the council, addressed them as follows: "Men of Athens, I notice that you are very religious in every way, ²³for as I was walking along I saw your many shrines. And one of your altars had this inscription on it: 'To an Unknown God.' This God, whom you worship without knowing, is the one I'm telling you about.

²⁴"He is the God who made the world and everything in it. Since he is Lord of heaven and earth, he doesn't live in man-made temples, ²⁵and human hands can't serve his needs—for he has no needs. He himself gives life and breath to everything, and he satisfies every need. ²⁶From one man he created all the nations throughout the whole earth. He decided beforehand when they should rise and fall, and he determined their boundaries.

²⁷"His purpose was for the nations to seek after God and perhaps feel their way toward him and find him—though he is not far from any one of us. ²⁸For in him we live and move and exist. As some of your own poets have said, 'We are his offspring.' ²⁹And since this is true, we shouldn't think of God as an idol designed by craftsmen from gold or silver or stone.

³⁰"God overlooked people's ignorance about these things in earlier times, but now audience would be familiar with and showed the relevance of the gospel by dialoguing with them, critiquing their assumptions, and offering Jesus as a constructive alternative (see Col 1:28). Paul reminded these proud intellectuals that there is a living God to whom all human beings are answerable; that they will be judged by him through Jesus, whom God raised from the dead; and that they should therefore repent and put their faith in Jesus.

17:16-17 Athens, like Alexandria and Tarsus, prided itself on its intellectual sophistication in examining ideas and considering the different philosophies that were current at the time.

17:18 Epicurean . . . philosophers: Epicureanism was a popular school of Greek philosophy, founded by Epicurus (341–270 bc). Epicureans believed that the principal aim of life was to secure happiness. They thought of pleasure not in terms of sensual indulgence, as their critics charged, but in terms of tranquility. Their contemporaries often called them atheists; in their view, there were no gods to fear, and death simply marked the end of human existence. They sought their security in organized communities where they could live in contentment apart from society. • Stoic philosophers: Stoicism was founded by Zeno of Citium (335–263 bc) and became the most influential philosophy in the Greco-Roman world. It viewed the universe as permeated by Reason (sometimes referred to as God or Providence). Stoicism saw divine Reason as expressed in human reason and held that as humans made progress, they could advance from ignorance (the source of vice) to true knowledge (the source of virtue). They developed extensive lists of virtues and vices and produced detailed household codes to guide family behavior. Paul's teaching resembles that of the Stoics in his use of household codes and lists of virtues and vices (Gal 5:19-23; Eph 5:22-33; Col 3:18-4:1; 1 Tim 3:1-13; 5:1-6:1). However, Paul's message of Good News—focusing on the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus Christ—was strange and foreign to these Greek philosophers. • The air of superiority with which they addressed Paul as this babbler indicates their arrogance.

17:19 the high council of the city: Or the most learned society of philosophers in the city. Greek reads the Areopagus.

17:22-31 Paul's remarkable sermon in Athens reveals his versatility in preaching the Good News (Rom 11:14; 1 Cor 9:19-23; 10:33; cp. Acts 16:3; 17:2-3; 21:20-26). While Paul's Greek audience did not know the Scriptures or have a tradition of monotheism as the Jews did, they did have a rich intellectual heritage. So Paul established a point of contact on the basis of an Athenian inscription to an Unknown God. He then explained God's nature as the Creator (17:22-29), followed by God's purpose as the Redeemer (17:30-31). • As he did elsewhere in his own writings (see 1 Cor 15:33; Titus 1:12), Paul made use of the Greek poets. There are several points of connection in this sermon with the Hymn to Zeus by Cleanthes (about 315–240 bc). Paul was probably quoting Epimenides, who had declared about God, "In him we live and move and exist" (Epimenides, Cretica, about 600 bc). Paul also cited Aratus, a Stoic poet from Cilicia (about 315–240 bc), who had commented, "We are his offspring" (Aratus, Phaenomena 5). These allusions to their own poets established connections with his audience. Paul was then able to present the singular nature of God (17:29), and he stressed the coming judgment through Jesus Christ, whom God had raised from the dead. This message, while touching on Greek culture and philosophy, had a clear focus on Christ that presented the challenge of Christ to a cultured and intellectual but idolatrous people.

17:22 standing before the council: Traditionally rendered standing in the middle of Mars Hill; Greek reads standing in the middle of the Areopagus.

17:26 From one man: Literally From one; other manuscripts read From one blood.

17:28 some of your: Some manuscripts read some of our.

17:30 The idea of people's ignorance is carefully discussed both in the OT law (Lev 4:2, 22, 27; 5:15, 17; Num 15:25, 27) and in the NT (Eph 4:18; 1 Pet 1:14; 2:15; 2 Pet 3:5, 8). Paul was particularly fervent to overcome ignorance (see Rom 10:13-15; 11:25; 1 Cor 10:1; 12:1; 2 Cor 1:8; 1 Thes 4:13). The message of Good News overcomes ignorance and summons all who hear it to repent of their sins and turn to God (see 2:38).

Paul in Corinth

18 Then Paul left Athens and went to Corinth. ²There he became acquainted with a Jew named Aquila, born in Pontus, who had recently arrived from Italy with his wife, Priscilla. They had left Italy when Claudius Caesar deported all Jews from Rome. ³Paul lived and worked with them, for they were tentmakers just as he was.

Priscilla and Aquila (18:1-3)

2 Tim 4:19

Priscilla and Aquila were a Christian couple with whom Paul lived and worked during his early days in Corinth. They were later active in Christian ministry and instrumental in bringing Apollos to a true understanding of Christ. They made a habit of opening their home in hospitality to other Christians.

Paul first met Priscilla and Aquila in Corinth, where they had newly arrived as a result of Claudius Caesar's deportation of all Jews from Rome (AD 49). Paul became acquainted with them and, because they were tentmakers (or possibly leatherworkers) like he was, Paul lived and worked with them during his first year and a half in Corinth (AD 50–52; Acts 18:1-3).

When Paul left Corinth, he took Priscilla and Aquila with him and left them in Ephesus (18:18-19) while he returned to Jerusalem and Antioch. When Apollos came through Ephesus later, enthusiastically preaching about Jesus in the synagogues, Priscilla and Aquila took him aside and explained to him more fully the truth of Christ. As a result of their training, Apollos went on to become a powerful evangelist and Christian apologist (18:24-28).

Later, Paul speaks of their home as a meeting place for Christians in Ephesus, and he sends their greeting with his own to the church in Corinth (1 Cor 16:19; cp. 2 Tim 4:19). Still later, it seems they returned to Rome (presumably after the relaxation of Claudius's edict), for they are the first of many to whom Paul sends his greetings when he writes to the church in Rome (Rom 16:3-5). Here, too, their home became a meeting place. It is clear that Paul felt a close bond of friendship with them and that he regarded their work for Christ highly—he speaks of them as "my co-workers in the ministry of Christ," and he refers to a time when they even risked their lives for him.

Priscilla and Aquila are examples of early Christians who, in the course of their daily work, were bold in bearing witness to Christ and active in ministering to his people—in this case, as a married couple dedicated to the service of Christ. The fact that Priscilla's name often occurs first (unusual for the time) might say something about the strong role she played in the couple's witness and ministry.

17:32 The Athenians listened carefully until Paul spoke of the resurrection of the dead (17:31); at that point some laughed or mocked, for the notion of resurrection was foolish to Greek ears (see 1 Cor 15:12-19). Similarly, the Jews in Jerusalem later listened carefully to Paul until he mentioned God's acceptance of the Gentiles (22:22). These are examples of how the message of Good News can offend people because of their prejudices (see 1 Cor 1:20-25).

17:34 some joined him and became believers: Paul's sermon was not without positive response. Two prominent converts are mentioned: Dionysius and Damaris. Luke often placed a man and a woman in juxtaposition (e.g., 5:1-11; 17:4, 12; Luke 14:1-6; 15:3-10). • Dionysius was a member of the council (Greek an Areopagite), the highest governing body of Athens.

18:1-17 Paul spent eighteen fruitful months preaching and teaching in Corinth, first in the synagogue and then next door in the house of Titius Justus (18:1-11). Then, in court, Paul won a significant victory over his enemies (18:12-17).

18:1 Athens and Corinth were major cities in Achaia, the region in the southern portion of the Greek peninsula. In Roman times, Greek political power in Achaia resided in Corinth, a prominent city-state and major commercial city. Corinth was notorious for its prostitution, immorality, and drunkenness (see 1 Corinthians Introduction, "Setting," p. 1924). Paul invested much time and effort establishing a Christian community in Corinth (see note on 16:8).

18:2-3 Aquila and Priscilla became an outstanding husband-and-wife team in the early church (see "Priscilla and Aquila," above). • The edict of Claudius Caesar that had deported all Jews from Rome around AD 49 is mentioned by the Roman historian Suetonius (Life of Claudius 25). • They earned their living as tentmakers (or leatherworkers), as did Paul, who probably lived and worked with them during his year and a half in Corinth (18:11; see Rom 16:3-4; 1 Cor 16:19). • just as he was: Paul would have been trained as a tentmaker as a young man. It was Jewish custom to provide sons with a manual trade, including young men who intended to become rabbis or other professionals.

⁴Each Sabbath found Paul at the synagogue, trying to convince the Jews and Greeks alike. ⁵And after Silas and Timothy came down from Macedonia, Paul spent all his time preaching the word. He testified to the Jews that Jesus was the Messiah. ⁶But when they opposed and insulted him, Paul shook the dust from his clothes and said, "Your blood is upon your own heads—I am innocent. From now on I will go preach to the Gentiles."

⁷Then he left and went to the home of Titius Justus, a Gentile who worshiped God and lived next door to the synagogue.

⁸Crispus, the leader of the synagogue, and everyone in his household believed in the Lord. Many others in Corinth also heard Paul, became believers, and were baptized.

⁹One night the Lord spoke to Paul in a vision and told him, "Don't be afraid! Speak out! Don't be silent! ¹⁰For I am with you, and no one will attack and harm you, for many people in this city belong to me." ¹¹So Paul stayed there for the next year and a half, teaching the word of God.

¹²But when Gallio became governor of Achaia, some Jews rose up together against Paul and brought him before the governor for judgment. ¹³They accused Paul of "persuading people to worship God in ways that are contrary to our law."

¹⁴But just as Paul started to make his defense, Gallio turned to Paul's accusers and said, "Listen, you Jews, if this were a case involving some wrongdoing or a serious crime, I would have a reason to accept your case. ¹⁵But since it is merely a question of words and names and your Jewish law, take care of it yourselves. I refuse to judge such matters." ¹⁶And he threw them out of the courtroom.

¹⁷The crowd then grabbed Sosthenes, the leader of the synagogue, and beat him right there in the courtroom. But Gallio paid no attention.

Paul Visits Ephesus and Returns to Antioch

¹⁸Paul stayed in Corinth for some time after that, then said good-bye to the brothers and sisters and went to nearby Cenchrea. There he shaved his head according to Jewish custom, marking the end of a vow. Then he set sail for Syria, taking Priscilla and Aquila with him.

¹⁹They stopped first at the port of Ephesus, where Paul left the others behind. While he was there, he went to the synagogue to reason with the Jews. ²⁰They asked him to stay longer, but he declined. ²¹As he left, however, he said, "I will come back later, God willing." Then he set sail from Ephesus. ²²The next stop was at the port of Caesarea. From there he went up and visited 18:4-6 Once again Paul followed his custom of preaching to the Jews first, and then reaching out to Gentiles after he met with rejection and opposition (13:42-49; see 3:25-26; 26:20; Rom 1:16; 2:10; 3:29, 30; 4:9-12). • Paul probably wrote his letters to the Thessalonian Christians after Silas and Timothy came down from Macedonia with a report of how things were going there (see 1 Thes 3:6; 2 Thessalonians Introduction, "Setting," p. 2040).

18:7 Titius Justus ("Titus the Just") was a Gentile who worshiped God (a "God-fearer"; see note on 10:2). Because Titus was a common Roman name, Justus differentiates him from the better-known Titus, Paul's co-worker (2 Cor 2:13; 7:6, 13; 8:6, 16, 23; Titus).

18:9-10 Paul had experienced real opposition in Corinth (18:6) and apparently was afraid of being attacked again, so the divine message was a comfort to him (cp. 23:11; Ps 34:4, 7, 19; Matt 28:20), encouraging him to persist in his public ministry and promising God's protection (cp. Ps 91:11; 2 Tim 4:17).

18:12-13 The governor of Achaia, Junio Gallio, was the older brother of the Roman philosopher Seneca (Seneca was a tutor to Emperor Nero). An inscription indicating that he was governor around AD 51-52 helps to date Paul's visit in Corinth to about that time.

18:14-17 Gallio's ruling indicated that the charges against Paul were unjustified. The Roman government had nothing to fear from acknowledging Christianity as a legal religion.

18:17 The crowd: Literally Everyone; other manuscripts read All the Greeks. • It is most likely that the Greeks beat Sosthenes to express their hostility to the Jews; it is possible that the Jews attacked their own synagogue leader because he was unsuccessful in pleading their case. Sosthenes may be the same man Paul later mentions as "our brother" (1 Cor 1:1), but it is uncertain, as the name was fairly common.

18:18 brothers and sisters: Literally brothers; also in 18:27. • Cenchrea was a seaport located on the Aegean Sea, roughly five miles (8 km) east of Corinth. It was here that Paul shaved his head according to Jewish custom to mark the completion of a temporary Nazirite vow (cp. 21:23-24; see Num 6:1-21; Judg 13:4-7; 16:1; Amos 2:11-12; Luke 1:15).

18:19-23 Paul made a quick stop at Ephesus, the most important city in the Roman province of Asia. There he left the others behind, including Priscilla and Aquila (18:26). He sailed to Judea, landing at Caesarea, the headquarters of the Roman forces of occupation. After a visit to the church at Jerusalem, Paul returned to Antioch, the church that had originally commissioned him. This marked the end of his second missionary journey. In Antioch, he spent a rewarding time of reporting what God had done through him and his colleagues, sharing the excitement and challenges of their work with the home church. Then after . . . some time, Paul began his third missionary journey. He went by land rather than by sea, traveling through Galatia and Phrygia and revisiting believers whom he had led to faith in Christ on his previous trips. It was important to him that these young converts not be left to founder and shipwreck their faith (see Eph 6:10-20; 1 Tim 1:18-20; 2 Tim 1:15; 4:10).

18:21 "I will come back later" (Some manuscripts read "I must by all means be at Jerusalem for the upcoming festival, but I will come back later"): Paul later spent significant time in Ephesus during his third missionary journey (19:1-20:1; see 19:8, 10).

Paul's Third Missionary Journey from Antioch (18:23–21:17)

Paul Visits the Churches in Galatia and Phrygia

²³After spending some time in Antioch, Paul went back through Galatia and Phrygia, visiting and strengthening all the believers.

Apollos in Ephesus and Corinth

²⁴Meanwhile, a Jew named Apollos, an eloquent speaker who knew the Scriptures well, had arrived in Ephesus from Alexandria in Egypt. ²⁵He had been taught the way of the Lord, and he taught others about Jesus with an enthusiastic spirit and with accuracy. However, he knew only about John's baptism. ²⁶When Priscilla and Aquila heard him preaching boldly in the synagogue, they took him aside and explained the way of God even more accurately.

²⁷Apollos had been thinking about going to Achaia, and the brothers and sisters in Ephesus encouraged him to go. They wrote to the believers in Achaia, asking them to welcome him. When he arrived there, he proved to be of great benefit to those who, by God's grace, had believed. ²⁸He refuted the Jews with powerful arguments in public debate. Using the Scriptures, he explained to them that Jesus was the Messiah.

Apollos (18:24–19:1)

1 Cor 1:10-12; 3:3-9;
4:1, 6-7; 16:12
2 Cor 10:10
Titus 3:13

Apollos was a Hellenistic (Greek-speaking) Jew, well versed in Scripture, who became a strong evangelist and Christian apologist. A native of Alexandria in Egypt, where there was a large Jewish community, Apollos apparently came under the influence of John the Baptist's followers. He then became a bold and enthusiastic preacher of Jesus in Hellenistic synagogues, though he knew nothing of Christian baptism.

When Priscilla and Aquila heard Apollos preach in Ephesus, they invited him to their home and explained the way of Christ to him more fully. With the encouragement of the believers in Ephesus, who recognized his God-given gifts and ministry, Apollos then traveled on to Achaia (i.e., Corinth). There he greatly helped the believers as an effective defender of the Good News in public debate with the Jews, boldly demonstrating that Jesus is the Messiah predicted in Scripture (18:24-28).

A dynamic communicator, Apollos was popular with some of the Christians in Corinth because of his intellectual style and his powerful speaking abilities. As a result of his powerful ministry, some in Corinth were more drawn to Apollos than to Paul (1 Cor 1:11-12). When they began to criticize Paul for not matching up to Apollos (cp. 2 Cor 10:10), Paul was forced to defend himself and his simpler, unimpressive way of preaching the Good News. Significantly, Paul nowhere criticized Apollos himself. He called Apollos a fellow servant and was grateful for the follow-up work he had done—Apollos watered the seed that Paul had planted, and God blessed the work of both (1 Cor 3:5-9; 4:1). Paul only criticized the shallow perspectives and divisiveness of those drawn to Apollos for superficial reasons (1 Cor 1:10-12; 3:3-4; 4:6-7).

Perhaps Apollos's reluctance to return to Corinth from Ephesus (1 Cor 16:12) was due to concern over the divisions that resulted from his ministry. Yet Paul encouraged him. Several years later, when Apollos was ministering on the island of Crete, Paul encouraged Titus to make sure Apollos's needs were met as he set off to an unknown destination for further missionary service (Titus 3:13). Apollos, with his strong intellectual gifts and powerful speaking abilities, had a significantly different approach and style from that of Paul—yet both men proved effective and useful in the service of Christ.

18:22 the church at Jerusalem: Literally the church.

18:23–19:41 This section describes Paul's third missionary journey (about AD 53–57). Paul revisited Galatia and Phrygia, strengthening the disciples (18:23). He then traveled to Ephesus (19:1), where he remained for over two years (19:10).

18:23 Paul wanted to keep in touch with earlier converts and strengthen their faith. • believers: Literally disciples; also in 18:27.

18:24–26 Apollos: See "Apollos," above. • Alexandria, the second-largest city in the Roman empire, was famous for its rhetorical tradition and the philosophical work of Philo. Apollos was an eloquent speaker with an excellent knowledge of the Scriptures (the OT). His knowledge about Jesus and the Holy Spirit was inadequate, though. He did not understand that believers could experience and enjoy the power of the Holy Spirit as a present energizing reality. Fortunately, Priscilla and Aquila took him aside and corrected his spiritual understanding.

18:25 with an enthusiastic spirit: Or with enthusiasm in the Spirit.

Paul's Ministry in Ephesus

19 While Apollos was in Corinth, Paul traveled through the interior regions until he reached Ephesus, on the coast, where he found several believers. ²"Did you receive the Holy Spirit when you believed?" he asked them.

"No," they replied, "we haven't even heard that there is a Holy Spirit."

³"Then what baptism did you experience?" he asked.

And they replied, "The baptism of John."

⁴Paul said, "John's baptism called for repentance from sin. But John himself told the people to believe in the one who would come later, meaning Jesus."

⁵As soon as they heard this, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. ⁶Then when Paul laid his hands on them, the Holy Spirit came on them, and they spoke in other tongues and prophesied. ⁷There were about twelve men in all.

⁸Then Paul went to the synagogue and preached boldly for the next three months, arguing persuasively about the Kingdom of God. ⁹But some became stubborn, rejecting his message and publicly speaking against the Way. So Paul left the synagogue and took the believers with him. Then he held daily discussions at the lecture hall of Tyrannus. ¹⁰This went on for the next two years, so that people throughout the province of Asia—both Jews and Greeks—heard the word of the Lord.

¹¹God gave Paul the power to perform unusual miracles. ¹²When handkerchiefs or aprons that had merely touched his skin were placed on sick people, they were healed of their diseases, and evil spirits were expelled.

¹³A group of Jews was traveling from town to town casting out evil spirits. They tried to use the name of the Lord Jesus in their incantation, saying, "I command you in the name of Jesus, whom Paul preaches, to come out!" ¹⁴Seven sons of Sceva, a leading priest, were doing this. ¹⁵But one time when they tried it, the evil spirit replied, "I know Jesus, and I know Paul, but who are you?" ¹⁶Then the man with the evil spirit leaped on them, overpowered them, and attacked them with such violence that they fled from the house, naked and battered.

²¹Afterward Paul felt compelled by the Spirit to go over to Macedonia and Achaia before going to Jerusalem. "And after that," he said, "I must go on to Rome!" ²²He sent his two assistants, Timothy and Erastus, ahead to Macedonia while he stayed awhile longer in the province of Asia.

19:1-7 Paul traveled to Ephesus after Apollos had left. Subsequently, Apollos returned to Ephesus while Paul was still working there (1 Cor 16:12). The two men had different personalities, gifts, and roles, but God worked through both of them. • Some believers (literally disciples; also in 19:9, 30) in Ephesus still had an inadequate understanding of the Christian faith (cp. 18:26) and did not receive the Holy Spirit when they believed. They had accepted John's baptism, which called for repentance from sin, but had not received Christian baptism, which included the gift of the Holy Spirit. When Paul had instructed them further, they were able to receive Christian baptism (19:5) and the Holy Spirit (19:6).

19:6 When Paul laid his hands on them they received the Holy Spirit, spoke in other tongues (or in other languages), and prophesied, thereby experiencing the same filling with God's power and presence that the disciples had received on the day of Pentecost (2:4, 11).

19:10 Paul probably wrote 1 Corinthians during this time (see 1 Corinthians Introduction, "Date and Occasion of Writing," p. 1926).

19:11-12 Paul, like other Christian evangelists (3:1-11; 4:22; 5:12-16; 6:8; 8:6-7, 13; 9:33-42), performed unusual miracles. • evil spirits were expelled: As Jesus and Peter had done (cp. 5:16; Mark 1:21-34; Luke 4:31-37).

19:13-16 Paul's effectiveness is contrasted with the impotence of the traveling Jewish exorcists, who used the name of Jesus as though it were magical but did not have a relationship with him or the indwelling power of the Holy Spirit (cp. Matt 12:27; Mark 9:38-39; Luke 9:49-50; 11:19).

19:17-19 The contrast between Paul and the Jewish exorcists was not lost on the people of Ephesus, Jews and Greeks alike. The resulting fear caused the inhabitants to honor and respect the name of the Lord Jesus. It led many to confess and forsake their sinful practices, including sorcery.

19:19 several million dollars: Literally 50,000 pieces of silver, each of which was the equivalent of a day's wage.

19:20 Luke's summary of the success of the Good News in Ephesus is short but pungent (cp. 2:43-47; 5:14; 6:7; 9:31; 12:24; 16:5; see Rom 1:16). When the Christian faith overcame problems of internal dissension, idolatry, and pagan practices, it spread widely and grew rapidly.

19:21-22 felt compelled by the Spirit: Or decided in his spirit. No doubt Paul was troubled by what he had heard about the situation in Corinth (see 1 Corinthians Introduction, p. 1926). Instead of going immediately himself, he sent . . . Timothy, who was carrying a letter, 1 Corinthians, from Paul to the Corinthians (1 Cor 4:17; 16:10-11). Paul himself did go over to Macedonia and Achaia not long afterward (20:1-3). • "I must go on to Rome!": Perhaps compelled by his proven strategy (see note on 16:8). Paul wanted to proclaim the Good News in the most significant city in the world.

The Riot in Ephesus

²³About that time, serious trouble developed in Ephesus concerning the Way. ²⁴It began with Demetrius, a silversmith who had a large business manufacturing silver shrines of the Greek goddess Artemis. He kept many craftsmen busy. ²⁵He called them together, along with others employed in similar trades, and addressed them as follows:

"Gentlemen, you know that our wealth comes from this business. ²⁶But as you have seen and heard, this man Paul has persuaded many people that handmade gods aren't really gods at all. And he's done this not only here in Ephesus but throughout the entire province! ²⁷Of course, I'm not just talking about the loss of public respect for our business. I'm also concerned that the temple of the great goddess Artemis will lose its influence and that Artemis—this magnificent goddess worshiped throughout the province of Asia and all around the world—will be robbed of her great prestige!"

²⁸At this their anger boiled, and they began shouting, "Great is Artemis of the Ephesians!" ²⁹Soon the whole city was filled with confusion. Everyone rushed to the amphitheater, dragging along Gaius and Aristarchus, who were Paul's traveling companions from Macedonia. ³⁰Paul wanted to go in, too, but the believers wouldn't let him. ³¹Some of the officials of the province, friends of Paul, also sent a message to him, begging him not to risk his life by entering the amphitheater.

³²Inside, the people were all shouting, some one thing and some another. Everything was in confusion. In fact, most of them didn't even know why they were there. ³³The Jews in the crowd pushed Alexander forward and told him to explain the situation. He motioned for silence and tried to ^aspeak. ³⁴But when the crowd realized he was a Jew, they started shouting again and kept it up for about two hours: "Great is Artemis of the Ephesians! Great is Artemis of the Ephesians!"

◀ Paul's Third Missionary Journey, AD 53–57 (18:23–21:17). Not long after finishing his second journey (18:22), Paul set out once again from ANTIOCH and traveled through GALATIA and PHRYGIA, "strengthening all the believers" (18:23). This time, however, he was able to go to EPHESUS, where he established the church and stayed for approximately three years (19:1–20:1). After traveling through MACEDONIA (20:1–2), Paul visited CORINTH for three months (20:2–3), then traveled back through Macedonia and TROAS (20:3–12). He visited the elders of Ephesus at MILETUS (20:16–38), and then sailed to TYRE (21:1–3) on his way to JERUSALEM, where he expected to be arrested (20:4–17).

used in civic processions and are still sold there today.

19:27 all around the world: The ancient geographer Strabo reports that temples dedicated to Artemis existed in cities from Asia Minor (now Turkey) to what is now France and Spain (Strabo, Geography 3.4.8; 4.1.4).

19:29 Archaeologists have excavated the amphitheater where the whole city assembled; it held 24,000 people.

19:31 Some of the officials of the province (Greek Asiarchai, "rulers of Asia"): The "Asiarchs" were the appointed leaders in the Roman province of Asia. They served as civic benefactors and usually championed the emperor cult. Some of these officials in high places were friends of Paul—Luke highlights that Christianity was attractive to people of high standing in society.

19:23–41 The patron deity of Ephesus was the Greek goddess Artemis (otherwise known as Diana). Her birthplace was believed to be Ephesus, so Ephesus was the official guardian of the temple. Twice annually, elaborate festivals were held in her honor with athletic, musical, and theatrical celebrations that included singing Great is Artemis of the Ephesians! The temple of Artemis at Ephesus was one of the seven wonders of the ancient world. Conversions to Christianity clearly damaged the worship of Artemis and the associated economic activity, but it became clear that Paul and his associates had committed no crime.

19:23 the Way: See note on 9:2.

19:24–34 Demetrius, a silversmith whose business was threatened by Paul's proclaiming faith in one God, whipped up a major riot against him.

19:24 Silver coins and shrines carrying the image of Artemis were minted in Ephesus; statuettes of the goddess were ³⁵At last the mayor was able to quiet them down enough to speak. "Citizens of Ephesus," he said. "Everyone knows that Ephesus is the official guardian of the temple of the great Artemis, whose image fell down to us from heaven. ³⁶Since this is an undeniable fact, you should stay calm and not do anything rash. ³⁷You have brought these men here, but they have stolen nothing from the temple and have not spoken against our goddess.

³⁸"If Demetrius and the craftsmen have a case against them, the courts are in session and the officials can hear the case at once. Let them make formal charges. ³⁹And if there are complaints about other matters, they can be settled in a legal assembly. ⁴⁰I am afraid we are in danger of being charged with rioting by the Roman government, since there is no cause for all this commotion. And if Rome demands an explanation, we won't know what to say." ⁴¹Then he dismissed them, and they dispersed.

Paul Goes to Macedonia and Greece

20 When the uproar was over, Paul sent for the believers and encouraged them. Then he said good-bye and left for Macedonia. ²While there, he encouraged the believers in all the towns he passed through. Then he traveled down to Greece, ³where he stayed for three months. He was preparing to sail back to Syria when he discovered a plot by some Jews against his life, so he decided to return through Macedonia.

⁴Several men were traveling with him.

They were Sopater son of Pyrrhus from Berea; Aristarchus and Secundus from Thessalonica; Gaius from Derbe; Timothy; and Tychicus and Trophimus from the province of Asia. ⁵They went on ahead and waited for us at Troas. ⁶After the Passover ended, we boarded a ship at Philippi in Macedonia and five days later joined them in Troas, where we stayed a week.

Paul's Final Visit to Troas

⁷On the first day of the week, we gathered with the local believers to share in the Lord's Supper. Paul was preaching to them, and since he was leaving the next day, he kept talking until midnight. ⁸The upstairs room where we met was lighted with many flickering lamps. ⁹As Paul spoke on and on, a young man named Eutychus, sitting on the windowsill, became very drowsy. Finally, he fell sound asleep and dropped three stories to his death below. ¹⁰Paul went down, bent over him, and took him into his arms. "Don't worry," he said, "he's alive!" ¹¹Then they all went back upstairs, shared in the Lord's Supper, and ate together. Paul continued talking to them until dawn, and then he left. ¹²Meanwhile, the young man was taken home alive and well, and everyone was greatly relieved.

Paul Meets the Ephesian Elders in Miletus

¹³Paul went by land to Assos, where he had arranged for us to join him, while we traveled by ship. ¹⁴He joined us there, and we sailed together to Mitylene. ¹⁵The next day we sailed past the island of Kios. The following day we crossed to the island of Samos, and a day later we arrived at Miletus.

19:35 The tradition that the image (statue) of Artemis had fallen from heaven might point to its having been carved from a meteor.

19:41 Some translations include v 41 as part of v 40.

20:1-2 believers: Literally disciples. • Paul traveled to Macedonia, where he encouraged the believers in all the towns, including Thessalonica, Philippi, and Berea. He also continued to gather the offering for the needy in Jerusalem (see Rom 15:25-28; 2 Cor 8:1-9:15). Titus met Paul in Macedonia with a report from Corinth, which prompted Paul to write 2 Corinthians and send Titus back carrying it (2 Cor 7:5-7; 8:6).

20:2-3 From Macedonia, Paul traveled down to Greece—i.e., Corinth in the province of Achaia (see note on 18:1)—where he stayed for three months (cp. 2 Cor 13:1). Paul probably wrote his letter to the Romans during this time (see Romans Introduction, "Date of Writing," p. 1890). • a plot . . . against his life: Cp. 9:23-25, 28-30; 23:12-35; 25:3.

20:4 Paul's traveling companions were disciples from Berea, Thessalonica, Derbe, and Asia, whom he was mentoring and equipping to lead (cp. 2 Tim 2:2).

20:5-15 This is another of the "we" passages in Acts (see note on 16:10). Luke apparently rejoined Paul at Philippi, where Luke had remained several years earlier, and journeyed with Paul to Jerusalem (21:1-18).

20:6 the Passover: Literally the days of unleavened bread.

20:7-12 On the first day of the week the early church commemorated Jesus' resurrection (see Mark 16:9; cp. John 20:19; Rev 1:10). • This was Paul's last visit to Troas, which included gathering to share in the Lord's Supper (literally to break bread). This meal probably included both communion and a common meal (cp. 2:42, 46; Jude 1:12). • The remarkable feature of this gathering was the understated miraculous restoration of Eutychus, the young man who fell asleep on a windowsill and dropped three stories to his death (cp. 9:36-41).

20:11 shared in the Lord's Supper: Literally broke the bread.

20:13-15 Assos was a key city in Mysia on the east coast of the Aegean Sea. • Mitylene was the most strategic city on the island of Lesbos. • The island of Samos was of major importance on the trade routes from Asia Minor to the west and from the Aegean Sea to Egypt.

20:15 Samos, and: Some manuscripts read Samos, and having stayed at Trogyllium.

¹⁶Paul had decided to sail on past Ephesus, for he didn't want to spend any more time in the province of Asia. He was hurrying to get to Jerusalem, if possible, in time for the Festival of Pentecost. ¹⁷But when we landed at Miletus, he sent a message to the elders of the church at Ephesus, asking them to come and meet him.

¹⁸When they arrived he declared, "You know that from the day I set foot in the province of Asia until now ¹⁹I have done the Lord's work humbly and with many tears. I have endured the trials that came to me from the plots of the Jews. ²⁰I never shrank back from telling you what you needed to hear, either publicly or in your homes. ²¹I have had one message for Jews and Greeks alike—the necessity of ^brepenting from sin and turning to God, and of having faith in our Lord Jesus.

²²"And now I am bound by the Spirit to go to Jerusalem. I don't know what awaits me, ²³except that the Holy Spirit tells me in city after city that jail and suffering lie ahead. ²⁴But my life is worth nothing to me unless I use it for finishing the work assigned me by the Lord Jesus—the work of telling others the Good News about the wonderful grace of God.

²⁵"And now I know that none of you to whom I have preached the Kingdom will ever see me again. ²⁶I declare today that I have been faithful. If anyone suffers eternal death, it's not my fault, ²⁷for I didn't shrink from declaring all that God wants you to know.

²⁸"So guard yourselves and God's people. Feed and shepherd God's flock—his church, purchased with his own blood—over which the Holy Spirit has appointed you as ^dleaders. ²⁹I know that false teachers, like vicious wolves, will come in among you after I leave, not sparing the flock. ³⁰Even some men from your own group will rise up and distort the truth in order to draw a following. ³¹Watch out! Remember the three years I was with you—my constant watch and care over you night and day, and my many tears for you.

³²"And now I entrust you to God and the message of his grace that is able to build you up and give you an inheritance with all those he has set apart for himself.

"Grace" is a key word in the Bible. It is used to indicate God's kindness and favor (e.g., 13:43; 14:26). The NT stresses that grace came through Jesus Christ (John 1:14, 16, 17). In Acts, God's great favor was initially experienced in the Jewish community (4:33); later, it became clear that God's grace in Jesus Christ extends to Gentiles as well (11:23; 15:8-9; 2 Cor 6:1; Gal 2:21; Eph 2:4-10; Titus 2:11). Signs and wonders attested the reality of God's grace at work among the Gentiles (14:3).

Paul's ministry proclaimed the Good News "about the wonderful grace of God" (20:24), and he encouraged Christians to continue in "the grace of God" as they remained faithful to their Lord (13:43). Second Peter similarly closes with a command for Christians to "grow in the grace" of Jesus Christ (2 Pet 3:18). When Paul left the Ephesian elders, he commended them "to God and the message of his grace," the divine message that was able to build them up and sustain them (20:32; see 15:40). God's grace is at the core of the Christian message and the Christian experience, from beginning to end.

20:16 The Festival of Pentecost was one of the three Jewish pilgrimage festivals (see note on 2:1-4).

20:17 Miletus was a major port on the western coast of Asia Minor at the mouth of the Meander River. It provided a place for Paul to meet briefly with the elders of Ephesus on his way to Jerusalem.

20:18-38 Paul's address to the elders of the church of Ephesus is a testimony regarding his life and ministry in Ephesus, calling for similar dedication from the leaders who would carry on the ministry. The sermon highlights Paul's integrity and pastoral care (20:18-21, 26, 31), speaks about the future (20:22-23, 25, 29-30), warns against false teachers (20:29-30), and exhorts the elders to be watchful and faithful (20:28, 31). Paul modeled sacrificial, conscientious, servant leadership.

20:22 by the Spirit: Or by my spirit, or by an inner compulsion; literally by the spirit.

20:23 the Holy Spirit tells me: See, e.g., 21:10-12.

20:26 I have been faithful. If anyone suffers eternal death, it's not my fault: Literally I am innocent of the blood of all; cp. Ezek 3:16-21.

20:28 Paul refers to the church as God's people and God's flock (cp. 1 Pet 2:25; 5:2, 4). Elsewhere the church is called the body of Christ (1 Cor 12:27; Eph 1:23; 4:12; Col 1:24); the bride of Christ

(2 Cor 11:2; Rev 19:7; see Eph 5:25-32), the temple of the living God, (1 Cor 3:16; 2 Cor 6:16), a chosen people, royal priests, a holy nation, God's very own possession (1 Pet 2:9), and God's field, God's building (1 Cor 3:9). • with his own blood: Or with the blood of his own [Son]. • Paul expected the leaders (literally overseers, or bishops) to feed and shepherd the church over which the Holy Spirit had appointed them as leaders (see 1 Tim 3:1-7; Titus 1:5-7; 1 Pet 5:1-4; cp. Acts 6:2-4).

20:29-30 vicious wolves: Paul's prophecy did in fact happen, prompting him to write to Timothy in Ephesus some five years later (see 1 Tim 1:3-7, 19-20; 4:1-5; see also Matt 7:15; 10:16; Mark 13:22; Luke 10:3; 2 Pet 2:1-22; 3:3).

³³"I have never coveted anyone's silver or gold or fine clothes. ³⁴You know that these hands of mine have worked to supply my own needs and even the needs of those who were with me. ³⁵And I have been a constant example of how you can help those in need by working hard. You should remember the words of the Lord Jesus: 'It is more blessed to give than to receive.'"

³⁶When he had finished speaking, he knelt and prayed with them. ³⁷They all cried as they embraced and kissed him good-bye. ³⁸They were sad most of all because he had said that they would never see him again. Then they escorted him down to the ship.

Paul Travels from Miletus to Jerusalem

21 After saying farewell to the Ephesian elders, we sailed straight to the island of Cos. The next day we reached Rhodes and then went to Patara. ²There we boarded a ship sailing for Phoenicia. ³We sighted the island of Cyprus, passed it on our left, and landed at the harbor of Tyre, in Syria, where the ship was to unload its cargo.

⁴We went ashore, found the local believers, and stayed with them a week. These believers prophesied through the Holy Spirit that Paul should not go on to Jerusalem. ⁵When we returned to the ship at the end of the week, the entire congregation, including women and children, left the city and came down to the shore with us. There we knelt, prayed, ⁶and said our farewells. Then we went aboard, and they returned home.

⁷The next stop after leaving Tyre was Ptolemais, where we greeted the brothers and sisters and stayed for one day. ⁸The next day we went on to Caesarea and stayed at the home of Philip the Evangelist, one of the seven men who had been chosen to distribute food. ⁹He had four unmarried daughters who had the gift of prophecy.

¹⁰Several days later a man named Agabus, who also had the gift of prophecy, arrived from Judea. ¹¹He came over, took Paul's belt, and bound his own feet and hands with it. Then he said, "The Holy Spirit declares, 'So shall the owner of this belt be bound by the Jewish leaders in Jerusalem and turned over to the Gentiles.'"¹²When we heard this, we and the local believers all begged Paul not to go on to Jerusalem.

¹³But he said, "Why all this weeping? You are breaking my heart! I am ready not only to be jailed at Jerusalem but even to die for the sake of the Lord Jesus." ¹⁴When it was clear that we couldn't persuade him, we gave up and said, "The Lord's will be done."

¹⁵After this we packed our things and left for Jerusalem. ¹⁶Some believers from Caesarea accompanied us, and they took us to the home of Mnason, a man originally from Cyprus and one of the early believers. ¹⁷When we arrived, the brothers and sisters in Jerusalem welcomed us warmly.

21:1-18 This "we" passage (see notes on 16:10; 20:5-15) covers Paul's journey from Miletus to Jerusalem at the close of the third missionary journey.

21:1 Cos was an island in the Aegean Sea with a major trade port. • Rhodes is a large Aegean island that featured the Colossus, a huge statue 100 feet (30 meters) tall that once stood at the entrance to the city. In Paul's time, the statue lay where it had fallen during an earthquake over 200 years earlier; it would not be removed for another 600 years. • Patara was the major port of Lycia, located on the coast opposite Rhodes.

21:2-3 Tyre was an important port in

Phoenicia with a maritime empire of far-flung commercial interests (see Isa 23; Jer 25:15-38; 47; Zech 9; Matt 15:21-28; Mark 7:24-31).

21:4-6 The local believers (literally disciples; also in 21:16) at Tyre gave Paul a touching farewell that reveals deep Christian fellowship. • prophesied through the Holy Spirit that Paul should not go on to Jerusalem: The believers at Tyre clearly foresaw the danger in Paul's visiting Jerusalem and out of brotherly concern tried to dissuade him. Paul willingly accepted the risks in order to fulfill his apostolic mandate (cp. Phil 3:7-10). See also note on 21:11-14.

21:5 women: Or wives.

21:7 Paul visited Ptolemais, an important city on the coast of the Mediterranean, as he made his way from Tyre to Caesarea. • brothers and sisters: Literally brothers; also in 21:17.

21:8 Philip had the title of Evangelist due to his evangelistic activity (8:4-40; cp. Eph 4:11; 2 Tim 4:5).

21:9 Philip's daughters' gift of prophecy demonstrated the fulfillment of Joel's prophecy, as Peter had preached at Pentecost (2:17-21; Joel 2:28-32).

21:10 Luke juxtaposes female prophets (21:9) with a male prophet (see note on 17:34). Agabus, like the OT prophets, used symbolic actions to proclaim his message (see "Prophetic Sign Acts" at Ezek 4:1-17, p. 1319).

21:11-14 Despite Agabus's prediction of suffering and the believers' begging Paul not to go to Jerusalem, Paul was resolutely ready even to die for the sake of the Lord Jesus. Luke stresses Paul's courage, determination, and heroism as a Christian missionary who would let nothing interfere with his mission. See note on 21:4-6.

things God had accomplished among the Gentiles through his ministry.

²⁰After hearing this, they praised God. And then they said, "You know, dear brother, how many thousands of Jews have also believed, and they all follow the law of Moses very seriously. ²¹But the Jewish believers here in Jerusalem have been told that you are teaching all the Jews who live among the Gentiles to turn their backs on the laws of Moses. They've heard that you teach them not to circumcise their children or follow other Jewish customs. ²²What should we do? They will certainly hear that you have come.

²³"Here's what we want you to do. We have four men here who have completed their vow. ²⁴Go with them to the Temple and join them in the purification ceremony, paying for them to have their heads ritually shaved. Then everyone will know that the rumors are all false and that you yourself observe the Jewish laws.

²⁵"As for the Gentile believers, they should do what we already told them in a letter: They should abstain from eating food offered to idols, from consuming blood or the meat of strangled animals, and from sexual immorality."

Paul Is Arrested

²⁶So Paul went to the Temple the next day with the other men. They had already started the purification ritual, so he publicly announced the date when their vows would end and sacrifices would be offered for each of them.

²⁷The seven days were almost ended when some Jews from the province of Asia saw Paul in the Temple and roused a mob against him. They grabbed him, ²⁸yelling, "Men of Israel, help us! This is the man who preaches against our people everywhere and tells everybody to disobey the Jewish laws. He speaks against the Temple—and even defiles this holy place by bringing in

In the early church, the gift of prophecy was not uncommon. As Peter had declared at Pentecost, the gift of prophecy was one of the results of the outpouring of God's Holy Spirit (2:17-21; see Joel 2:28-32). The book of Acts names a few Christian prophets (11:27-28; 13:1; 15:32; 21:9-11; see also Martyrdom of Polycarp 12:3; 16:2). One of the prophets was Agabus, whose function was similar to that of an OT prophet, performing symbolic acts (21:10-11; see 1 Kgs 11:29-32; Isa 20:2-6; Jer 13:1-11; "Prophetic Sign Acts" at Ezek 4:1-17, p. 1319) and predicting events to come (11:28; 21:10-11).

Philip the Evangelist was the father of four young women who "had the gift of prophecy" (21:9). The apostle Paul also acknowledged the prophetic gift of some Christian women (1 Cor 11:5). In the OT, most prophets were men, but several women are described as prophets: Miriam (Exod 15:20), Deborah (Judg 4:4), and Huldah (2 Kgs 22:14-20; 2 Chr 34:22-28). In the NT, the gift of prophecy is given to both men and women, and both young and old, as Peter signaled in his sermon at Pentecost (2:17-18).

Although prophecy sometimes involves foretelling the future (20:23; 21:10-11; see Rom 9:23-26; 1 Thes 4:13-17; 2 Thes 2:3-4), at its core prophecy is proclaiming God's word by preaching, exhorting, and explaining the will of God (15:32; 19:6; Rom 12:6; 1 Cor 14:3-4; 14:29-33; Rev 19:10). The gift of prophecy is clearly mentioned in 1 Corinthians and Ephesians as one of the gifts of the Holy Spirit and of Christ to the church (1 Cor 12:4-11; Eph 4:11). It is to be used for the benefit of believers (1 Cor 14:22).

Prophecy is always in need of testing (1 Thes 5:19-21), and the church is strongly warned against false prophets (1 Jn 4:1; Rev 2:20-23). When used faithfully and in submission to God's word and his Spirit, courageous proclamation of God's truth helps the church to determine what God's will is and inspires God's people to do it.

church to hear of Paul's successful mission among the Gentiles and for the mother church to continue to endorse this effort (21:20; see 15:7-21). Paul's report communicated that God had accomplished his purposes among the Gentiles through Paul's ministry.

21:20-25 The Jerusalem church leaders urged Paul to strengthen his credibility by demonstrating that he was not teaching Jews to turn their backs on the laws of Moses. At the same time, no attempt was made to force Jewish rules on Gentile converts—those terms had been set previously (15:22-29) and were simply to be honored.

21:26-36 The concerns of the Christian leaders (21:20-25) were evidently well based, for when their vows were almost completed, some Jews from the province of Asia raised a mob against Paul with false charges. They were intent on killing Paul, but the Roman commander rescued him.

21:28-29 Gentiles: Literally Greeks. It was a crime punishable by death to bring any non-Jew into the Temple Gentiles.”²⁹(For earlier that day they had seen him in the city with Trophimus, a Gentile from Ephesus, and they assumed Paul had taken him into the Temple.)

³⁰The whole city was rocked by these accusations, and a great riot followed. Paul was grabbed and dragged out of the Temple, and immediately the gates were closed behind him. ³¹As they were trying to kill him, word reached the commander of the Roman regiment that all Jerusalem was in an uproar. ³²He immediately called out his soldiers and officers and ran down among the crowd. When the mob saw the commander and the troops coming, they stopped beating Paul.

³³Then the commander arrested him and ordered him bound with two chains. He asked the crowd who he was and what he had done. ³⁴Some shouted one thing and some another. Since he couldn’t find out the truth in all the uproar and confusion, he ordered that Paul be taken to the fortress. ³⁵As Paul reached the stairs, the mob grew so violent the soldiers had to lift him to their shoulders to protect him. ³⁶And the crowd followed behind, shouting, “Kill him, kill him!”

Paul Speaks to the Crowd

³⁷As Paul was about to be taken inside, he said to the commander, “May I have a word with you?”

“Do you know Greek?” the commander asked, surprised. ³⁸“Aren’t you the Egyptian who led a rebellion some time ago and took 4,000 members of the Assassins out into the desert?”

³⁹“No,” Paul replied, “I am a Jew and a citizen of Tarsus in Cilicia, which is an important city. Please, let me talk to these people.”⁴⁰The commander agreed, so Paul stood on the stairs and motioned to the people to be quiet. Soon a deep silence enveloped the crowd, and he addressed them in their own language, Aramaic.

22 “Brothers and esteemed fathers,” Paul said, “listen to me as I offer my defense.”²When they heard him speaking in their own language, the silence was even greater.

³Then Paul said, “I am a Jew, born in Tarsus, a city in Cilicia, and I was brought up and educated here in Jerusalem under Gamaliel. As his student, I was carefully trained in our Jewish laws and customs. I became very zealous to honor God in everything I did, just like all of you today. ⁴And I persecuted the followers of the Way, hounding some to death, arresting both men and women and throwing them in prison. ⁵The high priest and the whole council of elders can testify that this is so. For I received letters from them to our Jewish brothers in Damascus, authorizing me to bring the followers of the Way from there to Jerusalem, in chains, to be punished.

⁶As I was on the road, approaching Damascus about noon, a very bright light from heaven suddenly shone down around me. ⁷I fell to the ground and heard a voice saying to me, ‘Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting me?’

⁸“Who are you, lord?” I asked. “And the voice replied, ‘I am Jesus the Nazarene, the one you are persecuting.’ ⁹The people with me saw the light but didn’t understand the voice speaking to me.

¹⁰I asked, ‘What should I do, Lord?’ “And the Lord told me, ‘Get up and go into precincts beyond the Court of the Gentiles (see illustration, p. 1787; see also Josephus, War 5.5.2; 6.2.4). The Jews assumed that Paul had violated this sacred law by bringing Trophimus, a Gentile from Ephesus (literally Trophimus, the Ephesian; see also 20:4; 2 Tim 4:20), into the forbidden area.

21:30 This supposed desecration of the Temple aroused the fury of the Jewish populace. The Temple . . . gates were closed because they thought the Temple had been defiled by a Gentile.

21:31 commander: Or tribune, a Roman officer who commanded 1,000 men.

21:32 officers: Literally centurions.

21:34 The fortress of Antonia, a large military garrison built by Herod the Great on the northwest corner of the Temple Mount, accommodated the Roman cohort that was stationed there to keep the peace.

21:37-40 The commander had mistaken Paul for an Egyptian false messiah who had planned to seize power from the Romans around AD 54 (roughly three years earlier; see Josephus, War 2.13.5). Paul corrected the mistake, gained permission to speak to the people, and addressed the crowd in Aramaic (Or Hebrew), the common language of Judea. He gave a strong statement of his faith in Jesus as the Messiah (22:1-21).

22:1-21 Paul’s premier defense of his life and faith before his own people in Jerusalem illustrates his flexibility as a missionary, just as his speech to the Greek philosophers in Athens had done (17:22-31; see 1 Cor 9:20-23). Paul begins by recognizing his kinship with his people, explaining his Jewish background and training under the noted rabbi Gamaliel the Elder and describing his zealous desire to honor God in everything, which they shared (22:1-3). Paul then describes his persecution of Christians (22:4-5), the revelation of Jesus to him on the way to Damascus (22:6-10), and his conversion (22:11-16). Paul ends his speech by describing his conversation with the Lord in the Temple. The Lord had predicted the Jews’ rejection of the message and had sent Paul to the Gentiles (22:17-21).

22:2 in their own language: Literally in Aramaic, or in Hebrew.

Damascus, and there you will be told everything you are to do.'

¹¹"I was blinded by the intense light and had to be led by the hand to Damascus by my companions. ¹²A man named Ananias lived there. He was a godly man, deeply devoted to the law, and well regarded by all the Jews of Damascus. ¹³He came and stood beside me and said, 'Brother Saul, regain your sight.' And that very moment I could see him!

¹⁴"Then he told me, 'The God of our ancestors has chosen you to know his will and to see the Righteous One and hear him speak. ¹⁵For you are to be his witness, telling everyone what you have seen and heard. ¹⁶What are you waiting for? Get up and be baptized. Have your sins washed away by calling on the name of the Lord.'

¹⁷"After I returned to Jerusalem, I was praying in the Temple and fell into a trance. ¹⁸I saw a vision of Jesus saying to me, 'Hurry! Leave Jerusalem, for the people here won't accept your testimony about me.'

¹⁹"'But Lord,' I argued, 'they certainly know that in every synagogue I imprisoned and beat those who believed in you. ²⁰And I was in complete agreement when your witness Stephen was killed. I stood by and kept the coats they took off when they stoned him.'

²¹"But the Lord said to me, 'Go, for I will send you far away to the Gentiles!'

²²The crowd listened until Paul said that word. Then they all began to shout, "Away with such a fellow! He isn't fit to live!" ²³They yelled, threw off their coats, and tossed handfuls of dust into the air.

Paul Claims His Rights as a Roman Citizen

²⁴The commander brought Paul inside and ordered him lashed with whips to make him confess his crime. He wanted to find out why the crowd had become so furious. ²⁵When they tied Paul down to lash him, Paul said to the officer standing there, "Is it legal for you to whip a Roman citizen who hasn't even been tried?"

²⁶When the officer heard this, he went to the commander and asked, "What are you doing? This man is a Roman citizen!"

²⁷So the commander went over and asked Paul, "Tell me, are you a Roman citizen?"

"Yes, I certainly am," Paul replied.

²⁸"I am, too," the commander muttered, "and it cost me plenty!"

Paul answered, "But I am a citizen by birth!"

²⁹The soldiers who were about to interrogate Paul quickly withdrew when they heard he was a Roman citizen, and the commander was frightened because he had ordered him bound and whipped.

Paul before the High Council

³⁰The next day the commander ordered the leading priests into session with the Jewish high council. He wanted to find out what the trouble was all about, so he released Paul to have him stand before them.

23 Gazing intently at the high council, Paul began: "Brothers, I have always lived before God with a clear conscience!"

²Instantly Ananias the high priest commanded those close to Paul to slap him on the mouth. ³But Paul said to him, "God will slap you, you corrupt hypocrite! What kind of judge are you to break the law yourself by ordering me struck like that?"

⁴Those standing near Paul said to him, "Do you dare to insult God's high priest?"

⁵"I'm sorry, brothers. I didn't realize he was the high priest," Paul replied, "for the 22:14 the Righteous One: See also 3:14; 7:52; 1 Jn 2:1. Righteousness was one of the Messiah's characteristics (see Isa 32:1; 53:11).

22:16 be baptized. Have your sins washed away: See "Baptism" at 2:38, 41, p. 1828.

22:17-22 While Paul was praying in the Temple, he saw a vision of Jesus (literally saw him) telling him that the people of Jerusalem would not accept his testimony. The Lord then sent him to the Gentiles. The crowd's response to this report (22:22-23) proved the point.

22:23 The crowd's yelling, throwing off their coats, and tossing handfuls of dust into the air were probably ritual responses to perceived blasphemy. They opposed and tried to thwart Paul's words that suggested the inclusion of Gentiles (22:21). Cp. Luke 4:16-30.

22:25-29 the officer: Literally the centurion; also in 22:26. • Paul claimed his status as a Roman citizen at this critical time when he was about to be tortured to make him confess his supposed crime. Roman citizenship was a valuable asset, and claiming it falsely was a capital offense. Its principal benefits were the prohibition of scourging and the right to appeal to the emperor (25:11). The commander was frightened at having nearly violated Roman law (cp. 16:35-39).

22:28 it cost me plenty! During the early part of the reign of Emperor Claudius (AD 41–54), Roman citizenship could be purchased, but it was expensive.

22:30 the Jewish high council: Greek the Sanhedrin.

23:1 In addressing the high council (Greek the Sanhedrin; also in 23:6, 15, 20, 28), Paul insisted on his personal integrity before God—he had not violated God's law or done the things they accused him of doing.

23:2 Ananias was the Jewish high priest from AD 47 to 58. • slap him: He apparently assumed that Paul was lying and tried to intimidate him.

23:3 you corrupt hypocrite (literally you whitewashed wall): Cp. Ezek 13:10-17; Matt 23:27.

23:5 Why Paul did not recognize the high priest is not known. • Paul replied by quoting Exod 22:28, acknowledging the respect to which the high priest was entitled by virtue of his office.

Scriptures say, 'You must not speak evil of any of your rulers.'"

⁶Paul realized that some members of the high council were Sadducees and some were Pharisees, so he shouted, "Brothers, I am a Pharisee, as were my ancestors! And I am on trial because my ^khope is in the resurrection of the dead!"

⁷This divided the council—the Pharisees against the Sadducees—⁸for the Sadducees say there is no resurrection or angels or spirits, but the Pharisees believe in all of these. ⁹So there was a great uproar. Some of the teachers of religious law who were Pharisees jumped up and began to argue forcefully. "We see nothing wrong with him," they shouted. "Perhaps a spirit or an angel spoke to him." ¹⁰As the conflict grew more violent, the commander was afraid they would tear Paul apart. So he ordered his soldiers to go and rescue him by force and take him back to the fortress.

¹¹That night the Lord appeared to Paul and said, "Be encouraged, Paul. Just as you have been a witness to me here in Jerusalem, you must preach the Good News in Rome as well."

The Plan to Kill Paul

¹²The next morning a group of Jews got together and bound themselves with an oath not to eat or drink until they had killed Paul. ¹³There were more than forty of them in the conspiracy. ¹⁴They went to the leading priests and elders and told them, "We have bound ourselves with an oath to eat nothing until we have killed Paul. ¹⁵So you and the high council should ask the commander to bring Paul back to the council again. Pretend you want to examine his case more fully. We will kill him on the way."

¹⁶But Paul's nephew—his sister's son—heard of their plan and went to the fortress and told Paul. ¹⁷Paul called for one of the Roman officers and said, "Take this young man to the commander. He has something important to tell him."

¹⁸So the officer did, explaining, "Paul, the prisoner, called me over and asked me to bring this young man to you because he has something to tell you."

¹⁹The commander took his hand, led him aside, and asked, "What is it you want to tell me?"

²⁰Paul's nephew told him, "Some Jews are going to ask you to bring Paul before the high council tomorrow, pretending they want to get some more information. ²¹But don't do it! There are more than forty men hiding along the way ready to ambush him. They have vowed not to eat or drink anything until they have killed him. They are ready now, just waiting for your consent."

²²"Don't let anyone know you told me this," the commander warned the young man.

Paul Is Sent to Caesarea

²³Then the commander called two of his officers and ordered, "Get 200 soldiers ready to leave for Caesarea at nine o'clock tonight. Also take 200 spearmen and 70 mounted troops. ²⁴Provide horses for Paul to ride, and get him safely to Governor Felix." ²⁵Then he wrote this letter to the governor:

²⁶"From Claudius Lysias, to his Excellency, Governor Felix: Greetings!

²⁷"This man was seized by some Jews, and they were about to kill him when I arrived with the troops. When I learned that he was a Roman citizen, I removed him to safety. ²⁸Then I took him to their high council to try to learn the basis of 23:6 Paul focused on the key issue in his trial, the hope of resurrection from the dead. His preaching was simply the outworking of that hope and the fact of Jesus' resurrection, but the message was unacceptable to both groups of Jews because of its implications. Pharisees could not abide the inclusion of the Gentiles apart from circumcision and keeping the law of Moses (cp. 15:5; see "The Pharisees" at Matt 3:7, p. 1581), but that was what the resurrection of Jesus and the outpouring of the Spirit had provided (2:39; 10:34-48). Sadducees could not stand the proclamation of the resurrection at all (cp. 4:1-2; see "The Sadducees" at Matt 16:1-12, p. 1610).

23:7-10 Paul's statement (23:6) divided the council, with the Pharisees taking Paul's side against the Sadducees. The resulting uproar was so great that the commander rescued Paul and took him back into the fortress of Antonia.

23:11 At this critical juncture, Jesus encouraged Paul to continue as his faithful witness by assuring him that he would go to Rome (see 19:21).

23:12-15 The plan to kill Paul was desperate, as a group of Jews (literally the Jews), more than forty of them, took an oath to eat nothing until they had killed Paul (cp. 1 Sam 14:24-46; Matt 14:6-11; see also Deut 23:21-23; Matt 5:33-37; Jas 5:12).

23:16-22 Paul's nephew thwarted the murderous plot by reporting it to one of the Roman officers (literally centurions; also in 23:23).

23:23-35 A mounted escort took Paul safely to the Roman Governor Felix in Caesarea, the Roman headquarters for Judea. There Paul would have greater protection than in Jerusalem. The military operation was executed that night with secret efficiency and maximum security (23:31).

23:24 Antonius Felix was procurator (Governor) of Judea about AD 52–59, with responsibility for both military and civil affairs. Felix had a bad reputation (see 24:24-27) and was eventually recalled to Rome by Nero.

the accusations against him. ²⁹I soon discovered the charge was something regarding their religious law—certainly nothing worthy of imprisonment or death. ³⁰But when I was informed of a plot to kill him, I immediately sent him on to you. I have told his accusers to bring their charges before you.”

³¹So that night, as ordered, the soldiers took Paul as far as Antipatris. ³²They returned to the fortress the next morning, while the mounted troops took him on to Caesarea. ³³When they arrived in Caesarea, they presented Paul and the letter to Governor Felix. ³⁴He read it and then asked Paul what province he was from. “Cilicia,” Paul answered.

³⁵“I will hear your case myself when your accusers arrive,” the governor told him. Then the governor ordered him kept in the prison at Herod’s headquarters.

Paul in Caesarea (24:1–26:32) Paul Appears before Felix

24 Five days later Ananias, the high priest, arrived with some of the Jewish elders and the lawyer Tertullus, to present their case against Paul to the governor. ²When Paul was called in, Tertullus presented the charges against Paul in the following address to the governor:

“You have provided a long period of peace for us Jews and with foresight have enacted reforms for us. ³For all of this, Your Excellency, we are very grateful to you. ⁴But I don’t want to bore you, so please give me your attention for only a moment. ⁵We have found this man to be a troublemaker who is constantly stirring up riots among the Jews all over the world. He is a ringleader of the cult known as the Nazarenes. ⁶Furthermore, he was trying to desecrate the Temple when we arrested him. ⁸You can find out the truth of our accusations by examining him yourself.” ⁹Then the other Jews chimed in, declaring that everything Tertullus said was true.

¹⁰The governor then motioned for Paul to speak. Paul said, “I know, sir, that you have been a judge of Jewish affairs for many years, so I gladly present my ⁴defense before you. ¹¹You can quickly discover that I arrived in Jerusalem no more than twelve days ago to worship at the Temple. ¹²My accusers never found me arguing with anyone in the Temple, nor stirring up a riot in any synagogue or on the streets of the city. ¹³These men cannot prove the things they accuse me of doing.

¹⁴“But I admit that I follow the Way, which they call a cult. I worship the God of our ancestors, and I firmly believe the Jewish law and everything written in the prophets. ¹⁵I have the same hope in God that these men have, that he will raise both the righteous and the unrighteous. ¹⁶Because of this, I always try to maintain a clear conscience before God and all people.

see note on 15:29). It summarizes the events that preceded it and explains the action taken; it also suggests that the commander has followed proper Roman judicial procedure. • The title his Excellency was often applied to persons of high social, political, or economic status (Luke 1:3).

23:31 Antipatris, a city rebuilt by Herod the Great in 9 BC on the Plain of Sharon, was a convenient military control point between Jerusalem and Caesarea.

23:35 The governor followed the proper protocol and waited for Paul’s accusers to arrive before granting an official hearing. • Herod’s headquarters (Greek Herod’s Praetorium) was Herod the Great’s palace at Caesarea; it subsequently became the residence of the Roman governors of Judea.

24:1-27 Tertullus presented a legal case against Paul in a Roman court on behalf of the high priest (24:1-9). Then Paul cheerfully made his defense and defended his faith (24:10-21), and the governor adjourned the hearing without a decision and left Paul in prison for two years (24:22-27).

24:1-4 some of the Jewish elders and the lawyer: Literally some elders and an orator. • Tertullus presented the case for the prosecution, beginning with the customary speech of praise intended to attract the attention and sympathy of the governor, followed by the statement of charges (24:5-8).

24:5 Troublemaker (or agitator) was a charge of political sedition. A Roman court would have taken this charge very seriously (see 16:21; 17:7; 18:13). Similar accusations were made against Jesus before Pilate (Luke 23:2, 5, 14). • The term cult (or party, or sect) is used here in a negative sense to put Paul’s religion under a pallor of suspicion if not illegality (see also 24:14).

24:6 trying to desecrate the Temple: See note on 21:28-29. • arrested him: Some manuscripts add an expanded conclusion to v 6, all of v 7, and an additional phrase in v 8: We would have judged him by our law, but Lysias, the commander of the garrison, came and violently took him away from us, commanding his accusers to come before you.

24:10-21 Paul’s defense was that (1) he wasn’t in Jerusalem long enough to incite a riot; (2) none of his accusers had ever seen him stirring up a riot; and (3) he worshiped in accord with Jewish law and everything written in the prophets.

24:14 the Way: See note on 9:2. • Paul emphasized his common ground with his Jewish audience, including his worship, belief in the Jewish law, acceptance of the prophets, and hope in the resurrection (24:14, 15; see 24:21).

24:15 At the last judgment God will raise both the righteous and the unrighteous. Paul kept this final appointment with God constantly in mind (24:16). The fear of the “coming day of judgment” unnerved Felix in a subsequent conversation with Paul (24:25).

24:16 Paul stressed that he had acted with a clear conscience (see 20:27, 33; 23:1; 1 Cor 4:4; 2 Cor 1:12; 4:2; see 2 Tim 1:3). He had not departed from his Jewish heritage (24:14), and he had no fear of God’s judgment (24:15).

¹⁷"After several years away, I returned to Jerusalem with money to aid my people and to offer sacrifices to God. ¹⁸My accusers saw me in the Temple as I was completing a purification ceremony. There was no crowd around me and no rioting. ¹⁹But some Jews from the province of Asia were there—and they ought to be here to bring charges if they have anything against me! ²⁰Ask these men here what crime the Jewish high council found me guilty of, ²¹except for the one time I shouted out, 'I am on trial before you today because I believe in the resurrection of the dead!'"

²²At that point Felix, who was quite familiar with the Way, adjourned the hearing and said, "Wait until Lysias, the garrison commander, arrives. Then I will decide the case." ²³He ordered an officer to keep Paul in custody but to give him some freedom and allow his friends to visit him and take care of his needs.

²⁴A few days later Felix came back with his wife, Drusilla, who was Jewish. Sending for Paul, they listened as he told them about faith in Christ Jesus. ²⁵As he reasoned with them about righteousness and self-control and the coming day of judgment, Felix became frightened. "Go away for now," he replied. "When it is more convenient, I'll call for you again." ²⁶He also hoped that Paul would bribe him, so he sent for him quite often and talked with him.

²⁷After two years went by in this way, Felix was succeeded by Porcius Festus. And because Felix wanted to gain favor with the Jewish people, he left Paul in prison.

Paul Appears before Festus

25 Three days after Festus arrived in Caesarea to take over his new responsibilities, he left for Jerusalem, ²where the leading priests and other Jewish leaders met with him and made their accusations against Paul. ³They asked Festus as a favor to transfer Paul to Jerusalem (planning to ambush and kill him on the way). ⁴But Festus replied that Paul was at Caesarea and he himself would be returning there soon. ⁵So he said, "Those of you in authority can return with me. If Paul has done anything wrong, you can make your accusations."

⁶About eight or ten days later Festus returned to Caesarea, and on the following day he took his seat in court and ordered that Paul be brought in. ⁷When Paul arrived, the Jewish leaders from Jerusalem gathered around and made many serious accusations they couldn't prove.

⁸Paul ^bdenied the charges. "I am not guilty of any crime against the Jewish laws or the Temple or the Roman government," he said.

⁹Then Festus, wanting to please the Jews, asked him, "Are you willing to go to Jerusalem and stand trial before me there?"

¹⁰But Paul replied, "No! This is the official Roman court, so I ought to be tried right here. You know very well I am not guilty of harming the Jews. ¹¹If I have done something worthy of death, I don't refuse to die. But if I am innocent, no one has a right to turn me over to these men to kill me. I appeal to Caesar!"

¹²Festus conferred with his advisers and then replied, "Very well! You have appealed to Caesar, and to Caesar you will go!"

24:20 the Jewish high council: Greek the Sanhedrin.

24:22 Perhaps Felix delayed his decision hoping that Paul would bribe him (24:26).

24:23 an officer: Literally a centurion. • It was in keeping with the proper treatment of a Roman citizen to give him some freedom and allow his friends to visit him and take care of his needs.

24:24 Drusilla was the sister of Herod Agrippa II and Bernice (25:13; see genealogy, p. 1579); Drusilla had abandoned her former husband, Azizus the King of Emessa, and married Felix. Drusilla was Jewish, so in forsaking her original husband and marrying Felix she had disregarded God's commands (Exod 20:14; Deut 5:18; cp. Mal 2:16; Mark 10:12). Josephus criticized her for this (Antiquities 20.7.1-2). Drusilla and her husband were confronted in their conversation with Paul by the prospect of judgment.

24:25 Paul's words about righteousness, self-control, and coming divine judgment frightened Felix, who was notably corrupt (24:26-27; see notes on 23:24; 24:24).

24:26-27 Felix kept Paul in custody hoping for a bribe. When this failed and his own term ended, he left Paul in prison to gain favor with the Jewish people.

24:27-25:5 Felix's successor was Porcius Festus, appointed by Nero to be governor of Judea, about AD 59-62. Josephus describes Festus as a conscientious, honest administrator who was not able to stem the rising tide of Jewish unrest despite his strong action against the party of the Assassins (Josephus, Antiquities 20.8.10; cp. Acts 21:38). He resisted the Jewish leaders' attempt to have Paul's trial moved to Jerusalem, but he was not immune to their pressure (25:9).

25:7 The serious accusations were probably those raised previously (21:27-28; 24:5-9), but the accusations were unsupported by the evidence (24:10-13).

25:9 Festus, wanting to please the Jews: The governor would later state his official reason for delaying Paul's trial and asking to move it to Jerusalem (25:17-20). His request was driven by politics, however, not justice.

25:10-11 Festus's suggestion that Paul be tried in Jerusalem motivated the apostle's appeal to Caesar. Paul was not afraid of death, but he objected to being turned over to a biased court intent on murder, not justice (25:7).

25:12 Festus granted Paul's appeal. This fulfilled Paul's conviction that he must see Rome (19:21; see also 23:11; 27:24; Rom 1:13-15; 15:22-29).

¹³A few days later King Agrippa arrived with his sister, Bernice, to pay their respects to Festus. ¹⁴During their stay of several days, Festus discussed Paul's case with the king. "There is a prisoner here," he told him, "whose case was left for me by Felix. ¹⁵When I was in Jerusalem, the leading priests and Jewish elders pressed charges against him and asked me to condemn him. ¹⁶I pointed out to them that Roman law does not convict people without a trial. They must be given an opportunity to confront their accusers and defend themselves.

¹⁷"When his accusers came here for the trial, I didn't delay. I called the case the very next day and ordered Paul brought in. ¹⁸But the accusations made against him weren't any of the crimes I expected. ¹⁹Instead, it was something about their religion and a dead man named Jesus, who Paul insists is alive. ²⁰I was at a loss to know how to investigate these things, so I asked him whether he would be willing to stand trial on these charges in Jerusalem. ²¹But Paul appealed to have his case decided by the emperor. So I ordered that he be held in custody until I could arrange to send him to Caesar."

²²"I'd like to hear the man myself," Agrippa said.

And Festus replied, "You will—tomorrow!"

Paul Speaks to Agrippa

²³So the next day Agrippa and Bernice arrived at the auditorium with great pomp, accompanied by military officers and prominent men of the city. Festus ordered that Paul be brought in. ²⁴Then Festus said, "King Agrippa and all who are here, this is the man whose death is demanded by all the Jews, both here and in Jerusalem. ²⁵But in my opinion he has done nothing deserving death. However, since he appealed his case to the emperor, I have decided to send him to Rome.

²⁶"But what shall I write the emperor? For there is no clear charge against him. So I have brought him before all of you, and especially you, King Agrippa, so that after we examine him, I might have something to write. ²⁷For it makes no sense to send a prisoner to the emperor without specifying the charges against him!"

Herod Agrippa II (25:13–26:32)

Herod Agrippa II, son of Herod Agrippa I, succeeded his father as king and ruled in Palestine AD 50–100, eventually controlling approximately the same area as his great-grandfather, Herod the Great. Agrippa II was in control of the Temple treasury and could appoint the high priest. He was not popular among Jews on account of his incestuous relationship with his sister Bernice. The Romans consulted him on religious matters, which is probably why Festus invited him to hear the apostle Paul's defense at Caesarea (AD 59, Acts 25:13–26:32).

In May AD 66, the Jewish war against the Romans began (Josephus, War 2.14.4). When Agrippa's attempt to quell the revolt failed, he became a staunch ally of the Romans throughout the entire war (AD 66–70). During this time Nero committed suicide, the new emperor Galba was murdered, and Vespasian became the emperor. After pledging his allegiance to the new emperor, Agrippa remained with Titus, Vespasian's son, who was the general in charge of the war (Tacitus, History 5.81). After the fall of Jerusalem (Aug 6, AD 70), Agrippa was probably present to celebrate the destruction of his own people.

In AD 79 Vespasian died and Titus became emperor. Little is known of Agrippa's rule after this, except that he wrote to the historian Josephus, praising him for The Jewish War, and he purchased a copy of it (Josephus, Life 65; Against Apion 1.9.47–52).

Although the Talmud implies that Agrippa II had two wives (Babylonian Talmud, Sukkah 27a), Josephus gives no indication that he had any wives or children. He died around AD 100, and his death marks the end of the dynasty of the Herods.

25:13-22 King Agrippa arrived with his sister, Bernice. Literally Agrippa the king and Bernice arrived. Festus discussed Paul's case with Herod Agrippa II (ruled AD 50–100), who had come to Caesarea to make a courtesy call on the new governor.

25:16 It was a fundamental principle: Roman law did not convict people without a trial. They must be given an opportunity to confront their accusers and defend themselves (cp. 19:38-39).

This put Roman judicial procedure in a favorable light for readers of Acts.

25:17 I didn't delay: In contrast with Felix, his predecessor (24:22-27).

25:18-20 These verses give Festus's official reasons for his actions; see also 25:9. There were no criminal accusations against Paul; the objections were about their religion and centered on Paul's claim that Jesus . . . is alive.

25:23-27 Paul's hearing before King Agrippa was accompanied by all the pomp and circumstance appropriate for an official royal visit. The main purpose of the hearing was for Agrippa to advise Festus on what he should write in the appeal to Caesar, for there was no clear charge against Paul, and Festus himself believed Paul had done nothing deserving death.

26 Then Agrippa said to Paul, “You may speak in your defense.”

So Paul, gesturing with his hand, started his⁴ defense: ²“I am fortunate, King Agrippa, that you are the one hearing my defense today against all these accusations made by the Jewish leaders, ³for I know you are an expert on all Jewish customs and controversies. Now please listen to me patiently!

⁴“As the Jewish leaders are well aware, I was given a thorough Jewish training from my earliest childhood among my own people and in Jerusalem. ⁵If they would admit it, they know that I have been a member of the Pharisees, the strictest sect of our religion. ⁶Now I am on trial because of my hope in the fulfillment of God’s promise made to our ancestors. ⁷In fact, that is why the twelve tribes of Israel zealously worship God night and day, and they share the same hope I have. Yet, Your Majesty, they accuse me for having this hope! ⁸Why does it seem incredible to any of you that God can raise the dead?

⁹“I used to believe that I ought to do everything I could to oppose the very name of Jesus the Nazarene. ¹⁰Indeed, I did just that in Jerusalem. Authorized by the leading priests, I caused many believers there to be sent to prison. And I cast my vote against them when they were condemned to death. ¹¹Many times I had them punished in the synagogues to get them to curse Jesus. I was so violently opposed to them that I even chased them down in foreign cities.

¹²“One day I was on such a mission to Damascus, armed with the authority and commission of the leading priests. ¹³About noon, Your Majesty, as I was on the road, a light from heaven brighter than the sun shone down on me and my companions. ¹⁴We all fell down, and I heard a voice saying to me in Aramaic, ‘Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting me? It is useless for you to fight against my will.’

¹⁵“‘Who are you, lord?’ I asked.

“And the Lord replied, ‘I am Jesus, the one you are persecuting. ¹⁶Now get to your feet! For I have appeared to you to appoint you as my servant and witness. Tell people that you have seen me, and tell them what I will show you in the future. ¹⁷And I will rescue you from both your own people and the Gentiles. Yes, I am sending you to the Gentiles ¹⁸to open their eyes, so they may turn from darkness to light and from the power of Satan to God. Then they will receive forgiveness for their sins and be given a place among God’s people, who are set apart by faith in me.’

¹⁹“And so, King Agrippa, I obeyed that vision from heaven. ²⁰I preached first to those in Damascus, then in Jerusalem and throughout all Judea, and also to the Gentiles, that all must repent of their sins and turn to God—and prove they have changed by the good things they do. ²¹Some Jews arrested me in the Temple for preaching this, and they tried to kill me. ²²But God has protected me right up to this present time so I can testify to everyone, from the least to the greatest. I teach nothing except what the prophets and Moses said would happen—²³that the Messiah would suffer and be the first to rise from the dead, and in this way announce God’s light to Jews and Gentiles alike.”

²⁴Suddenly, Festus shouted, “Paul, you are insane. Too much study has made you crazy!”

²⁵But Paul replied, “I am not insane, Most Excellent Festus. What I am saying is the sober truth. ²⁶And King Agrippa knows about these things. I speak boldly, for I am sure

26:1-23 In his eloquent defense before King Agrippa, Paul argued that his preaching was completely consistent with the Jewish faith. The defense begins with a courteous acknowledgement of Agrippa’s competence to hear the evidence (26:2-3), outlines the nature of Paul’s background, Jewish training, and membership in the Pharisees (26:4-5), and explains that the charges against him are merely for believing the fulfillment of Jewish hopes for the resurrection (26:6-8). Paul then tells the story of his conversion from strong opponent of Christianity (26:9-11) through a vision on the way to Damascus (26:12-18; see 9:1-18). His preaching was nothing more than obeying this divine vision (26:19-20). Even though he encountered violent opposition from his fellow Jews (26:21), God protected him as he taught a message that the Jews should have embraced (26:22-23). This defense is a model for Christians put on trial for their faith (see 9:15; Luke 21:12-15).

26:17-18 Throughout his defense in this trial for his life, Paul also clearly set out the conditions for receiving new life in Christ (also in 26:20, 23; see Matt 10:19-20).

26:22-23 Paul stressed God’s protection as he carried out his witness (cp. 3:18; 10:43; Luke 24:25-27, 44-47). Paul then called on his hearers to believe his message, that Jesus is the Messiah who fulfills the promises of the OT (see Luke 24:27, 44).

26:24 Paul, you are insane: Festus, a Roman, thought all this talk about the prophets and resurrection was crazy (cp. 17:18, 32), and he concluded that Paul must have driven himself mad with too much study.

³⁰Then the king, the governor, Bernice, and all the others stood and left. ³¹As they went out, they talked it over and agreed, "This man hasn't done anything to deserve death or imprisonment."

6. PAUL GOES TO ROME (27:1–28:31)

Paul's Journey to Rome (27:1–28:16)

The Journey to Cyprus and Crete

27 When the time came, we set sail for Italy. Paul and several other prisoners were placed in the custody of a Roman officer named Julius, a captain of the Imperial Regiment. ²Aristarchus, a Macedonian from Thessalonica, was also with us. We left on a ship whose home port was Adramyttium on the northwest coast of the province of Asia; it was scheduled to make several stops at ports along the coast of the province.

³The next day when we docked at Sidon,

◀ Paul's Journey to Rome, AD 59–60 (27:1–28:16). Paul was arrested in JERUSALEM and then imprisoned in CAESAREA for over two years (AD 57–59). As a Roman citizen, he used the right of appeal to Caesar (25:10–11), so Festus sent him to ROME in late fall, AD 59. The sea and wind were dangerous at that time of year (27:1–12), and the voyage ended in shipwreck on MALTA (27:13–28:1), where Paul and the rest of the company spent the winter (28:2–11). When the worst of winter was over in the spring, they traveled up to Rome (28:11–16; AD 60).

But as a practical matter, if he hadn't appealed to Caesar, Paul might not have been alive (25:1–11). As it was, he was fulfilling God's purposes for him (23:11).

27:1–28:16 The vivid nautical language used throughout the account of Paul's journey to Rome yields one of the best available accounts of an ancient sea voyage. See map above. • This is the last "we" section in Acts (see also 16:10–17; 20:5–15; 21:1–18). During the two years of Paul's imprisonment, Luke had probably done much of the research for his Gospel throughout Judea and Galilee. Here, as a member of Paul's sailing party, he was an eyewitness participant in the danger at sea.

27:1 Roman officer: Literally centurion; similarly in 27:6, 11, 31, 43. Julius is otherwise unknown. • The Imperial Regiment (see note on 10:1) served in Syria during this time.

27:2 Aristarchus was a native of Thessalonica and a co-worker with Paul in Asia (see 19:29; 20:4, 6; Phlm 1:24).

• Adramyttium was a port on the west coast of Asia Minor southeast of Troas.

• Asia was a Roman province in what is now western Turkey.

27:3 Sidon, on the coast about 70 miles (110 km) north of Caesarea, was the first 26:26 they were not done in a corner: The major events of the Christian faith were historical matters of public record that witnesses could attest as factually true. Agrippa could not invalidate Paul's statements of fact.

26:27–28 Paul's question put Agrippa in a bind: If he said he believed the prophets, he knew Paul would press home the Christian message; if not, he would offend the devout Jews in his audience. Agrippa knew that Paul wasn't crazy and that Paul's testimony about Jesus was historically sound (26:26). So Agrippa evaded Paul's question and refused to face the claims of Christ, alleging that the statement given by Paul was too brief for him to arrive at a responsible decision.

26:28 "Do you think you can persuade me to become a Christian so quickly?" (or "A little more, and your arguments would make me a Christian"); This enigmatic remark might have been ironic, incredulous, scoffing, or brushing off Paul's challenge. It also might have been a direct statement of Paul's persuasiveness, or a direct statement about or genuine question of Paul's intention. It seems best to take Agrippa's reply as deliberately evasive: He didn't want to admit that he believed the prophets (26:27), for Paul had just made a strong case, and the next step would be to believe in Jesus as the promised Messiah to whom the prophets pointed. Agrippa didn't want to take that step. On the other hand, he didn't want to say that he didn't believe the prophets, for that would alienate the Jewish subjects to whose loyalties he wanted to appeal. His non-committal response underlines his discomfort with Paul's testimony.

26:29 Paul's bold answer shows his quickness in repartee. He challenges Agrippa and his whole audience about the value of knowing Christ and making a personal commitment to him.

26:31 The consensus of these rulers was that Paul had not done anything to deserve death or imprisonment; this verdict was given repeatedly by the Roman authorities that considered Paul's case (25:25; see Luke 23:4, 15, 22).

26:32 He could have been set free: The legal verdict was clear (26:31).

Julius was very kind to Paul and let him go ashore to visit with friends so they could provide for his needs. ⁴Putting out to sea from there, we encountered strong headwinds that made it difficult to keep the ship on course, so we sailed north of Cyprus between the island and the mainland. ⁵Keeping to the open sea, we passed along the coast of Cilicia and Pamphylia, landing at Myra, in the province of Lycia. ⁶There the commanding officer found an Egyptian ship from Alexandria that was bound for Italy, and he put us on board.

⁷We had several days of slow sailing, and after great difficulty we finally neared Cnidus. But the wind was against us, so we sailed across to Crete and along the sheltered coast of the island, past the cape of Salmone. ⁸We struggled along the coast with great difficulty and finally arrived at Fair Havens, near the town of Lasea. ⁹We had lost a lot of time. The weather was becoming dangerous for sea travel because it was so late in the fall, and Paul spoke to the ship's officers about it.

¹⁰"Men," he said, "I believe there is trouble ahead if we go on—shipwreck, loss of cargo, and danger to our lives as well." ¹¹But the officer in charge of the prisoners listened more to the ship's captain and the owner than to Paul. ¹²And since Fair Havens was an exposed harbor—a poor place to spend the winter—most of the crew wanted to go on to Phoenix, farther up the coast of Crete, and spend the winter there. Phoenix was a good harbor with only a southwest and northwest exposure.

The Storm at Sea

¹³When a light wind began blowing from the south, the sailors thought they could make it. So they pulled up anchor and sailed close to the shore of Crete. ¹⁴But the weather changed abruptly, and a wind of typhoon strength (called a "northeaster") burst across the island and blew us out to sea. ¹⁵The sailors couldn't turn the ship into the wind, so they gave up and let it run before the gale.

¹⁶We sailed along the sheltered side of a small island named Cauda, where with great difficulty we hoisted aboard the lifeboat being towed behind us. ¹⁷Then the sailors bound ropes around the hull of the ship to strengthen it. They were afraid of being driven across to the sandbars of Syrtis off the African coast, so they lowered the sea anchor to slow the ship and were driven before the wind.

¹⁸The next day, as gale-force winds continued to batter the ship, the crew began throwing the cargo overboard. ¹⁹The following day they even took some of the ship's gear and threw it overboard. ²⁰The terrible storm raged for many days, blotting out the sun and the stars, until at last all hope was gone.

²¹No one had eaten for a long time. Finally, Paul called the crew together and said, "Men, you should have listened to me in the first place and not left Crete. You would have avoided all this damage and loss. ²²But take courage! None of you will lose your lives, even though the ship will go down. ²³For last night an 'angel of the God to whom I belong and whom I serve stood beside me, ²⁴and he said, 'Don't be afraid, Paul, for you will surely stand trial before Caesar! What's more, God in his goodness has granted safety to everyone sailing with you.' ²⁵So take courage! For I believe God. It port of call. Julius treated Paul kindly and allowed his local Christian friends to care for him.

27:4-6 Luke describes in detail the sea voyage north and then west along the southern coast of Asia Minor. • Myra was a regular stop for Egyptian grain ships bound for Italy.

27:7 The great difficulty was due in part to the lateness of the season (27:9). • Cnidus was a seaport on the southwestern coast of Asia Minor near the island of Cos. • The cape of Salmone was located at the northeastern tip of Crete, the largest of the Greek islands.

27:8 Fair Havens was a small bay on the southern side of the island of Crete.

27:9 because it was so late in the fall: Literally because the fast was now already gone by. This fast was associated with the Day of Atonement (Yom Kippur), which occurred in late September or early October. This was a dangerous time for a voyage on the Mediterranean.

27:10-11 Paul realized what would happen if they went on. He warned the ship's officers, but they and the Roman officer were unlikely to listen to an imprisoned Jewish rabbi with no experience as a seaman. Later, however, they would respect him more (27:30-36, 42-43).

27:12 The prevailing southeasterly winds made Fair Havens an unsafe place for ships to harbor in the winter, but Phoenix, a town farther up the coast of Crete, offered a better harbor.

27:14-16 The storm, called a "northeaster," was of typhoon strength, very threatening to both the cargo and the crew. Forced to let the ship run before the gale, they sailed past a small island called Cauda (some manuscripts read Clauda; it is known today as Gaudos), south of Crete.

27:17 Binding ropes around the ship's hull (called frapping in nautical terms) was intended to strengthen it against the tremendous pressure of the storm. • Syrtis refers to the shallow bays filled with sandbars off the coast of North Africa west of Cyrene (see map, p. 1881).

27:18-20 The violence and persistence of the storm led to throwing the cargo overboard (cp. Jon 1:5) and the crew's abandoning hope.

27:21-26 Paul addressed the crew, first scolding them for not listening to him (27:10-12) and then encouraging them with the angel's assurance of survival for all of them.

will be just as he said. ²⁶But we will be shipwrecked on an island."

The Shipwreck at Malta

²⁷About midnight on the fourteenth night of the storm, as we were being driven across the Sea of Adria, the sailors sensed land was near. ²⁸They dropped a weighted line and found that the water was 120 feet deep. But a little later they measured again and found it was only 90 feet deep. ²⁹At this rate they were afraid we would soon be driven against the rocks along the shore, so they threw out four anchors from the back of the ship and prayed for daylight.

³⁰Then the sailors tried to abandon the ship; they lowered the lifeboat as though they were going to put out anchors from the front of the ship. ³¹But Paul said to the commanding officer and the soldiers, "You will all die unless the sailors stay aboard." ³²So the soldiers cut the ropes to the lifeboat and let it drift away.

³³Just as day was dawning, Paul urged everyone to eat. "You have been so worried that you haven't touched food for two weeks," he said. ³⁴"Please eat something now for your own good. For not a hair of your heads will perish." ³⁵Then he took some bread, gave thanks to God before them all, and broke off a piece and ate it. ³⁶Then everyone was encouraged and began to eat—³⁷all 276 of us who were on board. ³⁸After eating, the crew lightened the ship further by throwing the cargo of wheat overboard.

³⁹When morning dawned, they didn't recognize the coastline, but they saw a bay with a beach and wondered if they could get

In the book of Acts we frequently encounter the ministry of angels. On several occasions, an angel of the Lord made possible miraculous escapes from prison (5:19; 12:6-11). An angel offered a message of encouragement to Paul in the midst of a violent storm (27:23-24). An angel also directed Cornelius to seek the Good News from Peter (10:3, 7, 22; 11:13). On the other hand, we are told that an angel struck down Herod Agrippa "because he accepted the people's worship instead of giving the glory to God" (12:23). Throughout Acts, God was guiding his people in their ministry and using angels to accomplish his purpose.

The ministry of angels is also prominent in the Gospels. Angels announced the births of John the Baptist and Jesus (Luke 1-2) and ministered to Jesus after his temptation (Matt 4:5-7). Angels appeared at the empty tomb after the resurrection of Jesus (Matt 28:2, 5; Mark 16:5-7; Luke 24:23; John 20:12).

Throughout the Bible, angels are God's heavenly agents who carry out his purpose and communicate God's will to humanity (Gen 16:7; Num 22:22-34; Judg 13:13-21; 2 Kgs 1:3, 15; Zech 1:4-12; 12:8). Angels had a role in putting God's law into effect through Moses (7:30, 35, 38, 53; Gal 3:19). They are "spirits sent to care for people who will inherit salvation" (Heb 1:14). Angels dispense God's grace and sometimes administer his judgment (12:23; 2 Kgs 19:35; Rev 9:15; 16:1-12). Angels were witnesses of Christ's life (1 Tim 3:16), and they are now witnesses of the lives of God's people (1 Cor 11:10; 1 Tim 5:21). There are guardian angels who protect God's people (Matt 18:10; see also Ps 34:7; 91:11; Acts 12:11). Angels will accompany Christ when he returns (Matt 25:31; 2 Thes 1:7-8) and will participate in the final judgment (Matt 13:39, 41, 49-50; 16:27; 24:31; Mark 13:27; Luke 9:26; 12:8; 2 Thes 1:7).

Some angels have fallen into sin and are destined for eternal judgment (Matt 25:41; 2 Pet 2:4, 11; Jude 1:6). The only angels named in the Bible are Michael and Gabriel, who carry out special assignments (Dan 8:16, 18; 9:21; 10:12, 21; 12:1-2; Luke 1:19-20; 1 Thes 4:16; Jude 1:9).

Although angels are spiritual and heavenly beings, angels are not to be worshiped (Gal 1:8; Col 2:18; Rev 19:10; 22:8-9), because they are inferior to Christ (Heb 1:5-14). Their role is to be servants of God (Heb 1:14).

27:27 The Sea of Adria includes the central portion of the Mediterranean, south of Italy and Greece and between Malta and Crete. It is now known as the Ionian Sea.

27:28 120 feet deep . . . 90 feet deep: Greek 20 fathoms . . . 15 fathoms [37 meters . . . 27 meters]; a fathom equaled six feet [1.85 meters].

27:30-32 This time the soldiers listened to Paul (cp. 27:10-11).

27:33-35 Paul's words and actions are those of a true leader who personally assesses a perilous situation, decides on action, and leads others in solving the problem (cp. Neh 1:1-3:32; contrast Jon 1). Paul's positive example and strong faith in God (27:22-25) encouraged the others to eat and take heart.

27:36-37 The food brought renewed strength and encouragement to the frightened and exhausted crew and prisoners. • all 276 of us: The exact number of persons onboard fits well with what is known of grain ships of the period.

to shore by running the ship aground. ⁴⁰So they cut off the anchors and left them in the sea. Then they lowered the rudders, raised the foresail, and headed toward shore. ⁴¹But they hit a shoal and ran the ship aground too soon. The bow of the ship stuck fast, while the stern was repeatedly smashed by the force of the waves and began to break apart.

⁴²The soldiers wanted to kill the prisoners to make sure they didn't swim ashore and escape. ⁴³But the commanding officer wanted to spare Paul, so he didn't let them carry out their plan. Then he ordered all who could swim to jump overboard first and make for land. ⁴⁴The others held on to planks or debris from the broken ship. So everyone escaped safely to shore.

Paul on the Island of Malta

28 Once we were safe on shore, we learned that we were on the island of Malta. ²The people of the island were very kind to us. It was cold and rainy, so they built a fire on the shore to welcome us.

³As Paul gathered an armful of sticks and was laying them on the fire, a poisonous snake, driven out by the heat, bit him on the hand. ⁴The people of the island saw it hanging from his hand and said to each other, "A murderer, no doubt! Though he escaped the sea, justice will not permit him to live." ⁵But Paul shook off the snake into the fire and was unharmed. ⁶The people waited for him to swell up or suddenly drop dead. But when they had waited a long time and saw that he wasn't harmed, they changed their minds and decided he was a god.

⁷Near the shore where we landed was an estate belonging to Publius, the chief official of the island. He welcomed us and treated us kindly for three days. ⁸As it happened, Publius's father was ill with fever and dysentery. Paul went in and prayed for him, and laying his hands on him, he healed him. ⁹Then all the other sick people on the island came and were healed. ¹⁰As a result we were showered with honors, and when the time came to sail, people supplied us with everything we would need for the trip.

The Trip from Malta to Rome

¹¹It was three months after the shipwreck that we set sail on another ship that had wintered at the island—an Alexandrian ship with the twin gods as its figurehead. ¹²Our first stop was Syracuse, where we stayed three days. ¹³From there we sailed across to Rhegium. A day later a south wind began blowing, so the following day we sailed up the coast to Puteoli. ¹⁴There we found some believers, who invited us to spend a week with them. And so we came to Rome.

¹⁵The brothers and sisters in Rome had heard we were coming, and they came to meet us at the Forum on the Appian Way. Others joined us at The Three Taverns. When Paul saw them, he was encouraged and thanked God.

¹⁶When we arrived in Rome, Paul was permitted to have his own private lodging, though he was guarded by a soldier.

Fortunately, the commanding officer intervened on their behalf. It was a clear indication of God's protection and favor that all 276 people made it safely to shore, precisely fulfilling the angel's promise (see 27:24).

27:44 or debris from the broken ship: Or or were helped by members of the ship's crew. The Greek can be interpreted either way.

28:1 Malta was a major island under Roman control, about sixty miles (100 km) south of Sicily.

28:3-6 The locals of Malta understood justice as a personified power or deity carrying out judgment on a criminal. When nothing bad happened to Paul, the natives understood him as having power over snakes and concluded that he himself was a god (cp. 14:11-12). In fact, Paul's survival demonstrated God's protection (cp. Mark 16:17-18).

28:8-9 Cp. Luke 4:38-40.

28:10 Showing their gratefulness, the people supplied the ship's company with what they needed.

28:11-16 Luke, himself present on this journey (see note on 27:1-28:16), recorded Paul's itinerary from Malta to Rome with great geographical detail.

28:11 Another Egyptian ship from Alexandria took Paul and his companions on board after an interval of three months and the worst of the winter had passed. The twin gods were the Roman gods Castor and Pollux.

28:12 Syracuse, on the island of Sicily, was the capital of the eastern half of the island.

28:13-14 They sailed across the Straits of Messina to Rhegium on the southern tip of Italy. This port was a stopping place for ships traveling from the west coast of Italy to the eastern Mediterranean. • Puteoli (modern Pozzuoli) was a major port of entry for large grain ships bringing supplies from the east to Rome. Paul spent a week here with some local believers (literally brothers) before moving on to Rome.

28:15 Paul was greeted by brothers and sisters (literally brothers) who met his party on the way up to Rome. • The Forum was about forty-three miles (70 km) from Rome. • The Three Taverns was about thirty-five miles (57 km) from Rome.

28:16 Paul was allowed to have his own . . . lodging, apparently in private facilities, though he was guarded by a soldier. Though Paul was traveling in chains. "the word of God cannot be chained" (2 Tim 2:9). Paul was possibly treated so well because of his social status or Roman citizenship (cp. 16:37-38; 22:25-28).

them, "Brothers, I was arrested in Jerusalem and handed over to the Roman government, even though I had done nothing against our people or the customs of our ancestors. ¹⁸The Romans tried me and wanted to release me, because they found no cause for the death sentence. ¹⁹But when the Jewish leaders protested the decision, I felt it necessary to appeal to Caesar, even though I had no desire to press charges against my own people. ²⁰I asked you to come here today so we could get acquainted and so I could explain to you that I am bound with this chain because I believe that the hope of Israel—the Messiah—has already come."

²¹They replied, "We have had no letters from Judea or reports against you from anyone who has come here. ²²But we want to hear what you believe, for the only thing we know about this movement is that it is denounced everywhere."

²³So a time was set, and on that day a large number of people came to Paul's lodging. He explained and testified about the Kingdom of God and tried to persuade them about Jesus from the Scriptures. Using the law of Moses and the books of the prophets, he spoke to them from morning until evening. ²⁴Some were persuaded by the things he said, but others did not believe.

²⁵And after they had argued back and forth among themselves, they left with this final word from Paul: "The Holy Spirit was right when he said to your ancestors through Isaiah the prophet, ²⁶'Go and say to this people:

When you hear what I say,
you will not understand.

When you see what I do,
you will not comprehend.

²⁷For the hearts of these people are hardened, and their ears cannot hear,
and they have closed their eyes—
so their eyes cannot see,
and their ears cannot hear,
and their hearts cannot understand,
and they cannot turn to me and let me heal them.'

²⁸So I want you to know that this salvation from God has also been offered to the Gentiles, and they will accept it."

Paul's Unrestricted Preaching and Teaching

³⁰For the next two years, Paul lived in Rome at his own expense. He welcomed all who visited him, ³¹boldly proclaiming the Kingdom of God and teaching about the Lord Jesus Christ. And no one tried to stop him.

28:17-20 Conscious that the Good News was to be presented to the Jews first (13:46; Rom 1:16) and concerned that the false charges against him might already have reached Rome, Paul summoned the local Jewish leaders and gave an account of his life and work. He insisted that he was guilty of no criminal offense, but strong Jewish opposition had made it necessary for him to appeal to the emperor. Paul had nothing against his own people; rather, he wanted to explain his great conviction that the Messiah they had been expecting had already come in the person of Jesus of Nazareth.

28:21-22 The Jewish leaders assured Paul that they had received no reports against him, and they wanted to hear his explanation of this movement.

28:23 Paul explained how Jesus fulfilled the OT hopes for the Kingdom of God, the master theme of Jesus' own preaching (Mark 1:14-15; see Matt 4:12-17; Luke 4:14-21, 43). Referring to the Scriptures, Paul presented the case for Jesus as the promised Messiah.

28:24 Paul's all-day message met a mixed response, as it had in other quarters (e.g., 13:40-51; 17:11-14).

28:25-28 Paul parted with scriptural words of warning that are often used in the NT to explain the Jewish rejection of the gospel (cp. Matt 13:14-15; Mark 4:12; Luke 8:10; John 12:38-40; see Rom 11:1-12, 25-32).

28:26-27 This passage quotes Isa 6:9-10 (Greek version).

28:28 Since Jews everywhere had been given an opportunity to accept the faith (13:46; see Rom 1:16), it was now time for the Gentiles to be offered this salvation. • Some manuscripts add v 29, And when he had said these words, the Jews departed, greatly disagreeing with each other.

28:30 at his own expense: Or in his own rented quarters.

28:31 Despite being under house arrest

(28:16), Paul boldly proclaimed the Kingdom message. • And no one tried to stop him (Greek akōlutōs, "without hindrance"): This single word in Greek is the last word of the book of Acts and one of the keys to its meaning: God's word cannot be chained, even when its messengers are (2 Tim 2:9; see Phil 1:12-14). Acts is the story of an unhindered message of Good News, available to all people throughout the world, whether Jew, Gentile, proselyte, rich, or poor. The mission of proclaiming this message is accomplished in the power of the Spirit (1:8); it embraces Jews (3:1-5:42), Samaritans (8:1-25), converts to Judaism (2:11; 13:43), "God-fearers" (8:26-40; 9:32-11:18), and Gentiles (13:1-28:28). • Luke ends his account with Paul still under house arrest in Rome (about AD 60-62). Paul was later freed and traveled freely (see chart, p. 1845). According to tradition, Paul was imprisoned again in Rome in about AD 64 and was martyred there during Nero's persecution of believers.

INTRODUCTION TO THE LETTERS OF PAUL

Paul wrote almost one-quarter of the New Testament. His thirteen letters to churches and individuals have been deeply influential in Christian belief and practice.

SETTING

Paul's early training and education (Acts 22:3; 26:4) instilled in him a zeal for his ancestral faith that led him to persecute the fledgling Christian movement (Acts 8:1-3). But Christ revealed himself to Paul on the road to Damascus, and his world was overturned (Acts 9).

After his conversion, Paul became one of the most passionate followers of Christ. He immediately began to proclaim Christ in Damascus (Acts 9:20) and then for a decade in his hometown (Acts 9:30). At the invitation of Barnabas, Paul moved to Antioch, where Jews and Gentiles were worshiping together (Acts 11:25-26). From there Paul was sent on three missionary journeys (Acts 13:1-14:28; 15:36-18:22; 18:23-21:17), during which vibrant churches were planted in Asia Minor, Macedonia, and Achaia.

Controversy, however, dogged Paul's steps. His insistence that Gentiles have full rights in the church without obligation to follow the law of Moses made him a target of Jewish opposition. Eventually, he was arrested in Jerusalem, imprisoned in Caesarea, and sent to Rome (Acts 21:27-28:16) to be tried before Caesar. After two years (Acts 28:30-31), Paul was released, only to be rearrested afterward and then executed during Nero's persecution (about AD 64-65).

LITERARY GENRE

Paul wrote letters, a well-known genre in his day. Greco-Roman letters ranged from short notes ("Dear Dad, please send money!") to longer public treatises. Paul's letters range along this spectrum. Even those letters written to individuals deal with issues that were significant for the churches (1 Timothy, 2 Timothy, Titus, Philemon). Toward the other end of the spectrum are Romans and Ephesians, each of which is more of a theological and pastoral treatise than a letter in any modern sense. The public nature of Paul's letters is also revealed in that his associates are sometimes mentioned as secondary authors.

Ancient letters usually followed a set form: address, greeting, body, conclusion. Paul follows this format, though he often expands it.

Ancient writers often employed a scribe, or amanuensis, to write down a letter, and Paul did, too (see, e.g., Rom 16:22). A trusted amanuensis would often have considerable freedom to choose the actual wording of a letter. The variation in Greek style that is found in the letters of Paul may owe something to the influence of an amanuensis.

AUTHORSHIP

Variations in style and theological emphasis have led some scholars to think that not all the NT letters attributed to Paul were actually written by him, but that some were written pseudonymously in his name. Many scholars believe that there are only seven authentic letters of Paul: Romans, 1 and 2 Corinthians, Galatians, Philippians, 1 Thessalonians, and Philemon.

This theory is improbable. There is no evidence from the ancient world that letters were ever written in another person's name—unless they were forgeries with the intent to deceive. The theory is also unnecessary, because the differences among the letters of Paul can be more naturally explained with the possible influence of an amanuensis as well as the natural adaptation of style and emphasis to audience and situation. Each of Paul's letters was written to deal with specific problems in a specific situation.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

Four themes occur repeatedly in Paul's letters. First, God (through Jesus Christ) has intervened in his fallen world to make things right again. Jesus' death and resurrection usher in "the last days" that the OT prophets anticipated. This time period will be brought to its climax when he returns.

Second, God offers sinful human beings the opportunity to be reconciled with him through Christ. People whose sin and rebellion have estranged them from God can be reconciled to him and declared righteous by believing in Jesus Christ.

Third, the Good News is for all kinds of people. Even though God's plan of salvation is unified from Adam to Christ, the coming of Christ broke down ethnic barriers. Jews and Gentiles alike need salvation, and they alike find salvation only through faith in Christ.

Fourth, Paul's letters were written to help believers understand and live out the meaning of their new life in Christ. Paul responded to false teachers who were leading people astray and dealt with misunderstandings that had arisen in the young churches. Paul therefore dealt with a wide spectrum of issues, some of which are quite similar to issues we still face.

Paul reminds us that Christ is Lord and wants to reign over every facet of our lives. The Holy Spirit empowers and guides us to live this new, Christ-centered life.

PAUL'S LETTER TO THE Romans

Romans has been called the greatest theological document ever written. In this letter, the apostle Paul explains the Good News—the climactic revelation of God to the world through his Son, the Lord Jesus Christ. Paul reflects on the human condition, on the meaning of our lives on earth, and on our hope for the world to come. He constantly moves us back to the fundamentals of God's truth revealed in Christ, and he teaches us to deal with the problems, failures, and disputes that characterize life in this world.

SETTING

We do not know who first brought the Good News to Rome. Perhaps Jews from Rome who were converted when God first poured out his Spirit on the day of Pentecost (see Acts 2:10) took the message back to their home city. Several "house churches" quickly grew up, made up primarily of converts from Judaism.

In AD 49, the Emperor Claudius expelled all Jews from Rome—including Jewish Christians (see Acts 18:2). Although Paul had never visited Rome (1:13), in his travels he met some of these Roman Christians, such as Priscilla and Aquila (16:3-4; cp. Acts 18:2).

Claudius's decree eventually lapsed, so by the time Paul wrote his letter to the Romans, many Jewish Christians had returned to Rome. However, in their absence the Gentile Christians had taken the lead in the Christian community in Rome. Therefore, when Paul wrote to the Roman Christians (probably about AD 57), the Roman Christian community was divided into two major factions. The Gentile Christians now comprised the majority group, and they were naturally less concerned about continuity with the OT or with the demands of the law of Moses than their Jewish brothers and sisters. They even looked down on the Jewish Christians (see 11:25). The minority Jewish Christians, for their part, reacted to the Gentile-Christian majority by insisting on adherence to certain aspects of the law of Moses. Paul wrote this letter to the Roman Christians to address this theological and social division, a schism that had at its heart the question of continuity and discontinuity between Jewish and Christian faith.

◀ The Setting of Romans, about AD 57. Paul probably wrote Romans toward the end of his third missionary journey (Acts 18:23–19:41), perhaps from CORINTH. Paul had the opportunity to visit the Romans, as he hoped (1:10–15)—his third missionary journey ended in JERUSALEM, where he was imprisoned and eventually sent to ROME, where he arrived in AD 60 (Acts 28:11–15).

SUMMARY

In the introduction of the letter (1:1-17), Paul identifies himself and his readers (1:1-7), expresses thanks for the Roman Christians (1:8-15), and introduces the theme of the letter: the "Good News about Christ" (1:16-17).

Before elaborating on this Good News, Paul sets out the dark backdrop of universal human sinfulness that makes the Good News necessary. Both Gentiles (1:18-32) and Jews (2:1-3:8) have turned away from God's revelation of himself. All are "under the power of sin" and cannot be made right with God by anything they do (3:9-20).

Into this hopeless situation comes the Good News, which reveals a new "way to be made right" with God. God provided this new way by sending Jesus as a sacrifice for sin, and all human beings can gain the benefits of that sacrifice by faith (3:21-26). Paul highlights the centrality of faith and its nature in 3:27-4:25. He shows that faith excludes boasting and that it enables both Jews and Gentiles to have equal access to God's grace in Christ (3:27-31). He develops these same points through reference to Abraham (4:1-25).

In chs 5-8, Paul discusses the assurance or security of salvation. The assurance that believers will share God's glory (5:1-11) is based on the way in which Jesus Christ more than reversed the terrible effects of Adam's sin (5:12-21). Neither sin (6:1-23) nor the law (7:1-25) can prevent God from accomplishing his purposes for the believer. The Holy Spirit liberates believers from death (8:1-17) and assures them that the sufferings of this life will not keep them from the glory to which God has destined them (8:18-39).

The Good News can only truly be "good news" if the message of Christ stands in continuity with God's promises in the OT. But the unbelief of so many Jews might show that God's promises to Israel are not being fulfilled (9:1-5). So, in chs 9-11, Paul demonstrates that God is being faithful to his promises. God had never promised salvation to all Jews, but only to a remnant (9:6-29). The Jews themselves are responsible for their predicament because they refuse to recognize the fulfillment of God's promises in Christ (9:30-10:21). Furthermore, God is faithfully preserving a remnant of Jewish believers (11:1-10), and God has still more to accomplish for his people Israel (11:11-36).

The Good News rescues people from the penalty of sin, and it also transforms a person's life. In 12:1-15:13, Paul turns his attention to the transforming power of the Good News. In keeping with God's mercies, this transformation demands a whole new way of thinking and living (12:1-2).

The transformed life will be fleshed out in community harmony (12:3-8), manifestations of love (12:9-21; cp. 13:8-10), and submission to the government (13:1-7). The transformed life derives its power from the work God has already done, as well as from the work he has yet to do (13:11-14).

In 14:1-15:13, Paul tackles a specific issue that was a problem in the church at Rome. Christians were criticizing each other over various practices related to the OT law. Paul exhorts them to accept each other and to look to Christ's example of self-giving love as the model to emulate.

The letter format of Romans emerges again at the end, where Paul touches on his ministry and travel plans (15:14-33), greets and commends fellow workers and other Christians (16:1-16), and concludes with further references to fellow workers, a final warning, and a doxology (16:17-27).

DATE, PLACE, AND OCCASION OF WRITING

Paul probably wrote Romans during a three-month stay in Corinth near the end of his third missionary journey (Acts 20:2-3), around AD 57. The reference to Cenchrea in 16:1—a port city next to Corinth—identifies the geography more precisely. By this time, Paul had completed his missionary work in the eastern Mediterranean, and his visit to Jerusalem was imminent.

We can determine the general situation in which Romans was written by reviewing Paul's references to his prior ministry and his future travel plans (15:14-33). Four geographical references provide the framework: (1) Looking back, Paul declared that he had "fully presented the Good News of Christ from Jerusalem all the way to Illyricum" (15:19). Illyricum was a Roman province that occupied the same general area as modern-day Serbia and Croatia. Paul noted that he had planted churches in major cities from Jerusalem, through Asia Minor, and into Macedonia and Greece. This was the territory Paul and his companions covered on the three great missionary journeys recorded in Acts. (2) Paul's intermediate destination was Jerusalem, where he planned to deliver a "gift to the believers" (15:25). This gift was money that Paul had been collecting from the Gentile churches he had founded to assist the church in Jerusalem (15:26; see also 1 Cor 16:1-4; 2 Cor 8-9). (3) After visiting Jerusalem to deliver the collection, Paul planned to go to Rome (15:24). (4) A long stay with the Roman Christians was not Paul's final goal, as the language of 15:24 ("stop off") makes clear. His ultimate goal was Spain, where he could pursue his calling to plant churches in places "where the name of Christ has never been heard" (15:20, 24). This information points to a date near the end of the third missionary journey.

PAUL'S PURPOSE IN WRITING

Romans combines three specific purposes: to summarize Paul's theology, to solicit support for a future mission to Spain, and to bring unity to the church in Rome.

Paul saw himself standing at a critical juncture in his ministry (15:20). He had "fully presented" or fulfilled the Good News by taking it to a broad area of the eastern Mediterranean basin (15:19). He now stood ready to move to the far end of the Mediterranean to preach the

"Preface to the Epistle to the Romans"

Good News in new territory. It is quite natural, then, that Paul took the occasion of his letter to the Romans to summarize his theology as he had hammered it out in the midst of controversy and trial for the previous twenty-five years.

In other words, Romans might be a summary of Paul's theology. Even so, this is not the whole of Paul's purpose in writing—it does not explain why Paul says so little in Romans about key theological ideas (e.g., the person of Christ, the church, the last days). Nor does it explain why Paul would have sent this summary of his theology to the church in Rome.

Another purpose emerges when we turn our attention to Paul's ultimate destination, Spain: Paul wanted to gather support from the Roman Christians for his new mission in a distant land. Paul's "sending church," Antioch, was thousands of miles from Spain. As the apostle sought a new church to partner with him, his attention naturally turned to the church in Rome (15:24). Therefore, it is likely that Paul sent this dense theological treatise to Rome because he wanted to explain who he was and what he believed. Because Paul's message had frequently been misunderstood, he became a controversial figure in the early church. He was undoubtedly aware that some Christians in Rome were suspicious of him and that he therefore must provide a careful and reasoned defense of his position on some of the most debated issues of the faith.

Finally, Paul wrote to a Christian community in Rome that was divided over the degree to which the OT law should continue to guide believers. Paul's long and explicit treatment of this problem (14:1–15:13) reveals that one of his purposes in writing was to heal this rift in the community in Rome.

In Romans, Paul presented the Good News as he had come to understand it. The heart of that Good News is the offer of salvation in Christ for all who believe. Paul explores the problem of human sin, the solution provided in the cross of Christ, and the assurance of glory that a living relationship with Christ provides. The message of the cross of Christ stands both in continuity with the OT (because its promises are truly fulfilled in Christ) and in discontinuity with it (as God in Christ inaugurates a new covenant that transcends the OT law).

INTERPRETATION

Since the time of the Reformation, Romans has been read as a letter about the salvation of the individual. Following the lead of Martin Luther, whose own spiritual pilgrimage was closely tied to the theology of Romans, the Reformers (such as John Calvin and Ulrich Zwingli) saw in this letter the classic biblical expression of the truth that human beings are put right with God by their faith in Christ and not by their own effort. The Reformers viewed Paul as fighting against a legalistic Judaism that insisted that people had to obey the law to be saved. Jewish preoccupation with the law had led many Jews to presume that faithfulness to the law was sufficient for salvation (e.g., 10:1–4).

Many contemporary interpreters insist that this Reformation view of Romans left out important elements in understanding both the letter itself and first-century Judaism. Jews in Paul's day, it is argued, did not believe that they had to obey the law to be saved. They were already saved, through God's choosing them to be his people. Obeying the law was the way they maintained their status as God's people. These interpreters say that Paul was not fighting against legalism but against exclusivism—against the Jewish claim that salvation was confined to Israel and was not to be shared with Gentiles. Accordingly, Paul shows how the Good News relates salvation through faith to the continuity of God's people from the OT to the NT and to the relationship of Jews and Gentiles in his own day.

The reasons why Romans is such a powerful piece of writing, and why it has been so influential in Christian history, are one and the same. . . . We see Paul the Jew wrestling with the implications of his own and his converts' experience of grace and Paul the Christian wrestling with the implications of his Jewish heritage. We see in Romans Paul operating at the interface between Pharisaic Judaism and Christianity, and the transition from the one to the other in process of being worked out.

This new approach to understanding Romans has much to commend it. Christian interpreters have sometimes missed the notes of grace and faith that are part of Jewish teaching. And Romans does have a lot to say about including Gentiles in God's people and the relationship between Jews and Gentiles in the church.

Ultimately, however, neither the Reformation view alone nor the contemporary view alone explains everything in Romans. They need to be combined if we are to appreciate the letter as a whole. At its most foundational level, Romans is about the Good News—and the Good News, first and foremost, is a message about how everyone can have a right relationship with God.

1. THE LETTER OPENING (1:1-17)

Greetings from Paul

1 This letter is from Paul, a ^aslave of Christ Jesus, chosen by God to be an apostle and sent out to preach his ^bGood News. ²God promised this Good News long ago through his prophets in the holy Scriptures. ³The Good News is about his Son. In his earthly life he was born into King David's family line, ⁴and he was shown to be the Son of God when he was raised from the dead by the power of the Holy Spirit. He is Jesus Christ our Lord. ⁵Through Christ, God has given us the privilege and authority as apostles to tell Gentiles everywhere what God has done for them, so that they will believe and obey him, bringing glory to his name.

⁶And you are included among those Gentiles who have been ^ccalled to belong to Jesus Christ. ⁷I am writing to all of you in Rome who are loved by God and are called to be his own holy people.

May God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ give you grace and peace.

1:1-17 These verses contain the normal features of NT letter introductions: an identification of the writer (1:1-6) and readers (1:7); a thanksgiving (1:8-15); and the theme of the letter (1:16-17).

1:1 slave of Christ Jesus: The word slave is used of important OT leaders of God's people, such as Moses (2 Kgs 18:12), Joshua (Josh 24:29), Elijah (2 Kgs 10:10), and David (2 Sam 7:8). The title underscores Paul's complete subservience to Christ as Lord. • sent out (literally set apart): Paul may be alluding to being "set apart" by God for his mission before he was born, as the prophet Jeremiah was (Jer 1:5). He may also be referring to God's call at the time of his Damascus Road conversion (Acts 9:15-16; cp. Acts 13:2), to preach the Good News to Jews and especially to Gentiles. • The Good News, or "gospel," is a recurrent topic in the opening of the letter (1:1, 9, 15, 16). Paul takes the word from the OT, where the Hebrew equivalent refers to the victory that God wins for his people (Isa 40:9; 41:27; 60:6; 61:1; Nah 1:15; see Joel 2:32).

1:3-4 In the Greek, these verses are in carefully structured parallel form; Paul might be quoting an early Christian creed or hymn about Jesus Christ as God's Son in order to establish common ground with the Roman Christians, whom he had never visited.

1:3 In his earthly life (literally As regards the flesh): Paul often uses "flesh" (Greek sarx) to refer to bodily existence in this world (e.g., 4:1; 8:3). • Paul refers to King David's family line because God promised that a descendant of David would be the Messiah and would be given an eternal kingdom (2 Sam 7:13-16; see Isa 9:7; Jer 33:15). Jesus was born into David's line (Matt 1:6; Luke 1:27, 32), so he was qualified to fulfill God's promise.

1:4 and he was shown to be (or and was designated): Although he eternally existed as the Son of God (1:3), Jesus' resurrection demonstrated him to be God's Son, revealing him in all his power and glory. • by the power of the Holy Spirit: Or by the Spirit of holiness; or in the new realm of the Spirit.

1:5 given us . . . apostles: Here Paul might have been thinking both of himself and of the other apostles, or he might be using an editorial plural to refer only to himself. • the privilege (or the grace): Privilege and authority could specify two separate things, but one might explain the other, as in the privilege of having apostolic authority. Paul always makes it clear that his distinctive authority is a gift from God (see also 15:15-16). • so that they will believe and obey him: This summary of Paul's purpose in preaching to Gentiles brackets the book of Romans, as he repeats the same idea in slightly different language at the end of the letter (16:26). Paul wanted Gentiles to believe in Jesus Christ; he underscored that believing in Jesus Christ as the Lord entails a commitment to obey him. Faith and obedience are not identical, but one does not occur without the other.

1:7 To be holy means to be set apart for God. This expression is used throughout the OT to describe Israel, God's chosen people (cp. Exod 19:6), whom God called from among all other nations to be his own. By calling the Gentile Christians his own holy people, Paul makes it clear that Gentiles are now fully included among God's people.

Thanksgiving and Occasion: Paul and the Romans

⁸Let me say first that I thank my God through Jesus Christ for all of you, because your faith in him is being talked about all over the world. ⁹God knows how often I pray for you. Day and night I bring you and your needs in prayer to God, whom I serve with all my heart by spreading the Good News about his Son.

¹⁰One of the things I always pray for is the opportunity, God willing, to come at last to see you. ¹¹For I long to visit you so I can bring you some spiritual ^agift that will help you grow strong in the Lord. ¹²When we get together, I want to encourage you in your faith, but I also want to be encouraged by yours.

¹³I want you to know, dear brothers and sisters, that I planned many times to visit you, but I was prevented until now. I want to work among you and see spiritual fruit, just as I have seen among other Gentiles. ¹⁴For I have a great sense of obligation to people in both the civilized world and the rest of the world, to the educated and uneducated alike. ¹⁵So I am eager to come to you in Rome, too, to preach the Good News.

The Theme of the Letter: God's Good News

¹⁶For I am not ashamed of this ^eGood News about Christ. It is the power of God at work, ^fsaving everyone who believes—the Jew first and also the Gentile. ¹⁷This Good News tells us how God makes us ^gright in his sight. This is accomplished from start to finish by ^hfaith. As the Scriptures say, “It is through ^hfaith that a righteous person has life.”

2. THE HEART OF THE GOSPEL:

JUSTIFICATION BY FAITH (1:18–4:25)

All Persons are Accountable to God for Sin (1:18–32)

¹⁸But God shows his ^langer from heaven against all sinful, wicked people who suppress the truth by their wickedness. ¹⁹They know the truth about God because he has made it obvious to them. ²⁰For ever since the world was created, people have seen the earth and sky. Through everything God made, they can clearly see his invisible qualities—his eternal power and divine nature. So they have no excuse for not knowing God.

1:9 When Paul uses the phrase with all my heart (or in my spirit), he might be describing the influence of God's Holy Spirit on his own inner person. The word spirit also refers to the deepest part of a person, which the phrase all my heart expresses well.

1:11 some spiritual gift: Paul is probably referring to the spiritual benefit that he hopes his ministry will bring to the Roman Christians.

1:13 brothers and sisters (literally brothers): This Greek word (adelphoi) describes people who are in a familial relationship. Paul and other NT writers use this word to indicate that Christians are so intimately tied to one another in Christ that they are family. The word refers to both male and female Christians. • I was prevented until now: Paul wrote this letter when he was in Corinth toward the end of his third missionary journey (see Acts 20:2-4; cp. Rom 16:21-23). The need to plant and nourish churches in the eastern Mediterranean had occupied Paul up to this point. Before he could visit the Roman Christians, he first needed to return to Jerusalem to deliver a gift of money collected from the Gentile churches for the impoverished Jewish Christians (15:23-29).

1:14 to people in both the civilized world and the rest of the world (literally to Greeks and barbarians): The Greeks prided themselves on being sophisticated and cultured, while regarding people from other cultures as inferior. They mocked other peoples' poorly spoken Greek, claiming that they could only say “bar bar,” a nonsense phrase from which our word barbarian comes. Paul uses this cultural divide to emphasize his intention to preach the Good News to all kinds of people.

1:16 Paul consistently emphasizes that the Good News is for everyone. He also insists that God first chose the Jews to be his people, made promises to them, and gave them a unique place in the continuing plan of God (3:1-8; 9:1-5). They have a special responsibility to respond to the Good News and will be judged first if they turn away (2:9-10). • also the Gentile: Literally also the Greek.

1:17 how God makes us right in his sight (literally the righteousness of God): This key phrase appears eight times in Romans (see also 3:5, 21, 22, 25, 26; 10:3; the only other occurrence in Paul's writings is 2 Cor 5:21). The expression has OT roots, where God's righteousness refers to his character (as holy or faithful) or to an act of declaring his people sinless and perfect in his eyes (see especially Isa 46:13; 51:5-8). Paul uses the second meaning in this verse. The Good News has the power to save because it is the fulfillment of God's promise to vindicate his people. • The phrase makes us right comes from the law court. It does not mean “makes us good people”; it means “puts us in right standing before God.” • “It is through faith that a righteous person has life” (or “The righteous will live by faith” Hab 2:4): The prophet Habakkuk had struggled to understand how God could use pagan nations to judge his own people Israel. God reminded Habakkuk that his true people—the righteous—need to live by faith. In chs 1-4, Paul repeatedly insists that only through faith can human beings be made right in God's sight.

1:18-3:20 Paul delays exploring the theme of righteousness through faith (see 3:21) until he first teaches about universal sinfulness. Gentiles (1:18-32) and Jews (2:1-3:8) are equally under sin's power and cannot find favor with God by any action of their own (3:9-20).

1:18 God's anger is not a spontaneous emotional outburst, but the holy God's necessary response to sin. The OT often depicts God's anger (Exod 32:10-12; Num 11:1; Jer 21:3-7) and predicts a decisive outpouring of God's wrath on human sin at the end of history. While Paul usually depicts God's anger as occurring in the end times (2:5, 8; 5:9; Col 3:6; 1 Thes 1:10), the present tense of shows refers to God's expressions of anger throughout human history. • who suppress the truth by their wickedness: Or who, by their wickedness, prevent the truth from being known.

²¹Yes, they knew God, but they wouldn't worship him as God or even give him thanks. And they began to think up foolish ideas of what God was like. As a result, their minds became dark and confused. ²²Claiming to be wise, they instead became utter fools. ²³And instead of worshiping the glorious, ever-living God, they worshiped idols made to look like mere people and birds and animals and reptiles.

²⁴So God abandoned them to do whatever shameful things their hearts desired. As a result, they did vile and degrading things with each other's bodies. ²⁵They traded the truth about God for a lie. So they worshiped and served the things God created instead of the Creator himself, who is worthy of eternal praise! Amen. ²⁶That is why God abandoned them to their shameful desires. Even the women turned against the natural way to have sex and instead indulged in sex with each other. ²⁷And the men, instead of having normal sexual relations with women, burned with lust for each other. Men did shameful things with other men, and as a result of this sin, they suffered within themselves the penalty they deserved.

²⁸Since they thought it foolish to acknowledge God, he abandoned them to their foolish thinking and let them do things that should never be done. ²⁹Their lives became full of every kind of wickedness, sin, greed, hate, envy, murder, quarreling, deception, malicious behavior, and gossip. ³⁰They are backstabbers, haters of God, insolent, proud, and boastful. They invent new ways of sinning, and they disobey their parents. ³¹They refuse to understand, break their promises, are heartless, and have no mercy. ³²They know God's justice requires that those who do these things deserve to die, yet they do them anyway. Worse yet, they encourage others to do them, too.

Jews are Accountable to God for Sin (2:1–3:8)

The Jews and the Judgment of God

2You may think you can condemn such people, but you are just as bad, and you have no excuse! When you say they are wicked and should be punished, you are condemning yourself, for you who judge others do these very same things. ²And we know that God, in his justice, will punish anyone who does such things. ³Since you judge others for doing these things, why do you think you can avoid God's judgment when you do the same things? ⁴Don't you see how wonderfully kind, tolerant, and patient God is with you? Does this mean nothing to you? Can't you see that his kindness is intended to ⁵turn you from your sin?

⁵But because you are stubborn and refuse to turn from your sin, you are storing up ⁶terrible punishment for yourself. For a day of ⁷anger is coming, when God's righteous judgment will be revealed. ⁸He will judge everyone according to what they have

2 Tim 4:14

1:21 To know God in Scripture usually means to have an intimate, saving relationship with him (see 2 Cor 5:16; Gal 4:9; Phil 3:8, 10). Here, however, they knew God means that people knew about God. All people have some understanding of God through creation, yet they do not do what is right based on that knowledge. Rather than learn more about God, they worship gods of their own making.

1:24 When human beings exchanged the living God for idols, God abandoned them, a point Paul makes twice more in this paragraph (1:26, 28). The word abandon includes a sense of "handing over," suggesting that God actively consigns people to the consequences of their sin.

1:26 women turned against the natural way: In this context, natural way refers to the nature of the world as God made it. As in the OT, Paul singles out homosexuality as a key illustration of how people have fallen away from worship of the true God (see Gen 19:1-28; Lev 18:22; 20:13; Deut 23:17-18). God created human beings as male and female, and engaging in homosexual activity is a violation of God's creative intention.

1:27 suffered within themselves the penalty they deserved: When people abandon the Creator's intentions, they are judged for their actions. This judgment can take many different forms, but the ultimate consequence is spiritual death (see 1:32).

1:28 thought it foolish: Sin affects our actions and even our thoughts. One of the serious consequences of turning away from God is an unsound mind; people can no longer use their minds as God intended.

1:29-31 This list of sins follows a popular Hellenistic literary form called a vice list. While not exhaustive, it reminds readers of various forms that evil might take.

1:32 To encourage others to sin is worse than sinning oneself (Jas 3:1; cp. Testament of Asher 6:2: "The two-faced are doubly punished because they both practice evil and approve of others who practice it; they imitate the spirits of error and join in the struggle against mankind").

2:1-5 You is singular in the Greek. Here, the you is a hypothetical complacent Jew, who feels superior to Gentiles and in no danger of judgment. Paul adopts a popular Hellenistic style called a diatribe, in which a writer tries to win over an audience to his views by portraying a debate between himself and a hypothetical opponent. • these very same things: Paul's point is that Jews, like Gentiles, turn from God's revelation to go their own way.

2:4 Can't you see that his kindness is intended to turn you from your sin? Behind Paul's question are Jewish passages (e.g., Wisdom of Solomon 12-15; cp. Jer 7:1-5; Amos 5:18-27) that portray a prevalent Jewish complacency toward judgment. Many Jews thought that because they were God's people, they did not need to worry about judgment, for their sins would not be punished as the sins of Gentiles would be. Paul emphasizes that God's grace was intended to turn the Jews from their sin, not to condone a sinful lifestyle.

2:6-11 Paul uses a chiasm ("X" arrangement) to make his point:

done. ⁷He will give eternal life to those who keep on doing good, seeking after the glory and honor and immortality that God offers.

⁸But he will pour out his ^aanger and wrath on those who live for themselves, who refuse to obey the truth and instead live lives of wickedness. ⁹There will be trouble and calamity for everyone who keeps on doing what is evil—for the Jew first and also for the Gentile. ¹⁰But there will be glory and honor and peace from God for all who do good—for the Jew first and also for the Gentile. ¹¹For God does not show favoritism.

¹²When the Gentiles sin, they will be destroyed, even though they never had God's written law. And the Jews, who do have God's ^blaw, will be judged by that ^blaw when they fail to obey it. ¹³For merely listening to the law doesn't make us right with God. It is obeying the law that makes us right in his sight. ¹⁴Even Gentiles, who do not have God's written law, show that they know his law when they instinctively obey it, even without having heard it. ¹⁵They demonstrate that God's law is written in their hearts, for their own conscience and thoughts either accuse them or tell them they are doing right. ¹⁶And this is the 'message I proclaim—that the day is coming when God, through Christ Jesus, will judge everyone's secret life.

Natural Revelation (1:19-21)

Ps 19:1-4
Acts 14:15-17;
17:24-29

When God speaks to people directly through his word, we call it special revelation. God also speaks to all people indirectly in natural revelation, through the world of nature he has created. Psalm 19, for example, proclaims that knowledge of God in creation is universal (see Ps 19:1-4).

Sadly, however, a saving response to God is anything but universal. Paul teaches in Romans 1-3 that as a result of Adam's sin, all people turn away from the knowledge of God that they find in the created world. Apart from God's grace, natural revelation only condemns people; as Paul states in 1:20, "They have no excuse for not knowing God."

God can still use natural revelation to awaken people to the reality of the one true God. When accompanied and empowered by the grace of God, the beauty and intricacy of the world can stimulate a search for the Creator. Paul appealed to natural revelation in Athens (Acts 17:16-31) as a bridge to preaching the Good News. God's revelation in the natural world and in human nature can stimulate people to search for the true God. And then, through the special revelation he has given in Scripture and in his Son, Jesus Christ, people can come to know him and experience his salvation.

A God judges everyone the same (2:6)

B Life is the reward for doing good (2:7)

C Wrath is the penalty for evil (2:8)

C' Wrath for doing evil (2:9)

B' Life for doing good (2:10)

A' God shows no favoritism (2:11)

2:7 He will give eternal life to those who keep on doing good: Paul makes it clear elsewhere that no one can receive eternal life except as God's gift through faith (3:20, 28; 4:1-8). Here, Paul is either referring to Christians whose good deeds (that result from faith) will be taken into account in God's judgment, or he is reminding readers of the absolute standard that God's own holiness establishes, since only by perfection can sinners hope to find acceptance before God. As the argument of the letter unfolds, Paul will show that no one is capable of meeting that standard.

2:8 Live for themselves translates a rare Greek word (eritheia) that seems to convey the idea of selfish ambition or strife.

Using this word, Aristotle scolded the politicians of his day for seeking public office for selfish gain rather than from a desire to serve the people (Aristotle, Politics 5.3; see also 2 Cor 12:20; Gal 5:20; Phil 1:17; 2:3; Jas 3:14, 16).

2:9 also for the Gentile: Literally also for the Greek; also in 2:10.

2:12 destroyed: This common NT word describes the fate of the wicked after death (see also 9:22; 14:15; 1 Cor 1:18; 15:18; 2 Cor 2:15; 4:3; Phil 1:28; 3:19; 2 Thes 2:10; 1 Tim 6:9). Condemned sinners do not cease to exist, but they suffer eternal punishment, which includes the everlasting destruction of all good in their identity and experience. • the Jews, who do have God's law: The Jews were given the law of Moses, while the Gentiles never had God's written law. In the NT period, Jews emphasized their possession of the law as a mark of God's favor and even as a guarantee of salvation.

2:13 obeying the law . . . makes us right in his sight: Regarding the promise of righteousness through obedience, see 2:7; see also Jas 1:22.

2:14-15 The Gentiles who know his law when they instinctively obey it may be Gentile Christians, especially since written in their hearts (2:15) alludes to the prophecy of the new covenant (Jer 31:31-34). Or they could be non-Christian Gentiles who know God's general moral law through their consciences. In this case, Paul would be using the notion of natural law to show how all people could be held accountable for certain basic moral requirements.

2:16 secret life (literally the hidden things): Scripture frequently stresses that God will judge people according to their thoughts and intentions (see 1 Sam 16:7; Ps 139:1-2; Jer 17:10).

2:17-20 The boasting of the Jews reflects OT and Jewish teaching about the privileges and responsibilities God gave to Israel. God gave his law to Israel, entered into a special relationship with them, and commissioned them to be a light to the Gentiles (see Isa 42:6-7).

he wants; you know what is right because you have been taught his law. ¹⁹You are convinced that you are a guide for the blind and a light for people who are lost in darkness. ²⁰You think you can instruct the ignorant and teach children the ways of God. For you are certain that God's law gives you complete knowledge and truth.

²¹Well then, if you teach others, why don't you teach yourself? You tell others not to steal, but do you steal? ²²You say it is wrong to commit adultery, but do you commit adultery? You condemn idolatry, but do you use items stolen from pagan temples? ²³You are so proud of knowing the law, but you dishonor God by breaking it. ²⁴No wonder the Scriptures say, "The Gentiles blaspheme the name of God because of you."

²⁵The Jewish ceremony of circumcision has value only if you obey God's law. But if you don't obey God's law, you are no better off than an uncircumcised Gentile. ²⁶And if the Gentiles obey God's law, won't God declare them to be his own people? ²⁷In fact, uncircumcised Gentiles who keep God's law will condemn you Jews who are circumcised and possess God's law but don't obey it.

²⁸For you are not a true Jew just because you were born of Jewish parents or because you have gone through the ceremony of circumcision. ²⁹No, a true Jew is one whose heart is right with God. And true circumcision is not merely obeying the letter of the law; rather, it is a change of heart produced by the Spirit. And a person with a changed heart seeks praise from God, not from people.

God's Faithfulness and the Judgment of Jews

3 Then what's the advantage of being a Jew? Is there any value in the ceremony of circumcision? ²Yes, there are great benefits! First of all, the Jews were entrusted with the whole revelation of God.

³True, some of them were unfaithful; but just because they were unfaithful, does that mean God will be unfaithful? ⁴Of course not! Even if everyone else is a liar, God is true. As the Scriptures say about him,

"You will be proved right in what you say, and you will win your case in court."

⁵"But," some might say, "our sinfulness serves a good purpose, for it helps people see how righteous God is. Isn't it unfair, Jews were not wrong to enjoy these blessings; their error was in failing to live up to their privileged position.

2:21-22 Paul again uses the diatribe style to expose the inconsistency of Jewish claims (see note on 2:1-5).

2:22 do you use items stolen from pagan temples? (literally do you steal from temples?): OT law prohibited Jews from having anything to do with pagan idols (see Deut 7:26), but first-century Jews did not strictly follow this law. Sometimes they stole idols and used or sold the precious metals.

2:24 Paul quotes Isa 52:5 (Greek version), where God's name is blasphemed because Israel is oppressed by pagan nations. Here, Paul uses that passage to demonstrate the failure of the Jews to live up to their responsibilities.

2:25 God instituted the Jewish ceremony of circumcision as a sign of his covenant with Abraham; it was to be performed on every male Israelite child (Gen 17:9-13; see Rom 4:11). Circumcision therefore represents God's covenant with his people Israel. The rite took on greater significance during the intertestamental period when the pagan king Antiochus IV Epiphanes tried to stamp out the Jewish faith by forbidding circumcision. The Jews resisted in the famous Maccabean Revolt (166–160 BC). After they restored the worship of the Lord in Israel, the Jews regarded circumcision as a highly prized mark of Jewish loyalty in the midst of a pagan culture.

2:26 won't God declare them to be his own people? Paul might be speaking of Gentile Christians who are God's people because they obey God's law, or he could be speaking hypothetically about what would happen if a Gentile perfectly obeyed God's law.

2:29 The letter of the law refers to the law of God written on tablets of stone (see 2 Cor 3:3), while the Spirit now writes his law on people's hearts (Jer 31:33-34). Outward conformity is thus contrasted with obedience motivated by a change of heart. • seeks praise: Or receives praise.

3:1 what's the advantage of being a Jew? Paul moves his argument along by raising questions. After preaching the Good News for over twenty years, he knew what questions people would ask when they heard a particular teaching. His emphasis on the equality of Jews and Gentiles before God (ch 2) inevitably led people to ask whether he was eliminating all Jewish privileges. The question-and-answer style follows the pattern of the diatribe (see note on 2:1-5).

3:2 The advantage that Jews possessed was in having received God's word.

• First of all: Paul never adds a second or a third point to the list he begins here. He might have forgotten to continue the list, or first of all might mean

"most importantly." However, 9:4-5 provides a good indication of what a list of Jewish privileges would have included. • the whole revelation of God (literally the oracles of God): By using the word oracles (Greek logia), Paul highlights God's personal communication with his people (see Deut 33:9; Ps 105:19) through which he gives them special privileges and responsibilities.

3:4 Of course not! The Greek mē genoito is an emphatic negation, popular in the diatribe style that Paul uses here and in several other passages in Romans (see 3:6, 31; 6:2, 15; 7:7, 13; 9:14; 11:1, 11). • As the Scriptures say: Paul quotes Ps 51:4 (Greek version), where David confessed his sin in having an adulterous relationship with Bathsheba (see 2 Sam 11). God punished David, and David admitted that God was proved right and would win his case in court—his punishment was entirely just. God is faithful to what he has said in the past—his entire revelation—and his words warn of punishment for sin even as they promise reward for obedience.

3:5-7 how would he be qualified to judge the world? Abraham asked a similar question: "Should not the Judge of all the earth do what is right?" (Gen 18:25). God punishes all sin, and he retains absolute righteousness as he does so. Even when God makes use of human sin for his own ends, that sin still deserves to be, and will be, punished (see 9:10-24).

then, for him to punish us?" (This is merely a human point of view.) ⁶Of course not! If God were not entirely fair, how would he be qualified to judge the world? ⁷"But," someone might still argue, "how can God condemn me as a sinner if my dishonesty highlights his truthfulness and brings him more glory?" ⁸And some people even slander us by claiming that we say, "The more we sin, the better it is!" Those who say such things deserve to be condemned.

The Guilt of All Humanity (3:9–20)

⁹Well then, should we conclude that we Jews are better than others? No, not at all, for we have already shown that all people, whether Jews or Gentiles, are under the power of ⁹sin. ¹⁰As the Scriptures say,

"No one is righteous—not even one.

¹¹No one is truly wise;
no one is seeking God.

¹²All have turned away;
all have become useless.

No one does good,
not a single one."

¹³"Their talk is foul, like the stench from an open grave.

Their tongues are filled with lies."
"Snake venom drips from their lips."

¹⁴"Their mouths are full of cursing and bitterness."

¹⁵"They rush to commit murder.

¹⁶Destruction and misery always follow them.

¹⁷They don't know where to find peace."

¹⁸"They have no fear of God at all."

¹⁹Obviously, the law applies to those to whom it was given, for its purpose is to keep people from having excuses, and to show that the entire world is guilty before God. ²⁰For no one can ever be made right with God by doing what the law commands. The law simply shows us how sinful we are.

Justification and the Righteousness of God (3:21–26)

²¹But now God has shown us a way to be made right with him without keeping the requirements of the law, as was promised in the writings of Moses and the prophets long ago. ²²We are made right with God by placing our faith in Jesus Christ. And this is true for everyone who believes, no matter who we are.

3:8 some people even slander us: Paul is referring to misrepresentations about his teaching on justification by faith. If a person is made right with God by faith alone, through God's grace and apart from works, it could seem as if the Good News allows believers to sin because their sin is forgiven when confessed (see 6:1). One of Paul's purposes is to help the Roman Christians understand that such misunderstandings are without basis.

3:9 No, not at all: Paul's emphatic answer does not contradict his claim in 3:1–2 that Jews have an advantage. But that advantage has not done them any good because they have disobeyed God's word and incurred God's punishment. Jews, like Gentiles, have sinned against the revelation of God and stand condemned. • or Gentiles: Literally or Greeks. • under the power of sin (literally under sin): Being "under" something carries the sense of being under its power. The ultimate problem of human beings is not the fact of sin, but the more basic situation of being slaves to sin. The solution to this problem requires the liberation provided in Christ Jesus, who frees us from both the penalty and the power of sin.

3:10–18 The six quotations in these verses, drawn from various parts of the OT, all address human sinfulness. Paul follows the practice of rabbis who gathered together OT texts on similar themes in a practice called pearl-stringing.

3:10–12 This quotation from Ps 14:1–3; 53:1–3 (Greek version) directly supports the argument that all people are under the power of sin.

3:13–14 Paul here refers to sins of speech, mentioning a different organ of speech in each of the four lines (talk in 3:13 is literally throat).

3:13 These quotations are from Ps 5:9 (Greek version); 140:3.

3:14 This quotation is from Ps 10:7 (Greek version).

3:15–17 In this quotation from Isa 59:7–8, Paul addresses sins against others.

3:18 This concluding quotation from Ps 36:1 neatly ties up the whole series (3:10–18) by referring to the same Greek words that introduced the first quotation (ouk estin, "they have no" and "no one is").

3:19 Paul speaks of the entire OT as the law (see also 1 Cor 9:8, 9; 14:21, 34; Gal 4:21). • Those to whom it was given (literally those in the law) were the Jews, who were given the Scriptures. • How can Paul conclude that the entire world is guilty before God on the basis of evidence from the OT that Jews are sinful? He argues "from the greater to the lesser": If the law shows that the Jews, God's own people, are guilty, then how much more are the Gentiles, who have not had the benefit of God's instruction, also guilty.

3:20 By doing what the law commands refers to obeying the requirements of the law of Moses. While this phrase refers to Jews, the principle extends to all people. If Jews cannot be put in right relationship with God by obeying the law God gave them, certainly other people cannot establish such a relationship through good deeds.

3:21–4:25 Paul returns to the central theme of the righteousness of God that is revealed in Christ and is available to anyone who believes. The fundamental statement of this theology is in 3:21–26; Paul elaborates on it in 3:27–31, and illustrates it with the experience of Abraham in ch 4.

3:21–22 After a lengthy reminder of the power of sin (1:18–3:20), Paul returns to the theme presented in 1:17, the way to be made right with God (literally the righteousness of God). As in that verse, "the righteousness of God" is the way that God puts people in right relationship with himself. • without keeping the requirements of the law (literally apart from the law): The old covenant looked forward to the climactic revelation of God's righteousness in his Son. What God now accomplishes for us in Christ, he does apart from the covenant structure set up by the law of Moses (Heb 8:13). • the writings of Moses: Literally the law.

²³For everyone has sinned; we all fall short of God's ^aglorious standard. ²⁴Yet God, in his grace, freely makes us right in his sight. He did this through Christ Jesus when he ^bfreed us from the penalty for our sins. ²⁵For God presented Jesus as the ^csacrifice for sin. People are made right with God when they ^dbelieve that Jesus sacrificed his life, shedding his blood. This sacrifice shows that God was being fair when he held back and did not punish those who sinned in times past, ²⁶for he was looking ahead and including them in what he would do in this present time. God did this to demonstrate his righteousness, for he himself is fair and just, and he makes sinners right in his sight when they believe in Jesus.

Justification "By Faith Alone" (3:27–4:25)
"By Faith Alone": Initial Statement

²⁷Can we boast, then, that we have done anything to be accepted by God? No, because our acquittal is not based on obeying the law. It is based on faith. ²⁸So we are made right with God through faith and not by obeying the law.

²⁹After all, is God the God of the Jews only? Isn't he also the God of the Gentiles? Of course he is. ³⁰There is only one God, and he makes people right with himself only by faith, whether they are Jews or Gentiles.

³¹Well then, if we emphasize faith, does this mean that we can forget about the law? Of course not! In fact, only when we have faith do we truly fulfill the law.

"By Faith Alone": Abraham

4 Abraham was, humanly speaking, the founder of our Jewish nation. What did he discover about being made right with God? ²If his good deeds had made him acceptable to God, he would have had something to boast about. But that was not God's way. ³For the Scriptures tell us, "Abraham believed God, and God counted him as ^arighteous because of his faith."

⁴When people work, their wages are not a gift, but something they have earned.

⁵But people are counted as righteous, not because of their work, but because of their faith in God who forgives sinners. ⁶David also spoke of this when he described the happiness of those who are declared righteous without working for it:

⁷"Oh, what ^bjoy for those whose disobedience is forgiven, whose ^csins are put out of sight.

3:24 God makes us right in his sight, not because he has to, but because he has freely chosen to give us his favor through Christ Jesus. Because we are helpless slaves of sin (3:9), our righteous status before God can never be earned (see 4:4-5). • through Christ Jesus when he freed us from the penalty for our sins (literally through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus): In Paul's day, redemption referred to the price paid to free a slave. God paid our redemption price with the blood of his own Son to rescue us from our slavery to sin (see 3:9). This language was used in the OT to refer to the Exodus, the first redemption of God's people from bondage (see 2 Sam 7:23). God promised that he would again redeem his people (Hos 13:14; Mic 4:10).

3:25 the sacrifice for sin (Greek hilasterion): This Greek word is used in the Greek OT to refer to the "atone-ment cover," the cover that rested on the Ark of the Covenant in the inner sanctuary of the Tabernacle. The atonement cover was prominent in the Day of Atonement ritual (Lev 16) and came to stand for the atonement ceremony itself. Paul characterizes Jesus Christ as God's provision of final atonement for his people. Jesus himself satisfies, or absorbs in himself, the anger of God against all sinful people (see 1:18). • those who sinned in times past: Paul refers to righteous OT people who were not punished for their sins as strict justice would require. Hebrews reminds us, "it is not possible for the blood of bulls and goats to take away sins" (Heb 10:4). How, then, could God forgive people in the OT? Paul answers that Jesus' sacrifice works backward in history as well as forward—through Christ, God provided for the full satisfaction of his righteous anger against human sin.

3:29-30 Paul uses the foundational Jewish commitment to monotheism to argue for universal access to God's forgiveness. If there is only one God, then he is equally the God of both Jews and Gentiles. All people must be able to come to God on the same terms, through faith. • whether they are Jews or Gentiles: Literally whether they are circumcised or uncircumcised.

3:31 we truly fulfill the law: Paul knows that some people will object to his insistence on faith apart from the law because it seems to dismiss the demands of the law. However, faith actually enables people to fulfill the law. The Holy Spirit is given to those who have faith, and he makes it possible for people to do as they should.

4:1 Jews in Paul's day revered Abraham as Israel's founder. Some Jewish texts claim that Abraham never sinned (Prayer of Manasseh 8; Jubilees 23:10). Others emphasize his obedience to the law of Moses as the basis for his relationship with God (7 Maccabees 2:52; Sirach 44:19-20). However, Paul demonstrates that Abraham's faith, not his obedience, established his status with God. Abraham's position as the founder of God's people demonstrates that justification by faith is central in God's plan.

4:3 Paul quotes Gen 15:6. In response to God's promise that he would have descendants as numerous as the stars in the sky, Abraham believed God. It was faith that established Abraham's relationship with God—not works (4:3-8), circumcision (4:9-12), the law (4:13-17), or the number of his descendants (4:18-21).

4:4-5 The logic of these verses is as follows: (1) The stated premise is that when people work, their pay is what they have earned, not a gift. (2) The unstated premise is that God is never indebted to his creatures (because they owe him everything), so anything he gives them is a gift (see also 9:14-16). (3) The conclusion is that therefore, people cannot be declared righteous before God because of their works.

4:7-8 This quotation from Ps 32:1-2 (Greek version) follows the Jewish custom of supporting a reference to the

 of "sin."

⁹ Now, is this blessing only for the Jews, or is it also for uncircumcised Gentiles? Well, we have been saying that Abraham was counted as "righteous by God because of his faith." ¹⁰ But how did this happen? Was he counted as righteous only after he was circumcised, or was it before he was circumcised? Clearly, God accepted Abraham before he was circumcised!

¹¹ Circumcision was a sign that Abraham already had faith and that God had already accepted him and declared him to be righteous—even before he was circumcised. So Abraham is the spiritual "father of those who have faith but have not been circumcised. They are counted as righteous because of their faith. ¹² And Abraham is also the spiritual father of those who have been circumcised, but only if they have the same kind of faith Abraham had before he was circumcised.

¹³ Clearly, God's promise to give the whole earth to Abraham and his descendants was based not on his obedience to God's law, but on a right relationship with God that comes by faith. ¹⁴ If God's promise is only for those who obey the law, then faith is not necessary and the promise is pointless. ¹⁵ For the law always brings punishment on those who try to obey it. (The only way to avoid breaking the law is to have no law to break!)

¹⁶ So the promise is received by faith. It is given as a free gift. And we are all certain

God's Unified Plan of Salvation (3:21-26)

 Heb 9:27-28

The continuity of God's unfolding plan of salvation is a central theme in Romans. In 3:21, Paul makes two important points about the new way of being "made right" with God that has been inaugurated in Jesus Christ. First, it does not depend on obeying the laws and regulations of the OT. Second, it was "promised in the writings of Moses and the prophets" (3:21). God has always planned to save the world through Jesus, and the entire OT was a preparation for that climactic moment in salvation history. In 1:2, Paul claims that "God promised this Good News long ago through his prophets in the holy Scriptures." Paul keeps returning to this theme of continuity, especially in chs 9–11, where he shows how God's dealings with Israel fit into that single, unfolding plan.

At the same time, Paul is also concerned to help us understand the discontinuity in God's single plan of salvation. That plan unfolds in stages. Now that the final stage in Christ has arrived, the prior stage—during which the law of Moses ruled over God's people—has been left behind. Paul repeatedly emphasizes that our new relationship with God stands separate from the law of Moses (see 6:14, 15; 7:4-6; 10:4). A similar point is made in John 1:17 and Heb 10:1. Paul's recurring focus in Romans on the nature of God's plan helps us to put the whole story of the Bible together in a way that honors both of its parts.

Law with a reference in the Prophets or the Writings. Paul also uses a Jewish exegetical technique of linking unrelated quotations with a key word. Here, record . . . has cleared translates the same Greek word as "counted" in 4:3.

4:9 is this blessing only for the Jews, or is it also for uncircumcised Gentiles? Literally is this blessing only for the circumcised, or is it also for the uncircumcised?

4:10 God accepted Abraham before he was circumcised! Paul's point is simple: God's declaration of Abraham's righteousness in Gen 15:6 could not have been based on his circumcision, which happened later (Gen 17). This point further demonstrates that God's acceptance and blessing is a free gift and not earned by works.

4:11-12 When God instituted circumcision, he called it "a sign of the covenant" between himself and Abraham (Gen 17:11). The covenant was already in place (Gen 12:1-3; 15:1-21; 17:1-8) even before Abraham was circumcised (Gen 17:9-14). This shows that the covenant was based on faith, not circumcision. So Abraham is the spiritual father of all people, whether circumcised (Jews) or uncircumcised (Gentiles), who have the same kind of faith Abraham had—that is, faith in God's promises (4:13-25).

4:13 the whole earth: God told Abraham that he would be the father of many nations (4:17; Gen 12:2; 13:16; 15:5; 17:4-6, 16-20; 22:17) and that he would be the means of blessing to all people (Gen 12:3; 18:18; 22:18; cp. Isa 55:3-5).

4:14 then faith is not necessary (literally faith is emptied): If works of obedience can be substituted for faith, then "faith is emptied" of its importance. Believing in God means acknowledging our unworthiness and depending entirely on God's mercy.

4:15 The only way to avoid breaking the law is to have no law to break! (literally where there is no law, neither is there transgression): Paul always uses the word "transgression" to denote disobedience of a clear commandment of God (see also 2:23; 5:14; Gal 3:19; 1 Tim 2:14). Transgression only exists where the law exists, which is why the law always brings punishment. The law that God gave to the Israelites specified requirements in great detail, which made the people more accountable for sin than before. So when they inevitably disobeyed the law, God brought more severe punishment upon them.

4:16 whether or not we live according to the law of Moses (literally not only those who are of the law): The Jews were of the law in that their covenant with God included the law of Moses and they were to live according to it.

to receive it, whether or not we live according to the law of Moses, if we have faith like Abraham's. For Abraham is the father of all who believe. ¹⁷That is what the Scriptures mean when God told him, "I have made you the father of many nations." This happened because Abraham believed in the God who ¹brings the dead back to life and who creates new things out of nothing.

¹⁸Even when there was no reason for hope, Abraham kept hoping—believing that he would become the father of many nations. For God had said to him, "That's how many descendants you will have!" ¹⁹And Abraham's faith did not weaken, even though, at about 100 years of age, he figured his body was as good as dead—and so was Sarah's womb.

²⁰Abraham never wavered in believing God's promise. In fact, his faith grew stronger, and in this he brought glory to God. ²¹He was fully convinced that God is able to do whatever he promises. ²²And because of Abraham's faith, God counted him as righteous. ²³And when God counted him as righteous, it wasn't just for Abraham's benefit. It was recorded ²⁴for our benefit, too, assuring us that God will also count us as righteous if we believe in him, the one who raised Jesus our Lord from the dead. ²⁵He was handed over to die because of our sins, and he was raised to life to make us ²⁶right with God.

3. THE ASSURANCE PROVIDED BY THE GOSPEL: THE HOPE OF SALVATION (5:1–8:39)

The Hope of Glory (5:1–21)

From Justification to Salvation

5 Therefore, since we have been made right in God's sight by ¹faith, we have ²peace with God because of what Jesus Christ our Lord has done for us. ³Because of our faith, Christ has brought us into this place of undeserved ⁴privilege where we now stand, and we confidently and joyfully ⁵look forward to sharing God's glory.

⁶We can rejoice, too, when we run into problems and trials, for we know that they help us develop endurance. ⁷And endurance develops strength of character, and character strengthens our confident hope of salvation. ⁸And this hope will not lead to disappointment. For we know how dearly God loves us, because he has given us the Holy Spirit to fill our hearts with his ⁹love.

¹⁰When we were utterly helpless, Christ came at just the right time and died for us sinners. ¹¹Now, most people would not be willing to die for an upright person, though someone might perhaps be willing to die for a person who is especially good. ¹²But God showed his great love for us by sending Christ to die for us while we were still sinners. ¹³And since we have been made right in God's sight by the blood of Christ, he will certainly save us from God's condemnation.

4:18 This quotation is from Gen 15:5.

4:24 raised . . . from the dead: Abraham experienced the life-giving power of God in the birth of his son, Isaac. Christians witness it in the resurrection of Jesus. Throughout history, salvation has been available only through faith in God, who makes and keeps his promises.

5:1–8:39 Paul now turns from the Good News about how people enter a relationship with God to the security of that relationship. Christians have a strong and unassailable promise because of God's work in Christ, God's love for them, and the power of the Holy Spirit. This theme frames the teaching of these chapters (5:1–11; 8:18–39) as Paul grounds that promise in the transfer of believers from the realm of Adam to the realm of Christ (5:12–21). No power—whether sin (ch 6), the law (ch 7), or death (8:1–13)—“will ever be able to separate us from the love of God” (8:39).

5:1 we have peace: In many manuscripts, the underlying Greek verb is indicative, as translated here. A number of other manuscripts use the subjunctive instead (let us have peace).

• Peace with God does not refer to a mere feeling of peacefulness but to a real situation of peace. It is the end of hostilities between God and sinful human beings when they believe in Jesus Christ and the state of blessing and salvation that God promised his people in the end (see Isa 9:6–7; 52:7; Ezek 34:25; Nah 1:15).

5:2 undeserved privilege (or grace): So basic is God's grace (Greek charis) that Paul can use the word to sum up our present situation as believers. • Where we now stand indicates that God's grace is needed throughout the Christian life, not just at the beginning. • Sharing God's glory describes the content of Christian hope, which Paul introduces here and expounds more fully in 8:18–30. Behind Paul's use of the word glory (Greek doxa) is the Hebrew word kabad, which depicts God's majesty and overwhelming presence (see “The Glory of God” at Exod 24:15–17, p. 167). The prophets predict a day when God's glory will return to dwell in the midst of his people (see, e.g., Isa 60:1–2).

5:3–4 See also Jas 1:2–4; 1 Pet 1:6–7. The similarities in these passages indicate early Christian teaching common to all three of these writers.

5:5 this hope will not lead to disappointment (literally will not put to shame): In the OT, shame sometimes refers to a negative verdict from God's judgment (e.g., Isa 28:16, quoted in Rom 9:33). • he has given us the Holy Spirit to fill our hearts with his love: See Jer 31:33–34; Acts 2:17–21.

5:6 At just the right time might mean that God sent Christ at the time appointed in history, or that our condition as utterly helpless was the right time for God to demonstrate his love by sending his Son on our behalf.

5:9 The blood of Christ refers to Jesus' sacrificial death (3:25). In the Scriptures, blood is shorthand for a violent death (Lev 17:11), especially when that death atones for sins. • he will certainly save us from God's condemnation: Paul frequently speaks of salvation as the final deliverance of believers from God's wrath and the tribulations of this life (see 13:11).

¹⁰For since our friendship with God was ^brestored by the death of his Son while we were still his enemies, we will certainly be saved through the life of his Son. ¹¹So now we can rejoice in our wonderful new relationship with God because our Lord Jesus Christ has ^cmade us friends of God.

The Reign of Grace and Life

¹²When Adam sinned, ^dsin entered the world. Adam's ^esin brought death, so death spread to everyone, for everyone sinned. ¹³Yes, people sinned even before the law was given. But it was not counted as sin because there was not yet any law to break. ¹⁴Still, everyone died—from the time of Adam to the time of Moses—even those who did not disobey an explicit commandment of God, as Adam did. Now Adam is a ^fsymbol, a representation of Christ, who was yet to come.

¹⁵But there is a great difference between Adam's sin and God's gracious gift. For the sin of this one man, Adam, brought death to many. But even greater is God's wonderful grace and his gift of forgiveness to many through this other man, Jesus Christ. ¹⁶And the result of God's gracious gift is very different from the result of that one man's sin. For Adam's sin led to condemnation, but God's free gift leads to our being made right with God, even though we are guilty of many sins. ¹⁷For the sin of this one man, Adam, caused death to rule over many. But even greater is God's wonderful grace and his gift of ^grighteousness, for all who receive it will live in triumph over sin and death through this one man, Jesus Christ.

¹⁸Yes, Adam's one sin brings condemnation for everyone, but Christ's one act of righteousness brings a ^hright relationship

The grace of God is theological bedrock for Paul. He never tries to prove that God is gracious, but he assumes it as a fact when presenting the Good News to the Romans (see 3:24; 4:4-5, 16; 5:2, 15-21; 6:14-15; 11:5-6). Paul rules out any idea that we merit our salvation, because God acts by his grace (4:4-5). Our good works do not give us right standing with God—if they did, God would be obliged to reward us for our efforts, just as a worker earns a wage. Instead, he gives salvation as a gift to those he has chosen (11:5-6). Grace is so important to the Christian experience that Paul can refer simply to our “standing in” grace (cp. 5:2) and to our living under the power of grace (6:14-15). Grace now rules over us in the new age of redemption (5:20-21).

The apostle John makes the same point: “The law was given through Moses, but God’s unfailing love [grace] and faithfulness came through Jesus Christ” (John 1:17). Neither John nor Paul meant that God’s grace was not active in the OT, because God has always dealt graciously with his people. But the overwhelming power of God’s grace is displayed for us in and through Jesus Christ.

5:10 saved through the life of his Son: Believers already share in the new life that Christ provided through his resurrection (6:11). Through this vital connection with Christ, believers will also be spared from God’s wrath in the last day (see also Col 3:4).

5:12 Adam is both the name of the original man, Adam, and a Hebrew word that means “human.” Paul emphasizes the solidarity of Adam with the human race. • sin entered the world: The significance that Paul ascribes to this act, and the parallel that he draws between Adam’s sin and Christ’s act of obedience on the cross, makes clear that Paul views Adam and his sin in the Garden of Eden as historical fact. • everyone sinned: Death is universal because sin is universal. It is not clear when or how everyone sinned, but Paul later attributes the condemnation of all people to the sin of Adam, their representative (5:18). • Jewish tradition is divided on the relationship between Adam’s sin and the sin and death of human beings generally. Some texts emphasize a solidarity between Adam and all other people, as in “when Adam sinned a death was decreed against those who were to be born” (2 Baruch 23:4). Other texts insist that people die because of their own sin: “Adam is, therefore, not the cause, except only for himself, but each of us had become our own Adam” (2 Baruch 54:19).

5:13-14 Paul continues his explanation of “everyone sinned” (5:12) by stating that people who died between the times of Adam and Moses were not subject to specific commandments from God. Therefore, their condemnation was not only because of their own sin. It was because of their union with Adam, who sinned by violating an explicit commandment of God.

5:15 Paul uses the word many in contrast with one. Many does not always mean all, but it can include all people if the context suggests it. Clearly, the many who suffer death because of Adam includes everyone (see 5:12), but Paul makes it clear elsewhere that the many who receive the gift of forgiveness through Jesus Christ, sadly, does not include everyone (see 11:1-5).

5:17 Both Adam and Jesus Christ committed a single act whose influence extends to all the people that they represent. Adam represents all people. People must receive the gift of righteousness to be represented by Christ.

5:18 Christ’s one act of righteousness refers to his death on the cross, a righteous act because Christ chose to die in obedience to the Father’s will (see John 10:18). • new life for everyone: Paul is not teaching that all people will experience the new life that Christ won through his death on the cross. New life is available to everyone through Christ, but not everyone receives it.

with God and new life for everyone. ¹⁹Because one person disobeyed God, many became sinners. But because one other person obeyed God, many will be made righteous.

²⁰God's law was given so that all people could see how sinful they were. But as people sinned more and more, God's wonderful grace became more abundant. ²¹So just as sin ruled over all people and brought them to death, now God's wonderful ^hgrace rules instead, giving us ^rright standing with God and resulting in eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Freedom from Bondage to Sin (6:1-23)
"Dead to Sin" through Union with Christ

6 Well then, should we keep on ^sinning so that God can show us more and more of his wonderful ^hgrace? ²Of course not! Since we have died to sin, how can we continue to live in it? ³Or have you forgotten that when we were ^ajoined with Christ Jesus in baptism, we ^ajoined him in his death? ⁴For we died and were buried with Christ by baptism. And just as Christ was raised from the dead by the glorious power of the Father, now we also may live new lives.

⁵Since we have been united with him in his death, we will also be raised to life as he was. ⁶We know that our old sinful selves were crucified with Christ so that sin might lose its power in our lives. We are no longer slaves to sin. ⁷For when we died with Christ we were set free from the power of sin. ⁸And since we died with Christ, we know we will also live with him. ⁹We are sure of this because Christ was raised from the dead, and he will never die again. Death no longer has any power over him. ¹⁰When he died, he died once to break the power of sin. But now that he lives, he lives for the glory of God. ¹¹So you also should consider yourselves to be dead to the power of sin and alive to God through Christ Jesus.

¹²Do not let sin control the way you live; do not give in to sinful desires. ¹³Do not let any part of your body become an instrument of evil to serve sin. Instead, give yourselves completely to God, for you were dead, but now you have new life. So use your whole body as an instrument to do what is right for the glory of God. ¹⁴Sin is no longer your master, for you no longer live under the requirements of the law. Instead, you live under the freedom of God's grace.

Freed from Sin's Power to Serve Righteousness

¹⁵Well then, since God's grace has set us free from the law, does that mean we can go on sinning? Of course not! ¹⁶Don't you realize that you become the slave of whatever

5:20 Many Jews believed that the giving of the law to Israel reversed or mitigated the negative effects of Adam's sin, but Paul says that God's law magnified and illuminated their sins.

6:1 Well then: Because Paul has just proclaimed that God multiplies grace where sin increases (5:20), he knows that people will wonder whether this means that sin does not matter in the Christian life.

6:2 we have died to sin: As Paul makes clear in 6:3-10, our new relationship to sin is possible because of our vital connection with the death of Jesus. Just as dying means entrance into an entirely new state of being, our relationship with sin is now different because of Christ's death. To be "dead to sin" does not mean to be entirely insensitive to sin and temptation—believers are still involved in a battle with sin (6:12-14). However, Christians no longer have to live as helpless slaves to sin; they can choose not to sin (6:6, 14, 16-22).

6:3 Baptism is the rite of initiation into the Christian faith (see "Baptism" at Acts 2:38, 41, p. 1828). It sometimes symbolizes the entire conversion experience, so Paul refers to baptism as the means through which believers are joined to Christ in his death and resurrection (see also 6:4). However, baptism has no value apart from faith.

6:4 we died and were buried with Christ: The believer's power over sin and the ability to lead a new life stem from identification with Christ's death, burial, and resurrection (see 6:5, 8). From God's perspective, Jesus' death to sin (see 6:10) is ours as well. His rising to new life means that we also begin to lead a new life, and in the future our bodies will also be raised.

6:6 our old sinful selves: Our "old selves" are not a nature that we possess or just one part of who we are; it reflects who we were in Adam. All human beings were born "in Adam." As heirs of the sin and death that he introduced into the world (5:12), we were slaves to the power of sin. But as people who are now in Christ, we have gone through crucifixion with him (see also Gal 2:20). When he died on the cross, we also died to the dominating power of sin that ruled in our former selves.

6:8 We will also live with him refers to bodily resurrection with Christ (see 6:5). While believers are already raised with Christ spiritually (Eph 2:5-6; Col 2:13), we will also be raised bodily with him at the time of his coming in glory (2 Cor 4:14; Phil 3:21; 1 Thes 4:17; 2 Tim 2:11).

6:10 he died once to break the power of sin: Because we died with Jesus (6:4-5), we have also died to sin (6:2). Jesus was never under sin's power in the way that we are, because he had no sin nature from Adam and he never succumbed to temptation (2 Cor 5:21; Heb 4:15). However, when he became human, he entered the arena where sin holds sway, and he was truly vulnerable to sin.

6:12 Do not let sin control the way you live: Or Do not let sin reign in your body, which is subject to death.

6:14 you no longer live under the requirements of the law: With the Messiah's coming, the era governed by the law of Moses came to an end (see Gal 3:19-25). • you live under the freedom of God's grace: God's dealings with his people have always been characterized by grace, but grace dominates the new era in which Christians live in Christ. Cp. John 1:17.

6:15 set us free from the law: The law of Moses was the governing power of the old covenant era. Believers now live under the governing power of Christ himself.

you choose to obey? You can be a slave to sin, which leads to death, or you can choose to obey God, which leads to righteous living. ¹⁷Thank God! Once you were slaves of sin, but now you wholeheartedly obey this teaching we have given you. ¹⁸Now you are free from your slavery to sin, and you have become slaves to righteous living.

¹⁹Because of the weakness of your human nature, I am using the illustration of slavery to help you understand all this. Previously, you let yourselves be slaves to impurity and lawlessness, which led ever deeper into sin. Now you must give yourselves to be slaves to righteous living so that you will become ^hholy.

²⁰When you were ^εslaves to sin, you were free from the obligation to do right. ²¹And what was the result? You are now ashamed of the things you used to do, things that end in eternal doom. ²²But now you are free from the power of sin and have become slaves of God. Now you do those things that lead to ^hholiness and result in eternal life. ²³For the wages of sin is death, but the free gift of God is eternal life through Christ Jesus our Lord.

Freedom from Bondage to the Law (7:1-25)
Released from the Law, Joined to Christ

7 Now, dear brothers and sisters—who are familiar with the law—don't you know that the law applies only while a person is living? ²For example, when a woman marries, the law binds her to her husband as long as he is alive. But if he dies, the laws of marriage no longer apply to her. ³So while her husband is alive, she would be committing adultery if she married another man. But if her husband dies, she is free from that Jews in Paul's day perceived a contrast between the "present evil age" and a "glorious age to come." Throughout Rom 5–8, Paul uses these contrasting realms to conceptualize our experience of salvation. The old realm is ruled by death (5:12-21), sin (ch 6), the law (ch 7), and sinful nature (8:1-11). The new realm is characterized by life (ch 5), righteous living (ch 6), grace (ch 6), and the Holy Spirit (ch 8). People's destinies are controlled by the realm to which they belong.

Each realm is headed by a man who represents its constituents. The old realm of sin and death is headed by Adam, the first man, while the new realm of forgiveness and life is headed by Christ. By nature, all human beings are in the old realm of sin and death and are represented by Adam, the first man—whose sin and death control the destiny of all people (5:12, 18-19). Those who put their faith in God through Christ are transferred by faith into the new realm of life. God appointed Jesus Christ as a "second Adam" (see 5:14). By obeying God and fulfilling God's will, Jesus won a decisive victory over the realm of sin that Adam had inaugurated (5:18-19). By receiving God's gift of grace (5:17), people accept Jesus as their head and look forward to eternal life.

Those who are in the new realm are identified with Christ and enjoy the benefits of union with him. They have "died with Christ," they have been "buried with Christ," and their present new life with Christ is an anticipation of the day when they will "live with him" forever (6:3-10).

6:16 righteous living (Greek dikaio-sunē, "righteousness"): In the first part of Romans, Paul uses this Greek word in a judicial sense, referring (1) to the activity of God to set people in a right relationship with himself or (2) to the righteous standing that believers enjoy as a result of Christ's work (see, e.g., 1:17; 3:21-22; 4:3, 5). Here, Paul uses the same word as it is often used in the OT, meaning the right behavior that God demands from his people.

6:19 Paul uses the Greek word sarx (human nature, or flesh) to refer to the frailty and proneness to sin that characterizes humans. Paul uses the illustration of slavery to show the relationship of the human nature to sin.

6:20 free from the obligation to do right (literally free from righteousness): Paul means either that unbelievers feel no obligation to obey God or that they are unable to do so. But the freedom that they boast of actually makes them slaves to sin.

6:21 eternal doom (literally death): Throughout chs 5–8, Paul uses death to describe the eternal consequences of sin (5:12, 14, 15, 17, 21; 6:16, 23; 7:5, 9-10, 13, 24; 8:2, 6, 13). The language goes back to God's warning to Adam and Eve (Gen 2:17). This death is not primarily physical death; it denotes separation from the fellowship of God that, if not reversed through faith in Christ, will last forever.

7:1 brothers and sisters: Literally brothers; also in 7:4. See note on 1:13. • Both Jewish Christians and many of the Gentile Christians were familiar with the law. Jews were taught the law of Moses from birth. Many of the Gentiles in the church at Rome had been God-fearers, Gentiles who were interested in Judaism and attended the synagogue regularly. • the law applies only while a person is living: Paul may be paraphrasing a rabbinic saying: "If a person is dead, he is free from the Torah and the fulfilling of the commandments" (Babylonian Shabbat 30a; baraita Shabbat 151).

7:2-3 These verses are not an allegory, in which every element of the story has a theological counterpart. Paul simply cites an illustration to make two basic points: Death can release a person from obligation to the law, and freedom from one relationship can allow a person to establish a new one. Paul applies the illustration in 7:4.

law and does not commit adultery when she remarries.

⁴So, my dear brothers and sisters, this is the point: You died to the power of the law when you died with Christ. And now you are united with the one who was raised from the dead. As a result, we can produce a harvest of good deeds for God. ⁵When we were controlled by our old nature, sinful desires were at work within us, and the law aroused these evil desires that produced a harvest of sinful deeds, resulting in death. ⁶But now we have been released from the law, for we died to it and are no longer captive to its power. Now we can serve God, not in the old way of obeying the letter of the law, but in the new way of living in the Spirit.

The History and Experience of Jews under the Law

⁷Well then, am I suggesting that the ^alaw of God is sinful? Of course not! In fact, it was the ^alaw that showed me my sin. I would never have known that coveting is wrong if the ^alaw had not said, "You must not covet." ⁸But ^asin used this command to arouse all kinds of covetous desires within me! If there were no law, ^asin would not have that power. ⁹At one time I lived without understanding the law. But when I learned the command not to covet, for instance, the power of sin came to life, ¹⁰and I died. So I discovered that the law's commands, which were supposed to bring life, brought spiritual death instead. ¹¹Sin took advantage of those commands and deceived me; it used the commands to kill me. ¹²But still, the ^alaw itself is holy, and its commands are holy and right and good.

¹³But how can that be? Did the law, which is good, cause my death? Of course not! Sin used what was good to bring about my condemnation to death. So we can see how terrible sin really is. It uses God's good commands for its own evil purposes.

¹⁴So the trouble is not with the law, for it is spiritual and good. The trouble is with me, for I am all too human, a slave to sin. ¹⁵I don't really understand myself, for I want to do what is right, but I don't do it. Instead, I do what I hate. ¹⁶But if I know that what I am doing is wrong, this shows that I agree that the law is good. ¹⁷So I am not the one doing wrong; it is sin living in me that does it.

¹⁸And I know that nothing good lives in me, that is, in my sinful nature. I want to do what is right, but I can't. ¹⁹I want to do what is good, but I don't. I don't want to do what is wrong, but I do it anyway. ²⁰But if I

7:4 Christians have died to the power of the law (literally died to the law) and so are no longer bound to it. Paul often refers to the law of Moses as representing the old regime of sin and death, but through union with Christ in his death, believers are set free.

7:5 When we were controlled by our old nature (literally When we were in the flesh): Although "flesh" can refer to the human body in a neutral sense (see 8:3, which speaks of Christ coming "in the flesh"), Paul more often uses the word negatively, to denote human existence apart from God. To be "in the flesh" is to be dominated by sin and its hostility to God. • the law aroused these evil desires: The law of God is a good thing in itself (see 7:12), but it arouses sinful tendencies by provoking the rebellion that is in people's hearts. When we are in rebellion against God, his commands spark in us a desire to do the exact opposite of what he commands.

7:6 the letter of the law (literally the letter): Paul uses the word letter to refer to the law, which was engraved on tablets of stone and consisted of individual letters (see 2:29; 2 Cor 3:5-7).

7:7-25 Well then (see note on 6:1): Paul has just said some rather negative things about the law, and he now explains how God's law is good in order to guard against any notion that it is evil in itself.

7:7 "You must not covet": See Exod 20:17; Deut 5:21.

7:8 sin used this command (literally sin took an opportunity through this command): The word opportunity is a military term for a position seized in enemy territory that becomes a base of operations (see 7:11). By expressing God's demands, the commandments stimulate rebellion in sinful human beings. The commandments of God become an occasion for sin to accomplish its deadly purposes. • sin would not have that power: The law, by clearly expressing God's will, makes people more accountable than they would be without it. The law of Moses did not solve Israel's sin problem but exposed and exacerbated it. This is always the effect that God's law, by itself, has on sinful human beings.

7:9 At one time I lived without understanding the law: Paul might be referring to his early childhood, before he came to understand the full demands of the law. • But when I learned the command: Paul's experience with the law as he grew to maturity exemplifies every person's experience with it. With the law, we have greater accountability to God, which brings the power of sin to life, and the result is greater judgment (7:10; see 4:15; 5:14, 20).

7:10 which were supposed to bring life: The OT promised a blessed and secure life to those who obeyed the law (e.g., Lev 18:5, quoted in Rom 10:5). However, human beings inherit from Adam a strong tendency to sin. Therefore, when God's commands come to us, we do not naturally obey them, but resist and disobey them. Instead of bringing life, the law only confirms and exposes our lost and helpless condition. We need a change of heart that the law cannot provide.

7:11 Sin . . . deceived me: The language is reminiscent of Gen 3:13—Paul might be thinking of the Fall.

7:17 I am not the one doing wrong: Paul is not evading responsibility for his sin (see also 7:20). Rather, he is saying that because he genuinely wants to do what the law commands, some other factor must be causing him to do just the opposite. That factor is sin living in me. Paul experiences a divide between his will and his actions.

7:18 my sinful nature (literally my flesh; also in 7:25): This phrase could refer to Paul's former state as an unredeemed person or to a part of Paul that remains tied to the world and resists the will of God. See note on 6:19.

do what I don't want to do, I am not really the one doing wrong; it is sin living in me that does it.

²¹I have discovered this principle of life—that when I want to do what is right, I inevitably do what is wrong. ²²I love God's law with all my heart. ²³But there is another power within me that is at war with my mind. This power makes me a slave to the sin that is still within me. ²⁴Oh, what a miserable person I am! Who will free me from this life that is dominated by sin and death? ²⁵Thank God! The answer is in Jesus Christ our Lord. So you see how it is: In my mind I really want to obey God's law, but because of my sinful nature I am a slave to sin.

The law was central to God's old covenant with the people of Israel, and many Jews in Paul's day still saw it as critical to how God's people lived. Therefore, in Romans, Paul frequently deals with questions about the law. The pinnacle of his treatment comes in Rom 7, where Paul powerfully argues that the law of Moses, rather than having a positive effect on people's lives, stimulated sin and brought death (7:5).

Paul wants us to realize that the law is not at fault. God's law is good and holy (7:12), but it is powerless to change the human heart. Whether we conclude that Paul (in 7:14-25) is describing the experience of an unbeliever, a mature believer, or an immature believer, the point remains that human sin cannot be overcome by the law. God's law is given to people who, because of their connection with Adam, are already locked under sin's power. They may want to do what God tells them, but they find that they cannot (7:15-20). Deliverance can come only through a new and radical experience of God's power and grace in Jesus Christ (7:25). Through God's Spirit, Jesus rescues us "from the power of sin that leads to death" (8:2).

If God's good and holy law cannot rescue us from our predicament and save us, how much less helpful are all human laws that people rely on for religious or spiritual well-being. Whether those laws come from a religious figure, a tradition we have inherited, or a church we attend, none of them can change the human soul. They can tell us what to do, but they cannot empower us to do it. God's law can provide guidelines in the new life God has given us by grace, but it can never substitute for the power of God's grace, made available through the work of Christ.

7:21 principle of life (literally law): Paul is referring to a regular occurrence, such as when we speak of the "law of gravity." The struggle between wanting to do what is right and instead doing what is wrong reveals a regular pattern operating in the human sphere.

7:22 with all my heart (literally in my inner person): The Greeks used this phrase to denote the spiritual or immortal side of human beings (cp. 2 Cor 4:16; Eph 3:16).

7:23 another power. . . . This power (literally another law. . . . This law): Paul plays on the word law in these verses. Opposed to God's law (7:22) is another law, a ruling power that prevents Paul from submitting to God's law even though he fully agrees with it.

7:24 this life that is dominated by sin and death (literally this body of death): Sin is so invasive that it affects the whole person, particularly our interactions in the physical world.

8:1 So now there is no condemnation: Paul concludes from the argument of chs 5-7 that neither sin (ch 6) nor the law (ch 7) can keep believers from having eternal life (ch 5). Paul can triumphantly proclaim that those who belong to Christ Jesus need not fear that they will be condemned for their sins.

8:2 you belong . . . freed you: Some manuscripts read I belong . . . freed me. A scribe might have changed an original you into I/me at some point. • the power (literally the law) of the life-giving Spirit: This reference to power or law could refer to the law of Moses, which the Spirit can use to produce life. But because Paul does not portray the law as a life-giving entity, "law" here, as in 7:23, probably means principle or power. The Holy Spirit is a power that frees the believer from the power (literally the law) of sin that leads to death.

8:3 our sinful nature: Literally our flesh; similarly in 8:4-9, 12. See note on 6:19. • in a body like the bodies we sinners have: Jesus identified with sinful people so that he could be their representative and redeem them. Paul also implies that Jesus' incarnate nature was not exactly like ours; born of a virgin through the power of the Holy Spirit, Jesus did not inherit a sinful nature from Adam. • a sacrifice for our sins: In the Greek OT, this phrase frequently describes a sin offering, and three of the eight NT occurrences also have this meaning (Heb 10:6, 8; 13:11). Christ was the sin offering that brought forgiveness and turned away God's wrath. God condemned sin in Christ, our substitute, so that we could escape condemnation.

own Son in a body like the bodies we sinners have. And in that body God declared an end to sin's control over us by giving his Son as a sacrifice for our sins. ⁴He did this so that the just requirement of the law would be fully satisfied for us, who no longer follow our sinful nature but instead follow the Spirit.

⁵Those who are dominated by the sinful nature think about sinful things, but those who are controlled by the Holy Spirit think about things that please the Spirit. ⁶So letting your sinful nature control your mind leads to death. But letting the Spirit control your mind leads to life and ⁶peace. ⁷For the sinful nature is always hostile to God. It never did obey God's laws, and it never will. ⁸That's why those who are still under the control of their sinful nature can never please God.

⁹But you are not controlled by your sinful nature. You are controlled by the Spirit if you have the Spirit of God living in you. (And remember that those who do not have the Spirit of Christ living in them do not belong to him at all.) ¹⁰And Christ lives within you, so even though your body will die because of sin, the ¹⁰Spirit gives you life because you have been made ¹⁰right with God.

¹¹The Spirit of God, who raised Jesus from the dead, lives in you. And just as God raised Christ Jesus from the dead, he will ¹¹give life to your mortal bodies by this same Spirit living within you.

¹²Therefore, dear brothers and sisters, you have no obligation to do what your sinful nature urges you to do. ¹³For if you live by its dictates, you will die. But if through the power of the ¹³Spirit you put to death the deeds of your sinful nature, you will live.

The Spirit of Adoption

¹⁴For all who are led by the Spirit of God are children of God.

¹⁵So you have not received a spirit that makes you fearful slaves. Instead, you received God's Spirit when he ¹⁵adopted you as his own children. Now we call him, "Abba, Father." ¹⁶For his Spirit joins with our spirit to affirm that we are God's children. ¹⁷And since we are his children, we are his heirs. In fact, together with Christ we are ¹⁷heirs of God's glory. But if we are to share his glory, we must also share his suffering.

The Spirit of Glory

¹⁸Yet what we suffer now is nothing compared to the glory he will reveal to us later.

8:4 just requirement of the law . . . fully satisfied for (Greek en, "in") us: The Greek preposition en might indicate that the law is fulfilled in us because of our connection with Jesus Christ, who perfectly fulfilled the law for us. It could also mean that by setting us free from sin's power, Jesus Christ enables us to please God and fulfill the true intention of the law. • As in the OT (see Gen 6:3, 12; Ps 78:39; Isa 40:6), sinful nature refers to human weakness and bondage to sin (also in 8:5-9, 12-13). Paul uses the phrase to describe the conflict between the ingrained human tendency to sin and the Holy Spirit.

8:5 think about sinful things: This phrase describes the general nature of a person's will, not just the mental process of thought (see also 12:3; 15:5; Phil 2:2, 5).

8:6 Peace here does not refer merely to peace of mind; instead, as opposed to death, it implies an objective state of peace with God (see note on 5:1).

8:9 You are controlled by the Spirit: In contrast to unbelievers, who continue to live under the domination of Adam's sinful nature, the Holy Spirit directs the lives of believers. The Spirit does not take away human initiative or make it impossible for believers to sin. However, as the most powerful force in believers' lives, the Spirit makes it possible for them to resist the continuing power of sin.

8:10 the Spirit gives you life (or your spirit is alive): The Spirit opposes sin (which leads to physical death) and brings resurrection from the dead.

8:11 by this same Spirit: The Holy Spirit is the agent of the resurrection of our bodies. Some manuscripts read "because of the same Spirit," which would mean that the Spirit is the guarantee that our bodies will be raised (cp. Eph 1:14).

8:12 brothers and sisters: Literally brothers; also in 8:29. See note on 1:13.

8:13 deeds of your sinful nature: Literally deeds of the body. • you will die: Death is the consequence of sin. Those who consistently yield to sin will suffer spiritual death (eternal condemnation). The presence of the Holy Spirit in the lives of believers makes it possible for them to turn away from sin. The result is eternal life (you will live).

8:14 children (literally sons) of God: In the OT, this phrase referred to Israel, the people God called to be his own (see especially Exod 4:22; Jer 3:19; 31:9; Hos 11:1). Paul uses it to remind believers that they enjoy an intimate relationship with God and that they will inherit many of the promises and blessings given to Israel. Christians are no longer minors or slaves, but mature children with full rights (see Gal 4:1-7).

8:15 you received God's Spirit when he adopted you as his own children (literally you received a spirit of sonship): According to Greco-Roman customs of adoption, a man had the right to adopt a son and to confer on that child all the legal rights and privileges that would be given to a natural child. This practice extended even to the imperial family. The Roman emperor Julius Caesar adopted Octavian as his heir; Octavian, using the name Augustus, later ruled the Roman empire. Paul's concept of adoption is also rooted in the OT and Judaism (Exod 4:22; Deut 1:31; Hos 11:1; see also Rom 9:4; Gal 4:5; Eph 1:5). • Abba is an Aramaic term for "father." This word was used in an intimate family context ("Daddy"). Jesus used this word to address God (Mark 14:36); all those who become children of God through Jesus have the privilege of addressing God in the same way.

8:17 Jesus is heir to all of God's promises (Mark 12:1-12; Gal 3:18-19; Heb 1:2), and as those who belong to Jesus, we share with him in that glorious inheritance. However, just as it was for Jesus, our path to glory is also marked by suffering. We experience the difficulties that come from striving to live righteously in a world dominated by sin (2 Cor 1:5; Phil 1:29; 3:10).

¹⁹For all creation is waiting eagerly for that future day when God will reveal who his children really are. ²⁰Against its will, all creation was subjected to God's curse. But with eager hope, ²¹the creation looks forward to the day when it will join God's children in glorious ^afreedom from death and decay. ²²For we know that all creation has been groaning as in the pains of childbirth right up to the present time. ²³And we believers also groan, even though we have the Holy Spirit within us as a foretaste of future glory, for we long for our bodies to be released from sin and suffering. We, too, wait with eager hope for the day when God will give us our full rights as his ^aadopted children, including the ^anew bodies he has promised us. ²⁴We were given this ^ahope when we were ^asaved. (If we already have something, we don't need to ^ahope for it. ²⁵But if we look forward to something we don't yet have, we must wait patiently and confidently.)

²⁶And the Holy Spirit helps us in our weakness. For example, we don't know what God wants us to pray for. But the Holy Spirit prays for us with groanings that cannot be expressed in words. ²⁷And the Father who knows all hearts knows what the Spirit is saying, for the Spirit pleads for us believers in harmony with God's own will. ²⁸And we know that God causes everything to work together for the good of those who love God and are ^bcalled according to his purpose for them. ²⁹For God ^cknew his people in advance, and he ^dchose them to become like his Son, so that his Son would be the ^efirst-born among many brothers and sisters. ³⁰And having ^fchosen them, he called them to come to him. And having called them, he gave them right standing with himself. And having given them right standing, he gave them his glory.

Nothing Can Separate Us from God's Love (8:31-39)

³¹What shall we say about such wonderful things as these? If God is for us, who can ever be against us? ³²Since he did not spare even his own Son but gave him up for us all, won't he also give us everything else? ³³Who dares accuse us whom God has chosen for his own? No one—for God himself has given us right standing with himself. ³⁴Who then will condemn us? No one—for Christ Jesus died for us and was raised to life for us, and he is sitting in the place of honor at God's right hand, pleading for us.

³⁵Can anything ever separate us from ^aChrist's love? Does it mean he no longer loves us if we have trouble or calamity, or are persecuted, or hungry, or destitute, or in danger, or threatened with death? ³⁶(As the Scriptures say, "For your sake we are killed every day; we are being slaughtered like sheep.") ³⁷No, despite all these things, overwhelming victory is ours through Christ, who loved us.

8:19-21 All creation includes animals, plants, and the earth itself. Paul follows OT precedent (see especially Ps 65:12-13; Isa 24:4; Jer 4:28; 12:4) by personifying the created world. • waiting eagerly. . . looks forward: Just as the entire world was harmed by Adam's fall into sin, it will share in the blessings that God has promised his people.

8:19 his children: Literally his sons.

8:22 The pains of childbirth is a metaphor for the longing of creation (see also Matt 24:8; Mark 13:8; John 16:20-22).

8:23 we believers also groan: "Groaning" expresses a frustrated longing for God's deliverance from the difficulties and oppression of this life (see Exod 3:7; Lam 1:22; Ezek 24:17; 2 Cor 5:2). • we have the Holy Spirit within us as a foretaste of future glory (literally we have the first harvest of the Spirit): In the OT, the phrase first harvest or firstfruits often describes the offering of the first and best part of a harvest to God (see Exod 23:19; Lev 2:12; 23:10; cp. 1 Cor 15:20, 23). The Holy Spirit is God's pledge that he will see his work in us through to its conclusion (see Eph 1:14). • wait with eager hope for the day when God will give us our full rights as his adopted children: Literally wait anxiously for sonship. Although we have already been adopted by God as his children, the full rights of that adoption—our inheritance (see 8:17)—are not yet ours. In this life, Christians live in tension between the "already" of redemption and the "not yet" of the glory to be revealed.

8:24 we don't need to hope for it: Some manuscripts read we don't need to wait for it.

8:26 groanings that cannot be expressed in words: This might refer to speech that does not take the form of human language, such as when believers, uncertain of what to pray, utter meaningless sounds in prayer. The groanings in question are the Spirit's, not ours. When we do not know how to pray, the Spirit is interceding for us before God.

8:27 for us believers: Literally for God's holy people.

8:28 And we know that God causes everything to work together: Some manuscripts read And we know that everything works together.

8:29 would be the firstborn: Or would be supreme.

8:30 gave them his glory: Elsewhere in this passage, the glory Christians will experience is consistently in the future (8:18, 21, 23). The past tense here refers to God's past decision to glorify us in the future. We have not yet entered into our inheritance, but the Father has irrevocably determined to give us his glory.

8:31 such wonderful things: Paul is referring to everything he has taught in chs 5-8 about the blessings and sense of assurance that believers receive from their relationship with God.

8:32 did not spare even his own Son: Behind this language is the story about Abraham's willingness to offer his only son, Isaac (Gen 22:12, 16). Isaac, however, was not actually sacrificed. God's not sparing his only Son went the full course: He handed him over to the shameful and painful death of crucifixion.

8:36 This quotation is from Ps 44:22.

³⁸And I am convinced that nothing can ever separate us from God's love. Neither death nor life, neither angels nor demons, neither our fears for today nor our worries about tomorrow—not even the powers of hell can separate us from God's love. ³⁹No power in the sky above or in the earth below—indeed, nothing in all creation will ever be able to separate us from the ^hlove of God that is revealed in Christ Jesus our Lord.

4. THE DEFENSE OF THE GOSPEL: THE PROBLEM OF ISRAEL (9:1–11:36)

Introduction: The Tension between God's Promises and Israel's Plight (9:1-5)

9 With Christ as my witness, I speak with utter truthfulness. My conscience and the Holy Spirit confirm it. ²My heart is filled with bitter sorrow and unending grief ³for my people, my Jewish brothers and sisters. I would be willing to be forever cursed—cut off from Christ!—if that would save them. ⁴They are the people of Israel, chosen to be God's ^hadopted children. God revealed his glory to them. He made covenants with them and gave them his law. He gave them the privilege of worshiping him and receiving his wonderful promises. ⁵Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob are their ancestors, and Christ himself was an Israelite as far as his human nature is concerned. And he is God, the one who rules over everything and is worthy of eternal praise! Amen.

Defining the Promise (Part 1): God's Sovereign Election (9:6-29) The Israel within Israel

⁶Well then, has God failed to fulfill his promise to Israel? No, for not all who are born into the nation of Israel are truly members of God's people! ⁷Being descendants of Abraham doesn't make them truly Abraham's children. For the Scriptures say, "Isaac is the son through whom your descendants will be counted," though Abraham had other children, too. ⁸This means that Abraham's physical descendants are not necessarily children of God. Only the children of the promise are considered to be Abraham's children. ⁹For God had promised, "I will return about this time next year, and Sarah will have a son."

¹⁰This son was our ancestor Isaac. When he married Rebekah, she gave birth to twins. ¹¹But before they were born, before they had done anything good or bad, she received a message from God. (This message shows that God chooses people according

9:1–11:36 In this section, Paul takes up the problem raised by the unbelief of so many Jews. If God had promised salvation to Israel yet so few Jews were being saved, how could Jesus truly be the fulfillment of God's plan (9:1-5)? In his response to this objection, Paul cites the OT as evidence that God had always intended to save only a remnant of Israel (9:6-29), and he faults the Jews for refusing to embrace Christ (9:30–10:21). Paul then shows that God has not discarded Israel from his plan of salvation. Many Jews have already believed in Christ (11:1-10), and many more will believe in the future (11:12-26).

9:2-3 Paul does not explicitly say why he has such bitter sorrow for his Jewish brothers and sisters. Yet his willingness to become cursed on their behalf if that would save them makes clear that the failure of most Jews to respond to Jesus and be saved stimulated his agony (see also 10:1).

9:3 my Jewish brothers and sisters: Literally my brothers. Cp. note on 1:13. • I would be willing to be forever cursed (Greek anathema): Anathema is used in the Greek OT to translate a Hebrew expression that means "set apart for God," which usually has the negative sense of something destined to be destroyed as an offering to God (see Lev 27:28-29; Josh 6:17-18; 7:1, 11-13; 22:20; 1 Sam 15:3; 1 Chr 2:7). Paul knows that he cannot, in fact, be cut off from Christ. Paul is echoing the offer of Moses, who pled with God to kill him but to spare the people (Exod 32:30-32).

9:4 Up to this point in Romans, Paul has called the Jewish people Jews. His shift to people of Israel, here and throughout most of chs 9–11, is significant. Jew connotes national identity, but Israel emphasizes the covenant relationship of the people with God. • chosen to be God's adopted children (literally chosen for sonship): The OT called Israel God's son or child to emphasize that God had selected Israel to be his own people (e.g., Exod 4:22; Jer 3:19; 31:9; Hos 11:1). Israel's adopted status meant that they received God's blessing and promises, not that they were necessarily saved. • covenants: The OT includes several covenants between God and the people of Israel: one with Abraham (Gen 17), one with the nation through Moses at Mount Sinai (Exod 19–24), and one with David (2 Sam 7:8-16; 23:5). See also "God's Covenant Relationships" at Gen 12:1-9, p. 44.

9:5 Christ came from the people of Israel, and God first made his promises of salvation to them. • And he is God, the one who rules over everything and is worthy of eternal praise! Amen. Or May God, the one who rules over everything, be praised forever. Amen.

9:6 are truly members of God's people (literally are Israel): "Israel" can refer to the people of Israel in a biological sense, i.e., everyone descended from Jacob. But in the latter part of the OT and in Judaism, the idea of a "righteous remnant" within Israel developed (see "The Remnant" at Isa 11:10-16, p. 1126). On at least one occasion in the NT, Israel refers to everyone, Jew and Gentile, who belongs to God in a spiritual sense (Gal 6:16). Paul is stating that there is now an "Israel within Israel," a community consisting of both Jews and Gentiles who truly believe (cp. 11:16-17; Gal 6:16).

9:7 This quotation is from Gen 21:12, which God spoke to Abraham when he was reluctant to follow Sarah's advice to banish his son Ishmael, who was born to the slave woman Hagar. God assured Abraham that Sarah's child, Isaac, was the son through whom God's promises would be fulfilled.

9:9 This quotation is from Gen 18:10, 14.

9:10-11 she gave birth to twins: Literally she conceived children through this one man. No human circumstances differentiated Isaac's sons, Jacob and Esau. Not only were they born to the same mother, but they were also con-

Objections Answered: The Freedom and Purpose of God

¹⁴Are we saying, then, that God was unfair? Of course not! ¹⁵For God said to Moses,

"I will show mercy to anyone I choose, and I will show compassion to anyone I choose."

¹⁶So it is God who decides to show mercy. We can neither choose it nor work for it.

¹⁷For the Scriptures say that God told Pharaoh, "I have appointed you for the very purpose of displaying my power in you and to spread my fame throughout the earth."

¹⁸So you see, God chooses to show mercy to some, and he chooses to harden the hearts of others so they refuse to listen.

¹⁹Well then, you might say, "Why does God blame people for not responding? Haven't they simply done what he makes them do?"

²⁰No, don't say that. Who are you, a mere human being, to argue with God? Should the thing that was created say to the one who created it, "Why have you made me like this?" ²¹When a potter makes jars out of clay, doesn't he have a right to use the same lump of clay to make one jar for decoration and another to throw garbage into? ²²In the same way, even though God has the right to show his anger and his power, he is very patient with those on whom his anger falls, who are destined for destruction. ²³He does this to make the riches of his glory shine even brighter on those to whom he shows mercy, who were prepared in advance for glory.

God's Calling of a New People: Israel and the Gentiles

²⁴And we are among those whom he selected, both from the Jews and from the Gentiles.

²⁵Concerning the Gentiles, God says in the prophecy of Hosea,

We human beings always want to think that we are in charge. We think that we are the "captains of our souls"¹ and that by our decisions and actions we can determine what will happen. However, Scripture confronts us with quite a different scenario. Although human decisions and actions are significant, the will of God is vastly more important.

In Rom 9, Paul shows that God determines the course of salvation. Paul constantly explains the unexpected development of salvation history by appealing to what God has said and done. Human decisions alone cannot explain the situation, and God has said that he will show mercy to anyone he chooses (9:15). While theologians will continue to debate the role of God's action and the role of human decision in salvation, God's sovereignty stands out clearly.

The contemporary world has set God to the side and ignores the divine influence on the course of human affairs. But God's decisions really do direct the world as well as the personal histories of those who trust him. We can confidently affirm that "God causes everything to work together for the good of those who love God and are called according to his purpose for them" (8:28).

ceived at the same time. Instead, Paul argues, the difference between them was of God's choosing.

9:12 "Your older son will serve your younger son": God spoke these words (Gen 25:23) to Rebekah before the twins were born. As the older of the twins, Esau was Isaac's natural heir. But Esau sold his birthright to Jacob and ceded his position to his brother in fulfillment of God's promise.

9:13 "I loved Jacob, but I rejected (literally hated) Esau": Paul quotes Mal 1:2-3, where Jacob, whose other name is Israel (Gen 32:28), stands for the nation of Israel, and Esau stands for Edom. Here, Paul is referring to them as individuals. Just as love can sometimes express a choice, so hate can express rejection. The story of Jacob and Esau illustrates how the sovereign God chooses his own people.

9:14-16 God's choice is not unfair because he owes nothing to his sinful creatures (see note on 4:4-5).

9:15 This quotation from Exod 33:19 focuses on God's nature: God is free from obligation or constraint in bestowing mercy on people.

9:17 God told Pharaoh: Paul quotes Exod 9:16 (Greek version). At God's direction, Moses had asked Pharaoh to let the people of Israel leave Egypt for their own land. When Pharaoh stubbornly refused, God displayed miracle after miracle to convince Israel, Pharaoh, and the Egyptians of God's power and authority (see Exod 6:7; 7:5; 9:14-16; 14:31).

9:18 he chooses to harden the hearts of others so they refuse to listen: Pharaoh refused to let Israel go because his heart was hardened. God hardened Pharaoh's heart (Exod 9:12), and Pharaoh hardened his own heart (Exod 8:15).

9:20-21 See Isa 29:16; 45:9-10.

9:24-26 God was free to select people from the Jews who would have a true spiritual relationship with him; similarly, he was also free to choose some from the Gentiles to be saved as well. Paul uses the prophecy of Hosea to "Those who were not my people,

I will now call my people.
And I will love those whom I did not love before."

²⁶And,

"Then, at the place where they were told,
'You are not my people,' there they will be called
'children of the living God.'"

²⁷And concerning Israel, Isaiah the prophet cried out,

"Though the people of Israel are as numerous as the sand of the seashore, only a remnant will be saved.

²⁸For the LORD will carry out his sentence upon the earth quickly and with finality."

²⁹And Isaiah said the same thing in another place:

"If the LORD of Heaven's Armies had not spared a few of our children, we would have been wiped out like Sodom, destroyed like Gomorrah."

Understanding Israel's Plight: Christ as the Climax of Salvation History (9:30–10:21)
Israel, the Gentiles, and the Righteousness of God

³⁰What does all this mean? Even though the Gentiles were not trying to follow God's standards, they were made right with God.

And it was by faith that this took place.

³¹But the people of Israel, who tried so hard to get right with God by keeping the law, never succeeded. ³²Why not? Because they were trying to get right with God by keeping the law instead of by trusting in him. They stumbled over the great rock in their path.
³³God warned them of this in the Scriptures
when he said,

"I am placing a stone in Jerusalem that makes people ^kstumble, a rock that makes them fall.
But anyone who trusts in him will never be disgraced."

10 Dear brothers and sisters, the longing of my heart and my prayer to God is for the people of Israel to be saved.
²I know what enthusiasm they have for God, but it is misdirected zeal. ³For they don't understand God's way of making people right with himself. Refusing to accept God's way, they cling to their own way of getting right with God by trying to keep the law.
⁴For Christ has already accomplished the purpose for which the ^alaw was given. As a result, all who believe in him are made right with God.

⁵For Moses writes that the law's way of making a person right with God requires obedience to all of its commands. ⁶But faith's that God would renew his mercy to the to Gentiles as well. • *Those who were sons of the living God. Hos 1:10.

9:27-28 This quotation is from Isa 10:22-23 (Greek version). • only a remnant will be saved: So many Israelites had turned from God that the OT prophets spoke of a true spiritual Israel within the larger nation of Israel (see "The Remnant" at Isa 11:10-16, p. 1126). The remnant would receive salvation, while the rest of the Israelites would suffer condemnation.

9:29 This quotation is from Isa 1:9
(Greek version). • The destruction of the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah (Gen 19) is a poignant illustration of the reality and severity of God's judgment.

9:31 who tried so hard to get right with God by keeping the law (literally who pursued the law of righteousness): Law of righteousness is an idiom that means "righteousness through the law."

9:32-33 by keeping the law: Literally by works. • The great rock in their path is Christ. People either build on him by putting their faith in him, or they stumble over his message that faith, and not human works, is the key to getting right with God.

9:33 This quotation is from Isa 8:14;
28:16 (Greek version). These two texts, along with Ps 118:22, are also quoted together in 1 Pet 2:6-8. The early church likely had a collection of messianic "stone" quotations from the OT that they used to illuminate the significance of Christ (see also Matt 21:42).
• Jerusalem: Greek Zion.

10:1 Dear brothers and sisters: Literally Brothers. See note on 1:13.

10:2 Zeal denotes a passionate and commendable commitment to God and his purposes (see Num 25:6-13). But in Paul's day Jewish zeal was misdirected because it failed to understand that Jesus Christ is the pinnacle of God's plan. (For Paul's own misdirected zeal before his conversion to Christ, see Acts
9:1-2; Gal 1:13-14.)

10:3 God's way of making people right with himself: See 1:17; 3:21-26. Paul uses this phrase to explain Israel's failure in terms basic to the gospel. God manifested his righteousness through the ministry of Christ, but most Jews did not understand it, partly because they were so focused on the law as a way of securing their own righteousness.

10:4 For Christ has already accomplished the purpose for which the law was given (or For Christ is the end of the law, or For Christ is the culmination of the law): The function of the law was to point forward and prepare the way for the Messiah; Jesus' coming does not destroy the law but fulfills all of its requirements, so that the primary requirement for God's people is to believe in him (see 3:31; Matt 5:17-18).

10:5 requires obedience to all of its commands: See Lev 18:5, where these words encouraged the Israelites to obey the law in order to enjoy long life and prosperity in the land that God was giving them (see also Lev 26:3-13; Deut 28:1-14). Paul sees the implication that if people want to be right with God through the law, they can only do so by obeying all of it.

"The message is very close at hand;
it is on your lips and in your heart."

And that message is the very message about faith that we preach:⁹ If you openly declare that Jesus is Lord and believe in your heart that God raised him from the dead, you will be saved.¹⁰ For it is by believing in your heart that you are made right with God, and it is by openly declaring your faith that you are saved.¹¹ As the Scriptures tell us, "Anyone who trusts in him will never be disgraced."¹² Jew and Gentile are the same in this respect. They have the same Lord, who gives generously to all who call on him.¹³ For "Everyone who calls on the name of the LORD will be saved."

Israel's Accountability

¹⁴But how can they call on him to save them unless they believe in him? And how can they believe in him if they have never heard about him? And how can they hear about him unless someone tells them?¹⁵ And how will anyone go and tell them without being sent? That is why the Scriptures say, "How beautiful are the feet of messengers who bring good news!"¹⁶

But not everyone welcomes the Good News, for Isaiah the prophet said, "LORD, who has believed our message?"¹⁷ So faith comes from hearing, that is, hearing the Good News about Christ.¹⁸ But I ask, have the people of Israel actually heard the message? Yes, they have:

"The message has gone throughout the earth, and the words to all the world."

¹⁹But I ask, did the people of Israel really understand? Yes, they did, for even in the time of Moses, God said,

"I will rouse your jealousy through people who are not even a nation.
I will provoke your anger through the foolish Gentiles."

²⁰And later Isaiah spoke boldly for God, saying,

"I was found by people who were not looking for me.
I showed myself to those who were not asking for me."

²¹But regarding Israel, God said,

"All day long I opened my arms to them, but they were disobedient and rebellious."

Summary: Israel, the "Elect," and the "Hardened" (11:1-10)

11 I ask, then, has God rejected his own people, the nation of Israel? Of course not! I myself am an Israelite, a descendant of Abraham and a member of the tribe of Benjamin.

²No, God has not rejected his own people, whom he chose from the very beginning.

10:6-8 Here Paul quotes three phrases from Deut 30:12-14 dealing with the law, and he applies them to the Good News about Christ. We do not need to go up to heaven to find Christ (and thus to be made right with God), because God has already brought him down to earth as a man. Nor do we need to go down to the place of the dead to find Christ, because God has already raised him from the dead. To find Christ, we must simply believe in the message that is close at hand.

10:11 See Isa 28:16 (Greek version).

10:12 and Gentile: Literally and Greek.

10:13 Paul quotes Joel 2:32, where the LORD in Hebrew is Yahweh, the personal name of God (see Exod 3:15). However, as 10:12 makes clear, the Lord in Romans is Jesus Christ. This verse shows that Christians from the time of the apostles have associated Jesus with God.

10:14 It is natural to presume that the pronoun they refers to "all who call on him" from 10:12 or "everyone" from 10:13. While this verse probably does refer to all people, it also continues the accusation against Israel from 10:2-3 (see 10:18). Paul argues that Israel was in a position to know what God was doing through Jesus Christ, so they were culpable for their failure to understand or accept it. Israel was guilty both of failing to understand God's plan in light of Christ (10:3-4) and of focusing so much attention on the law that they missed Christ when he arrived (9:30-32).

10:15 This quotation is from Isa 52:7.

10:16 This quotation is from Isa 53:1.

10:18 Yes, they have: Paul quotes Ps 19:4 to show that the message of Good News was universally available through creation. And by the time Paul wrote Romans, early Christian missionaries had spread the Good News through most of the Roman empire. Most Jews would have had ample opportunity to hear the message.

10:19 rouse your jealousy . . . provoke your anger: This quotation from Deut 32:21 concerns God's punishment of Israel for their idolatry. In Paul's day, Israel remained guilty of idolatry because it put the law in place of God himself. God's punishment involved using the Gentiles, people who are not even a nation, to make Israel jealous and angry (11:12-32 elaborates on this theme).

10:20 This quotation is from Isa 65:1 (Greek version). In Isaiah, the words people who were not looking for me refer to the people of Israel. As in 9:25-26, Paul applies them to the Gentiles to show that God has opened the way for them to be a part of the people of God.

10:21 This quotation is from Isa 65:2 (Greek version).

11:2 chose from the very beginning: Before the people of Israel could do anything to earn their status, God selected them to be his people based

Do you realize what the Scriptures say about this? Elijah the prophet complained to God about the people of Israel and said, ³"Lord, they have killed your prophets and torn down your altars. I am the only one left, and now they are trying to kill me, too."

⁴And do you remember God's reply? He said, "No, I have 7,000 others who have never bowed down to Baal!"

⁵It is the same today, for a few of the people of Israel have remained faithful because of God's grace—his undeserved kindness in choosing them. ⁶And since it is through God's kindness, then it is not by their good works. For in that case, God's grace would not be what it really is—free and undeserved.

⁷So this is the situation: Most of the people of Israel have not found the favor of God they are looking for so earnestly. A few have—the ones God has chosen—but the hearts of the rest were hardened. ⁸As the Scriptures say,

"God has put them into a deep sleep.
To this day he has shut their eyes so they do not see,
and closed their ears so they do not hear."

⁹Likewise, David said,

"Let their bountiful table become a snare,
a trap that makes them think all is well."

Let their blessings cause them to stumble, and let them get what they deserve.
¹⁰Let their eyes go blind so they cannot see,
and let their backs be bent forever."

Defining the Promise (Part 2): The Future of Israel (11:11-32)

God's Purpose in Israel's Rejection

¹¹Did God's people stumble and fall beyond recovery? Of course not! They were disobedient, so God made salvation available to the Gentiles. But he wanted his own people to become jealous and claim it for themselves. ¹²Now if the Gentiles were enriched because the people of Israel turned down God's offer of salvation, think how much greater a blessing the world will share when they finally accept it.

¹³I am saying all this especially for you Gentiles. God has appointed me as the apostle to the Gentiles. I stress this, ¹⁴for I want somehow to make the people of Israel jealous of what you Gentiles have, so I might save some of them. ¹⁵For since their rejection meant that God ⁸offered salvation to the rest of the world, their acceptance will be even more wonderful. It will be life for those who were dead!

on his grace alone. • Elijah the prophet: In 1 Kgs 19:1-18, the apostate King Ahab had slaughtered many of the Lord's prophets, and Ahab's wife Jezebel threatened Elijah with the same fate. Elijah fled to the wilderness, where he bemoaned his fate. God responded with the assurance that many faithful people remained. Paul found the present situation to be somewhat parallel. While many Jews did not believe, and some were even hostile, God was (and is) still working to preserve a believing remnant.

11:3 This quotation is from 1 Kgs 19:10, 14.

11:4 This quotation is from 1 Kgs 19:18.

11:5 for a few of the people of Israel (literally for a remnant): Paul returns to the OT concept of the remnant that he used in 9:27-29. This solid core of godly Israelites represents God's pledge of his continuing faithfulness to his promises and to his people.

11:7-8 the hearts of the rest were hardened: This is God's own work; God has put them into a deep sleep and shut their eyes. See Acts 13:46-48; 18:6.

11:8 This quotation is from Isa 29:10; Deut 29:4.

11:9-10 This quotation is from Ps 69:22-23 (Greek version).

11:11 so God made salvation available to the Gentiles: The offer of salvation to the Gentiles is the purpose, not just the result, of Israel's disobedience. Paul emphasizes that God had the salvation of Gentiles in view all along, and, ultimately, the salvation of many Jews as well. • he wanted his own people to become jealous: The theme of jealousy comes from Deut 32:21, which Paul quoted in 10:19. The sight of Gentiles enjoying the blessings of salvation that God had promised to Israel would spur Jews to desire salvation so they could participate in those blessings as well.

11:13-14 you Gentiles: Paul addresses the Gentile Christians in Rome with the practical goal of rebuking them for thinking too highly of themselves (11:20), especially in relation to their Jewish brothers and sisters. He shows that their enjoyment of salvation depends entirely on God's kindness (11:22), and that God's final goal is to stimulate repentance among the Jews (11:23). • I stress this: Paul devoted himself to the conversion of Gentiles because he knew that their salvation would ultimately lead to salvation for Jews as well.

11:15 The context emphasizes God's role in hardening many Jews (11:7-10), so the phrase their rejection likely means God's rejection of the unbelieving Jews. • their acceptance then refers to God's acceptance of Jews into his Kingdom (see also 14:3 and 15:7). • While the phrase life for those who were dead could refer to the new spiritual life that comes to the Jews as a result of their conversion to Christ (see 6:13), the language more naturally suggests the physical resurrection from the dead that occurs when Christ returns in glory (see, e.g., 1 Thes 4:13-18).

11:16 the entire batch of dough is holy because the portion given as an offering is holy: This imagery comes from Num 15:17-21, where God commanded the Israelites to take part of their first batch of dough and set it aside as a gift. God's be holy—just as the entire batch of dough is holy because the portion given as an offering is holy. For if the roots of the tree are holy, the branches will be, too.

¹⁷But some of these branches from Abraham's tree—some of the people of Israel—have been broken off. And you Gentiles, who were branches from a wild olive tree, have been grafted in. So now you also receive the blessing God has promised Abraham and his children, sharing in the rich nourishment from the root of God's special olive tree. ¹⁸But you must not brag about being grafted in to replace the branches that were broken off. You are just a branch, not the root.

¹⁹"Well," you may say, "those branches were broken off to make room for me."

²⁰Yes, but remember—those branches were broken off because they didn't believe in Christ, and you are there because you do believe. So don't think highly of yourself, but fear what could happen. ²¹For if God did not spare the original branches, he won't spare you either.

²²Notice how God is both kind and severe. He is severe toward those who disobeyed, but kind to you if you continue to trust in his kindness. But if you stop trusting, you also will be cut off. ²³And if the people of Israel turn from their unbelief, they will be grafted in again, for God has the power to graft them back into the tree. ²⁴You, by nature, were a branch cut from a wild olive

One of the key themes of Romans is that God has incorporated Gentiles into the people of God while remaining faithful to his promises to Israel. In 11:11-32, Paul describes God's plan to save all nations in four distinct stages:

1. The Good News is proclaimed to the Jews, who respond (mostly) with unbelief. In the central metaphor of the olive tree, "some of these branches from Abraham's tree . . . have been broken off" (11:17). This stage was already a matter of history and personal experience for Paul—although he shared the Good News with Jews in synagogues all over the eastern Mediterranean basin, many Jews rejected the message (see Acts 13:42-49; 18:4-6; 28:23-28).

2. Many Gentiles respond to the message with faith. As the natural branches were broken off, "branches from a wild olive tree, have been grafted in" (11:17). After being resisted in the synagogue, Paul and the other apostles offered salvation to the Gentiles, and many responded affirmatively (see Acts 13:48-49; 26:15-18). By the time Paul wrote Romans, the church in Rome was largely a Gentile community.

3. Many Jews respond to the Good News with faith. In the future, the natural branches will be "grafted in again" (11:23). As Gentiles enjoy the blessings of salvation, Jews become jealous and respond to the Good News.

4. God pours out great blessing on the world, including the resurrection from the dead. When Jews finally turn to the Lord in greater numbers, there will be a "much greater blessing" (11:12), and the dead will be resurrected (11:15). The end of history will see a great community of both Jews and Gentiles praising God for his mercy. Then all people will see and understand the great wisdom and love of God (11:33-36).

promises to and blessings on Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob were like a down payment, guaranteeing the completion of God's work among his people.

11:17-24 In Paul's extended metaphor, God's special olive tree refers to the people of God. The image is a natural one, because the olive tree is the most widely cultivated fruit tree in the Mediterranean basin, and it was already used as a symbol of Israel in the OT (Jer 11:16; Hos 14:5-6). Paul refers to the Gentile Christians as branches from a wild olive tree because they were not originally included among the people of God.

11:18 You are just a branch, not the root: By the time Paul wrote to the church in Rome, it was composed mainly of Gentiles, a common situation in the early Christian communities.

This dominant role led many Gentile Christians to brag about their status, while treating Jews and their religious heritage with disdain. Paul reminds the Gentile believers that they enjoy God's blessings only because they have been included in the one people of God, who are rooted in God's promises to Israel.

11:20 fear what could happen: In Scripture, fear often means a reverential awe of God that includes the recognition that we must one day stand before him in judgment (see 2 Cor 5:11; 7:1, 11, 15; Phil 2:12; Col 3:22).

11:21 he won't: Some manuscripts read perhaps he won't.

11:22 if you stop trusting, you also will be cut off: Scripture consistently emphasizes that only believers who persevere to the end will be saved. However, Paul's warning leads to debate over the theological implications of his statement. Some think that it implies that genuine believers can stop believing and therefore not be saved in the end. Others argue that we should not press the metaphor so far and that Paul is referring to people who appear to be believers but whose lack of real faith ultimately reveals itself.

11:24 by nature . . . contrary to nature: The usual method of enhancing the yield of olive trees involved grafting a shoot from a cultivated tree onto a wild olive tree to benefit from the wild tree's tree. So if God was willing to do something contrary to nature by grafting you into his cultivated tree, he will be far more eager to graft the original branches back into the tree where they belong.

The Salvation of "All Israel"

²⁵I want you to understand this mystery, dear brothers and sisters, so that you will not feel proud about yourselves. Some of the people of Israel have hard hearts, but this will last only until the full number of Gentiles comes to Christ. ²⁶And so all Israel will be saved. As the Scriptures say,

"The one who rescues will come from Jerusalem, and he will turn Israel away from ungodliness.

²⁷ And this is my covenant with them, that I will take away their sins."

²⁸Many of the people of Israel are now enemies of the Good News, and this benefits you Gentiles. Yet they are still the people he loves because he chose their ancestors Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. ²⁹For God's gifts and his ³⁰call can never be withdrawn. ³⁰Once, you Gentiles were rebels against God, but when the people of Israel rebelled against him, God was merciful to you instead. ³¹Now they are the rebels, and God's mercy has come to you so that they, too, will share in God's mercy. ³²For God has imprisoned everyone in disobedience so he could have mercy on everyone.

Conclusion: Praise to God in Light of His Awesome Plan (11:33-36)

³³Oh, how great are God's riches and wisdom and knowledge! How impossible it is for us to understand his decisions and his ways!

³⁴ For who can know the LORD's thoughts? Who knows enough to give him advice?

³⁵ And who has given him so much that he needs to pay it back?

³⁶For everything comes from him and exists by his power and is intended for his glory. All glory to him forever! Amen.

vigor. By grafting wild olive branches (Gentiles) into the cultivated olive tree (the people of God), God has done what is contrary to nature.

11:25 dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers. See note on 1:13. • Paul usually uses the word mystery to refer to an event of the last days that has already been determined by God. Such a mystery already exists in heaven, and is revealed to God's people in the Christian era (see 16:25; 1 Cor 2:1, 7; 4:1; 15:51; Eph 1:9; 3:3, 4, 9; 6:19; Col 1:26, 27; 2:2; 4:3; 1 Tim 3:9, 16). Here, the mystery is the relationship of Jews and Gentiles in the plan of salvation, which is at the heart of this entire passage (11:11-32).

11:26-27 The phrase all Israel could refer to the total of all believers, both Jewish and Gentile; with this meaning, and so would describe the way that God works to bring salvation to all his people. Alternatively, all Israel could refer to the total of all Jews destined to believe throughout the Christian era, or to a significant number of Jews who turn to Christ in the last days. With the last meaning, and so would have a sequential meaning—after the full number of Gentiles comes to Christ, then the full number of Jews will be saved. It does not mean all Jewish people (see 2:17-29) • As the Scriptures say: This quotation is from Isa 59:20-21; 27:9 (Greek version). • In the OT, The one who rescues is the Lord. Paul almost surely is referring to Jesus Christ (see 1 Thes 1:10). • from Jerusalem: Greek from Zion. The Hebrew text of Isa 59:20 says that the redeemer will come to Jerusalem. Paul might have changed the wording to represent Jesus' first coming from among the people of Israel or to speak of the second coming when Jesus will return from the heavenly Jerusalem (see Heb 12:22). • Israel: Literally Jacob.

11:31 will share: Other manuscripts read will now share; still others read will someday share.

11:32 have mercy on everyone: Everyone has the sense of "all kinds of people." In the context of Romans, and especially this chapter, it refers to the inclusion of Gentiles alongside Jews.

11:34 This quotation is from Isa 40:13 (Greek version).

11:35 See Job 41:11.

11:36 everything comes from him and exists by his power: This statement is similar to statements found among Greek Stoic philosophers in their descriptions of God. Paul regularly draws on literature from the Greco-Roman world to present and clarify the truth about God and his purposes (cp. Acts 17:24-29).

12:1–15:13 This section of Romans sets out the moral and ethical demands of the Good News. God's gift of salvation in Christ requires a response. God is not satisfied simply with forgiving our sin; he wants to transform our lives. Most of what Paul teaches concerning the moral duties of believers is paralleled in other letters. However, it also seems clear that he has chosen issues pertinent to the situation in Rome—most notably, the dispute between people who are weak in faith and people who are strong in faith (14:1–15:13).

12:1 dear brothers and sisters: Literally brothers. See note on 1:13. • Your bodies refers to the whole person in contact with the world, not just the physical body. • because of all he has done for you: As described in chs 1–11. • This is truly the way to worship him (or This is your spiritual worship; or This is your reasonable service): This phrase has at least three possible meanings: (1) Our sacrifice is reasonable in light of all God's mercies; (2) our sacrifice is spiritual, not the offering of an animal but of ourselves in spiritual service; or (3) our sacrifice is intelligent, offered with complete awareness of God's goodness to us.

the way to worship him. ²Don't copy the behavior and customs of this world, but let God ³transform you into a new person by changing the way you think. Then you will learn to know God's ⁴will for you, which is good and pleasing and perfect.

Humility and Mutual Service (12:3-8)

³Because of the privilege and authority God has given me, I give each of you this warning: Don't think you are better than you really are. Be honest in your evaluation of yourselves, measuring yourselves by the faith God has given us. ⁴Just as our bodies have many parts and each part has a special function, ⁵so it is with Christ's body. We are many parts of one body, and we all belong to each other.

⁶In his grace, God has given us different ⁷gifts for doing certain things well. So if God has given you the ability to prophesy, speak out with as much faith as God has given you. ⁷If your gift is ^bserving others, ^bserve them well. If you are a teacher, teach well. ⁸If your gift is to encourage others, be encouraging. If it is giving, give ^cgenerously. If God has given you leadership ability, take the responsibility seriously. And if you have a gift for showing kindness to others, do it gladly.

Love and Its Manifestations (12:9-21)

⁹Don't just pretend to love others. Really love them. Hate what is wrong. Hold tightly to what is good. ¹⁰Love each other with genuine affection, and take delight in honoring each other. ¹¹Never be lazy, but work hard and serve the Lord enthusiastically. ¹²Rejoice in our confident hope. Be patient in trouble, and keep on praying. ¹³When God's people are in need, be ready to help them. Always be eager to practice hospitality.

¹⁴Bless those who persecute you. Don't curse them; pray that God will bless them. ¹⁵Be happy with those who are happy, and weep with those who weep. ¹⁶Live in harmony with each other. Don't be too proud to enjoy the company of ordinary people. And don't think you know it all!

12:2 this world (literally this age): The division of history into two ages was typical of the Jewish worldview. Early Christians adapted this point of view, identifying the coming of Christ as the time when the new age of salvation began. Unexpectedly, however, the new age did not bring an end to the old age. The old way of thinking and living continues, and it is a source of temptation even to Christians who seek to conform their lives to the values of the new age.

12:3 Because of the privilege and authority: Or Because of the grace; cp. 1:5. • by the faith God has given us: Or by the faith God has given you; or by the standard of our God-given faith. Whether Paul is referring to the amount of faith each of us has been given or to the Christian faith that we all hold in common, we need to assess ourselves accurately by this measure and not be vain about the abilities God has given us.

12:4-5 so it is with Christ's body: The parallel between the human body and the church—the body of Christ—is also found in 1 Cor 12. This metaphor provides an effective picture of unity and diversity in the church (cp. Livy, History 2.32; Epictetus, Discourses 2.10.4–5).

12:6 The ability to prophesy was one of the most important of the NT gifts (see also 1 Cor 12:28; Eph 4:11). Although prophets are mentioned in several passages in Acts as predicting the future (see Acts 11:28; 21:10–12), the prophet's most fundamental responsibility is to communicate God's message to the community of believers (1 Cor 12:3, 24– 25, 29–30; see also 1 Cor 14). • as much faith as God has given you (literally in proportion to the faith): Proportion (Greek analogia) is a word drawn from mathematics and logic, where it refers to the correct proportions in a relationship among things, quantities, or ideas. Paul uses the phrase to remind prophets to make sure that their utterances are in right proportion to faith, whether the amount of individual faith the prophet has been given, or the Christian faith in general (see note on 12:3). This passage has given theology the phrase the analogy of faith, which refers to the importance of bringing the interpretation of any particular passage into line with the teaching of all of Scripture.

12:7 teacher: The gift of teaching comes third in the list of gifts in 1 Cor 12:28 and fifth in Eph 4:11. While prophets communicate to the community a message received directly from God, teachers address the church on the basis of studying the word of God.

12:8 give generously: See also 2 Cor 8:2; 9:11, 13.

12:9–21 The many injunctions in these verses do not follow a neat logical arrangement. The overall topic, stated at the beginning, is sincere love. Paul shows how we are to love both those inside the church (12:10, 13, 15–16) and those outside the church (12:14, 17–21).

12:10 with genuine affection: Literally with brotherly love. The key Greek word in this phrase connotes love of family. Christians are to love each other with the mutual love and commitment that are found within a healthy family.

12:11 but work hard and serve the Lord enthusiastically (or but serve the Lord with a zealous spirit; or but let the Spirit excite you as you serve the Lord): As Christians, we are to be passionate about our faith and eager to fulfill our ministry to others within the church.

12:12 The three commands in this verse are related. By rejoicing in confident hope, we can be patient in trouble. Continually praying is essential if we desire to have this attitude toward the difficulties of life (see also 8:24–27).

12:13 be ready to help them: The verb Paul uses is related to the familiar Greek word koinōnia (“fellowship”). When needs arise among our Christian brothers and sisters, we are not just to meet their needs; we should also enter into fellowship with these fellow Christians in ways that extend beyond material gifts.

12:14 The exhortations in this verse closely resemble two sayings of Jesus (Matt 5:44; Luke 6:27–28). Although Paul does not introduce the commands as a quotation, he is almost certainly alluding to these sayings of Christ. Perhaps the words were so well-known that he did not need to specify the source. The teaching of Rom 12–13 has many parallels with the teaching of Jesus.

12:16 All three exhortations in this verse use the Greek word phroneō (think). Paul addresses the need for right Christian thinking when it comes to our relationships with other Christians. • Live in harmony: Literally Think the same things. • Don't be too proud: Literally Don't think arrogant things.

¹⁷Never pay back evil with more evil. Do things in such a way that everyone can see you are honorable. ¹⁸Do all that you can to live in peace with everyone.

¹⁹Dear friends, never take revenge. Leave that to the righteous anger of God. For the Scriptures say,

"I will take revenge;
I will pay them back,"
says the LORD.

²⁰Instead,

"If your enemies are hungry, feed them.
If they are thirsty, give them something to drink.
In doing this, you will heap burning coals of shame on their heads."

²¹Don't let evil conquer you, but conquer evil by doing good.

The Christian and Secular Rulers (13:1-7)

13 Everyone must submit to governing authorities. For all authority comes from God, and those in positions of authority have been placed there by God. ²So anyone who rebels against authority is rebelling against what God has instituted, and they will be punished. ³For the authorities do not strike fear in people who are doing right, but in those who are doing wrong. Would you like to live without fear of the authorities? Do what is right, and they will honor you. ⁴The authorities are God's servants, sent for your good. But if you are doing wrong, of course you should be afraid, for they have the power to punish you. They are God's servants, sent for the very purpose of punishing those who do what is wrong. ⁵So you must submit to them, not only to avoid punishment, but also to keep a clear conscience.

⁶Pay your taxes, too, for these same reasons. For government workers need to be paid. They are ^dserving God in what they do.

⁷Give to everyone what you owe them: Pay your taxes and government fees to those who collect them, and give respect and honor to those who are in authority.

Love and the Law (13:8-10)

12:18 Do all that you can: Paul recognizes that our efforts to live at peace with others will sometimes be frustrated by our own moral constraints or by other peoples' unwillingness to be reconciled to us.

12:19 This quotation is from Deut 32:35.

12:20-21 A simple act of Christian kindness can often bring a hostile person to repentance before God and restore fellowship between people.

12:20 This quotation is from Prov 25:21-22.

13:1-2 The basic command of 13:1-7 is to submit to governing authorities. In God's ordering of the world, we answer to those in positions of authority. Our submission to them will usually take the form of obedience. However, because God stands over all governments, our submission to governing authorities must always be in terms of our ultimate submission to God (see Acts 4:19-20). The Roman Christians might have been resisting government (see note on 13:6) based on a false understanding of the Good News, as if no longer copying "the behavior and customs of this world" (12:2) meant that they could ignore earthly institutions. • placed there by God: Scripture consistently teaches that God is actively involved in raising up and casting down human governments and leaders (1 Sam 2:6-10; 12:8; Prov 8:15-16; Isa 41:2-4; 45:1-7; Jer 21:7, 10; 27:5-6; Dan 2:21, 37-38; 4:17). God instituted governing authorities, so rebelling against them is rebelling against God, who will respond with judgment (13:2).

13:3 the authorities do not strike fear in people who are doing right: Paul presents a positive picture of the governing authorities, describing them in terms of what God has appointed them to do. He does not touch on situations where leaders punish those who do good and reward those who do evil, although he was certainly aware of such situations from OT and Jewish history, from the experience of Jesus and the other apostles, and from Greco-Roman affairs. Here, Paul confines himself to discussing the appropriate response to governing authorities who live according to their calling.

13:4 servants (Greek diakonos): The NT usually reserves this word to describe Christians who serve God in various capacities. However, it was also used in secular Greek to refer to a civic official. Whether they know it or not, governing authorities are serving God when they administer justice. • they have the power to punish you (literally they do not bear the sword in vain): The sword might simply be a metaphor for punishment of any kind, but some interpreters believe it suggests that human governments, under God's authority, have the right to carry out capital punishment.

13:5 The two reasons for submission sum up the argument of 13:1-4 in reverse order: to avoid punishment relates to 13:3-4, while to keep a clear conscience refers to 13:1-2. • The word conscience (Greek suneidēsis) refers to the painful knowledge of wrongdoing. Christians know about their duty to submit to governing authorities, and their failure to do so would bring the pain of a guilty conscience.

13:6 Pay your taxes: Jesus referred to paying taxes in his famous pronouncement about the disciples' relationship to government (Matt 22:21). A tax revolt occurred in Rome at about the time that Paul was writing, so Paul's whole discussion of the Christian's responsibility to government might have been sparked by his knowledge that Roman Christians were participating in this tax revolt (see Tacitus, Annals 13).

13:8-10 These verses discuss how believers relate to other people. If we truly love others, our actions will reflect all the commandments in the law that concern our relationships with other people.

13:8 The idea of obligation is the hinge that connects 13:1-7 and 13:8-10. Christians are to "give to everyone what [they] owe them" (13:7); and Christians always owe love to their neighbors. • Owe nothing to anyone: Debts are not sinful but should be avoided and, if incurred, should be promptly repaid so that the believer is free to serve in love (see Prov 22:7). • love one another: Believers are called to love all those they encounter (12:14-21; Luke 10:25-37), but the phrase especially emphasizes the love that each believer owes to other believers. • you will fulfill the requirements of God's law: This teaching closely follows Jesus' teaching in Matt 22:34-40.

requirements of God's law. ⁹For the commandments say, "You must not commit adultery. You must not murder. You must not steal. You must not covet." These—and other such commandments—are summed up in this one commandment: "Love your neighbor as yourself." ¹⁰Love does no wrong to others, so ⁹love fulfills the requirements of God's law.

Living in Light of the Day (13:11-14)

¹¹This is all the more urgent, for you know how late it is; time is running out. Wake up, for our salvation is nearer now than when we first believed. ¹²The night is almost gone; the day of salvation will soon be here. So remove your dark deeds like dirty clothes, and put on the shining armor of right living. ¹³Because we belong to the day, we must live decent lives for all to see. Don't participate in the darkness of wild parties and drunkenness, or in sexual promiscuity and immoral living, or in quarreling and jealousy. ¹⁴Instead, clothe yourself with the presence of the Lord Jesus Christ. And don't let yourself think about ways to indulge your evil desires.

A Plea for Unity (14:1–15:13)

Do Not Condemn One Another!

14 Accept other believers who are weak in ¹faith, and don't argue with them about what they think is right or wrong. ²For instance, one person believes it's all right to eat anything. But another believer with a sensitive conscience will eat only vegetables. ³Those who feel free to eat anything must not look down on those who don't. And those who don't eat certain foods must not condemn those who do, for God has accepted them. ⁴Who are you to condemn someone else's servants? Their own master will judge whether they stand or fall. And with the Lord's help, they will stand and receive his approval.

⁵In the same way, some think one day is more holy than another day, while others think every day is alike. You should each be fully convinced that whichever day you choose is acceptable. ⁶Those who worship the Lord on a special day do it to honor him. Those who eat any kind of food do so to honor the Lord, since they give thanks to God before eating. And those who refuse to eat certain foods also want to please the Lord and give thanks to God. ⁷For we don't live for ourselves or die for ourselves. ⁸If we live, it's to honor the Lord. And if we die, it's to honor the Lord. So whether we live or die, we belong to the Lord. ⁹Christ died and rose again for this very purpose—to be Lord both of the living and of the dead.

13:9 "You must not commit adultery. . . . You must not covet": This quotation is from Exod 20:13-15, 17. • "Love your neighbor as yourself": This quotation is from Lev 19:18.

13:11 The NT often speaks of salvation as the final victory over sin and death that believers will experience when Jesus returns in glory (see 5:9-10).

13:12-13 the day of salvation: The word day reflects two sources. First, the OT repeatedly predicts the day of the Lord when God's plan culminates (see Isa 13:4-13; Jer 30:8-9; Joel 2:32; 3:18; Obad 1:15-18). Second, the tradition of moral instruction in the ancient world associated light/daytime with good and darkness/nighttime with evil. The Greeks, Romans, and ancient Jews all used this contrast. Because believers belong to the day they should be living out its values, avoiding the dark deeds that are typical of nighttime.

14:1–15:7 Paul moves to a specific issue that was causing conflict in the church at Rome. The church in Rome was embroiled in a dispute between people who were weak in faith and people who were strong (see 15:1) regarding certain practices. Throughout this section, Paul instructs believers to be tolerant toward others and their practices; he is convinced that people on both sides of the issue are genuine believers, and he does not think the issues they are fighting over are essential to the faith.

14:1 Being weak in faith means having scruples against doing certain things that Christian liberty would allow. In Rome, most of the weak in faith were Jewish Christians whose consciences did not give them liberty from certain requirements of Jewish law.
